

THE ALL INDIA REPORTER

1938

LAHORE SECTION

WITH PARALLEL REFERENCES TO

- (1) I. L. R. (1938) LAHORE (2) 40 PUNJAB LAW REPORTER
(3) 39 CRIMINAL LAW JOURNAL (4) 173 TO 178 INDIAN CASES

CITATION : A. I. R. 1938 LAHORE

PUBLISHED BY

D. V. CHITALEY, B. A., LL. B., VAKIL,

NAGPUR, C. P.

1938

(All rights reserved)

TO THE LEGAL PROFESSION IN GRATEFUL RECOGNITION OF THEIR WARM APPRECIATION AND SUPPORT

ASHWINI UNIVERSITY

190-11-80

Acc. No 177217

Dated 20.11.80

S/V 002

PRINTED BY D. G. BANADE
AT THE ALL INDIA REPORTER PRESS
NAGPUR.

LAHORE HIGH COURT

1938

Chief Justice :

The Hon'ble Sir John Douglas Young, K.T., B.A. (Cantab), Bar-at-law.

Puisne Judges :

The Hon'ble Sir James Addison, K.T., M.A., B.Sc., I.C.S.

- " Mr. Bakshi Tek Chand, M.A., LL.B.
- " " Kunwar Dalip Singh, B.A., Bar-at-law.
- " " J. H. Monroe, Bar-at-law, K. C.
- " " F. W. Skemp, I.C.S.
- " " Mahadev Vishnu Bhide, B.A. (Bom. & Cantab), I.C.S.
- " " Mian Abdul Rashid, M.A. (Cantab), Bar-at-law.
- " Khan Bahadur Din Mohammad, M.A., LL.B.
- " Mr. H. A. C. Blacker, I.C.S.
- " Diwan Ram Lal, B.A. (Oxon), Bar-at-law.
- " Mr. R. B. Becket, I.C.S. (Offg.)

Advocate Generals :

Mr. M. Sleem, B.A., Bar-at-law.

- " Muhammad Monir, M.A., LL.B. (Asst.)

Assistant Legal Remembrancers :

Mr. Chaudhri Nazir Hussain, B.A., LL.B., Advocate High Court.

- " Anant Ram Khosla, B.A., LL.B., Advocate High Court (Offg.)

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE

DR. SUDISH CHANDRA ROY, M.A., LL.B., PH.D., BAR-AT-LAW, Calcutta.
SIR M. V. JOSHI, Kt., K.C.I.E., Ex-Law Member, C. P. Government, Nagpur.
MR. E. VINAYAKA RAO, B.A., B.L., Advocate, Madras.
MR. V. V. CHITALEY, B.A., LL.B., Senior Advocate, Federal Court of India, Nagpur.

EDITORIAL STAFF

MR. R. K. MANOHAR, B.A., LL.B., Advocate, Bombay (O. S.) and Nagpur.
MR. S. G. GADGIL, B.A., LL.B., Advocate, Bombay and Nagpur.
MR. D. D. DATAR, B.Sc., LL.B., Advocate, Nagpur.
MR. R. D. DATAR, High Court Vakil (Bom.), Nagpur.

REPORTERS

Privy Council

DR. A. Majid, M.A., LL.D., BAR-AT-LAW, London.

Federal Court of India

Mr. Rang Behari Lall, B.A., LL.B., Senior Advocate, Federal Court of India, Delhi.

Allahabad

Mr. Saila Nath Mukerji, B.A., LL.B., Advocate, Allahabad.

Bombay

Mr. S. C. Joshi, M.A., LL.B., M. L. O., Advocate (O. S.), Bombay.
Mr. B. D. Mehta, B.A., LL.B., Advocate, Bombay.

Calcutta

Mr. Praphulla Chandra Ghose, B.A., B.L., Advocate, Calcutta.
Mr. Monindra Nath Mukerji, B. L., Advocate, Calcutta.
Mr. Surajit Chandra Lahiri, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Calcutta.
Mr. Baidyanath Banerji, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Calcutta.
Mr. A. K. Bhattacharjee, BAR-AT-LAW, Calcutta.

Lahore

Mr. Amolak Ram Kapur, B.A. (HONS.) LL.B., Advocate, Lahore.
Mr. Anant Ram Khosla, B.A. (HONS.) LL.B., Advocate, Lahore.
Mr. Kedar Nath Chopra, B.Sc., LL.B., Advocate, Lahore.

Madras

Mr. P. R. Srinivasa Iyengar, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Madras.
Mr. N. Srinivasa Iyengar, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Madras.
Mr. C. R. Krishna Rao, B.A., B.L., Advocate, Madras.

Nagpur

Mr. E. M. Joshi, M.A., BAR-AT-LAW, Junior Advocate, Federal Court, Nagpur.
Mr. R. K. Manohar, B.A., LL.B., Advocate, Bombay (O. S.) and Nagpur.

Oudh

Mr. Surendra Nath Roy, M.A., LL.B., Advocate, Lucknow.
Mr. G. C. Roy, B.A. (HONS.) LL.B., Vakil, Lucknow.

Patna

Mr. Subal Chandra Muzumdar, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Patna.
Mr. Laxmidhar Mahanty, B.A., B.L., M. L. O., Vakil, Circuit Court, Cuttack.
Mr. Jagat Bandhu Kar, B.A., B.L., Pleader, Circuit Court, Cuttack.

Peshawar

Pandit Raghunath, B.A., LL.B., Vakil, Peshawar.

Rangoon

Mr. Sydney Loo-Nee, BAR-AT-LAW, M. H. R., Rangoon.
Mr. K. C. Sanyal, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Rangoon.

Sind

Mr. Hakumatrai M. Eidnani, B.A., LL.B., Advocate, Karachi.
Mr. P. K. Vaswani, M.A., LL.B., BAR-AT-LAW, Karachi.

NOMINAL INDEX

Abdul Ghafoor v. Fajir Ali	792	Bishen Narain v. Swaroop Narain	43
Abdul Ghafur Khan v. Firm Mangat Rai- Ganga Sahai	184	Brahm Dev v. Emperor	469
Abdul Hakim v. Emperor	817	Brij Kumar v. Naurangi Lal	336
Abdullah Shah v. Mohammad Yaqub	558	Bua Ditta v. Sahib Diyal	753
*Abdul Majid v. Emperor (FB)	534	Budh Ram v. Municipal Committee, Delhi	613
*Abdul Majid v. Motor Union Insurance Co. Ltd.	168	Budhu v. Emperor	366
Abdul Maqsat v. Mohammad Amin Khan	680	*Bur Singh v. Kehru	732
Abdul Sattar v. Fazal-ul-Rahman	331	*Bur Singh v. Santa Singh	161
Abdur Rahim-Mohammed Gulzar Firm v. Firm Fate Mohammad-Din Mohammad	451	Central Bank of India Ltd., Lahore v. At- tar Chand	289
Ahman v. Emperor	787	Chanan Singh v. Emperor	345
Ahsan Elahi v. Alla-ud-Din	809	Chandar Bhan v. Fateh Sher	207
*Aishan, Mt. v. Jodha Ram	719	Chandravati, Mt. v. Janti Parshad	333
*Akbar Badr Din v. Emperor	594	*Chandu Lal Ghanshyam Dass, Firm v. Saraswati Sugar Syndicate, Ltd.	823
Alam Khatun, Mt. v. Hayat Khan	492	Chandu Lal-Parma Nand Firm v. Grahams Trading Co. (India) Ltd.	827
Ali Mohammad v. Mohammad Rafiq	581	Chawli, Mt. v. Kidar Nath	350
Ali Mohammad v. Nur Mohammad	858	Chhagan Lal v. Firm Mangal Sain Raj Narain	767
Allah Din v. Prabh Dayal	646	Chuni Lal v. Beant Singh	642
*Alopi Parshad v. Court of Wards	23	Chuni Shah v. Amar Singh	97
Amar Singh v. Secy. of State	442	Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab v. Shah Nawaz Khan	741
Amba Parshad v. Imam Ali	706	*Court of Wards v. Devi Dawala	675
Aminoff M. and D., London v. Commis- sioner of Income-tax, Lahore	864	Dalip Singh v. Jagat Singh	721
Amir Chand v. Des Raj	69	Daru Mal v. Todar	602
Amolak Chand v. Hoshlar Singh	138	Dasaundha Singh v. Malhi Singh	460
Amrit Lal v. Phool Chand	81	Dasaundhi v. Lal Singh	849
Amritsar Produce Exchange Ltd., In the matter of	44	Dasondhi Khan v. Jan Mohammad	318
Anant Ram Maya Ram v. Emperor	262	Daulat Ram v. Haveli Shah	479
Anjuman Imdadi Bank v. Ujagar Singh	214	Daulat Ram-Mohan Dass Firm v. Firm Vera Mall-Kewal Ram	803
Asa Singh v. Hira Singh	317	Davar, A. R. v. Jhinda Ram	198
Ata Mohammed v. Khanun	116	Debi Sahai v. Gillu Mall	563
*Attar Singh-Sant Singh, Firm v. Municipal Committee, Amritsar	898	Devi Doara v. Court of Wards, Guru Amar- jit Singh, Jullundur	488
Atte, Mt. v. Faiz Mohammad	485	Dharam Singh v. Emperor	268
Aya Ram-Tola Ram, Firm v. Sadhu Lal	781	*Dineen, L. T. v. Emperor	151
Aziz Ahmad Jan Mohammad v. Emperor	855	Din Mohammad v. Mt. Walait Begum	856
B, a Pleader, Simla, In the matter of	248	Diwan Chand v. Bihari Lal	507
B. C. G. A. Punjab Limited v. Bharat Krishna Trading Co. Ltd.	253	Duli Chand Maldhan Firm v. Panthi	511
Bachittar Singh v. Rahim Bakhsh	759	*Dulla v. Ram Chand	736
Badri Pershad v. Banwari Lal	322	Durga Das Bhagwan Das Firm v. Peoples Bank of Northern India	123
Bahadur Singh v. Emperor	176	*Dwarka Das-Badri Das, Firm v. Sirl Ram	49
Bakht Singh v. Municipal Committee, Sar- godha	195	Emperor v. Amar Singh	796
Baldeo Raj Paul v. Mool Chand Amolak Ram	493	— v. Dhana	569
Barkat Bibi, Mt. v. Nawab (SB)	301	— v. Jagiri Lal	251
Barkat Ram v. Bhagwan Singh	65	— v. Khuda Bakhsh	428
Baru Mal v. Rala Ram	779	— v. Nand Lal	526
*Basharat Ali Shah v. Ram Rattan	73	*— v. Ram Rakha	625
Basheshar Nath v. Baij Nath	264	— v. Tulsi Ram	523
*Bashir Ahmad v. Mrs. Mary Minck	698	— v. Ujagar Singh Hakam Singh	791
*Bell Ram v. Dasondha Singh	647	*Faqr Singh v. Emperor	697
Bhagat Ram v. Ralla Ram	570	*Fateh Din v. Diwan Chand	801
*Bhag Singh v. Emperor	614	Fatima, Mt. v. Nura	294
Bhandari, P. C. v. Punjab National Bank, Ltd.	520	Feroze Din v. Hassan Din	107
Bholi, Mt. v. Jai Lal	824	*Gandu v. Mt. Nasibo	22
*Bilas Rai v. Emperor	425	*Ganesh Dass v. Malik Mohammad Hussain	768
		Ganga Ram v. Naurata Ram Shadi Ram	187
		Gango, Mt. v. Mt. Hukam Kaur	111

George Ernest Moody v. Mrs. Vera Alice Moody (SB)	293	Intizamia Committee Gurdwara Darbar Sahib, Amritsar v. Central Bank of India Ltd., Amritsar	129
Ghulam Ahmad v. Emperor	848	Iqbal Singh v. Mahindar Singh	648
*Ghulam Ahmad v. Nand Lal	218	Ishar Das v. Rallia Ram	437
Ghulam Haider v. Emperor	634	*Ismail v. Jagat Singh	861
Ghulam Mohammad Khan v. Amir Mohammad Khan	211	Ismail v. Mt. Sukhan	877
Ghulam Mohammad v. Miraj Din	303	*Jagat Ram v. Misar Kharaiti Ram (FB)	361
Ghulam Mohammad v. Secretary of State	445	Jagat Singh v. Mt. Raj Devi	554
Ghulam Mohiyyud-Din v. Sardara	444	Jagta v. Bugga	103
Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din v. Mt. Hajran Bibi	182	Jahan Khan v. Emperor	429
Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din Khan v. Mt. Niamat Bibi	785	Jai Dayal v. Dewan Ram Saran Das	686
Ghulam Nabi v. Emperor	850	Jaini Brothers and Co. v. Shankar Lal	270
*Glan Chand v. Mohammad Ali	729	*Jai Ram v. Mt. Shriv Devi	344
Gianchand, G. D., Firm v. Abdul Hamid	855	Jalal Din v. Hukam Chand	820
Gian Singh v. Emperor	828	Jamala v. Mohammada	202
Girdhari Lal v. Societe Belge de Banque, S. A.	341	Jamiat Dawat wa Tabligh Islam v. Mohammad Sharif	869
Gobind v. Narain Singh	443	Jan, Mt. v. Mt. Fajjan	351
Goenka Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills Ltd., Delhi v. Messrs. Duncan Stratton and Co.	277	Jarnail Singh v. Mt. Narain Kaur	766
Gopal Dass v. Firm Seth Khushi Ram-Behari Lal	702	*Jaspal Rai v. Khan Chand	232
*Gopi Chand v. Khazan Chand	226	Jassa Ram v. Puran Bhagat	440
Gopi Nath v. Kashi Ram	306	Jawahir Singh v. Ghulam Hassan	347
Gopi Nath Vir Bhan v. Commissioner of Income-tax	530	Jawahran, Mt. v. Hazari	562
Gugni, Mt. v. Kahan Ram	191	Jhinda Ram Fateh Chand, Firm v. Mahni	685
*Gulzara v. Qutba	865	Jinda Ram v. Modern Town Society Ltd.	8
Guranditta v. Emperor	691	Jinda Ram Guranditta Mal, Firm v. Bur Singh	493
Guranditta Mal v. Emperor	29	Jiwan Ram v. Motor and General Finance Ltd. Delhi	486
Gurbaksh Singh v. Emperor	631	Jiwan Singh v. Dewan Radhakishen	99
Gurdas Singh v. Emperor	832	*Jodh Singh v. Firm Bhagwan Das-Nanak Chand	117
Gurdwara Dharmasala Doda v. Gobind Dass	85	Jowand Singh v. Ala Singh	295
Gurparshad Dewat Ram, Firm v. Kishen Chand	608	Jowand Singh v. Emperor	150
Haji Ghulam Mohammad v. Feroz	566	Kala Singh v. Boota Singh	459
Haji Ghulam Rasul Khuda Baksh, Firm v. Commissioner of Income-tax, Lahore	105	Kali Ram v. Bhiku	468
Haji Mahbub Baksh Rafi-ud-Din, Firm v. Abdul Gaffar	196	*Kanshi Ram v. Dula Rai & Co.	723
Hakam Ali v. Hashu	244	Kanshi Ram v. Lahori Ram	273
Hakim Rai v. Ganga Ram	836	Kanwar Chandra Rajsaran Singh v. Munshi Lal	695
Hans Raj v. Jagat Singh	208	Karamat Hussain v. Emperor	269
Harbans Kaur, Mt. v. Lahari Ram	739	Karam Chand v. Dr. Karam Dad Khan	465
Harbhagwan Dass v. Partap Singh	242	Karam Chand v. Narinjan Singh	709
*Har Chand v. Hira Lal	760	Karam Chand-Shankar Das Firm v. Amar Kaur	677
Hardayal Mal-Mohri Lal, Firm v. Firm Kishen Gopal Jhanji & Sons	673	Karim Bakhsh v. Shadi	241
Hardial v. Emperor	684	Kartara v. Emperor	320
Hari Chand-Sadhu Ram, Firm v. Mohammad Baksh	14	Kartar Singh v. Mt. Bhagan	179
*Hari Ram v. Firm Maddu Mal-Durga Das	12	Kartar Singh v. Emperor	556
Hari Shankar v. Ram Sarup	113	*Kesho Ram v. N. O. Goyal Co.	95
*Harnam Singh v. Aziz	1	*Kheman v. Ohhotu	635
Harnam Singh-Sohan Singh Firm v. Firm Nikka Ram-Parma Nand	183	Khota Ram v. Timku Ram	487
*Haveli Shah v. Mt. Hussaina Jan	217	Kidar Nath-Ram Chandra v. Secretary of State	223
Hayat v. Mutali	85	Kishan Kaur v. Channu Mal	508
*Hayat Mohammad v. Bar Gaushala Ltd. Lyallpur	811	Kishan Lal v. Lal Chand	20
Hira Lal v. Mohna Singh	678	Kishan Singh v. Pritam Singh	737
*Hukum Chand v. Ramji Das	357	Kishan Singh v. Mt. Santi (FB)	299
*Ibrahim v. Yusuf	39	Kishen Chand v. Nanda Mal	64
Imam Baksh v. Mandar Narsingh Puri	246	Kishen Lal v. Gohli	757
Indar Ram v. Lila Dhar	152	Kishen Singh-Sant Ram Firm v. Firm Salig Ram-Bhagat Ram	718
*Indar Singh v. Emperor	60	Krishan Lal v. Jain Mandir Panchaiti at Hansi	188
Inder Singh v. Bhana (SB)	296	*Krishna Chandra v. Gopal Chand	94
Indo, Mt. v. Jagat	611	Kumman v. Sujan Singh	619
		Kushalia, Mt. v. Emperor	339
		Labh Singh v. Mt. Jasso	180
		Lachhman Das v. Jai Gopal	793
		Lachhman Singh v. Firm Dasuandhi Ram-Babu Ram	16
		Lachhmi Narain v. Manak Chand	846

Ladha Ram Lakhl Ram v. Hari Chand	90	Mukat Behari Lal-Tej Pal Firm v. Dina Nath	883
Lahauri Ram v. Amar Chand	784	Mulk Raj Bhalla v. Official Liquidator of the Peoples Bank of Northern India, Ltd. Lahore	658
*Lahore Electric Supply Co. Ltd., v. Secretary of State	585	Municipal Committee, Amritsar v. Kashi Ram	267
Lahore Municipality v. Siraj Din	83	Municipal Committee, Batala v. Wall Mohammad	795
Lakshmi Narain v. Bala Parshad	825	*Munshi Ram v. Mehr Das	33
Lala v. Jage Ram	789	Murli Dhar v. Firm Basheshar Lal Moti Lal	126
*Lal Chand v. Sohan Lal	220	Nagina v. Mt. Bishni	457
Lal Chand Chaudhri v. Bhoga Ram	819	*Nagin Chand-Shiv Sahai v. Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab, N. W. F. and Delhi Provinces, Lahore	620
Lal Singh v. Emperor	31	Naman v. Uttam	158
Lal Singh v. Emperor	576	Nanak Chand v. Gandu Ram	360
Local Committee of Gurdwaras, Lahore v. Sardul Singh	76	Nanak Chand v. Sardar Singh	577
Lookmanji Adamji & Co. v. Mangal Sain	743	*Nanak Chand v. Suraj Parkash	693
Lush, H. G. v. Ram Chand Manchanda	454	Nand Lal v. Firm Kharalti Lal Chaman Lal	574
Madan Lal v. Diwan Chand	163	Nanu Mal v. Amar Nath	590
Madan Lal v. Ganga Bishan	255	Naranjan Singh v. Ghulam Mohammad	463
Maghi Mal v. Mohammad Ali	354	Naru Ram v. Executive Officer, Cantonment Board, Multan Cantonment	427
*Mahabir Singh v. Badh Singh	510	Nasir Din v. Abdul Rahim	302
Mahbub Hussain Shah v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., Lahore	307	Natha v. Sirl Ram	128
Mahomed Ali v. Ladha	122	*Nathu Mal v. Gokal Chand	769
Mahomed Allah Bux v. Municipal Committee, Lyallpur	627	Naurata v. Ran Singh	584
Mahomed Din v. Mohammad Din	254	Nawab Din v. Maula Bakhsh	431
Mahomed Din v. Sant Ram	334	Nazar Mohammad v. Harnam Singh	641
Mahomed Din Mehar Din v. Emperor	200	*Nazir Ahmad v. Jiwan Das	159
Mahomed Hayat v. Daulat Khan	121	Nazir Begam, Mt. v. Ghulam Qadir Khan	84
Mahomed Ibrahim & Sons v. Behari Lal Beni Pershad	96	Nazir Begam, Mt. v. Ghulam Qadir Khan	313
Mahomed Malik v. Ali Mohammad	305	Nidh Kaur, Mt. v. Gian Singh	55
Mahomed Mohsin Maula Bakhsh v. Commissioner of Income-tax	194	Nizam Din v. Ram Sukh Das	286
Mahomed Musa v. Nabl Bakhsh	616	*Northern India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Kan-haya Lal	561
*Mahomed Nawaz v. Emperor	543	Notan Das v. Karam Hussain Shah	447
Mahomed Nawaz v. Kaura Ram	166	Pahlad Singh v. Sukhdev Singh	524
Mahomed Ramzan v. Mt. Khadija Sultan Begum	472	Pala Singh v. Mt. Harnami	70
*Mahomed Ramzan Khan v. Khubi Khan	18	Panna Lal v. Jain Bank of India, Ltd. Lahore	368
Mahomed Sadiq v. Emperor	19	Parampal Singh v. Budh Singh	62
Mahomed Sadiq v. Emperor	474	Paras Dass-Munna Lal v. Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab, North West Frontier and Delhi Provinces	209
Mahomed Sharif v. Mrs. Boughton	458	Parbatl, Mt. v. Gopal Das	481
*Mahomed Yar v. Emperor (FB)	514	Partap Singh v. Ganesh Das	751
*Mahomed Zaman v. Hans Raj Shah	707	Patru Mal v. Badri Parshad	461
Mal Shah v. Jabru	794	Pearey Lal v. Emperor	496
*Mam Raj v. Firm Sher Singh-Jia Lal	694	Peoples Bank of Northern India v. Durga Dass-Bhagwan Das	728
Manbharl, Mt. v. Mt. Surti	193	Peoples Bank of Northern India, Ltd. v. Kanaya Lal	80
*Manohar Lal v. Kishan Lal	10	People's Bank of Northern India, Ltd. v. Malik Ram Kishan	430
Manohar Lal v. Nanhe Mal Sanwal Das	548	*Peoples Bank of Northern India, Ltd. v. Primla Devi	725
Manohar Lal v. Roshan Lal	799	Phaggu Shah v. Khair Din	353
Mapal v. Rana	88	Phul Chand-Nem Chand Firm v. Aggarwal Battery Manufacturing Co.	814
*Masjid Shahid Ganj v. Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar (FB)	369	Piare Lal v. Hem Chand	539
Maya Singh v. Udham Singh	704	Piare Lal v. Sher Gir	499
Megh Raj v. Firm Ragbhir Das Beni Prasad	712	Pindi Das v. Emperor	629
Mehar Langah v. Mehr Allah Yar	671	Pir Mohi-ud-Din Lal v. Emperor	762
Mehnga Allah Bakhsh v. Emperor	288	Pir Taj-ud-Din v. Khambatta	515
Mian Singh Nand Lal v. Emperor	747	Pokhar Das Ganga Ram v. Emperor	216
*Mila v. Mangal Ram	156	Prabh Dayal v. Basant Lal	622
Milkhi Ram v. Mt. Rajji	609	Prabhu Dyal Balkishan Dass Firm v. Bhondu Mal	692
Mithu Lal v. Emperor	529	*Prabhu Mal v. Chandan	638
*Mitter Sen-Ganeshi Lal Firm v. Kalyan Lal	4
Modern Chemical Works Ltd. Baroda v. Man Mohan Nath Dar	559
Mohan Devi, Mt. v. Talib Mehdi Khan	145
Molar v. Emperor	731
Mool Raj v. Manohar Lal	204
Mubarak Ali v. Commissioner of Income-tax, Lahore	867
Mubarak Jan, Mt. v. Mt. Taj Begum	453

Prabu Mal v. Chandan	512	Sher Mohammad v. Zulfaqur	312
Pran Nath v. Emperor	346	Shiromani Gurdwara Parbhandak Committee, Amritsar v. Gurdial Singh	734
*Punjab Co-operative Bank Ltd., Amritsar v. Commissioner of Income-tax	852	Shiv Nath Rai v. Messrs. Lallo Mal-Madan Lal	898
Punjab Zamindars Bank Ltd., Lyallpur, v. Babu Mohammad Shaffi	505	Shore Lal v. Damodar Das	86
Puran v. Emperor	135	Sikandar v. Mt. Karam Nishan	842
Radha Kishan v. Emperor	714	Simar Nath v. Anand Lal Kaul	219
Rahim-ud-Din v. Murli Dhar	593	*Simla Banking and Industrial Co. Ltd., Lahore v. Indo Swiss Trading Co. Ltd., Calcutta	754
Rajan Shah v. Roshan Mal	624	Singha Khobi v. Emperor	252
Ram Bhaj v. Ahmad Said Akhtar Khan	571	Sis Ram v. Sohan Lal	311
*Ram Chand v. Shamas Din	690	Sohan Singh v. Danu	467
Ramel Singh v. Emperor	101	Sohan Singh v. Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar	272
Ramesh Chandra v. Murli Manohar	308	*Som Chand-Maluk Chand v. Commissioner of Income-tax	545
Rameshwar Das v. Official Receiver, Delhi	325	Sonun Ram v. Sewa Ram	259
Ram Het Gir v. Banwari Lal	41	Sundar Das v. Secretary of State	533
*Ram Lal v. Chanan Dass	349	Sunder Singh Giyani v. Ganga Ram	93
*Ram Lal v. Firm Karam Chand-Gopal Chand	155	Surat Singh Buta Singh v. Emperor	292
Ram Narain v. Mt. Bishan Rani	321	*Talian, Mt. v. Emperor	473
*Ram Sarup v. Sarnu Mal	114	*Tara Singh v. Emperor	337
*Ram Sukh v. Har Sahai	758	Tegu Mal v. Moti Lal	525
Rati Ram v. Balwant	768	Teja Singh v. Atma Singh	434
*Rattan Chand v. Firm Kishen Chand-Ishar Das	136	Tej Bhan v. Chandi Shah	564
Resham Bibi, Mt. v. Khuda Bakhsh	482	Tej Raj v. Ram Lal	71
Risaldar Ali Shan Khan v. Ahmad Nawaz Khan	225	*Tek Chand-Daulat Ram Firm v. Ata Mohammad	503
*Roda v. Autar Singh	839	Telu v. Raja Ram	456
Roshan Din v. Mt. Malan Bibi	502	*Thakar Das v. Amar Chand	21
*Rura v. Banta	227	Thakar Das v. Jai Kishen Das	448
Sadhu v. Emperor	618	Thakarji Maharaj v. Khushi Ram	470
*Sadhu Ram v. Kishori Lal	148	Thakarji Maharaj v. Khushi Ram	752
*Sadhu Ram v. Kishori Lal	490	Tirath Ram v. Official Receiver, Ferozepore	509
Sadulla v. Emperor	477	Tulsi Bai, Mt. v. M. Haji Bakhsh	478
Sahu v. Mt. Rahmon	52	*Tulsi Das-Nagin Chand v. Commissioner of Income-tax Punjab, North-West Frontier and Delhi Provinces, Lahore	551
*Salig Ram-Bhagat Ram Firm v. Firm Kishan Singh-Sant Ram	859	Udham Singh v. Pandit Bashambar Das	485
Samand Khan v. Mohammad Ramzan Khan	582	Ujagar Singh v. Gora	82
*Sant Lal v. Firm Udho Raw Walait Ram	568	Umra v. Fateh-ud-din	550
Sant Lal v. Ramaya Ram	177	Umrao Singh v. Kanwar Lal	323
*Sant Ram v. Buta Khan	72	Uttam Singh v. Emperor	260
Saran Dyal v. Dal Chand	579	*Uttar Chand Kapur & Sons v. Messrs. Sayad Hamid Ali and Syad Imtlaz	326
Sardar Singh v. Nawal Kishore Kharaiti Lal	604	Vidya Sagar Kapur, In the matter of	815
Sarwan v. Shib Singh	575	Vidya Wanti Kaur v. Shahdev Singh	139
Sat Bhawan, Mt. v. Bedi Ram Kishen Singh	275	*Vir Bhan-Bansi Lal v. Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab	749
Secretary of State v. B. A. Malak	282	Wadhawa Singh v. Kunj Lal	497
Sewa v. Mohan Singh	615	Wall Dad v. Mt. Imam Khatun	527
Shahab-ud-Din v. Kalendar	304	Waryam Sher Mohammad v. Emperor	834
Shah Niwaz v. Ghulam Shah	324	Waryam Singh v. Pheru	780
Sham Singh v. Jagat Singh	765	Yeats W. B. v. Prof. Eric Dickinson	173
Shankar Das v. Official Receiver	328	Zaman Mehdi Khan v. Hayat Khan	452
Shankar Lal-Kundan Lal Firm v. Firm Jamna Das-Piyare Lal	30	Zorawar Singh v. Jasbir Singh	606
Shanti Devi Mt. v. Mani Singh	6
*Shanti Parkash v. Harnam Das (FB)	234
Sheo Nath v. Mughla	800
Sher Mohammad v. Mt. Jawahar Khatun	809

SUBJECT INDEX

Accounts—Suit for—Official Receiver of ex-broker's assets in insolvency assigning definite sum of money due from latter's principal and not right to sue for accounts—Suit for rendition of accounts for recovery of sum assigned is incompetent 270a —Suit for—Interest—When granted—Plaintiffs' suit and defendant's cross-suit for rendition of accounts relating to number of properties—Plaintiffs alleging that defendant acted as manager and co-sharer on their behalf—Plaintiffs claiming future interest only in their plaint—Both sides found liable to account—Defendant allowed interest on balance from year to year—Interest before date of final settlement held ought not to be allowed 139d
Acknowledgment—Acknowledgment containing promise to pay balance due on pronote—Original pronote inadmissible—Acknowledgment can be basis of suit: 505b Adverse Possession—Plaintiff mentioned only as tenant in previous suit—Property in dispute sold in execution—No assertion of hostile title by plaintiff—Plaintiff's possession held only that of licensee 440a
 *—Wakf property can be adversely possessed (Per Full Bench; Din Mohamad J., dissenting) (F B) 369b —Waste land—Construction of temporary ohhappar surrounded by ordinary enclosure of bushes on land lying waste does not amount to adverse possession: 324
 —Lessee attorning to S when crop was sown—Entry in khasra made some time later—Suit by another against S for possession—S claiming adverse possession—Possession of S commenced when crops were sown and not when khasra entry was made 6a —Possession need not be to the knowledge of real owner—Possession which is overt and without attempt to conceal is sufficient 6b
Appeal—Jurisdiction—Suit for declaration by collateral that alienation, consideration for which was alleged to be Rs. 13,000, was without consideration and legal necessity and therefore not binding on him—Suit dismissed by trial Court—District

Appeal

Judge, on appeal, holding that consideration to extent of Rs. 6608 was for valid necessity, but refusing to pass decree on ground that Rs. 6608 was outside his appellate jurisdiction—District Judge held had jurisdiction to pass decree 765
 —Appeal lies from amended decree though not from the order amending decree 331a
 —Memorandum of appeal—No memorandum of appeal, whether in Letters Patent or in any other appeal is complete unless it mentions names of all parties against whom relief is sought 325c —Necessary party impleaded in suit but not in appeal—Appeal should be dismissed—Such party has right of second appeal 70
Arbitration—Additional District Judge can entertain proceedings if powers of District Judge are assigned to him—On considering circumstances powers held so assigned—Party not raising objection to jurisdiction of Additional District Judge at the time of disposing of case cannot subsequently raise it 838
 —Minor—Proceedings are voidable at his option unless leave of Court is expressly obtained 582c —Award—Objection to award—Proceedings postponed twice, as Judge busy with other work—Petitioner not present on subsequent hearing when order to proceed ex parte passed—At next hearing, application filed to set aside ex parte order—No replication filed till then nor any final order passed—Petitioner held entitled to relief asked 486 —Award—Revision—Powers of Court are confined by S. 115, Civil P. C. 434 —Validity—Agreement between Military Department and contractor providing that disputes between parties are to be referred to arbitration of sanctioning authority—No mention made, as to by whom reference is to be made—Reference by any officer of department and to the officer holding appointment of sanctioning authority is perfectly valid 223a

Arbitration

— Validity—Judicial misconduct—Party is entitled to know details of claim preferred against him—Aggrieved party not ignorant of nature of claim against him—Details of claim supplied to him on date of hearing—Failure by arbitrator to allow him further opportunity to meet the case does not amount to judicial misconduct

223b

— Award — Partition proceedings — Award declaring rights of parties in property without giving them possession—Award is declaratory and possession cannot be given in execution proceedings: 177a

* Arbitration Act (9 of 1899), S. 2—

Award relating to mortgaged property situated at Sialkot—Amritsar Court has no jurisdiction to make order filing award: 226

Benami — Suit by benamidar — Principle where applies stated—Benami transaction of mortgage offending against provisions of Land Alienation Act—Suit by benamidar for possession is not maintainable 789

Bengal Land (Redemption and Foreclosure) Regulation (17 of 1806), S. 8— Mortgage without possession — Possession cannot be claimed—Foreclosure—No limitation for foreclosure 809a

— S. 8—Suit for possession by mortgagee as owner—He must show that foreclosure proceedings were in order 809c

* Bond — Entry in bahi khata — Entry should be scrutinized—Balance struck—Entry as "baqi rahe" signed by debtor and attested by witnesses—Entry amounts to acknowledgment—Entry as "baqi dena" by debtor is agreement—If attested, it amounts to "bond" and requires stamp duty 503

Cantonments Act (2 of 1924), Ss. 210 (g) and 213— Person served with notice prohibiting him from selling fruit—Person allowed to continue business on representation—Person applying for license without paying prescribed fee—No license issued—Person summarily tried and convicted under Ss. 210 (g) and 213—Conviction held could not be interfered in revision—Case held should not have been tried summarily 427

Charge—Creation of—Compromise deed besides continuing attachment specifically prohibiting transfer of mortgaged property by judgment-debtor—Further failure in payment of instalments fixed entitling decree-holder to realize entire decretal amount—Deed creates charge in favour of decree-holder 509

Civil Procedure Code (5 of 1908) — Applicability—A provision of the Code of Civil Procedure cannot be made applicable to proceedings under an Act if that provision is inconsistent with the procedure prescribed by the Act (Per Monroe, J.)

658b

— Ss. 2 (2), 144—Order on appeal setting aside sale of judgment-debtor's property is decree—S. 144 covers such order

456a

— S. 10—Suit for rent for period subsequent to that included in previously instituted pending suit—Suit is not barred although same question may arise in both suits 502

* — S. 11 — Decision of Small Cause Court on title in suit for rent is not res judicata in subsequent regular suit for rent and ejectment 811

— S. 11, O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action distinct—Gift of certain property to wife in lieu of dower—Widow remarrying after death of her husband—Suit for pre-emption by brother of her husband dismissed—Subsequent suit for declaration of title to property on ground of remarriage of widow and for avoidance of gift—Suit is not barred under Sec. 11 or O. 2, R. 2—Plaintiff held could not challenge validity of gift in such subsequent suit 492

* — S. 11—Suit by mutawalli for possession of mosque dismissed on ground of adverse possession—Demolition of mosque—Subsequent suit for restoration of building and declaration of right to say prayers held barred by res judicata (Per Full Bench; Din Mohammad J., dissenting)

(FB) 369j

— S. 11—Decisions passed in executive capacity do not operate as res judicata (Per Din Mohammad J.) (FB) 369o

* — S. 11—Order is not final until time of appeal has elapsed—Application by previous mortgagee for setting aside execution sale on ground of illegality dismissed—Appeal against order pending—Suit for possession against previous mortgagee as purchaser of equity of redemption decreed after repelling same contentions of previous mortgagee, as raised in application for setting aside sale—Appeal against latter decree not barred—Decision in suit for possession held not res judicata in pending appeal in execution 232b

— S. 11, Expln. 4—In previous suit plaintiff's predecessors claiming partition of whole shamilat—Subsequent suit by plaintiff claiming that certain well and land in shamilat was not liable to be partitioned is barred by res judicata 671b

Civil P. C.

—Ss. 24, 115—Case transferred under S. 24—No revision lies—Petition for transfer not found to be bona fide—Case can be retransferred 95a

*—S. 47—Suit by judgment-debtor to set aside sale held in execution on ground of fraud in respect of application under O. 21, R. 89—Matter falls under S. 47 and cannot be agitated by separate suit 690

—S. 47—Execution—Application for temporary alienation of judgment-debtor's land—Mortgage created and mortgagee given possession but mortgage money not realized from mortgagee—Decree recorded as fully satisfied by mortgage—Subsequent suit by decree-holder against mortgagee held not barred by S. 47 214

*—S. 47—Order amending decree passed on separate application, but not in execution—Application does not fall under S. 47 and no appeal is competent from order—Amended decree though appealable, revision from order is entertainable 4a

—S. 47 (2)—Partition proceedings—Award declaring rights of parties without giving possession—Decree in accordance with award—Bona fide application for execution claiming possession with alternative prayer to treat application as suit—Case held was fit for application of S. 47 (2) 177b

—S. 51—Contumacious conduct on part of judgment-debtor is necessary for arrest 692

—S. 60—Compensation money in hands of Collector awarded under Land Acquisition Act is not liable to attachment 533

—S. 60—"Debt" means perfected and absolute debt 336

*—S. 60 (1) (c) (as amended by S. 35 of the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act 7 of 1934)—House belonging to judgment-debtor exempted from attachment and sale under S. 60 (1) (c) as amended by S. 35—Mere fact that judgment-debtor has mortgaged house with possession does not disentitle him to protection afforded by S. 60 (1) (c) 736

—S. 60 (1) (c) (as amended by S. 35 of Punjab Act, 7 of 1934)—Property validly and legally vested in Official Receiver in 1933—Amendment coming into force in 1935 does not divest him of such property—Succession opening out long after vesting of property—Legal representatives can claim no exemption 459a

Civil P. C.

—S. 60 (1) (c)—Applicability of S. 60 (1) (c) before amendment by S. 35, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act stated 459b

*—S. 60 (1) (c)—'Agriculturist' means person who carries on and makes living by tillage and not mere owner of land 72

*—Ss. 63 and 73—Same property of judgment-debtor attached by two Courts of same grade and sold by one—Court selling is deemed to hold assets on behalf of other Court—Creditor in such other Court is entitled to rateable distribution without application for execution in Court holding assets 754b

—S. 64—Attachment in execution of decree made subject to mortgagee rights of mortgagee—Subsequent compromise whereby mortgagors agree to transfer portion of mortgaged land in consideration of mortgagee reducing mortgagee charge is not illegal 737c

*—S. 64 and O. 38, R. 5—Attachment before judgment made without complying with procedure laid down in O. 38, R. 5—Order is mere irregularity and not nullity—Third party cannot ignore it and enforce mortgage against claims under attachment 49

*—S. 73—Decree by one decree-holder against three persons—Decree by another decree-holder against two of them—Sale in execution of latter's decree—Former decree-holder is entitled to rateable distribution 801a

—S. 73—Sale proceeds held by Sub-Judge, First Class—Senior Sub-Judge can, without intervention of District Judge, transfer case to himself for rateable distribution 801b

—S. 73—Order in dispute between rival decree-holders is not appealable 801c

—S. 92—Suit by person claiming to be trustee of property dedicated for religious purposes, against rival trustee, for declaration that he is trustee and entitled to manage institution as such does not fall under S. 92—Sanction of Collector before institution of suit is not a necessity 869b

—S. 110—High Court varying decree of lower Court—Party held entitled to appeal to Privy Council as of right—Appeal need not involve substantial question of law 836b

—S. 115, O. 37, R. 3—Order under O. 37, R. 3 giving leave to defend conditionally is interlocutory order and does not amount to 'case decided'—No revision lies against it—High Court cannot interfere

Civil P. C.

even though it is assumed that it is not interlocutory order — Trial Court has full discretion in matter of granting leave — Wrong exercise of discretion does not amount to material irregularity in exercise of jurisdiction 548

—S. 115 — Error by lower Court in drawing certain presumptions and conclusions is no ground for revision 357a

—S. 144 — S. 144 includes decrees as well as orders 833

—S. 145—Surety—Attachment—Notice to surety is essential—Notice can be given either by Court passing decree or by Court to which it is sent for execution 593

—S. 149 — Discretion under, should be exercised in favour of litigant except in cases of contumacy or positive mala fides— (Per Full Bench) (FB) 361b

—S. 149 and O. 33, R. 7 — Application to sue as pauper rejected — Simultaneous order to pay court-fee by certain date— Court-fee paid by that date—Suit held filed when application to sue as pauper was made 41a

—S. 151—Review — Surety bond furnished to deposit purchase price when asked to do so — Court ordering purchaser to deposit money and further that property be resold on failure and short-fall recovered from him—Court becoming aware of surety bond and subsequently modifying order by directing surety to pay amount— Court held had inherent power to review and modify its order 472b

*—Ss. 151 and 152 — Remedy by way of appeal from decree open — Inherent jurisdiction cannot be invoked—No appeal or delay in appeal, though appeal competent—Error in decree — Application under S. 151 is entertainable — Matter is one of discretion with Court, to be exercised with regard to circumstances — Decree of subordinate Court merging in decree sought to be amended — District Judge is competent to proceed under S. 152 to amend same 4b

—S. 152—M selling portion of property to Z reserving certain portion to himself — Suit by Z for portion of property left after excluding M's portion — Z asserting that area to be partitioned was 100 square yards and that defendants were in wrongful possession of it—Defendants not denying this assertion — Preliminary decree giving Z 50 square yards passed — Final order confirming preliminary decree made — Appeal against final order dismissed —

Civil P. C.

Application by defendants for amendment of preliminary decree on ground that Z was wrongly given 50 square yards — Amendment held could not be made at that late stage 331b

—S. 153 and O. 30, R. 1—Suit by firm against firm working in Patiala State— Opposite party described as "firm S at Patiala through C, manager and proprietor"—Amendment by substituting name of C, sole proprietor and manager in place of firm S held should be allowed 718

—O. 1, R. 8 — Bona fide litigation — Omission to follow procedure under O. 1, R. 8 is only technical irregularity (Per Full Bench) (FB) 369b

—O. 1, R. 10—Necessary party — Rule refers to suits as framed — After trial, Court thinking that claim of one claimant should be dismissed.— Such person should not be struck out 799

* —O. 3, Rr. 1 and 4 — "Applying" is doing something more than mere acting — Provisions of Rr. 1 and 4 explained — Pleader applying on behalf of client must have his authority in writing 698

—O. 6, R. 17 — Mere introduction of fresh matter does not alter nature of suit — Alteration affecting case is one where original suit is wholly displaced by proposed amendment or where totally inconsistent case is introduced—Leave to amend cannot be refused when such is not the case 712a

—O. 6, R. 17 — Suit on contract of sale of land — Contract found to be void owing to invalid sanction—Purchaser though not claiming alternative relief for refund of purchase money held should be allowed to amend his plaint to recover purchase money: 39 P L R 287=A I R 1937 Lah 146=162 I C 557, REVERSED 244b

*—O. 7, R. 11 and S. 149 — Power under O. 7, R. 11 is discretionary and the wording of S. 149 does not stand in its way (Per Din Mohammad and Coldstream JJ. in Order of Reference) (FB) 361a

—O. 9, R. 9 — Break-down of lorry on way is sufficient reason for non-appearance 295b

—O. 21, R. 2 — Compromise making over certain decrees owned by judgment-debtor to decree-holder — Balance agreed to be paid by instalments — In default decree-holder to execute decree for each instalment as it fell due — Provision held

Civil P. C.

did not amount to substitution of new decree for old one 602b

—O. 21, R. 2 (as amended by Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act) — Payment out of Court — Judgment-debtor not applying for certification taking objection in execution — Executing Court must go into question: 39 P L R 6 = A I R 1936 Lah 842 = 165 I C 358, OVERRULED 126a

—O. 21, R. 49 — Interest of partner in partnership assets is moveable 65a

—O. 21, R. 54 — All formalities except that of affixing order on conspicuous part of court-house proved — No evidence to the contrary — Attachment is presumed to be valid 16

—O. 21, R. 57 — Warrant for attachment of moveables belonging to judgment-debtor obtained by decree-holder — Bailiff on being informed on spot that property was already sold, submitting report to that effect — Executing Court passing order directing case to be consigned to record room — Order held did not amount to dismissal of execution application — Fresh application for execution held not barred: A I R 1938 Lah 123, REVERSED 728

—O. 21, R. 57 — "Consigned to record room" is tantamount to dismissal 123a

—O. 21, R. 57 — Agreement between parties that attachment should subsist till decree is satisfied and execution application consigned to record room — Attachment does not end — Subsequent application for attachment and sale of same property — Property found to be sold by judgment-debtor — Decree-holder failing to proceed further and application consigned to record room with note that execution incomplete — Attachment held came to an end 123b

* —O. 21, R. 58 — Claim under, cannot be entertained after sale 568a

—O. 21, R. 58 — Mortgagee in possession cannot object to attachment — His proper remedy is under Rr. 100 and 103 of O. 21 568b

—O. 21, R. 63 — Property subject to mortgage attached in execution of decree — Objection by mortgagee under O. 21, R. 58 dismissed — Suit by mortgagee having merely right to sue for possession on footing of alleged mortgage does not fall under O. 21, R. 63 760a

* —O. 21, R. 63, S. 100 — Principle that in suit under O. 21, R. 63 onus of establishing consideration, etc. is on plaintiff who had raised unsuccessful objection before executing Court does not apply to plaintiff who claims under mortgage and who has adopted wrong method of establishing his right by suit under O. 21, R. 63 — Court viewing evidence in such suit as if such burden is on plaintiff — Its judgment is vitiated on point of law 760c

Civil P. C.

—O. 21, R. 63 — Occupancy rights of judgment-debtor attached in execution of decree — Landlord is entitled to bring suit for declaration that occupancy rights cannot be attached and sold 677a

—O. 21, R. 66 — Objections — Objection to sale by judgment-debtor on ground of defect in proclamation — Objection dismissed on ground that remedy under O. 21, R. 90 is open — Such remedy not found available — Judgment-debtor is entitled to claim adjudication upon earlier objection: 65c

—O. 21, R. 66 (2) — Application for sale giving required information — No presumption that proclamation issued by Collector did so 152b

—O. 21, Rr. 85, 86 and 90 — Failure to deposit 75 per cent. of purchase money within fortnight does not amount to material irregularity in conducting or publishing sale — Court cannot extend time for making such deposit and must resell property — Discretion given in Rule 86 is only with respect to forfeiture of deposit and not resale 198

—O. 21, R. 90 — Inadequacy of price fetched is by itself no ground for setting aside sale 508b

—O. 21, R. 90 — Material irregularity in publishing and conducting sale — Auction price grossly inadequate — Substantial loss may be presumed 152c

—O. 21, R. 90, Proviso (Lahore amendment) — Objections as to contents of proclamation ought to be raised before sale — Sale cannot be set aside merely on ground of omission to give approximate value or rental of properties 508a

—O. 22, R. 4 — Joint interest or liability — Joint decree in favour of all defendants, their interests not being separate — Some of such defendants not made parties to appeal — Non-inclusion results in abatement of appeal as a whole — Where interests are separable, appeal can proceed against those defendants that are impleaded 35b

—O. 23, R. 1 — Reference to arbitration — Permission to plaintiff to withdraw suit to bring fresh one is illegal 582a

—O. 23, R. 1 and S. 11 — Bar to fresh suit — In appeal parties agreeing to dismissal of appeal—Court passing order dismissing appeal allowing plaintiff to file fresh suit—Suit held not one withdrawn under O. 23, R. 1—Fresh suit on same cause of action held barred by res judicata 52

Civil P. C.

—O. 23, R. 1 (2) (b)—“Other sufficient grounds” in Cl. (2) (b) of Rule 1 of O. 23 must be eiusdem generis with the ground mentioned in Cl. (2) (a) 294

—O. 23, R. 3, O. 43, R. 1 (m)—Appeal from order under O. 23, R. 3 is not incompetent merely because preferred after decree is passed 766

—O. 30—Joint Hindu family business must sue and be sued in name of its members 563a

*—O. 30, R. 1 and O. 9, R. 13, Proviso—Suit by or against firm—Addition of partners' names is not obligatory—Suit against firm through G—G also added as defendant—On G's failure to appear suit decreed ex parte—Application for setting aside ex parte decree—Decree ought to be set aside both against firm and G and not only against firm 823

—O. 32, R. 3—Person acting as de facto guardian ad litem—Formal order of appointment absent—Proceedings held not invalid 709a

—O. 32, R. 7—Provisions are mandatory—Where a suit was compromised by a guardian ad litem of a minor without complying with the provisions of R. 7, the compromise and the decree passed thereon are not binding on the minor, even if the compromise was signed by the minor, he being not sui juris 709b

—O. 34, R. 5 (3)—Decree for sale under O. 34, R. 5 (3)—Sale proceeds should be applied first in discharge of amount found due in preliminary decree and not towards costs or interest—Principle of S. 60, Contract Act, cannot be applied 289

*—O. 39, R. 1—Temporary injunction under and stay of execution—Distinction between—Sale in contravention of injunction under O. 39, R. 1 is not nullity as in case of stay order 220

—O. 40, Rr. 1, 4—Non-rendition of accounts by third party during Receiver's administration is not appealable 328b

*—O. 40, R. 1—Appointment of receiver is not limited to property over which plaintiff has lien 12

—O. 40, R. 1—Partition suit—Likelihood of debts being realized or settled by defendants without plaintiff's knowledge—Appointment of receiver is proper 10b

Civil P. C.

—O. 41, R. 1—Amendment or correction of mistake in decree but not review of judgment—Whether supersedes original decree necessitating dismissal of appeal presented with copy of original decree—(Quære) 76a

—O. 41, R. 20—Appeal against respondent barred by time—He is not “person interested in result of appeal”—His name cannot be added under O. 41, R. 20: 325b

—O. 41, R. 20—‘Interested’—Defendant dying during pendency of suit—Legal representatives brought on record—In appeal, legal representatives not impleaded until right of appeal barred against them—Such persons cannot be joined under O. 41, R. 20—Time cannot be extended under S. 5, Limitation Act 35a

—O. 41, R. 27—Additional evidence when should be admitted stated 114b

*—O. 41, R. 27 (1) (b)—Test laid down in Cl. (b) is one relating to state of mind of Appellate Court and not external standard 161

—O. 41, R. 33—Power to amend decree—Judgment imposing personal liability for costs on mortgagor—Decree drawn up in usual form and making no mention of such liability—Appellate Court can direct the decree to be amended and brought in conformity with judgment 188b

—O. 43, Rr. 1, 2 and O. 41, R. 1—Consolidated order recording compromise and granting decree in its terms—Appeal from such order filed with copy of order containing prayer that the order recording compromise and decree based thereon be set aside—Appeal held one under O. 43, R. 1 (m)—Copy of order is sufficient to satisfy O. 41, R. 1 read with O. 43, R. 2 350

*—O. 43, R. 1, Cl. (s)—Appointed receiver declining to act—Appointment of receiver in general may be contested in appeal 10a

—O. 45, R. 4—Cases not directly falling under—Court has power to consolidate such appeals under R. 7 of Schedule to Rules of Indian Order in Council (9th February 1920) 207a

*—O. 45, R. 7—Delay in depositing security—Condonation possible for cogent reasons—Courts closed when time fixed expired—Security could be deposited when Court reopened—Money deposited with

Civil P. C.

Bank for purchase of security to be deposited—Delay held could be excused 725a
 —O. 45, Rr. 7 and 9—Security order—Revoking acceptance—Revocation must be before admission of appeal under R. 8

725b

—O. 45, R. 7—No power to extend period prescribed by R. 7 207b

—O. 47, R. 3—Copy of order sought to be reviewed is not necessary—Nor application need be accompanied by affidavit

295a

*—O. 47, R. 4 (2) (a)—‘Opposite party’—Pro forma defendant not taking interest—Proceedings ex parte against him throughout—His interest sufficiently guarded by plaintiff—Such defendant is not ‘opposite party’—Notice to him of application for review is not necessary before it is granted 22

—Sch. 2, Para. 12—Suit against joint owners for injunction referred to arbitration—Some of the owners being minors—Sanction of Court in respect of them not obtained—Award cannot be corrected by separating it as against minors 582b

*—Sch. 2, Paras. 17 and 19—Agreement to refer dispute to arbitrators nominated by each party—Agreement not providing for nomination of another arbitrator in case one nominated refuses to act—One of nominated arbitrators refusing to act—Court cannot replace him by appointing another 859

—Sch. 2, Paras. 20, 15 (c)—Grounds for invalidity in Para. 15 (c) do not cover matters of procedure and not raised before arbitrator—Application under Schedule 2, Para. 20—Objection that applicant was partner of opposite party and so could not claim specific amount—Point decided against opposite party by trial Court but no decision of High Court obtained on that point—No such objection raised before arbitrator—Separate suit for dissolution of partnership against applicant by opposite party—Award held could not be challenged in suit—Decision on question whether parties were partners did not operate as res judicata 604

Companies Act (7 of 1913), S. 162—Agreement for settlement by arbitration—Limited Company in Punjab being one of the parties—No specific reference to Arbitration Act—Arbitration Act held did not apply 827b

—S. 171—Appeal or application for revision arising out of action by company—

Companies Act

Leave of Liquidation Court is not necessary 754a —Ss. 202, 235—Petition under S. 235 presented to High Court against certain persons—High Court holding petition maintainable—Order of High Court is appealable under S. 202 (Per Young C. J. and Tek Chand J.) 658a

—S. 235—Application under S. 235 is in nature of plaint and proceedings under S. 235 are judicial proceedings—Provisions of Civil Procedure Code are however inapplicable to petition under S. 235 (Per Monroe J.) 658a

—S. 235—Petition by liquidator under S. 235 to High Court—Petition is not bad because liquidator does not state specific amount claimed—Liquidator must however bring all facts on which claim is based to notice of Court (Per Monroe J.) 658a

—S. 235—Petition under S. 235 to High Court—Name of certain persons added subsequently but documents relating to them filed later on—Date of application against these persons is date on which documents are filed (Per Monroe J.): 658d

—S. 235—Petition under S. 235 presented to High Court—Particulars on which claim is based or sums sought to be recovered not mentioned—Petition not accompanied by affidavit—Proceedings are not rendered defective by reason of these defects (Per Young C. J. and Tek Chand J.) 658f

—S. 235—Proceedings under S. 235 started in High Court against certain persons—Matters alleged against some of them entirely different from those alleged against others—Claims against all cannot be tried jointly on principles underlying O. 2, R. 6, Civil P. C. (Per Young C. J. and Tek Chand J.) 658g

—S. 235—Proceedings against directors under S. 235 for misfeasance—Subsequent suit against them for compensation for misfeasance and fraud is incompetent on principle of res judicata 577

Company—Winding up—Defendant holding share in company registered in Indian State and residing in British India not appearing before State Liquidation Court and not submitting to its jurisdiction—Call order made against him by Liquidation Court is without jurisdiction and cannot be enforced as such in British India 559 —Chairman receiving money on behalf of company—Money actually spent on matters connected with company—Chairman is not personally liable for money so received 341a

Company

Contempt — Contempt of Court — Complaint charging certain persons of abduction — Pending proceedings, complainant taking copy of complaint to editor of newspaper — Editor publishing complaint with scare headlines and comments of his own — Publication held contempt of Court 815

Contract — Mandi contract with pacca ahrti of Bombay — A at Delhi placing with B, a pacca ahrti of Bombay, order for forward transaction of certain bales of cotton and undertaking to pay mandi — Contract held complete between parties and A held liable for mandi and loss suffered by B 825a

— Construction — Wagering contract — Speculation does not necessarily involve contract by wager — Common intention to wager must be proved — No proof of bargain express or implied, that goods were not to be delivered — Contract is not wagering contract 781a

— Consideration — Original contract between parties a wagering transaction — Forbearance of plaintiff to sue and declare defendant defaulter constitutes good consideration for fresh agreement — Plaintiff is entitled to recover 781c

— Novation — Parties entering into new agreement to discharge debt — Right to revert to original position reserved if debtor fails to complete new agreement — Debtor failing to complete transaction — Creditor can sue on original cause of action 757b

— Enforcibility — Principal and agent — Agent having interest in contract may sue in his own name 673

— Counter-offer amounts to rejection of offer 341b

— Pucca arhtia is so-called agent acting as principal — S. 230, Contract Act, does not apply to pucca arhtia 253

— Construction — Author agreeing to grant to publishers sole and exclusive license to print, publish and sell his work — Author reserving to him copyright of such volume and also other rights — Agreement held amounted to only publishing agreement and not assignment of copyright 173a

Contract Act (9 of 1872), S. 16 — Undue influence — Proof — Merely raising atmosphere of suspicion is not sufficient — There must be clear and definite evidence of case propounded 333

Contract Act

* — S. 23 — Security bond for appearance of accused on fixed date — No agreement between surety and accused that latter would reimburse former for amount of security which might be forfeited — Amount subsequently forfeited — Accused three years afterwards voluntarily executing mortgage in favour of surety, consideration being amount forfeited — S. 23 held did not apply — Even in case of agreement to reimburse, accused held could not recover mortgaged land, both parties being in pari delicto 732

— S. 23 — Champerty and maintenance — B agreeing to finance litigation costing about Rs. 9000 of A in return for part worth about one lakh of recovered property — A, a man of weak intellect and in habit of drinking — Agreement held unfair and therefore invalid 23b

— S. 25 — Mere acknowledgment of liability does not fall under S. 25 264b

* — S. 25 — Promise to pay — Entry signed by debtor but not containing words amounting to promise to pay — Entry does not fulfil requirements of S. 25 155

* — S. 25 (2) — Contract by minor — Ratification on attaining majority — Effect — Consideration in earlier contract cannot be imported into subsequent contract — S. 25 (2) does not apply 159a

— S. 25 (3) — Acknowledgment is promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3) — It is valid agreement for purpose of suing irrespective of whether debts covered thereby are time-barred 757a

* — S. 25 (3) Balance struck and interest fixed — This amounts to promise to pay: AIR 1937 Lah 642, REVERSED (FB) 234b

* — S. 25 (3) — Petitioner entering into money bond to pay off father's time-barred debts — Decree can be passed only against estate of deceased in petitioner's hands — He is not personally liable 159b

— S. 30 — Teji mandi contracts are not wagers without proof that common intention of parties was to deal only in difference 825b

— S. 65 — Contract void from inception — Money advanced is recoverable 721d

— S. 74 — Contract of lease — Lessee paying certain sum in advance and agreeing to pay balance by certain date — Contract providing that in case of failure to pay balance by appointed date, advance would be forfeited — Stipulation held not by way of penalty — Advance held could not be recovered on failure of lessee 62

Contract Act

— S. 135 — Auction-purchaser allowed to withdraw deposit on furnishing security to re-deposit when asked — Surety bond executed — Purchaser when asked to deposit amount asking for time which was granted — Consent of counsel for decree-holder — Court directing surety to pay amount — Surety held not absolved — Bond being in favour of Court, it had discretion to grant time to purchaser 472a

Contribution—Suit for — Parties putting forward joint false defence—Costs awarded to opposite party—Anyone can claim contribution in costs paid — Liability should be proportionate 579

Co-operative Societies Act (2 of 1912), S. 8 (3)—Bye-laws under, bye-law 3 — Registered Building Society constructing house for member—Transaction is not loan 8b

Copyright Act (1911, 1 & 2 Geo. V, Ch. 46), Ss. 6 and 7—Scope—Remedies given by Ss. 6 and 7 are not alternative—Yet owner of copyright getting damages under S. 6 is not generally entitled to anything as damages under S. 7 173b

Co-sharers—Right to alienate — Some of co-sharers executing mortgage entering into compromise with mortgagee agreeing to deliver some land to him in consideration of his reducing mortgage charge — Co-sharers are bound by terms of compromise to extent of their share — Compromise is not illegal merely because one of the mortgagors is not party to it 737b

—Joint possession — Person opening doorway in wall of his house abutting on common courtyard—Each house abutting on courtyard and having door in it—Opening of door does not amount to ouster of other co-owners — Suit for injunction does not lie unless inconsistent or excessive user is proved 487

—Exclusive possession — One co-sharer in exclusive possession of portion of joint land not exceeding his share in it—Other co-sharer cannot dispossess him from such portion 465

—Exclusive possession — One co-sharer in exclusive possession of land owned in common by co-sharers — Other co-sharers are entitled to money compensation in respect of exclusive user 302

Court-fees—Possession—Possession howsoever obtained is good possession for purpose. 1938 Index (Lah.)—3 & 4

Court-fees

ses of Court-fees Act — Constructive possession through tenant is good possession: 275a

Court-fees Act (7 of 1870), S. 7 (iv) (c) — Suit falling under S. 7 (iv) (c) — Plaintiff failing to fix value of suit for purposes of court-fee but separately valuing his suit for jurisdictional purposes at certain sum — Amount so fixed for jurisdictional purpose should be taken as value of relief for purpose of court-fee 647

* — S. 11 — Court-fee ordered to be paid by decree not paid — Decree although not executable, yet application for execution is maintainable 326b

— S. 17 — Sale by mortgagee of his rights under mortgage — Balance of mortgage money not being paid, suit by vendee against mortgagor and his surety and in alternative against vendor — Causes of action against original mortgagor and that against vendor are not distinct so as to attract S. 17 — Mortgage found void — Vendor must refund money received by him under sale of mortgagee rights 566

— Sch. 2, Art. 17 (vi) and S. 7 (v) — Person not in possession of property claiming to be entitled to it — S. 7 (v) and not Art. 17 (vi) applies 275b

Criminal Procedure Code (5 of 1898), Sec. 107—Petition under S. 107 for taking proceedings against certain person—Magistrate can ask police to make preliminary enquiry and submit report: A I R 1928 Lah 694=111 I C 450=29 Cr L J 866=29 P L R 666 and Cri. Revn. No. 703 of 1936, OVERRULED 861

— Ss. 107 and 145 — Complaint under Ss. 107/145—Magistrate omitting to draw up original order under S. 145 (1) and to affix its copy at the spot under S. 145 (3)—All proceedings are vitiated — Final order is liable to be set aside 345

— S. 110 — Previous conviction is not necessary for order of security being passed — Magistrate must consider and weigh evidence produced by prosecution 428

— S. 133 — S. 133 does not apply to longstanding obstruction but only to unlawful obstruction lately built in public place — Action under S. 133 can be taken only on proof of urgency or imminent danger to public—It cannot be used as substitute for litigation in Civil Court 523

— S. 133 — Magistrate ordering party to remove obstruction or appear before him to have order set aside or modified — Party appearing before him — Magistrate must decide case himself — He cannot send it to other Magistrate for disposal 323

Criminal P. C.

— S. 145 — S. 145 is applicable even to case of dispossession of tenants by landlords 122

— S. 164 — Accused volunteering to make confession — Magistrate recording confession but not appending certificate — Magistrate deposing as to having gone through formalities — Confession held admissible 556a

— S. 164 — That maker of statement is person in Court can be proved by police officer 477

— Ss. 164, 533 — Confessions recorded under S. 164 — Actual questions and answers put by Magistrate to accused not recorded but Magistrate giving evidence under S. 533 and satisfying Court that usual precautions were taken — Confessions are admissible in evidence 200a

— S. 173 — Order on police report that case be struck off is not judicial order: 469

— Ss. 190 (1) (c) and 191 — Magistrate taking cognizance on charge sheet filed at his instance — Magistrate acts under S. 190 (1) (c) — Failure to comply with S. 191 vitiates entire proceedings in his Court: 19

— Ss. 195 (3) and 476 — H applying to District Magistrate for taking action against M for giving false medical certificate to N in criminal complaint by M against H in Court of Naib Tahsildar — Matter referred to Additional District Magistrate for disposal — Additional District Magistrate ordering complaint to be made against M — Complaint held lodged without jurisdiction 641b — Ss. 196-A (2) and 195 — Object of conspiracy to commit non-cognizable offence — Some of accused parties to proceedings in which offence committed — Sanction for prosecution under S. 120-B, I. P. C., is not necessary only in the case of such accused but is necessary in the case of others 526

— S. 223 — Accused tried for cheating — Term 'manner' in S. 223 includes every ingredient by which act ceases to be one of mere deception and becomes one of cheating 828b

— S. 247 — Case adjourned for judgment without attendance of complainant having been specially directed — Complainant absent on fixed day — Accused cannot be acquitted on that ground 121

— S. 252 (2) — Magistrate is bound to summon under S. 252 (2) at Government expense such of complainant's witnesses as he considers necessary — Mere fact that same case was investigated by police and no challan was put is no ground for refusing to summon such witnesses 444

Criminal P. C.

— Ss. 337 (1), 10 (2) — Term "District Magistrate" in S. 337 (1) includes Additional District Magistrate empowered under S. 10 (2) — Pardon tendered by such Additional District Magistrate without sanction of District Magistrate is not invalid 796a — Ss. 337 (1), 337 (1-A) — Magistrate tendering pardon, stating in his order that pardon has been tendered to person concerned to make him approver to connect accused with offence of murder — It amounts to sufficient compliance with S. 337 (1-A) 796b

— S. 337 (1) — It is not necessary that acceptance of pardon tendered should be expressed in any particular manner — It is to be gathered from circumstances 796c

— S. 337 (2) — Magistrate other than Magistrate taking cognizance of offence is entitled to record statement of person to whom pardon has been tendered 796d

— S. 342 — Applicability — Court witness — S. 342 does not apply to witness called by Court — Accused need not be examined again after such witness 631a

— S. 342 — Violation of Sec. 342 is illegality 543a

* — S. 342 — Warrant case — Examination of accused after further cross-examination of prosecution witnesses under S. 256 but before defence is not illegal 543b

* — S. 403 (4) — Accused convicted under S. 211, Penal Code, but acquitted in revision sought to be prosecuted again under S. 182, Penal Code, requisite sanction having been obtained — Case held to fall under sub-s. (4) of S. 403 — Fresh trial held not barred 625

* — S. 403, Illus. (e) — A acquitted by Second Class Magistrate of charge under S. 323, Penal Code — A cannot subsequently be retried under S. 324, Penal Code 614

— S. 439 — Enhancement of sentence — Petition for, by party — Policy is to dismiss such petition but rule is not hard and fast 116

— S. 476 — Notice of inquiry to person alleged to have committed offence is not necessary 641a

— Ss. 476, 476-A — Application for making complaint under Sec. 476 dismissed in default — Applicant taking no steps to get order of dismissal set aside — It is not open to superior Court to entertain another application by same applicant and to make complaint—"Rejection" in S. 476-A includes rejection on ground of failure to prosecute application 429a

Criminal P. C.

—S. 476—It is not necessary that action under S. 476 must be taken before close or in strict continuation or within any particular time after termination of proceedings in which perjury has been committed—Application need not necessarily be prompted by high motives (Obiter) 429b

—S. 480—Conciliation Board constituted under the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act is "Court" and proceedings before it are judicial proceedings—Board can take action in respect of contempt of Court committed before it 366a

* —S. 498—Appeal decided by High Court—Leave for appeal to Privy Council granted by Judicial Committee—Power of High Court to grant application for bail pending decision of appeal to Privy Council depends upon direction by Privy Council to accused to apply to High Court for bail 697

—S. 510—Paper in somebody's handwriting that Chemical Examiner's report shows that certain packets contain cocaine is not legal evidence and cannot be a substitute for Chemical Examiner's certificate 496

* —S. 522—Accused breaking lock of house in absence of person in possession and taking possession of house—Order under S. 522 is competent 839a

—S. 522—Judge not finding that there was criminal force but finding complainant's evidence regarding it as true—Order under S. 522 is competent 839b

* —S. 522 (3)—S. 522 (3) imposes no period of limitation on Court of Appeal or Revision—Order restoring possession by Appellate Court more than one month after conviction—High Court in revision would not interfere 839c

—Ss. 526, 528—Case between Hindus and Mahomedans—Mere fact that Judge or Magistrate is Hindu or Mahomedan does not debar him from hearing it—But case reaching stage in which question of communalism has become very prominent—It is desirable that case should be transferred 706a

—S. 526—Complainant in cognizable case applying for transfer of case—Application opposed by Crown—Application cannot be granted—That Magistrate lives in house of accused held no ground for transfer 569

Criminal P. C.

—S. 540-A—Absence of accused—Trial is nullity—Exemption under S. 540-A—Provisions must be strictly complied with 216a

* —S. 544—Rules under, made by Punjab Government, Vol. 3, Chap. 9, R. 1—Rule framed by Lahore High Court that ordinarily expenses of defence witnesses are to be paid by Government in every warrant case is ultra vires (Per Blacker J.) 693

—S. 561-A—Application for expunging remarks by Magistrate—Remarks wholly unsupported by evidence on record even as legitimate inferences and wholly unjustified and likely to affect future of applicant—They should be directed to be expunged 793

Criminal Trial—Approver—Corroborative statement of accused himself is most powerful form of corroboration, provided it definitely commits him to be present at murder 339a

—Approver—Corroboration—Corroborative evidence need not be evidence connecting accused with every detail of crime—It is sufficient if it tends to connect accused with crime 339b

—Approver resiling in Sessions Court from statement in Committing Court sent up for trial—Statement must be treated as confession and may be sufficient for conviction 135

—Bail—Power of High Court to grant—Accused committed by competent Magistrate on serious charge—High Court should not lightly release accused on bail 762b

—Circumstantial evidence—Presence of injuries on body—Presumption 150b —Complaint—Defamatory allegations against minor daughter affecting father—Father and daughter can file separate complaints—Compromise and consequent acquittal of accused in father's complaint do not affect complaint by daughter 739a —Complicated case—Services of Public Prosecutor or special Public Prosecutor should be sought at trial itself 634b

—Concurrent jurisdiction—Lower Court should be moved first, particularly in case of application for bail—Exception to general rule 762a

—Confession—Exculpatory part inherently improbable—Court can act upon only inculpatory part 850b

Criminal Trial

—Confession — Accused making confession, although coming from police custody, present before Court for considerable period — Overwhelming prosecution evidence recorded against him — Held that no inference could be drawn that confession was improperly induced 731

* —Confession — Magistrate taken by Sub-Inspector in charge of investigation of murder to witness the accused discover dead body — Magistrate instead taking charge of investigation and recording confession in instalments — Sub-Inspector merely looking on — Genuineness of confession is doubtful 594b

—Confession — Oral proof of confession that could be recorded is inadmissible: 594c

—Confession — Whole confession unreliable — Discovery too is unreliable 594d

—Confession — Confessing accused must be sent to judicial lock-up after confession and not to police custody — In case accused is sent to police custody, Court must look into surrounding circumstances to satisfy itself that confessions are voluntary 292

—Confession retracted — Evidentiary value stated 252b —Duty of trial Court — Trial Judge must be strictly accurate in making comments on evidence given before him 288

—Dying declaration — Wound puncturing liver, lung, stomach, etc. — Victim held not capable of making any declaration 268

—Evidence — Admissibility — Entry made in daily diary of thana before recording of first information is inadmissible in evidence for any purpose being part of proceedings of police 787a —Evidence — Statement of formal witness for prosecution assisting defence has not much weight 714a —Evidence — Police diary — Statement of witnesses recorded in police diary — Burden of rebutting it is not very heavy — Witness respectable educated man and quite disinterested — Slight discrepancy in his statement in Court and what is recorded in 'diary' — His denial of accuracy of statement in diary may be accepted as correct 714c —Evidence — Medical officer examined before trying Magistrate should be insisted to come before Sessions Court 176 —Evidence — Testimony of witnesses cannot be rejected merely because they are relations or partisans of one side — Such testimony can be rejected when witnesses tell lies 150a

Criminal Trial

—First information report — Delay in making report is only suspicious circumstance — It is no ground for rejecting evidence 714b

—Joint trial — One accused absent — Exemption granted illegal — Trial is vitiated 216b —Judgment — Proper course of dealing with criminal case stated — Judge dealing first with accused's statement and then with prosecution evidence believing that part which supported accused's admission of guilt — Procedure held illegal 850a —Motive — Motive is to be judged by reasonable standards 594a —Murder — Accused held to have acted in right of private defence and not to have exceeded the right 791

—Murder — Sentence — Accused fatally stabbing deceased as result of deceased making and publishing denunciations against leader of his community in a poster — Accused having knowledge of poster for at least two days before offence — Held there was no grave and sudden provocation and sentence of death passed was proper 355

—Murder — Enhancement of sentence — Power to enhance sentence should be sparingly exercised by High Court only when failure to do so would lead to serious miscarriage of justice 260

—Retracted confession — Contradictory confessions cannot be relied upon in absence of direct testimony — Fact that some policemen were interested in investigation when confessions were made is good ground for not relying upon them 101

—Revision — Retrial when ordered by High Court stated 832

—Revision — Acquittal on erroneous view of law can be set aside 739b

—Revision — Interference against acquittal — The High Court has no power to interfere in revision against an acquittal 339c

* —Transfer application — Security bond demanded — Transfer application actually made but not properly prosecuted and dismissed — Security bond cannot be forfeited for want of prosecution of transfer application 337

—Transfer of case — Application for transfer based on communal motive is not maintainable — But Magistrate trying case committing errors of procedure and his

177216

20.11.80

Criminal Trial

action likely to raise apprehension of partiality—Case should be transferred 576

—Transfer of case—Magistrate trying case shown to have had private interview with one of the parties and heard his version of case—That is sufficient ground for transfer of case to another Magistrate: 346

—Witness—Poverty of witness is no ground for discrediting him (Per Blacker J.) (FB) 534a

Custom—Proof of existence—Proof of the existence of custom over a period of about 60 years is sufficient to hold that it is binding 680a

—Proof—Few instances of recent times are not sufficient 447c

—Proof of — Party must prove custom and that it governs him 431c

—Proof of—Custom repeatedly ascertained and acted upon judicially—Judgment is evidence of custom 309c

—(Punjab)—Abadi Ferozepura—Right of reversion in malba of houses of non-proprietors held did not vest in all proprietors 680b

—Adoption — Jhali Jats of village Dehlon, Ludhiana District—Adopted son is entitled to succeed collaterally in adoptive father's family 103

—Alienation — Legal necessity — Joint debts incurred by members of a family for ordinary household necessities is just antecedent debt, unless expenditure covered by debt has been wastefully extravagant 858

—Alienation—Ancestral land — To support alienation necessity must exist at the time of alienation 648a —Alienation — Ancestral land — Just debt—Meaning explained — Amounts borrowed by big zamindar, having social position and large income, for purchase of costly clothes and ornaments cannot be considered as reckless expenditure so as to exclude amounts from category of just debts 648b —Alienation — Antecedent debt—Debts incurred after agreement of sale and later included in consideration for that sale are not antecedent debts 648c

—Alienation — Necessity — Purchase of ornaments 648d —Alienation — Good management — To sell property worth Rs. 20,500 when there is necessity for a loan of about Rs. 6000 only is not act of good management 648e —Alienation — Mere fact that part of property sold was house property situated within city limits is not sufficient to take it out of customary restriction on sale of ancestral property 648f —Alienation — Alienation by father — Declaratory suit by son challenging alienation—Mere fact that son lives with father does not make suit collusive 648g —Alienation—Declaratory suit challenging sale of ancestral property — Such suit cannot be collusive between plaintiff, whether minor or major, and vendor defendant 648h

Custom (Punjab)

—Alienation — Ancestral property — Necessity — Alienee need only prove that antecedent debts discharged were due—Even outsider alienee is not protected if he knows true nature of debts and acts in bad faith 648i —Alienation — Consent — Plaintiff's grandfather selling ancestral land in 1888 — At the time of sale only two reversioners living, of whom one was plaintiff's father — Sale deed attested by plaintiff's father — Suit in 1901 by other reversioner for setting aside alienation in which plaintiff's father made defendant — Plaintiff's father supporting sale and suit dismissed — Consent given by plaintiff's father not proved to be mala fide—Plaintiff suing to set aside sale in 1934 — Plaintiff held had no locus standi to sue—Suit held barred by consent of plaintiff's father 467

—Alienation — Ancestral property — Husband can alienate ancestral land in favour of wife in lieu of reasonable dower debt 431a —Alienation — Ancestral property — Sanda Jats and agriculturists of Mianwali District—Male proprietor has unrestricted powers of alienation 166b —Alienation — Ancestral property — Limited power—Persons should be mainly agriculturists and members of village community 107a —Ancestral and non-ancestral proportion of land not distinguishable—Whole is non-ancestral 180b

—Applicability—Pawalis of Bhera held not governed by custom but by Mahomedan law 581

—Applicability — Mahajans of Hissar town, whose main source of livelihood is business and not agriculture are governed by Hindu law and not custom — Fact that Mahajans were consulted at the time of preparation of riwaj-i-am will not make Customary law applicable to all Mahajans of Hissar District 461

Custom (Punjab)

- Arains of Jullundur Tahsil — Gift by sonless proprietor of ancestral land to sister's son is valid 550
- Bulewal village in Batala Tahsil—Abadi — Non-proprietors cannot alienate site of houses 642b
- Evidence — Statements in riwaj-i-am in matters of succession are by themselves strong evidence of the customs followed by members of tribes mentioned therein even if instances are not cited: 55b
- Father earning on service — Land in dispute built upon and within municipal limits—Alienation of land by father—Sons contesting alienation must prove that they are governed by custom 107b
- Inheritance — Law applicable is normally personal law — Person alleging custom must allege and prove it (FB) 299a
- Khatris of Phalia Tahsil of Gujrat District—Succession — Ancestral property — Daughter cannot inherit in presence of father's collaterals 55c
- Mair Minhas of Chakwal Tahsil in Jhelum District—Will by sonless proprietor of ancestral or self-acquired property in favour of daughter's daughter is valid 527
- Naubria Aggarwals of Dharam Kot do not follow custom but Hindu law—Special custom that after death of husband leaving widow without sons and sons by another wife, widow gets life-interest in half of husband's property cannot be established by one instance 609
- Partition — Shamilat land in village Sahab Ali is to be divided according to revenue and not area 624
- Persons described as Jat Dadds in regular settlements — Subsequent entries recording them as Sheikh Dadds for inexplicable reasons — Documentary evidence considered by first Appellate Court—Finding arrived at would be finding of fact which could not be reversed in second appeal: 39 P L R 668=A I R 1937 Lah 410=173 I C 768, REVERSED 445b
- Pre-emption—Abadi of recent growth — Custom of pre-emption cannot be proved 64a
- Proof—Instances of judicial decisions — Apart from the fact that instances of other districts on questions of custom are not of much avail, judicial decisions are also not of much assistance as they proceed on their own facts and are based on the amount of evidence led in each case 792b
- Rajputs of Garhshanker Tahsil —

Custom (Punjab)

- Daughters succeed to non-ancestral property 785a
- Representative suit by M on behalf of reversioners to set aside alienation by father allowed to be dismissed as ground not strong—Purchase by M of suit property for valuable consideration—Other reversioners can claim no share in it—S. 90, Trusts Act, does not apply 305
- Riwaj-i-am*—Creates rebuttable presumption—Fact of rebuttal is question of fact to be determined finally by District Judge 785b
- Riwaj-i-am*—Though a riwaj-i-am is unsupported by instances its effect is to shift the onus on to a party who alleges a custom contrary to that entered therein, to prove the custom alleged by him 312a
- Riwaj-i-am* — Presumption is rebuttable—Judicial finding arrived at after elaborate enquiry has equal value with entry in riwaj-i-am 309b
- Rohtak District—Daughters excluded from inheriting property either ancestral or self-acquired — Widow has no power of alienation—Riwaj-i-am challenged — Onus of proof is on party challenging correctness 562
- Rohtak District—Father has unrestricted power of alienation 524a
- Shamilat—Khasra number shown as a pond reserved for common purposes of village—No proprietor can encroach on any portion of khasra without consent of others 768
- Shamilat land—One cosharer erecting building—Other cosharers can restrain him by injunction from so doing even without proof of special damage to them (Obiter) (SB) 296b
- * — Succession—Rajputs of Garhshanker Tehsil, Hoshiarpur District—Customary law in Hoshiarpur District compiled by Mr. Humphreys—Ban imposed by question 72 not to be extended—Descendants of appointed heir can succeed to descendants of natural father 865
- Succession—Jats of village Sholewal in Ludhiana District—Sisters' sons do not succeed to self-acquired or ancestral property in any case 849c
- Succession — Khokhars — Daughters exclude collaterals. 842b
- Succession—Rajputs of Karnal District Daughters succeed to self-acquired property in preference to collaterals 792a
- Succession — Claimant and deceased belonging to same got — Deceased leaving no heir—Claimant cannot succeed merely on claim of same got 584 —Succession—Ancestral land—Riwaj-i-am—Delhi Province—Daughter inheriting father's property—Daughter dying without leaving male descendants—Proprietors of thulla are entitled to succeed to her father's property in preference to husband—Husband inherits only wife's absolute property—Proprietors of thulla need not be descendants of common ancestor 468

Custom (Punjab)

—Succession—Sayeds of Dera Ghazi Khan District follow Mahomedan law 447a —Succession—Ancestral property—Sials of Jhang District—Father can by will favour one of his sons 312b —Succession—Awans of Khushab tahsil—Non-ancestral property—Daughters preferred to collaterals 309a —Succession—Widow succeeding collaterally—After her death heirs of her husband and not those of last male holder succeed 111a —Succession—Self-acquired property—Sansi Jats of Amritsar District—Daughters exclude collaterals of 7th degree: 111b —Village abadi—Non-proprietor having house in abadi—Non-proprietors live with license—Terms of license though not put into writing are always to be taken as implied—Non-proprietor cannot transfer site of houses—Such custom should be termed 'usages'—Presumption in favour of proprietary body can be rebutted—Strong evidence is necessary 642a —Widow—Widow on succeeding to husband's tenancy acquiring proprietary rights—She acquires them as absolute owner 554a

—Widow—Widow has full power over income of estate held by her as widow—Property acquired out of such income is her own separate property 554b

Debtor and Creditor—Composition—Arrangement to accept part of whole—Rights and liabilities of creditors—Creditors not being party to composition whether bound by it—Creation of trust—Rights of creditor when lost explained 769a

Decree—Setting aside—Person not party to decree is not entitled to have it set aside on ground of fraud 129b —Setting aside—Judgment passed without jurisdiction is void—Separate suit is maintainable for setting aside decree on ground that Court passing it had no jurisdiction to pass it 129f —Validity of—Suit against Municipality—Municipality superseded by Government and administrator appointed before passing of decree—Administrator not brought on record—Decree passed against Municipality is nullity and cannot be executed against any property in hands of administrator 83

Decree

Deed—Construction—Power of attorney, construction of—Rule that powers of attorney should be strictly construed relates only to substantive portion of document and not to introductory remarks 712b

—Construction—Instrument must be construed according to plain meaning of words and sentences contained therein 270b

Divorce Act (4 of 1869), Ss. 2 and 17—Person aged 42 in service of railway in this country from 1922—Statement that he would continue to reside here is not proof of domicile (SB) 293

—S. 17—Confirmation of divorce—Husband living in open adultery with brother's widow in same house—Wife, though pregnant, driven out of house after being beaten—No steps taken to bring her back, nor divorce petition defended though he was properly served—Divorce held should be confirmed (SB) 301

Easement—Necessity—Convenience is not criterion but absolute necessity 800

—Additional burden separable from original burden imposed—Easement is not extinguished altogether 751b

Estoppel—Person with full knowledge of facts admitting wakf nature of house—He cannot be allowed to resile from that position 686b

—Second appeal—Estoppel raised on facts on record and based on decision of lower Appellate Court—Estoppel held could be raised in second appeal 558a

—Counsel's admission on point of law is not binding 368b

—Outlay of money on other person's land—Acquiescence of true owner—Essentials to estop true owner stated 88

Evidence—Hearsay—Family bard's evidence is inadmissible to prove family relationship and is unreliable 303

—Attestation—Attesting witness cannot be presumed to have knowledge of contents of document 97a

Evidence Act (1 of 1872), S. 13—Recitals in documents of transfer by sale or mortgage are admissible in proof of title as assertions of right though assertions may be in favour of person relying 846a

—S. 13—Document purporting to be mortgage deed executed by predecessor-in-interest of plaintiff in favour of third party and documents in which plaintiff has asserted his right to deal with the property are admissible in evidence under S. 13—Such evidence is however of little value 795

*—S. 13—Plan filed in previous suit describing property as belonging to plaintiff's predecessor is inadmissible in evidence 635a

—S. 32—Dying declaration—Gunshots in all parts of body—Probability is that victim would immediately become unconscious and would be incapable to make any declaration 262

—S. 35—Khasra pamaish is relevant document and admissible 751a

—S. 35—Copies of Shajra and Khasra of Municipal Committee are documents under S. 35 and admissible in evidence, though no presumption of correctness attaches to them 440b

—Ss. 60 and 160—Witness not stating orally what accused was alleged to have said—Witness not recollecting facts nor stating that he had reported facts correctly—Evidence of such witness is inadmissible 629a

—S. 89—Presumption under—Question whether plaintiff mortgagor and defendant mortgagee—Plaintiff alleging entry as to mortgage made in mortgagee's bahi and calling upon defendant to produce it—Defendant denying to be in possession of it—Plaintiff's evidence showing entry made in ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper—No evidence by plaintiff to show that defendant possessed bahi and withheld it—Presumption under S. 89 held could not be drawn 90a

—S. 90—Presumption applies even to fact that testator was in sound disposing state of mind 55a

—S. 115—Fraud or deception need not be pleaded 558b

—S. 115—Representation—Acting upon—B pleading estoppel by representation against A—A is not precluded from showing that representation was due to mistake and it cannot operate against him till B proves that he acted upon it and changed his position to his prejudice 448a

Evidence Act

—S. 157—Suit for possession of certain shop—G, a neighbour of plaintiff, giving evidence and in support of his testimony producing rent deeds executed in his favour and reciting that shop belonged to plaintiff—Deeds not signed by G—Deeds cannot be relied on as corroborative evidence of his testimony 635b

Execution—Step-in-aid—Application by decree-holder to withdraw certain moneys deposited in Court for his benefit is not step-in-aid 678

—Attachment—Exemption—Judgment-debtor agriculturist—Property exempted coming to legal representatives of judgment-debtor after his death—Property retains its immunity from attachment 608

—Order in execution—Record consigned to record room and attachment maintained—Effect is that application is dismissed and attachment is vacated 590b

—Bar to—Person successfully maintaining that execution cannot proceed against him without separate suit being brought against him—Separate suit instituted against him—He cannot urge that separate suit does not lie and proper remedy is by way of execution 525

—Arrest by judgment-debtor—Punjab Act 7 of 1934 and Imperial Act 21 of 1936 have retrospective effect—When judgment-debtor can obtain immunity from arrest—Onus of proof stated 515a

—Applications under O. 21, Civil P. C.—Provisions of O. 21 should be strictly complied—If not, application is not proper 515d

—Step-in-aid—Application to wrong Court is not step-in-aid 451

*—Step-in-aid—Application for execution is not necessary 326a

—Rateable distribution—Prayer refused—Order is not appealable 307

—Execution of mortgage decree by Revenue Officer—Procedure stated 152a —Decree binding—Powers of executing Court—Court passing decree having no inherent jurisdiction to pass it—Decree has no real existence in law—Executing Court can decide whether decree was passed by Court, which for lack of jurisdiction could not pass it 129d —Property attached—Objection by third party to attachment—Objection can be decided only by executing Court—Transfer of objection proceedings to another

Execution

Court without transferring execution proceedings is illegal (Obiter) 95b — Compromise — Executing Court is bound to record compromise between parties — It can be admitted in evidence without registration in suit relating to property comprised in compromise 69

Execution Sale — Mortgage decree directing sale of mortgaged property free from mortgage — Sale proceeds to be deposited in Court for payment to previous mortgagee and entitling decree-holder only to surplus — Decree-holder himself purchasing property in execution and obtaining sale certificate without impleading previous mortgagee or depositing sale proceeds in Court — Sale held invalid and should be set aside 232a

General Clauses Act (10 of 1897), S. 3 — Immovable property — Whether interest of partner in partnership assets consisting of land can be described as benefit arising out of land (Quære) 65b

Gift — Date of — Presumption — Where a person makes an application for mutation, the presumption is that he has made the transfer (gift) when he applies for the transfer being noted in the Revenue records — The question of possession is not material where the donee is a minor living with the donor 794

Government of India Act (1935, 25 & 26 Geo. V, Ch. 42), S. 150 — Provision of electric supply is a purpose of India or part of India 585c

— S. 179 (2) — Original suit pending at commencement of Act of 1935 — Appeal — Province cannot be impleaded as respondent 585a

Grant — Dedication — Inference of — Dedication can be inferred from long user — Proof of express grant is not necessary — Presumption can be rebutted by proof of owner's intention that use by public was permissive 619b

Guardians and Wards Act (8 of 1890), Ss. 4 (5) (b) (ii), 12 (1), 25 — Appellant appointed guardian of person of her minor daughter on her husband's death — Application for her custody to Court at M, where minor ordinarily residing with her paternal family — At time of application minor found to be made over to female relative of respondents residing in State — Minor's residence in State held temporary and incidental — Court at M held had jurisdiction to entertain application for custody: A I R 1938 Lah 84, REVERSED 313b

Guardians and Wards Act

— S. 12 — Applicability of S. 12 is not barred till minor is actually made over 313a

— Ss. 25, 4 (5) (b) (ii), 12 — Application by mother for appointment as guardian of her minor daughter, who left jurisdiction of Court only few weeks before application, granted on ground that minor ordinarily resided within jurisdiction — Subsequent application soon after for custody of child to same Court — Court held could not entertain application as minor for the time being did not reside within jurisdiction — S. 12 held had no application 84

— S. 29 — There is no distinction between powers of permanent and temporary guardians appointed under the Act 308

Highway — Street belonging to individual but accessible to public — Persons having wall facing street have right to make openings in wall 846b

— Dedication — Long user by pedestrians of roofs of shop for access to public street does not raise presumption of dedication — Intention to dedicate is necessary 97b

— Dedication — Intention — Single act of interruption is of much more weight on question of intention to dedicate than many acts of enjoyment 97c

Hindu Law — Adoption — Widow — Hindu dying leaving surviving him his widow and his son's widow — Adoption by son's widow during lifetime of father's widow is not valid 539

— Co-parcenary — Relinquishment — Renunciation should be in favour of all co-parceners and of entire interest 478

— Debts — Debt incurred by father for new business is not binding on sons unless transaction was for benefit of family or to benefit of estate or was supported by legal necessity — Question of legal necessity is to be decided on facts of each case 622a

— Debts — Father borrowing money to start new business — Son participating in business after attaining majority — Money borrowed is charge on family property 622b — Family arrangement — Mother of deceased making gift of property to sister of deceased — Reversioners challenging gift — Compromise between parties to suit — Sister thereby getting share in such property — Compromise arrived at when sister and sister's son were not recognized as heirs — Subsequently Act passed recognizing them as heirs nearer than collaterals — Suit by sister's son afterwards challenging com.

Hindu Law

- promise—Compromise held bona fide family arrangement and prudent act on part of sister and therefore binding on her son: 163
- Family business can be started at any time even after death of father—Such business is excluded from registration: 563b
- Gift—Father's power—Power to gift portion of ancestral property to one son only extends to moveables—Gift of immovables must be only for pious purpose 113b
- Joint family—Debts—Joint family consisting of father and sons—Debts incurred by father of speculative nature—Joint family estate is liable for payment of debt 781b
- *—Joint family—Debts contracted by manager on promissory note signed by him—Extent of liability of other members stated 694
- Joint family—Coparcener's share in coparcenary property is of fluctuating nature 360b
- Joint family—Income received by coparcener after date of disruption but for period prior to it—Income becomes accretion to joint property—Coparcener is liable to account for it 328a
- Joint family—Presumption—Initial presumption that Hindu family is joint in estate—Hindu family owning ancestral property, presumption is all property possessed by members is joint—In Punjab however fact that family owns undivided ancestral property is not inconsistent with its separation—Such families though joint in respect of such property are considered separate in other respects 204a
- Joint family—Self-acquisition—Coparcener can acquire separate property for himself out of his separate income 204b
- Joint family—Trade—Extension of—Extended business is still ancestral business 113a
- Partition—Court-fee—Parties in joint possession of joint properties—Court-fee held should be Rs. 10 only and not ad valorem 321a
- Religious endowment—Ceremonies of sankalp and samarpan are not essential—Intention of maker to divest and formal divesting are sufficient—On considering circumstances valid dedication held created 686a
- Widow—Adverse possession—Widow taking possession of property as limited owner—Character of her possession or title not altered at any time—Her possession is

Hindu Law

- not adverse to that of reversioners—Period of her possession cannot be tacked on to that of her alienee 187
- Income-tax—Banking concern dealing in securities and shares as part of its business, selling some of them and earning profits—Profits held trading profits and hence taxable though utilized in increasing reserve fund—Net interest received from vendees of securities on de die in diem basis held taxable 852
- Capital or revenue account—The question whether anything taken over comes into capital or revenue account would depend upon evidence of intention at the time 44e
- Income-tax Act (11 of 1922)—Interpretation—English judgments in income-tax cases can be utilised as aids in the interpretation of analogous provisions of law though not as binding authorities on those matters where the language of the English and Indian Acts differs 44a
- S. 4 (3) (vii)—Burden to prove that receipt does not arise from business and is of casual nature is on person claiming exemption 44b
- S. 4 (3) (vii)—Produce exchange business—Investing deposits received in Government securities—Sale of such securities on profits—Profits held arose from business and were not covered by S. 4 (3) (vii) even if they were of a casual or non-recurring nature 44c
- Ss. 10 (1) and 4 (3) (vii)—In determining whether particular receipts form part of business, intention of assessee is to be considered—Income-tax Department finding that assessee's intention was to make profit as part of business—High Court cannot go behind that finding 44d
- S. 10 (2), Cls. (i) and (ix)—Certain company having lease of cotton ginning factory—Agreement between company and assessee for ginning assessee's cotton—Assessee agreeing to pay to company ginning charges and certain share in the net profits in addition—Company not responsible in case of loss—Share of net profits paid to company cannot be deducted from assessee's total income either under cl. (i) or cl. (ix) 530a
- S. 10 (2) (iii) and S. 66 (5)—Question whether advance by partner is loan to partnership or increase in capital is question of fact—High Court cannot interfere with Income-tax Officer's finding on it 530b

Income-tax Act

*—Ss. 22 (4) and 23 (4)—To determine what evidence is relevant for purpose of inquiry, Income-tax Officer is final arbiter and not assessee — Income-tax Officer calling for production of all account books — Assessee producing some but withholding others—This amounts to non-compliance with S. 22 (4) even if Income-tax Officer utilizes account books actually produced

551a

—S. 23 (2) and (3)—Word 'evidence' in S. 23 (2) is not confined to direct evidence but also includes circumstantial evidence—Held after considering facts of case that there was material before Income-tax Officer for rejecting account books and fixing sales at Rs. 1,50,000 and applying 15 per cent. profit rate on sale

209

—S. 23 (4)—Best judgment assessment What constitutes 'material' stated

867a

—Ss. 23 (4) and 34—Best judgment assessment can be re-opened under S. 34

867b

—S. 23 (4)—Income-tax Officer calling upon assessee to produce all account books — Assessee withholding some—Income-tax Officer can make assessment under S. 23 (4) even if he bases assessment of next year on same account books produced by assessee in previous year

551b

* —Ss. 23 (4) and 66 (3)—Assessment under S. 23 (4)—High Court cannot interfere merely by virtue of its general inherent jurisdiction

545b

—S. 26—Partnership—Application for reconstitution — Mere fact that reconstitution reduces incidence of tax does not make reconstitution unreal — Non-introduction of new capital or failure to value assets, or firm reverting to old constitution on refusal of registration—No presumption that constitution is bogus arrangement: 194

—Ss. 26-A, 2 (14) — Registration — Income-tax authorities may go into evidence, circumstantial and direct, to determine if partnership document is genuine—Onus rests on person applying for registration

105

* —S. 28—"Income" means assessable figure after all legitimate deductions and exemptions

620

* —S. 28 (1)—Proceedings under, started—Even after assessment is made and tax is paid penalty order can be made: 749

—S. 30—Act is self-contained—Assessee is not at liberty to withdraw appeal presented under S. 30

741a

Income-tax Act

—Ss. 31, 34—Power under S. 31 cannot be exercised irrespective of S. 34—Appeal under Sec. 31 — Assistant Commissioner cannot enhance income assessable under S. 34, so as to include sum which has nothing to do with subject-matter of appeal—Nor is fresh assessment in respect of this sum permissible

741b

—S. 48-A — Applicability — S. 48-A comes into play only when the income-tax has been actually paid in excess and not earlier

44f

—S. 66 (2) and (3)—Application under S. 66 (3) is incompetent without previous application under S. 66 (2)

864

—S. 66 (3) — High Court, under S. 66 (3), has no jurisdiction to entertain question not raised in application to Commissioner under S. 66 (2)

545a

Injunction — Suit for — Joint owners—Certain site, joint property of parties, used as lane leading to property of one of them — One party roofing over part of lane adjoining his property — Other party is ordinarily entitled to sue for injunction for removal of structure — He is not however so entitled to sue where he makes similar use of lane opposite to his own property so long as his own structure remains—He is only entitled to damages

779

Insolvency — Receiver — Powers of — Estate vesting in Official Receiver—Other Receivers appointed to help Official Receiver — Vesting of estate in Official Receiver not vacated — Official Receiver can by himself maintain suits for recovery of estate

264a

—Joint Hindu family — Coparcener—Manager brother adjudged insolvent for his personal debts—Shares of other brothers in joint family property do not vest in Official Receiver

20

* Insurance—Life insurance — Policy of insurance laying down that policy would become void if person assured commits suicide within one year from date of policy — Assured committing suicide after 18 months — Assignee of policy is entitled to recover amount due under policy

561 —Fire—Policy is document complete in itself—Warranty in policy that no hazardous goods are to be stored — Assured cannot plead that he can store one per cent. of hazardous goods because other companies allow it

168a

—Fire insurance—Warranty by assured not to store any hazardous goods—Breach Insurance

—Building destroyed by fire — Claim of assured must fail 168b

—Fire insurance — Company by merely taking possession of salvage and keeping it for a month is not estopped from contesting claim of insured 168c

Interpretation of Statutes — Construction of penal provision — When two equally reasonable interpretations are possible, the penal provision should be so construed as not to place a burden on the subject 691b —Courts should interpret plain words of law and apply it rather than enter into equity or logic of it 638c

—Statute should be interpreted according to plain meaning of words and sentences 251b —Duty of Court — It is not for Judges where the words are clear to attempt to get round a statute 158b —Conflict between rule having force of law and a bye-law — Rule is to be preferred 8a

Jurisdiction — Absence of — Absence and inactivity of party does not cure want of jurisdiction 129c

Lahore High Court Rules and Orders, Vol. 5, Chap. 1-A, R. 4 — Judges sitting in Letters Patent appeal have no jurisdiction to grant extension under R. 4 in case of appeal barred by limitation 325a

Landlord and Tenant — Occupancy rights — Occupancy tenant mortgaging his occupancy rights with consent of landlord — Occupancy vesting in transferee after expiry of period of limitation for redemption — Such transfer of occupancy rights to transferee is binding on landlord 488

—Suit for rent — Person taking on lease certain premises so long as he would remain in town — Lessee leaving premises without sufficient reason before expiry of term — Landlord protesting to such vacating and entering into possession — Suit for rent for unexpired portion of lease held was maintainable 454

Legal Practitioner — Fee — Suit for munshiana — Client agreeing to pay munshiana over and above pleader's fees — Pleader is entitled to sue for munshiana 306

—Witness — Counsel is not incompetent to give evidence — But it is undesirable for him to depose as to matter other than formal either for or against his client 204c

Legal Practitioners Act (18 of 1879), S. 13 — A engaging B, a pleader, to defend one and to conduct another suit — Fees

Legal Practitioners Act

settled were to be paid within one year — Both suits then referred to arbitration — A paying B certain amount, half to be paid as arbitrator's fees and rest towards B's fees — B appropriating whole amount towards his fees — Year of payment of fees had not elapsed — B held to have wrongfully retained amount and his conduct was grossly improper — Even if B committed no criminal offence his conduct called for disciplinary action 248

Limitation — Appeal — Trial Court delivering judgment without having previously fixed date for the same — Defendant being absent, judgment informed to his counsel on some later day — Limitation for appeal runs from day on which counsel for defendant is informed of judgment 707a

—Mortgage — Default of interest for three years giving right to sue for entire amount — Interest paid only after eleven years — Mortgage suit brought more than twelve years after payment of interest — Payment held gave fresh start but could not revive three years default clause 570

—R and other partners obtaining contract from Municipality and depositing with it certain amount by way of security — Suit by S against R in his individual capacity — Deposit money attached and sold to B — Suit by B beyond period of limitation for recovery of deposit amount on basis of his purchase of R's rights in it — B held stood in R's shoes and could not claim extension of period of limitation merely on basis of order of executing Court which referred him to regular suit if so advised 437

—Suit by juristic person is also subject to law of limitation (Per Full Bench)

(FB) 369d

—Defence of — Even if a claim based on certain facts is barred by efflux of time, a defence based on those facts is not so barred 286b

—Acknowledgment implying promise to pay — Suit can be based on it considered as agreement provided consideration is proved — Plea of lack of consideration if not raised by defendant, consideration must be taken to have been proved — This point can be allowed to be newly raised even if question before trial Judge was whether S. 4, Lim. Act, extends limitation (Per Dalip Singh and Din Mohammad JJ.; Colastream J. dissenting) (FB) 234c

* — Starting point — Fresh invasion of right amounting to repetition of old inva-

Limitation

—No distinction between new invasion and repetition of old one (Per Skemp J.) 227a

*—Major reversioners existing at the time of alienation but omitting to challenge it within period of limitation — Suit to set it aside by other reversioners, minors at the time of alienation, is not barred — Suit is also not barred against reversioners born after alienation 1

*Limitation Act (9 of 1908), S. 3—Suit relating to mosque is not exempt from operation of Act (Per Full Bench; Din Mohammad J. dissenting) (FB) 369a

*—S. 4—Limitation for filing application for obtaining copy of decree expiring on holiday — Application made on day of reopening of Court should be deemed to be within limitation 707c

—S. 4 — Words of S. 4 do not extend period of limitation (FB) 234a

—S. 5 — Sufficient cause — Agreement between parties to end litigation and accept High Court's decree as final — One party resiling and filing application for leave to appeal — Application for leave filed by other party some days out of time — Held there was sufficient cause for extending time 836a

—S. 5—Mistake of pleader — Mistaken advice of counsel is not sufficient to justify extension unless advice is given in good faith — Held on facts that counsel did not act in good faith and no extension could be granted under S. 5 81

—S. 12 — Time requisite for getting copies of judgment and decree should be excluded 707b

—S. 12—Appeal — Limitation expiring when Court closed—Application for copies made on re-opening day — Time requisite for copies can be deducted 317

—S. 13 — Secunderabad cantonment is under British administration—Party residing in cantonment area — Period of limitation is not saved 225

—S. 14 — Question whether, on facts found by lower Appellate Court, plaintiff acted with due diligence is mixed question of law and fact—To claim benefit of S. 14, error must be such as might be committed by reasonable and prudent man exercising due diligence and caution 704

—S. 14 (2) and Art. 182 — Mortgage suit — Preliminary decree made final — Application within limitation for final decree and sale rejected — Application for execution out of time — Previous application held not step-in-aid: 39 P L R 680—A I R 1937 Lah 404, REVERSED—S. 14 (2) held did not help decree-holder 117

Limitation Act

—S. 20 — Debtor paying sum of money towards payment of amount due in bond and making endorsement to that effect in his handwriting on back — Payment not made towards interest as such nor appropriated by creditor towards interest—Such payment is sufficient to give fresh start for limitation 347

—Art. 29 — Attachment and receipt of amount deposited in Court by receiver—Suit to recover it back is not governed by Art. 29 493

*—Arts. 29 and 83 — Suit by A for declaration that property attached by M in execution of his decree against H did not belong to H but to himself and also for injunction restraining M from auctioning the property — Undertaking by M that he would indemnify A after auction sale if it would be proved that property belonged to A—Suit decreed in favour of A—Property auctioned by M — Suit by A for price of property sold—Suit held not one for damages for wrongful seizure—Art. 83 and not Art. 29 applied 196

—Arts. 48, 49, 62 and 120 — Widows of deceased coparcener filing suit for rendition of accounts against one of surviving coparceners—Suit not being for possession of any specific sum, Article 120 and not Arts. 48, 49 and 62 held applied 139b

*—Arts. 52 and 96 —Supplier of electric current, owing to defective meter, issuing instructions to his employee to double the reading of meter before sending bill to person supplied with electricity — Employee by mistake sending bill only for single reading — On discovery of mistake suit by supplier for balance of bill not charged owing to mistake of employee — Case held governed not by Art. 96 but by Art. 52 338

—Arts. 61, 96 and 120 — Promissory note by R and N in favour of J and M — J alone realizing whole amount — Subsequent suit by J and M on basis of pronote — Suit decreed for M only to extent of his half share — Suit by R to recover from J amount paid to M—Suit held was governed by Art. 61 or Art. 120 but not by Art. 96 99

—Art. 62 — Applicability — Defendant asked to account for properties and moneys when person managing or collecting them is entitled to just allowances—Art. 62 does not apply 139a

Limitation Act

—Art. 85 — Mutual obligations and intentions to set off must be established—Express contract need not be proved 264c

—Art. 91 — Person dedicating property for construction of mosque reserving for himself perpetual connexion with it in his capacity as its president — Suit for cancellation of document and for declaration of his right to manage affairs of mosque is governed by Art. 91 869a

* —Art. 113 — Agreement between A and B providing that B should finance A's litigation in respect of certain property and in return should get certain share of it after decree — Agreement also providing that in case of appeal from decree to Privy Council B would be entitled to greater share—Suit by B more than three years after date of decree but within three years of refusal of performance — Suit held within time as second part of Art. 113 applied 23a

—Art. 115 — Company A wishing to erect weaving shed, asking firm B to send specification for same — Specifications sent containing three estimates of different machinery covered by single letter giving total price of all machinery — Letter also stating that one-third of total price be paid with order — Order placed and machinery delivered—Some machinery found to be of different make — Suit for breach of contract against firm B — Almost all machinery including one complained of delivered more than three years before suit but part of engine delivered within three years—Art. 115 held applied and suit was within time as order was single whole 277a

—Art. 115 — Municipal Committee using another's land for cattle fair for years—Implied agreement to compensate land owner—Suit for compensation is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 39 or 120 267

—Art. 118 — Brahmin dying leaving behind widow and three daughters — Widow adopting son and mutating her husband's land in his name — Suit by daughter for declaration that adoption and gift could not affect her rights as daughter, after six years of her knowledge of alienation — Suit held barred whether Art. 118 or Art. 3 of Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act was applicable 193

Limitation Act

—Art. 120 — Partition proceeding — Plaintiff's title to land denied — Plaintiff never in possession — Suit for declaration that plaintiff was owner of land brought more than six years after denial of title is time-barred 671a

—Art. 120 — Partition proceedings of shamilat land — Mode of partition sanctioned in accordance with areas of khewat holdings — Final order of partition made after several years — Suit by plaintiff in possession for declaration that partition should have been according to revenue assessed on holding—Final order for partition held gave plaintiff fresh cause of action — Suit within six years from that date held in time 318a

—Art. 120 — Applicability — Representative suit by certain Mahomedans for declaring certain land as graveyard and for injunction directing defendants to remove buildings erected thereon—Suit is governed by Art. 120 254

—Art. 120 — Defendant by denying plaintiff's position as co-tenant of property with himself cannot bar latter's subsisting right to ask for accounts 139c

—Art. 125 — Art. 125 is not restricted to reversioners—Suit by members of proprietary body of village to declare alienation by widow void is governed by Art. 125 457

—Art. 132 — Mortgage of property on 9th March 1918—Three other successive mortgages of same property in favour of same mortgagee — Third mortgage dated 27th February 1920 containing clause that mortgagor would pay present and previous mortgage money after one year — Suit on basis of mortgages brought on 22nd December 1932—Art. 132 held applied and suit was within time 145a

—Art. 134-A — Suit by Hindu idol for injunction alleging transfer to defendant by previous mahant — Relief held was for setting aside transfer and Art. 134-A applied — Time however does not run against defence 752

—Art. 134-A — Grant of permanent lease by mahant of idol in 1909 — Decree for possession obtained by lessee — In 1935 suit by successor of mahant in the name of idol for permanent injunction restraining lessee from dispossessing him — Suit held was to set aside transfer in 1909 and was governed by Art. 134-A — Initial onus of proving that suit was within time was on plaintiff — Plaintiff would be entitled to injunction prayed for on setting aside transfer in 1909 470

Limitation Act

—Art. 142—Parties to suit co-sharers—Plaintiff alleging that he was in possession of certain property and was dispossessed by defendants—Case is governed by Art. 142—Plaintiff must prove possession within 12 years—Mere fact that defendants are co-sharers makes no difference when plaintiff himself alleges that he is in possession of separate property—Plaintiff cannot be held to be in constructive possession of property 241

—Art. 181—Decree for possession by M against R—In taking possession M obstructed by B who had been in possession as result of decision of trial Court in suit between B and R—M's application under O. 21, R. 97 dismissed—Meanwhile appeal by R against decision of trial Court in suit between him and B—High Court holding R to be lawful owner—Appeal by B to Privy Council—Application for execution by M more than three years after decision of High Court held barred under Art. 181 695

—Arts. 181 and 182—Decree for possession—Execution stayed pending appeal on furnishing of security for mesne profits—Appeal dismissed—Execution against surety held governed by Article 182 and not by Art. 181 590a —Arts. 181, 182—Art. 181 applies to application for restitution under S. 144, Civil P. C., and not Art. 182 456b —Arts. 182 and 183—District Judge by virtue of S. 164, Companies Act, does not for purpose of Art. 183 become High Court—Art. 182 and not Art. 183 applies to his order 368a

—Art. 182—Step-in-aid—Application for payment of money realized in execution is not step-in-aid 138

*Mahomedan Law—Apostasy—Declaration attended with volition to which declarer adheres and in which he persists is sufficient—Motive of declarer is immaterial and Court is barred from making further enquiries 482b

—Dower—Reasonable amount—Question is one of custom—Custom must be pleaded and proved—Point of custom cannot be raised in appeal for first time 431b *—Marriage—Option of puberty—Sunni sect—Option is retained until knowledge of marriage is known to girl—Once option is exercised, marriage is cancelled from date if took place and not, when option is exercised 719

Mahomedan Law

—Marriage—Apostasy ipso facto effects cancellation of marriage 482a

—Waqf—Person declaring certain property to be waqf and appointing permanent mutwalli, subsequently surrendering his right of management in favour of body called Jamiat—He is not empowered to cancel arrangement so made by executing document to that effect 869d

—Wakf—Plots of land described in revenue records as graveyard and from very early time in existence as kabaristan—Land is presumed to be wakf—Fact that no objection had been taken to original owner's taking reeds from graveyard will not alter nature of wakf 246a

—Wakf—Definite area of land dedicated for use as graveyard—Presumption 246b

—Wakf—Adverse possession of mosque by non-Muslim—It loses its sacred character (Per Full Bench; Din Mahommad J. dissenting) (FB) 369c

 —Wakf—Mosque adversely possessed by non-Muslims—All rights of Muslims are lost—Refusal to allow them to pray is not continuing wrong (Per Full Bench; Din Mohammad J., dissenting) (FB) 369e

—Wakf—Right to use mosque is individual right—Suit by beneficiary to exercise right of devotion is not representative suit (Per Din Mahommad J.) (FB) 369q

Maintenance—Decree for—Widow starting earning after decree—Decree cannot be reduced 344

Malicious Prosecution—Wrongful attachment—Damages—Suit for—Suit for recovery of damages for wrongful attachment of property—Plaintiff is not entitled to costs incurred by him as objector or to damages for personal worry—Claim for damages for personal worry is too vague except if considered to be based on slander of title—In that case plaintiff must prove actual damage—If no actual damages are proved, plaintiff is entitled only to nominal damages 334

Minor—Suit compromised by guardian ad litem—Court holding compromise as not binding on minors—Suit should be revived from stage where it was compromised 709c —Decree against unrepresented minor—Decree is nullity—Executing Court can refuse to execute it 515b

Minor

—Representation — Minor impleaded as defendant with other relation—Minor held not validly represented 515c

* —Guardian — Defence saving valuable property not taken — Guardian held guilty of gross negligence 218b

* Mortgage — Mortgagee accepting composition of mortgagor's debts under deed cannot fall back on original deed 769b

—Document effecting change in rate of interest does not require registration 481a

—Consideration — Onus of proof — Execution proved—Acknowledgment of receipt of consideration by mortgagor recited — Purchaser of equity of redemption in auction sale—Onus lies on him to prove want of consideration 463a

—Consideration — Suit for interest on mortgage — Consideration not denied by mortgagor—Purchaser of equity of redemption in execution of decree for interest is estopped from pleading want of consideration for mortgage 463b

—Suit on — Prior mortgagee assigning his rights under mortgage decree—Assignment is invalid unless registered—Want of registration has not effect of extinguishing rights of prior mortgagee so as to entitle subsequent mortgagee to claim decree free of mortgagee rights of prior mortgagee 430

—Prior mortgagee — Rights of — Prior mortgagee purchasing property mortgaged to him—He must be deemed to keep mortgage alive for his benefit as against subsequent mortgagee in absence of evidence to contrary 286a

—Equitable—Suit on — Pleadings must be strictly construed — Documents of title of moveables such as machinery cannot be construed as those of immovables only because in interval machinery had become immovable property by fixation 255d

—Costs — Trying Court imposing personal liability for costs on mortgagor—Order can be executed against person of mortgagor without selling mortgaged property 188a

—Anomalous — One clause in deed making it usufructuary — Another clause providing for recovery of amount from mortgaged property — Mortgage is anomalous 145c

—Mortgagee making sub-mortgage of part of mortgaged property—Suit on mortgage — Sub-mortgagee unwilling to be joined as plaintiff—Original mortgagee can maintain suit 145d

Mortgage

* —Usufructuary mortgage — Suit by mortgagor for unpaid balance of mortgage money or for compensation is maintainable — Measure of compensation is difference between amount stipulated to be paid and amount actually paid—Such suit is not for specific performance 21

Motor Vehicles Act (8 of 1914), S. 2 — Houses situated on two sides of motor stand of petitioner — City wall running along third side—Fourth side open looking towards public street — Land privately owned and leased out to petitioner — Deep city drain passing through portion leased — Bridge constructed to cross city drain — Lorries of petitioner parked over the bridge—Held that the place was not public place within the meaning of S. 2 817

Mussalman Wakf Validating Act (6 of 1913), S. 3 — Words "which in all other respects is in accordance with provisions of Mussalman law" — Meaning explained 453a

—S. 3 (a) — Wakf in favour of some members of family or some children or descendants to the exclusion of others is valid 453b

Mutation — Entries in jamabandi — Presumption of correctness attaches to entries in jamabandi made in due course of law 479a

Negotiable Instruments Act (26 of 1881), Ss. 16, 85-A and 10 — Bank issuing draft drawn on its branch for payment of certain sum to H and G and endorsed in blank by them — H appearing alone at branch and presenting draft for payment — Branch manager not knowing H but paying amount on identification by L of H and H guaranteeing G's signature—Branch manager not taking steps to see whether G's signature was genuine — Payment held not in due course 520

—S. 66 — Applicability — Hundi payable on certain day on which it is drawn — S. 66 does not apply — Hundi must be presented within reasonable time — Hundi drawn at Peshawar on certain day on which it was made payable at Bombay — Presentment after three days of date held was not unreasonable delay 183

Opium Act (1 of 1878), S. 9 — Joint criminal possession is possible and depends upon evidence of each case — Opium found in house occupied by three brothers living jointly — Eldest brother alone held should be convicted 320

Partition — A decree for partition is an instrument of partition and as such has to be engrossed on stamp paper 321b

Partnership — Suit for accounts and dissolution — Interest should be from date of final decree and not from date of plaint 328c

—Dissolution — Until accounts are settled, individual partners cannot sue for their share of any separate part of partnership assets 259

—Rights of partners—Partnership coming into existence on date of execution of agreement — Suit by one partner for recovery of money advanced in pursuance thereof — Suit is not maintainable unless general account is asked—Fact that actual business did not commence is immaterial 43

* Partnership Act (9 of 1932), S. 46 — Suit for accounts—Retiring partner inspecting accounts — Right to suit is not affected — Procedure for suit is governed by O. 20, R. 15, Civil P. C.—Decree to be passed is same as given in Form 21, Appendix D in Civil P. C.—Acceptance by partner of existing accounts—Accounts could however be examined from earlier date 758

—S. 69 — Suit by firm — Plaint need not expressly note that firm is registered — Neither defendant denying registration nor reference to it in evidence — Suit cannot be dismissed on ground that registration was not proved 96

—S. 69 (2) — Suit by unregistered firm is invalid — Subsequent registration does not make such suit valid 767

Penal Code (45 of 1860), Ss. 34, 302 and 323—Common intention—Common intention of accused only to abuse opposite party — Fight ensuing on mutual exchange of abuse — Common intention cannot be said to be one to commit murder although death is caused during fight—Accused can be convicted under S. 323 — Each participant is responsible only for his own acts 747

—S. 100 — Woman being terribly beaten by her husband rushing to her brother for protection—Husband saying that he would continue to beat her—Brother killing him with hatchet in order to save his sister and himself from being killed—Brother held acted in right of self-defence 269

* —S. 104—Scope — Accused obtaining unlawful possession of land in peaceful possession of his co-sharer — Possession of accused only for couple of hours — Co-sharer trying to eject accused — Co-sharer

1938 Indexes (Lah.)—5

Penal Code

and not accused has right of private defence 60

—S. 124.A — Exhortation to hearers to join Communist or Bolshevik party is not sedition 629b

—S. 124.A — Seditious slogans—Shouting objectionable slogans in a meeting such as "destroy the dishonest Government" and "long live bloody revolution" is sedition within the meaning of S. 124.A: 629c

—Ss. 149 and 34 — Ss. 149 and 34 though not identical may in some cases overlap 543c

—S. 300 — Sentence — Injuries not on any vital part—Merciless beating resulting in death—Sentence of death is proper 834c

—S. 300 (2)—Constitutional or peculiar defect leading to death as a result of injuries not ordinarily sufficient to cause death—Neither presence of such defect nor its knowledge to accused established — Case held not covered by S. 300 (2) 834b

—S. 300 (3) — Murder — Number of serious injuries — Cumulative effect being death — Intention to cause sufficient injuries as will result in death held established — Case held came under S. 300 (3) 834a

—Ss. 302, 307, 149 — Prosecution evidence discussed — Evidence held to show sufficient amount of doubt in the case — Accused held entitled to benefit of doubt 787b

—S. 302—Sentence—Accused's wife of loose character giving birth to child begotten through another man—Accused feeling insulted on his being congratulated by fellow villagers killing his wife — Lesser penalty held sufficient 556b

* —S. 302—Sentence—Young girl killing her newly born baby — Sentence of transportation for life is inappropriate 473

—S. 302—Murder—Sentence—Extreme youth of the accused is a sufficiently strong reason for not passing a sentence of death on them 200b

—S. 302 — Several injuries caused by accused resulting in gangrene in foot and leg and causing death—Accused held guilty of murder 31

—S. 304, Part 2 and S. 325 — Accused striking only one lathi blow on head of deceased, on being struck with hockey stick by latter — Intention of accused merely appearing to give ordinary beating to deceased—Offence does not fall under Sec. 304, Part 2 but only under S. 325 714d

Penal Code

—S. 304, Part 2 — Accused's father when digging channel objected by deceased — Objection resulting in altercation between them — Accused taking iron rod with which channel was being dug and striking with it on head of deceased thereby killing him — Accused held could be convicted under S. 304 — Sentence of five years held too severe 618

—S. 366 — Evidence of girl abducted must be taken with great caution 474a

—S. 366 — Young man abducting girl of marriageable age — Natural presumption is that he abducted her with intention of having sexual intercourse with her either forcibly or with her consent after seduction or after marrying her — If any other intention is alleged to exist, burden is on accused to prove it 474b

—S. 366.A — Mere fact that accused tried to sell girl for immoral purposes is not sufficient to establish offence under Section 366.A 684

—S. 403 — Proof of receipt of money and mere failure to account not sufficient — Proof of conversion to his use is necessary 634a

—Ss. 415, 419 — P's wife applying to Sub-Registrar that one R had sold his house to her and was refusing to have sale deed registered and praying for compulsory registration — P having knowledge of fact that R was dead previous to application — Sub-Registrar issuing notice to R — P pointing out third person to process server as R and trying to get him falsely served — P charged and convicted under S. 419 — Charge not making clear as to by virtue of which consequences referred to in S. 415, P was liable of offence of cheating — Held that the offence under S. 419 was made out — That charge was defective — That defect in charge was material irregularity which could not be cured by Sec. 225, Criminal Procedure Code 828a

 —S. 441 — Entry at night in complainant's house to have intercourse with complainant's sui juris daughter by invitation — Case does not fall under S. 441 (Per Full Bench): 17 P R 1908 Cr, OVER. RULED (FB) 534b

* —S. 441 — Person one night passing stealthily through court-yard of one house to commit adultery in another adjoining house — He is guilty of trespass in respect of former house not under second alternative of S. 441 but under first alternative (FB) 514

Penal Code

—S. 448 — Person entering another's house in his absence in assertion of his own right — Intention to annoy can be presumed 848

—S. 457 — Mere recovery of complainant's shirt from accused person is not sufficient for conviction under S. 457 252a

Pleadings — Amendment — High Court will not interfere with discretion of trial Court unless discretion is exercised arbitrarily 270c

* Police Act (5 of 1861), Ss. 30 and 32 — Licence given to take out procession — Procession led by accused not licensees — Magistrate ordering procession to move faster while passing mosque — Order deliberately disobeyed by accused and riot taking place as a result — Accused charged under S. 32 with refusing to obey order passed by competent authority — Conviction held to be proper — Every processionist held to be governed by license: 425
Possession — Possession is tantamount to notice of claim or interest of person in possession — Enquiry into title of person in possession — Factum of possession proved — Notice must be assumed 39a

* — Person in possession under one title — Subsequent acquisition of another title by unregistered document which however requires registration — Subsequent acquisition of title by another person by registered document — Possession of prior person is notice to subsequent acquirer — Postponement of title 39b

Power of Attorney — Construction — Power of attorney executed by A in favour of B entrusting management of A's property with B — Power of sale also mentioned — Power of sale held must be exercised only if it was necessary for purpose of management 351

— Construction — Power of attorney must be strictly construed — Word "etc" used in such power must be construed as ejusdem generis with rest of document — Power to carry on proceedings in "Court etc." — Document cannot be construed as conferring power to present documents before Sub-Registrar or Registrar 255a

— Power granted to conduct litigation — Power making principal accept all acts done by agent — Agent cannot execute promissory note for his principal 41c

Practice — Abandonment of objection — Argument not convincing — It does not mean that point is abandoned 809b

Practice

—Adjournment — Process fee paid late but summons returned with report that witness could not be found — Witness important one — Refusal to adjourn case for producing such witness is not justified

448c

—Appeal—Failure by party to appeal—Decision holds good for what it is worth—Party not appealing is not debarred from having recourse to other modes of relief available to it

129e —Judgment — 'Proof' — Court should avoid use of word 'proof' in interlocutory order — Fact cannot be said to be proved until final adjudication

706b

—Judicial notice—Corresponding dates of Indian and Gregorian calendars not correct—Court can take judicial notice

558c

—Relief—Plaintiff should state all facts constituting cause of action—On failure to establish them, suit should be dismissed—It should not be decreed on proof of different set of facts which defendant had no opportunity to controvert (SB) 296a —Relief — Suit for compensation on express agreement—No relief under S. 70, Contract Act, asked—Court cannot decree suit on principles of S. 70

71

Pre-emption—Equities are not involved—Subordinate Court exercising its powers in legitimate manner—Court of Appeal would ordinarily not interfere

606b

—Sale of land by B to S — Suit by D for pre-emption — Only three days before suit, land sold by S to M, the son of B, on notice of pre-emption—M being a student and admittedly having no means of his own—Sale by S to M held benami

510 —Suit for — Market value of property different from that alleged in plaint — Court must call plaintiff to pay proper court-fee before trial of suit — It is improper for Court to decide question of court-fees at end of suit and incorporate order in decree — Plaintiff, being misled by wrong procedure of Court, filing appeal on same court-fees — Appellate Court should exercise its discretion in favour of extending time

311a

—Forum of appeal — Forum of appeal depends upon finding as to market value of property involved

311b

—Hindu joint family—Word 'co-sharer' is not proper

273b

—Waiver of right by karta of joint Hindu family—Effect stated 273c

Pre-emption

—Prior to suit original vendee transferring property to person having right equal to that of pre-emptor—Pre-emptor cannot oust him—Principle applies even where sale by original vendee has not taken place in exercise of pre-emptive right of subsequent vendee

242a

—Suit for—In order to succeed, pre-emptor must have superior right even at stage of suit and decree

242b

Principal and Agent — Agent of match factory entering into contract with third person to promote sale of matches—Latter required to pay for goods before he was allowed to sell them—Profits of sale to go to him — Latter held not agent of former but only favoured buyer

814

* —Suit by principal for rendition of accounts—Decree can be passed in favour of agent

723 —Relationship — Suit for accounts — Firm A ordering certain machinery from firm B according to its specifications—Firm B supplying some machinery with prices fixed but rest subject to fluctuations of prices and its commission on actual prices — Firm A selling all machinery to company G with all rights under contract with firm B—Firm B informed accordingly —Subsequent changes in constitution of firm B held did not affect its liability to G

277b

—Power to execute pro.note—Principal not doing business involving execution of bill of exchange — Agent has no authority to execute pro.note

41b

Provincial Insolvency Act (5 of 1920), S. 4 — S. 4 comes into play only after adjudication as insolvent—Decision in summary inquiry under Sec. 24 as to whether debtor is entitled to present petition for adjudication is not covered by S. 4 and does not operate as res judicata

490b

* —Ss. 4 and 53—Powers of Insolvency Court — Transfer by insolvent more than two years before his adjudication — Transfer can be set aside under S. 4 and not under S. 53 — Insolvency Court can deal with question according to principles which govern a suit for avoidance of transfer under ordinary law

73a

* —S. 4 (2) — Execution of decree — Decree debt declared to be fictitious by Insolvency Court — Decree becomes non-existent — Decree cannot be executed — Insolvency decisions are binding on parties for all purposes even after proceedings are dismissed

148

Provincial Insolvency Act

—S. 6 (e) — Execution sale when complete stated—Act of insolvency occurs when property is sold and not when sale is confirmed 819

—S. 24 — It is not proper to go into question whether debts mentioned are real—Mere fact that some of the debts mentioned are fictitious would not justify order of dismissal of debtor's petition 490a

—S. 28—Creditor seeking relief against debtor by way of suit for realization of his debt—Leave to sue is necessary before suit can be instituted (Obiter) 856b

* —S. 44 (2) — Creditor holding mortgage decree against insolvent realising his security before order of discharge but not proving balance personally due after valuing security — Order of discharge releases insolvent from personal liability under mortgage 217

* Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (9 of 1887), S. 17 (1) (as amended by Act 9 of 1935)—Scope—Applicant must deposit full decretal amount at time of presenting application if he has not made previous application for security — Court cannot extend time for making deposit or for furnishing security 18

—Art. 4 — Suit for price of fruits removed from trees is not covered by Art. 4 759b —Art. 31 — Suit for mesne profits even though for sum ascertained is excepted 219a

—Art. 31 — Sums received on basis of sale—Sale set aside — Sum is wrongfully received within Art. 31 219b —Art. 35 (ii) — Property removed in assertion of right—Offence under Sec. 378, I. P. C., is not committed — Suit for recovery of price does not come under Art. 35 (ii) 759a

Public Gambling Act (3 of 1867), S. 4—Essentials for conviction—It is crime to be found in place where gambling is going on — No offence to gamble in public place till found gambling 631b

Punjab Alienation of Land Act (13 of 1900), S. 2 (3)—"Land"—Scope of definition 354

—S. 2 (3) — Scope — Land assessed to revenue is not necessarily 'land' 353a

—S. 2 (3)—Onus of proving property in dispute to be 'land' under S. 2 (3) is on judgment-debtor 353b

—S. 4—Groups in Act are territorial—Person who is notified agriculturist in one

Punjab Alienation of Land Act

District need not necessarily be agriculturist in another District 784

—S. 14—Permanent alienation of agricultural land in favour of non-agriculturist —Sanction refused by Deputy Commissioner — Alienee cannot resile from transaction — Transaction not being void, S. 65, Contract Act, does not apply—Alienee cannot claim refund of money paid under alienation 820

Punjab Colonization of Government Lands Act (5 of 1912), Ss. 3 and 19—'Collector of District' held did not include Settlement Officer having powers of Collector 244a

—S. 18—Words used in S. 18 are similar to those used in S. 60, Civil P. C. — Lands though not liable to be attached and sold, receiver can be appointed in fit case to liquidate decree from profits of lands: 458

—S. 19 — A and B contracting that A should bid at auction for both A and B and that land so purchased should be treated as joint — A obtaining land and recorded as tenant—Suit by B to enforce his title—B becomes tenant when land was purchased and objections under S. 19 held not maintainable 721a

—S. 21 (a)—B who had acquired occupancy tenancy succeeded by F — F dying without heirs prescribed by S. 59, Tenancy Act — M, mother of F, L, grandmother of F, widow of B, and K, step-mother of F, mutated as persons originally entitled to tenancy — M remarrying and her share mutated equally between K and L—Death of K — Collaterals of B claiming to be entitled to succeed to K's share—Collector following decision of Commissioner purporting to sell proprietary rights to collaterals — Decision of Commissioner reversed — Proprietary rights acquired by L—Suit by collaterals that they were heirs of K—S. 21 (a) held did not apply — Invalid sale could not be ground for supporting collateral's claim to oust person in possession 877

—S. 21 (a)—Occupancy rights conferred on widow in land originally held by her husband as tahud khawahi tenant—Widow should be treated as person to whom tenancy was first allotted and succession is governed by S. 21 (a) — Fact that her husband was original lessee cannot be treated as tantamount to his having rendered service within the meaning of S. 21 (a)—Nomination should therefore be made only from issue of widow 842a

Punjab Courts Act (6 of 1918), S. 41—
Order granting certificate — Clerical error —Appeal cannot be excluded 849a

—S. 41 — Interpretation of clause in village statement of custom involves decision as to validity of custom—Certificate is necessary to re-agitate this question in second appeal 524b

—S. 41 (1) and (3)—Natural meaning of, explained 33b

—S. 41 (3)—Appellant raising point that lower Appellate Court omitted to determine point that reversioner has no right to succeed to property of deceased in presence of his daughter and her son according to Hindu law — Appeal does not fall within S. 41 (3) 824

—S. 41 (3) — Question of custom not arising—Mere grant of certificate does not confer jurisdiction on High Court

(FB) 299b

—S. 41 (3) — First appeal to District Judge involving question of existence or validity of custom — District Judge giving finding that custom is valid and existing—Such finding cannot be interfered with in second appeal without necessary certificate under S. 41 (3) 191a

*—S. 41 (3) — Interpretation of clause in statement of custom would involve decision regarding validity or existence of custom—Certificate is necessary (Obiter)
33a

Punjab Debtors' Protection Act (2 of 1936), S. 4 — Decree amount made charge on property by decree—S. 4 does not apply to execution of decree 433

Punjab Excise Act (1 of 1914), S. 61 (2)
(a)—M owning duly licensed shop for sale of liquor at G—His son R keeping ordinary grocer's shop at D, 12 miles away from G
—H ordering liquor from R to be delivered to him at R's shop at D — Liquor brought from M's shop at G and delivered to H in R's shop at D — M present at the time of delivery of liquor and payment made to him—R held merely acting as agent of H for purchase of liquor from M at G—There was no sale of liquor in D but at G and hence no offence under Section 61 was committed by M 529

Punjab Land Revenue Act (17 of 1887),
S. 111 — Mortgagee is not owner of land and hence cannot claim partition 615

—S. 117 (1) — Suit for declaration of title by J—No application for partition to revenue authorities—No direction by revenue authorities to bring civil suit — Previ-

Punjab Land Revenue Act

ous admission by J that land in suit was already partitioned — Even then suit was maintainable under S. 117 (1) and principle of estoppel did not apply 202

Punjab Laws Act (4 of 1872), S. 5—Person asserting that he is ruled by custom—Burden lies on him to prove that he is so governed — There is no presumption in favour of custom 166a

Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act (1 of 1920), Art. 1—Suit attacking will—Limitation cannot be avoided by cleverly worded plaint 158a

Punjab Motor Vehicles Rules, R. 23 — Maximum load has not been provided for private lorries — Owner of private lorry carrying load heavier than its carrying capacity cannot be convicted under R. 23

691a

Punjab Municipal Account Code —Person holding substantive appointment is entitled to provident fund even though appointed on probation 282d

Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 3
(13) (a), Proviso —Site in use of residents of locality as open space or common courtyard — Members of public passing through it without hindrance by owner — Site is 'street' — Proviso to S. 3 (13) (a) does not apply 619a

—S. 41—The word "unfit" in S. 41 does not refer to the absence of professional qualifications 282b

—S. 41—Executive Officer or President of Committee cannot arrogate powers to remove municipal employee to themselves 282c

—S. 81—Proprietors of flour mill sending bags of flour through municipal terminal post with their servant M — M paying less terminal tax by misrepresenting weight of bags — Fraud discovered — Municipal Committee claiming deficiency in tax from proprietors and on their refusal, applying under S. 81 for recovery of money due by attachment and sale of property — Magistrate issuing warrant of attachment—Claim held to be intra vires of Municipal Committee — Magistrate's function held to be ministerial only 627

—S. 81 (as amended in 1933)—Scope—
Mere use of word "rent" will not of necessity make that sum recoverable under
S. 81 unless "claimable by committee under Act" 29

—S. 195 — There must be definite finding as to the date on which unauthorized structure had been completed 613

Punjab Municipal Works Rules (1925), R. 11 — "Professional standing" prior to obtaining decree from University is possible 282a

Punjab Pre-emption Act (1 of 1913), S. 3 (3) — Government notification declaring certain place as town—No implication that custom of pre-emption prevails in that town 64b

—S. 15 (b) — S. 15 (b) confers right of pre-emption upon whole line of heirs of vendor and not merely on nearest heir at the time of sale—Priority of right is to be determined according to order of succession 946a

—S. 15 (b) — Whether legatees under will are heirs during lifetime of testator (Quære) 646b

—S. 16 (Sixthly) — Waiver — Contract with third party not in existence — Property offered for sale but declined by pre-emptor amounts to waiver 273a

—S. 22 (1) (5) — Security bond becoming void — Fresh bond should be asked for and not cash 452

—S. 22 (5) (b) — Time once fixed cannot be extended 606a

Punjab Redemption of Mortgages Act (2 of 1913), Ss. 10, 12 — Application for redemption dismissed by Collector on the ground that it was improper dispute between parties in summary proceedings — Suit for redemption subsequently filed by applicant is not one to set aside order of Government officer within the meaning of Art. 14, Limitation Act—Art. 14 does not apply—Suit although instituted more than one year from date of Collector's order is not barred 512

*—S. 12 — Order of dismissal as contemplated in Sec. 12 — Suit must be brought within one year : 40 P L R 245 = A I R 1938 Lah 512, REVERSED 638a

—S. 12 — Disposal of petition without touching merits is contemplated by the Act 638b

—S. 12 — Order against party under Ss. 6 to 11—He is person aggrieved 638d

Punjab Regulation of Accounts Act (1 of 1930), S. 2 (9) — Money-lender is not trader 322

Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (7 of 1934), S. 21 — Civil Court can take cognizance of plea of lack of jurisdiction in Board to pass an order (Obiter) 685a

*—S. 21 — Provisions prohibiting Civil Court's jurisdiction should be strictly construed—Application under S. 9 — Suit by creditor for declaration that claims by al-

Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act
leged creditors of judgment-debtor are fictitious and for injunction prohibiting these creditors from recovering their claims before Board—Jurisdiction of Civil Court to entertain such suit is neither expressly barred by S. 21 nor impliedly barred under provisions of the Act 14

—S. 22 — Board constituted under Act starting proceedings for contempt of Court against party appearing before it and fining him — Order of Board is open to revision 366b

—S. 25 — Application to Conciliation Board for settlement of debts — Court in which proceeding in respect of such debts is pending cannot refuse to stay it, holding that debt exceeds pecuniary jurisdiction of Conciliation Board 702

—S. 25 — Insolvency Court is Civil Court — Application to Board—Insolvency proceedings respecting same debt — Insolvency Court is bound to stay proceedings 195

—S. 26 — Competency of application can only be decided when it comes before Board — Competency or otherwise of application does not affect question of extension of time 780

—S. 34 — Burden of proof — Burden lies upon decree-holder to prove circumstances which would bring judgment-debtor under S. 34 — Onus then shifts to judgment-debtor to give valid reasons for not paying amount — Issue of warrant of arrest without allowing opportunity to judgment-debtor to give his reasons for non-payment is illegal 211

—S. 36 — Limitation for having adjustment certified'expiring before Act coming into force — Executing Court can still give effect to such adjustment 602a

—S. 36 — S. 36 has retrospective effect — Question of payment out of Court raised by judgment-debtor before passing of Act but pending till passing of Act — Court must decide question 126b

Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 2 (a) — Followers of Baba Ram Rai are not Sikhs 76b

—S. 2 (iv) — Office-holder and minister — Difference between, explained — Control denoting domination or command is essential to constitute minister 734a —Ss. 3 (1) and (3), 5 (1), 31, 36 and 37 — B taking equitable mortgage from S and obtaining decree on it — Mortgaged property claimed under S. 3 (1) by Shro-mani Parbandhak Committee — Counter-

Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act

claim made under Sec. 5 (1) by S — No reference made by either to mortgage in favour of B — Property declared by Sikh Gurdwara Tribunal to belong to Darbar Sahab, Amritsar, and decree passed accordingly — B taking out execution of its decree — Committee of management, Darbar Sahab, applying for stay of execution relying on Sec. 37 — Execution stayed — B instituting suit against S, Shromani Parbandhak Committee, and Committee of Management for setting aside decree by tribunal — B's suit decreed — B again starting execution proceedings — Suit by committee for declaration that decree in favour of B was without jurisdiction — Suit held maintainable — Court decreeing B's suit held to have no jurisdiction to try it and decree in favour of B held to be ultra vires and of no effect 129a

— S. 5 — Petition under — O. 1, Rule 8, Civil P. C. is not applicable (Per Full Bench) (FB) 369k

— S. 5 — Tribunal cannot declare property to be Sikh Gurdwara (Per Din Mohammad J.) (FB) 369r

— S. 15 — S. 15 does not absolve tribunal from following procedure under O. 1, Rule 8, Civil P. C. (Per Din Mohammad J.) (FB) 369p

— S. 25-A — Scope — S. 25-A is only enabling Section — It does not exclude jurisdiction of ordinary Courts — Party declared owner of certain property by Tribunal can sue for possession of such property in ordinary Civil Court 85

— S. 29 — S. G. P. Committee — Unauthorized jurisdiction if exercised can be ignored and is subject to control of Courts 734b

— S. 30 (ii) — Claim in representative capacity — Finding of tribunal that Mahomedans in general have no right, S. 30 (ii) has no application (Per Full Bench) (FB) 369m

— S. 32 — Section does not cover suits instituted long after time when petition could be made has expired (Per Din Mohammad J.) (FB) 369s

— S. 142 — Member of Gurdwara acquitted of charge of negligence — Costs should be awarded 272a

— S. 142 — Acts done in due course of business — Negligence of agents — Member cannot be warned 272b

Punjab Tenancy Act (16 of 1887), Ss. 5, 6, 7 and 77 (3) (d) — Occupancy rights of judgment-debtor sought to be attached and

Punjab Tenancy Act

sold — Civil Court has jurisdiction to decide whether rights fall under S. 5 or Ss. 6 and 7 — Suit is not one under S. 77 (3) (d): 677b — S. 5 (1) (a) — Daughter or sister of last male holder cannot acquire occupancy right 575

— Ss. 45, 50 and 50-A — Tenant ejected under S. 45 — Suit by him for possession on ground of title by adverse possession is cognizable by Revenue Court and not by Civil Court 82

— Ss. 53 to 59 — Intention is to protect landlord 675b

* — Ss. 57 and 59 — Occupancy Tenancy — Period for redemption expiring — Mortgagee acquiring occupancy rights — Mortgagor losing his rights under Sec. 59 — Mortgagee's rights are not retained: 40 P L R 240 = A I R 1938 Lah 488, REVERSED 675a

— S. 59 — Occupancy right jointly acquired by several persons — Tenancy does not revert to landlord until extinction of all descendants 611

— S. 59 (c) — Word "occupied" — Meaning — Mere mention of name of co-sharer as co-owner in shamilatdeh does not denote occupation of such co-owner 435

Receiver — Appointment of — Execution of decree against son on death of father — Court directing receiver to take possession of property in hands of son — Property situated in State — According to law of State son not shown to be not so liable — Order directing appointment of receiver is not ultra vires — Court in such case should direct son to hand over property to receiver 93

Registration — Contract — Agreement to divide property if successful in obtaining it need not be registered 721b — Unregistered contract — Part performance carried out — It is admissible in evidence for purposes of Sec. 53-A, T. P. Act 721c — Wrong entry — Document intended and ordered to be registered as partnership deed entered by mistake in wrong register — Document is validly registered as partnership deed 255c

Registration Act (16 of 1908), S. 17 — In Punjab, report made to subordinate land revenue officer relating to changes in land revenue record does not operate to create title 760b

— S. 17 — Mortgage of whole property — Subsequent recognition of absence of any interest created by original deed in parti.

Registration Act

cular portion of property does not require registration 481b

— S. 17 (1) (c) — Receipt recording receipt of consideration on mortgage — Registration under S. 17 (1) (c) is necessary 497a

— S. 17 (2), Cl. (vi) — Compromise between parties to suit embodied in petition presented to Court — Court passing order recording compromise and also passing decree on basis of compromise — Compromise does not require registration — It can be proved by petition embodying terms thereof 737a

— S. 17 (2) (vi) — Agreement recorded by Debt Conciliation Board relating to lease for period of 12 years — Agreement even if regarded as decree requires registration if it includes properties of persons not applicants before Board 685b

— S. 17 (2) (xi) — Purchaser out of money left with him by vendor redeeming mortgage — Receipt reciting extinction of mortgage is admissible in evidence and can be raised by purchaser as attack in his suit to enforce contract and as defence in mortgagee's suit 485

— Ss. 34 and 75 (2) — Presentation under S. 75 (2) does not take the place of presentation under S. 34 as procedure followed under each is different (Obiter): 255b

— S. 49 — Collateral purpose — Mortgage for amount exceeding Rs. 100 — Unregistered receipt evidencing payment of consideration is inadmissible in evidence as receipt for refund of consideration money as it is not collateral purpose — Receipt embodying terms of mortgage is however admissible in evidence to support claim for refund of consideration if mortgage implies personal liability 497b

* — S. 73 — Application under S. 73 by agent — For Registrar to have jurisdiction to order registration, agent must have been authorized under Ss. 32 and 33 763

Religious Endowment — Juristic person — The position of a juristic person is not that of a minor and it is doubtful whether a suit instituted by a next friend is properly instituted (Per Full Bench) (FB) 369f

Res Judicata — Finding in favour of pro forma defendant is not res judicata in subsequent suit 842c

— Suit by reversioner binds entire body of reversioners 571a — Rule of — Application not to be influenced by technical considerations — Reason for this rule explained — Res judicata between co-plaintiffs — Decision arrived at by united efforts of all plaintiffs — Full contest by defendant — Decision binds all co-plaintiffs for ever 571b — Litigating under same title — Former suit by A against trustees of temple that certain property attached to temple belonged to him — Defendants claiming title to property in temple — Suit finally decreed in favour of A — Subsequent suit by worshippers of temple against A's heirs claiming same property as belonging to temple held barred by res judicata — Plaintiffs, pleading decision in former suit was obtained collusively, must prove it 499

Res Judicata

— Constructive — House sold in execution of decree against certain members of family — Suit by another member challenging sale on ground that house, on partition of joint family, belonged to him — Suit dismissed — Subsequent suit challenging sale on ground that debts in connexion with which decree was obtained were incurred for illegal purpose is barred by res judicata 443

* — Suit tried and decided according to procedure then prevalent — Subsequent suit is barred even if procedure has been changed subsequently (Per Full Bench): (FB) 369i

— Co-defendants — Suit by K for his share against J and X — J ex parte — Suit decided in K's favour with reliance on particular pedigree table — J in possession of property — Application by X for shares, relying on another pedigree table — Suit by J against X for declaration that X was entitled to shares only under table relied on in K's suit — As J was absent in K's suit, and as point was not necessary between J and X, K's suit did not operate as res judicata 227b

— Question of plaintiff's title raised in appeal but suit dismissed entirely on other ground — Question of title cannot become res judicata in subsequent suit 179 — Constructive — Former suit as exclusive owner against persons in wrongful possession — On dismissal of such suit subsequent suit as cosharer for accounts — Subsequent suit held not barred by Expl. 4 to S. 11, Civil P. C. 139a

* — Suit by A against B — Another suit by B against A — Suits consolidated and tried together — A's suit dismissed but B's suit decreed — Appeal by A against decree in B's case only — Unappealed decree does not operate as res judicata 114a

Revision — Court having jurisdiction—Decision whether right or wrong is no ground for interference 827a

—Case decided — An order by Court holding the suit of a plaintiff time-barred in respect of certain reliefs claimed by him is a 'case decided' to that extent 507

—No revision lies from interlocutory orders — Powers are limited by S. 224 (2), Government of India Act, 1935 442 —Competency—No revision lies from order of Court calling upon plaintiff to make good deficiency in court-fees either under Civil P. C., S. 115 or Government of India Act (1935), S. 224 80

Riwaj-i.am — Scope — Entries — Evidentiary value—Customary law silent on a certain point—Local riwaj-i.am can be accepted — As the entries are public documents, these entries can be used as evidence of the existence of a custom, whether instances exist or not 849b —Entries in, are presumed to be correct

447b

Sale—Postponement of delivery until payment of entire price—Passing of property is not stayed per se — Vendor selling ascertained goods—Condition to keep goods locked with vendor until payment of price —On default, goods to be re-sold after notice to vendee — Property in goods held passed to vendee — Suit to recover price held also maintainable under Sec. 55 (2),
Sale of Goods Act 30

Second Appeal — Question of fact—Whether a statutory presumption was rebutted by the rest of the evidence or not is a question of fact 445a

*—Erroneous finding of fact is no ground for second appeal — Question whether statutory presumption is rebutted by rest of evidence is question of fact 357b —Finding of fact—Question whether execution of document is genuine—Lower Court not impressed with mere presence of thumb-marks of executant but relying on other strong evidence in coming to conclusion that execution was genuine — His decision cannot be interfered with in second appeal 357c

—Finding of fact — Concurrent finding cannot be disturbed 218a

—Finding of fact based upon consideration of evidence on record—Finding cannot be interfered with in second appeal: 191b —Appellate Court erring in law in arriving at conclusion upon facts—Finding can be interfered with 182

1938 Indexes (Lah.) 6 & 7

Second Appeal

—Interpretation of facts found by lower Court can be dealt with in second appeal
180a

—Question of law — Question of law requiring complete re-trial for its decision cannot be allowed to be raised 128

Specific Relief Act (1 of 1877), S. 42—
Person in joint possession with defendants of properties attached to khankah — Suit for declaration that he was gaddi nashin and entitled to exclusive possession — Suit is incompetent without consequential relief for ejection or injunction 616

—S. 42—Declaratory suit—A in execution against B trying to attach C's property
—A's attempts failing twice—Suit by C against A for declaration of his rights to his property held maintainable 574

—S. 42—Mosque in possession of non-Muslims—Suit on behalf of Muslim community—Relief of possession of mosque open to it though not to individuals—Suit for mere declaration and injunction is not maintainable (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting) (FB) 369g

—S. 42, Proviso—Suit for declaration against registered body managing mosque for declaration that plaintiff is mutawalli and is entitled to manage mosque—Plaintiff admittedly out of possession — Suit for mere declaration does not lie 869c

—Ss. 54 and 57—Grant by Government of license to supply electricity — Grant of license is not contract so as to give rise to perpetual injunction — Assuming it to be contract, grant of license does not imply any negative covenant on part of Government not to start similar work to supply electricity during currency of license—Start of work to supply electricity by Government therefore does not give ground for granting injunction in favour of licensee 585b

—S. 56—Suit for injunction for restoring demolished building to its former condition —Relief can be granted and on failure to obey it, procedure under O. 21, R. 32 (5), Civil P. C., can be applied (Per Din Mohammad J.) (FB) 369n

Stamp Act (2 of 1899), S. 2 (17)—To bring instrument within definition of mortgage deed transfer should be effected by instrument in question 460

—S. 12—"Effectually cancelled"—Object of cancellation is to make stamp unfit for further use in ordinary course of business—Executant of promissory note clearly initialling stamps on it—No date of initi.

Stamp Act

alling mentioned—Stamps are effectually cancelled 505a

—S. 35—Secondary evidence—Entry as to mortgage made in ordinary bahi not duly stamped—Secondary evidence of such entry is inadmissible 90b

—S. 35 (a)—Balance struck in account book of creditor followed by statement signed by debtor that certain amount is still due—Document is agreement and not acknowledgment—Document although not duly stamped is admissible in evidence after payment of penalty 511a

—S. 36—Suit for money instituted on basis of document executed by two persons—Execution of document admitted by one of the executants—Court is not entitled to reject document as against him, although it is not duly stamped 511b

Succession Act (39 of 1925), S. 192—Revision from decision under S. 192 is allowed 753a

—Ss. 192 to 194—Joint Hindu family—Property passing by survivorship—Ss. 192 to 194 have no application—"Chundavand" rule of division does not bring case under Ss. 192 to 194 753b

*—S. 228—S. 228 dispenses with production of original will—But Court should consider validity of will if it is questioned 349a

—Ss. 228 and 276—Will deposited in foreign Court—Application for probate with copy of will—Letters of administration held could be granted or at least petition should be allowed to be amended 349b

*—S. 291—Order of Court granting probate of estate of a deceased Christian and requiring petitioner to furnish security for which no time limit was fixed—Grant held conditional on furnishing security and order therefore held appealable—Deceased being Christian, security could not be demanded 151

Telegraphs Act (13 of 1885), S. 27—Applicability—For offence under Sec. 27, there must be transmission of message without recovering charge therefor, required to be recovered beforehand—Defrauding should be result of such transmission—No offence under S. 27 when charge is not required to be recovered beforehand but it is to be recovered in terms of monthly bills submitted to telephone owners 251a

*Tort—Mosque in possession of Sikhs for long time—Demolition of building by Sikhs does not give cause of action to

Tort

Muslims to sue (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting) (FB) 369h

—Trespass—Lane alleged by plaintiff to be joint—Construction of overhanging structure on it by defendant in assertion of exclusive right amounts to injury—Suit for demolition of structure is competent 208

*—Nuisance—Injunction—Door of latrine constituting nuisance only when kept open—Injunction should be granted requiring owner to put up spring door 94
Trade Mark—Infringement—Suit for injunction—Principles relating to infringement of trade marks enunciated—Held that there was no colourable imitation and no deceptive resemblance between goods of plaintiff and those of defendants entitling plaintiff to an order for permanent injunction restraining defendants from using device used by plaintiffs 803

Transfer of Property Act (4 of 1882),—Applicability to Punjab—Principles of the Act are enforced in Punjab 156a

—S. 11—Sale of site of shop—Enjoyment cannot be restricted 479b

—S. 41—Scope—S. 41 applies even when person consenting to transfer has no knowledge of his title 86

—S. 43—Certain share of person sold at Court sale though such person not entitled to any share at the time of sale—Person subsequently becoming entitled to such share—Such person cannot be compelled to make good from such share title conveyed to vendee at court sale 360a

—S. 52—Applicability—Suit by A to recover lease money of certain property from B—B pleading that A represented to him that C owned half share in such property—B further pleading payment of half lease money to C—Contention by B that he having taken mortgage from C of his half share on A's representation, A was estopped from denying his title as mortgagee—Mortgage taken by B from C, on repudiation by A of C's title and on institution of suit for declaration of his title against C as well as B—Mortgage held affected by doctrine of lis pendens—A held not bound by mortgage 448b

—S. 53—Suit by creditor impeaching transfer by debtor as fraudulent—Debtor subsequently adjudged insolvent—Receiver is necessary party to suit or appeal therefrom 856a

—S. 53—Fraudulent transfer—On considering facts transfer held made with intent to defeat creditors and not with intention to prefer one creditor to another 564

Transfer of Property Act

*—S. 53—Transfer preferring one creditor to another is not void if debtor retains no benefit for himself—Debtor, during execution of decree against him of one creditor, mortgaging his property to third person and keeping consideration of mortgage in mortgagee's hand to be paid to debtor's prior mortgagee—Transfer is not affected by S. 53 156b

—S. 53—Mere fact that debts are due from transferor is not alone sufficient to establish fraudulent intention 136a

—S. 53—Fraudulent intention—Prior, subsequent and contemporaneous conduct of transferor is relevant—Debtor's motive in transfer held was fraudulent 136b

*—S. 53—Objection to sale by transferee of property from judgment-debtor—Decree-holder can contest objector's claim on ground that transfer was fraudulent without filing separate suit—To such defence rule under S. 53, T. P. Act, as to form of suit does not apply—Defence by creditor moreover can be described to be made in representative capacity 136c

—S. 53—Fraudulent transfer by insolvent in favour of his wife more than two years before his adjudication—B purchasing property in execution of mortgage decree against her—Application by Official Receiver to avoid transfer—Transfer in favour of wife held voidable and could be set aside under Sec. 53 but only subject to B's rights—Transfer in favour of B held could not be set aside 73b

—S. 54—Property in possession of tenants—Sale deed requires registration 304

—S. 55 (1) (g)—Sale of immovable

Transfer of Property Act

property—Vendors agreeing to indemnify vendees, if they suffer loss or damage on account of any person laying claim to property sold—Mortgagee from original owner of property bringing suit on his mortgage—Vendees not properly defending suit and unnecessarily paying large sum to save property are not legally entitled to recover amount so paid from vendors 743

—S. 67—Prohibition of sale by usufructuary mortgagee—Principle underlying stated 145b

—S. 92 (as amended by Act 20 of 1929)

—Applicability of principles of S. 92 in Punjab—Co-mortgagor redeeming entire mortgage—He is subrogated to rights of original mortgagee to claim contribution from co-mortgagors by foreclosure or sale of their shares 184

Usurious Loans Act (10 of 1918), S. 3 (as amended by S. 5 of Punjab Act 7 of 1934)—Subsequent mortgage independent of prior mortgage—Mere fact that the consideration for second mortgage was amount due on first would not make them one transaction—In suit on second mortgage Court cannot reopen account of first mortgage 729

Words and Phrases—“Hasab rasad khewat”—Phrase when used in revenue records in reference to partition of shamilat area means “according to revenue assessed 318b

Workmen's Compensation Act (8 of 1923), S. 2 (1) (n), Sch. 2, Cl. (iii)—Workman claiming compensation under S. 2 (1) (n) and Sch. 2, Cl. (iii)—It must be shown that fifty or more persons are employed in the premises or precincts. 855b

—S. 20—Commissioner appointed under Workmen's Compensation Act is “Court subordinate to High Court.” 855a

CASES OVERRULED & REVERSED

IN

A. I. R. 1938 LAHORE

- Bhagta Nand v. Sardar Mohammad Nawaz Khan (1935) 16 Lah 204 = 37 P L R 441 = A I R 1935 Lah 150 = 156 I C 450 Reversed, in A I R 1938 P C 219.
- Devi Doara v. Court of Wards Guru Amarjit Singh, Jullundur, (1938) 40 P L R 240 = A I R 1938 Lah 488 Reversed in A I R 1938 Lah 675 (F B).
- Emperor v. Kishan Chand, Criminal Revn. No. 703 of 1936 Overruled in A I R 1938 Lah 861.
- Hari Singh v. Jagta, (1928) 29 P L R 666 = 29 Cr L J 866 = A I R 1928 Lah 694 = 111 I C 450 Overruled in A I R 1938 Lah 861.
- Hashu v. Chaudhri Hakim Ali, (1937) 39 P L R 287 = A I R 1937 Lah 146 = 162 I C 557 Reversed in A I R 1938 Lah 244.
- Jiwan Singh v. Emperor, (1908) 17 P R 1908 Cr = 32 P W R 1908 Cr = 8 Cr L J 488 Overruled in A I R 1938 Lah 534 (F B).
- Jodh Singh v. Bhagwandas Nanak Chand, (1937) 39 P L R 680 = A I R 1937 Lah 404 = 173 I C 185 Reversed in A I R 1938 Lah 117.
- Nazir Begam, Mt. v. Ghulam Qadir Khan, (1938) A I R 1938 Lah 84 Reversed in A I R 1938 Lah 313.
- Prabu Mal v. Chandan, (1938) 40 PLR 245 = A I R 1938 Lah 512 Reversed in A I R 1938 Lah 638.
- Secy. of State v. Ghulam Mohammad, (1937) 39 P L R 668 = A I R 1937 Lah 410 = 173 I C 768 Reversed in A I R 1938 Lah 445.
- Sheikh Muhammad v. Habib Khan, (1905) 67 P R 1905 = 113 P L R 1905 Overruled in A I R 1938 P C 219.
- Shadi v. Ram Ditta, (1936) 39 P L R 6 = A I R 1936 Lah 842 = 165 I C 358 Overruled in A I R 1938 Lah 126.
- Shanti Parkash v. Harnam Das, (1937) A I R 1937 Lah 642 = 174 I C 258 Reversed in A I R 1938 Lah 234 (F B).
- Singh Ram v. Kaka, (1926) 7 Lah 173 = 8 L L J 39 = 27 P L R 70 = A I R 1926 Lah 244 = 92 I C 1012 Overruled in A I R 1938 P C 219.
-

COMPARATIVE TABLES

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore = Other Journals

AIR	Other Journals	AIR	Other Journals	AIR	Other Journals	AIR	Other Journals
1	ILR 1937 L 769	81	40 P L R 986	150	39 Cr L J 426	217	40 P L R 514
	40 P L R 188		178 I C 510	151	40 P L R 22		178 I C 272
	175 I C 824	82	ILR 1938 L 509		177 I C 391	218	40 P L R 112
4	178 I C 677		177 I C 703	152	178 I C 98		177 I C 101
6	170 I C 994	83	177 I C 389	155	178 I C 446	219	40 P L R 196
8	171 I C 395	84	177 I C 427	156	179 I C 267		ILR 1938 L 341
10	176 I C 919	85	177 I C 635	158	40 P L R 126		177 I C 408
12	177 I C 612	86	ILR 1937 L 783		ILR 1938 L 332	220	40 P L R 518
14	39 P L R 891		40 P L R 286		178 I C 285		179 I C 123
	175 I C 686		175 I C 832	159	177 I C 388	223	171 I C 361
16	39 P L R 870	88	ILR 1938 L 296	161	40 P L R 646		40 P L R 649
	175 I C 400		177 I C 198		179 I C 350	225	40 P L R 92
18	ILR 1937 L 728		41 P L R 51	163	40 P L R 626		176 I C 255
	40 P L R 164	90	...	166	40 P L R 565	226	40 P L R 598
	173 I C 952	93	39 P L R 415		178 I C 74		178 I C 240
19	173 I C 324		ILR 1938 L 305	168	40 P L R 549	227	40 P L R 600
	39 Cr L J 299		175 I C 784		178 I C 35	232	40 P L R 128
20	177 I C 639	94	39 P L R 664	173	ILR 1938 L 84	234	174 I C 277
21	176 I C 779		175 I C 81		40 P L R 622	FB	40 P L R 533
22	177 I C 732	95	39 P L R 654		177 I C 341		ILR 1938 L 193
23	...		175 I C 525	176	174 I C 420	241	ILR 1938 L 558
29	173 I C 211	96	39 P L R 777		39 Cr L J 410		40 P L R 997
	39 Cr L J 286		175 I C 16		40 P L R 484	242	40 P L R 97
30	39 P L R 778	97	177 I C 966	177	40 P L R 619		177 I C 674
	175 I C 440	99	ILR 1937 L 623		178 I C 547	244	...
31	178 I C 30		40 P L R 800	179	40 P L R 662	246	175 I C 1005
	89 Cr L J 265		175 I C 588		178 I C 60	248	175 I C 29
33	ILR 1937 L 642	101	39 P L R 815	180	40 P L R 506	251	ILR 1938 L 236
	40 P L R 295		178 I C 315		178 I C 81		175 I C 155
	175 I C 689		39 Cr L J 290	182	178 I C 58		39 Cr L J 551
35	ILR 1937 L 746	103	177 I C 308	183	40 P L R 578		40 P L R 1029
	40 P L R 278	105	5 I T R 505	184	ILR 1938 L 103	252	40 P L R 58
	175 I C 819		ILR 1938 L 113		40 P L R 546		174 I C 849
39	171 I C 265	107	171 I C 498		178 I C 775		39 Cr L J 491
41	171 I C 412	111	177 I C 420	187	40 P L R 616	253	177 I C 985
43	39 P L R 896	113	39 P L R 947		178 I C 946	254	178 I C 125
	175 I C 109		173 I C 927	188	ILR 1938 L 148	255	...
44	5 I T R 307	114	40 P L R 198		40 P L R 640	259	178 I C 53
	ILR 1937 L 706		177 I C 305	191	40 P L R 573	260	174 I C 949
	40 P L R 256	116	39 P L R 659	193	40 P L R 660		ILR 1938 L 347
	175 I C 644		173 I C 321	194	40 P L R 639		39 Cr L J 502
	10 I T C 258		89 Cr L J 296		10 I T C 454		40 P L R 982
49	ILR 1937 L 756	117	ILR 1937 L 671		178 I C 404	262	174 I C 989
	40 P L R 280		175 I C 846	195	40 P L R 490		39 Cr L J 512
	175 I C 828	121	39 P L R 838		ILR 1938 L 336	264	178 I C 259
52	178 I C 319		173 I C 306		177 I C 135	267	178 I C 49
55	176 I C 801		89 Cr L J 293	196	39 P L R 948	268	174 I C 973
60	173 I C 269	122	39 P L R 775		175 I C 630		39 Cr L J 508
	39 Cr L J 288		178 I C 352	198	ILR 1938 L 97	269	174 I C 961
62	177 I C 354		39 Cr L J 297		40 P L R 509		39 Cr L J 506
64	39 P L R 881	123	39 P L R 967		40 P L R 1004	270	178 I C 176
	175 I C 492		175 I C 801	200	ILR 1937 L 653	272	177 I C 320
65	177 I C 116	126	40 P L R 14		174 I C 881	273	40 P L R 10
69	176 I C 813		ILR 1938 L 264		39 Cr L J 488		ILR 1938 L 246
70	177 I C 682		177 I C 487		40 P L R 401		176 I C 925
71	39 P L R 1007	128	39 P L R 655	202	40 P L R 524	275	40 P L R 27
	175 I C 314		175 I C 106	204	40 P L R 558		ILR 1938 L 240
	ILR 1938 L 511	129	...		178 I C 235		176 I C 762
72	ILR 1938 L 374	135	39 P L R 930	207	40 P L R 658	277	...
	177 I C 60		173 I C 484	208	39 P L R 875	282	178 I C 153
	40 P L R 984		39 Cr L J 335		175 I C 254	286	...
73	ILR 1938 L 439	136	...	209	40 P L R 585	288	175 I C 96
	40 P L R 1000	138	39 P L R 1027	211	ILR 1938 L 164		39 Cr L J 534
76	178 I C 886		175 I C 260		40 P L R 486	289	ILR 1938 L 403
80	ILR 1938 L 877	139	...	214	40 P L R 569		178 I C 189
	176 I C 764	145	...	216	40 P L R 1		40 P L R 1045
	40 P L R 1039	148	177 I C 204		174 I C 422	292	ILR 1937 L 740
81	ILR 1938 L 379	150	174 I C 481		39 Cr L J 439		40 P L R 214

AIR	Other Journals		AIR	Other Journals		AIR	Other Journals		AIR	Other Journals
292	174	I C	804	349	I L R 1938 L	562	460	40	P L R	749	523	40	P L R	492
	39	Cr L J	475		178	I C	224	177	I C	469		176	I C	669
293	SB174	I C	992		40	P L R	1064	461	40	P L R	781		39	Cr L J	775
294	39	P L R	1010	350	40	P L R	138		177	I C	403	524	40	P L R	272
	175	I C	56		177	I C	680	463	40	P L R	313		177	I C	395
295	39	P L R	1046	351	40	P L R	59		40	P L R	709	525	40	P L R	243
	175	I C	42	353	177	I C	434	465	40	P L R	653	526	40	P L R	815
296	SB175	I C	412	354	40	P L R	57		177	I C	385		176	I C	654
299	FB175	I C	87	355	40	P L R	119	467	40	P L R	728		39	Cr L J	765
301	SB175	I C	21		176	I C	89	468	40	P L R	748	527	40	P L R	267
302	40	P L R	95	857	39	Cr L J	695	469	40	P L R	239		ILR 1938 L	485
	176	I C	726	360	...				175	I C	850		177	I C	424
303	40	P L R	162		40	P L R	202		39	Cr L J	646	529	40	P L R	226
	176	I C	464	361	177	I C	746	470	40	P L R	184		176	I C	648
304	40	P L R	24	FB	40	P L R	413		178	I C	787		39	Cr L J	762
	176	I C	746	366	175	I C	699	472	40	P L R	755	530	40	P L R	228
305	40	P L R	108		40	P L R	218	473	40	P L R	23		ILR 1938 L	426
306	40	P L R	12		175	I C	797		176	I C	272		1938 I T R	243
	176	I C	751	368	39	Cr L J	658	474	39	Cr L J	713	533	40	P L R	817
307	40	P L R	49	369	178	I C	288		40	P L R	730		ILR 1938 L	548
	176	I C	459	FB	40	P L R	319		177	I C	97		178	I C	443
308	40	P L R	153	425	175	I C	945		39	Cr L J	844	534	176	I C	497
	176	I C	596		40	P L R	148	477	40	P L R	752	FB	40	P L R	806
309	40	P L R	29		175	I C	503		177	I C	32		39	Cr L J	756
	177	I C	775		ILR 1938 L	258		478	39	Cr L J	864	539	40	P L R	824
311	40	P L R	88	427	39	Cr L J	590		40	P L R	738		178	I C	515
	177	I C	686		175	I C	544		177	I C	422	543	176	I C	678
312	40	P L R	145	428	39	Cr L J	653	479	40	P L R	209		40	P L R	850
	ILR 1938 L	345			40	P L R	222		176	I C	252		39	Cr L J	781
	176	I C	846		175	I C	522	481	40	P L R	291		ILR 1938 L	603
313	40	P L R	64	429	39	Cr L J	599	482	ILR 1938 L	277	545	40	P L R	308
	ILR 1938 L	318			40	P L R	136		40	P L R	722		1938 I T R	297
317	40	P L R	74		176	I C	116	485	40	P L R	777		177	I C	222
	177	I C	672	430	39	Cr L J	698		178	I C	168		ILR 1938 L	477
318	...			431	178	I C	278	486	40	P L R	233	548	ILR 1938 L	289
320	40	P L R	12	433	177	I C	399		178	I C	601		40	P L R	69
	174	I C	789		40	P L R	441	487	40	P L R	746		177	I C	778
	39	Cr L J	486	434	177	I C	530		178	I C	289	550	40	P L R	512
321	40	P L R	2		40	P L R	651	488	40	P L R	240		ILR 1938 L	490
322	40	P L R	32	435	177	I C	351	490	40	P L R	316		178	I C	453
	176	I C	824		40	P L R	269		177	I C	217	551	1938 I T R	385
323	175	I C	517		ILR 1938 L	411		492	ILR 1938 L	535		40	P L R	821
	39	Cr L J	603	437	177	I C	445	493	40	P L R	794		ILR 1938 L	551
324	40	P L R	91	440	40	P L R	768		40	P L R	685	554	40	P L R	153
	176	I C	930	442	40	P L R	693		176	I C	731		ILR 1938 L	271
325	ILR 1938 L	398			40	P L R	775	496	176	I C	225		178	I C	331
	40	P L R	1060	443	178	I C	292		40	P L R	788	556	40	P L R	854
326	178	I C	202		40	P L R	556		39	Cr L J	714		176	I C	666
328	...			444	ILR 1938 L	729	497		40	P L R	833		39	Cr L J	769
331	40	P L R	100		175	I C	555	499	40	P L R	867	558	40	P L R	848
333	40	P L R	146		40	P L R	650	502	178	I C	821		178	I C	436
334	40	P L R	158	445	39	Cr L J	624	503	40	P L R	193	559	40	P L R	819
336	40	P L R	73	447	40	P L R	655		177	I C	270	561	40	P L R	735
	176	I C	634		40	P L R	690	505	40	P L R	801		ILR 1938 L	542
337	175	I C	545	448	177	I C	513	507	178	I C	799		178	I C	210
	39	Cr L J	609	451	40	P L R	763	508	40	P L R	201	562	40	P L R	937
338	40	P L R	143		40	P L R	721		177	I C	558		179	I C	171
339	40	P L R	61	452	177	I C	483	509	40	P L R	429	563	40	P L R	456
	175	I C	548		40	P L R	758		177	I C	332		177	I C	918
	39	Cr L J	621	453	177	I C	452	510	40	P L R	133	564	40	P L R	909
341	178	I C	23		40	P L R	220		177	I C	561		179	I C	60
344	ILR 1938 L	352			ILR 1938 L	435	511		40	P L R	231	566	40	P L R	528
	177	I C	539	454	177	I C	439		178	I C	197	568	40	P L R	522
	41	P L R	32	456	40	P L R	750		40	Cr L J	9		177	I C	928
345	40	P L R	20		40	P L R	692	512	40	P L R	245		ILR 1938 L	593
	176	I C	124	457	177	I C	430	514	176	I C	410	569	40	P L R	463
	39	Cr L J	702		40	P L R	786	FB	39	Cr L J	734		177	I C	187
346	40	P L R	157	458	178	I C	270		40	P L R	813		39	Cr L J	853
	175	I C	520		40	P L R	803		ILR 1938 L	462	570	40	P L R	571
	39	Cr L J	606	459	177	I C	410	515	40	P L R	857		178	I C	597
347	40	P L R	124		40	P L R	793		179	I C	146	571	40	P L R	591
					178	I C	195	520	40	P L R	863		178	I C	302

AIR	Other Journals	AIR	Other Journals	AIR	Other Journals	AIR	Other Journals
574	40 P L R 407 178 I C 128	627	ILR 1938 L 251 177 I C 413	698	40 P L R 235 ILR 1938 L 417	784	40 P L R 631 179 I C 534
575	40 P L R 411 177 I C 784		39 Cr L J 872 40 P L R 1025	702	ILR 1938 L 720 40 P L R 631	787	40 P L R 697 40 P L R 784
576	40 P L R 505 177 I C 507 39 Cr L J 888	629	40 P L R 872 177 I C 707 39 Cr L J 930	706	178 I C 507 40 Cr L J 79	789	179 I C 223 40 P L R 796
577	40 P L R 888 178 I C 504	631	177 I C 298 39 Cr L J 856	707	...	791	179 I C 368 179 I C 523
579	40 P L R 469 177 I C 847	634	40 P L R 916 177 I C 278 39 Cr L J 851	709	40 P L R 403 179 I C 233	793	40 P L R 621 ILR 1938 L 494
581	40 P L R 905 179 I C 251		40 P L R 870 177 I C 278 39 Cr L J 851	712	178 I C 1005	794	40 P L R 1054 40 P L R 753
582	40 P L R 498	635	179 I C 68 40 P L R 886	718	...	795	40 P L R 805 40 P L R 787
584	40 P L R 514 177 I C 801	638	ILR 1938 L 188 40 P L R 951	721	...	800	179 I C 364 ...
585	40 P L R 927 178 I C 390	641	178 I C 795 40 P L R 634	723	179 I C 418	801
590	40 P L R 473		ILR 1938 L 667 40 P L R 508	725	40 P L R 712	803	40 P L R 793
593	40 P L R 530 177 I C 879 ILR 1938 L 624	642	178 I C 551 ILR 1938 L 667	728	...	809
594	40 P L R 890 177 I C 617 39 Cr L J 907	646	ILR 1938 L 676 ...	729	178 I C 572 40 Cr L J 81	811
602	40 P L R 264	647	40 P L R 940 178 I C 939	732	...	814	40 P L R 791 178 I C 990
604	40 P L R 972	648	40 P L R 948 179 I C 357	734	...	815
606	179 I C 110 ILR 1938 L 598	658	40 P L R 946 179 I C 58	736	...	817	40 P L R 841 179 I C 367
608	40 P L R 409 177 I C 835	671	40 P L R 494 ILR 1938 L 586	737	178 I C 791	819	40 P L R 772
609	40 P L R 912 178 I C 316	673	178 I C 995	739	ILR 1938 L 359	820
611	40 P L R 292 177 I C 870	675	40 P L R 959 179 I C 369	741	1938 I T R 370	823	179 I C 284
613	40 P L R 278 177 I C 763	677	177 I C 938 40 P L R 903		41 P L R 64	824
614	ILR 1938 L 127 177 I C 339 39 Cr L J 870	680	40 P L R 967 40 P L R 567	743	179 I C 490	825
615	40 P L R 1036 178 I C 64 ILR 1938 L 589	684	178 I C 760 40 P L R 954	747	...	827
616	40 P L R 516 177 I C 781	685	ILR 1938 L 704 40 P L R 615	749	178 I C 605 40 Cr L J 84	828	40 P L R 589 179 I C 249
618	40 P L R 935 177 I C 642 39 Cr L J 927	690	178 I C 594 40 P L R 942		1938 I T R 616	832	40 P L R 289 179 I C 336
619	40 P L R 477	691	177 I C 975 39 Cr L J 970	751	178 I C 724	833
620	1938 I T R 534 40 P L R 913 178 I C 397	692	40 P L R 618 178 I C 848	752	40 P L R 298	834	40 P L R 399
622	ILR 1938 L 651 40 P L R 678 ILR 1938 L 655	693	177 I C 942 177 I C 975	753	179 I C 262	836
	179 I C 397	694	39 Cr L J 970 40 P L R 618	754	178 I C 806	838	40 P L R 923
624	178 I C 524	695	178 I C 848 40 P L R 944	757	179 I C 103	842
625	40 P L R 501 177 I C 894 39 Cr L J 960	697	40 P L R 915 178 I C 985	758	179 I C 376	846	40 P L R 757 178 I C 911
			179 I C 165 40 P L R 595	759	41 P L R 91	848	179 I C 560 40 P L R 265
			177 I C 1001 39 Cr L J 982	760	40 P L R 689	849	179 I C 237 1938 I T R 355
				762	178 I C 754	850	ILR 1938 L 526 41 P L R 58
				763	40 P L R 753	852
				765	179 I C 720	855
				766	178 I C 144	856
				767	179 I C 682	858	179 I C 320
				768	40 P L R 716	859
				769	178 I C 632	861	40 P L R 579 ILR 1938 L 640
				770	40 P L R 718	864	179 I C 353 1938 I T R 474
				779	ILR 1938 L 716	865	40 P L R 672 179 I C 414
				780	...	867	1938 I T R 625
				781	40 P L R 670	869
					179 I C 468	877

Other Journals = All India Reporter

I. L. R. 1938 Lahore = All India Reporter

ILR	AIR	ILR	AIR	ILR	AIR	ILR	AIR	ILR	AIR
1	1937 PC 292	68	1938 PO 73	103	1938 L 184	127	1938 L 614	148	1938 L 188
10	" L 721	84	" L 173	118	" " 105	129	" PC 8	155	1937 " 665
47	" " 905	97	" " 198	120	1937 " 680	140	1937 L 658	164	1938 " 211

I. L. R. 1938 Lahore = All India Reporter (Concl'd.)

ILR	A I R	ILR	A I R	ILR	A I R	ILR	A I R	ILR	A I R
173	1937 L 626	305	1938 L 93	398	1938 L 925	509	1938 L 82	598	1938 L 606
183	" " 408	310	1937 " 565	403	" " 289	511	" " 71	603	" " 543
188	1938 " 641	313	1938 PC 181	411	" " 435	514	" PC 219	611	1939 " 108
193	" " 234	318	" L 313	417	" " 698	526	" L 852	619	" " 122
210	1937 " 880	332	" " 158	426	" " 530	535	" " 490	624	1938 " 598
221	" " 740	336	" " 195	435	" " 453	542	" " 561	628	" PC 266
229	" " 876	341	" " 219	439	" " 73	548	" " 533	640	" L 861
236	1938 " 251	345	" " 312	447	1937 " 805	551	" " 551	651	" " 620
240	" " 275	347	" " 260	450	1939 " 58	558	" " 241	655	" " 622
246	" " 273	352	" " 344	453	1938 PC 195	562	" " 349	652	1939 " 95
251	" " 627	359	" " 741	462	" L 514	567	1939 " 21	667	1938 " 642
258	" " 425	367	1937 " 890	477	" " 545	571	" " 73	676	" " 648
264	" " 126	374	1938 " 72	485	" " 527	582	" " 36	704	" " 686
271	" " 554	377	" " 80	490	" " 550	586	1938 " 678	716	" " 763
277	" " 482	379	" " 81	494	" " 795	589	" " 615	720	" " 702
289	" " 548	383	" PC 184	502	1937 " 859	593	" " 568	729	" " 443
296	" " 88

40 Punjab Law Reporter = All India Reporter

PLR	A I R	PLR	A I R	PLR	A I R	PLR	A I R	PLR	A I R
1	1938 L 216	134	1937 L 800	286	1938 L 86	509	1938 L 198	666	1937 L 780
2	" " 321	136	1938 " 429	289	" " 833	512	" " 550	667	1938 " 767
8	1937 " 782	138	" " 350	291	" " 481	514	" " 217	669	1937 " 790
10	1938 " 273	139	1937 " 804	292	" " 611	516	" " 616	670	1938 " 779
12a	" " 306	143	1938 " 338	295	" " 93	518	" " 220	672	" " 865
12b	" " 320	145	" " 312	298	" " 751	522	" " 568	676	1937 " 769
14	" " 126	146	" " 333	300	" " 99	524	" " 202	678	1938 " 622
20	" " 345	148	" " 425	303	" " 458	528	" " 566	681	" " 784
22	" " 151	153a	" " 308	305	" " 719	530	" " 593	682	" " 760
23	" " 473	153b	" " 554	308	" " 545	533	" " 234	685	" " 493
24	" " 304	157	" " 346	313	" " 463	544b	" " 584	689	" " 757
27	" " 275	158	" " 334	316	" " 490	546	" " 184	690	" " 447
29	" " 309	162	" " 303	319	" " 369	549	" " 168	692	" " 456
32	" " 322	164	" " 18	399	" " 836	556	" " 443	693	" " 440
35	1937 " 798	166	1937 " 581	401	" " 200	558	" " 204	697	" " 787
38	" " 772	179	1938 PC 65	403	" " 709	565	" " 166	709	" " 463
44	" " 562	180	" " 77	407	" " 574	567	" " 685	712	" " 725
46	" " 839	184	" L 470	409	" " 608	569	" " 214	716	" " 762
49	1938 " 807	188	" " 1	411	" " 575	571	" " 570	718	" " 763
52	1937 " 812	193	" " 503	413	" " 361	573	" " 191	720	" " 759
55	" " 842	196	" " 219	419	1937 " 937	578	" " 183	721	" " 451
57	1938 " 354	198	" " 114	422	" " 931	579	" " 861	722	" " 482
58	" " 252	201	" " 508	427	" " 578	585	" " 209	728	" " 467
59	" " 351	202	" " 360	429	1938 " 509	589	" " 832	730	" " 474
61	" " 339	206	1937 " 446	436	1937 " 620	591	" " 571	735	" " 561
64	" " 313	209	1938 " 479	441	1938 " 433	595	" " 697	738	" " 478
69	" " 548	211	1937 " 878	447	1937 " 806	598	" " 226	740	" PC 184
73	" " 836	214	1938 " 292	452	" " 766	600	" " 227	746	" L 487
74	" " 317	218	" " 366	454	" " 781	612	" " 615	746	" " 468
77	1937 " 816	220	" " 453	456	1938 " 563	615	" " 690	748	" " 460
79	1938 Pesh 3	222	" " 428	458	1937 " 828	616	" " 187	749	" " 454
82	1937 L 786	226	" " 529	462	" " 847	618	" " 692	750	" " 477
88	1938 " 311	228	" " 530	465	" " 757	619	" " 177	752	" " 758
90	" Pesh 4	231	" " 511	466	" " 826	621	" " 794	753	" " 472
91	" L 824	233	" " 486	468	1938 " 569	622	" " 173	755	" " 848
92	" " 225	235	" " 698	469	" " 579	626b	" " 163	755	" " 452
93	1937 " 771	239	" " 469	473	" " 590	631	" " 704	757	" " 796
95	1938 " 302	240	" " 488	477	" " 619	633	" " 768	758a	" " 448
97	" " 242	243	" " 525	479	1937 " 811	634	" " 642	758b	" " 34
100	" " 331	245	" " 512	481	1938 " 695	639	" " 194	763	1939 " 437
103	1937 " 794	247	" PC 73	484	" " 176	640	" " 188	767	" " 820
103	1938 " 305	253	" " 71	486	" " 211	643	" " 223	768	" " 442
110	1937 " 805	256	" L 44	490	" " 195	646	" " 161	772	" " 485
112	1938 " 218	264	" " 602	492	" " 523	650	" " 444	775	" PC 183
119	" " 355	265	" " 850	494	" " 678	651	" " 434	777	" L 461
124	" " 347	267	" " 527	498	" " 582	653	" " 465	779	" " 789
126	" " 158	269	" " 435	500	1937 " 755	655	" " 445	781	" " 457
128	" " 232	272	" " 524	501	1938 " 625	658	" " 207	784	" " 800
131	1937 " 760	273	" " 95	505	" " 576	660	" " 193	786	" " 496
133	1938 " 510	278	" " 613	506	" " 180	662	" " 179	787
138		280	" " 49	508	" " 646	664	" " 766	788

PLR	A I R		PLR	A I R		PLR	A I R		PLR	A I R		PLR	A I R		PLR	A I R
789	1937	L	785	841	1938	L	819	909	1938	L	564	948	1938	L	675	1004	1938	L	198
791	1938	"	815	843	"	PC	12	912	"	"	609	951	"	"	641	1007	1937	"	905
793	"	"	459	848	"	L	558	913	"	"	620	954	"	"	686	1016	"	"	880
794	"	"	492	850	"	"	543	915	"	"	694	959	"	"	680	1021	"	PC	292
796	"	"	792	854	"	"	556	916	"	"	631	968	"	"	635	1025	1938	L	627
798	"	"	809	857	"	"	515	919	1939	"	14	972	"	"	604	1029	"	"	251
801	"	"	505	863	"	"	520	921	"	"	17	975	1939	"	18	1036	"	"	614
805	"	"	799	867	"	"	499	923	1938	"	839	976	"	"	9	1037	1937	"	565
806	"	"	534	870	"	"	634	927	"	"	585	980	"	"	38	1039	1938	"	80
818	"	"	514	872	"	"	629	934	1939	"	19	982	1938	"	260	1040	"	PC	219
815	"	"	526	876	"	PC	266	935	1938	"	618	984	"	"	72	1045	"	L	289
817	"	"	533	881	1937	L	795	937	"	"	562	986	"	"	81	1048	1937	"	859
819	"	"	559	883	1938	"	577	938	"	"	647	988	"	PC	181	1054	1938	"	795
821	"	"	551	886	"	"	638	940	"	"	671	990	1939	L	53	1057	1939	"	39
824	"	"	539	890	"	"	594	942	"	"	691	996	"	"	21	1059	"	"	58
829	"	PC	195	903	"	"	684	944	"	"	693	997	1938	"	241	1060	1938	"	325
833	"	L	497	905	"	"	581	946	"	"	677	1000	"	"	73	1064	"	"	349
837	"	PC	202	907	"	"	606

39 Criminal Law Journal = All India Reporter

CrLJ	A	I	R	CrLJ	A	I	R	CrLJ	A	I	R	CrLJ	A	I	R	CrLJ	A	I	R
1	1938	M	173	92	1937	N	274	207	1938	B	33	299	1938	L	19	413	1938	B	186
2	1937	P	603	100	"	P	633	211	1937	R	528	300	"	R	15	415	"	R	68
4	"	L	104	102	"	A	755	214	1938	B	50	302	"	P	60	416	"	M	213
7	"	S	242	103	"	P	534	217	1937	R	429	308	"	C	6	417	"	O	195
10	"	S	251	105	1938	N	52	219	1938	O	81	312	"	M	172	424	"	B	193
13	"	L	101	107	1937	S	308	221	"	P	24	314	"	P	83	425	"	S	66
14	"	R	370	109	"	N	341	222	"	"	28	321	"	"	55	426	"	L	150
16	"	L	689	113	"	A	768	227	"	A	11	323	"	M	477	427a	"	N	131
18	"	A	735	114	"	R	443	228	"	M	66	325	"	P	108	427b	"	"	325
22	"	M	809	116	1938	N	74	229	1937	R	535	328	"	M	248	428	"	P	308
23	"	L	717	117	1937	R	467	230	1938	M	35	330	"	O	88	435	"	Pesh	21
24	"	M	791	118	1938	N	45	233	"	A	16	332	"	P	52	438	"	C	205
25	"	R	385	119	1937	L	561	234	1937	Pesh	99	335a	"	L	135	439	"	L	216
27	1938	M	192	120	1938	N	39	236	1938	M	29	335b	"	M	396	440	"	B	197
28a	1937	R	391	122	1937	L	802	237	1937	L	867	337	1937	Pesh	88	441	"	A	209
28b	"	L	652	123	"	S	293	239	1938	S	1	338	1938	M	460	442	"	P	185
29	"	R	398	131	"	N	335	244	"	R	17	339	1937	Pesh	86	445	"	Pesh	9
31	"	C	578	133	"	M	825	245	"	C	17	341	1938	O	95	446	"	C	222
33	"	A	664	134	"	R	469	248	"	R	45	342	"	N	316	447	"	M	233
34	"	R	407	135	"	M	808	252	1937	O	710	344	"	M	393	448	"	Pesh	5
35	"	Pesh	92	136	"	P	640	254	1938	P	12	345	"	A	102	452	"	PC	130
38	"	A	714	137	"	R	466	255	1937	R	540	349	1936	N	160	458	"	N	334
47	"	R	439	139	"	M	792	258	"	C	556	352	1938	A	112	460	"	S	63
51	"	M	711	140	"	R	452	259	1938	"	15	353	"	P	99	462	"	"	67
53	"	B	454	141	"	L	793	261	"	M	129	357	"	C	144	465	"	M	315
54	"	M	822	142	"	Pesh	101	262	1937	L	746	368	"	P	145	466	"	O	38
55	1938	N	63	144	"	M	968	264	1938	M	128	360	"	A	120	470	"	R	105
57	1937	S	303	146	"	N	293	265	"	L	31	361	"	P	131	473	"	C	255
58	1938	N	106	147	"	M	975	266	"	M	130	363a	"	A	118	474	"	S	70
59a	1937	S	304	148	"	A	785	268	"	P	1	363b	"	P	133	475	"	L	292
59b	1938	N	37	149	"	M	951	274	"	R	42	364	"	A	91	477	"	S	72
61	1937	C	652	152	"	A	754	275	"	P	66	370	1937	N	122	478	"	R	112
62	1938	N	103	153	"	M	944	277a	"	M	74	371	"	O	321	479	"	C	295
65	"	"	76	154	1938	O	80	277b	1937	R	542	374	1938	P	165	481	"	R	92
66	1937	P	652	156	1937	P	662	278a	1938	P	39	378	"	O	99	483	"	C	274
68	1938	N	110	156	1938	O	56	278b	1937	R	434	379	"	P	105	484	"	R	88
70	1937	R	431	161	"	C	51	281a	1938	M	112	380	"	"	176	486	"	L	320
72	"	N	386	181	"	P	19	281b	"	P	49	381	1937	C	334	487	"	R	114
73	"	R	460	182	1937	O	756	284	"	B	87	382	1938	P	268	488	"	L	200
75	"	N	394	187	"	R	516	285	1937	R	544	334	"	"	153	488	"	"
78	"	P	646	190	"	C	691	286	1938	L	29	390	1937	M	755	490	"	R	109
79	"	R	401	193	"	R	504	287	"	R	25	395	1938	O	125	491	"	L	252
80	"	N	389	194	"	"	505	288	"	L	60	398	"	M	264	492	"	R	103
81	"	B	481	196	"	"	518	290	"	"	101	399	"	S	57	493	"	O	273
83	"	M	672	197	1938	B	48	292	"	C	22	401	"	Pesh	10	494	"	R	107
85	"	N	396	198	1937	R	512	293	"	L	121	403	"	R	62	495	"	B	225
86	"	L	844	200	"	"	513	294	"	S	9	405	"	N	318	499	"	R	104
88	"	B	480	203	1938	P	17	296	"	L	116	408	"	B	179	500	"	C	237
89	"	O	637	205	1937	R	536	297	"	"	122	410	"	L	176	502	"	L	260
91	"	R	474	206	1938	P	15	298	"	S	46	412	"	R	56	504	"	S	80

CrLJ	A I R	CrLJ	A I R	CrLJ	A I R	CrLJ	A I R	CrLJ	A I R
506	1938 L 269	604	1938 C 361	711	1937 M 713	811	1938 P 533	917	1938 N 394
507	" S 79	606a	" L 346	712	1938 " 847	815	" N 288	922	" M 654
508	" L 268	606b	" C 415	714	" L 496	816	" M 615	925	" A 513
509	" S 73	607	" R 138	715	" M 529	818	" N 328	927	" L 618
512	" L 262	609	" L 337	716	" " 551	827	" O 183	928	" B 430
515	" S 86	610	" P 440	718	" L 473	828	" M 742	929	" O 249
517	" P 376	614	" R 181	719a	" M 550	829	" N 406	930	" L 629
518	" S 88	618	" S 97	719b	" " 535	831	" O 195	932	" M 724
523	" P 211	621	" L 339	720	" A 386	835	" C 551	933	" B 427
524	" S 103	623	" R 193	721	" P 455	838	" N 444	935	" M 910
527	" P 238	624	" L 444	723	" C 479	839	" M 567	937	" O 263
529	" R 94	625	" C 364	725	" P 352	840	" A 449	938	" M 758
531a	" P 271	626	" R 180	730	" C 527	842	" C 545	944	" R 298
531b	" R 127	627	" Pesh 18	732	" P 366	844	" L 474	950	1939 P 24
534	" L 288	630a	" O 182	734	" L 514	847	" S 151	951	1938 M 833
535	" R 97	630b	" S 108	735	" M 541	849	" O 247	952	" P 432
537	" C 216	635	" P 290	736	" S 129	851	" L 634	953	" M 710
540	" R 159	642	" R 161	737	" Pesh 24	853a	" O 216	954	" N 529
541a	" " 160	646	" L 469	738	" A 395	853b	" L 569	956a	" M 820
541b	" C 220	647	" C 409	739	" C 525	854	" O 212	956b	" A 532
543	" R 158	651	" N 235	741	" Pesh 25	856	" L 631	958	" M 815
544	" " 96	653	" L 427	743	" R 247	858	" O 218	959	" A 538
545	" S 94	654	1937 C 601	744	" Pesh 33	861	" M 743	960	" L 625
548	" A 252	656	1938 S 127	747	" N 303	862	" O 199	962	" C 692
549	" P 243	658	" L 366	751	" C 475	864a	" M 686	963	1939 O 31
551	" L 251	659	" M 784	754	" R 245	864b	" L 477	964	1938 C 625
553	" A 253	660	" N 56	756	" L 534	865	" M 721	966	" S 192
554	" P 258	663	" R 232	761	" R 281	866	" B 352	967	" L 684
559	" A 227	667	" B 303	762	" L 529	867	" M 712	968	1939 P 28
561	" R 156	668	" S 116	763	" R 278	869	" " 667	969	1938 O 623
563	" P 229	674	" C 460	763	" R 278	870	" L 614	970	" L 691
565	" R 189	677	" A 358	765	" L 526	871	" M 723	971	" A 534
566	" S 100	681	" S 113	767	" R 242	872	" L 627	974	" O 638
569	" C 416	684a	" C 439	768	" P 358	875	" M 595	975	" R 295
570	" A 220	684b	" B 315	769	" L 556	878	" A 517	976	" S 190
571	" R 115	685	" M 536	771	" R 282	879	" M 659	978	" A 536
575	" B 282	686	" S 141	774	" P 543	881	" S 164	980a	1939 P 27
576	" R 198	687a	" M 392	775	" L 523	886	" M 714	980b	1938 M 998
578	" B 279	687b	" C 440	776	" R 257	887	" P 590	981	" N 433
580	" M 464	689	" R 219	778	" P 369	888	" L 576	982	" L 697
581	" R 177	691	" C 451	781	" L 543	889	" O 233	984	" M 879
584	" N 297	692	" R 220	784	" R 243	890	" S 171	985	" R 350
585	" M 490	695	" L 355	785	" P 518	894	" M 675	987	" M 832
587	" R 200	697	" R 228	789	" S 150	895	" N 445	988	" O 613
588	" M 482	698	" L 429	791a	" N 512	895	" M 591	991	" M 821
590	" L 425	700	" N 365	791b	" C 522	898	" M 591	992	" O 583
592	" R 194	701	" R 223	792	" B 338	901	" " 726	993	" M 656
595	" M 448	702	" L 345	795	" M 613	903	" B 419	996	" S 224
596	" C 258	704	" R 209	796	" P 403	905	" M 709	997	1939 P 35
599	" L 428	705	" M 537	805	" S 149	906	" " 653	1002	" O 16
600	" M 508	707a	" R 218	807	" N 465	907a	" " 640	1003	1938 M 705
601	" C 399	707b	" M 524	808	" A 440	907b	" L 594	1005	1939 O 35
603	" L 323	708	" R 229	810	" N 448	916	" M 715	1006	1938 M 806

173 Indian Cases = All India Reporter

IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R
1	1938 PC 80	33a	1937 L 720	64	1938 P 16	127	1938 A 3	153	1938 A 42
6	" P 43	33b	" M 675	65	" C 51	129	" P 37	155	" N 101
7	1937 N 411	36	1938 B 20	85	" N 142	130	" A 22	157	" A 6
10	1938 O 87	40	1937 S 306	87	" R 17	133	" P 8	160	1937 R 477
11	" Pesh 3	42	1938 M 98	90	1937 M 263	135	" R 42	165	" L 644
12	" P 39	44	" N 42	92	" R 540	136	" A 47	169	" M 660
13	" B 87	48	1937 R 437	94	1938 " 45	137	" P 11	175	" L 259
14	" M 129	50	1938 A 14	98	" N 14	138	1937 C 415	180	1938 A 17
15	" PC 67	51	1937 N 305	100	" S 6	140	1938 A 20	183	1937 O 452
19	" " 91	55	" O 521	103	" N 89	143	" M 59	185	" L 404
26	" M 130	57	" L 419	105	1937 L 746	144	1937 R 542	189	1938 P 55
27	1937 R 434	58	1938 Pesh 1	107	1938 P 1	145a	1938 M 128	192	1937 L 397
30	1938 L 31	60	1937 M 237	113	" B 23	145b	" N 185	194	" M 599
31	" M 52	62	" S 317	123	" P 41	147	1937 M 438	198	" L 360
		63	" C 556	124	1937 N 132

IO	A	I	R	IO	A	I	R	IO	A	I	R	IO	A	I	R	IO	A	I	R
205	1938	B	44	356	1938	A	62	514	1937	L	668	671	1937	M	785	812	1938	C	171
211	"	L	29	357	1937	L	369	515	"	M	810	672	"	Pesh	88	813	1937	Pesh	81
212	"	R	25	358	"	O	371	516	"	C	730	673	1938	B	155	814	"	L	563
213a	"	M	112	360	1938	A	64	518	"	L	862	676	"	A	1	816	1938	C	166
213b	1937	R	544	361	1937	L	382	519	"	M	791	678	"	S	48	817	"	B	97
214	"	L	639	362	"	R	359	520	"	L	408	679	1937	L	601	828	"	C	1
215	"	N	391	363	"	M	280	522	1938	B	93	680	"	N	281	833	"	P	153
218	"	L	393	365	"	L	380	524	1937	M	945	684	"	L	435	838	"	A	91
219	"	M	112	367	1938	B	63	527	"	L	671	686	"	C	577	844	1937	N	122
220	"	L	386	369	"	N	156	529	"	"	636	687	"	L	698	845	"	L	542
222	1938	S	16	373	"	B	68	530	1938	C	12	689	"	M	961	846	"	C	718
223	"	M	74	375	1937	M	555	531	1937	L	441	690	"	R	459	848	"	L	319
224	1937	R	490	376	1938	B	84	533	"	M	789	693	"	M	878	849	1938	P	76
228	1938	P	10	377	1937	R	363	534	"	"	806	694	"	L	121	853	"	A	69
229	1937	C	422	379	"	L	387	535	1938	S	18	698	"	Pesh	86	857	"	C	34
230	1938	P	49	380	1938	S	37	537	1937	M	846	699	"	M	731	860	"	P	263
233	1937	M	681	381	1937	M	327	539	"	L	703	704	"	Pesh	82	862	1937	S	312
237	1938	P	88	385	1938	A	112	540	"	C	587	705	"	M	823	865	1938	O	107
238	1937	R	455	386	"	O	95	545	1938	B	110	707	"	C	485	868	"	A	66
242	1938	P	40	386	1937	M	362	545	1937	N	268	710	"	L	322	871	"	N	182
244	1937	M	769	389	"	L	383	548	"	M	811	711	"	C	375	873	1937	R	531
249	1938	P	66	391	"	C	478	551	"	C	545	712	"	L	657	875	1938	A	59
251	1937	M	785	394	1938	M	393	553	1938	B	51	714	1938	B	77	877	"	N	281
256	1938	P	42	395	"	B	65	561	"	"	90	718	"	N	49	880	"	O	106
257	1937	N	413	398	1937	C	377	563	"	N	193	719	1937	Pesh	83	881	1937	C	321
259	1938	P	7	401	1938	S	45	565	1937	R	421	721	1938	P	94	884	1938	A	55
260	"	O	77	403	"	B	69	572	1938	N	87	722	1937	M	813	885	1937	C	331
263	1937	C	765	404	1937	C	417	574	"	S	81	724	1938	P	81	887	"	L	409
266	1938	N	144	406	"	R	357	576	1937	L	298	727	"	B	91	888	"	C	327
267	"	O	94	407	1938	S	11	578	"	C	636	729	"	A	98	891	1938	B	132
269	"	L	60	412	"	PC	98	579	"	M	721	731	1937	L	288	894	1937	L	204
271	"	O	90	417	"	M	396	584	"	C	581	732	1938	A	118	895	1938	A	56
272	1937	N	416	418	"	P	60	586	"	M	819	733	1937	L	495	896	1937	O	333
273	"	R	365	424	"	M	402	589	"	L	194	734	1938	A	120	897	1938	A	52
275	"	C	727	425	"	A	74	590	"	C	669	736	"	PC	121	898a	"	P	287
277	"	L	353	427	1937	O	515	591	1938	S	24	738	"	P	145	898b	"	C	20
284	1938	S	36	428	1938	A	89	598	1937	C	631	740	1937	L	464	899	"	N	131
285	1937	M	667	429	1937	C	423	599	1938	P	71	742	1938	P	99	900	1937	C	324
289	1938	O	91	430	1938	B	86	601	1937	L	752	746	1937	N	326	903	"	L	321
292	"	P	44	431	1937	C	381	602	"	C	695	747	1938	P	131	904	1938	P	299
296	"	N	54	432	1938	P	83	604	"	R	408	748	1937	L	680	906	1937	C	336
299	"	R	15	439	1937	O	343	608	"	M	786	750	1938	P	133	909	"	R	400
300	1937	L	368	443	"	R	360	609	1938	P	95	751a	"	"	176	910	1938	B	146
302	"	R	472	444	"	L	389	610	"	O	97	751b	"	B	96	912	1937	L	506
303	1938	O	86	448	1938	M	460	612	"	PC	110	753	1937	L	335	913	1938	A	76
306	1937	"	516	450	"	"	477	615	"	P	79	756	1938	P	105	914	1937	L	289
306	1938	L	121	452a	1937	R	399	616	"	O	98	758	1937	L	570	915	"	C	334
307	1937	M	303	452b	"	M	94	617	1937	R	463	769	1938	P	165	916	1938	A	44
311	"	C	654	453	"	O	313	620	1938	N	316	763	"	PC	118	918	1937	L	618
313	1938	M	70	455	1938	M	248	622	1937	C	645	766	1937	L	410	919	1938	B	89
315	"	L	101	457	"	S	20	625	1938	PC	113	768	"	M	976	920	"	A	119
317	"	M	172	461	"	A	78	631	"	O	101	769	"	R	494	921	1937	C	740
318	"	C	22	463	"	N	13	633	1937	C	565	772	1938	PC	123	922	1938	A	80
319	1937	M	586	464	1937	R	508	634	1936	N	160	779	1937	L	599	924	1937	M	967
321	1938	L	116	468	"	M	84	639	1938	A	29	781	1938	M	30	925	1938	A	126
322	"	S	46	475	1938	O	6	642	"	O	99	783	"	B	75	926	1937	R	473
324	"	L	19	479	"	P	69	643	"	P	97	785	"	C	144	927	1938	L	113
325	"	S	9	481	1937	C	746	644	"	A	63	786a	"	P	272	928	"	P	161
327	1937	L	480	482	1938	B	41	646	1937	Pesh	85	786b	"	S	33	930	"	S	88
329	1938	N	122	484	"	P	96	648	1938	O	100	790	1937	R	475	937	1937	L	324
333	1937	M	282	486	1937	C	319	650	1938	A	65	800	1938	N	202	941	1938	A	132
334	"	C	483	486	1938	P	68	651	"	B	85	801	"	B	111	942	1937	R	524
336	"	R	314	487	1937	L	685	652	"	A	86	802	1937	R	519	943	1938	N	186
337	1938	A	85	488	1938	B	10	653	1937	O	526	804	1938	B	83	945	1937	C	745
339	"	O	88	489	1938	P	52	654	1938	A	53	806	"	"	158	946	"	L	459
341	1937	O	658	497	1937	M	948	655	1937	M	918	807	1937	L	286	950	1938	N	148
344	1938	A	75	498	"	L	347	656	1938	A	102	808	1938	B	159	952	"	L	18
345	1937	R	378	499	1938	P	108	667	"	B	81	809	"	C	169	953	1937	"	755
347	"	M	274	502	"	B	1	669	"	A	49	810	1937	R	526	954	"	R	534

173 Indian Cases = All India Reporter (Concl'd.)

IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R
955	1938 M 246	971	1937 L 492	986	1938 M 834	993	1937 L 468	1001	1937 M 755
956	" O 112	977	" " 477	988	" P 65	996	" C 499	1006	" R 503
963	" B 125	980	1938 O 103	989	1937 M 858	998	1938 M 148	1007	" L 241
970	" M 384	983	" P 301	991	1938 O 110	1000	1937 L 494	1008	1938 M 264

174 Indian Cases = All India Reporter

IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R	IC	A I R
1	1938 PC 130	147	1938 P 104	304	1938 A 165	452	1938 P 323	597	1938 N 46
7	1937 N 402	148	" N 540	306	1937 L 257	454	" C 205	599	" M 102
12	" C 557	152	" P 137	307	1938 A 163	455	" P 170	603	" R 74
14	" L 764	154	1937 C 535	309	" M 320	459	" M 353	605	" A 39
17	1938 M 145	156	1938 P 383	310	1937 L 268	463	" P 162	607	" O 122
18	1937 R 507	157	" S 49	311	1938 A 147	465	" A 145	612	" C 78
19	" N 410	159	" P 330	314	1937 L 255	466	" B 186	615	" B 173
20	" M 763	161	" R 69	315	1938 A 115	469	1937 L 305	621	" N 24
21	" L 276	163	1937 C 542	316	" B 168	470	1938 A 136	627	" P 118
22	" M 764	166	" M 970	320	1937 L 263	474	" B 196	629	" Pesh 17
24	1938 B 37	168	1938 P 375	321	" N 143	475	" R 38	630	" P 321
28	1937 M 760	169	" R 49	325	1938 M 171	476	" A 129	632	" C 71
31	" C 656	172	" S 50	326	" A 146	478	" B 179	635	" P 185
33	" L 493	176	1937 L 258	327	1937 B 493	480	" M 142	638	" M 157
34	1938 P 130	177	" C 735	328	" L 116	481	" A 124	642	" P 164
35	1937 R 522	179	" N 314	330	1938 A 121	483	1937 C 523	643	" B 137
36	1938 C 125	181	" M 849	332	1937 L 270	485	" L 277	651	" A 182
39	1937 R 525	184	" C 547	334	1938 S 59	488	1938 C 148	657	" C 74
40	1938 P 125	186	1938 R 43	338	" R 56	490	" R 53	658	" B 207
42	1937 N 397	188	" B 115	340	1937 C 753	491	" M 352	659	" A 153
44	1938 M 276	193	" P 92	342	1938 R 59	492	" B 197	663	" R 23
47	" PC 136	195	1937 M 895	344	" Pesh 9	493	" M 357	665	1937 M 840
50	" A 106	197	1938 P 324	345	1937 C 717	497	" S 63	668	" L 297
51	" C 23	199	1937 M 862	347	" L 280	499	" A 151	669	1938 M 253
53	" A 130	200	1938 P 140	351	" N 270	501	1937 C 487	671	" A 195
54	1937 L 310	201	" N 1	355	1933 P 75	503	1938 R 21	673	1937 C 551
55	1938 A 113	207	" P 113	356	1937 L 295	505	" A 158	678	1938 Pesh 18
58	" C 10	211	" N 134	358	1938 P 127	510	" N 334	681	" M 456
60	" A 108	218	" P 335	361	" B 161	511	" C 150	682	1937 L 273
61	1937 N 226	220	1937 C 532	367	" P 116	513	" " 195	685	1938 S 70
62	1938 A 82	223	1938 R 40	369	" O 125	520	" B 198	687	1937 L 292
65	1937 L 316	226	1937 L 665	372	" P 134	521	" S 66	690	" " 445
66	1938 A 128	229	1938 M 180	374	" N 180	522	1937 C 738	691	" R 537
67	" B 148	233	" Pesh 14	376	" M 317	523	1938 N 325	692	" L 313
73	" A 109	234	1937 O 705	378	" O 119	524	" P 308	694	1938 S 67
75	" B 134	239	" L 818	382a	" P 90	531	" Pesh 21	697	1937 L 323
78	" A 57	240	" R 523	382b	1937 N 299	534	" B 199	698	" C 703
80	1937 O 748	241	1938 A 157	385	1938 P 136	540	1937 C 490	700	" L 455
82	1938 A 100	243	" N 191	386	" N 318	542	1938 S 72	702	1938 A 221
84	" N 220	245	" A 167	388	" P 147	543	1937 L 285	708	1937 L 449
86	" A 134	247	1937 L 794	390	1937 R 543	545	1938 PC 159	710	1938 P 73
88	1937 O 763	248	1938 M 213	391	1938 P 143	550	" O 139	712	1937 L 290
90	" N 316	249	" A 131	393	" C 222	551	" PC 165	714	1938 O 127
91	" C 603	250	" M 242	394	" O 135	556	" A 209	722	1937 L 437
106	1938 A 50	254	" A 116	397	" P 149	557	1937 L 266	725	1938 R 26
108	1937 O 619	256	" B 113	398	" N 249	558	1938 R 51	734	1937 L 315
113	1938 " 31	258	1937 L 642	400	" R 68	560	" S 73	736	1938 O 162
116	" B 121	260	1938 R 55	401	1937 N 354	564	" PC 152	738	" A 170
120	1937 L 317	261	1937 L 809	418	1938 P 57	571	1937 L 306	750	1937 L 308
121	" R 506	262	1938 M 1	420	" L 176	572	1938 S 76	751	" " 480
122	" O 559	265	1937 L 758	421	" R 67	574	1937 L 490	752	1938 P 362
125	" M 644	267	" N 310	422	" L 216	576	1938 C 191	756	" O 43
126	" L 311	268	1938 R 68	423	" M 360	577	" M 377	761	1937 L 346
127	1938 M 233	270	" M 117	427	" B 171	580	" P 159	762	1938 N 80
130	" P 326	276	" " 313	428	" M 349	582	1937 N 334	766	" O 154
134	1937 C 492	277	" L 234	431	" L 150	583	1938 P 124	769	" P 120
136	" L 284	283	" P 174	433	" A 144	584	1937 C 671	773	" B 231
137	1938 Pesh 10	285	1937 L 125	434	" M 342	585	1938 P 139	776	" M 315
139	1937 L 401	287	1938 P 91	439	" A 141	587	" M 262	779	" P 180
140	1938 S 54	288	" PC 139	442	" R 62	588	" P 141	780	" B 225
142	1937 L 714	292	" A 188	445	" A 110	589	" C 162	784	" M 226
143	" R 471	295	" Pesh 12	447	" P 319	591	" B 195	785	" O 38
144	1938 P 378	298	" A 150	448	" A 135	592	" P 129	789	" L 320
145	" S 57	299	1937 L 272	449	" Pesh 5	593	" B 182	789	" L 320

174 Indian Cases = All India Reporter (Concl'd.)

53

IO	AIR		IC	AIR		IO	AIR		IC	AIR		IO	AIR		IC	AIR
790	1938	C	172	843	1938	O	152	887	1937	C	649	932	1937	L	785	964	1937	R	521
794	"	R	76	845	"	C	273	890	1938	A	197	933	"	"	784	965	"	L	772
799	"	M	146	846	1937	L	609	891	"	N	183	934	1938	M	256	970	"	R	497
801	1937	L	849	847	"	"	580	892	"	A	198	935	1937	L	760	972	1938	C	254
803	1938	C	295	849a	1938	"	252	893	1937	L	761	936	"	C	570	973	"	L	268
804	"	L	292	849b	"	N	7	895	1938	N	162	939	"	L	483	974	"	C	237
806	1937	M	861	855	"	P	177	897	"	A	191	940	1938	O	137	977	"	PC	169
808	1938	C	274	857	1937	L	568	898	1937	L	615	942	1937	L	578	983	"	M	241
809	"	B	188	860	1938	R	103	900	1938	A	206	944	1938	B	215	984	"	P	211
815	"	Pesh	15	861	"	A	220	901	"	O	171	945	1937	L	566	985	"	B	214
817	"	C	241	862	1937	L	592	905	"	B	241	947	1938	R	92	986	"	A	199
820	"	B	206	863	1938	R	11	914	"	A	208	949	"	L	260	989	"	L	262
821	1937	L	350	867	"	PC	183	915	1937	R	499	950	"	C	294	991a	1937	N	195
823	1938	C	255	868	"	"	181	920	1938	S	79	951	"	M	218	991b	1938	M	67
824	"	R	105	870	"	"	184	921a	"	A	212	952	"	R	114	992	"	L	293
827	1937	L	581	878a	"	C	235	921b	1937	L	332	953	1937	L	782	993a	1937	"	564
834	1938	P	179	878b	1937	L	304	925	1938	A	215	954	1938	B	212	993b	1938	O	175
835	"	S	80	879	1938	C	240	926	1937	L	781	956	1937	L	766	1001	1938	P	196
837	1937	L	312	880	"	"	176	928	1938	M	77	958	1938	R	83	1004	"	B	223
838	1938	M	224	891	"	L	200	929	1937	L	769	960	"	M	252	1005	"	P	189
839	"	R	109	892	"	A	201	930	"	"	565	961	"	L	269	1006	1937	C	454
841	"	M	321	885	"	R	107	931	1938	R	104	962	"	N	203	1007	1938	P	204
842	"	R	112	886	"	A	193

175 Indian Cases = All India Reporter

IO	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR
1	1938	PC 175	91	1938	P 181	176	1938	P 271	291	1938	B 234	416	1938	M 464
7	1937	L 558	92	1937	L 805	177	"	C 187	296	1937	L 549	417	"	" 482
9	1938	S 88	93	1938	B 210	178	"	PC 143	297	1938	A 232	418	"	R 115
15a	1937	L 871	96	"	L 288	188	"	C 18	300	"	P 258	422	"	M 490
15b	"	" 791	97	1937	" 900	190	"	B 228	305	1937	M 864	424	1937	L 940
16	1938	" 96	99	1938	S 94	193	"	C 220	306	1938	P 225	426	1938	M 111
17	1937	" 812	103	1937	R 470	194	"	P 199	309	"	M 214	427	"	B 253
18	"	R 427	104	1938	B 217	196	"	C 298	310	"	A 254	430	"	N 216
20	1938	A 213	105	"	R 86	200	"	B 238	312	1937	L 778	434	"	E 250
21	"	L 301	106	"	L 128	202	"	P 220	313	1938	A 304	437	1937	M 801
22	"	M 176	107	"	N 210	204	"	C 193	314	"	L 71	440	1938	L 30
23	1937	L 777	109	"	L 43	206	"	R 149	315	"	C 234	441	"	M 212
24	1938	M 75	110	"	P 238	208	"	M 232	316	"	P 396	442	"	R 181
26	1937	L 915	112	"	B 224	209	"	C 304	318	1937	L 797	446	"	C 422
27	1938	S 86	113	"	C 225	214	"	S 82	319	"	" 416	447	1937	L 433
29	"	L 248	116	"	S 100	218	"	P 394	320	"	" 500	449	1938	PC 198
32	"	O 140	120	"	P 216	220	"	M 263	324	1938	S 97	454	"	" 202
39	1937	L 790	124	"	R 159	221	"	B 209	327	"	PC 191	457	"	" 223
40	1938	N 239	125	1937	M 960	222	"	R 127	332	"	" 189	459	"	" 195
42	"	L 295	126	1938	R 160	225	"	C 163	334	1937	L 937	461	"	S 127
43	"	B 222	127	"	C 192	227	"	A 293	335	1938	P 229	463	"	P 236
44	1937	L 780	128	"	" 180	231	1937	M 797	337	"	N 18	465	"	R 177
45	1938	P 188	130	"	A 227	233	1938	A 252	342	"	P 215	468	"	P 231
46	1937	L 303	133	"	R 97	234	"	N 297	343	"	M 32	470	"	M 435
47	1938	P 195	136	"	A 210	235	"	A 253	345	"	R 156	473	"	P 194
48	"	R 96	138	1937	L 428	236	1937	M 964	347	"	P 150	474	"	M 189
49	"	P 376	140	1938	A 204	238	1938	A 290	350	"	R 198	475	"	P 391
50	"	O 156	142	"	S 106	241	"	" 297	352	"	B 279	476	"	N 119
56	"	L 294	144	"	C 216	246	1937	M 638	354	"	P 205	480	1937	L 658
57	"	S 103	147	1937	L 669	247	1938	C 206	357	"	R 200	482	1938	P 431
59	1937	L 402	149	1938	N 65	252	"	" 202	358	"	B 282	484	"	M 438
61	1938	P 379	153	1937	L 800	254	"	L 208	360	"	R 189	486	"	P 240
68	"	O 146	154	1938	M 211	255	"	R 90	361	"	B 257	488	"	R 194
68	"	P 377	155	"	L 251	256	"	P 212	382	1937	L 795	491	"	M 448
70	"	B 218	156	"	R 158	259	"	O 182	384	1938	N 253	492	"	L 64
73	1937	O 361	158	1937	M 962	260	"	L 138	385	1937	A 148	493	"	M 174
75	1938	P 202	159	"	N 302	261	"	C 302	394	"	L 942	494	"	N 68
76	1937	L 859	161	1938	O 184	263	"	A 242	397	1938	A 88	498	"	R 202
78	1938	P 880	163	1937	L 395	273	"	P 243	398	"	M 420	501	"	P 235
81	"	L 94	165	1938	P 222	275	"	R 130	400	"	L 16	502	"	M 508
82	1937	" 806	167	"	C 218	279	"	P 189	401	"	M 441	503	"	L 425
86	1938	P 192	169	"	O 169	283	1937	L 872	405	1937	L 425	505	"	P 209
87	"	L 299	172	"	C 297	284	1938	C 287	408	1938	R 204	507	1937	M 940
89	"	P 203	173	"	P 398	287	"	R 151	409	"	C 258	508	1938	B 288
90	1937	L 842	175	"	R 94	290	"	M 151	412	"	L 296	509	"	C 223

175 Indian Cases = All India Reporter (Concl'd.)

IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR
510	1937 L 814	567	1937 L 934	665	1938 A 321	766	1938 M 5	869	1937 R 538
512	1938 R 180	568	" M 953	684	" S 124	767	" " 41	870	" L 839
513	1937 M 848	572	" L 649	686	" L 14	769	" PC 219	872	" C 601
514	1938 C 361	575	1938 M 178	689	" " 33	772	" " 216	875	1938 A 276
515	" R 138	577	1937 L 798	691	" N 398	775	" " 210	889	" M 68
517	" L 323	578	1938 C 308	692	1937 L 892	781	" A 356	890	1937 L 938
518	" B 284	586	" A 308	693	1938 N 195	783	" P 278	891	1938 B 301
520	" L 346	588	" L 99	696	" P 234	786	" R 1	892	1937 C 667
521	" C 416	590	" A 256	697	" C 276	795	" N 365	894	" L 751
522	" L 428	593	" M 132	698	" P 288	797	" L 366	895	" C 407
523	" C 399	594	" A 345	699	" L 361	799a	" C 439	896	1938 M 784
525	" L 95	601	1937 L 738	704	" M 153	799b	" M 143	897	" N 173
526	" N 247	603	1938 A 314	705	1937 L 742	801	" L 123	899	" S 113
528	" B 281	605	1937 L 890	708	1938 O 165	804	" R 185	902	" A 316
529	" C 364	607	1938 A 263	712	" C 157	808	1937 L 849	903	" C 93
531	" P 440	610	" C 284	716	" P 290	811	1938 M 185	911	" N 458
535	1937 C 728	613	" A 302	722	" C 409	814	1937 L 733	912	" C 401
536	1939 N 4	615	" N 235	726	" R 35	818	1938 M 459	913	" M 69
537	1938 C 415	618	" A 229	729	1937 M 973	819	" L 35	915	" R 232
538	1937 L 801	620	" S 108	731	1938 C 281	823	1937 M 876	919	" P 289
540	1938 B 286	625	1937 M 894	732	" S 122	824	1938 L 1	920	" C 290
542	1937 L 710	627	" L 878	734	" L 93	827	" M 144	924	" P 237
543	1938 M 175	629	1938 P 228	735	" M 33	828	" L 49	925	1937 M 804
544	" L 427	630	" L 196	738	" " 209	831	" P 242	927	" L 767
545	" " 337	632	" P 263	739	1937 L 905	832	" L 86	929	" C 625
547	" R 193	634	1937 L 894	745	1938 C 275	834	" S 116	935	1938 N 56
548	" L 339	636	1938 P 280	746	1937 L 626	840	1937 L 931	938	" A 341
550	" R 84	637	1937 L 740	749	" M 872	843	1938 B 289	939	" B 295
552	" A 272	639	1938 R 161	751	" L 828	846	" L 117	943	" P 297
555	" L 444	644	" L 44	753	1938 N 376	846	" " 469	945	" L 369
556	" A 217	649	" N 221	755	1937 L 920	850	" " 96	1001	" B 315
558	" P 401	652	1937 L 753	759	" " 912	851	" M 96	1002	" M 539
561	" N 237	655	1938 P 270	760	1938 M 6	853	1937 L 757	1005	" L 246
563	" P 265	657	" PC 205	761	" N 411	854	1938 P 245	1007	" P 266
564	1937 L 792	662	" O 183	763	" M 239	866	" B 291
566	1938 P 293	664	1937 L 771	765	" B 303

176 Indian Cases = All India Reporter

IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR
1	1938 PC 228	108	1938 C 440	185	1938 M 535	288	1937 C 680	376	1938 A 377
2	" " 230	110	" A 358	186	" R 223	294	" L 884	380	" O 511
5	" " 225	114	" C 243	187	" B 304	300	1938 M 141	386	" A 382
9	1937 M 835	116	" L 429	191	" C 129	302	1937 L 924	391	" M 551
14	1938 Pesh 30	118	" A 266	199	" R 209	304	" C 593	393	" A 388
15	" PC 232	124	" L 345	200	1937 C 595	306	" L 863	395	" M 847
22	1937 L 897	126	" C 451	206	" L 926	309	1938 M 43	397	" A 386
26	1938 M 92	127	" M 537	209	1938 P 273	312	" Pesh 32	398	" B 316
30	1937 L 816	129	" P 281	212	" C 25	314	1937 L 916	401	" A 390
32	1938 Pesh 27	134	" R 87	217	" R 228	315	1938 N 152	402	" M 100
33	" N 233	135	" A 342	218	1937 M 843	319	" Pesh 38	404	" A 414
35	" P 479	138	" M 536	221	" C 643	320	" M 495	406	" Pesh 25
40	" M 392	139	" A 362	223	1938 Pesh 39	321	" " 19	408	" A 367
41	" C 97	140	" R 176	224	" R 218	325	" A 395	410	" L 514
48	" M 461	141	" A 305	225a	" L 496	326	1937 L 911	412	" A 412
49	" P 315	144	1937 M 713	225b	1937 M 842	327	1938 M 27	415	1937 N 322
54	1937 C 661	145	1938 B 311	226	1938 A 396	329	1937 L 919	418	" C 697
57	1938 N 30	149	" M 524	242	" R 81	330	" C 718	423	" M 852
65	1937 L 370	150	" R 220	245	" B 329	334	1938 A 374	429	" O 537
75	1938 P 467	152	" B 309	247	" M 47	336	1937 C 632	433	1938 PC 243
76	" B 298	155	1937 N 376	252	" L 479	340	1938 Pesh 31	436	" A 482
79	" N 321	158	1938 R 18	254	" B 320	341	1937 C 574	437	" C 182
81	" A 364	161	" B 318	255	" L 225	344	1938 M 115	441	" A 443
84	" M 73	163	" N 504	256	" M 550	346	1937 N 407	444	1937 M 714
85	" A 259	166	" C 236	257	" N 84	348	" C 528	445	1938 N 267
89	" L 355	167	" A 310	260	" P 455	352	" L 851	447	" Pesh 24
91	" A 285	171	1937 L 876	262	1937 L 786	359	" M 718	449	" O 111
98	" S 141	173	1938 M 81	266	1938 R 229	361	" C 732	451	" R 278
99	" A 353	178	1937 L 880	272a	" P 275	365	1938 S 129	453	" B 321
108	" R 219	182	1938 M 529	272b	" M 541	366	" R 141	456	" C 475
104	" C 460	183	1937 C 665	273	" L 473	369	" A 369	459	" L 807
107	" A 363				" P 337	374	" M 57

176 Indian Cases = All India Reporter (Concl'd.)

55

IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR
460	1938 R 245	596	1938 L 308	693	1938 N 399	784	1938 N 448	890	1938 PC 250
462	" P 358	597	" R 99	694	" R 257	785	" A 440	892	" P 388
464	" L 303	600	1937 M 717	695	" C 81	787	" P 403	894	1937 L 635
465	" N 303	601	1938 R 260	703	" R 243	797	" A 447	895	1938 M 502
469	" R 205	602	1937 C 686	704	" C 429	799	" R 216	896	" P 385
471	" Pesh 33	607	1938 " 521	705	" S 150	801	" L 55	898	" PC 266
474	1937 C 507	608	" R 258	706	" C 117	806	" M 799	902	" P 390
477	1938 M 13	609	" Pesh 36	709	" S 157	808	" N 288	903	" O 192
483	" A 391	611	" M 199	712	" C 320	809	" M 255	906	" PC 259
486	" Pesh 28	614	" R 261	713	" M 234	810	" C 351	909	" R 71
488	" A 416	616	" C 448	715	" P 369	811	" R 119	913	" C 48
490	" S 130	617	" M 236	719	" C 104	813	" L 69	916	1937 M 767
492	" A 418	619	" A 437	725	" P 543	815	" M 615	919	1938 L 10
497	" L 534	623	" N 442	726	" L 302	816	" C 352	920	1937 M 879
502	" A 431	625	" A 434	728	" N 338	817	" B 350	923	1938 R 65
503	" S 142	628	" M 78	731	" L 493	818	" R 113	925	" L 273
505	" A 426	631	" R 125	733	" M 202	820	" N 465	927	" C 194
508	" R 247	632	" M 283	736	" N 188	821	" M 388	928	" M 645
509	" A 423	634	" L 336	738	" M 206	823	" C 463	929	" R 108
512	" R 140	635	" M 154	740	" P 518	824	" L 322	930	" L 324
514	" A 375	638	" C 477	745	" C 524	825	" M 217	931	1937 M 897
515	1937 C 720	639	" M 133	746	" L 304	826	" S 153	936	" N 338
523	1938 A 429	642	" B 325	747	" M 25	830	" B 344	939	" M 826
525	" C 525	646	" M 55	749	" C 523	832	" C 186	943	1938 A 456
526	" R 207	648	" L 529	750	" M 53	839	" B 338	948	" O 195
528	1937 M 874	649	" M 225	751	" L 306	842	" C 278	952	" N 241
530	1938 P 352	651	" C 447	752	" R 288	846	" L 312	958	" O 190
535	" M 8	652	" M 177	753	" M 113	847	" C 75	960	" A 449
541	" P 368	654	" L 526	755	" N 512	849	" P 533	962	" B 341
542	" M 136	655	" P 532	756	" B 351	853	" N 328	964	" M 215
547	" A 446	657	" PC 270	757	" M 87	862	" P 558	966	" S 145
549	" S 132	668	" N 289	760	" B 278	863	" S 151	970	" B 345
558	" P 366	666	" L 556	761	" C 446	865	" R 280	972	" C 356
560	" C 479	667	" R 242	762	" L 275	866	" N 406	973	" M 590
562	" P 333	669	" L 523	763	" M 567	867	1937 M 957	974	" B 336
564	" M 85	670	" R 281	764	" L 80	870	1938 P 400	976	" M 161
566	" P 372	671	" C 188	765	" R 121	872	" M 280	979	" PC 238
569	" R 111	675	" N 254	767	" S 149	874	" A 451	983	1937 M 799
570	" P 359	677	" C 522	768	" M 613	875	" M 589	985	1938 N 444
572	" C 527	678	" L 543	769	" PC 252	876	" P 395	986	1937 M 869
574	" M 164	681	" C 336	771	" A 464	877	" M 463	986	1938 C 151
580	1937 C 741	682	" S 144	773	" PC 276	879a	" A 466	990	1937 M 922
584	1938 M 90	688	" R 282	774	" A 471	879b	" M 742	995	" " 816
586	" B 331	686	" N 413	777	1937 M 831	881	" PC 248	1003	" " 160
590	1937 M 709	688	" M 190	779	1938 L 21	883	" " 245	1006	1938 C 160
592	1938 " 124	691	" R 273	780	1937 M 865	886	" " 263	1006	" M 23

177 Indian Cases = All India Reporter

IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR
1	1938 PC 254	77	1938 O 188	140	1937 M 902	192	1938 C 562	263	1938 P 561
6	" N 385	80	" N 204	152	1938 P 574	193	" O 247	265	" R 224
29	" C 551	85	" A 481	154	" Pesh 48	195	" S 175	267	" A 502
32	" L 477	90	" O 199	155	" R 275	196	" O 227	270	" L 503
33	1937 M 915	91	" M 257	156	" P 421	198	" L 88	272	" P 429
36	" L 721	97	" L 474	157	" Pesh 46	200	" O 212	274	" N 409
48	" O 186	100	" O 210	158	1937 L 811	202	" S 169	278	" L 634
50	1937 M 833	101	" L 218	160	" B 370	204	" L 148	280	" S 164
52	1938 O 214	102	" M 602	162	" Pesh 40	205	" A 485	285	" Pesh 47
53	" C 366	103	" B 347	163	1937 M 787	211	" R 210	286	" B 392
57	1937 M 942	106	" C 459	165	1938 B 383	215	" A 477	288	" M 686
59	1938 O 225	110	" " 390	168	" R 124	217	" L 490	289	" C 341
60	" L 72	114	" A 479	169	" S 162	219	" A 473	290	" B 338
61	" O 204	116	" L 65	171	" C 545	222	" L 545	294	" C 318
63	" R 184	119	" M 604	173	" N 292	225	" M 513	295	" R 190
66	" A 461	123	" A 469	175	" C 442	234	" R 166	298	" L 631
69	" O 213	125	" R 287	177	1937 M 930	236	" M 785	300	" C 168
71	1937 M 965	126	" M 227	184	1938 C 452	248	" M 598	302	" B 377
73	1938 A 450	131	" O 224	185	" M 71	250	" O 218	305	" L 114
74	" O 216	138	" P 392	187	" L 569	253	" P 594	307	" C 257
75	" R 126	135	" L 195	188	" M 796	255	" C 557	308	" L 103
76	" A 467	136	" O 217	191	" O 260	260	" A 452	308

IO	AIR	IO	AIR	IO	AIR	IO	AIR	IO	AIR	IO	AIR
310	1938 M 738	440	1938 M 205	582	1938 R 154	710	1938 R 298	879	1938 L 598
311	" Pesh 50	442	" R 270	584	" M 654	713	1939 P 33	880	" O 358
312	" R 248	444	" B 352	586	" " 591	715	1933 C 573	881	" P 451
314	" M 743	445	" L 435	589	" B 419	717	" M 720	885	" O 692
315	" P 423	447	" B 353	592	1937 M 807	718	" O 238	886	" P 437
320	" L 272	448	" M 659	593	1938 B 372	727	" B 418	889	" N 464
321	1937 M 750	450	" A 511	598	" M 724	729	" O 321	890	1939 P 73
326	1938 P 461	452	" L 452	599	" R 227	731	" R 294	891	1938 R 319
327	" C 507	453	" M 316	600	" M 640	732	" L 22	893	" C 161
331	" M 814	454	" A 515	601	" R 145	733	" O 226	894	" L 625
332	" L 509	456	" M 634	605a	" M 462	734	" B 408	896a	" M 820
334	" M 721	460	" A 517	605b	" N 394	736	" M 833	896b	1939 P 27
335	" " 712	461	" M 668	610	1939 P 75	737	" " 910	897	1938 B 424
336	" O 252	462	" A 513	611	1938 O 230	739	" N 198	898	" C 709
338	" P 591	464	" M 633	612	" L 12	743	" M 601	902	" N 422
339	" L 614	467	" B 357	614	" B 381	744	" S 192	904	" M 278
340	" O 575	468	" A 519	616	" O 263	745	" M 504	906	" Pesh 66
341	" L 173	469	" L 460	617	" L 594	746	" L 360	907	" S 182
344	" P 590	470	" B 354	626	" R 289	747	" M 753	911	" B 422
345	" N 286	473	" C 458	627	" M 489	754	" PC 23	913	" " 413
346	" S 171	474	" A 522	628	" R 321	756	" M 393	917	" Pesh 67
350	" P 612	475	" B 358	629	" M 318	758	" C 282	918	" L 563
351	" L 434	477	" C 541	630	" R 315	759	" M 683	919	" R 363
352	" O 325	479	" B 360	631	" M 707	760	" N 312	920	" O 606
354	" L 62	483	" L 451	632	" L 70	762	" M 399	923	" R 318
355	" C 430	484	" B 364	633	" M 333	763	" L 613	924	" M 710
362	" O 208	487	" L 126	634	" R 352	764	" C 466	925	" S 185
364	" R 214	489	" M 595	635	" L 85	766	" R 306	928	" L 568
366	" O 232	492	" R 168	636	" B 410	775	" L 309	929	" C 625
368	" Pesh 41	494	" M 675	639	" L 20	777	" C 478	931	" N 314
373	" A 491	496	" Pesh 52	640	" M 715	778	" L 548	934	" B 431
379	" R 276	498	" S 189	642	" L 618	780	" S 191	935	" O 610
381	" M 637	499	" B 367	643	" N 212	781	" L 616	938	" L 684
382	" R 251	501	" R 254	647	" B 430	783	" S 190	939	" C 623
385	" L 465	504	" S 176	648	" M 457	784	" L 575	940	" B 425
386	" O 233	505	" N 322	650	" N 230	785	1939 O 2	942	" R 317
388	" L 159	507	" L 576	652	" M 339	793	1938 Pesh 58	943	" C 638
389	" " 83	508	" O 538	653	" A 523	797	1939 P 22	945	" N 441
390	" M 667	511	" R 241	657	" B 386	798	1938 O 324	946	" R 295
391	" L 161	512	" M 232	659	" Pesh 54	799	1939 P 30	946	" O 517
392	" O 206	513	" L 447	663	" A 520	801	1938 L 584	952	" S 177
395	" L 524	514	" P 604	665	" B 427	802	1939 P 29	957	" M 879
396	" N 445	516	" N 296	668	" A 503	803	1938 R 345	958	" N 169
399	" L 431	517	" C 120	670	" O 449	806	" P 433	962	" O 234
401	" C 547	522	" P 435	672	" L 317	810	" " 427	962	" L '97
403	" L 461	524	" C 343	673	" N 265	812	" O 316	966	" L 97
406	" R 173	529	" P 305	674	" L 242	814	" M 815	969	" O 251
408	" L 219	530	" L 433	676	" P 306	815	" A 504	971	" N 309
409	" N 272	531	" N 293	678	" N 294	819	" N 529	974	1939 O 31
410	" L 458	533	" P 585	680	" L 350	821	" A 532	974	1938 L 691
411	" M 739	538	" N 287	681	" M 503	823	" M 713	975	1939 O 64
413	" L 627	539	" L 344	682	" P 603	824	" A 497	976	1938 R 356
416	" S 160	540	" C 248	684	" N 149	829	1939 P 18	977	1938 R 356
417	" C 437	543	" O 221	686	" L 311	830	1938 " 462	978	" A 536
420	" L 111	545	" M 726	688	" M 340	831	" N 324	978	" O 259
422a	" R 213	547	" R 170	689	1939 P 41	833	" O 543	979	1937 M 730
422b	" L 478	550	" O 201	690	1938 R 333	835	" L 608	980	1938 A 557
424	" " 527	554	" M 653	693	" M 322	836	" B 394	981	" L 253
425	" M 649	555	" Pesh 49	695	" A 552	847	" L 579	985	" A 568
427	" L 84	556	" O 229	697	1939 P 24	849	" A 546	986	" B 405
428	" M 599	558	" L 508	698	1938 N 251	851	" R 339	989	" P 457
430	" L 456	559	" O 249	700	" A 544	857	" A 529	992	" O 690
431	" M 711	560	" M 709	702	1939 P 21	860	" N 163	996	1939 P 28
432	" " 723	561a	" L 510	703	1938 L 82	866	" O 250	999	1938 C 669
434	" L 353	561b	" M 250	704	" A 538	867	" A 534	1000	" L 697
435	" R 250	564	" P 413	705	" Pesh 62	870	" L 611	1001	" O 535
436	" M 714	573	" R 236	706	" P 432	872	" Pesh 63	1003	" Pesh 68
437	" R 235	577	" S 187	707	" L 629	875	" A 539	1005	" O 448
439	" L 453	579	" M 221	709	1939 P 32	876	" C 271	1008

IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR
1	1938 A 593	173	1939 O 35	311	1938 B 423	471	1938 M 578	621	1939 O 40
10	" P 545	174	193 B 460	316	" L 609	472	" PC 281	624	1938 P 513
12	" A 577	176	" L 270	318	" A 591	475	" R 416	625	" M 525
20	" R 328	177	" A 564	319	" L 52	476	" PC 290	629	" P 505
23	" L 341	181	" B 448	322	" C 578	478	" M 904	632a	1939 O 36
25	" A 587	182	" Pesh 72	324	" P 497	479	" N 454	632b	1938 L 762
29	" N 492	183	" A 571	330	" B 463	481	" B 438	633	" P 524
30	" R 357	186	" C 261	331	" L 554	485	" N 459	637	" O 658
31	" Pesh 79	187	" A 586	333	" P 511	487	" P 548	649	" P 510
33	" P 444	189	" L 289	335	" O 529	490	" PC 295	644	" R 397
35	" L 169	191	" M 329	341	" M 900	495	" P 514	647	" M 317
40	" M 832	194	1939 P 43	344a	" C 256	499	" M 880	648	" S 209
41	" P 447	195	1938 L 459	344b	" Pesh 73	500	" B 461	652	" R 439
46	" R 324	196	1939 P 156	348	1939 O 33	502	" P 538	653	" S 220
49	" L 267	197	1938 L 511	351	1938 M 509	503	" M 864	656	" N 451
50	" N 266	198	1939 P 47	354	" P 575	504	" L 577	658	1939 O 60
52	" C 583	200	1938 R 293	355	" M 897	505	1939 P 96	659	1938 PC 284
53	" L 259	201	1939 P 45	357	1939 P 168	507	1938 L 706	665	1939 O 38
54	" N 433	202	1938 L 326	359	1938 C 587	508	" R 400	667	1938 M 531
56	" C 613	204	" C 550	362	1939 P 167	509	" M 940	668	" A 606
58	" L 182	205	" M 757	363	1938 C 327	510	" L 81	671	" C 177
59	" M 821	207	" N 275	372	" P 507	511	" M 520	674	" R 392
60	" L 179	208	" M 533	373	" B 449	512	" N 176	677	" L 4
62	" C 533	210	" L 561	376	" P 550	514	" M 491	679	" M 922
64	" L 615	212	" M 771	381	" S 217	515	" L 539	680	" R 359
66	" A 542	215	" N 461	383	" P 484	519	" M 730	682	" B 489
67	" M 656	218	" S 213	386	1939 PC 8	520	" S 202	683	" A 641
70	" A 561	220	" M 889	389	" O 42	523	" M 924	690	" S 198
74	" L 166	224	" L 349	390	1938 L 585	524	" L 624	694	" A 625
75	" A 555	226	" S 193	395	" B 458	525	" M 553	700	" R 369
78	" B 447	232	" R 303	397	" L 620	527	" S 223	704	" A 623
79	" A 540	235	" L 204	398	" R 423	529	" C 402	706	" B 481
81	" L 180	238	" M 560	401	" B 443	532	" M 878	709	" A 635
83	" R 264	240	" L 226	404	" L 194	533	" B 499	711	" N 485
89	" A 548	242	" O 250	405	" C 704	534	" M 483	713	" A 632
93	" L 152	243	" M 774	406	" PC 277	535	" N 480	716	" B 469
95	1939 O 16	248	" O 261	409	" C 701	536	" C 721	717	" M 501
96	1938 M 905	249	" R 349	410	" N 475	538	" R 364	718	" C 211
97	" N 481	250	1939 O 1	412	" C 713	540	" C 113	722	1939 O 37
99	" C 581	252	" " 15	413	" R 441	544	" R 372	724	1938 L 749
101	" N 225	253	1938 C 766	414	" M 522	547	" L 177	725	1939 O 61
106	" O 594	255	" Pesh 80	415	" C 782	549	" R 414	727	1938 C 417
110	" N 320	256	1939 O 14	416	" M 381	551	" L 642	732	" L 719
111	" C 671	257	1938 C 734	419	" B 453	554	" O 641	734	" C 353
113	" R 301	259	" L 264	422	" C 781	562	" R 446	737	" M 898
115	" M 806	262	" O 503	423	" B 451	563	" M 426	739	" R 437
116	" B 464	266	" M 916	425	" PC 292	566	" R 396	740	" A 654
117	" M 998	268	" N 273	428	" M 651	567	" P 509	741	" L 646
118	" R 292	270	" L 457	431	" R 448	568	" N 502	742	" A 653
119	" S 218	271	" N 408	432	" C 615	571	" P 556	744	" C 772
121	" R 350	272	" L 217	434	" A 617	572	" L 731	747	" Pesh 83
123	" M 705	274	1939 P 161	436	" L 558	574	" P 502	748	" A 655
125	" L 254	275	1938 Pesh 77	437	" A 611	576	" C 697	749	" M 323
126a	" S 224	277	" P 573	438	" R 417	578	" A 619	750	" B 478
126b	" M 909	278	" L 430	441	" A 609	581	" N 528	753	" M 923
127	" Pesh 70	279	1939 P 90	443	" L 533	582	" P 527	754	" L 767
128	" L 574	285	1938 L 158	445	" R 384	583	" R 447	755	" N 466
130	1939 P 35	286	1929 P 157	446	" L 155	585	" A 574	759	" P 531
135	1938 M 449	287	1938 M 745	447	" R 415	588	" B 484	760	" L 685
141	1939 P 77	288	" L 368	448	" M 532	592	" R 394	761	" M 918
144	1937 R 413	289	" " 487	449	" A 601	594	" L 690	762	" P 487
150	1939 P 83	290	" M 646	453	" L 550	595	" M 293	772	" R 412
152	1938 C 445	292	" L 442	455	" A 615	597	" L 570	774	" B 510
153	" L 282	293	" N 434	456	" C 783	599	" B 506	776	" Pesh 81
157	" R 290	298	" R 331	458	" A 613	601	" L 486	778	" L 184
159	" M 887	301	" M 454	461	" N 495	602	" N 449	781	" M 390
162	" O 256	302	" L 571	462	" M 523	605	" L 747	783	" A 640
165	" R 322	305	" R 297	463	" B 442	607	" R 389	783	" M 433
167	" O 262	307	" B 459	465	" N 493	609	1939 O 10	784	" L 470
168	" L 485	309	" N 363	467	" M 507	612	1938 N 257	787	" R 360
169	" O 253	309	" A 621	468	" L 693	616	" M 893	789	" L 739
172	" C 638	309	" A 621	469	" S 215	619	" P 529	691

IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR	IC	AIR
793	1938 S 297	824	1938 M 497	880	1938 M 612	918	1938 R 420	977	1938 C 745
795	" L 641	825	" N 391	882	1939 O 48	920	" N 385	986	1939 O 65
797	" C 755	829	" L 766	838	1938 R 449	923	" O 758	985	1938 L 694
799	" L 507	830	" R 381	886	" L 76	924	" R 387	986	" A 619
800	" C 757	833	" C 471	890	" S 239	926	" B 471	988	" N 308
801	" S 206	837	" P 562	892	" C 646	934	" P 579	989	" R 477
803	1939 P 164	842	" C 699	894	" A 637	939	" L 673	990	" L 815
806	1938 L 752	844	" B 467	896	" R 453	941	" O 609	992	" C 702
807	" P 522	846	" C 689	897	1939 S 13	942	" R 454	994	1929 A 17
808	" M 809	848a	" L 692	899	1938 M 380	944	1939 M 53	995	1933 L 678
810	" C 318	848b	" C 768	900	" C 667	945	1933 P 610	997	1939 A 6
813	" P 537	849	" P 613	903	" M 576	946	" L 187	998	1938 C 767
814	" B 490	854	" B 492	906	1939 PC 1	947	" M 326	1000	1939 A 5
816a	" L 768	861	" C 89	911	1938 L 848	950	1939 O 17	1001	1938 C 750
816b	" B 470	865	" N 431	912	" P 478	971	1938 C 654	1003	1939 A 15
817	" R 404	867	" B 465	913	" C 740	974	" B 508	1005	1938 L 712
821	" L 502	869	" R 401	917	" M 965	976	1939 P 137	1008	" C 792
822	" R 367	873	" O 714

THE
ALL INDIA REPORTER
1938

Lahore High Court

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 1

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Harnam Singh and others —

Defendants — Appellants.

v.

Aziz and others — Plaintiffs —

Respondents.

First Appeals Nos. 246, 247 and 248 of 1936, Decided on 10th March 1937, from order of Addl. Dist. Judge, Ferozepore, D/. 18th July 1936.

 Limitation— Major reversioners existing at the time of alienation but omitting to challenge it within period of limitation — Suit to set it aside by other reversioners, minors at the time of alienation, is not barred — Suit is also not barred against reversioners born after alienation.

Where major reversioners existing at the time of alienation by a limited owner and thus competent to challenge alienation fail to do so within period of limitation, a suit by other reversioners, minors at the time of alienation to set aside alienation, is not barred. The suit is also not barred against a reversioner born after alienation. For, as the existence of a reversioner clothes an after-born reversioner with a right to sue, though an after-born reversioner cannot claim the benefit of S. 6, Lim. Act, in his own right, he cannot be deprived of the benefit of the extended period claimable by the reversioner in existence at the time of the alienation: A I R 1933 Lah 524, Doubtful; Case law discussed. [P 8 C 1]

Dr. Nand Lal — for Appellants.

Khurshaid Zaman — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — This judgment will dispose of Civil Appeals Nos. 246, 247 and 248 of 1936. Three alienations were effected by one Subhan: one in favour of Harnam Singh, Bhagwan Singh and Sham Singh on 19th June 1922, the second in favour of Gian Singh on 19th January 1926 and the third in favour of Jita Singh, of which the mutation was attested on 19th January 1923. On 2nd April 1935,
1938 L/1 & 2

13 descendants of Subhan instituted three different suits challenging those alienations on the usual grounds of want of consideration and of necessity. In all these cases the alienees raised a preliminary objection that the suits were time-barred on the ground that three of the plaintiffs, who existed at the time of the alienations, though minors, had lost their right on account of the major reversioners then in existence not having instituted any suit within time, and that the other plaintiffs who were not in existence then were even otherwise time-barred. The position regarding the ten plaintiffs who were not in existence at the time of the alienations was conceded by their counsel, and as the Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that the case of the other three plaintiffs was also barred, he dismissed the three suits. Against this order, all the thirteen plaintiffs appealed. The admission as regards the ten plaintiffs mentioned above was made before the Additional District Judge too. He however did not dismiss their appeals and holding that the suits of the other three plaintiffs were not barred, he accepted the appeals and remanded the suits to the trial Court for decision on the merits. From this order of the Additional District Judge, the alienees have preferred three separate appeals.

The Subordinate Judge based his decision on A I R 1933 Lah 524,¹ while the Additional District Judge relied on *32 P L R 831*² and A I R 1934 Lah 968.³ Before us the appellants have further referred to 41 Mad 659,⁴ 6 Lah 405⁵ and A I R 1927 Mad 216,⁶ while the respondents have in addition to the authorities relied on by the Additional District Judge cited 48 All 152,⁷ 26 P R 1911,⁸ A I R 1932 Lah 39⁹ and A I R 1933 Lah 866¹⁰ in support of their contention. On going through these authorities, I have come to the conclusion that the contention of the respondents is well founded. As stated above, the only authority relevant to the point at issue, which was relied on by the Subordinate Judge and was referred to before the Additional District Judge, is A I R 1933 Lah 524.¹ In that case a Division Bench of this Court observed :

1. Gajendar Singh v. Balwant Kaur, A I R 1933 Lah 524=149 I O 696.

2. Khushi Ram v. Nand Lal, A I R 1932 Lah 140=135 I O 601=32 P L R 831.

3. Hari Ram v. Sall, A I R 1934 Lah 968=154 I O 675.

A suit by a reversioner to challenge an alienation by a limited owner is a representative one and it follows that if there is at the date of the alienation a reversioner who is competent to challenge it, but fails to do so within the period of limitation, the result is binding on the whole body of reversioners, whether minors or otherwise.

For the first part of this proposition, the learned Judges relied on 38 Mad 406,¹¹ 41 Mad 659⁴ and A I R 1927 Mad 216,⁶ and for the second part of the proposition they again referred to 41 Mad 659⁴ and A I R 1927 Mad 216⁶ in addition to 6 Lah 405.⁵ So far as the representative nature of the suit by a reversioner is concerned, I am in respectful agreement with the principle enunciated in that judgment, but, with all respect, I consider that the corollary deduced from this principle on the basis of which it was remarked that if a reversioner competent to challenge an alienation fails to do so within the period of limitation, then the minor reversioners in existence at the time of the alienation are also barred is based on an erroneous conception of the law. None of the authorities relied on by the learned Judges in 4. Varamma v. Gopaladasayya, A I R 1919 Mad 911=46 I C 202=41 Mad 659=35 M L J 57 (F B).

5. Chiragh Din v. Abdullah, A I R 1925 Lah 654=90 I C 1022=6 Lah 405=26 P L R 695.

6. Neelakantamier v. Chinnammal, A I R 1927 Mad 216=99 I C 668=52 M L J 13.

7. Jawahir Singh v. Udai Parkash, A I R 1926 P O 16=93 I C 216=53 I A 36=48 All 152 (P O).

8. Sundar v. Salig Ram, (1911) 26 P R 1911=9 I C 300=34 P L R 1911=33 P W R 1911 (F B).

9. Wali Chand v. Punjab Singh, A I R 1932 Lah 39=132 I C 665.

10. Khushi Ram v. Nand Lal, A I R 1933 Lah 866=147 I C 899.

11. Venkata Narayana Pillai v. Subbammal, A I R 1915 P O 124=29 I C 298=42 I A 125=38 Mad 406 (P O).

support of this proposition is relevant to the point at issue. In 41 Mad 659⁴ the rule laid down is that if the existing reversioners by failing to sue within time become barred by limitation, reversioners thereafter born are equally barred. Even 6 Lah 405⁵ deals with an after-born reversioner, and thus these authorities were no safe guide for the determination of the question that awaited decision before the learned Judges. It is true that A I R 1927 Mad 216⁶ relates to the case of an infant, who was existing at the time of the alienation, but apart from the fact that it was a case under Hindu law the learned Judge who was responsible for that decision had taken his support from 41 Mad 659,⁴ which, as remarked above, proceeds on different facts.

On the other hand, the authorities relied on by the respondents are to the point and directly deal with the question now before us. In 48 All 152⁷ their Lordships of the Privy Council held that :

A suit brought by the younger son within three years of attaining majority to avoid the sale is not barred by limitation although the elder son attained his majority more than three years earlier and had taken no steps to question the alienation.

In A I R 1932 Lah 39⁹ Sir Alan Broadway J. in concurrence with Sir Shadi Lal C. J. observed :

While it is true that a suit by one reversioner is for the benefit of the entire body of reversioners, and while it may be that a decision in such a suit would bind the entire body, I do not think it can be said that the omission by the presumptive reversioner to bring a suit to challenge an alienation must be regarded as depriving the other reversioners of their right to attack the transaction In the present case, even if the plaintiff's father and elder brother had formally consented to the alienation, their consent would not deprive the plaintiff of his right, unless indeed it had been proved that the said consent had been given in good faith.

In A I R 1934 Lah 968³ a Division Bench of this Court remarked :

We think, however, that the correct view is that both the father and the son, who at the date of the adoption was in existence and a minor, have separate rights both derived from the common ancestor. The right of the father being barred does not bar the right of the son if he be a minor. The son will have the advantage under the Limitation Act of adding the period of his minority to the limitation period.

In that case too 6 Lah 405⁵ was relied on by the adverse party but was distinguished on the ground that it was no authority for the proposition then at issue. In 32 P L R 831² it was held :

That the nearest reversioner being a minor and the other nearer reversioners having precluded themselves from suing by their failure to take action within the statutory period and there being no evidence of their having given in good faith any express consent, the suit by the plaintiff was maintainable.

It may be noticed that Sir Alan Broadway J. was a party to this judgment as well as to A I R 1932 Lah 39⁹ and 6 Lah 405,⁵ and that would indicate that he fully realized the distinction that existed between the cases of after-born reversioners and reversioners in existence at the time of the alienation. In A I R 1933 Lah 866¹⁰ Tek Chand J. observed :

The property being ancestral, the plaintiff had an independent right to contest the alienation, and as he was a minor at the time when the cause of action arose, he is certainly entitled to extension of time under S. 6, the existence of the nearer reversioners (including his father) notwithstanding. If any authority for this simple and well-settled proposition is required, reference may be made to the recent decision of the Letters Patent Bench in A I R 1932 Lah 89.⁹

The basic principle of all these judgments was enunciated as far back as 1911 by a Full Bench of the Punjab Chief Court when in a case reported in 26 P R 1911⁸ it was observed that the plaintiffs' right to sue for possession was not derived from or through any other reversioner but was derived from the customary rule. The general trend of authority in this province at least being in favour of the respondents, I would hold that the suits of the three reversioners, who were in existence at the time of the alienations, were not time-barred. I may also point out that the suits of those reversioners, who were not in existence at the time of the alienations in question, were also well within time. The rule upon which my decision is based was enunciated in 13 Lah 520,¹² and has very recently been fully discussed and reaffirmed in Civil Appeal No. 498 of 1936.¹³ The relevant part of that judgment may be reproduced for facility of reference :

In determining the period of limitation available to an after-born son, he cannot be deprived of the privileges enjoyed by the person on whose account he derives his right to sue ; in other words, if the existence of a reversioner clothes an after-born reversioner with a right to sue, though an after-born reversioner cannot claim the benefit of S. 6, Lim. Act, in his own right, he cannot be deprived of the benefit of the extended period claimable by the reversioner in existence at the time of the alienation.

It is well-recognised that an erroneous admission on a question of law made by a counsel does not bind the party whom he represents, and as the appeals of all the thirteen plaintiffs were accepted by the Additional District Judge in spite of their counsel's admission, their cases will also technically be before the trial Court for disposal. It would be for that Court to determine how these cases will be affected by the inactivity of Subhan's sons. As I agree with the Additional District Judge on the point of limitation so far as the three plaintiffs are concerned, I would dismiss these appeals and affirm the order of the lower Appellate Court. In the circumstances of the case, I would leave the parties to bear their own costs before us.

Addison J. — I agree and now think that A I R 1933 Lah 524¹ goes too far. Nevertheless, I think the result is unfortunate. For example, in the present case there were in existence at the time of the alienation five sons of the alienor and three minor grandsons who have now increased to thirteen. The five sons took no step within limitation to get the alienation of their father set aside, although they were the persons immediately affected and still are the only persons entitled to possession on the death of their father under customary law, where there is no joint family and each ascendant excludes the right of his descendants to possession and where each person has his own individual right to succeed the last heir to the extent of his interest. So much so is this the case that there are numerous rulings of this Court to the effect that, if the sons had given their consent to their father's alienation, the grandsons would be estopped from suing. The situation in the present case is not very much different ; for, here five sons have lost their right to sue to set aside the alienation—a circumstance which will certainly have to be taken into account in deciding the case on the merits, as it may well be argued that this amounts to a consent of all the adult members of the family. Even if these cases succeed, the grandsons would not be entitled to possession in the lifetime of their fathers, as, under customary law, the father's right to possession debars the sons from possession in his lifetime. With these remarks I concur in dismissing these appeals, parties bearing their own costs in this Court.

12. Jowala Singh v. Sant Singh, A I R 1932 Lah 605 = 140 I O 375 = 13 Lah 520 = 89 P L R 808.

13. Govind v. Ram Lal, Reported in A I R 1937 Lah 420 = 89 P L R 670.

P.R./D.S.

Appeals dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 4

BHIDE J.

Firm Mitter Sen-Ganeshi Lal — Decree-holders — Petitioners.

v.

*Kalyan Rai — Judgment-debtor —
Respondent.*

Civil Revn. Petn. No. 891 of 1936 (formerly F. A. No. 196 of 1936), Decided on 3rd February 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Ambala, D/- 25th June 1936.

* (a) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 47—Order amending decree passed on separate application, but not in execution — Application does not fall under S. 47 and no appeal is competent from order — Amended decree though appealable, revision from order is entertainable.

Where the order amending a decree for a certain sum is not passed in execution proceedings but on a separate application under Ss. 151/152, the application does not fall under S. 47 and no appeal from the order is competent. But the mere fact that the order amending the decree is not itself appealable and the mere fact that appeal can be presented from the amended decree is no bar to the entertainment of a revision petition of the order in question, if it is passed without jurisdiction : A I R 1934 All 100, Rel. on.

[P 501]

* (b) Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 151 and 152 — Remedy by way of appeal from decree open — Inherent jurisdiction cannot be invoked — No appeal or delay in appeal, though appeal competent — Error in decree — Application under S. 151 is entertainable — Matter is one of discretion with Court, to be exercised with regard to circumstances — Decree of subordinate Court merging in decree sought to be amended — District Judge is competent to proceed under S. 152 to amend same.

A resort to inherent jurisdiction is not permissible where another remedy is open to the person preferring an application under S. 151. Thus where a remedy by way of appeal from a decree is clearly open to a person, he cannot invoke the inherent jurisdiction of the Court : A I R 1926 Bom 139, Rel. on.

[P 502]

But the mere fact that there is no appeal or that there is considerable delay in appealing is no bar to the District Judge entertaining an application to amend the decree of the subordinate Court under S. 151, if in fact there is an error in the decree. The District Judge can amend the decree even under S. 152, if the decree of the Subordinate Court has merged in the appellate decree. But this cannot be asked to be done as of right. The matter is one of discretion with the Court and the discretion has to be exercised after duly considering all the circumstances : A I R 1925 All 187 and A I R 1929 Rang 158, Rel. on; A I R 1929

Oudh 385; A I R 1932 Oudh 291; A I R 1923 Bom 414; A I R 1932 Cal 563 and (1892) A O 547, Ref.

[P 502; P 601]

Tek Chand — for Petitioners.

R. C. Soni — for Respondent.

Order. — This is an appeal from the order of the District Judge, Ambala, allowing an amendment of a decree passed by the Senior Subordinate Judge, Ambala. The order purports to have been passed under S. 151, Civil P. C., and the material facts leading to the order are briefly as follows : On 15th June 1921, a firm called Mitter Sen-Ganeshi Lal sued another firm named Manohar Lal-Uggar Sain, on the basis of a bahi account and obtained a decree for Rs. 3,258-13-3 against all the defendants on 28th July 1924. It appears that the decree was executed from time to time against the defendants including the present appellant Kalyan Rai. Kalyan Rai raised an objection in the course of the execution proceedings that he was not personally liable; but his objection was rejected and the order of executing Court was upheld in appeal to this Court : vide Civil Appeal No. 1199 of 1934 decided on 29th March 1935. Kalyan Rai had not appealed from the decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge but another defendant named Wazir Singh had appealed and it was held by the learned District Judge in his appeal that Wazir Singh was not personally liable, but only to the extent of his interest in the joint family property : vide order of the District Judge dated 8th March 1927.

On 17th December 1935, Kalyan Rai presented an application to the District Judge, Ambala, for amendment of the decree passed by the Senior Subordinate Judge on 28th July 1924 on the ground that the decree was not in accordance with the judgment. It was objected before the learned District Judge that as the decree of the Subordinate Judge merged in that of the District Court by reason of the appellate order dated 8th March 1927, and as the decree of the District Judge of the later date was in conformity with his judgment, no application for amendment of the decree was competent. The learned District Judge however held that he had inherent jurisdiction to amend the decree as Kalyan Rai was prevented from applying to the trial Court for amendment of its decree merely by reason of the 'fortuitous circumstance that another defendant, namely Wazir Singh had appealed from the decree and the decree had thus merged in the decree of the Appellate Court. On merits, he found that the judgment of the Senior Subordinate Judge dated 28th July 1924 showed that the decree was passed against the defendant firm as joint family concern and that the intention was to make the members of the family liable only to the extent of their share in the joint family property. He accordingly directed the decree to be amended by addition of a proviso that Kalyan Rai was liable only to the extent of his interest in the family property. From this decision the decree-holder firm has preferred the present appeal.

A preliminary objection is raised that no appeal is competent from the order in question as it was passed under S. 151, Civil P. C., and that even a revision is not competent as the appellant could have appealed from the amended decree according to S. 96, Civil P. C. The first contention, namely that no appeal is competent appears to be correct. The appeal purports to be filed under S. 47, Civil P. C., but the order in question was not passed in execution proceedings but on a separate application under Ss. 151/152, Civil P. C. The order amends the decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Ambala, and cannot in any sense be held to fall under S. 47, Civil P. C. The learned counsel for the decree-holder further prayed that the memorandum of appeal be treated as a petition for revision. As regards the contention of the learned counsel for the respondent that no revision lies as an appeal could have been preferred from the amended decree, the learned counsel urged that the order amending the decree was itself not appealable and that the mere fact that the appeal could have been presented from the amended decree was no bar to the entertainment of a petition for revision of the order in question as it was clearly passed without jurisdiction. In support of this contention, he relied on a Division Bench ruling of the Allahabad High Court reported in A I R 1934 All 100,¹ which appears to be in his favour. The amended decree was merely based upon the order challenged. As at present advised, I hold that a petition for revision is competent.

The next question for consideration is whether the order in question was passed without jurisdiction. The learned District Judge has held that he had inherent jurisdiction to amend the decree because Kalyan Rai was prevented by fortuitous circumstances from applying to the trial Judge for amendment of the decree. Kalyan Rai had however a clear remedy open to him by way of appeal in the first instance which he had not availed of. It has been noted above that Wazir Singh, another defendant, had appealed to the District Judge and had got the decree amended. It is true that under O. 41, R. 33, Civil P. C., it was open to the District Judge to amend the decree in respect of other defendants also, but even then Kalyan Rai did not appear and ask for such a relief and consequently this was not done.

It is an established proposition that resort to 'inherent' jurisdiction is not permissible where another remedy was open to the person preferring an application under S. 151, Civil P. C. In the present instance, a remedy by way of appeal was clearly open to Kalyan Rai and he cannot therefore in my opinion invoke the inherent jurisdiction of the Court: cf. A I R 1926 Bom 139.² In my opinion the learned District Judge had no jurisdiction under S. 151, Civil P. C., to amend the decree, as he did. It was urged however for the respondent that the learned District Judge could amend even the decree of a subordinate Court under S. 151, Civil P. C., and the mere fact that there was no appeal or that there was considerable delay was no bar to entertaining such an application, if in fact there was an error in the decree. In support of this contention, reference was made to 47 All 44,³ 4 Luck 562,⁴ 8 Luck 93,⁵ A I R 1923 Bom 414,⁶ 139 I C 528⁷ and (1892) A C 547.⁸

2. Virappa Govindappa v. Basappa Virabadrappa, A I R 1926 Bom 139=92 I C 354=27 Bom L R 1511.

3. Kishori Mohan v. Ohhanga Lal, A I R 1925 All 187=82 I C 1030=47 All 44.

4. Mohammad Raza v. Ram Saroop, A I R 1929 Oudh 385=118 I C 753=4 Luck 562=6 O W N 604 (F B).

5. Parsotam Dass v. Mohammad Hamid Mirza Beg, A I R 1932 Oudh 291=139 I C 367=8 Luck 93=9 O W N 633.

6. Jayavant Rao v. Narsing Sakharan, A I R 1928 Bom 414=80 I C 180.

7. K. O. Mukerjee v. Ainaddin, A I R 1932 Cal 563=139 I C 528=86 O W N 97.

8. H. W. Hatton v. Hugh Harris, (1892) A C 547=62 L J P C 24=1 R 1=67 L T 722.

1. Shujaatmand Khan v. Govind Behari, A I R 1934 All 100=147 I C 638.

After carefully considering these authorities I have come to the conclusion that there is force in this contention. It would appear from 47 All 44³ that the learned District Judge could amend the decree even under S. 152, as the decree of the Subordinate Judge had merged in the appellate decree. The same view receives support from 7 Rang 88.⁹ The learned District Judge was of opinion that he could not act under S. 152, Civil P. C., as the decree of the District Judge was in conformity with the appellate judgment. But this view does not appear to be correct.

Although however the District Judge had jurisdiction to amend the decree under S. 152, Civil P. C., it would appear from the authorities quoted above that the respondent could not ask this to be done as of right. The matter was one of discretion with the Court, and the discretion had to be exercised after duly considering all the circumstances. It has been urged for the petitioner that Kalyan Rai has been guilty of gross negligence and laches, and that the decree has been already executed against him personally more than once. It is further urged that the petitioner has now been deprived of other remedies by lapse of time. On the other hand, it has been urged for Kalyan Rai that he had been pursuing other remedies to get rid of the decree, that he challenged his personal liability from the outset and that the petitioner has gained an advantage to which he was never entitled. The material before me does not appear to be sufficient to arrive at a correct finding on these points, which are relevant for determining the question whether this is a fit case for exercising the discretion conferred on the Court in amending a decree under S. 152, Civil P. C. It seems therefore necessary to remand the case to the learned District Judge for re-decision of the petition with reference to S. 152, Civil P. C., after taking into consideration all the relevant facts bearing on the discretion to be exercised by the Court.

I accordingly set aside the order of the learned District Judge passed under S. 151, Civil P. C., and remand the case for re-decision under S. 152, Civil P. C., in the light of the above remarks. No order as to costs. Parties are directed to appear before the learned District Judge on 17th February 1937.

⁹ Chettyar Firm v. Ko Yin Gyi, A I R 1929 Rang 158=117 I O 585=7 Rang 88.

V.B.B./A.L.

Case remanded.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 6

TEK CHAND J.

Mt. Shanti Devi — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

Mani Singh and others, Plaintiffs and another, Defendant — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 713 of 1936, Decided on 15th December 1936, from decree of Dist. Judge, Jhelum, D/. 21st May 1936.

(a) Adverse Possession—Lessee attorning to S when crop was sown—Entry in khasra made some time later—Suit by another against S for possession—S claiming adverse possession—Possession of S commenced when crops were sown and not when khasra entry was made.

A person was in possession of land as a lessee and attorned to one S when rabi crop was sown. The entry of the attornment was however made in the khasra some time later. A person claiming to be entitled to the land brought a suit against S who contested the suit by claiming adverse possession. The suit was however within 12 years of the date of entry in the khasra but more than 12 years after the sowing of the rabi crop :

Held that the suit was barred and the possession of S through the lessee commenced when the rabi crop was actually sown, although the entry in the khasra was made later on. [P 8 O 1]

(b) Adverse Possession — Possession need not be to the knowledge of real owner—Possession which is overt and without attempt to conceal is sufficient.

In order to establish adverse possession, it is not necessary that the claimant must not only hold openly and as of right for the requisite period but he must also prove that he did so to the knowledge of the owner. It is sufficient that the possession of the trespasser should be overt and without any attempt at concealment so that the person against whom time is running ought, if he exercises due vigilance, to be aware of what is happening : A I R 1934 P C 23, Foll.; 10 I O 841 and A I R 1915 Lah 119, Rel. on.

[P 8 O 1, 2]

Ram Lal Anand I — for Appellant.

Ram Chand Manchanda —

for Respondents.

Judgment.—One Ishar Singh Khatri, governed by the Mitakshara School of Hindu Law, died childless on 10th February 1923. He left no widow, and his surviving relations were his sister, Mt. Shanti Devi, defendant-appellant, and certain collaterals in the fifth degree. The present suit was instituted on 8th October 1935 by some of his collaterals for possession of their pro rata share of Ishar Singh's land, which had been in possession of Mt. Shanti Devi for a long time. It was alleged in the plaint that according to the Mitakshara, as understood in the Northern Provinces, the sister of a childless Hindu was not in the line of heirs, before the enactment of Act 2 of 1929, and therefore the possession of Mt. Shanti Devi was unlawful. In reply the defendant pleaded inter alia that she had acquired an indefeasible title by adverse possession and that the plaintiffs' suit was barred by time. The trial Judge found against the defendant on this point and passed a decree in favour of the plaintiffs for their 7/20th share in the land. The defendant's appeal to the District Judge having been dismissed, she has preferred a second appeal in this Court.

It is no longer denied that Mt. Shanti Devi was not in the line of Ishar Singh's heirs. It is also admitted on behalf of the plaintiffs that they have never been in actual possession of the land since Ishar Singh's death. The facts found are that in the lifetime of Ishar Singh, the land was cultivated by his tenant Amir Chand, who continued in actual cultivating possession after his death till 1931. Ishar Singh had died on 10th February 1923, when the rabi crop was standing. The revenue papers throw no light as to who took the landlord's share of the produce for that harvest. The khasra girdawari for kharif 1923 however contains a note, dated 10th February 1923, stating that Amir Chand was holding as tenant under Mt. Shanti Devi. All the subsequent khasra girdawaris till 1931 show that he cultivated the land as her tenant and gave the landlord's share of the produce to her. It is admitted that Mt. Shanti Devi has been in possession from 1931 up to the date of the institution of this suit. On these facts the Courts below have found that adverse possession of Mt. Shanti Devi started on 2nd October 1923 (the date of the note in the khasra girdawari) and as the requisite 12 years' period expired on 1st October 1935, when the Civil Courts were closed for the Dusehra holidays in continuation of the September vacation, she had not acquired a title by prescription on 8th October 1935, when on the re-opening day of the Courts the plaintiffs instituted the present suit.

For the appellant it has been contended that the lower Courts have erred in interpreting the note in khasra girdawari as showing that Mt. Shanti Devi's possession started on the date on which the note was made. It really shows that Amir Chand, who had been in possession since Ishar Singh's lifetime, had attorned to her from the time when the rabi crop was sown in July or August, and as the suit was filed more than twelve years from that time she must be held to have acquired an indefeasible right by adverse possession. In reply, Mr. Manchanda has urged that the entry in the khasra girdawari was by itself no proof of the fact that Mt. Shanti Devi had actually taken the produce for kharif 1923. There is however no force in this contention, as Mani Singh, plaintiff 1, when examined as a witness, clearly stated that the produce of kharif 1923 had in fact been taken by Mt. Shanti Devi.

The sole question for determination therefore is whether in the circumstances the period of twelve years should be counted from 2nd October 1923, the date on which the entry was made in the khasra girdawari, or the time when the crop was actually sown, two or three months before. In considering this point, it must be borne in mind that Amir Chand had been in cultivating possession of the land since the lifetime of Ishar Singh and there is no proof that he acknowledged any one as his landlord for rabi 1923. Indeed, it seems probable that he appropriated the whole of the produce of that harvest to himself. It is admitted for the plaintiffs that they or any other collateral has never been in actual possession of the land and it is difficult to see how they could be presumed to have been in constructive possession of the land during this period. The learned District Judge seems to think that this conclusion follows from the rule that "possession follows title". But that rule is obviously inapplicable to the facts of the case. Here the land was in the physical possession of a third party, who had not acknowledged the collaterals as landlords and therefore his possession could not possibly be considered to be for, or under, them especially when at the next harvest he actually attorned to Mt. Shanti Devi and continued to cultivate under her till 1931. The learned District Judge has cited a number of rulings in support of his conclusion, but none of them appears to have any bearing on this case. In 29 Cal 518,¹ the land in dispute had been submerged and it was held that during the period of submersion, possession must be presumed to follow title, and therefore had remained with the real owner. 38 All 411² was a case in which certain land was the subject of a usufructuary mortgage and it was held that title by adverse possession could not be acquired against the mortgagor during the currency of the mortgage. In A I R 1928 Lah 306³, the land in question was banjar and not in actual possession of anyone. To such land the rule that "possession follows title" was of course rightly applied. The facts of the present case are entirely different and these cases are of no real assistance whatever. Amir Chand's possession from the date of the death of Ishar Singh till the harvesting of the rabi crop of 1923 cannot be said to have been on behalf of either the plaintiffs or the defendant.

In kharif 1923 however he definitely attorned to the defendant and having acknowledged her as the owner, began to give her the landlord's share of the produce. From that harvest she has been in continuous possession. The entry in the khasra girdawari was no doubt made on 2nd October 1923, but this does not indicate that the attornment took place on that date. Indeed, by acknowledging her as the landlord and paying her the landlord's share of the produce of that harvest in full, Amir Chand must be taken to have attorned to her from the date when the crop was sown. The actual date of attornment is no doubt now known, but whatever it might have been, it related back nunc pro tunc to the time of sowing the crop, the benefit of which was enjoyed by her. Mt. Shanti Devi's possession must therefore be held to have commenced in August 1923 at the latest. It is beyond question that since then she has been in possession nec vi, nec clam, nec precario, for more than twelve years, when the suit was brought on 8th October 1935. She must therefore be held to have acquired an indefeasible title by prescription. It seems to have been argued successfully in the Courts below that in order to establish adverse possession, it is necessary that the claimant must not only hold openly and as of right for the requisite period, but he must also prove that he did so to the knowledge of the owner. This however is not a correct view of the law. In 61 Cal 262⁴ it has been laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council that it is sufficient that the possession of the trespasser should be overt and without any attempt at concealment, so that the person against whom time is running ought, if he exercises due vigilance, to be aware of what is happening: see also to the same effect 67 P L R 1911⁵ and 48 P L R 1915.⁶

I hold that on the facts proved in the case, Mt. Shanti Devi has succeeded in establishing that she had been in adverse possession for more than twelve years at the date of the suit. I accept the appeal, set aside the judgments and decrees of both the Courts below, and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit with costs throughout.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

4. Secretary of State v. Debendra Lal, A I R 1934 P C 23=147 I C 545=61 I A 78=61 Cal 262 (P C).

5. Gokul Chand v. Rajji, (1911) 67 P L R 1911=10 I C 841.

6. Kishen Narain v. Puran Chand, A I R 1915 Lah 119=28 I C 298=48 P L R 1915.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 8

JAI LAL AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Lala Jinda Ram — Appellant.

v.

Model Town Society Ltd. — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 1248 of 1936, Decided on 11th February 1937, from decree of District Judge, Lahore, D/. 10th October 1936.

(a) Interpretation of Statutes—Conflict between—Rule having force of law and a bye-law—Rule is to be preferred.

Ordinarily a rule, which is as effective as a section of the Act, must be followed in preference to a bye-law if there is a conflict between the two.

[P 10 C 1]

(b) Co-operative Societies Act (1912), S. 8 (3) — Bye-laws under, bye-law 3 — Registered building society constructing house for member—Transaction is not loan.

Where a society registered under the Co-operative Societies Act constructs a house for its member under the bye-law framed under S. 8 (3), the transaction does not amount to a loan. [P 10 C 1]

Jiwan Lal Kapur — for Appellant.

Badri Das and Manohar Lal Sachdeva

— for Respondent.

Anant Ram Khosla for Govt. Advocate

— for the Crown.

1. Secretary of State v. Krishnamani Gupta, (1902) 29 Cal 518=29 I A 104=6 C W N 617=8 Sar 260 (P C).

2. Kunwar Sen v. Darbari Lal, A I R 1916 All 79=84 I C 171=88 All 411=14 A L J 488.

3. Nur Muhammad v. Qaim, A I R 1928 Lah 306=110 I C 857=29 P L R 881.

Jai Lal J.—This second appeal has been referred to a Division Bench by a Judge in Chambers in view of the important question of law involved. The appellant is Rai Sahib Jinda Ram, a member of the Model Town Society Limited, which has been registered under the Co-operative Societies Act, 2 of 1912. The Society undertook to construct a house for Rai Sahib Jinda Ram in the Model Town and it appears that after the house had been constructed, there was some dispute between the parties as to the amount claimable on account of it by the Society. This dispute was referred by the Committee of the Society to the Registrar of Co-operative Societies professing to act under R. 18 of the rules framed by the Local Government under S. 43, Co-operative Societies Act. Sub.s. (5) of S. 43, which empowers the Local Government to frame rules, also provides that the rules so framed shall have the same force as if they had been enacted in the Act. It appears however that when the Society was registered, a set of bye-laws was framed by it, which were accepted to be correct by the Registrar, and the Society was registered.

The power to frame bye-laws has been conferred on a Society under S. 8 (3) of the Act and it is provided that the Registrar may register a society if, on an examination of the bye-laws framed by the society which must be submitted with the application for registration, he is satisfied that the bye-laws are not opposed either to the Act or to the rules framed by the Local Government. S. 10 provides that the order of the Registrar registering a society is conclusive and cannot be questioned. The bye-laws, on the submission of which a society has been registered, can be amended by it under S. 11 of the Act, and the Registrar has been given certain powers with regard to the scrutiny of the amendment, but we are not concerned with this matter in the present appeal. It must however be mentioned that among the bye-laws framed by the Model Town Society Limited, when it was registered, there is a bye-law No. 37, which reads as follows :

Any dispute, concerning the business of the society between members or past members of the society or persons claiming through them, or between a member or past member or persons so claiming through them and the committee or any officer of the society, shall be referred to the Registrar as provided in the rules notified by Government under the Co-operative Societies Act. One arbitrator shall be nominated by each of the parties out of the Panel of Arbitrators and the 3rd Arbitrator shall be nominated by the Registrar and he shall be the Chairman of the Board. When any party to a dispute fails to nominate an Arbitrator from the Panel within 15 days of the notice to him, the Registrar shall nominate an Arbitrator in his place from the Panel.

Rule 18 framed by the Local Government under the powers conferred upon it by S. 43 (5), Co-operative Societies Act, runs as follows :

18. (a) Any dispute concerning the business of a co-operative society between members or past members of the society or persons claiming through them, or between a member or past member or persons so claiming and the committee or any officer shall be referred to the Registrar. Reference may be made by the committee or by the society by resolution in general meeting or by any party to the dispute, or if the dispute concerns a sum due from a member of the committee to the society by any member of the society; (b) the Registrar may either decide the dispute himself, or appoint an arbitrator, or refer the dispute to three arbitrators, of whom one shall be nominated by each of the parties and the third shall be nominated by the Registrar and shall act as Chairman.

On a reference being made to the Registrar by the Committee of the Society of the dispute between it and Rai Sahib Jinda Ram, the Registrar appointed one arbitrator to decide the dispute and that arbitrator gave an award which was not acceptable to Rai Sahib Jinda Ram who appealed to the Registrar, but having failed therein, instituted the suit, out of which this second appeal has arisen, for an injunction against the Society restraining it from executing the award. This suit has been dismissed by the Courts below. It is contended on behalf of the appellant that bye-law No 37 of the Model Town Society Limited, being the basis of the contract between the parties, the arbitration could have been only under that bye-law and not under R. 18. It would be observed from a comparison of R. 18 and bye-law No. 37 that there is a conflict between them as to the persons to whom reference has to be made by the Registrar, but there is no conflict between the two that the initial procedure by the parties in a dispute is to refer the matter to the Registrar. So far as the Committee of the Society therefore is concerned, the matter was rightly referred to the Registrar and it was the Registrar who had then to exercise his powers under the law either by deciding the matter himself or by referring it to one arbitrator or to three arbitrators. The difference between the bye-law and the rule is that whereas the bye-law merely provides for the reference to a dispute by the Registrar to three arbitrators, the rule empowers the Registrar to decide the matter himself or to refer it to one arbitrator or to three arbitrators.

I have already stated that R. 18 must be deemed to form part of the Act and the Registrar was under the circumstances bound to act in accordance therewith, and if he found a conflict between the bye-law and the rule, it was for him to decide which of the two he should follow. He preferred to follow the rule and it is impossible to hold that in doing so he acted illegally. There is no force in the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant that when there is a conflict between the rule and the bye-law, the bye-law should be preferred. No authority has been cited in support of this contention, and ordinarily the rule, which is as effective as a section of the Act, must be followed in preference to a bye-law if there is a conflict between the two. In any case, it is not possible to hold that the Registrar should have followed the bye-law and therefore that he acted illegally in acting under R. 18.

The next contention raised on behalf of the appellant is that the transaction between the parties to this suit was beyond the competence of the Model Town Society, Limited, by virtue of the bye-laws framed by it. It was contended that the transaction in fact was one of a loan by the Society to one of its members, and the objects of the Society as mentioned in bye-law No. 3 do not extend to the granting of loans to its members. Whether the Society is entitled to lend money to its members under its bye-laws is a matter on which we need express no opinion, because I am of opinion that the transaction in question does not amount to the granting of a loan by the Society to one of its members; on the other hand, it was the construction of a house by the Society for a member, and the subsequent dispute is about the recovery of the amount spent by the Society on the construction. Clause (c) of bye-law No. 3 clearly provides that one of the objects of the Society is to build residential houses and other buildings for private and public use and convenience of the members. The next objection of the appellant is that the reference to the Registrar was not properly made by the Committee. R. 18 provides that reference may be made to the Registrar by the Committee or by the Society by resolution in general meeting of its members or by any party to the dispute. A resolution in this case was passed by the Committee in which it is provided that the dispute with certain members, among whom the appellant is mentioned, should be referred to arbitration. That can have reference only to R. 18 under which the matter is referred to the Registrar inter alia for reference to arbitration. It was so understood by the Committee and also by the appellant himself, who does not appear to have raised any objection initially to the course adopted by the Committee or by the Registrar.

Finally the learned counsel for the appellant raised the question that the award of the arbitrator was manifestly unjust, because two engineers had been appointed by him who valued the building at a certain figure and the award is much above that figure. This is a matter which was not raised before the learned District Judge in appeal before him and cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. I would consequently dismiss this appeal, but in view of the fact that the Model Town Society Limited itself is responsible for framing a wrong bye-law, I would order that the parties should bear their own costs throughout.

Abdul Rashid J.—I agree.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 10

SKEMP J.

Manohar Lal and others—Defendants
—Appellants.

v.

Kishan Lal and others—Plaintiffs—
Respondents.

First Appeal No. 109 of 1936, Decided on 15th March 1937, from order of Senior Sub-Judge, Rohtak, D/. 30th April 1936.

* (a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 43, R. 1, Cl. (s)—Appointed receiver declining to act—Appointment of receiver in general may be contested in appeal.

Where a receiver is appointed but he refuses to act, an appeal on the point whether a receiver should or should not be appointed can be entertained : 73 P R 1902 and A I R 1923 Lah 48, Rel. on. [P 11 C 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 40, R. 1—Partition suit—Likelihood of debts being realized or settled by defendants without plaintiff's knowledge — Appointment of receiver is proper.

Where in a suit for partition of the moveable and immovable property, it is likely that debts may be realized by the defendants without the plaintiff's knowledge or settlement of these debts may be arrived at by the defendants in a manner prejudicial to the plaintiff, it is just and convenient to appoint a receiver during such suit. [P 12 C 1, 2]

D. N. Aggarwal — for Appellants.

Faqir Chand Mittal — for Respondents.

Judgment.—This is an appeal against an order appointing a receiver. A preliminary objection is taken that in this case an appeal does not lie. On 30th April 1936, the Senior Subordinate Judge of Rohtak, at the instance of the plaintiff, passed an order appointing Rai Bahadur Chaudhri Lal Chand for the management and control of all moveable property in dispute. He gave eight directions to the receiver, one of which was the furnishing of security. The opposite party appealed through Mr. D. N. Aggarwal, who on 5th May 1936 obtained an order from a Division Bench in the following terms: "Admitted S. B. The order appointing receiver is suspended meanwhile." The same day Mr. Aggarwal sent a telegram informing his clients:

"Congratulations. Order appointing receiver suspended. Inform receiver or Court if necessary."

While this was going on in Lahore, in Rohtak, Rai Bahadur Chaudhri Lal Chand had on 2nd May declined to act as receiver; and on 4th May the Court appointed Lala Lachhman Das, Advocate, Jhajjar, as a receiver on terms slightly modified. This order was passed in the absence of the parties who were to be informed. Lala Lachhman Das was also informed, but on 6th May the defendant's mukhtar put in an application saying that an appeal against the order appointing a receiver had been made, the appointment had been suspended and requesting that nothing further be done. Thereon on 7th May the Senior Subordinate Judge informed Lala Lachhman Das that the order had been suspended and that he was not to do anything. Accordingly Lala Lachhman Das has taken no steps and has not furnished security.

Now, it is clear that the order of the Division Bench and the telegram of Mr. Aggarwal refer to the order of 30th April. They had no knowledge of the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge of 4th May; but the telegram was interpreted very naturally as referring to the appointment of a receiver in general terms. The appeal was lodged against the order of 30th April, but the gentleman then named refused to act. No appeal has been lodged against the order appointing Lala Lachhman Das. The point taken by Mr. Faqir Chand Mittal for the respondents is that no appeal lies against an order appointing a receiver if the order is incomplete, e. g. if the receiver has been ordered to furnish security and has not done so at the time of the appeal. Mr. Faqir Chand points out that there are conflicting authorities on this point. According to Sir Dinshaw Fardunji Mulla's Civil Procedure Code, Edn. 10, p. 1066:

It has been held by the High Courts of Calcutta, Bombay and Allahabad that an order that a receiver be appointed without appointing anybody by name as receiver and adjourning the application to a later date for nominating a receiver is not an order within the meaning of this rule and it is not, therefore, appealable under O. 48, R. 1, Cl. (s), Civil P. C. The contrary has been held by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court and by the Patna High Court.

Mr. Faqir Chand also referred to some other rulings not cited by Mulla. Mr. Aggarwal for the appellants drew my attention to a Division Bench ruling of the Chief Court, 73 P R 1902.¹ In that case the District Judge had nominated the Collector who refused to act; but the Bench overruled a preliminary objection and decided to hear the appeal on the point whether a receiver should be appointed or not. This ruling was followed in the High Court in a Single Bench case, reported in 72 I C 569,² by Campbell J. There is no ruling of the Punjab Chief Court or of the Lahore High Court to the contrary and I decide to follow these two rulings without further discussion. On the merits the parties are members of the family of Ramji Lal deceased. Ramji Lal was married twice. By his first wife he had a son Kishan Lal who is the principal plaintiff, his five sons having also been added as plaintiffs. The defendants are the sons of the second wife of Ramji Lal, Mt. Munni. The plaintiff sued for partition of the family property and rendition of accounts as far as the agricultural land was concerned. He only sought a declaration that he was the owner of one-sixth share. Mutation of land left by Ramji Lal had been effected in favour of Kishen Lal and his five half-brothers.

1. Mt. Budhwanti v. Mt. Bishen Koer, (1902) 73 P R 1902=59 P L R 1902.

2. Ragbhir Singh Jaswant Singh v. Narinjan Singh, A I R 1923 Lah 48=72 I C 569.

Prima facie the plaintiff is entitled to a share; the defendants allege that it is only one seventh share and not one-sixth as he claims, but that is not material at this stage. The defendants rely on a previous partition alleging that the plaintiff had taken cash and house property only but no land. This previous partition is denied by the plaintiff and the defendants do not allege that it was effected by an instrument in writing nor indeed name the date on which it took place. They rely in support of this partition on a previous statement by Ramji Lal dated 21st March 1929. The statement was made in the course of previous litigation and is obviously inadmissible in evidence. They also rely on the will of Ramji Lal executed on 13th December 1934, a few days before his death on 23rd December 1934. Its terms are of course admissible. It recites that the testator had six sons, the eldest of whom Kishen Lal by his first wife had already received much in moveable property and household effects; and a large amount of money had been spent on his education and marriage. The will further recites that Kishen Lal is living separate from him for some time as a divided member of the family, that he has separate business and no share in any property left with the testator. No dates and indeed no precise facts or details of any kind are given in this will. The trial Judge said that there was no danger to the immovable property, but he appointed a receiver for the moveable property seeing that the very nature of the property is such as might place the plaintiffs at a disadvantage or make it inconvenient for the Court and the plaintiffs to go into accounts in this case. . . . Debts may be realized without the plaintiffs' knowledge or settlement arrived at in a manner prejudicial to them.

The defendants admit having realized a part of the debt. It is urged that this order is very prejudicial to the defendants who are conducting mainly a money lending business. I adjourned the case for three days in order that both the parties might attend and see if some settlement could be come to, but none of the defendants have come. It appears to me that it is just and convenient to appoint a receiver, the last argument of the trial Judge being particularly cogent. The appellants' counsel attacked the appointment of Lala Lachhmas Das personally but was unable to suggest anybody else. He also attacked the detailed instructions. I do not think there is any force in any of the criticisms except with reference to instruction No. 7, which allows 10 per cent. commission on all realizations made by the receiver and 5 per cent. on all disbursements made under Court's order. Mr. Aggarwal contends that this is very high. I pronounce no final opinion but direct that this question of remuneration be reconsidered by the trial Judge in consultation with both the parties and the receiver. It is open to the trial Judge to repeat this direction, if he wishes, or to modify it. I reject this appeal with costs.

V.B.B./A.L.

Appeal rejected.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 12

SKEMP J.

Hari Ram — Defendant — Appellant.
v.

Firm Maddu Mal - Durga Das — Plaintiffs — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 20 of 1937, Decided on 12th March 1937, from order of Sub-Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/- 4th January 1937.

* Civil P. C. (1908), O. 40, R. 1—Appointment of receiver is not limited to property over which plaintiff has lien.

The words 'just and convenient' in O. 40, R. 1 construed according to the ordinary rules do not limit the appointment of a receiver to property over which the plaintiff has a lien. Receiver can be appointed if the appointment is in fact just and convenient: A I R 1935 Rang 398, Rel.on.

[P 14 C 1]

Diwan Mehr Chand — for Appellant.

Amin Chand Mehta—for Respondents.

Judgment.—This is an appeal against an order of a Subordinate Judge of the First Class, Lahore, appointing a receiver ad interim. The following facts led up to the order: On 4th September 1936, the parties to this litigation referred a claim to the arbitration of Mr. Manohar Lal Sachdev, an advocate of this Court. On 8th November 1936, he made an award setting forth that the defendant owed the plaintiff an amount of over Rs. 60,000 with interest at 9 per cent. per annum on one promissory note, and nearly Rs. 25,000 with interest at the same rate on another promissory note. In the agreement of reference, the defendant admitted owing the said sums but prayed for the reduction of amount due and the rate of interest charged. The defendant then absented himself from the arbitration proceedings but the plaintiff agreed to the reduction of interest from 9 per cent. to 6 per cent. per annum. The arbitrator held that there was no reason for reducing the principal amounts claimed and gave the plaintiff an award for upwards of a lac of rupees on 8th November 1936. On 10th November 1936 the plaintiff made an application under Para. 20 of Sch. 2, Civil P. C., that the award should be filed in Court. On 18th December he applied for a temporary injunction to restrain the defendant from transferring his property and for the appointment of a receiver. On 21st December 1936 the Court issued an injunction and on 4th January 1937 made an order appointing Khawaja Nazir Ahmad receiver of the property. Both these orders were ex parte.

On the day of the hearing Mr. Amin Chand Mehta who represented the respondent sought to place on the record a report of Khwaja Nazir Ahmad Receiver made to the Court, but I disallowed this, first because the report was made after the date of the order appealed against and it is proper to look at the facts as they appeared on the date when the order was given; and, secondly, because it appeared that to take the report into account would necessitate the examination and cross-examination of the Official Receiver at considerable length. There is no appeal against the injunction. An appeal is lodged against the appointment of a receiver on the sole ground that the appointment is not in accordance with law and that the appointment of receiver should be restricted to cases in which the plaintiff has a lien on particular property. It was not argued in the course of the appeal that the appointment was not just and convenient. Mr. Amin Chand Mehta justified the order from the facts already given and also because on 20th September 1936, subsequent to the reference to arbitration, the defendant had alienated a house. This house was already under attachment by the Senior Subordinate

Judge for Rs. 1,000 and the balance was adjusted on a promissory note account in favour of a gentleman who, it is said, is a connection by marriage of the judgment-debtor. The learned argument of Diwan Mehr Chand for the appellant is that according to authorities the plaintiff must have an interest in the property before a receiver is appointed. This proposition is indeed laid down in 61 I C 849,¹ a Division Bench ruling of the Patna High Court. The head-note states:

There is no jurisdiction in a Court to appoint a receiver at the instance of a simple contract creditor unless the creditor establishes a special equity in favour of such appointment.

Similarly in 58 I C 405,² another Bench of the Patna High Court ruled that a Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of property regarding which no litigation is pending. Diwan Mehr Chand also urged that a Single Bench ruling of this Court, A I R 1936 Lah 102,³ cited 61 I C 849¹ with approval, but that was only to support a decision which would have been given in any case. In that case it was held that the plaintiff, at whose instance a receiver was appointed, had an interest in the property. Mr. Amin Chand Mehta relies on the actual wording of O. 40, R. 1 which lays down:

Where it appears to the Court to be just and convenient, the Court may by order appoint a receiver of any property whether before or after decree.

This Rule was altered in the Code of 1908, the words 'to be just and convenient' being substituted for the words 'to be necessary for the realization, preservation or better custody or management of any property, moveable or immovable, the subject of a suit or attachment'. This enlargement is significant especially when it is contrasted with O. 39, R. 1. Mr. Amin Chand Mehta relied particularly on a recent ruling of the Rangoon High Court—A I R 1935 Rang 398⁴—in a case in which a third party claimed the property attached and objected to the appointment of an interim receiver. The learned Judge after quoting O. 40, R. 1 said:

1. Pirthi Chand Lal v. Kalikanand Singh, A I R 1922 Pat 318=61 I C 849=6 P L J 366=3 P L T 24.

2. Chandreshwar Prasad v. Bisheshwar Pratap, A I R 1920 Pat 501=58 I C 405=5 P L J 513=1 P L T 643.

3. Harkishan Lal & Sons v. Peoples Bank of Northern India Ltd., A I R 1936 Lah 102.

4. A. R. A. R. A. L. Chettyar Firm v. U Sin, A I R 1935 Rang 398=159 I C 816.

The rule does not say that a receiver can be appointed only of property which is the subject matter of a pending suit. What it says is that if it is found just and convenient, a Court can appoint a receiver of any property, provided the plaintiff or the defendant has a right thereto . . .

It then said that this Order and the two preceding Orders had been designed by the Legislature in order to secure the plaintiff against any attempt on the part of the defendant to defeat the execution of any decree that may be passed against him. In my opinion the words 'just and convenient', construed according to the ordinary rules, do not limit the appointment of a receiver to property over which the plaintiff has a lien, and the appointment in this case was in fact just and convenient. Indeed, on a suggestion that the defendant-appellant should pay something into Court to settle the matter, the respondent's counsel said his client would accept eight annas in the rupee. I dismiss this appeal with costs.

P.R./D.S.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 14

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Firm Hari Chand-Sadhu Ram —

Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Mohammad Bakhsh and other —

Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1663 of 1936, Decided on 26th May 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Jhang, D/- 30th October 1936.

* Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (7 of 1934), S. 21 — Provisions prohibiting Civil Court's jurisdiction should be strictly construed — Application under S. 9 — Suit by creditor for declaration that claims by alleged creditors of judgment-debtor are fictitious and for injunction prohibiting these creditors from recovering their claims before Board — Jurisdiction of Civil Court to entertain such suit is neither expressly barred by S. 21 nor impliedly barred under provisions of the Act.

The provisions of law, which bar the jurisdiction of ordinary tribunals, are to be strictly construed. [P 15 O 2]

Where in execution of the plaintiff's decree, the judgment-debtor applies under S. 9 for effecting a settlement with his creditors, and the plaintiff sues in the ordinary Civil Court for a declaration to the effect that the promissory notes produced by the alleged creditors of the judgment-debtor in the proceedings before the Board are fictitious and also seeks an injunction to restrain the alleged creditors from proving their claims before the Board and recovering them from the debtor, neither of these reliefs attacks the procedure of the Board or the legality of the agreement arrived at under S. 17 and is consequently not covered by the express prohibition contained in S. 21.

[P 15 O 2]

Further, the Board is not a Board of adjudication but a mere Board of conciliation and has no jurisdiction to decide the disputes arising between the creditors inter se. It has no power to reject a claim as unfounded or fictitious nor to dismiss a claim as unproved. All that the Board can do is to use under S. 15 its best endeavours to induce the parties to arrive at an amicable settlement or to grant the debtor a certificate under S. 20 (1) in case any creditor does not accept a fair offer made by a debtor. [P 15 O 2 ; P 16 O 1]

Even a certificate under S. 20 does not debar the creditor from suing his debtor on his loan but only disentitles him to costs and interest after the date of the certification. The jurisdiction of adjudicating upon the validity or otherwise of a claim not having been vested in the Board, the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts to determine such matters cannot be even impliedly barred.

[P 16 O 1]

Achhru Ram — for Appellant.

Muhammad Din Jan — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J.—The facts of the case giving rise to this appeal are these. The plaintiff firm held two decrees of the aggregate value of Rs. 2,900 against Ghulam Qadir deceased, the father of Rab Nawaz. In execution of its decree, the firm got the land of Rab Nawaz attached. During the pendency of the execution proceedings, Rab Nawaz, who is a minor, through his next friend made an application to the Debt Conciliation Board under S. 9, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (7 of 1934), for effecting a settlement between himself and his creditors. This application was made on 17th October 1935, and contained the names of eight creditors with the details of their dues amounting to Rs. 4,690-9-0. On 9th November 1935, a supplementary statement was put in, mentioning two more creditors, Mohammad Bakhsh and Ghulam Mohammad, and their debts were stated to be Rupees 1,300 and Rs. 1,100 respectively. On receipt of this application, the usual formalities appear to have been observed by the Board and notice sent to the creditors of Rab Nawaz under sub-s. (2) of S. 12 and sub-s. (1) of S. 13. On 27th January 1936, Mohammad Bakhsh, Ghulam Mohammad and one Sarwar Shah appeared before the Board and produced three promissory notes of the value of Rs. 1,300, Rs. 1,100 and Rs. 1,900 respectively. All these promissory notes purported to have been executed on 25th November 1934, by the mother of Rab Nawaz on his behalf. The Board took action under sub-s. (2) of S. 14 and after marking the promissory notes for the purpose of identification and after verifying the correctness of the copies thereof, retained the copies and returned the originals to the creditors concerned. On 23rd March 1936 the firm instituted the suit out of which the present appeal has arisen, for a declaration that the debts shown by defendant 4 (Rab Nawaz) as due to defendants 1 to 3 (Mohammad Bakhsh, Ghulam Mohammad and Sarwar Shah) were 'baseless and fictitious'. They further claimed a permanent injunction restraining defendants 1 to 3 from proving their debts before the Board and recovering the same from the debtor. Rab Nawaz alone contested the suit, the other three defendants not having put in appearance at all, but even he was represented by an officer of the Court only and did not submit proper pleas. An issue was however framed by the Subordinate Judge trying the suit, whether the suit was competent in view of the prohibition as contained in S. 21 of the Act. The Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts to entertain such suits was barred by the clear provision of the law referred to above and he consequently dismissed the suit on 29th June 1936. An appeal was preferred against this order, but before it could be decided, the Board on 13th August 1936 concluded its proceedings, and recorded an agreement under S. 17 of the Act which covered two out of the three claims involved in the present litigation. On 30th October, the Senior Subordinate Judge heard the appeal and holding that the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts was impliedly barred, dismissed it. The firm then presented a further appeal to this Court which came on for hearing before Tek Chand J. and that learned Judge has referred the case to this Bench in view of the importance of the question involved. The only question that falls for determination before us is whether there is any express or implied prohibition against the entertaining of such suits by ordinary Civil Courts as contemplated by S. 9, Civil P. C. So far as the express prohibition is concerned, reliance is placed on S. 21 (a) (i) of the Act. This provision is couched in the following terms :

No Civil Court shall entertain any suit to question the validity of any procedure or the legality of any agreement made under this Act.

In my view, whatever the cases to which this provision may apply, the present case does not come within its ambit. Those provisions of law which bar the jurisdiction of the ordinary tribunals are to be strictly construed and so construed, the provision of law relied upon in this case will be found of no avail. The suit as it stands does not seek to question the validity of any procedure adopted by the Board nor does it attack the legality of any agreement made under the Act. It is true that in this case the proceedings before the Board have culminated in an agreement under S. 17 and howsoever favourable an order may be made by any Court of law, it might in the circumstances of the case prove to be infructuous but that is an extraneous consideration. We are solely concerned here with the relief claimed independently of the efficacy thereof, and that aspect of the case is alone to be decided by us irrespective of what developments have taken place later. The relief claimed in this suit is twofold. In the first place, a declaration is being asked for to the effect that the promissory notes produced by the alleged creditors are fictitious and secondly an injunction is being sought to restrain the alleged creditors from proving their claims or recovering them. Neither of these reliefs involves an attack on the procedure of the Board or the legality of the agreement and is consequently not covered by the prohibition.

The matter of implied prohibition however is not so simple. On the one hand, it is contended that the Board is a special tribunal, invested with certain powers and should therefore be the sole arbiter of all the matters that come before it. On the other hand, I am disposed to think, that it is not a Board of adjudication but a mere Board of conciliation and further has no jurisdiction to decide the disputes arising between the creditors inter se. It has no power to reject a claim as unfounded or fictitious nor to dismiss a claim as unproved. It is true that under sub s. (2) of S. 13, every debt of which a statement is not submitted to the Board in compliance with the provisions of sub-s. (1) of that section shall be deemed for all purposes and all occasions to have been duly discharged, but when a claim is submitted, all that the Board can do is to use under S. 15 its best endeavours to induce the parties to arrive at an amicable settlement.

or to grant the debtor a certificate under S. 20 (1) in case any creditor does not accept a fair offer made by a debtor. Even that certificate does not debar the creditor from suing his debtor on his loan but only disentitles him to costs and interest after the date of the certification. In these circumstances, the jurisdiction of adjudicating upon the validity or otherwise of a claim is not vested in the Board, and if this be so, the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts to determine such matters cannot be even impliedly barred.

The matter however does not rest here. It will still be necessary to determine whether the relief claimed by the plaintiff in this case can be granted to him otherwise. For instance, it is open to the defendants to contend that a mere declaration in the form prayed for cannot be granted under S. 42, Specific Relief Act, or that the injunction claimed cannot be granted under S. 56 of the same Act, or that the reliefs claimed have become infructuous in view of the subsequent developments that have taken place before the Board, but as these points have not so far been raised nor have they been discussed and decided by the Courts below, I would refrain from expressing any opinion thereon. On the technical point on which the case has been decided, I would hold that so far as the reliefs claimed in this case are concerned, S. 21 does not debar the Civil Courts from entertaining them, and would accept the appeal, set aside the orders of the Courts below and remand the case to the trial Court for the disposal of the other points arising in the case. I would however leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout as the question on which they fought was not free from difficulty.

Coldstream J.—I agree.

V.B.B./A.L.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 16

DIN MOHAMMAD J.

Lachhman Singh—Plaintiff —
Appellant.

v.

Firm Dasuandhi Ram-Babu Ram —
Defendants—Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 456 of 1937, Decided on 13th July 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Ambala, D/- 2nd February 1937.

Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 54—All formalities except that of affixing order on conspicuous part of court-house proved — No evidence to the contrary — Attachment is presumed to be valid.

Where all the formalities required by O. 21 R. 54 were admitted except the affixing of the order on the conspicuous part of the court-house, which was not specifically mentioned by the bailiff, but there was no evidence to the contrary:

Held that all the formalities relating to attachment were duly observed: A I R 1928 P C 139; A I R 1933 Cal 212 and A I R 1928 Lah 423, Disting.; A I R 1934 P C 217, Rel. on.

[P 17 C 1, 2]

Shamair Chand — for Appellant.

M. L. Puri — for Respondents.

Judgment.—The facts of this case are given at length in the judgment under appeal and need not be recapitulated. The questions that arose for decision in the Courts below were: (1) Whether the attachment of the judgment-debtor's property was valid; (2) If so, whether the sale in favour of Lachhman Singh during the pendency of that attachment was void; and (3) Whether Lachhman Singh could raise any objections to the attachment after the only objection raised by his vendor had been dismissed by the executing Court. The trial Court came to the conclusion that the attachment was valid and consequently the sale in favour of Lachhman Singh was void. On the third question it found that Lachhman Singh was barred by the rule of constructive res judicata. On appeal, the District Judge held that the attachment was invalid, but agreeing with the trial Court on the question of constructive res judicata affirmed its decision and dismissed the appeal. Hence this appeal. The same questions have been raised before me as were raised in the Courts below, and after hearing counsel on both sides, I have come to the conclusion that the decision of the trial Court that the original attachment was valid was in consonance with law, and that being so no other question falls for determination in this case, for it is conceded by the appellant that, if the original attachment is held to be valid, the sale in favour of Lachhman Singh cannot stand.

It appears from the record that on 25th July 1934 a warrant of attachment was issued by the executing Court calling upon the bailiff to attach the property in question and to affix a copy of the prohibitory order issued by the Court on a conspicuous part of the court-house as well as on a conspicuous part of the property and to proclaim the order by beat of drum. The endorsement on the back of this warrant shows that these formalities were observed, though no specific mention was made of the affixing of a copy of the said order upon a conspicuous part of the court-house. Similarly, on the back of the order prohibiting the judgment-debtor from transferring or charging the property in any way, there is an endorsement dated 30th July 1934 stating that a copy of the order had been affixed on a conspicuous part of the property and that the order has been duly proclaimed. As against this, there is not an iota of evidence on the record to show that no copy of the order was affixed upon a conspicuous part of the court-house. In these circumstances, the principle enunciated by their Lordships of the Privy Council in a case reported in A I R 1934 P C 217¹ is fully applicable. Their Lordships remarked :

The Judicial Commissioner in the present case has held that the attachment has not been proved because there was no direct evidence that a copy of the order of attachment was affixed in the Collector's office. Their Lordships are of opinion that there is evidence that the land was attached, and that, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, it ought to be presumed that all necessary formalities were complied with : see S. 114, Evidence Act.

Now, in the present case it is not denied that an order was made prohibiting the judgment-debtor from transferring or charging the property in any way, as provided for in sub-r. (1) of R. 54. It is also not denied that the order was proclaimed as required by sub-r. (2) of R. 54. It is further not in dispute that a copy of the order was affixed in the office of the Collector. The only thing that is disputed is the affixing of a copy of the order on a conspicuous part of the property. It was open to the vendee from the judgment-debtor to lead evidence on the point and to prove by direct evidence that that formality had not been observed. He could have examined the bailiff or the attesting witnesses of his report on this point. Not having done so, he cannot be allowed to take advantage of the fact that, while submitting the report, the bailiff did not specifically mention that that formality had also been observed. In my view, it was not necessary for the bailiff to have entered into minute details. It would have been enough had he merely stated that the order of the Court had been complied with. Moreover, it appears to me to be improbable that the bailiff who had duly proclaimed the order and further affixed a copy of it on a conspicuous part of the property as also in the office of the Collector, would have failed to affix a copy of the order on a conspicuous part of the court-house, which of all things was the easiest to do. I am therefore inclined to hold that all formalities relating to attachment were duly observed and that the sale in favour of Lachhman Singh was void ab initio.

Counsel for the appellant has relied upon 51 Mad 349,² 59 Cal 1176³ and 4 Lah 211.⁴ In my opinion however none of these cases is in point. In 51 Mad 349² all that was laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council was that if nothing more is done than the mere passing of an order attaching the property, the attachment not having been completed by the observance of the other formalities laid down in R. 54 of O. 21, is not valid. In 59 Cal 1176³ the decision of the Court below that to render an attachment effectual, the affixing of the prohibitory order on the court-house was absolutely necessary was not challenged and the learned Judges remarked that in view of 51 Mad 349,² the view of the Court below could not be disputed. In 4 Lah 211⁴ it was held by a Division Bench of this Court that in order to constitute a valid attachment the proclamation described in the second portion of R. 54 must be carried out. It is enough to say that the judgment in A I R 1934 P C 217¹ was delivered long after the three cases mentioned above were decided, and at the present moment is the only authoritative pronouncement on the question at issue. I accordingly affirm the decision of the lower Appellate Court though on different grounds, and dismiss this appeal with costs.

V.B.B./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

2. Muthiah Chetty v. Palaniappa Chetti, A I R 1928 P C 189=109 I C 626=55 I A 256=51 Mad 349 (P O).

3. Nabadwip Chandra Das v. Loke Nath, A I R 1933 Cal 212=142 I C 452=59 Cal 1176=36 C W N 738.

4. Mula Ram v. Jiwanda Ram, A I R 1923 Lah 423=72 I C 452=4 Lah 211.

1. Muhammad Akbar Khan v. Musharaf Shah, A I R 1934 P C 217=151 I C 221=61 I A 371=15 Lah 836 (P O).

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 18

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mohammad Ramzan Khan —

Defendant — Petitioner.
v.

Khubi Khan — Plaintiff —

Respondent.

Civil Revn. Petn. No. 505 of 1936, Decided on 25th February 1937, from order of Addl. Judge, Small Cause Court, Delhi, D/- 20th June 1936.

* Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (1887) S. 17 (1), as amended by Act 9 of 1935) — Scope—Applicant must deposit full decretal amount at time of presenting application if he has not made previous application for security—Court cannot extend time for making deposit or for furnishing security.

The applicant applying under S. 17 (1) for a review of judgment or for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte shall and must, at the time of presenting his application, do one of two things, namely, either deposit in Court the amount due from him under the decree or give such security for the performance of the decree as the Court may have directed on a previous application made by him in this behalf. If he does not make the previous application, he must put in the decretal amount in full. If he has made it and been successful in getting an order for security instead of depositing the money in full, he can furnish the security which the Court may have previously directed. It is no longer open to the Court to extend the time within which the deposit is to be made or security furnished: A I R 1931 Lah 332 (F B), Expl. [P 19 C 1]

Mohammad Amin — for Petitioner.

Vishnu Datta — for Respondent.

Order.—The Additional Judge, Small Cause Court, Delhi, passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff against the defendant for Rs. 97.13.0 with costs. A petition for review was put in by the defendant, and this petition was dismissed on 20th June 1936, on the ground that at the time of presenting the application for review, the applicant neither deposited in the Court the amount due from him under the decree nor gave such security for the performance of the decree as the Court might, on a previous application made by him in this behalf, have directed. Against this order dismissing the application for review, the defendant preferred a revision petition to this Court under S. 25, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. The petition came before a Single Judge where reliance was placed on 12 Lah 359.¹ The Judge hearing the revision referred it to a Division Bench as he considered the matter raised was important, namely whether, in view of the amendment of S. 17, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, the provisions thereof as regards security, etc., could still be considered to be directory and not mandatory. The old S. 17 (1) ran as follows:

The procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall, save in so far as is otherwise provided by that Code or by this Act, be the procedure followed in a Court of Small Causes in all suits cognizable by it and in all proceedings arising out of such suits;

Provided that an applicant for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte or for a review of judgment shall, at the time of presenting his application, either deposit in the Court the amount due from him under the decree or in pursuance of the judgment, or give security to the satisfaction of the Court for the performance of the decree or compliance with the judgment as the Court may direct.

By Act 9 of 1935, S. 17 (1) was amended to run as follows:

The procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 shall, save in so far as is otherwise provided by that Code or by this Act, be the procedure followed in a Court of Small Causes in all suits cognizable by it and in all proceedings arising out of such suits;

Provided that an applicant for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte or for a review of judgment shall, at the time of presenting his application, either deposit in the Court the amount due from him under the decree or in pursuance of the judgment, or give such security for the performance of the decree or compliance with the judgment as the Court may, on a previous application made by him in this behalf, have directed.

In 12 Lah 359¹ the learned Judges before whom the question came held that the provision contained in the old S. 17, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, that an applicant for an order to set aside an ex parte decree shall, at the time of presenting his application, either deposit in the Court the amount due from him under the decree or give security to the satisfaction of the Court for the performance of the decree as the Court may direct, was directory and not mandatory; and that it was open to the Court in appropriate cases to extend the time within which the deposit could be made or security furnished.

It seems to us that the amendment of S. 17 by Act 9 of 1935 was meant to show and does show that the applicant for a review of judgment must, at the time of presenting his application, either deposit in the Court the amount due from him under the decree or give such security for the performance of the decree as the Court may, on a previous application made by him in this behalf, have directed. The only part of the section which could be said to be obscure has been repealed and a new provision inserted in which there is no obscurity. As S. 17 (1) now stands, the procedure prescribed in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, shall, with a saving clause, be the procedure followed in a Court of Small Causes, provided that an applicant for a review of judgment or for an order to set aside a decree passed ex parte shall and must, at the time of presenting his application, do one of two things, namely, either deposit in the Court the amount due from him under the decree or give such security for the performance of the decree as the Court may have directed on a previous application made by him in this behalf. If he does not make the previous application, he must put in the money in full. If he has made it and been successful in getting an order for security instead of depositing the money in full, he can furnish the security which the Court may have previously directed. It is no longer open to the Court to extend the time within which the deposit is to be made or security furnished. The decision of the Additional Judge Small Cause Court, Delhi, was therefore correct, and we dismiss this revision petition but make no order as to costs here.

1. Gedi Mal-Dharam Das v. Huna Mal Sedhu Ram, A I R 1931 Lah 332=131 I C 685=12 Lah 359=32 P L R 504 (F B).

K.B./A.L.

*Revision dismissed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 19

COLDSTREAM J.

Mohammad Sadiq — Petitioner.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Revn. Petn. No. 1028 of 1937, Decided on 7th October 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Sialkot, D/- 13th July 1937.

Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 190 (1) (c) and 191 — Magistrate taking cognizance on charge sheet filed at his instance — Magistrate acts under S. 190 (1) (c) — Failure to comply with S. 191 vitiates entire proceedings in his Court.

When a charge sheet is filed against any person at the instance of the Magistrate and the latter takes cognizance on such charge sheet, though apparently the case is taken cognizance of on a police report, the action of the Magistrate practically amounts to his taking cognizance under Section 190 (1) (c), as he is the real originator of the proceedings. The accused is therefore entitled to have the case transferred to some other Magistrate and the failure on the part of the Magistrate to comply with the provisions of S. 191 will vitiate the entire proceedings in his Court. [P 20 C 1, 2]

Hem Raj Mahajan for Advocate-General
— for the Crown.

Facts — Mt. Umat-ul-Hussain brought a complaint under S. 107, Criminal P. C., against one Muhammad Ramzan, a resident of Sialkot, on 6th May 1937, in the Court of Pir Mubarik Ali, Magistrate, First Class. The Magistrate after recording the statement of the complainant on 7th May 1937, dismissed her complaint, but according to the allegations made in the present petition directed the Naib Court to ring up the police, as the girl in his opinion appeared to be a minor. The present accused, while the statement of the girl was being recorded, was sitting in the verandah of the Court-room of the Magistrate and was called in. The Magistrate told the Sub-Inspector of Police on his arrival there that the girl and Muhammad Sadiq, the present petitioner, be taken into custody and their case be investigated and proper action be taken therein. As a result of that direction, the girl and the accused, Muhammad Sadiq, were taken to the City Police Station and after the statement of the girl was recorded, a case under Ss. 363, 366, 368, 376 and 343, Penal Code, was registered against the accused. He was produced eventually before the said Magistrate for trial. The trial commenced in the Court of the learned Magistrate when an application was made to this Court that as the prosecution of the accused was initiated at the instance of the Magistrate and he had not complied with the provisions of S. 191, Criminal P. C., consequently the trial was bad in law and the High Court be moved to quash the proceedings and to direct the re-trial of the accused by some other competent Magistrate or some other proper order which the High Court deems fit be passed in the present case. A notice was issued to the Crown counsel, who did not appear before me to oppose the present petition.

Grounds.—Now it is a fact that the proceedings against the accused started at the instance of the Magistrate and consequently the Magistrate did act under the provisions of S. 190, Para. 1, Cl. (c), which is to the effect :

Upon information received from any person other than a Police Officer, or upon his own knowledge or suspicion that such offence has been committed.

There is no denial of the fact that the learned Magistrate, when he recorded the statement of Mt. Umat-ul-Hussain, in the complaint under S. 107, Criminal P. C., entertained suspicion of an offence having been committed by the present accused, as the girl appeared to the learned Magistrate to be a minor. Under these circumstances it was incumbent on the learned Magistrate to comply with the provisions of S. 191, Criminal P. C. Failure on his part to comply with the provisions of the said section undoubtedly vitiated the trial in the Court of the said Magistrate. There are a number of authorities in support of this proposition : e. g. on p. 991 of the Criminal Procedure Code by Chitaley, Vol. 1, it was observed :

Moreover, when a charge sheet is filed against any person at the instance of the Magistrate, and the latter takes cognizance on such charge sheet, though apparently the case is taken cognizance of on a Police report, the Magistrate being the real originator of the proceedings is not competent to try the case and the accused is entitled to have the case transferred to some other Magistrate.

116 P L R 1903,¹ 59 I C 384² and 73 I C 576³ lay down the same proposition. I am therefore of the opinion that the failure on the part of the learned Magistrate to comply with the provisions of S. 191 in the present case vitiated the entire proceedings in his Court and I therefore send up the case to the Hon'ble the High Court with the recommendations that the proceedings in the Court of the said Magistrate be quashed and a retrial by another Magistrate be ordered. The petitioner being in judicial lock-up, it is desirable that he should be let on bail, pending the decision by the High Court. I therefore admit him on bail of Rs. 2,000 with one surety of the like amount. The bail shall be furnished by the accused in the Court of the Magistrate.

Order. — Technically no doubt the Magistrate took cognizance on a police chalan as is urged by Crown counsel who opposes this petition, that is to say the case was one within S. 190 (1) (b), Criminal P. C. It is not shown where the learned Sessions Judge has got the information that the Magistrate ordered the police to take the petitioner into custody.

1. Crown v. Jumman, (1903) 116 P L R 1903.

2. Bodha v. Emperor, (1921) 8 A I R Lah 235 = 59 I C 384 = 16 P L R 1921 = 27 Cr L J 96.

3. Chander Sen v. Emperor, (1928) 10 A I R All 383 = 17 I C 576 = 24 Cr L J 656 = 21 A L J 89.

The allegation of Mr. Hem Raj Advocate is that the Magistrate ordered the police to investigate and, if any cognizable offence was discovered, to take legal action. At the same time, it seems clear that the action of the Magistrate practically amounted to his taking cognizance under S. 190 (1) (c). I think it proper to apply the principle of S. 191 and I accordingly accept the recommendation of the Sessions Judge, quash the proceedings and order retrial by another Magistrate to be selected by the District Magistrate.

B.D./R.K.

Retrial ordered.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 20

JAI LAL J.

*Kishan Lal and another — Plaintiffs
— Appellants.*

v.

*Lal Chand and others—Defendants—
Respondents.*

Second Appeal No. 1311 of 1936, Decided on 16th February 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Attock at Campbellpur, D/- 18th July 1936.

Insolvency — Joint Hindu family — Coparcener—Manager brother adjudged insolvent for his personal debts—Shares of other brothers in joint family property do not vest in Official Receiver.

In a joint Hindu family consisting of brothers, on the insolvency of the brother, who is a manager of the family, the shares of other brothers do not vest in the Official Receiver when such manager brother is adjudged insolvent for debts due personally from him : A I R 1932 Lah 151, Disting. [P 21 C 2]

Shambu Lal Puri for Mukand Lal Puri
— for Appellants.

Shamair Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment.—The appellants are two brothers of Gokal Chand who was adjudicated an insolvent and whose property vested in the Official Receiver. The Official Receiver sold a house to the respondent assuming that it belonged to Gokal Chand. It has been found that the house belonged to the three brothers, the appellants and Gokal Chand, and that Gokal Chand had a one-third share in it, but it is contended on behalf of the respondent that the debts, which have been proved in the insolvency of Gokal Chand, are debts which were originally due from the father of Gokal Chand and the appellants, and therefore as Gokal Chand has been found to be a member of a joint Hindu family with the appellants, he could sell the entire coparcenary property to discharge the debts of the father. For this reason, it is contended, his right to sell the shares of his brothers also vests in the Official Receiver who was competent to sell the whole house.

In support of this contention reliance is placed on 13 Lah 464.¹ In that case however, father was adjudicated insolvent and it was held that his right to sell the sons' share in the joint property to discharge his debts vested in the Official Receiver. It is however the pious duty of the sons to pay the father's debts but the same rule does not necessarily apply with regard to the debts in respect of which a decree has been passed against the eldest brother, and the principle laid down in 13 Lah 464¹ cannot by analogy be extended to such cases. No authority has been cited in which it has been laid down that if one brother is adjudicated insolvent and he is manager of a joint Hindu family, then the entire family property vests in the Official Receiver. Gokal Chand was not adjudicated insolvent as manager of the family. There are debts due from him personally. It is not possible under the circumstances to hold that the shares of the two brothers also vest in the Official Receiver. It may be that the creditors, to whom debts were due from the father of Gokal Chand and his two brothers, may have remedy in respect of their debts against the two brothers, the appellants, in spite of the insolvency of Gokal Chand, but no authority has been cited to show that the Official Receiver is entitled to deal with the shares of the brothers of Gokal Chand in the house in dispute. I accordingly accept this appeal, set aside the decrees of the Courts below and decree the plaintiff's suit but leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

W.D./A.L.

Appeal allowed.

1. Gori Shankar v. Basheswar Nath, A I R 1932 Lah 151=185 I O 217=18 Lah 464=93 P L R 814.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 21

JAI LAL J.

Thakar Das — Plaintiff — Petitioner.
v.

Amar Chand — Defendant —
Respondent.

Civil Revn. Petition No. 635 of 1936, Decided on 26th February 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Ferozepore, D/- 29th June 1936.

* Mortgage—Usufructuary mortgage—Suit by mortgagor for unpaid balance of mortgage money or for compensation is maintainable—Measure of compensation is difference between amount stipulated to be paid and amount actually paid—Such suit is not for specific performance.

In the case of a possessory mortgage where a mortgage has been completed and possession has been given to the mortgagee but the full amount of the consideration is not paid to the mortgagor, a suit by the mortgagor for the balance of the amount due is maintainable as a suit for compensation and the measure of compensation is the difference between the amount stipulated to be paid by the mortgagee and the amount actually paid by him. Such a suit is not for the specific performance of a contract: A I R 1933 Lah 1 and A I R 1935 Pat 125, Foll.; A I R 1936 Lah 727, Disting. [P 22 C 1]

Mohan Lal Aggarwal — for Petitioner.
Bawa Sant Singh—for Respondent.

Order.—The petitioner mortgaged his land with possession to the respondent for Rs. 400 out of which Rs. 240 were left with the mortgagee for payment to a creditor of the mortgagor petitioner. The respondent not having paid Rs. 240 to the creditor, the petitioner instituted a suit for recovery of Rs. 240 and interest thereon against the respondent. The suit was for the recovery of the amount stipulated to be paid on the mortgage by the respondent and it was expressly stated in the plaint that the plaintiff had suffered loss to that extent. The suit was therefore also for compensation for the non-performance of his contract by the defendant. This suit having been decreed by the trial Court, an appeal was preferred to the Senior Subordinate Judge who accepted it merely on the ground that such a suit was not maintainable. He refrained from deciding the other question involved in the case. In support of his conclusion, the learned Senior Subordinate Judge has relied upon 38 P L R 574,¹ a judgment of a Division

1. Sewa Singh v. Milkha Singh, A I R 1936 Lah 727=164 I O 582=17 Lah 270=98 P L R 574.

Bench of this Court, but that judgment in my opinion does not support the view of the learned Judge below. In a similar case I had held in A I R 1933 Lah 1² that a suit by a mortgagor to recover the unpaid balance of the mortgage money in a possessory mortgage is maintainable. A similar view had been taken by this Court in A I R 1925 Lah 174,³ and was subsequently taken in A I R 1935 Lah 26.⁴ Recently in A I R 1935 Pat 125⁵ it has been held that such a suit is maintainable as a suit for compensation and that the measure of compensation is the difference between the amount stipulated to be paid by the mortgagee and the amount actually paid by him. Even in 38 P L R 574¹ it has been held that a suit for compensation is maintainable. In my view, where a mortgage has been completed and possession has been given to the mortgagee, as in the present case, a suit for recovery of the balance of the amount due to the mortgagor is not a suit for specific performance of the contract.

I held in A I R 1933 Lah 1² that a suit for specific performance of the contract in such a case does not lie and also that a suit of the present description is not a suit for specific performance of the contract. Whether the amount payable by the mortgagee to the mortgagor is a debt due to the mortgagor was not decided by me and that was the point involved in 38 P L R 574¹ and apparently it was held that it was not a debt and not therefore attachable at the instance of a creditor of the mortgagor. 38 P L R 574¹ therefore does not apply to the facts of this case and there is ample authority that a suit for recovery of the unpaid balance in a mortgage of this description is maintainable at the instance of the mortgagor. Probably the proper form of the suit would be a suit for compensation and the measure of damages would be as indicated in A I R 1935 Pat 125.⁵

I accept the petition, set aside the decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge and send the case back to him with direction to proceed with the appeal in accordance

2. Thakur Singh v. Jagat Singh, A I R 1923 Lah 1=140 I O 495=33 P L R 1085.

3. Imam Din v. Dittu, A I R 1925 Lah 174=78 I C 445.

4. Jai Gopal v. Sundar Singh, A I R 1935 Lah 26=159 I O 768.

5. Wahid Ali v. Biptu Chamar, A I R 1935 Pat 125=159 I O 177.

with law, with due regard to the observations made above. The costs of this petition shall be paid by the respondent. Parties to appear before the Senior Subordinate Judge on 30th March 1937.

S.C./D.S.

Case remanded.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 22

JAI LAL J.

Gandu and others, Plaintiffs and others, Defendants—Appellants.

v.

Mt. Nasibo and others—Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1068 of 1936, Decided on 18th February 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Hoshiarpur, D/. 4th June 1936.

* Civil P. C. (1908), O. 47, R. 4 (2) (a) — 'Opposite party' — Pro forma defendant not taking interest—Proceedings ex parte against him throughout — His interest sufficiently guarded by plaintiff — Such defendant is not 'opposite party' — Notice to him of application for review is not necessary before it is granted.

In a suit by some reversioners for setting aside an alienation, a certain reversioner was made a pro forma defendant in the suit. He however took no interest in the litigation and all the proceedings were ex parte against him from the very beginning. His interest was sufficiently guarded by one of the plaintiffs reversioners. The suit was decreed but on the application for review of the judgment, the suit was dismissed. On appeal by the plaintiff against the order granting review, to which the pro forma defendant joined as appellant, it was contended by the pro forma defendant that notice to him was necessary before the review was granted :

Held that the pro forma defendant could not under such circumstances fall within the meaning of 'opposite party' in O. 47, R. 4 (2) (a), and therefore notice to him before the granting of the review application was not necessary. [P 29 C 1]

L. Saunders—for Appellants.

Nanak Chand Pandit—for Respondents.

Judgment. — Some of the reversioners instituted a suit to set aside an alienation. The defendants were the alienors and the alienees and the remaining defendants were reversioners among whom was one Nathu. The proceedings against Nathu were throughout ex parte. He took no interest in the litigation but the suit was ultimately decreed. The alienees thereupon made an application for review of judgment. This application was granted and the suit was dismissed. Thereupon the plaintiffs-reversioners preferred an appeal to the District Judge and contended that the application for review had been illegally granted without proper notice to them. The District Judge accepted this contention and remanded the case to the trial Judge to re-hear the application for review. The trial Judge after hearing the application for review again granted it and an appeal was preferred to the learned District Judge from the order granting the application for review. On this occasion, Nathu appeared in the proceedings for the first time as an appellant, along with the plaintiffs-reversioners. It was contended on his behalf that the application for review had been granted without notice to him (Nathu). The learned District Judge has held that under the circumstances, no notice to Nathu was necessary, because he had taken no interest in the litigation; he was not a plaintiff in the suit and his interest was sufficiently safeguarded by the remaining reversioners, i. e. the plaintiffs.

It is true that before the application for review can be granted, notice must be given to the opposite party and if such a notice has not been given, it is a good ground for an appeal. The question is whether, under the circumstances of this case, Nathu can come within the definition of "opposite party". I am inclined to agree with the view of the learned District Judge that he cannot. The proceedings against him were ex parte from the very beginning. He was a pro forma defendant. He did not become an appellant even when the appeal was originally preferred from the first order of the District Judge granting the application for review. It is only now that he has become an appellant. His real brother Amien was present throughout the proceedings. Under the circumstances there is no reason to interfere with the order of the learned District Judge. I dismiss the appeal, but leave the parties to bear their own costs.

K.B./A.L.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 23

COLDSTREAM AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Alopi Parshad and another—Plaintiffs—Appellants.

v.

Court of Wards and others —Defendants—Respondents.

First Appeal No. 109 of 1936, Decided on 18th March 1937, from decree of Sub. Judge, First Class, Delhi, D/. 30.10.1935.

* (a) Limitation Act (1908), Art. 113 — Agreement between A and B providing that B should finance A's litigation in respect of certain property and in return should get certain share of it after decree—Agreement also providing that in case of appeal from decree to Privy Council B would be entitled to greater share — Suit by B more than three years after date of decree but within three years of refusal of performance — Suit held within time as second part of Art. 113 applied.

Statutes of limitation must be strictly construed and no man is to be deprived of rights which would by law belong to him unless the specific provisions of law, which are alleged to take away these rights, can be shown to apply clearly and in precise terms to his case. [P 27 O 1]

The question as to whether the first part of Art. 113 is or is not applicable depends to a great extent on the language of the agreement.

[P 26 O 2]

An agreement between A and B provided that B should finance A's litigation in respect of certain property and in return should get certain share of the property after the passing of the decree. It was also provided that if an appeal was preferred from the decree to the Privy Council, B would be entitled to a greater share. B brought a suit for the specific performance of the contract more than three years after the date of the decree but within three years of the refusal to perform the contract:

Held that the date of the decree could not be the time fixed within meaning of the first part of Art. 113 as B was entitled to get the share after the decree which meant when it became unassailable. As the decree, before appeal from it to the High Court and then to Privy Council, could not be said to be unassailable, it must be held that no date for specific performance of the contract was fixed. The second part of Art. 113 therefore applied and the suit was within time : Case law discussed.

[P 26 O 1, 2; P 27 O 1]

(b) Contract Act (1872), S. 23—Chamerty and maintenance—B agreeing to finance litigation costing about Rs. 9,000 of A in return for part worth about one lakh of recovered property — A, man of weak intellect and in habit of drinking — Agreement held unfair and therefore invalid.

A fair agreement to supply funds to carry on a suit in consideration of having a share of the property, if recovered, ought not to be regarded as being per se opposed to public policy. But agreements of such a kind ought to be carefully watched and when extortionate, unconscionable or made for improper objects, ought to be held invalid. The question as to whether a contract is inequitable and unconscionable depends on the circumstances of each particular case.

[P 27 O 2;

P 28 O 1; P 29 O 1]

By an agreement between A and B, B agreed to finance the litigation of A in respect of certain property in return for part worth about one lakh of the recovered property, knowing well that the litigation would cost about Rs. 9,000. A was a man of weak intellect and was in the habit of drinking :

Held that the agreement was unconscionable and therefore invalid : 2 Cal 233 (P C) and 20 Cal 843 (P C), Foll.

[P 29 O 1]

Achhru Ram — for Appellants.

Ram Lal (Govt. Advocate) and Suraj Narain (for No. 1), M. A. Majid and Bishan Narain (for Nos. 2 & 3) —
for Respondents.

Abdul Rashid J. — The material facts of the case, for the purposes of this appeal, may be shortly stated. Mirza Surriya Jah, the head of the Mughal Royal Family of Delhi, died on 8th February 1913, leaving him surviving two wives and two daughters. On his death, the Court of Wards assumed superintendence of the estate left by him on behalf of his daughters and widows. Saleem Mohammad Shah claimed to be the son of Mirza Surriya Jah and his sole heir. His status was however denied by the Court of Wards. Saleem Mohammad Shah was informed by the Court of Wards that he should take steps to establish his claim in a Court of law. In April 1913, Saleem Mohammad Shah was given a compassionate allowance of Rs. 100 per month. An allowance of Rs. 200 per month was also granted to his widow Nawab Qaisar Jahan Begam, defendant 2. Saleem Mohammad Shah applied for a loan to carry on the necessary litigation but his application was rejected by the Court of Wards on 15th July 1913, on the ground that he could bring a friendly suit to establish his claim and the litigation would not involve a great deal of expense. On 26th January 1920, Saleem Mohammad Shah brought a suit for possession of the property left by Mirza Surriya Jah in forma pauperis. The defendants in the suit were the Court of Wards and the surviving widows and daughters of Mirza Surriya Jah. The application to sue in forma pauperis was contested on behalf of the Court of Wards. On 27th August 1920, Mr. Abdul Rahman (now Sir Abdul Rahman) counsel for Saleem Mohammad Shah made a statement to the effect that his client was prepared to pay the court-fee. The Court thereupon directed Saleem Mohammad Shah to pay the court-fee before 4th October 1920. The court-fee was paid on that date. Saleem Mohammad Shah had claimed the entire estate of Mirza Surriya Jah, but he succeeded in getting a decree on 10th May 1925 for a $14/32$ share in the property left by Mirza Surriya Jah.

On 2nd October 1920, an agreement Ex. P-1 was entered into between Saleem Mohammad Shah (hereinafter referred to as the first party) on one side and Alopī Parshad Ram Sarup (hereinafter referred to as the second party) on the other side, whereby the second party offered to finance the litigation on behalf of the first party, and the first party agreed to transfer a $3/16$ th or $4/16$ th share (as the case may be) of the property obtained by him, as a result of the litigation, in favour of the second party. It was stated in the deed of agreement that the first party was an owner of considerable moveable and immovable property by virtue of inheritance from his father, that the whole of this property was in possession of the Court of Wards, that the first party had no means whatever to pay court-fee and other costs of litigation, that the second party had agreed to bear all the expenses of the case, and that in lieu of the services of the second party, a $3/16$ th share would be transferred to them if no appeal were preferred to the Privy Council, but that a $4/16$ th share would be made over to the second party if an appeal was preferred to the Privy Council. It was further stated in this agreement that all the expenses of the litigation shall be paid by the second party according to the bills sent by the counsel. After the decree is passed, the second party shall be entitled to get their share to the extent of 3 annas or 4 annas in the rupee as the case may be, and the first party shall have power either to get the entire property partitioned and then give the said share or to get the value of the entire property assessed and then pay money in cash. Until the share of the second party amounting to $3/16$ th or $4/16$ th is paid, the first party is not entitled to alienate or transfer the property obtained as a result of the litigation in any manner.

On 16th July 1925, the Court of Wards had assumed superintendence of the estate of Saleem Mohammad Shah also as he had become a sharer in the property inherited by the widows and the daughters of Mirza Surriya Jah by means of the decree passed in his favour on 10th May 1925. On 17th September 1925 Saleem Mohammad Shah died. On 5th January 1926 the present plaintiffs submitted a petition to the Deputy Commissioner demanding a $3/16$ th share of the property decreed in favour of Saleem Mohammad Shah. On 5th March 1926 plaintiffs' petition, demanding a share in the property of Saleem Mohammad Shah, was rejected by the Deputy Commissioner. On 28th April 1926 another application was made by the plaintiffs to the Deputy Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner offered to pay the plaintiffs without prejudice a sum of Rs. 8,500 on the ground that they had spent about Rupees 8,000 in financing the litigation on behalf of Saleem Mohammad Shah. The plaintiffs declined to accept the offer of the Deputy Commissioner and instituted the present suit on 16th October 1928, for possession by partition of 3/16th share out of the 7/16th decreed in favour of Saleem Mohammad Shah by the decree dated 10th May 1925. The claim of the plaintiffs was solely based on the agreement referred to above. It was stated in the plaint that the cause of action had accrued to the plaintiffs on 10th May 1925 when the decree was passed and on 5th March 1926, when the Deputy Commissioner rejected the plaintiffs' claim on behalf of the Court of Wards. The Court of Wards was the first defendant in the case, Nawab Qaisar Jahan Begam widow of Saleem Mohammad Shah, and Jaimur Jahan Begam, his daughter, were the second and the third defendants respectively.

On behalf of the Court of Wards, it was pleaded that the plaintiffs' suit was barred by limitation, that Saleem Mohammad Shah was a man of weak intellect and was addicted to drinking, that the agreement dated 2nd October 1920 was not executed by him of his own free will, that the agreement was unconscionable and inequitable and was opposed to public policy and that the plaintiffs had only spent about Rs. 8,000 in financing the litigation on behalf of Saleem Mohammad Shah. It was further pleaded that the plaintiffs were not entitled to interest and that in any case they could not claim more than Rs. 8,500 which the Deputy Commissioner had offered to pay them. Almost similar pleas were raised on behalf of defendants 2 and 3. An additional plea was raised on behalf of Nawab Qaisar Jahan Begam to the effect that her dower debt amounting to Rs. 50,000 was the first charge on the estate left by Saleem Mohammad Shah, her deceased husband. On the pleadings of the parties the trial Court framed 18 issues, but in this appeal we are only concerned with five issues which are in the following terms:

1. Is the suit within time? 2. Did Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah execute agreement Ex. P. 1 in favour of the plaintiffs? 3. If so, was he a man of weak intellect and addicted to drinking? What is the effect, and was the said agreement not executed by him of his own free will? 4. Is the said agreement unlawful and opposed to public policy and therefore not binding on defendant 1?
16. Are plaintiffs entitled to any interest?

The trial Court held that the suit of the plaintiffs was barred by limitation under Art. 113, Limitation Act, on the ground that the suit was one for specific performance of a contract and time began to run from 10th May 1925 when a decree for possession of a 3/16th share was passed in favour of Saleem Mohammad Shah. It further held that the agreement Ex. P. 1 was not inequitable or extortionate and that Mirza Saleem Mohammad Shah and his heirs were bound by it. It was also held by the lower Court that Rs. 10,000 had been spent by the plaintiffs in financing the litigation on behalf of Saleem Mohammad Shah and that they were entitled to interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum from the date of the advance to the date of the decree and 6 per cent. per annum future interest. On the above findings, the trial Court dismissed the suit on the score of limitation. Against this decision the plaintiffs have preferred an appeal to this Court. In his opening address the learned counsel for the appellants attacked the judgment of the trial Court on two points only. He contended firstly that the suit was not barred by limitation, and secondly that the lower Court was wrong in holding that the plaintiffs had spent only Rs. 10,000 in financing the litigation instead of Rupees 19,000 alleged to have been spent by them. The learned Government Advocate in reply raised an additional point, namely that the agreement Ex. P. 1 was inequitable and extortionate and should not be given effect to and that the plaintiffs in any case were not entitled to anything more than the costs decreed by the Senior Subordinate Judge, Delhi, in favour of Saleem Mohammad Shah amounting to Rs. 6,330 on 10th May 1925.

It will be convenient to deal with the question of limitation first of all. Art. 113, Limitation Act, provides a period of three years for suits for specific performance of a contract. The limitation begins to run from the date fixed for the performance of the contract, or if no such date is fixed, when the plaintiff has notice that performance is refused. The trial Court has held that though no date for the performance of the contract was fixed in the agreement Ex. P. 1, it must be held that limitation began to run from 10th May 1925, when a decree was passed in favour of Saleem Mohammad Shah, in view of the maxim certum est quod certum reddi potest. According to the trial Court, the date for the performance of the contract was ascertainable and accordingly such date must be taken to be the date fixed for the performance of the contract. Para. 3 of the agreement Ex. P. 1 states that after a decree is passed, the second party shall be entitled to get their share to the extent of three annas or four annas as the case may be and the first party shall have power either to get the entire property partitioned and then give the said share or get the value of the entire property assessed and then pay money in cash. The agreement further provides that in the case of an appeal to His Majesty in Council the plaintiffs would meet the entire expenses incurred in the prosecution of the appeal and that their share would then be 4/16th instead of 3/16th. In my opinion, it is clear from the provisions of the agreement that the plaintiffs could not sue for specific performance of the contract entered into by means of the agreement Ex. P. 1 on 10th May 1925, when a decree was passed in favour of Saleem Mohammad Shah. If the plaintiffs had instituted a suit on that date for specific performance of the contract, their suit would have been liable to dismissal as being premature. It is clear therefore that 10th May 1925 cannot possibly be regarded as a terminus a quo for the purposes of limitation. The maxim alluded to above and relied on by the trial Court has no application to the facts of the present case.

It was contended by the learned Government Advocate in support of the decision of the trial Court on the question of limitation that under para. 3 of Ex. P. 1 the plaintiffs became "entitled" to their share on the passing of the decree and that the mere fact that the property was to be partitioned or the value thereof was to be assessed did not in any way affect the title of the plaintiffs which accrued to them on 10th May 1925. In my opinion this contention is devoid of all force. The plaintiffs were entitled to get their share after the decree which undoubtedly means when the decree becomes unassailable. On 10th May 1925 the decree in favour of Saleem Mohammad Shah had not become unassailable. It was liable to be challenged in an appeal to the High Court, and on the decision of such an appeal by an appeal to His Majesty in Council. The 10th May 1925 cannot therefore be regarded as the date on which the plaintiffs became entitled to their share. If 10th May 1925 cannot be regarded as the date fixed for the performance of the contract, it must be held that no date for the specific performance of the contract was fixed within the purview of Art. 113, Limitation Act. The second part of Art. 113 would therefore be applicable to the facts of the present case. The trial Court has observed that if 10th May 1925 cannot be regarded as the starting point of limitation, the suit must be held to be within time as no demand or refusal by the defendants is alleged or proved to have been made before November 1925. On the question of limitation, the learned counsel for the appellants relied on A I R 1933 All 410,¹ where it was held that:

The force of the word "fixed" used in Art. 113, Lim. Act, implies that the date should be fixed definitely and should not be left to be gathered from surrounding circumstances of the case. It must be a date clearly mentioned in the contract whether the said contract be oral or in writing.

In a case reported in 11 Lah' 69² the promisor undertook to execute the sale deed after payment of the last instalment in the Government treasury and after the acquisition of proprietary rights, it was held that the maxim certum est quod certum reddi potest could not be invoked in reference to this agreement and that the suit was not barred by the first part of Art. 113, Lim. Act. A number of other rulings were also relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellants, but it is unnecessary to deal with them as the question as to whether the first part of Art. 113, Lim. Act, is or is not applicable must depend to a great extent on the language of the agreement. On behalf of the respondents, reliance was placed on two Oudh rulings, 9 I C 243³ and 66 I C 622.⁴ In the first of these rulings, there

1. Kashi Prasad v. Ohhab Lal, A I R 1933 All 410=145 I C 586=1933 A L J 300.

2. Waryam Singh v. Gopi Chand, A I R 1930 Lah 34 = 119 I C 491 = 11 Lah 69 = 31 P L R 352.

3. Gajadhar Singh v. Kandhya Buksh, (1911) 9 I C 243.

4. Bisheshar Dayal v. Mt. Har Raj Kaur, A I R 1921 Oudh 248=66 I C 622.

was absolutely no uncertainty as to the date while in the second ruling the real question in dispute was left undecided as the case was settled by means of a compromise. 217 P L R 1911⁵ is also not of any great assistance to the respondents as it does not contain any discussion as to whether the first part or the second part of Art. 113, Lim. Act, was applicable to the facts of that case. It was held by a Full Bench of the Punjab Chief Court in 26 P R 1911⁶ that :

Statutes of limitation must be strictly construed and that no man is to be deprived of rights which would by law belong to him unless the specific provisions of law, which are alleged to take away these rights, can be shown to apply clearly and in precise terms to his case.

It was also held that :

The law of limitation must be strictly construed, i. e. its scope cannot be stretched to extend to cases not covered by its language, and, when the indications as to its application are not clear, the construction must be in favour of the right to proceed.

In the present case the respondents have failed to bring the case specifically within the purview of the first part of Art. 113, Lim. Act. I would therefore hold that the second part of Art. 113, Lim. Act, is applicable to the facts of the present case and that the suit of the plaintiffs is within limitation. The next question for determination is whether the plaintiffs have succeeded in establishing that Rs. 19,000 were spent by them in financing the litigation on behalf of Saleem Mohammad Shah. The learned counsel for the appellants merely drew our attention to four cheques of Rs. 5,000, Rupees 10,000, Rs. 3,500 and Rs. 500 which were issued by the plaintiffs in favour of Mr. Abdul Rahman, counsel for Saleem Mohammad Shah, and which were cashed by him between 13th January 1921 and 31st August 1922. It was contended by the learned counsel that the statement of Mr. Abdul Rahman showed that all these cheques were paid to him for carrying on the litigation launched by Saleem Mohammad Shah against the Court of Wards and the widows and daughters of Mirza Surriya Jah. Out of this sum of Rs. 19,000, Rs. 10,000 was stated to be the fee paid to Mr. Abdul Rahman as counsel in the case. Nawab Qaisar Jahan Begam, defendant 2, and her witnesses have stated that the fee fixed with Mr. Abdul Rahman was Rupees 2,000 only. Mr. Abdul Rahman on the other hand has stated as a witness that the fee was Rs. 10,000. Mr. Abdul Rahman was a lawyer of 11 years' standing in January 1921. I am of the opinion that a fee of Rs. 10,000 was highly excessive in view of the amount of work involved and in view of the status of Mr. Abdul Rahman as an advocate at the time when this fee is alleged to have been paid. It was clearly stated in the agreement (Ex. P-1) that the plaintiffs would pay all the expenses of litigation without any objection according to the bills sent by the counsel. The duty of keeping accounts or demanding accounts from the counsel was expressly imposed on the plaintiffs by means of the agreement which forms the basis of the present suit. The plaintiffs have failed to produce any accounts or bills of counsel.

In these circumstances the only way of determining the expenses of litigation is to rely on the decree sheet in the suit brought by Saleem Mohammad Shah against the Court of Wards in the year 1920. This decree sheet is printed at p. 107 of Vol. 2 of the printed paper book. It shows that a sum of Rs. 6,330 was spent by the plaintiffs in that litigation. Rs. 3,000-8-0 were spent on the court-fees and Rs. 3,000 were taxed as pleader's fee. It is true that there are some small items which cannot be included in the decree sheet. The amount spent in incidental charges cannot, however, be taken to be more than 33 per cent. of the amount shown in the decree sheet as the costs of the plaintiff. In view of the non-production of accounts by the plaintiffs of the money spent on the litigation on behalf of Saleem Mohammad Shah, I would hold the reasonable expenses of the litigation to be the sum of Rs. 6,330 shown as the costs incurred by the plaintiff in the decree sheet plus a sum of Rs. 2,110 on account of incidental charges. The total amount spent by the plaintiffs in pursuance of the agreement Ex. P. 1 would, therefore, come to Rs. 8,440. This sum was ample to cover all the reasonable expenses incurred on behalf of Saleem Mohammad Shah in the previous suit. It was held by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 4 I A 23⁷ that :

A fair agreement to supply funds to carry on a suit in consideration of having a share of the pro-

5. Fazal Din v. Amir-ud-din, (1911) 217 P L R 1911=11 I O 299=188 P W R 1911.

6. Sundar v. Salig Ram, (1911) 26 P R 1911=9 I O 800=34 PLR 1911=88 PWR 1911 (FB).

7. Ram Kumar Kundu v. Chunder Canto Mookerjee, (1879) 2 Cal 233=4 I A 23 (P O).

erty, if recovered, ought not to be regarded as being per se opposed to public policy. But agreements of such a kind ought to be carefully watched, and when extortionate, unconscionable, or made for improper objects, ought to be held invalid.

In another Privy Council case reported in 20 Cal 843,⁸ it was laid down that :

The English law of champerty is not in force in India. Agreements made by claimants of property in litigation to share it with others on their obtaining decrees in consideration of funds being supplied by the latter for carrying on their suits are not in themselves opposed to public policy, nor are they necessarily void. But such agreements, when extortionate, are inequitable; and in that case should not receive effect.

In order to determine whether the present agreement is extortionate or inequitable, we have to take into account the respective positions of the parties and other circumstances existing on 2nd October 1920, when the agreement in question was executed by Saleem Mohammad Shah. Alopi Parshad, plaintiff, deposed as a witness that before the execution of the agreement Ex. P.1, he had seen the properties in the city and could approximately assess the value of the properties outside the city. His estimate was that the properties claimed by Saleem Mohammad Shah were worth about eight lacs of rupees. In the plaint of the previous case it was stated that the value of the properties was ten lacs of rupees. A 3/16th share of properties worth eight lacs of rupees would come to one lac and fifty thousand rupees. It would also be apparent to shrewd businessmen like Alopi Parshad and Ram Sarup that the expenses of litigation could not be more than eight or nine thousand rupees if no appeal were preferred to the High Court and could not be very much more than twelve thousand rupees if such an appeal were preferred. By advancing about ten to twelve thousand rupees to Saleem Mohammad Shah, the plaintiffs stood to gain a sum of one lac and fifty thousand rupees in the event of Saleem Mohammad Shah succeeding in the litigation launched by him. They safeguarded themselves by demanding a bigger share of the property in case an appeal were preferred to the Privy Council.

Mr. Abdul Rahman in his statement dated 7th February 1933 deposed that though he had not seen Saleem Mohammad Shah purchasing drinks he saw him slightly intoxicated twice and told him not to come to his office in that condition. Nasir-uddin (D. W. 3) deposed that Rang Mahal was at a distance of about 500 yards from the house of Saleem Mohammad Shah in Kucha Chellan. Saleem Mohammad Shah used to pass the whole day long in Rang Mahal and used to take cocaine in concealment. A year before his death, Saleem Mohammad Shah had told him that he had given up cocaine and he never saw him taking cocaine during that year. It is also in evidence that Saleem Mohammad Shah was a man of weak intellect and was inclined to waste money in making presents to different officials. The considerations enumerated above, in my opinion, make it highly probable that Saleem Mohammad Shah was induced to enter into an unfair bargain whereby he agreed to give up property worth a lac and fifty thousand rupees for a sum of ten or twelve thousand rupees. The learned counsel for the appellants contended that Alopi Parshad Ram Sarup knew that the litigation would take a long time and that during the interval the property might depreciate in value. In 1920 it could not be said with any degree of certainty that immovable property in Delhi would go down in value in a few years. On the other hand, the plaintiffs might have anticipated a rise in the value of immovable property in Delhi. In any case we have to take into consideration the conditions prevailing in the town of Delhi in the year 1920. In a case reported in 11 All 57,⁹ on the advice of his legal advisers, the obligor executed a bond for Rs. 25,000 in consideration of the obligee agreeing to defray the expenses of an appeal to the High Court. The obligor agreed to pay the Rs. 25,000 within one year from his recovering possession of the property in suit; and at the request of the obligor's pleader, the obligee advanced Rs. 3,700 which was applied to the expenses of the appeal. In these circumstances it was held that:

Although there was nothing to show that the obligor could have obtained an advance on terms more advantageous to himself, it was for the obligee to establish to the Court's satisfaction, without reasonable doubt, that he could not have done so; and that, this not having been established, and the reasonableness and fairness of the bargain not being proved by showing that there had been difficulties in negotiating it, or that others had refused it as not sufficiently advantageous to them, the Court should hold the bargain to be a hard and unconscionable one, which should not be enforced.

8. Raghunath v. Nilkanth, (1898) 20 Cal 848=20 I A 112 (P C).

9. Ohunni Kuar v. Rup Singh, (1888) 11 All 57 =1888 A W N 296.

In my opinion the question as to whether a contract is inequitable and unconscionable depends on the circumstances of each particular case. After considering the entire evidence on the record, I am of the opinion that in the present case Saleem Mohammad Shah was induced to enter into an agreement which was highly detrimental to his interests and that such a contract falls within the purview of the observations made by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 20 Cal 843.⁸ I would therefore refuse to enforce this agreement.

The final question for consideration is whether on equitable grounds some relief should be given to the appellants. As I have held Rs. 8,440 to be the reasonable expenses of the litigation financed by the appellants on behalf of Saleem Muhammad Shah, I would pass a decree in their favour for this amount. A sum of Rs. 8,500 was tendered to the appellants by the Court of Wards on 4th July 1928, i. e., about three months prior to the filing of the present suit by the appellants. As this reasonable offer was refused by the appellants, they are not entitled to any interest or the costs of the litigation. No interest should be allowed to them from the year 1921 to the year 1928 as the expense of Rs. 8,440 incurred by them during the litigation cannot be converted into a profitable investment in view of the inequitable nature of the agreement entered into by them with Saleem Mohammad Shah. For the reasons given above, I would accept this appeal, set aside the judgment and the decree of the Court below and grant the plaintiffs a decree for Rs. 8,440. I would order the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

Coldstream J.—I agree.

S.O./D.S. Appeal partly allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 29

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Guranditta Mal — Petitioner.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Revn. No. 1653 of 1936, Decided on 4th March 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Jullundur, D/- 19th November 1936.

Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911) S. 81, as amended in 1933—Scope—Mere use of word

'rent' will not of necessity make that sum recoverable under S. 81 unless "claimable by committee under Act".

The operation of S. 81 is controlled by the words "claimable by a committee under this Act" in the same section. It is not any sum that can be described as rent or fee which can be recovered under the summary provisions of the section, but only a sum that is claimable by the committee under the express provisions of the Act. The mere use of the word 'rent' applied to a sum recoverable by the committee will not of necessity make that sum recoverable as rent "claimable by committee under the Act": A I R 1934 Lah 699, Ref.

[P 30 C 1]

Nand Lal for Mela Ram —

for Petitioner.

Des Raj Sawhney — for the Crown.

Amar Nath Chopra — for the Municipal Committee.

Young C. J.—The Municipal Committee, Nur Mahal, sought for and obtained an order from Rana Mahmud Khan, Magistrate, 3rd Class, Phillaur, under S. 81, Punjab Municipal Act, for the payment of a sum of money from Guran Ditta, which was described as rent. Guran Ditta brought an objection to this order before the Magistrate in which he admitted that he had built a shop on a site belonging to the Municipal Committee, but he said that no rent was due from him. The Magistrate refused to make any inquiry and disallowed the objection. Guran Ditta then applied in revision to the learned Sessions Judge at Jullundur. He held that S. 81, Punjab Municipal Act, did not apply to the sum claimed by the Committee. It appears from his judgment that the record does not show on what basis the Municipal Committee claimed the amount and that even in their resolution authorizing the prosecution of the claim, there is nothing to show what the nature of their claim is. The learned Judge submitted the matter to this Court with the recommendation that the order of the Magistrate be set aside. The learned Judge held that before any order was made by the Magistrate it was necessary that it should be shown that the amount claimed fell within the terms of S. 81 of the Act. That section provides that:

Any arrears of any tax, water rate, rent, fee or any other money claimable by a committee under this Act may be recovered on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction within the limits of the Municipality or in any other place where the person from whom the money is claimable may for the time being be resident, by the distress and sale of any moveable property within the limits of his jurisdiction belonging to such person. . . .

The reference in the first instance came before Abdul Rashid J. and in view of the argument before him he thought it desirable that there should be a decision by a Division Bench. It has already been held by a Division Bench of this Court in 15 Lah 884¹ that where liability for payment of rent arises out of a contract between the parties, it must be determined by a Civil Court and cannot be recovered summarily under S. 81 and it was objected that because the word 'rent' had been added to the section by an Amending Act 3 of 1933, which came into operation after the cause of action in 15 Lah 884¹ arose, that judgment was no longer good law.

In our opinion the operation of the section is controlled by the words "claimable by a committee under this Act". It is not any sum that can be described as rent or fee which can be recovered under the summary provisions of the section, but only a sum that is claimable by the committee under the express provisions of the Act. The mere use of the word 'rent' applied to a sum recoverable by the committee will not of necessity make that sum recoverable as rent claimable by the committee under the Act. If, for example, the sum was payable as rent under a lease, a contract made independently of the Act, that sum would clearly not be recoverable under the summary powers. Having failed to show the nature of the sum payable, the Committee were not entitled to obtain an order under S. 81 of the Act and we therefore accept the recommendation of the learned Judge and set aside the order of the Magistrate.

W.D./A.L.

Order set aside.

1. Municipal Committee, Delhi v. Hafiz Abdullah, A I R 1934 Lah 699=152 I C 919=15 Lah 884.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 30

COLDSTREAM J.

Firm Shankar Lal-Kundan Lal — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

Firm Jamna Das-Piyare Lal, Plaintiff and others, Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 60 of 1937, Decided on 10th June 1937, from order of Addl. Dist. Judge, Hissar, D/- 16th March 1937.

Sale — Postponement of delivery until payment of entire price — Passing of property is not stayed per se—Vendor selling ascertained goods —Condition to keep goods locked with vendor until payment of price — On default goods to be re-sold after notice to vendee—Property in goods held passed to vendee — Suit to recover price held also maintainable under S. 55 (2), Sale of Goods Act.

A provision in a contract of sale for postponement of delivery until payment of the entire price will not per se stay the passing of the property in the goods sold. [P 31 C 1]

Where a vendor sold his ascertained specific deliverable goods to the vendee on condition that the vendor would keep the goods locked up until the vendee paid the price and if the price was not paid by a certain date the vendor was to be at liberty to re-sell the goods after giving a week's notice to the vendee and the vendee failed to pay as contracted and hence the vendor brought a suit to recover the balance of price :

Held that intention of the parties was that property should pass as a matter of fact, because the vendor did not reserve the right of disposal of the goods until the price was paid and hence the suit was valid : A I R 1930 All 661 and 30 R R 355, Rel. on. [P 31 C 1]

Held further that the vendor had a right to sue for price of goods sold under S. 55 (2), Sale of Goods Act, as the statement in the contract of sale that the seller would have the right to re-sell after notice did not deprive him of his legal right to sue for the price if he desired. [P 31 C 1]

Charanjiv Lal — for Appellant.

Indar Dev for Achhru Ram —

for Respondents.

Judgment. — The plaintiff-respondent Firm Jamna Das-Piyare Lal on 1st September 1932 sold by a deed a "kotha" of barley to the appellant-defendant Firm Shankar Lal-Kundan Lal. The price, Rs. 2,029.3.6 plus weighing and other charges was to be paid by 26th March 1935, but the buyer had the option of paying before that date. One of the conditions of the contract was that the kotha was to be kept locked by the seller until the price was paid and if the price was not paid as contracted, the seller was to be at liberty to re-sell the barley after giving a week's notice to the buyer. The defendants had not paid the full price on the contract date and the plaintiffs sued them for the balance of the price. The trial Court dismissed the suit holding that as property in the goods sold had not passed, the payment of the price being a condition precedent to the fulfilment of the contract, the plaintiffs had no right to sue for the price but could only recover damages. On appeal by the plaintiffs, this decision was reversed by the learned District Judge who held that property passed when the contract was made and gave the plaintiffs the decree they sought. The defendants have appealed. The only question is whether the lower Appellate Court was wrong in finding that the property in the barley sold has passed. It is not disputed that the sale was of ascertained specific deliverable goods. For the appellants, reliance is placed on S. 25, Sale of Goods Act, which enacts that :

Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods the seller may, by the terms of the contract reserve the right of disposal of the goods until certain conditions are fulfilled. In such case notwithstanding the delivery of the goods to a buyer the property in the goods does not pass to the buyer until the conditions precedent imposed by the seller are fulfilled.

In my opinion the lower Appellate Court's decision is correct. The proved circumstances show that the intention of the parties was that property should pass as a matter of fact. The seller here did not reserve the right of disposal of the barley until the price was paid and there is good authority for the proposition that a provision in a contract of sale for postponement of delivery until payment of the entire price will not per se stay the passing of the property in the goods sold: A I R 1930 All 661¹ and 30 R R 355.² The contract did not reserve to the seller the right to sell the goods pending the fulfilment of a condition precedent; it provided that the default of payment would give the seller a right to re-sell after notice. The buyer could insist on delivery at any time by paying the price. It would further appear that in any case the seller had a right to sue for the price under S. 55 (2), Sale of Goods Act. The statement in the contract that the seller would have the right to re-sell after notice would not deprive him of his legal right to sue for the price if he desired. This appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

1. Peare Lal Kishan Prasad v. Diwan Singh Ganeshi Lal, A I R 1930 All 661=125 I C 453=1930 A L J 777.

2. James Tarling v. Baxter, 30 R R 355.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 31

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Lal Singh and others — Appellants.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 119 of 1937, Decided on 4th March 1937, from order of Addl. Sess. Judge, Amritsar, D/- 21st December 1936.

Penal Code (1860), S. 302—Several injuries caused by accused resulting in gangrene in foot and leg and causing death — Accused held guilty of murder.

Where a person was seriously injured by the accused and died subsequently, but in post mortem examination it was found that the immediate cause of death was gangrene which had set in in the right foot and leg as a result of injury :

Held that the accused were guilty of an offence under S. 302 : A I R 1928 Lah 851, Rel. on.

[P 32 C 2 ; P 33 C 1]

D. C. Ralli for B. R. Puri —

for Appellants.

A. G. Maurice — for the Crown.

Din Mohammad J.—Lal Singh, Jagat Singh, Tarlok Singh, Anokh Singh, Dalip Singh and Teja Singh have been convicted of an offence punishable under S. 302 read with S. 149, I. P. C., and sentenced to transportation for life. They have appealed. The case for the prosecution is that on 18th August 1936 the accused formed an unlawful assembly and in prosecution of the common object of that assembly, they committed the murder of Achhar Singh. The report of this occurrence was made to the police by Ganda Singh, who is a real brother of Teja Singh, and an uncle of Lal Singh and Jagat Singh, and a granduncle of Dalip Singh, Tarlok Singh and Anokh Singh, accused. This report was made at 12 o'clock at village Kohali where the Sub-Inspector was engaged in the investigation of another case. The Sub-Inspector accompanied Ganda Singh to the spot and found Achhar Singh lying seriously injured. He accordingly first recorded his statement and then despatched him to Amritsar for medical treatment. Dr. P. R. Puri, Resident Medical Officer of Civil Hospital, Amritsar, examined him and found no less than fourteen injuries on his person including eight incised wounds. Both his legs were badly smashed. He was admitted as an indoor patient and ultimately died on 29th August. The post mortem examination on his body was performed by Lt. Col. Dargan, Civil Surgeon, who found that the immediate cause of his death was gangrene which had set in in the right foot and leg. At the trial the case for the prosecution has been supported by Ganda Singh (P. W. 6), Waryaman (P. W. 8) and Lachhman Singh (P. W. 10). As already stated, Ganda Singh is a close relation of the accused. Waryaman was a kamin of Achhar Singh. They all have consistently stated that it was the six accused persons who had set upon Achhar Singh while he was in his fields. Of the accused, Teja Singh was armed with a dang, Jagat Singh with a spade and the rest with hatchets. The accused thrashed Achhar Singh mercilessly and left him only when he had lost consciousness.

Of the accused, Lal Singh has alone admitted his presence at the time of the occurrence along with his son Tehlu, but has set up a counter version to explain the injuries found on Achhar Singh. He has stated that Lachhman Singh, Ganda Singh and Achhar Singh in company with four other persons attacked him and while two of the companions of Achhar Singh inflicted injuries on him with sharp edged weapons, his cousin Banta Singh and one Hazara Singh defended him and that it was in the course of the melee that ensued that Achhar Singh received his injuries. Lal Singh had some injuries on his person which were examined by Dr. Ghulam Muhammad, but the Civil Surgeon, who checked the injuries, had stated that they looked like fabricated wounds.

The accused examined Makhan Singh, Bahadar Singh, Bachan Singh and Kishen Singh in their defence. Makhan Singh stated that on hearing the noise which proceeded from the field of Achhar Singh, he hurried to the spot in company with Bahadar Singh and found a fight going on between Achhar Singh and Lachhman Singh on one side and Lal Singh, Tehl Singh, Banta Singh and Hazara Singh on the other. On their intervention, the parties desisted from fighting and it was then noticed that both Lal Singh and Achhar Singh were injured. Bahadar Singh also made a statement to the same effect. Bachan Singh stated that he was proceeding to his village in company with Kishen Singh when Kishen Singh noticed a fight going on in a field close by and that on going there they found two persons injured. Kishen Singh supported him.

On going through the record most carefully and weighing the evidence produced on both sides, we are disposed to think that while the story related by the defence witnesses is improbable and untrue, there is no reason to disbelieve the prosecution witnesses. If it were true that Banta Singh, Tehl Singh and Hazara Singh had inflicted injuries on Achhar Singh, it cannot be conceived that Achhar Singh or the other prosecution witnesses would have allowed them to escape unpunished by substituting a completely different set of persons for them. Cases do arise, no doubt, where false additions are made, but the implication of persons who are innocent in place of those who are guilty is a very rare phenomena and much more cogent and convincing evidence is required to establish that factor than that produced in the present case by the defence. We accordingly hold that the complicity of all the accused persons in the commission of the crime is established beyond reasonable doubt.

The only question that falls for determination now is the nature of the offence committed by the appellants, especially in view of the fact that gangrene had supervened. Counsel for the appellants have relied on 42 All 302¹ and A I R 1934 Lah 368² and contended that the facts established on the record do not constitute an offence punishable under S. 302, I. P. C. In 42 All 302¹ three injuries had been inflicted on the deceased, one of which was a fracture of the bones of the left forearm, another was a fracture of a bone in the right hand while the third was a fracture of both the bones of the left leg. All these injuries had been inflicted with a blunt weapon. It was held by a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court that, in the circumstances of the case, the law allowed them to record a conviction in the alternative under S. 304 or S. 325, I. P. C. In A I R 1934 Lah 368² the medical evidence was that death was due to meningitis and compression, but it was not possible to say if they had any direct connexion with the injuries inflicted by the appellant, and it was on these grounds that the conviction was recorded under S. 326, I. P. C. It would be obvious that those two authorities are not relevant to the case before us.

In A I R 1928 Lah 851³ the same learned Judges who decided A I R 1934 Lah 368² in a case in which a person had received grievous injuries and as a result of those injuries pneumonia had

1. Rama Singh v. Emperor, A I R 1920 All 110 = 58 I O 468 = 21 Or L J 788 = 42 All 302 = 18 A L J 224.

2. Chanan Das v. Emperor, A I R 1934 Lah 868 = 1934 Or O 617 = 151 I O 238 = 35 Or L J 1283.

3. Fazla v. Emperor, A I R 1928 Lah 851 = 110 I O 230 = 29 Or L J 678.

supervened, resulting in his death, had held that the assailants of the deceased were guilty of murder. We consider that that authority comes very near to the facts of the present case. The question in this case however is more or less academic as even if the accused were found to be guilty of an offence punishable under S. 326 only, they would deserve nothing less than transportation for life, considering the number and the nature of the injuries inflicted by them on their victim. We accordingly dismiss this appeal and confirm the sentence of transportation for life imposed on the appellants.

S.C./D.S.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 33

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Munshi Ram—Defendant—Appellant.
v.

Mehr Das and another, Plaintiffs and others, Defendants—Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 97 of 1936, Decided on 4th February 1937, from decree of Jai Lal J., D/- 8th April 1936, reported in A I R 1936 Lah 920.

* (a) Punjab Courts Act (6 of 1918), S. 41 (3) — Interpretation of clause in statement of custom would involve decision regarding validity or existence of custom — Certificate is necessary (Obiter).

The interpretation of a clause in the village statement of custom would involve a decision regarding the validity or the existence of a custom and therefore a certificate under S. 41 (3) is necessary before appeal is preferred to the High Court: A I R 1932 Lah 397; A I R 1932 Lah 463 and 157 I O 341, Dissent. [P 34 C 2]

(b) Punjab Courts Act (6 of 1918), S. 41 (1) and (3)—Natural meaning of.

The natural meaning of S. 41 (1) and (3) is that (a) even though the decision on custom by the lower Appellate Court is wrong; (b) even though the lower Appellate Court has failed to determine a material point of custom and (c) even though the lower Appellate Court's procedure is marred by grave irregularities, still High Court shall not interfere unless the certificate has been issued: A I R 1916 Lah 276, Foll. [P 35 C 1]

Qabul Chand for M. L. Puri —
for Appellant.

D. N. Aggarwal — for Respondents
(Plaintiffs).

Addison J.—This is an appeal under the Letters Patent from the decision of Jai Lal J. The following pedigree-table is necessary to understand it :

The property in suit was ancestral property in the hands of Mela Ram. Upon his death, his chela Kehr Das succeeded him. The parties are Udasis Fakirs, but it would seem that they are not in charge of any institution, that is, they are merely land owners. Munshi Ram, the real nephew of Mela Ram, disputed the right of Kehr Das to succeed, but it was held that being a chela of Mela Ram, he succeeded as his son. Kehr Das himself has now died. The land has been mutated in favour of Munshi Ram who is defendant 1 in the present case. The widow of Ram Bakhsh, Mt. Har Devi, and Mehr Das, who was the real brother of Kehr Das, have brought this present suit for a declaration that the agricultural land, which had been mutated in the name of Munshi Ram, belonged to them as they were the heirs of Kehr Das. They also sued for possession of a house, but they have given up this part of their claim, and we are only concerned with the agricultural land. Munshi Ram pleaded that the land being ancestral and Kehr Das having succeeded as a son, he, as nephew of Mela Ram and cousin of Kehr Das in his adoptive family, was the heir according to custom which the parties followed.

1938 L/5 & 6

The trial Judge held that there was no family custom proved, but that the parties followed the Customary law of the district. He further held that Kehr Das, as ohela of Mela Ram took the place of a fully adopted son of Mela Ram and in that capacity succeeded him and that the plaintiffs were not entitled to succeed according to custom as natural heirs of Kehr Das as Kehr Das had been adopted completely out of his own branch of the family. He therefore dismissed the suit. On appeal, the learned District Judge held that the parties followed custom and that by that custom Munshi Ram was entitled to succeed on the death of Kehr Das. He consequently dismissed the appeal. The plaintiffs then applied to the District Judge for a certificate under the provisions of S. 41 (3), Punjab Courts Act. The application was barred by time under the proviso to that sub-section, and as there was no sufficient cause for not presenting it within the proper period, the application was dismissed and the certificate was not granted. The plaintiffs then instituted a second appeal in this Court without a certificate. Jai Lal J. accepted the appeal and decreed the plaintiff's suit as regards the agricultural land. Against this decision, the defendant Munshi Ram has preferred this appeal under the Letters Patent.

The learned single Judge, though he accepted the appeal, stated that the question involved in it was not free from difficulty. He also said that the appellants were in possession of the property and that Munshi Ram could therefore only succeed by proving clearly a better title to succeed. He seems to have overlooked the fact that the land has been mutated in favour of Munshi Ram whose name has been incorporated in the revenue papers as owner. There is a statutory presumption in favour of Munshi Ram under S. 44, Land Revenue Act, and this has not been given effect to. Apart from that, there is the question of want of certificate required by S. 41 (3), Punjab Courts Act. The learned single Judge said that the lower Appellate Court had decided the matter not on the basis of any evidence, but merely on the analogy of succession to the estate of an appointed heir. He went on to say that in these circumstances a certificate was not necessary and referred to 157 I O 341.¹ That authority however was only to the effect that where the conclusion of the District Judge was based not upon a consideration of evidence, that is to say on a decision as to the weight of evidence, but was based on the interpretation of a clause in the wajib-ul-arz, a second appeal lay to the High Court without a certificate, and the learned Judges relied upon two judgments of Jai Lal J. to the same effect, which are reported in A I R 1932 Lah 397² and A I R 1932 Lah 463.³ The present case is not one which depends upon the interpretation of any clause of a wajib-ul-arz (statement of custom) but, even if it did, we are of opinion that the interpretation of a clause in the village statement of custom would involve a decision regarding the validity or existence of a custom and that a certificate would therefore be necessary under S. 41 (3) of Punjab Courts Act. By S. 41 (1) an appeal is allowed to the High Court from a decree on any of the following grounds, namely (a) the decision being contrary to law or some custom having the force of law ; (b) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or custom having the force of law ; (c) a substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by the Code of Civil Procedure or by any other law for the time being in force.

Section 41 (3) however then goes on to enact that, notwithstanding anything in sub.s. (1), no appeal shall lie to the High Court from a decree passed in appeal by any Court subordinate to the High Court regarding the validity or the existence of any custom unless the Judge of the lower Appellate Court has certified that the custom is of sufficient importance, and that the evidence regarding it is so conflicting or uncertain that there is such substantial doubt regarding its validity or existence as to justify such appeal. The appellants themselves admitted that a question of custom was involved in their appeal when they applied for a certificate, and there is no doubt that the question in dispute is whether by custom Munshi Ram succeeds or the plaintiffs. No appeal therefore was competent without this certificate, which the appellants could have obtained had they put in an application within time. It was laid down by a Division Bench of the Punjab Chief Court in 22 P R 1916⁴ that the natural meaning of S. 41 (1) and (3), Punjab Courts Act appears to be that (a) even though the decision on custom by the lower Appellate Court is wrong; (b) even though the lower Appellate Court has failed to determine a material point of custom; (c) even though the lower Appellate Court's procedure is marred by grave irregularities, still this Court shall not interfere unless the certificate has issued. With this decision we are in full agreement, and hold that the appeal to this Court was incompetent for want of the necessary certificate.

1. Indar Singh v. Jai Singh, (1935) 87 P L R 390=157 I O 341.

2. Ghafur v. Shahab-ud-din, A I R 1932 Lah 397 =188 I O 680=88 P L R 416.

3. Gul Mohammad v. Attar Singh, A I R 1932 Lah 463=188 I O 688=88 P L R 479.

We accept the appeal with costs before us, before the single Judge, and in the District Court, and restore the decree of the lower Appellate Court, dismissing the suit.

S O./D.S.

Appeal allowed.

4. Sohna Mal v. Nanak Chand, A I R 1916 Lah 276=84 I C 904=22 P R 1916.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 35

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Hayat and others — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

Mutalli and others — Defendants — Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 62 of 1936, Decided on 4th March 1937, from decree of Abdul Rashid J., D/. 22nd February 1936.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 20 — 'Interested'— Defendant dying during pendency of suit — Legal representatives brought on record—In appeal, legal representatives not impleaded until right of appeal barred against them — Such persons cannot be joined under O. 41, R. 20—Time cannot be extended under S. 5, Limitation Act.

Where during the pendency of a suit a defendant dies and his legal representatives are brought on record, but in appeal they are not impleaded until the limitation for appeal against them has expired, they cannot be joined as respondents under O. 41, R. 20, Civil P. C., as such persons cannot be deemed to be persons interested in the result of the appeal filed against other defendants. S. 5, Lim. Act, cannot apply to such a case even if some of the appellants are minors: A I R 1927 P O 262, Foll.; A I R 1929 Mad 348, Dissent. [P 87 C 1]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 22, R. 4 — Joint interest or liability — Joint decree in favour of all defendants, their interests not being separate—Some of such defendants not made parties to appeal — Non-inclusion results in abatement of appeal as a whole — Where interests are separable, appeal can proceed against those defendants that are impleaded.

If a decree is made jointly in favour of all the defendants, and their interests inter se are neither separate nor separable, it may lead to two conflicting decrees, if an appeal is allowed in the absence of some of the defendants in whose favour the original decree stands. In cases like these therefore, the non-inclusion of some of the defendants as respondents must naturally result in the failure of the whole appeal. But where this is not the case and there is no danger of coming into conflict with any other recognized principle of law, there is no bar against an appeal proceeding in the absence of some of the defendants who are not impleaded as respondents. [P 88 C 1]

A suit was brought by the daughter's sons of the deceased against the reversioners for a declaration that the property in suit belonged to them and was in their possession. On the death of one of the defendants during the course of the suit, his legal representatives were brought on record. The suit was dismissed. In appeal from such decree, instead of impleading these legal representatives as respondents, the name of the deceased defendant was mentioned. The appellant applied for making them respondents but at a time when the limitation for appeal against them had expired:

Held that as succession had opened, every reversioner was interested in the estate only to the extent of his own share and no more and so each reversioner had a clearly defined interest in the suit. The suit as brought, though declaratory in form, was possessory in effect. It was as if each one of the defendants ran the risk of being disturbed qua his own share of the property and relief was claimed against him to that limited extent only. The appeal, in these circumstances, could not abate as a whole merely by the omission to implead the legal representatives of the deceased defendant as respondents. The appeal therefore could proceed against those defendants that were impleaded as respondents: A I R 1928 Lah 572 (F B) and A I R 1935 Lah 853, Foll.; A I R 1932 Lah 281 and A I R 1932 Lah 624, Expl. [P 88 C 2]

Chiranjiva Lal Aggarwal and Kundan Lal Gosain — for Appellants.

Mehr Chand Mahajan and Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — This Letters Patent appeal has arisen in the following circumstances: One Bakhsha, who owned a considerable amount of landed property in two villages, Mitha Lak and Dera, made two wills in favour of his daughter's sons, Hayat and Ali: a will of his property situated at Mitha Lak in 1909 and that of his property situated at Dera in 1911. He had a son, Jalal, living then, but Jalal was a born idiot. It was provided in the wills that if Jalal ever got over his idiocy and exhibited sense, he would inherit the estate thus bequeathed to Hayat and Ali. On 6th May 1914 Bakhsha died, and on 26th April 1921, both Hayat and Ali brought a suit against Jalal for a declaration that they were the owners of the land. On 22nd June 1921, a decree was made in favour of Hayat and Ali to the effect that the Dera lands should be mutated in their favour at once and the Mitha Lak lands after the death of Jalal, provided that he died childless. On 26th July 1921, certain reversioners of Bakhsha instituted a suit for a declaration that the decree, dated 22nd June 1921, should not affect their rights. On 20th February 1922, the reversioners' suit was decreed in regard to the Dera lands only. On appeal to this Court, that decree was varied and the declaration in the reversioners' favour was extended to the whole of the ancestral property owned by Bakhsha, whether situated at Mitha Lak or at Dera and the non-ancestral property of Bakhsha, now in suit, was allowed to remain with Hayat and Ali. Jalal did not recover from his malady and died in the same morbid state of mind on 15th July 1930. The reversioners of Jalal alleged that he had left a will in their favour of the non-ancestral property and this gave rise to the present suit by Hayat and the three descendants of Ali, who are all minors. It was brought against 30 defendants and was for a declaration, by cancellation of the will, dated 1st June 1930, that the property in suit belonged to them and was in their possession and that the defendants had no concern with it. Out of these 30 defendants, one was Salehon, son of Ahmad. He died during the pendency of the suit and was replaced on the record by his minor sons, Bakhsh and Maula, under the guardianship of their uncle Lala. The Subordinate Judge held inter alia that the defendants had failed to prove any valid will in their favour, but all the same dismissed the plaintiffs' suit on the ground that they had failed to prove their own title.

Against this order, the plaintiffs preferred an appeal to the District Judge, and in the memorandum of appeal instead of impleading the legal representatives of Salehon, deceased, mentioned the name of Salehon himself in spite of his death. The suit had been dismissed on 26th February 1934 and the appeal was filed on 22nd

March 1934. On 21st April 1934, this mistake came to the notice of the appellants who at once put in an application for its rectification. To this application, objection was taken on behalf of the respondents on the ground that the Court had no power to implead those respondents out of time who had not been impleaded within time, and that as the appeal could not proceed in their absence, it failed as a whole. The District Judge held that in spite of 6 Rang 29¹ he was empowered by law to bring those respondents on the record who had not been impleaded, but as the appellants in his view had failed to make out a case for the exercise of his discretion, he expressed his inability to accede to their request. Consequently on the admission of the appellants' counsel that the appeal could not proceed in the absence of those respondents whose names had been left out, he dismissed the appeal. The appellants then preferred a second appeal to this Court, but the learned Judge before whom it came on for hearing agreed with that decision on the main points and dismissed the appeal. It is against that order that this appeal has been presented.

Counsel for the appellants has strenuously contended that, in the first place, the District Judge should have exercised his powers under O. 41, R. 20, Civil P. C., and brought on the record the names of Salehon's representatives; secondly, the District Judge should have exercised his discretion in favour of the minor appellants under S. 5, Lim. Act, and should have condoned the delay in impleading the respondents who had been left out, inasmuch as the omission was accidental and had been occasioned by the existence of Salehon's name on the record, despite the fact that his legal representatives had already been impleaded in his place, and, thirdly, that, at any rate, the non-impleading of Salehon's representatives could not entail the failure of the appeal as a whole. Counsel for the respondents has reiterated the arguments employed by the District Judge as well as the learned Judge of this Court and equally forcibly urged that none of the prayers made by the appellants could be granted and that the appeal before the District Judge could not be entertained in the absence of

1. Chockalingam Chetty v. Seethal Ache, A I R 1927 P C 252=107 I C 237=6 Rang 29=55 I A 7 (P C).

Salehon's representatives, inasmuch as the interests of all the respondents were joint and Salehon's representatives had obtained a decree in their favour which had concluded the whole matter.

We first take up the question of O. 41, R. 20, Civil P. C. It is true that this Rule enables a Court to implead as a respondent any person who was a party to the suit in the Court from whose decree the appeal was preferred and who had not been made a party to the appeal, but the condition precedent is that he must be interested in the result of the appeal. Now, as remarked by their Lordships of the Privy Council, giving these words their natural meaning—and they cannot be disregarded—it seems impossible to say that in this case the defendants against whom the right of appeal has become barred, are interested in the result of the appeal filed by the plaintiff against the other defendants.

In the face of such a clear pronouncement, it was impossible for the District Judge to have brought Salehon's representatives on the record. The District Judge however thought differently, solely relying on A I R 1929 Mad 343.² We have given due consideration to the remarks made by the learned Judges in that case, but we are constrained to say, with all respect, that we are not impressed by the points of distinction raised by them in getting out of the binding authority of the Privy Council judgment referred to above. That authority did not proceed on facts, but was based on the interpretation of a rule of law and so long as the wording of the enactment remains as it is, the only authoritative interpretation of it is that put on it by their Lordships of the Privy Council. We may also remark in this connexion that S. 5, Lim. Act, does not come into play in this matter. The applications, to which that section is applicable, are clearly set forth in the section itself and unless a new rule is introduced in the Civil Procedure Code making S. 5 applicable to applications made under O. 41, R. 20 or until their Lordships of the Privy Council change their view, the Courts in India are precluded from impleading as a respondent any person who was a party to the original suit and who has not been impleaded in the appeal, if once the limitation for the appeal has expired. It may be that the minor plaintiffs may succeed in a separate suit in setting aside the decree of the Courts below on the ground of gross negligence of their next friend, but that is an extraneous consideration which should not persuade us to overlook an express provision of law.

We now come to the discussion of the effect of the non-impleading of Salehon's legal representatives on the case as it stood before the District Judge. As stated above, the appellants contend that the appeal before the District Judge could proceed even without those respondents, except to the extent of their share, while the respondents urge that it could not proceed at all and that it failed in toto on account of the non-inclusion of Salehon's sons who had obtained a joint decree in their favour along with the other respondents. In support of their respective contentions, counsel on both sides have relied on authorities dealing with the question of abatement and so has the learned Judge of this Court, and though those authorities have no direct bearing on the matter before us, yet it may be possible to apply the principles deducible therefrom to this case by way of analogy.

The subject of abatement has been so fully discussed in the various judgments of this Court as well as of the other High Courts in India that it would be a mere act of supererogation to discuss it again at length. The main thing to be considered in this connection is the true import of O. 22, R. 4, Civil P. C. which deals with the subject. Under sub-r. (1) of that Rule, if one of two or more defendants dies and the right to sue does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, the Court on an application made in that behalf, is empowered to cause the legal representative of the deceased defendant to be made a party and to proceed with the suit. If no application is made under sub-r. (1), the only penalty that sub-r. (3) provides is that the suit against the deceased defendant shall abate. On the letter of the law therefore the contention of the appellants must prevail, unless some other rule of law is violated thereby. For example, the argument that prevailed with the High Court and was approved by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 6 Rang 29¹ was that the finding in favour of the defendants, who were not impleaded as respondents, enured to the benefit of those defendants also who derived their title from them and had consequently become res judicata. Similarly, if a decree is made jointly in favour of all the defendants, and their interests inter se are neither separate nor separable, it may lead to two conflicting decrees if an appeal is allowed in the absence of some of the defendants in whose favour the original decree stands. In cases like these, therefore, the non-inclusion of some of the defendants as respondents must naturally result in the failure of the whole appeal. But where this is not the case, and there is no danger of coming into conflict with any other recognized principle of law, there is no bar against an appeal proceeding in the absence of some of the defendants, who are not impleaded as respondents.

² Kunhanna Rai v. Manakke, A I R 1929 Mad 848=117 I C 796=56 M L J 915.

The leading authority of this Court on the question of abatement is 10 Lah 7.³ In that case there was a joint sale in favour of four vendees and all that was said in the sale deed was that the property had been sold to the vendees in equal shares. The reversioners of the vendor brought a declaratory suit and failed. At the hearing of the appeal it was noticed that one of the vendees had died and his legal representative had not been brought on the record within time. Five learned Judges of this Court after discussing the matter most exhaustively came to the conclusion that the appeal had abated only to the extent of the deceased respondent's share in the sale. At p. 13 of the report Sir Shadi Lal C. J. observed:

It is a matter of common sense that the Court should not be called upon to make two inconsistent decrees about the same property, and in order to avoid conflicting decrees, the Court has no alternative but to dismiss the appeal as a whole. If, on the other hand, the success of the appeal would not lead to such a result, there is no valid reason why the Court should not hear the appeal and adjudicate upon the dispute between the parties who are before it.

The rule laid down in this authority was recently applied to another case reported in 16 Lah 747,⁴ where too the suit was partly declaratory and partly possessory, but the shares of the parties in the land in suit had been specified in the mutation recorded after the death of the last owner. We are in complete accord with the principles enunciated in these two judgments and hold that to cases like these the test laid down there is the only sound test to be applied. We are aware that in 13 Lah 70⁵ and 14 Lah 234⁶ the decision of the learned Judges was against the appellants in those cases, but the principle underlying those judgments is the same as that laid down in 10 Lah 7.³ In 13 Lah 70⁵ it was expressly remarked that the shares of the defendants were neither separate nor separable and in 14 Lah 234⁶ it was observed that on the facts of that case the suit could not have been properly framed, without impleading the whole proprietary body and could not have proceeded against some of the proprietors only, and if the decree were allowed to stand against some proprietors and reversed against others, it would result in two inconsistent decrees.

Applying now the recognized test to the present case, though by way of analogy only as stated above, we find that all the defendants impleaded in the case had a clearly defined interest in the suit, their shares in the estate of Jalal deceased having been specified. As the succession had opened, every reversioner was interested in the estate only to the extent of his own share and no more. The suit that was instituted by the appellants, though declaratory in form, was possessory in effect. It was as if each one of the defendants ran the risk of being disturbed qua his own share of the property and relief was claimed against him to that limited extent only. The appellants could have even compromised the suit with some of the defendants if they so desired and proceeded against the rest in spite of the compromise. In these circumstances it cannot be urged that by merely omitting the names of Salehon's representatives from the list of respondents the appellants lost the whole appeal. He had 1/48th share in the land in suit and that was undoubtedly lost, but the remaining 47/48th part of the estate could not be affected in any manner. The observations by Sir Shadi Lal C. J. in 10 Lah 7³ at p. 15 are pertinent in this connection:

The Courts exist for determining the merits of the dispute between litigants, and it is their duty to avoid, if they can legally do so, a result which causes hardship.

3. Sant Singh v. Gulab Singh, A I R 1928 Lah 572=114 I O 417=10 Lah 7=80 P L R 453 (F B).

4. Bakhshish Singh v. Makhan Singh, A I R 1985 Lah 853=159 I O 999=16 Lah 747=87 P L R 850.

5. Mt. Umrao Bibi v. Ram Kishan, A I R 1932 Lah 281=187 I O 820=13 Lah 70=88 P L R 1003.

6. Ram Ditta v. Shaman, A I R 1932 Lah 624=139 I O 683=14 Lah 234=83 P L R 919.

On these grounds we accept the appeal, reverse the judgment of the learned Judge of this Court and remand the case to the District Judge for disposal in accordance with law. The plaintiffs will get their costs here. Costs in the Court of the District Judge will be in his discretion.

K.B./A.L.

Appeal accepted.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 39

JAI LAL J.

Ibrahim — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

*Yusaf, Defendant and others, Plaintiffs
— Respondents.*

Second Appeal No. 1463 of 1936, Decided on 18th February 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Ambala, D/- 5th August 1936.

(a) Possession Possession is tantamount to notice of claim or interest of person in possession—Enquiry into title of person in possession—Factum of possession proved—Notice must be assumed.

The underlying principle of Ss. 48 and 49, Registration Act and S. 53-A, T. P. Act, is that possession is tantamount to notice of the interest or claim in the property of the person in possession, and whoever deals with such property is put on enquiry as to the title of the person in possession. If therefore the factum of possession is proved, notice to the transferee of the claim or interest of the person in possession must be assumed.

[P 40 C 1]

* (b) Possession — Person in possession under one title—Subsequent acquisition of another title by unregistered document which however requires registration—Subsequent acquisition of title by another person by registered document—Possession of prior person is notice to subsequent acquirer—Postponement of title.

If a person, who is in possession of the property already by virtue of another title, subsequently secures another title to that property by means of a document which requires registration but which has not been registered, the factum of possession prior to the subsequent acquisition of title puts a subsequent purchaser of the same property by means of a registered document, on enquiry as to the title of the person already in possession and has the effect of postponing him to the title subsequently acquired by the person in possession: A I R 1929 Pat 284, Foll.

[P 40 C 2]

Barkat Ali — for Appellant.Tek Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment.—This second appeal arises out of a suit brought by Madhu Singh and others plaintiffs-respondents for possession of 3 bighas 15 biswas of land, khasra Nos. 480, 480/1 and 481. The defendants are Ibrahim and Yusaf. The land in dispute originally belonged to Yusaf. The plaintiffs claimed that Yusaf had sold this land to them on 9th January 1933, by a registered sale deed. Ibrahim, who was the real contesting defendant, pleaded that prior to 5th January 1928, Yusaf had given the land in dispute to him in exchange for land given by him to Yusaf by an oral agreement, subsequently reduced to writing in a document, Ex. D-1, dated 5th January 1928, which was described by Ibrahim and his witnesses to be a yaddasht or merely a record of transaction of exchange, which had already been orally completed. The learned District Judge has held that the document Ex. D-1 is a dispositive document and is not a record of a transaction which had already been orally completed. He has also held that Ex. D-1 required registration and being unregistered is inadmissible in evidence. He has consequently granted a decree to the plaintiffs, thus concurring with the trial Judge.

On this appeal it is contended on behalf of the appellant that the conclusion of the learned Judge that Ex. D-1 is a dispositive document is erroneous and that it is clear from the circumstances, the copies of the khasra girdawari and the oral evidence, that the transaction of exchange had been completed before 5th January 1928. On the face of the document, Ex. D-1 is a dispositive document and it is doubtful whether extraneous evidence can be given to prove that it related to a transaction already completed and therefore did not require registration. But it is not necessary to give any definite finding on this matter, because in my opinion the conclusion of the learned District Judge that there is no reliable evidence of a prior transaction of exchange is correct. I have examined the copies of the khasra girdawari and find that there is no mention of exchange there, except in the girdawari in connection with rabi of 1928, which must have taken place after 5th January 1928. The opinion of the learned Judge below as to the reliability of the oral evidence is conclusive in this second appeal. It must therefore be assumed for the purposes of this case that an exchange was effected by Yusaf and Ibrahim on 5th January 1928, by means of Ex. D-1, which is inadmissible for want of registration.

It is however contended that the document can be relied upon under the Proviso of S. 49, Registration Act, as evidence of part performance of a contract for the purpose of S. 53-A, T. P. Act. The learned District Judge has held that if reference is made to S. 53-A, T. P. Act, the Proviso to that section says that :

Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a transferee for consideration who has no notice of the contract or of the part performance thereof.

He has held that there is no evidence on the present record of any notice to the plaintiffs-respondents of the part performance of the contract. The part performance of the contract in this case however is the possession of Ibrahim. There can be no doubt that Ibrahim was and is in actual possession of the land in suit. Prior to the date of exchange he was in possession as a lessee. He claims to be in possession as a transferee by means of an exchange after that date. S. 48, Registration Act, provides that all non-testamentary documents duly registered under the Act, and relating to any property, whether moveable or immovable, shall take effect against any oral agreement or declaration relating to such property, unless the agreement or declaration has been accompanied or followed by delivery of possession, and the same constitutes a valid transfer under any law for the time being in force. The underlying principle is that possession is tantamount to notice of the interest or claim in the property of the person in possession, and whoever deals with such property is put on enquiry as to the title of the person in possession. If therefore the factum of possession is proved, notice to the transferee of the claim or interest of the person in possession must be assumed.

In the present case it has been found by the learned District Judge that Ibrahim was in possession. That being so, the plaintiffs-respondents were put on their enquiry as to the claim of Ibrahim and having regard therefore to the provisions of Ss. 48 and 49, Registration Act, and S. 53-A, T. P. Act, the principle of which applies to this province, it must be assumed that the plaintiffs-respondents had notice of the possession of Ibrahim. That being so, they were put on enquiry as to his claim to the property, and having made no enquiry, must be postponed to his claim under the unregistered document of 5th January 1928, which is prior in date to the registered document in their favour.

The only one question that remains to be decided is whether the fact that Ibrahim was in possession merely as a tenant before 5th January 1928 affects the case. That matter has been disposed of in a judgment of the Patna High Court reported in 8 Pat 316,¹ in which it has been held that if a person, who is in possession of the property already by virtue of another title, subsequently secures another title to that property by means of a document, which requires registration, but which has not been registered, the factum of possession prior to the subsequent acquisition of title puts a subsequent purchaser of the same property by means of a registered document on enquiry as to the title of the person already in possession and has the effect of postponing him to the title subsequently acquired by the person in possession. This case fully applies to the facts of the present case.

The learned counsel for the respondents finally contended that there was no finding by the learned District Judge that Ex. D.1 is a genuine document or was executed by Yusuf on 5th January 1928, as alleged by both Ibrahim and Yusuf, and that therefore the case should be remanded to the District Judge for an enquiry and a finding on this matter. In the first instance in my opinion the learned District Judge has given a finding though it is not clearly expressed that the document is genuine. He has rejected it only on the ground of its not being registered. But I am of opinion that it is not necessary to remand the case for the purpose, because there is ample evidence on the record to prove that the document was executed on 5th January 1928, and is a genuine one.

The consequence of the above discussion is that by virtue of the possession of Ibrahim, he is entitled to claim priority over the plaintiffs-respondents owing to an exchange effected by him on 5th January 1928. It does however appear that he was negligent in not getting Ex. D.1 registered. I therefore leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout. The appeal is accepted and the plaintiffs' suit dismissed.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

1. Balchand Mahton v. Bulaki Singh, (1929) 16 A I R Pat 284=117 I O 170=8 Pat 316.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 41JAI LAL AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.Ram Het Gir and another —Defendants — Appellants.*
v.Banwari Lal, Plaintiff and another,
Defendant — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 1873 of 1935, Decided on 23rd February 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Kangra at Dharamsala, D/. 19th July 1935.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 149 and O. 33, R. 7 — Application to sue as pauper rejected — Simultaneous order to pay court-fee by certain date — Court-fee paid by that date — Suit held filed when application to sue as pauper was made.

A person made an application to sue as a pauper under O. 33, R. 2. It was rejected by the Court which at the same time asked him to deposit the proper court-fee by a certain date. On so depositing the court-fees by that date :

Held that the suit should be deemed to have been filed on the date when application under O. 33, R. 2 was first made : A I R 1937 Lah 151; A I R 1918 Mad 1039; A I R 1917 Cal 696; 24 Cal 889 and A I R 1922 Lah 225, Disting.

[P 42 C 2]

(b) Principal and Agent — Power to execute pro-note — Principal not doing business involving execution of bill of exchange — Agent has no authority to execute pro-note.

Where the principal is not carrying on any business which may involve the executing, accepting or endorsing any bill of exchange, the agent has no authority to execute any promissory note on behalf of his principal either expressly or impliedly.

[P 43 C 1]

(c) Power of Attorney — Power granted to conduct litigation — Power making principal accept all acts done by agent — Agent cannot execute pro-note for his principal.

Where a principal executes a power of attorney to his agent for the purpose of carrying on litigation in various Courts, and the concluding sentence of which is to the effect "that the executant shall accept and agree to all the acts and deeds of the agent aforesaid as having been done by himself," it merely implies that the principal would be bound by the acts of the agent so far as the carrying on of litigation in Courts is concerned. The powers conferred on the agent by the concluding sentence of the power of attorney cannot be construed to mean that the agent was authorized to execute promissory notes on behalf of his principal.

[P 42 C 2 ; P 43 C 1]

Mehr Chand Mahajan and N. L. Sadana
— for Appellants.

Jaggan Nath Aggarwal and Asa Ram —
for Respondents.

Abdul Rashid J. — The material facts of the case for the purposes of this appeal may be shortly stated. On 11th April 1931 Ram Het Gir, defendant 1, executed two promissory notes in favour of Ghania

Lal, defendant 3, for Rs. 2,180 and Rupees 15,000 respectively. The signatures at the foot of the promissory notes were as follows : "Mahant Ram Het Gir for himself and as general agent of Khoob Ram and Khoob Ram Gir, debtor". It was stipulated in the promissory notes that interest will be charged at the rate of eight annas per cent. per mensem. Ghania Lal, defendant 3, who is the grandfather of the plaintiff, transferred these promissory notes in favour of the plaintiff. The plaintiff instituted the suit, out of which the present appeal has arisen, on 10th April 1934, for recovery of Rs. 20,270 on the basis of the above-mentioned promissory notes. Defendant 1 pleaded that he put his signatures on the promissory notes in question as general agent of Khoob Ram Gir, defendant 2, at the instance of defendant 3. He further pleaded that as a matter of fact no money was due to defendant 3 from him and that he did not receive any consideration for the promissory notes. He however stated in his written statement that he had no power as general agent of Khoob Ram Gir to execute the promissory notes. Khoob Ram Gir, defendant 2, pleaded that he never executed any promissory notes in favour of defendant 3 and that he never authorized defendant 1 to execute any promissory notes on his behalf. He also pleaded that he received no consideration for the promissory notes, that defendant 3 and the plaintiff constituted a joint Hindu family and that the suit by the plaintiff was a collusive one. On these pleadings, the trial Court framed the following issues :

(1) Whether defendant 1 is not liable for the payment of the debt in suit and that the promissory notes Ex. P-3 and Ex. P-4, dated 11th April 1931, are without consideration? (2) Whether defendant 2 is liable for the payment of the debt in suit? (3) Whether the suit is time-barred? and (4) Whether defendant 1 has lived outside British India; if so, for how long?

It was held by the trial Court that the promissory notes in question were executed by defendant 1 on his own behalf and as the general agent of defendant 2, that full consideration passed and that the suit was within limitation. On these findings a decree for Rs. 20,270 with costs and future interest was passed in favour of the plaintiff against defendants 1 and 2. Against this decision, Ram Het Gir and Khoob Ram Gir have preferred an appeal to this Court. On 10th April 1934 the plaintiff had preferred an application under O. 33, R. 2

Civil P. C., for permission to sue in forma pauperis. On 11th April 1934 this application was dismissed and the order of dismissal concludes with the following words:

I therefore dismiss the application of the plaintiff to sue in forma pauperis. He is now required to pay the full court-fee by 29th May 1934.

The court-fee was paid within time and the suit proceeded and resulted in a decree in favour of the plaintiff. It was urged on behalf of the appellants that the plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation. Reliance was placed in this connection on a Division Bench ruling of this Court reported in 17 Lah 831.¹ It was held in this case that where an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is rejected under O. 33, R. 7, there is no proceeding left before the Court and the applicant can then only institute a suit in the ordinary manner and pay the court-fee, and such suit must be held to have been instituted on the day on which the court-fee is paid. In the reported case the application of the plaintiff to sue as a pauper was rejected on 8th July 1931. At the end of his order rejecting the application, the learned Senior Subordinate Judge had made a remark to the effect that the plaintiff was at liberty to prosecute the case on payment of the necessary court-fee. On 21st July 1931 the plaintiff presented an application stating that she had arranged to pay the entire court-fee amounting to Rs. 532.8-8 and that the Court may be pleased to allow her to deposit the court-fee. The Court thereupon passed an order to the effect that the court-fee should be paid on that very day, that the file be sent for and the case should come up on 6th August 1931. It is evident from the facts of the reported case that at the time of the rejection of the application for permission to sue as a pauper, no order was passed under S. 149, Civil P. C. requiring the plaintiff to pay the full court-fee within a certain period. When the Senior Subordinate Judge made a remark to the effect that the plaintiff was at liberty to prosecute the suit on payment of the necessary court-fee, he had obviously R. 15 of O. 33, Civil P. C., in mind. He was not at that time exercising the discretion that undoubtedly vested in him under S. 149, Civil P. C., by allowing the plaintiff to pay the full court-fee within a certain period. In my opinion therefore the case reported as 17 Lah 831¹ is distinguishable.

The learned counsel for the appellants also quoted a large number of other rulings such as 40 Mad 687,² 20 C W N 669,³ 24 Cal 889⁴ and 3 Lah 35.⁵ None of these rulings is applicable to the facts of the present case. Some of these rulings were given under the old Code which did not contain the provisions now embodied in S. 149, Civil P. C., 1908. In none of these cases was the order rejecting the plaint passed simultaneously with the order requiring the plaintiff to pay the full court-fee within a certain period fixed by the Court. It must be remembered that in the present case the order rejecting the pauper application and the order requiring the plaintiff to pay the full court-fee under S. 149, Civil P. C. were passed simultaneously. I am therefore of the opinion that by virtue of the provisions of S. 149 of the Code, the present suit must be taken to have been instituted on 10th April 1934. If this be so, the suit is clearly within limitation. It is unnecessary to refer to the rulings quoted on behalf of the respondents as most of them have been fully discussed in 17 Lah 831.¹

The only other question for determination in this appeal is whether Ram Het Gir had any authority to sign the promissory notes on behalf of Khoob Ram Gir. On 24th August 1905 Khoob Ram Gir executed a power of attorney in favour of Ram Het Gir. This power of attorney is printed on p. 42 of the printed paper book. A perusal of this document makes it clear that Khoob Ram Gir appointed Ram Het Gir as his agent for the purposes of carrying on litigation pending in Civil, Criminal and Revenue Courts. The concluding sentence which is to the effect that the executant shall accept and agree to all the acts and deeds of the agent aforesaid as having been done by himself merely implies that Khoob Ram Gir would be bound by the acts of Ram Het Gir so far as the carrying on of litigation in Civil, Criminal and Revenue Courts is concerned. The powers conferred on the agent by the

1. Alopi Prashad v. Mt. Gappi, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 151=169 I C 868=17 Lah 831=89 P L R 158.

2. Nellavadiu Ammal v Subramania Pillai, (1918) 5 A I R Mad 1039=38 I C 617=40 Mad 687=31 M L J 269.

3. Atul Chandra Sen v Peary Mohan, (1917) 4 A I R Cal 696=38 I C 812=20 C W N 669.

4. Abbhoy Churn Dey v. Bissesswarl, (1897) 24 Cal 889.

5. Dayal Das v. Sundar Das, (1922) 9 A I R Lah 225=65 I C 741=3 Lah 85.

concluding sentence of the power of attorney cannot be construed to mean that the agent was authorized to execute promissory notes on behalf of his principal. On 16th December 1908, and 19th November 1920, two other powers of attorney were executed by Khoob Ram Gir in favour of Ram Het Gir. These were special powers of attorney and authorized Ram Het Gir to mortgage some properties belonging to the principal. None of these documents is therefore of any assistance to the plaintiff so far as the liability of Khoob Ram Gir is concerned. Ram Het Gir is the son of Labh Gir while Khoob Ram Gir is the chela of Labh Gir. It was contended by the learned counsel for the respondents that in view of their close relationship and in view of the fact that Ram Het Gir was generally managing the property possessed by Khoob Ram Gir, it must be held that Ram Het Gir was authorized impliedly to execute the promissory notes on behalf of his principal. This contention in my opinion is devoid of all force. Under S. 27, Negotiable Instruments Act:

A general authority to transact business and to receive and discharge debts does not confer upon an agent the power of accepting or endorsing bills of exchange so as to bind his principal.

Khoob Ram Gir was not carrying on any business which may involve the executing, accepting or endorsing of bills of exchange. Ram Het Gir therefore had no authority to execute promissory notes on behalf of his principal either expressly or impliedly. The trial Court has relied on S. 237, Contract Act, in making Khoob Ram Gir liable for the promissory notes executed by Ram Het Gir. This section runs in the following words:

When an agent has, without authority, done acts or incurred obligations to third persons on behalf of his principal, the principal is bound by such acts or obligations if he has by his words or conduct induced such third persons to believe that such acts and obligations were within the scope of the agent's authority.

After examining the entire evidence, I am of the opinion that none of the acts done by Khoob Ram Gir was such as to induce defendant 3 or the plaintiff to believe that the executing of promissory notes on behalf of Khoob Ram Gir was within the scope of the authority of Ram Het Gir. For the reasons given above, I would accept this appeal so far as Khoob Ram Gir, defendant 2 is concerned, and dismiss the plaintiff's suit as against him. I would dismiss the appeal so far as Ram Het Gir is concerned, and affirm the decree of the trial Court as against him. The plaintiff-respondent will get his entire costs from Ram Het Gir. There will be no order as to costs both in this Court and the Court below so far as Khoob Ram Gir is concerned, as he has succeeded on a highly technical plea.

Jai Lal J.—I agree.

B.D./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 43

BHIDE J.

Bishen Narain — Plaintiff —
Appellant.

v.

Swaroop Narain — Defendant —
Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 359 of 1937, Decided on 25th June 1937, from decree of Senior Sub.Judge, Delhi, D/. 12th December 1936.

Partnership—Rights of partners—Partnership coming into existence on date of execution of agreement—Suit by one partner for recovery of money advanced in pursuance thereof—Suit is not maintainable unless general account is asked—Fact that actual business did not commence is immaterial.

A partner brought a suit for recovery of certain amount advanced to the other partner in pursuance of a partnership agreement. The agreement of partnership came into existence on the date on which it was executed :

Held that the suit to recover an isolated sum was not maintainable without suing for general account. The fact that the partnership business did not actually commence was immaterial : A I R 1919 Mad 373, Disting. [P 43 C 2; P 44 C 1]

Bhagwat Dayal — for Appellant.

Shamair Chand — for Respondent.

Judgment. — A preliminary objection was raised that no second appeal is competent, as the suit as laid was a simple money suit for recovery of Rs. 500 and was of a Small Cause nature. This contention appears to be correct. The learned counsel for the appellant requests that the appeal may be treated as a petition for revision. But even if it were so treated, I see no good ground for interfering. The sum of Rs. 500 which the plaintiff wanted to recover had been advanced to the defendant in pursuance of a partnership agreement and the learned Judge of the Appellate Court was in my opinion right in holding that no suit for recovery of such an isolated item was maintainable without suing for a general account. It was urged that partnership business did not actually commence; but this is immaterial. The agreement of partnership came into force on the date on which it was executed. Clause 13 of the agreement to which the learned counsel referred appears to relate merely to the period of the business of the partnership. 49 I C 191,¹ on which the learned counsel for the appellant relied, was a case of a different character. There the partnership business had ceased and accounts had already been taken. I dismiss the appeal with costs.

K.B./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

1. Sunkara Ratha Doss v. Epari Kopils, A I R 1919 Mad 373=49 I C 191.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 44

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

In the matter of Amritsar Produce Exchange Ltd.

Civil Ref. No. 34 of 1936, Decided on 8th February 1937, made by Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab, North-West Frontier and Delhi Provinces, D/- 14th November 1936.

(a) Income-tax Act (1922) — Interpretation — Value of English judgments.

The English judgments in income-tax cases can be utilised as aids in the interpretation of analogous provisions of law though not as binding authorities on those matters where the language of the English and Indian Acts differs: A I R 1932 P C 138, Ref. [P 48 C 1]

(b) Income-tax Act (1922), S. 4 (3) (vii) — Burden to prove that receipt does not arise from business and is of casual nature is on person claiming exemption.

If exemption is claimed for any item of income received by an assessee, it is for him to show that the receipt does not arise from business and is of a casual and non-recurring nature; if he fails to prove either of these alternatives, he cannot bring his case within the purview of S. 4 (3) (vii) and he will be liable to pay income-tax on the item of income so received. [P 48 C 1, 2]

(c) Income-tax Act (1922), S. 4 (3) (vii) — Produce Exchange business — Investing deposits received in Government securities — Sale of such securities on profit — Profits held arose from business and were not covered by S. 4 (3) (vii) even if they were of a casual or non-recurring nature.

The assessee who was doing business as a Produce Exchange, received a large amount of deposits from his clients in the course of his business and invested them in Government securities. In the accounting year he sold the securities on profit:

Held that the profits arose from business, and even if they were of a casual or non-recurring nature, they were not covered by S. 4 (3) (vii): Case law discussed. [P 48 C 2]

(d) Income-tax (1922), Ss. 10 (1) and 4 (3) (vii) — In determining whether particular receipts form part of business, intention of assessee is to be considered — Income-tax Department finding that assessee's intention was to make profit as part of business — High Court cannot go behind that finding.

It is the intention of the assessee that is to be considered in determining whether particular receipts are part of business, and when once it is found by the Income-tax Department as a matter of fact that the assessee's intention was to make profits from these investments as a part of the assessee's business, it is doubtful whether High Court can go behind that finding. [P 48 C 2]

(e) Income-tax—Capital or revenue account.

The question whether anything taken over comes into capital or revenue account would depend upon evidence of intention at the time. [P 48 C 2]

(f) Income-tax Act (1922), S. 48-A — Applicability.

Section 48-A comes into play only when the income-tax has been actually paid in excess and not earlier. [P 49 C 1]

Kirpa Ram Bajaj — for Petitioner (Assessee).

S. M. Sikri for J. N. Aggarwal — for Respondent (Commissioner of Income-tax).

Din Mohammad J. — Under S. 66 (2), Income-tax Act, the Commissioner of Income-tax has referred the following three questions to us: (1) Was there no material enabling a finding that the proper "account-attribution" for the profit on sale of Government securities within the account period was to profit and loss (and not to capital) account? (2) The only relevant evidence in respect of the profit on sale of property being that the said property was acquired in connection with the business of the assessee for the purpose of realizing moneys, and that this realisation was actually effected within a short time of acquisition, was this such conclusive proof of the profit being outside the scope of the Act that as a matter of law the Assistant Commissioner could not hold that this was not proved? (3) The assessee having in past assessments erroneously attributed part of the cost of an asset other than stock in trade to interest account and having also returned "Interest on Securities" in excess of what was actually then receivable and chargeable under S. 8, is he entitled as a matter of law to have his current assessment reduced by the over-assessment (or by any detail entering into that over-assessment)?

The facts bearing upon the first question formulated by the Commissioner are these: The assessee does business as a Produce Exchange and receives a large amount of deposits from his clients in the course of his business. These deposits he had invested in Government securities and in the accounting period he sold these securities on profit. A question arose whether this profit was on capital account or on revenue account, and it is this question that has been formulated by the Commissioner in the form indicated above. The controversy existing between "capital" and "revenue" has defied solution so far, and it is difficult therefore to lay down any general considerations which would conclusively determine whether a certain income falls under one head or the other. In this case however it is more a question of fact than of law, and it is on that basis that we propose to decide the matter at issue. It is not even denied by the assessee that the deposits that were invested in the shape of securities represented the moneys received by him from his clients in the course of business and the burden lies on him therefore to prove that the profits realized therefrom could not be charged to income-tax.

Counsel for the assessee contends that the investment in question was in the nature of 'fixed capital' and not in that of 'stock in trade', and consequently the profits realized from the securities could in no way form part of his profits or gains of business as contemplated by S. 10, Income-tax Act. He has further urged that the profit realized from these securities is covered by the exemption provided in S. 4 (3) (vii) and that as these profits are of a casual and non-recurring nature, the Act does not apply to them. In support of his contention, he has relied on 1 I T C 152,¹ 2 I T C 184,² 6 I T C 178³ and 7 I T C 67.⁴ But in our view these authorities are not applicable in this case.

In 1 I T C 152,¹ a banking concern claimed to deduct from the taxable profits, a certain sum which represented the amount of depreciation on war bonds and securities belonging to it. A Division Bench of the Bombay High Court held that that deduction could not be allowed under S. 9, Income-tax Act of 1918 (corresponding to S. 10, Income-tax Act of 1922). The ratio decidendi of that judgment was that the assessing officer was not entitled in his discretion to allow any deduction for sums paid or debited other than those properly paid and debited as detailed in sub-s. (2) of S. 9. It would be observed that that judgment does not touch the points awaiting solution before us. S. 10 of the present Act, which corresponds to S. 9 of the old Act, does expressly mention certain deductions which are permissible, and whenever a deduction is claimed, an assessee is bound to bring his case under one clause or another. Here, the assessee has put forward a claim not for deduction, but for exclusion on the ground that the income earned by him cannot be computed in calculating his total taxable income and the question whether a certain income is or is not profit or gain within the meaning of sub-s. (1) of S. 10 has nothing to do with the deductions permissible under sub-s. (2) thereof. Counsel for the assessee however urges that the converse of the principle laid down in the Bombay judgment holds good in the present case, but we do not agree with him. That judgment did not deal with the question of profits and concerned itself only with the point whether a certain deduction fell within the four corners of S. 9. It will not therefore be a safe guide in this matter. In 2 I T C 184,² the Punjab National Bank Limited had invested some moneys in Government securities and claimed deduction on account of some depreciation in the value of those securities. A Division Bench of this Court disallowed the claim on the ground that the investment in question represented 'fixed capital' and not 'floating capital' of the Bank. The learned Judges remarked:

It cannot be denied that the Bank purchased these securities not for the purpose of trading in them but for the purpose of retaining them permanently for use in an emergency. It is the practice of all properly managed Banks to invest a portion of their capital in high class securities in order to have a readily available supply of cash in a crisis. Those securities were not held by the Bank as floating capital: they were not held by the Bank with the object of being dealt in day by day in

1. In re Tata Industrial Bank Ltd., (1922) 9 A I R Bom 75=66 I C 979=46 Bom 567=24 Bom L R 118=1 I T C 152.

2. Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Emperor, (1926) 18 A I R Lah 373=96 I C 380=7 Lah 227=27 P L R 416=2 I T C 184.

3. Commr. of Income-tax, Bengal v. Shaw, Wallace & Co., (1932) 19 A I R P C 138=186 I C 742=59 I A 206=59 Cal 1343=6 I T C 178 (P C).

4. Commr. of Income-tax Burma v. J. I. Milne, (1934) 21 A I R Rang 4=148 I C 98=11 Rang 454=7 I T C 67 (S B).

the ordinary course of business. They were held as an emergency reserve and were regarded as the equivalent of ready cash with this considerable advantage over ready cash that they brought in a small but secured amount of interest.

A superficial reading of the judgment no doubt supports the contention of the assessee to some extent, but in our view what the judgment intends to lay down is that in every case it is to be determined on its own facts whether the investment was a part of the ordinary business of the investor or otherwise. If it could be found that an investment had been made for the purpose of permanently excluding a certain sum from the floating capital of a concern, it might be permissible to hold that that sum was intended to serve as a reserve, or in other words, as fixed capital having no concern with the stock in trade. If on the other hand the facts relating to that investment unequivocally point to the conclusion that the investment is to all intents and purposes a part of the business and that the sum so invested is intended to serve as stock in trade, the profits arising therefrom will form part of the income of the concern. If the learned Judges however intended to lay down a rule of general application that in every case an investment in the shape of securities made by a concern should be treated as fixed capital, we respectfully beg to differ from that conclusion. In our view a sweeping assertion of that nature would be altogether opposed to law. In 6 I T C 178³ the question before their Lordships of the Privy Council was whether a sum of money received as compensation for loss or cessation of an agency was not income, profits or gains within the meaning of the Income-tax Act, and their Lordships came to the conclusion that it was not:

Income did not include receipts of any kind which were not especially exempted under the Act, and the object of the Indian Act is to tax 'income' which is expanded into 'income' profits and gains though the expansion is more a matter of words than of substance.

In their Lordships' view:

Income in the Indian Income-tax Act connotes a periodical monetary return, coming in with some sort of regularity or expected regularity from definite sources. The source is not necessarily one which is expected to be continuously productive, but it must be one whose object is the production of a definite return excluding anything in the nature of a mere windfall.

Their Lordships further thought that the expression 'receipts' arising from business as used in S. 4 (3) (vii) meant receipts arising from the carrying on of business. We are in respectful agreement with the principles laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council, but we fail to realize how they help the assessee. As indicated above, in every case that arises it is to be determined whether a certain profit is in the shape of a windfall or it is a part of a periodical monetary return with some sort of "regularity" or "expected regularity" and if it is found that the assessee intended to make these profits regularly, the judgment of their Lordships of the Privy Council will not stand in the way of the Income-tax Department assessing those profits. Besides, the Commissioner here contends that these profits arose from the carrying on of the normal business of the Company and if that be so, the exemption claimed by the assessee will not be available to him even under the Privy Council judgment. It may further be noted that in A I R 1935 P C 143⁵ at p. 145 their Lordships of the Privy Council have observed:

The word 'income' is not limited by the words 'profits' and 'gains'. Anything which can properly be described as income is taxable under the Act unless expressly exempted.

In 7 I T C 67,⁴ the assessee was a tin mine owner who had been lending money to a mining engineer for working a tin area. He made a further advance to him of a considerable amount of money under an agreement stipulating for payment of a share of the price of the mining area then contemplated to be sold, and received a large sum of money under the agreement. The Income-tax Department contended that the profits made by the assessee were taxable. The assessee however resisted it on the ground that they did not form part of a regular business. It was held by a Division Bench of the Rangoon High Court that these profits were covered by S. 4 (3) (vii), Income-tax Act. Page O. J. who delivered the principal judgment, remarked:

It does not appear to me that it was a business transaction in any sense, but was only a mode by which the assessee sought to secure himself against loss if he lent to Mr. W. S. this further sum of Rs. 10,000 It is clear to my mind upon the face of the agreement that the transaction out of which the £6000 accrued to the assessee formed no part of any business that the assessee was carrying on The transaction was a receipt, not being a receipt arising from business of a casual and non-recurring nature within S. 4 (3) (vii) of the Act.

5. Gopal Saran Narain Singh v. Commr. of Income-tax B. & O., (1935) 22 A I R P C 143 =156 I O 856=62 I A 207=14 Pat 552 (P O).

With the principles underlying these remarks we are in respectful agreement, but the question still remains whether they apply to the case before us. On behalf of the Commissioner, on the other hand, reliance has been placed on 6 I T C 74⁶, 1 I T C 419⁷, (1883-90) 2 Tax Cas 571⁸, (1933) 17 Tax Cas 381⁹, (1925) 9 Tax Cas 141¹⁰ and (1906-11) 5 Tax Cas 159¹¹. In 6 I T C 74⁶ the assessee had purchased a plot of land with the idea of parcelling it into small plots and selling them as building sites at a profit and he sold some plots in furtherance of this intention. Later, the land remaining unsold was acquired by Government on payment of compensation. The Department assessed the profits which had thus accrued to the assessee and the assessee contested their right to do so. It was held that the transaction was an adventure in the nature of trade coming within the definition of 'business' in S. 2 (4), Income-tax Act, and that the receipts from the sales were profits of business and not casual receipts exempt from assessment. In 1 I T C 419⁷ the assessee who was once in regular business as a cloth and grain merchant, which he had given up, received a sum as brokerage for the sale of certain mills and this brokerage transaction was an isolated one in the year of assessment. On a question raised by the assessee that the sum as received by him was not assessable to income-tax as it fell within the meaning of S. 4 (3) (vii), Income-tax Act, a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court decided against him and held that the transaction came within the definition of 'business' and was not therefore exempt under S. 4 (3) (vii). The learned Judges in the course of their judgment remarked:

In taking the view we do, we found ourselves mainly upon the use of the word 'nature' in the exemption. The word is not 'occurrence'. If the language were 'a casual or non-recurring occurrence', there would be much to be said for the contention of the assessee. But the expression 'nature' appears to us to be a word used independently of the accident of the event happening in fact once only or more often in a fortunate year. It connotes a class of dealing which might occur only once, but which might occur several times. Now the adventure of a businessman who is enabled through his business associations to negotiate a large transaction and thereby to earn a heavy commission, may undoubtedly be in fact non-recurring in the sense that so successful an adventure would not be likely to occur again. But, on the other hand, it is a class of transaction which might occur to any such businessman once only or half a dozen times again, during the course of the year.

In (1883-90) 2 Tax Cas 571⁸ at p. 578, the Lord President remarked:

Where the gain is made by the company by realising an investment at a larger price than was paid for it, the difference is to be reckoned among the profits and gains of the company.

In (1933) 17 Tax Cas 381⁹ certain banks converted their holdings of National War Bonds into 5 per cent. War Loan and 3½ per cent. Conversion Loan, the value of the stocks received in exchange being greater than the cost to the banks of the National War Bonds converted. It was held by Rowlatt J.:

They have got a new thing and at the moment they get it, they have got something which is worth more than that which is represented in their books as the thing they got it for. That is the whole of it, and it seems to me that for the purpose of arriving at this system of making profits, which is a perfectly proper system, there is a profit here, and therefore the Crown must succeed in this case.

In (1925) 9 Tax Cas 141¹⁰ it was held by the High Court of Justice (King's Bench Division) that any profits derived by the company from sales of land must be taken into account in computing for income-tax purposes the profits arising from the trade, adventure, or concern in the nature of trade exercised by the company. Pollock M. R. observed:

The question that we have to determine is whether the moneys derived from those sales of land fall into income or are to be treated as capital of the company. That is the question which often gives rise to difficulties and gives rise to different opinions We have to decide upon the substance of the case and not upon what any individual company may deem the particular item in the course of its trading I think the company could, if they pleased, deal with the proceeds of the sale of land either as capital or in profit and loss account according as they determined to be right The facts are not for us; the facts are for the Commissioners who had the case before them.

In (1906-11) 5 Tax Cas 159¹¹ it was held that the difference between the pur-

6. Parashram Chintaman v. Commr. of Income-tax, C. P. & Berar, (1931) 6 I T C 74.

7. In re Chunni Lal Kalyan Das, (1925) 12 A I R All 469=86 I C 189=47 All 368=28 A L J 65=1 I T C 419.

8. In re Northern Assurance Co., (1883-90) 2 Tax Cas 571.

9. Westminster Bank Ltd. v. Oslar, (1933) A C 189=17 Tax Cas 381=102 L J K B 110=148 L T 41=76 S J 831=49 T L R 43.

10. H. M. Insp. of Taxes v. The S. W. Office Co. Ltd. (1925) 9 Tax Cas 141.

11. Californian Copper Syndicate Ltd. v. Harris, (1906-11) 5 Tax Cas 159=6 F 894.

chase price and the value of the shares for which the property was exchanged is a profit assessable to income-tax. There the assessee which was a company formed for the purpose inter alia of acquiring and re-selling mining property had after acquiring and working various properties re-sold the whole to a second company receiving payment in fully paid shares of the latter company. The assessee contends that the English authorities are not of much help in the solution of the problem before us. As remarked by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 6 I T C 178³:

The Indian Act is not in pari materia; it is less elaborate in many ways, subject to fewer refinements and in arrangement and language it differs greatly from the provisions with which the Courts in this country have had to deal. Under such conditions, their Lordships think that little can be gained by attempting to reason from one to the other, at all events in the present case in which they think that the solution of the problem lies very near the surface of the Act, and depends mainly on general considerations.

This is true and we propose, therefore, that the decision of this case should proceed on its own facts and in the light of the Indian judgments, if any. We however consider that the English judgments can be utilised as aids in the interpretation of analogous provisions of law though not as binding authorities on those matters where the language of the English and Indian Acts differs. The word 'business' has been defined in the Income-tax Act as including any trade, commerce or manufacture or any adventure or concern in the nature of trade, commerce or manufacture.

The term 'total income' has been defined as meaning total amount of income, profits and gains from all sources to which this Act applies computed in the manner laid down in S. 16.

Under S. 6 those headings of income have been enumerated which are chargeable to income-tax and under S. 10, sub-s. (1) it is provided that the tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head 'business' in respect of the profits or gains of any business carried on by him. S. 4 (3) (vii) exempts only those receipts which are not receipts arising from business or the exercise of a profession, vocation or occupation and are of a casual and non-recurring nature. The combined effect of all these provisions of law appears to us to be this: If exemption is claimed for any item of income received by an assessee, it is for him to show that the receipt does not arise from business and is of a casual and non-recurring nature. If he fails to prove either of these alternatives, he cannot bring his case within the purview of S. 4 (3) (vii) and he will be liable to pay income-tax on the item of income so received.

We have already indicated that the business of the assessee was a quasi-banking business and it received moneys from its clients for the purposes of the business. It is further clear to us that the investments that had been made had also been made as a part of the same business and the receipts arising therefrom were to all intents and purposes receipts from business. In these circumstances, even if the receipts were of a casual or non-recurring nature, they will not be covered by S. 4 (3) (vii). Apart from this, it is the intention of the assessee that is to be considered in such matters and when once it is found by the Department as a matter of fact that the assessee's intention was to make profits from these investments as a part of the assessee's business, it is doubtful whether we can go behind that finding. On these grounds, our reply to question 1 will be in the affirmative.

The second question need not detain us long. The property in question had been taken over by the old Company from a debtor in discharge of his loan, and the new Company realized profits out of it. As remarked by the Commissioner, the question whether anything taken over comes into capital or revenue account would depend upon evidence of intention at the time. The finding at which the department arrived was that "the object of purchase was re-selling at a profit as soon as a suitable opportunity arose". The assessee has failed to establish that the property was not acquired with the primary object of yielding a surplus on realization or that it was a mere windfall. We accordingly answer this question in the negative.

Coming now to question No. 3. It is admitted by the Department that the assessee was in the habit of compiling his account on the strictly mercantile basis even with regard to the interest on securities. The interest due on the securities was accordingly brought into the profit and loss statement last year even though it had not been actually received. The Income-tax Officer however adopted the cash basis in the present year and assessed the amount actually received by way of interest. The procedure adopted by the Income-tax Officer will no doubt result in double assessment, but whether this is illegal or not will depend on the true interpretation to be put on S. 48-A (1) and (2). Further, that section comes into play only when the income-tax has been actually paid in excess and not earlier and we have not been referred to any other provision of law which we can invoke at the present stage of the assessment to grant to the assessee the relief prayed for. We are consequently constrained to answer this question too in the negative. We answer the three questions referred to us accordingly and order the assessee to pay the costs of the Commissioner.

P.R./D.S. Answer accordingly.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 49

COLDSTREAM AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Firm Dwarka Das-Badri Das—Defendants—Appellants.

v.

Siri Ram and another, Plaintiffs and another, Defendant—Respondents.

First Appeal No. 1584 of 1935, Decided on 8th March 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Delhi, D/- 7th August 1935.

 Civil P. C. (1908), S. 64 and O. 38, R. 5—Attachment before judgment made without complying with procedure laid down in O. 38, R. 5—Order is mere irregularity and not nullity—Third party cannot ignore it and enforce mortgage against claims under attachment.

Though the order of attachment before judgment should comply with provisions of O. 38, R. 5, that is, the order should be a conditional order accompanied by a notice to the defendant, yet non-compliance with this procedure and failure to give the defendant an opportunity to furnish security does not make the ex parte order of attachment a nullity but simply renders it irregular, liable to be set aside only at the instance of the defendant. But a third party cannot ignore the attachment and enforce his mortgage against decree-holder's claims under attachment: A I R 1934 All 456 and A I R 1919 Oudh 4, Rel. on; A I R 1922 Nag 238; A I R 1934 All 165 and A I R 1914 All 511, Ref. [P 51 O 1, 2; P 52 O 1]

Jagan Nath Aggarwal, Bhagwat Dayal and Krishan Swarup—for Appellants.

Mehr Chand Mahajan and Vishnu Dutta—for Respondents (Plaintiffs).

Coldstream J.—The circumstances proved and admitted leading to the present appeal are as follows: Kidar Nath and Shiv Parshad, proprietors of two firms in Delhi, finding themselves unable to pay their debts, compounded with their creditors, and on 30th September 1925 executed a deed promising to pay them half of what they owed in eight months. For the due discharge of this undertaking Suraj Bhan and Kirori Mal stood surety executing a bond recording their guarantee (D. 13). The debtors did not pay according to their promise and several of the creditors sued the sureties for the amount payable under the agreement and the security bond with the result that in 1927 several decrees were passed against Suraj Bhan and Kirori Mal. On 9th August 1928, the firm Dwarka Das Badri Das, to whom Kidar Nath and Sheo Parshad had owed Rs. 15,000 before the composition, sued Suraj Bhan and Kirori Mal in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Delhi, to recover half this sum in accordance with the guarantee agreement together with interest, the whole sum sued for being Rs. 8,839.9.0 (D. 1). At the same time they applied for attachment before judgment of two houses, one owned by Suraj Bhan and the other by Kirori Mal, alleging that the defendants had alienated their other immovable property and were about to alienate these houses (D. 2). The Senior Subordinate Judge passed an ex parte order as follows:

Attachment of immovable property as applied to be issued as the defendant intends to alienate his property in order to defeat and delay the decree that might be ultimately passed against him. In a similar suit decree has been passed against the defendant.

The order was issued in the form prescribed by the High Court for an order under R. 7 of O. 38, Civil P. C. restraining Suraj Bhan and Kirori Mal from transferring or creating a charge upon the houses and prohibiting all other persons from receiving them by purchase, gift or otherwise until further orders. The order was proclaimed, served on Suraj Bhan and Kirori Mal and a copy of it was posted on the house of Suraj Bhan. On 6th November 1928, Suraj Bhan and Kirori Mal applied for cancellation of the order asserting that they had no intention to alienate any property, that Suraj Bhan had immovable property worth two lakhs of rupees in Delhi and that the plaintiffs had got the attachment proclaimed simply to disgrace them (D. 5 and D 12-A). They also asked for compensation (Rs. 1,000) under S. 95, Civil P. C. What happened in these attachment proceedings immediately after this is not known, but on 16th March 1932 counsel for Suraj Bhan withdrew his application. It is to be presumed that it was dismissed and the attachment order thus confirmed. On 4th September 1930, Suraj Bhan executed a deed mortgaging his house in respect of which the prohibitory order had been passed in favour of Siri Ram and his brother Ram Sarup for Rs. 20,000 with possession, taking the house on lease from the mortgagees. The mortgage (a translation of which is at page 84 of the printed book III) was registered six days later.

On 26th January 1933, Siri Ram and Ram Sarup sued Suraj Bhan to recover their mortgage loan. They obtained a preliminary mortgage decree on 6th March 1933. This decree was made final on 13th March 1935. On the day on which the preliminary decree was passed, the suit brought by Dwarka Das-Badri Das for Rs. 8,839.9.0 was also decreed. In executing this decree by sale of Suraj Bhan's house they were met by the objection of the mortgagees Siri Ram and Ram Sarup who asked that the sale should be subject to their mortgagee rights (D. 9). This objection was dismissed on 27th April 1933 on the ground that as the attachment before judgment was admittedly made long before the mortgage, the latter could not affect the former (D. 10). Thereupon Siri Ram and Ram Sarup instituted against the firm Dwarka Das-Badri Das the suit out of which this appeal arises alleging that the attachment of Suraj Bhan's house was illegal and invalid because it had been ordered without issuing notice and without giving Suraj Bhan the opportunity of furnishing security as required by O. 38, Civil P. C., and praying for a declaration that the mortgage created a first charge on the house in their favour and that the order of 27th April 1933 dismissing their objection was wrong.

The suit was contested by Dwarka Das-Badri Das on the pleas inter alia that the suit was barred by S. 47, Civil P. C., that the attachment was effective against the mortgage even though it had been ordered without notice to the objector, that the fact that the house had been attached had been admitted by the plaintiffs Siri Ram and Ram Sarup when their application for cancellation of the attachment order was dismissed, that the mortgage was a fictitious transaction effected without consideration in bad faith to defraud creditors and that the suit was instituted in collusion with Suraj Bhan. Of the several issues struck for trial, we are concerned with three only, namely :

(1) Do the provisions of S. 47, Civil P. C. bar the suit ? (5) Was the mortgage effected in order to defraud the creditors of Suraj Bhan ? and (6) Was the attachment of Suraj Bhan's house before judgment in the suit Dwarka Das v. Suraj Bhan invalid, void and ultra vires and is the mortgage therefore (not) legally enforceable against the mortgaged property ?

On 5th June 1934, the Subordinate Judge decided that the suit was not barred by S. 47, Civil P. C., and after hearing the evidence produced by the parties he delivered judgment in favour of the plaintiffs holding that the attachment order was ultra vires, illegal and not binding on the plaintiffs and that the plaintiffs' mortgage was therefore enforceable against the mortgaged property. Against this decision the present appeal has been preferred by Dwarka Das-Badri Das. It is contended on their behalf that upon the evidence produced in the case the lower Court ought to have held that the mortgage was a fraudulent and bogus transaction and that in any case, having been effected contrary to the attachment, it was void as against the appellants' claim. As regards the point whether S. 47, Civil P. C., barred the suit, it is not disputed that this will depend on the question whether a valid attachment was subsisting at the time of the mortgage : see 6 Lah 544.¹

It is also not now disputed that the mortgage deed was properly executed and that the full consideration stated was paid to the mortgagor by the plaintiff-mortgagees. The argument is that the surrounding circumstances leave no room for doubt that the transaction was a fiction and a fraud and the mortgagees were not bona fide purchasers for valuable consideration. (His Lordship after discussing the evidence concluded that the transaction was not secret and the circumstances justified no presumption that the plaintiffs colluded with Suraj Bhan to hold the mortgaged property for him, and proceeded.) The question remains whether the mortgage was void against Dwarka Das-Badri Das under S. 64, Civil P. C. The Court had power to order the attachment of any of the defendant's property : see S. 94, Civil P. C. The Rules prescribing the procedure are in O. 38 of the Code. They lay down that where the Court is satisfied that the defendant is about to dispose of the whole or part of the property to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him, it may order his property to be attached. But R. 5 of the Order prescribes that before it orders attachment, the Court may direct the defendant either to furnish security to produce the property or the value of it, or to show cause why he should not furnish security. In doing so the Court may direct the conditional attachment of the property. R. 6 prescribes that where the defendant fails to show cause why he should not furnish security or fails to furnish the security, the Court may order the property to be attached, and R. 7 lays down that the attachment shall be made in the manner provided for the attachment of property in execution of a decree. In App F of the Code are prescribed the proper forms for notice to be given to defendant (No. 5), for the furnishing of security (No. 6), and the form in which the attachment is to be ordered (No. 7). The Court did not act in conformity with these Rules. It did not issue notice under R. 5 and made no order for a conditional attachment but forthwith and ex parte attached the property. The attachment order was therefore obviously irregular. In holding that it was a nullity the learned Subordinate Judge has relied on 68 I C 188² and A I R 1934 All 165.³ The first of these judgments is a decision by the Additional Judicial Commissioner of Nagpur and is to the point. It was there held that an attachment, apparently ordered under R. 6 of O. 38 of the Procedure Code without the procedure prescribed in R. 5 of the Order, was ultra vires and ineffective against the enforcement of a mortgage effected during the attachment. The Allahabad ruling also by a single Judge is to the same effect.

1. Ishar Das v. Parma Nand, A I R 1926 Lah 184=98 I O 30=6 Lah 544.

It is contended before us by the appellants' counsel that these do not lay down the law correctly inasmuch as the omission to observe the procedure laid down in R. 5 did not deprive the Court of its inherent jurisdiction under S. 94 and O. 38 of the Code to attach property before judgment.

The attachment order ought, no doubt, to have been expressly a conditional order accompanied by a notice to the defendant in accordance with sub-rule 1 of R. 5, but it is argued that this is an irregularity which cannot as against third parties affect the subsistence and legal effect of the attachment actually made. For the respondents it is argued that the power of a Court to attach before judgment, that is to say deprive a person of a right before any adjudication upon a claim against him, is one of a very special kind and the exercise of this power without all proper formalities vitiates an attachment, for, until the procedure prescribed by R. 5 has been followed and the defendant has failed to show cause or furnish security (R. 6), the Court can have no jurisdiction to make an absolute order of attachment before judgment.

Counsel have referred us to a very large number of decisions in support of their respective contentions. With the exception of the rulings cited above, those relied upon by the respondents' counsel do not appear to be of much assistance for the decision of the present case. The order in this case was obviously irregular and liable to be set aside on appeal by the defendant whose property was attached: see for example 23 I C 107.⁴ But will such an irregularity render the conditional attachment a mere nullity which a third party can ignore? I think not. In 23 I C 107,⁴ a Division Bench judgment by the Allahabad Court which was relied on by Rachhpal Singh J. in A I R 1934 All 165,³ where an attachment made without the defendant having been called upon to show cause or furnish security under R. 6 was set aside at the instance of the defendant in the suit, Ryves and Piggott JJ. remarked that the order was irregular and objectionable. As noticed by Sulaiman and Mukerji JJ. in A I R 1934 All 456⁵, it does not follow that the order was wholly ultra vires or void ab initio. The judgment in 55 I C 481⁶ (Stuart A. J. C. and Kanhaiya Lal A. J. C.) lends some support to my view. In that case a plaintiff had submitted an application purporting to be under O. 39, R. 1 of the Code but asking for attachment of a village.

4. Nathu Mal v. Kishori Lal, A I R 1914 All 511 = 23 I C 107.

5. Prag Nath v. Indra Devi, A I R 1934 All 456 = 148 I C 509.

6. Bishambhar Nath v. Girdhari Lal, A I R 1919 Oudh 4 = 55 I C 481 = 28 O C 18 = 7 O L J 1.

2. Bansel Lal v. Sita Ram, A I R 1922 Nag 238 = 68 I C 188.

3. Dular Singh v. Ram Chander, A I R 1934 All 165 = 147 I C 509 = 1938 A L J 1501.

The Court ordered attachment and issued an order restraining the defendant from transferring or charging the property and all other persons from receiving the property by purchase or otherwise. It was held that an attachment having been ordered and effected in accordance with the procedure prescribed in R. 8 of O. 38 and R. 54 of O. 21, the omission to issue a notice was nothing more than an irregularity which could have justified Ram Singh in moving the Court to discharge the order or asking a higher Court to set it aside. I have no doubt of the correctness of that judgment, if I say so with due respect, and I agree with the remarks made at p. 484 of the report regarding the effect of an attachment in the circumstances of the case. Those circumstances are not very different from those in the present case and the principle applied appears to me to be applicable here.

The Court in the present case was properly moved. It had jurisdiction to attach. It made an order of attachment, and this order was issued and the attachment carried out with the proper formalities required by the law. The present respondents had no right to raise any objection to the attachment and the only person who could object, the defendant in the case, did object, but the order continued to subsist and after the defendant had full opportunity to show cause under R. 6 it was ultimately confirmed and made absolute. I can see no ground for holding that it was a nullity, although the procedure of the Court was irregular. It follows that under S. 64, Civil P. C., the attachment made void the respondents' rights as against the appellants' claim under the attachment. I would therefore accept this appeal and setting aside the judgment of the trial Court dismiss the suit with costs throughout against the contesting defendants.

Abdul Rashid J.—I agree.

P.R./D.S. Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 52

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Shahu — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Mt. Rahmon — Defendant —

Respondent.

First Appeals Nos. 210 and 306 of 1936, Decided on 26th February 1937, from decree of Senior Sub.Judge, Gujrat, D/- 21st April 1936.

Civil P. C. (1908), O. 23, R. 1 and S. 11—Bar to fresh suit—In appeal parties agreeing to dismissal of appeal—Court passing order dismissing appeal allowing plaintiff to file fresh suit — Suit held not one withdrawn under O. 23, R. 1—Fresh suit on same cause of action held barred by res judicata.

Where on dismissal of the suit the plaintiff files an appeal and in appeal the Appellate Court passes an order that the parties agree that the appeal may be dismissed and further states in the order that the plaintiff is permitted to bring a fresh suit and ultimately concludes the order by stating that the appeal is dismissed, it cannot be said under these circumstances that the suit is withdrawn under O. 23, R. 1 and not dismissed. On the dismissal of the appeal, the suit automatically is dismissed and the Court ceases to have any further jurisdiction in the matter and it ceases to have any power to grant permission to the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit on the same cause of action. A subsequent suit brought by the plaintiff on the basis of such order is barred by principles of res judicata: 13 M I A 160 (P C) and A I R 1925 P C 55, Rel. on.

[P 53 C 2; P 54 C 1, 2]

M. Sleem and Mohammad Monir —

for Appellant.

Niaz Ali — for Respondent.

Din Mohammad J.—This judgment will dispose of Civil Appeals Nos. 210 and 306 of 1936. They have arisen in the following circumstances: One Ali died leaving him surviving a minor widow, Mt. Rahmon, and a nephew Shahu. Ali's estate was under customary law mutated in favour of his widow. Some time after his death, Shahu petitioned the revenue authorities for the substitution of his name for that of Mt. Rahmon on the ground of her re-marriage with one Mian Khan. The Assistant Collector accepted the petition and effected the mutation accordingly. On appeal his order was set aside by the Collector. Thereupon Shahu instituted a declaratory suit in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Gujrat. Only one issue was raised in the case, that of re-marriage. The Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that no re-marriage had been established and accordingly dismissed the suit with costs. In the course of his judgment the Senior Subordinate Judge also remarked that a declaratory suit could not be instituted inasmuch as the plaintiff was out of possession. He however did not dismiss the suit on that ground as that plea had not been urged. From that order of dismissal, an appeal was preferred to this Court which came on for hearing before a Division Bench on 13th February 1935. The learned Judges who composed the Bench made the following order:

The learned counsel for the parties agree that this appeal may be dismissed, and that the plaintiff-appellant may be permitted to bring a fresh suit for possession, if so advised. We grant permission to bring a fresh suit and dismiss this appeal. Parties to bear their own costs throughout.

Presumably in pursuance of this order, on 8th March 1935 Shahu instituted a suit for possession of the land in suit and the cause of action was stated to be the same as was urged in the previous suit. It was however added that according to Mt. Rahmon's own witnesses in the previous suit she had re-married Manak also. In para. 5 of the plaint it was stated that the suit was being instituted in accordance with the order of the High Court referred to above which had been made with the consent of the parties. Various defences were raised to this suit. The alleged re-marriage was denied. It was also contended that the land was not ancestral qua the plaintiff, and as Mt. Bhari, daughter of Ali by another wife, was alive, the plaintiff had no locus standi to bring the suit. It was further urged that the previous judgment of the Senior Subordinate Judge, holding that no re-marriage had been proved, operated as res judicata. On these pleadings seven issues were framed, viz :

- (1) Whether Mt. Rahmon has re-married Mian Khan as well as Manak after the death of Ali ?
- (2) Whether the plaintiff is an heir of the deceased Ali ?
- (3) Whether the decision in the previous suit operates as res judicata on the question of the second marriage of Mt. Rahmon ?
- (4) Whether she was no party to the compromise in the High Court by which the plaintiff was allowed to bring a fresh suit ?
- (5) How that permission affects the present case ?
- (6) Whether plaintiff can bring the present suit in the presence of the daughter of Ali ?
- (7) What relief is the plaintiff entitled to ?

On 30th March 1936, an additional issue was framed, viz. "whether the land in suit is ancestral qua the plaintiff?" The Senior Subordinate Judge held that re-marriage was established and further decided the question of res judicata against the defendant but dismissed the suit on the ground that the land being non-ancestral, the plaintiff had no locus standi to sue in the presence of Ali's daughter. Against this order the plaintiff has filed Civil Appeal No. 210 of 1936 attacking the decree of dismissal, while Mt. Rahmon has filed Civil Appeal No. 306 of 1936 claiming a declaration that she is the widow of Ali and not the wife of one Mian Khan. Counsel for the appellant has attacked the judgment of the Senior Subordinate Judge on the ground that sufficient opportunity was not allowed to the appellant to prove the additional issue and that in fairness and justice the case should be remanded to enable the appellant to lead evidence on that issue. Counsel for the respondents, while opposing the appellant's application for remand, has pressed the question of res judicata, and as we consider that this objection is sufficient to dispose of the appeals, we propose to deal with it in the first instance.

We have already quoted the order of the learned Judges of this Court made on 13th February 1935 which forms the basis of the present discussion. On behalf of the respondent it is contended that inasmuch as the appeal was dismissed the learned Judges ceased to have any further jurisdiction in the matter and were therefore incompetent to allow the plaintiff permission to bring a fresh suit in respect of the subject matter of the previous suit. Counsel for the appellant has urged that, firstly, the order was made under O. 23, R. 1, although it was not clearly expressed in those terms, and that consequently the learned Judges were empowered under the law to grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from the previous suit with liberty to institute a fresh suit in respect of the same cause of action ; and secondly, the order was made with the consent of the parties and the respondent was therefore precluded from raising any objection on this score.

On examining the authorities which have come to our notice on this point, we consider that the contention of the respondent must prevail. Whatever the impression of the parties at the time when the order was made, the order itself does not refer to O. 23, R. 1, nor is it so worded as to convey that it was intended by the Court to operate as an order under O. 23, R. 1. As stated above, at the very outset the order says : "that the parties agree that the appeal may be dismissed" and while stating "that the plaintiff is permitted to bring a fresh suit" it concludes with the words "we dismiss the appeal". In these circumstances, it cannot be urged that the previous suit was withdrawn and not dismissed. It has been pointed out in various judgments of the Courts in India as well as of their Lordships of the Privy Council that if once a suit is dismissed, the Court ceases to have any further jurisdiction in the matter, and that consequently it is not empowered to grant permission to the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit on the same cause of action. A reference in this respect may be made to 13 M I A 160¹ and 47 All 158.² In 13 M I A 160¹ their Lordships of the Privy Council observed [see headnote] :

There is no power in the Courts in India, similar to that exercised by Courts of Equity or Common Law in England, to dismiss a suit with liberty for the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit for the same matter, or to enter a non-suit. Such power of the Indian Courts is limited to questions of form as in the case (1) of misjoinder of parties or of the matters in suit, (2) where a material document has been rejected for not having a proper stamp, and (3) if there has been an improper valuation of the subject matter of the suit ; but not to a case where the issue has been joined, and the plaintiff fails to produce the evidence he is bound to give to support the issue.

In 47 All 158² a suit was originally brought by the appellants against certain defendants contesting a gift executed by a Hindu widow. During the pendency of the suit the widow died. The plaintiffs might have continued their suit for a declaration but as their real intention was to get possession, they endeavoured to turn their suit into one for possession. This object they could not achieve in that suit as brought. Accordingly they made an application to the trial Court for permission to amend the plaint. The trial Court rejected the application on the ground that it was an attempt to introduce a new case. The plaintiffs admitted through their counsel that if they could not succeed in amending the plaint, their suit must fail. Thereupon the trial Judge dismissed the suit with costs remarking in the course of his judgment :

The death of the lady has given the plaintiff a fresh cause of action for possession. I leave them to the liberty of filing a fresh suit for possession.

The plaintiffs filed a fresh suit and the defendants pleaded the bar of res judicata. To meet that plea a similar argument was advanced as in the present case. Their Lordships of the Privy Council remarked as follows :

But as the Judges in the Court of the Judicial Commissioner have observed, some complication was introduced by the language of the Judge who tried the first case and by his expressing himself as if he had power to give leave to bring a fresh suit. It was contended on behalf of the plaintiffs that in so expressing himself he was purporting to exercise the powers given to the Court by O. 28, which allows the Court in certain cases to grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from a suit with liberty to issue a fresh suit, in which case the bar against a fresh suit which is otherwise imposed on a plaintiff who abandons his first suit is removed.

The same point was raised at their Lordships' bar, but their Lordships agree with the Court of the Judicial Commissioner that it is not a good one. There is no application for leave to withdraw the suit, nor was it withdrawn ; it was dismissed. And the power of the learned Judge ceased upon this dismissal. It may have been unfortunate for the plaintiffs that the learned Judge thought that he had a power which he did not possess

We are unable to distinguish the present case from the case decided in 47 All 158.² Here also it does not appear that any application for withdrawal had been made, nor was the previous case allowed to be withdrawn. Both parties agreed that the appeal may be dismissed and it was accordingly dismissed. In these circumstances we are constrained to hold that the finding arrived at in the previous suit that no re-marriage had taken place became final and could not be re-agitated in any subsequent suit. In this view of the case no other question arises. We accordingly affirm the decision of the Court below though on different grounds and dismiss Appeal No. 210 of 1936. In the peculiar circumstances of the case, we leave the parties to bear their own costs before us.

Coming now to Civil Appeal No. 306 of 1936, it was not necessary for Mt. Rahmon to have appealed, inasmuch as under R. 22 of O. 41 she could have supported the order of dismissal on any of the grounds decided against her. We have already upheld her plea of res judicata and decided that the previous finding of the Senior Subordinate Judge that she had not re-married stands. It is not therefore necessary to do anything further in the matter. We accordingly dismiss this appeal making no order as to costs.

P.R./A.L.

Appeal dismissed.

1. Robert Watson & Co. v. Collector of Zilla Rajshahye, (1869-70) 18 M I A 160=3 Beng L R P O 48=12 W R 43 (P O).

2. Fateh Singh v. Jagannath Baksh Singh, A I R 1925 P O 55=91 I O 280 = 52 I A 100 = 47 All 158=27 O O 894 (P O).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 55

COLDSTREAM AND JAI LAL JJ.

Mt. Nidh Kaur and another — Defendants — Appellants.
v.

Gian Singh, Plaintiff and another,
Defendant — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 2255 of 1935, Decided on 19th February 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Gujrat, D/- 29th July 1935.

(a) Evidence Act (1872), S. 90—Presumption applies even to fact that testator was in sound disposing state of mind.

The presumption under S. 90 applies even to the fact that the testator was in a sound disposing state of mind. Where a presumption has been raised by a trial Court under S. 90, a Court of Appeal will be slow to interfere with the exercise of its discretion: A I R 1930 Mad 744, Rel. on. [P 56 C 2]

(b) Custom (Punjab) — Evidence — Statements in riwaj-i-am—Evidentiary value of.

The statements of customs recorded in the riwaj-i-am of a tahsil or district regarding the customary law followed by the various tribes holding land in the tahsil in matters of succession are by themselves strong evidence of the customs followed by members of those tribes even if instances are not cited. [P 58 C 1]

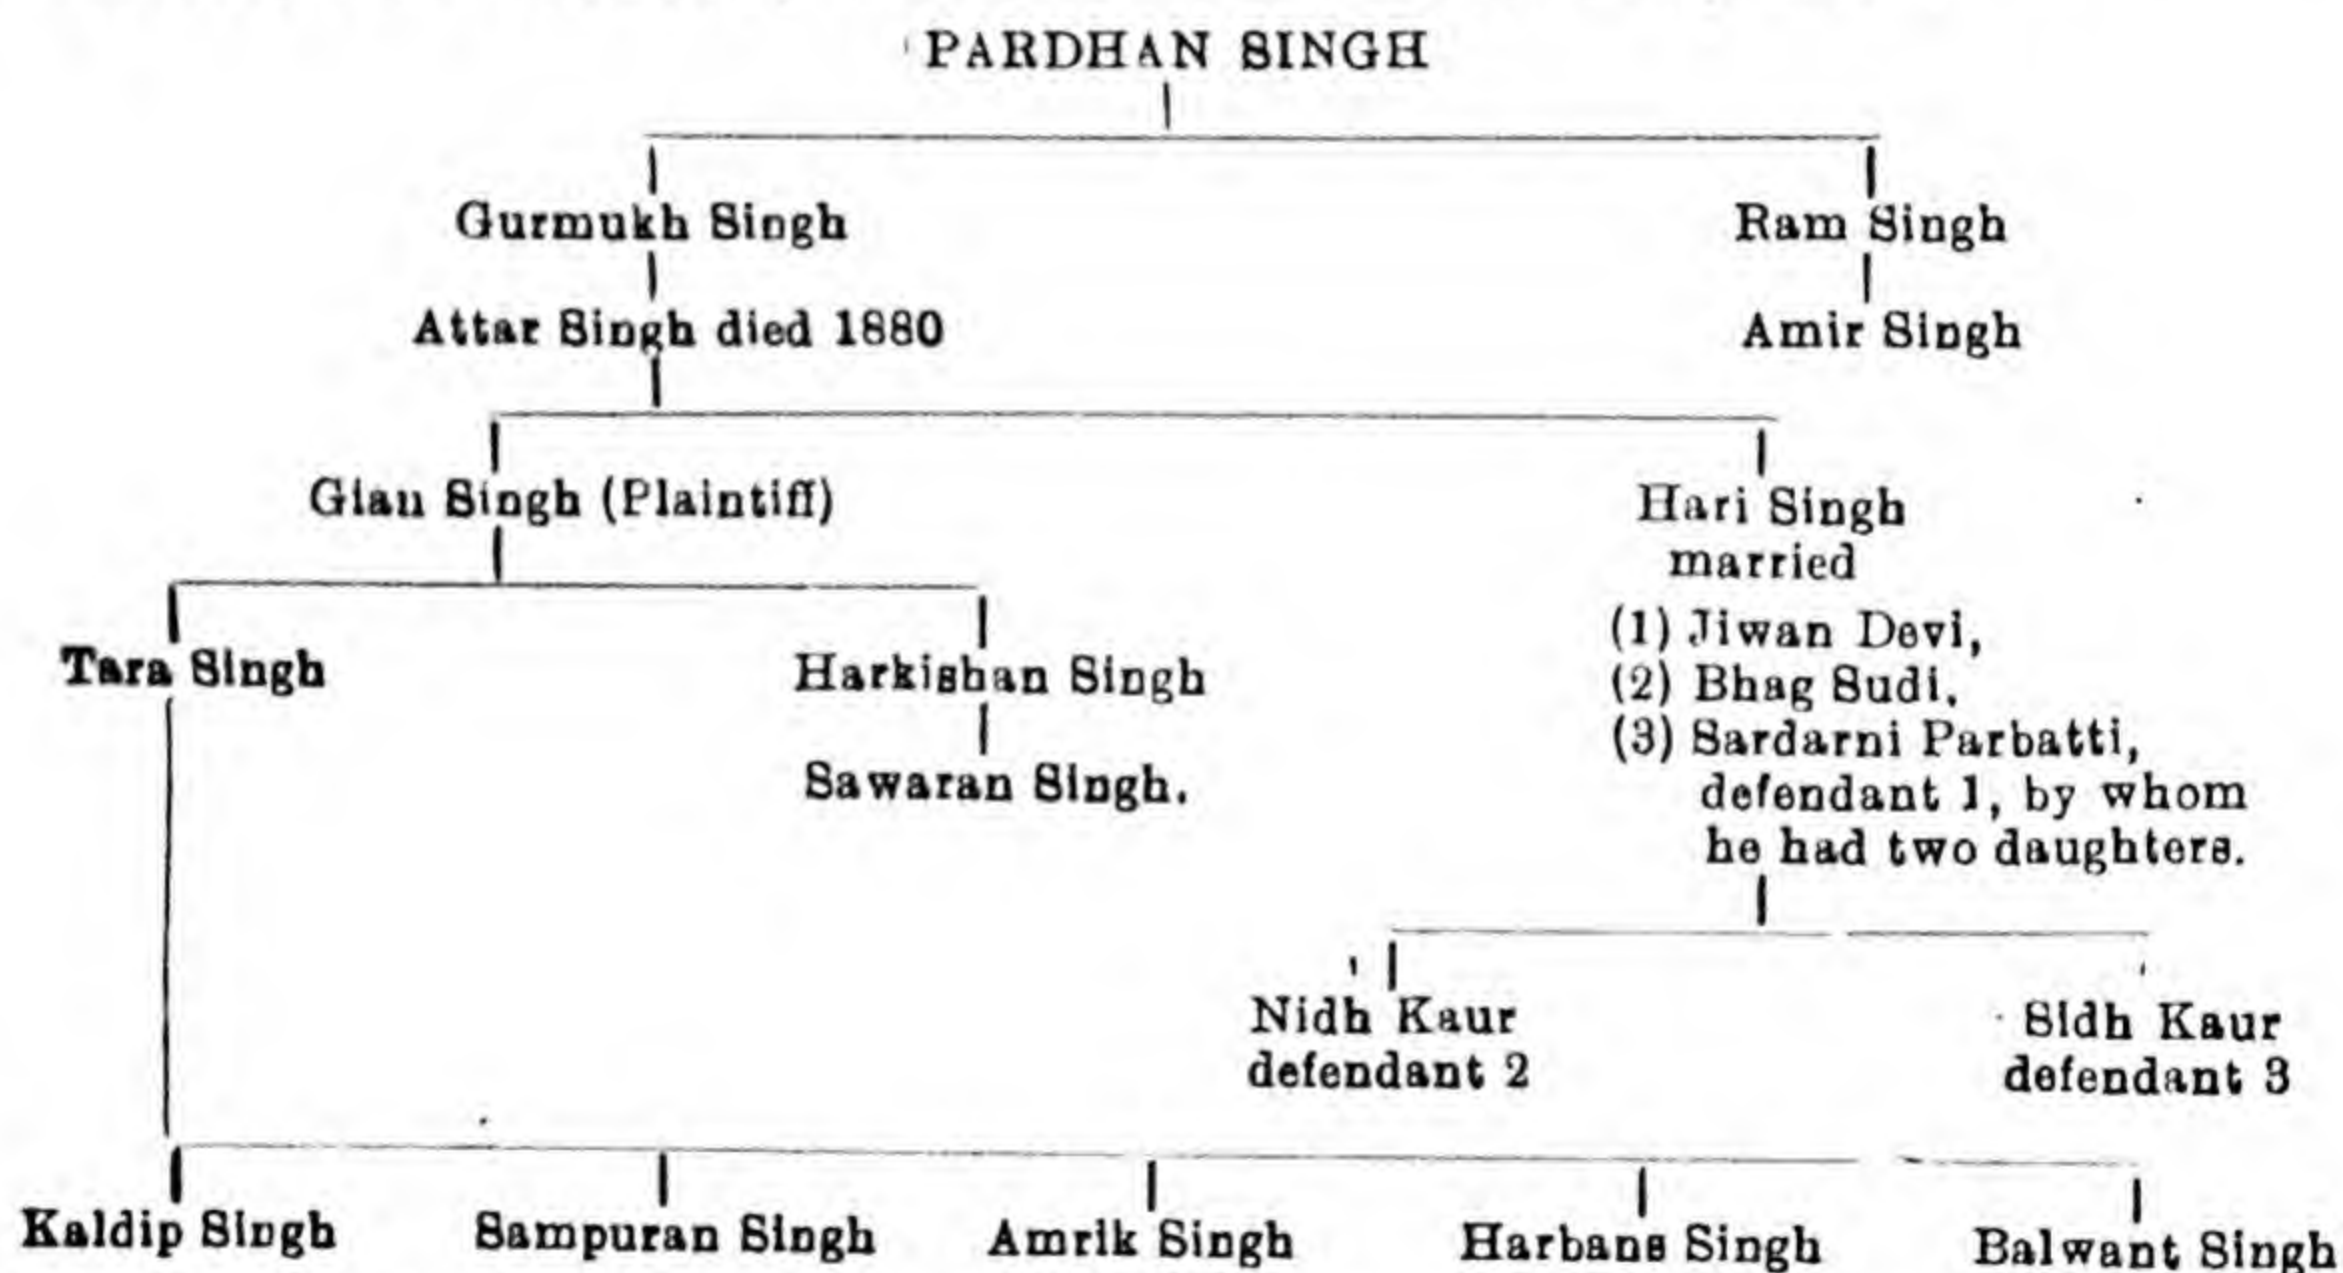

(c) Custom (Punjab) — Khatri of Phalia tahsil of Gujrat District — Succession—Ancestral property — Daughter.

Khatri of Phalia tahsil of Gujrat District follow custom according to which daughter cannot inherit ancestral property in presence of her father's collaterals. [P 56 C 1; P 60 C 1]

Mehr Chand Mahajan, Qabul Chand, Dev Raj Sawhney and Shamair Chand — for Appellants.

Achhru Ram, Amarnath Chona and M. M. Aslam Khan — for Respondent (Plaintiff).

Coldstream J.—The following pedigree-table will help to explain the nature of the dispute in this case. The family is Lamba Khatri by caste :

Hari Singh died on 20th November 1898, leaving extensive landed property in Kila Attar Singh (where he died), Pindi Lala and Chak Basawa and other places in Phalia tahsil of the Gujrat District, as well as houses at Lahore, Gujrat and elsewhere. His property passed into possession of his three widows Jiwan Devi, Bhag Sudi and Parbatti. On Jiwan Devi's death in 1899 Bhag Sudi and Parbatti remained in possession. In June 1932 Bhag Sudi died and Sardarni Parbatti held possession of the whole of it. On 17th July 1932 Sardarni Parbatti executed a deed which was registered on 22nd July relinquishing her rights in the property in favour of her daughters Nidh Kaur and Sidh Kaur.

Admittedly the deed in effect was one alienating the property.

On 29th April 1933 Hari Singh's brother Sardar Gian Singh instituted in Gujrat the suit from which this appeal arises against the Sardarni and her daughters praying for a declaration that the deed will not affect his right as a reversioner according to the customary rule followed by the family and as an heir appointed by a will (Ex. P-107) executed by Hari Singh on 19th November 1898. Some of the property to which the deed related, he claimed to be his own, having been acquired by himself. He also asked that a sum of Rs. 1,64,700 spent by himself and his sons on the construction and improvement of certain house property be declared a first charge on that property if he were found not entitled to possession of it. Mt. Parbatti put in no written pleas. The daughters denied the existence of any valid will executed by Hari Singh and asserted that under the Hindu law which governed the succession to property in their family, they were entitled to the suit property as Hari Singh's heirs, that the property was all ancestral with the exception of a site at Dinga, and a house and a shop in Jhelum which the plaintiff had acquired and some land in Kot Umar which he had acquired together with Sardar Hari Singh.

The Subordinate Judge who decided the suit found the will produced by the plaintiff to be a genuine and effective testament. He also found it proved that the parties did not follow Hindu law but a custom by which daughters had no right to inherit ancestral property in the presence of collaterals. On these findings he granted the plaintiff a declaration that the deed of relinquishment would not affect his reversionary rights in the ancestral property and his proprietary rights in the property acquired by himself. Against this decree the daughters Nidh Kaur and Sidh Kaur have appealed.

It is contended before us that the lower Court's decisions, that the parties follow a custom by which daughters are excluded from inheriting their father's ancestral estate in the presence of a collateral, and that the will Ex. P-107 put forward by the plaintiff is a genuine and effective document, are not justified by the evidence. (After discussing the evidence, the judgment proceeded further.) After considering all the evidence I am satisfied that the document Ex. P-107 produced by the plaintiff was the will signed by Hari Singh on 19th November 1898. The question still remains whether the document was the will of a free and capable testator. Merely ability to sign a document is not evidence of the disposing mind requisite for a valid disposition. Here the only evidence as regards the condition of Hari Singh's mind is the statement made by Ram Chand on 14th April 1899 before the Assistant Collector that Sardar Hari Singh was in his senses at the time the will was written. In the present proceedings, no attempt was made to prove that when Hari Singh appended his signature to this document he was acting in a responsible and independent manner. The learned Subordinate Judge, applying the rule in S. 90, Evidence Act, has found in the age of the document justification for a presumption that the will was executed by Hari Singh while he had a disposing mind. There is no doubt authority for the view that S. 90 allows such a presumption (*see A I R 1930 Mad 744*¹) and where a presumption has been raised by a trial Court under that section, a Court of Appeal will be slow to interfere with the exercise of its discretion; but in the present case the circumstances clearly called for definite proof of Hari Singh's mental capacity when the will was signed. The testator was on his death bed; he died 13 hours after the will was signed and could sign his name with great difficulty as the signature itself proves. There were quarrels going on between his wives, only one of whom had children. The will was written by another hand and some of it after it had been signed. Though it was obviously important to produce it at once, it was suppressed for months, and when it was produced after some prevarication about its existence, it was not acted upon by the revenue authorities.

All the persons who were present at the execution of the will were not dead and they could have been questioned about Hari Singh's mental condition. But no such question was put in the trial Court even to Ram Chand or Gian Singh. My conclusion is that the plaintiff has not proved that Hari Singh had a free disposing mind when he executed the will and that therefore the will cannot be accepted as an effective instrument. In view of this conclusion, it is unnecessary to decide exactly how the will ought to be construed. There is however in my mind no doubt whatever that its language can be interpreted any one way, that is to say it gave each of the widows a life-interest only in the property. Each was to be given Rs. 500 per annum as maintenance out of the estate, and Parbatti, because she was to maintain and arrange for the marriage of her children, was to have all the rest of the income. After the widows' death Gian Singh was to take the property. This is I think clear from the rest of the will, but all possible doubt is removed by the provision that the widows would have no power to alienate. This provision relates to the whole property and not to the residential houses (the translation printed at p. 14 of book 6 is incorrect at this place).

1. Kotayya v. K. Vardhamma, A I R 1930 Mad 744 = 127 I C 619 = 59 M L J 461.

The learned Subordinate Judge has discussed at length the evidence produced by the parties on the question whether the parties follow Hindu law in matters of succession or whether, as asserted by the plaintiff, they are bound by a custom which excludes daughters from inheritance to ancestral property. The argument for the appellants is that the onus lay on the plaintiff to prove that the family followed the custom he alleged, that being Khatri there is a strong presumption that the family follows the Hindu law, that this presumption is strengthened by the history of the family whose profession has not been agriculture but money changing and service under Government and that the lower Court's decision is against the weight of the evidence.

The family is one of repute. Its history is given at p. 145 of Vol. '2 of the book 'Chiefs and Families of Note in the Punjab' (Edn. 1910), published under the authority of Government. The founder of its fortune was Gurmukh Singh, the grandfather of the plaintiff Gian Singh, and his brother Hari Singh. Gurmukh Singh's father Pardhan Singh is said to have been a money changer in Khiwa, a small town in the Phalia tahsil, but the authority for this statement is not mentioned. Gurmukh Singh was a playmate of Raja Ranjit Singh and later fought for him with success and distinction. For his services he was munificently rewarded by his master so that at one time the value of his estate amounted to nearly four lakhs. Subsequently hostile influences destroyed his power and divested him of most of his jagirs. The British Government confirmed his and his sons' remaining jagirs in their favour for their lives and a third of Gurmukh Singh's jagir in favour of his male heirs in perpetuity. Sardar Attar Singh died in 1880 and his jagir was divided between his sons Hari Singh and Gian Singh, and on Hari Singh's death Gian Singh succeeded to his jagir, his hereditary title of Sardar and his seat in Divisional Darbar.

The family is now closely related to that of the Bedi family of Bawa Sir Khem Singh Bedi (see p. 229 of the same volume of Punjab Chiefs and Families of Note).

Iqbal Singh and Man Singh, the grandsons of Bawa Sir Khem Singh through his son Hara Singh, are married to the defendants Nidh Kaur and Sidh Kaur. Sir Khem Singh had a brother Sampuran Singh and Sampuran Singh's granddaughters are married to Balwant Singh and Sawaran Singh, the plaintiff's grandsons. We have thus two parties of the Bedi family whose interests are opposed to each other in the present suit. Hari Singh served as a Naib Tahsildar for a brief term. The plaintiff was Sub-Registrar of Phalia. His grandson Balwant Singh is an officer in the army. Another grandson, Sampuran Singh, was a Sub-Inspector of Police, and Tara Singh the plaintiff's son was an Honorary Magistrate and Sub-Registrar. Kuldip Singh, Tara Singh's son, is also an Honorary Magistrate.

From this account it is clear that the family cannot be called one of agriculturists in the common sense of the term. But since the time of Gurmukh Singh they have subsisted mainly on the profits yielded by cultivation of their lands which lie in villages and is one of the most important among the landed gentry of the tehsil. Attar Singh who founded Kila Attar Singh in or about 1848 was lambardar of the revenue estate, as was Gian Singh after him, and the family has held the zaildari of Pindi Lala. There is no evidence that Gurmukh Singh's ancestors were money-lenders except the statement in the historical book to which I have referred that Pardhan Singh was a money changer. But it is by no means rare to find that Hindus who deal in money but are settled in agricultural villages, have adopted customs in the matter of succession to land followed by the agricultural tribes among whom they live. From 1868 onwards very large areas of land owned by the family in Basawa Rakh Gurmukh Singh (exclusively owned by the family), Pindi Lala and Kila Attar Singh have been recorded as khudkasht, that is to say cultivated under the direct supervision of the owners, though not necessarily with the owners' own hands, and from 1856 until 1910 members of the family lived from time to time in these villages. In 1856 Gurmukh Singh described himself as resident of Pindi Lala (p. 55) as did Attar Singh in 1877 (p. 52). Gian Singh resided in Pindi Lala in 1898 (p. 21). In 1903 Bhag Sudi and Mt. Parbatti resided in Kila Attar Singh and Gian Singh in Pindi Lala (p. 24). It would not therefore be surprising to find that the family did not follow Hindu law as do presumably Hindu gentry of non-agriculturist families living in large towns. Here I may notice that Gurmukh Singh was not the first of his family to hold land in Pindi Lala. The note on the pedigree-table of the proprietors of that village prepared for the settlement of 1868 mentions that Nand Lal, his ancestor, had settled in the village some eight generations before his time. Later this village was deserted and resettled. It was because it was his ancestral home that Gurmukh Singh took it as a jagir from Raja Ranjit Singh : see Ex. P.30.

On the question whether the parties followed Hindu law or the custom alleged by the plaintiff in the matter of succession, the parties called a very large number of witnesses who merely gave their opinions in favour of the party calling them or stated what they had heard. The bare statements of these witnesses have no value as evidence in this case. Counsel have not relied on them and it is greatly to be regretted that so much of the lower Court's time was wasted in recording them. One of the defendants' witnesses Thakar Singh, D. W. 4, mentioned that the estate of one Jit Singh, a Lamba Khatri of Dinga, passed to his daughter on his death, and that another Lamba of Dinga, Gulab Singh, gifted his estate to his daughter. According to Megh Raj, D. W. 5, Jit Singh had a brother Bhagat Singh who went to Africa but the witness really knows nothing about the family and does not know in what circumstances Jit Singh's daughter took possession of the property.

It is now well established that statements of customs recorded in the riwaj-i-am of a tahsil or district regarding the customary law followed by the various tribes holding land in the tahsil in matters of succession are by themselves strong evidence of the customs followed by members of those tribes even if instances are not cited. In this case the riwaj-i-am clearly supports the plaintiff. Khatri of Phalia tahsil were consulted when the riwaj-i-am of Gujrat district was compiled in 1892. Question 15 in the abstract of the riwaj-i-am on p. V of the compilation is :

If a landowner dying leaves only an unmarried daughter or daughters, what share in the property are they entitled to receive ?

The answer given for Hindus generally is:

A daughter cannot inherit in presence of her father's collaterals but in their absence she inherits.

It is to be presumed that this statement relates only to ancestral property, in the absence of any indication that it also relates to property self-acquired. The corresponding entry in the publication of 1922 is in the answer to question 60 which is for all tribes that

As regards ancestral immovable property, daughters inherit in the absence of male lineal descendants through males, the widow and collaterals of the fifth degree. As regards acquired property they exclude collaterals however near.

From the answer to question 28 in this manual, it is clear that Khatri were consulted by the compiler for the Khatri and Brahmins are shown there to have given a reply to that question different from the reply given by Aroras and other Hindu tribes. Going further back, we find in the notes attached to the pedigree-table of Attar Singh, the sole proprietor of Kila Attar Singh, a statement that "the terms relating to partition of the heritage which are recorded about our caste in the dastur-ul-amal-i-am shall be acted upon" (by the proprietors of course). Now this dastur-ul-amal-i-am can only be the riwaj-i-am of the district drawn up in 1868. That compilation was drawn up after enquiry from members of no less than fourteen sub-castes of Khatri, one of them being the Lamba sub-caste. According to the statement in that book (question 15) the Khatri asserted that a daughter does not succeed in the presence of collaterals. To go still further back, we have in the wajib-ul-arz of Kila Attar Singh of 1857 a declaration by the proprietor (Attar Singh) that after his death his sons shall inherit in equal shares—a daughter does not inherit property left by her father. This can only mean that a daughter will not inherit even if there are collaterals. In deciding that this is so, in 45 All 413² their Lordships of the Privy Council went on to observe that the record in a wajib-ul-arz of a custom is most valuable evidence of the custom, much more reliable evidence than subsequent oral evidence given after a dispute as to the custom has arisen.

The statement of custom in the riwaj-i-am of 1868 has been found correct in respect of two other sub-castes of Khatris — the Sobti and the Wadhawan Khatris in 5 P R 1915³ and A I R 1927 Lah 345,⁴ independently of the evidence of the riwaj-i-am itself and in respect of Brahmins in 116 P R 1893⁵ and A I R 1929 Lah 261.⁶ The appellant's counsel has drawn attention to two rulings in which Khatris and Brahmins of Dinga have been held not to follow custom : 64 I C 264⁷ and 6 Lah 524.⁸ The first relates to Sibal Khatris, a sub-caste not consulted when the first riwaj-i-am was compiled. In the second case the riwaj-i-am was it seems not produced in evidence. In another case (Civil Appeal No. 2453 of 1920) this Court decided against the custom in the riwaj-i-am that Khatris of Jalalpur Jattan in Gujrat District were governed by Hindu law. This is one instance in favour of the defendants. The judgment was delivered at a time when the importance of a riwaj-i-am as evidence had been lost sight of, an importance emphasized by the Privy Council in 45 P R 1917⁹ to which judgment attention was strongly drawn by Campbell and Fforde JJ. in 8 Lah 281.¹⁰

2. Balgobind v. Badri Prasad, A I R 1923 P O 70 = 74 I O 449 = 45 All 413 = 50 I A 196 = 26 O O 217 (P O).

The plaintiff relied on two judicial instances. On 22nd February 1931 Gian Singh sold a house to Ram Chand. His grandsons brought a suit to have the alienation set aside alleging that the property was ancestral and the alienation void for want of consideration and necessity. The suit was dismissed by the Senior Subordinate Judge as the property was found to be self-acquired, but the greater part of the judgment was devoted to the question whether the plaintiff's family were governed by customary law in matters of alienation (Ex P. 78). It was held that the family followed customary law. The judgment was pronounced during the trial of this suit. As the defendants succeeded on the ground that the property was not ancestral, they had no occasion to appeal against the decision on the point of custom and this decision is not a weighty piece of evidence.

In another suit which was brought by Raman Shah to recover Rs. 17,680 from the sons of Tara Singh on the basis of a promissory note, the issue arose whether the defendants followed the customary law, the question being material for a decision regarding the extent of their liability. It was held that the defendants did not follow Hindu law but a rule of custom (Ex. P. 143). The suit was instituted after the present suit and decided before the judgment under appeal was delivered. An appeal was dismissed by this Court in the judgment published in A I R 1936 Lah 986.¹¹ That litigation did not decide anything about the rights of daughters to inherit. More important evidence is to be found in the litigation in 1903 between Mt. Bhag Sudi and Mt. Parbatti on the one side and Gian Singh on the other after the death of Mt. Jiwani. The widows wanted to partition the land but this application was resisted by Gian Singh who objected on the ground that partition would result in injury to the property in which he had a reversionary right. The application was dismissed. In petitioning for revision (Ex. P. 14) the widows did not take the point that Gian Singh was not their reversioner and the Collector's judgment dismissing the petition (Ex. P. 113) shows that his status as such was not questioned.

Equally important is the notice (Ex. P. 81) given by Mt. Parbatti to Gian Singh on 9th February 1907 calling on him to pay Rs. 7,000 for the expenses of Mt. Parbatti's daughters. In the notice Parbatti stated : "You are given eight days' notice because you are the heir of the property of Sardar Hari Singh." I do not think that the right was conceded because of the will, for that will had not been acted upon by the revenue authorities and was presumably regarded by Mt. Parbatti as of no account. Another notice was sent to Gian Singh on 13th February (Ex. D.24). In this again Mt. Parbatti informed Gian Singh that he was bound to find money for the marriage of Sidh Kaur "as he will be the reversionary heir after her death".

3. Mt. Ishar Devi v. Bindraban, A I R 1914 Lah 212=26 I C 686=5 P R 1915=137 P L R 1915.

4. Mt. Ram Rakhi v. Mula Singh, A I R 1927 Lah 845=101 I C 194.

5. Prabh Dial v. Devi Dial, (1893) 116 P R 1893.

6. Mt. Maya Devi v. Badri Nath, A I R 1929 Lah 261=114 I C 49.

7. Lachman Das v. Gangaram, (1921) 64 I C 264.

8. Khazan Chand v. Paras Ram, A I R 1925 Lah 646=90 I C 1045=6 Lah 524=26 P L R 627.

9. Beg v. Allah Ditta, A I R 1916 P C 129=38 I C 54=44 I A 89=44 Cal 749=45 P R 1917 (P C).

10. Labh Singh v. Mt. Mango, A I R 1927 Lah 241=100 I C 924=8 Lah 281=29 P L R 586.

11. Raman Shah v. Kuldip Singh, A I R 1936 Lah 986=168 I C 557=88 P L R 984.

These are clear admissions of Gian Singh's status as reversioner. As against these admissions, we have first an admission by Gian Singh in the suit which he instituted after these notices to restrain Mt. Parbati from giving Sidh Kaur in marriage without his permission, that he followed Hindu law. But the question of daughters' rights to succeed was not in dispute and the law to which Gian Singh referred was that governing the right to give Sidh Kaur in marriage. The suit failed.

In a deed by which he sold a house in 1926 (Ex. D.5) Sardar Gian Singh declared that he was manager and administrator of a joint Hindu family. His son Harkishan Singh sued him and the vendee to have the alienation declared ineffective against his reversionary rights. The suit ended in a compromise by which Harkishan Singh was to get the property back if he paid for the price paid by the vendee with interest and Rs. 1,000 costs, that is to say the compromise gave him what he wanted. A similar assertion was made by Gian Singh when on 30th September 1929 he mortgaged to Ram Chand the house which he sold to him on 24th February 1931 and described himself in the deed as proprietor and manager of a joint Hindu family: Ex. D.4. As already mentioned, the sale of this house was attacked by Bhag Sudhi's grandsons and it was held by the Court that he did not follow Hindu law. These statements by the plaintiff were I believe false. It is not the case of the appellants that the family was a joint Hindu family. If the family was a joint Hindu family they are out of Court, for their mother, as widow of Hari Singh, was entitled to no more than her maintenance.

My conclusion is that the lower Court has rightly decided that by rule of custom the plaintiff inherits his brother's ancestral property to the exclusion of his brother's daughters. It is conceded by the plaintiff's counsel that according to the custom binding upon the parties, the daughters of Hari Singh are the heirs to his self-acquired estate. The trial Court has found that only part of the suit property which was acquired by Hari Singh is some land at Umar Kot bought by him and the plaintiff on 3rd April 1869, and the correctness of this finding is not disputed before us. Hari Singh's share in this parcel of land must go to his daughters. The result is that with the exception of Hari Singh's share in the land at Umar Kot, bought in 1869, in respect of which the plaintiff's claim is rejected and the lower Court's decree set aside, this appeal is dismissed. The respondent will be paid his costs by Nidh Kaur and Sidh Kaur.

Jai Lal J.—I agree.

P.R./D.S.

Appeal dismissed.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 60

JAI LAL AND BHIDE JJ.

Indar Singh and another
Appellants.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Case No. 1397 of 1936, Decided on 9th April 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Montgomery at Lahore, D/- 30th October 1936.

* Penal Code (1860), S. 104—Scope — Accused obtaining unlawful possession of land in peaceful possession of his co-sharer — Possession of accused only for couple of hours — Co-sharer trying to eject accused — Co-sharer and not accused has right of private defence.

Where the accused, entitled to joint possession of certain land along with the deceased and his brothers, obtains unlawful possession of a part of such land and remains in possession thereof only for a couple of hours and the persons already in possession try to eject the accused, the possession of the accused is no better than that of a mere trespasser and cannot give him the right of private defence. On the other hand, the persons already in possession have a right to inflict any necessary injury, short of death, in the exercise of right of private defence of property under S. 104 and have a right to maintain the possession and eject the accused. [P 62 C 1]

Jai Gopal Sethi — for Appellants.

Des Raj Sawhney — for the Crown.

Bhide J. — Hazara Singh and Lakha Singh, two brothers, and Banta Singh and Indar Singh, their respective sons, were charged under S. 302, I. P. C., read with S. 34, I. P. C., with the murder of one Arjan Singh. Hazara Singh was acquitted. Indar Singh was convicted under S. 302, I. P. C., and sentenced to transportation for life. Banta Singh was convicted under S. 324, I. P. C., and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for one year while Lakha Singh was convicted under S. 323, I. P. C., and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for six months. Indar Singh and Lakha Singh have filed a joint appeal. The material facts of the case were briefly as follows: One Baga Singh had seven sons, namely, Hazara Singh, Lakha Singh, Arjan Singh, Amar Singh, Gajjan Singh, Sajjan Singh and Sarwan Singh. He owned 96 ghumaons of land which he divided into eight shares. He kept one share for himself and gave one share to each of his seven sons. After the death of Baga Singh his share was inherited by his wife Mt. Dani. This share was cultivated by four of the sons of Baga Singh, namely, Arjan Singh, Amar Singh, Gajjan Singh and Sarwan Singh during the lifetime of Mt. Dani. Mt. Dani died in 1935 and the land was mutated in favour of all the sons jointly. The aforesaid four sons however continued in possession of the land. On the day of the occurrence Hazara Singh, Lakha Singh, Banta Singh and Indar Singh went to this land and started irrigating two killas out of it which they claimed to have been allotted to them by a panchayat. Arjan Singh and Amar Singh coming to know about this went to the land and protested against the conduct of Hazara Singh, etc. This led to a fight in the course of which Arjan Singh was given blows with a sela on the chest and on the neck by Indar Singh, resulting in injuries to which he succumbed later. Lakha Singh also inflicted a blow on his head with a gandhali while Banta Singh inflicted another blow with a chhavi on his arm. Amar Singh, who tried to interfere, was also given some blows with the sela by Indar Singh. Gajjan Singh, Sajjan Singh and Sarwan Singh arrived shortly afterwards and then the fight ended. The matter was reported to the police and after investigation Hazara Singh, Lakha Singh, Banta Singh and Indar Singh were challaned.

The appellants admitted the fight, but their plea was that they had taken possession of the land in pursuance of a decision of the panchayat and while they were in peaceful possession, they were attacked by Arjan Singh, Amar Singh, Gajjan Singh, Sajjan Singh and Sarwan Singh and that the injuries to Arjan Singh and Amar Singh were caused by them in the exercise of their right of private defence. The learned Sessions Judge found that the appellants had failed to prove that the land in question had been allotted to them by any panchayat and that they had no justification for taking possession of the land and irrigating it, as they had done. They had therefore no right of private defence. The learned Judge however found that it was not proved that the fatal injuries to Arjan

Singh were caused in furtherance of a common intention and therefore he convicted Indar Singh alone, who was responsible for those injuries, under S. 302, I. P. C., and sentenced him to transportation for life. Lakha Singh, who had given only one blow with the gandhali on the head of Arjan Singh, was convicted under S. 323, I. P. C., and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for six months only.

The medical evidence shows that the four accused, namely Hazara Singh, Lakha Singh, Banta Singh and Indar Singh were all injured, the total number of injuries received by them being about fourteen. The prosecution witnesses failed to give any explanation of these injuries but one of the prosecution witnesses, namely, Mohammad Din, had stated before the police that Arjan Singh and Amar Singh had come armed with a lance and a chhavi and that Gajjan Singh was also armed with a gandhali and that the accused persons had been injured in the fight. Although the prosecution witnesses have denied in the Sessions Court that the injuries to the accused persons had been inflicted at the time of the fight, it seems that they are not telling the truth in this respect. It may be safely assumed, in the circumstances of the case, that the injuries on the persons of the accused, nine out of which at any rate could not be self-inflicted according to the medical evidence, were inflicted in the fight.

The main point which requires consideration in the case is whether the appellants can be held to have been acting in the exercise of their right of private defence, as contended on their behalf by their learned counsel. The allegation of the appellants that the land in question had been allotted to them by a panchayat is not supported by any evidence worth consideration. Only one witness, Prithi Singh Zaildar, has deposed in the course of cross-examination that a panchayat was held and that the land was allotted to Hazara Singh, etc., but the alleged decision was not reduced to writing nor was it ever reported to the Revenue Officer. If the parties had referred the matter to a panchayat and accepted the decision of the panchayat, as alleged by the appellants, there is no reason why Arjan Singh and others should have objected to their irrigating the land. I hold, in agreement with the view of the learned Sessions Judge, that the story about the decision of the panchayat is not established. It follows that the appellants had no right to take possession of land without the consent of Arjan Singh and others who were admittedly in possession ever since the lifetime of Mt. Dani. It is true that the land had been mutated in favour of the seven brothers, but this would not give them any right to eject the co-sharers, who were already in peaceful possession, without their consent. The proper course for the appellants was to go to a Civil Court or to apply for partition of the land. The appellants themselves appear to have been conscious of this fact and it was apparently for this very reason that they alleged that the matter had been referred to a panchayat and that the land in dispute had been allotted to them by the panchayat.

The learned counsel for the appellants contended that as the appellants were entitled to the joint possession of the land in any case and had succeeded in obtaining peaceful possession, they had a right of private defence; but this contention cannot be upheld in the circumstances of the case. The appellants had been in possession only for a couple of hours or so and the possession had never been acquiesced in by Arjan Singh and others. The possession was therefore nothing better than mere trespass and could not give them any right of private defence. Arjan Singh and his companions had, on the other hand, a right to maintain their possession and to eject the appellants. If the appellants were beaten, it must have been because they refused to vacate the land. According to the provisions of S. 104, I. P. C., Arjan Singh and others had a right to inflict any necessary injury, short of death, in the exercise of their right of private defence of property and in the circumstances of the case it cannot be said that Arjan Singh and others exceeded their right of private defence. The appellants on the other hand committed a double wrong, firstly, by trying to take unlawful possession of the land and secondly by resisting Arjan Singh and others when they tried to eject them from the land.

From the evidence it appears that Indar Singh inflicted with his sela several injuries on the vital parts of Arjan Singh which resulted in his death. In doing so he must at least be presumed to have had the knowledge that his act was so imminently dangerous as to result in death.

Indar Singh has stated that he came subsequently when his party was being beaten; but this statement is not supported by any evidence and I see no good reason to doubt that he accompanied Hazara Singh, Lakha Singh and Banta Singh when they went to the land to take possession and attacked Arjan Singh in the manner alleged by the prosecution. In my opinion he has been rightly convicted under S. 302, I. P. C., in view of all the circumstances, and his conviction and sentence must therefore be maintained. Lakha Singh gave only one injury on the head of Arjan Singh, but he and Hazara Singh were apparently the persons principally interested in the land and were presumably responsible for the commission of this offence. Lakha Singh has been given only six months' rigorous imprisonment and the sentence cannot be considered to be excessive in view of all the facts. I would therefore dismiss the appeal.

Jai Lal J.—I agree.

W.D./A.L.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 62

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Sardar Parampal Singh — Defendant
— Appellant.

v.

Sardar Budh Singh, Plaintiff and another, Defendant — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 981 of 1936, Decided on 9th April 1937, from decree of Addl. District Judge, Lyallpur, D/- 4th June 1936.

Contract Act (1872), S. 74—Contract of lease—Lessee paying certain sum in advance and agreeing to pay balance by certain date—Contract providing that in case of failure to pay balance by appointed date, advance would be forfeited—Stipulation held not by way of penalty—Advance held could not be recovered on failure of lessee.

In a contract of lease for three years at Rupees 5,000 per annum, the lessee paid Rs. 1,000 in advance as a guarantee for carrying out the terms of a contract and agreed to pay the balance on an appointed date. The contract contained a clause that if the balance was not paid by the appointed date, the money already paid would be forfeited. On breach of contract, the lessee brought a suit claiming the refund of advance:

Held that the clause of forfeiture was not a 'stipulation by way of penalty' within meaning of S. 74 but a clause for forfeiture of a deposit already made, which was not of a penal character.

[P 69 C 1]

Held further that the lessee could have no lien for money which he had paid, as he failed to perform his contract : (1882) 21 Ch D 243 ; (1874) 9 C P 107 and A I R 1927 Lah 721, Rel. on.

[P 68 C 2]

Amar Singh — for Appellant.

Harbhajan Das —

for Respondent (Plaintiff).

Skemp J.—The facts leading to this second appeal are not now in dispute. On 14th March 1931 the defendant Sardar Parampal Singh contracted to lease 20 squares of land to the plaintiff Budh Singh for three years at Rs. 5,000 per annum. Budh Singh paid Rs. 1,000 in advance to Parampal Singh on the date of the agreement, 14th March 1931. He agreed to pay a further Rs. 2,000 by 1st April 1931 and the balance of Rs. 2,000 by 30th April 1931. The contract contained a clause that if the final Rs. 2,000 were not paid by 30th April 1931, then the amount already paid (zari peshgi) should be forfeited. Budh Singh did not carry out the contract; all he could do was to pay Rs. 780 on 30th of June. Parampal Singh then appears to have resumed the lease. Budh Singh then brought the present suit for recovery of the sum of Rs. 1,780, which he had paid together with interest at Rs. 18.0 per cent. The total sum sued for was Rs. 2,428. Parampal Singh pleaded that under the contract he was entitled to retain everything that had been paid. The trial Judge found that :

It is obvious that the term of forfeiture is of a penal nature. Even if the plaintiff had paid Rs. 4,999 by the end of April 1933, still the lease would be cancelled and the amount would be forfeited to the lessor. I find this issue in the affirmative.

That is all he said on this point. The argument is defective because if defendant had paid Rs. 4,999 by the specified date, there would have been substantial performance of the contract. The trial Judge proceeded to hold that the defendant was only entitled to damages for the actual loss suffered. The evidence on this point was scanty and unsatisfactory and he assessed them at Rs. 280. He granted the plaintiff a decree for Rs. 1780—280 = Rs. 1,500. The defendant appealed and in a brief judgment, the learned District Judge dismissed the appeal finding that the Rupees 1,000 was part of the rental which was paid in advance and that the term regarding the forfeiture of this was clearly of a penal nature. The defendant has lodged a second appeal. After some discussion his counsel stated that he now claimed not to withhold Rs. 1,780, as originally pleaded, but only Rs. 1,000 forfeited under the contract and Rs. 280 damages. It is quite clear that the contract did not justify the defendant in retaining everything paid under it but only the first deposit of Rs. 1,000.

The main point for determination is whether the provision for forfeiture of the Rs. 1,000, if the total amount were not paid by 30th April, is a penalty or not. In my opinion it is not a "stipulation by way of penalty" within the meaning of S. 74, Contract Act, but a clause for forfeiture of a deposit already made, which is not of a penal character. This has been repeatedly held with regard to sales: see for example, (1882) 21 Ch D 243¹ at p. 248, where Fry J. said :

It appears to me on principle that a man who declines to perform his contract can have no lien for money which he has expended in part performance of it.

Fry J.'s judgment quotes earlier English rulings (1868) 3 C P 161² and (1874) 9 C P 107,³ at page 116 to the same effect. In India this has also been held, see for example A I R 1927 Lah 721,⁴ and I do not see why this principle should not equally extend to money actually paid in advance on account of a lease. The money in this instance was paid in advance as a guarantee for carrying out the terms of a contract to lease. In my opinion therefore the defendant-appellant is entitled to retain the sum of Rs. 1,000; but he cannot have it both ways and have the Rs. 1,000 forfeited under the terms of the contract and also damages on the finding that this sum is a penalty which ought not to be enforced. I would accept this appeal and hold that the defendant is entitled to retain Rupees 1,000 instead of Rs. 280. The result is that the decree for Rs. 1,500 which has been granted to the plaintiff will be modified to one for Rs. 780. The parties are to bear their own costs throughout.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

P.R./D.S.

Decree modified.

-
1. Wallis v. Smith, (1882) 21 Ch D 243 = 47 L T 389 = 52 L J Ch 145 = 31 W R 214.
 2. Hinton v. Sparkes, (1868) 3 C P 161 = 37 L J C P 81 = 17 L T 600 = 16 W R 360.
 3. Magee v. Lavell, (1874) 9 C P 107 = 43 L J C P 131 = 30 L T 169 = 22 W R 334.
 4. S. V. Vipper & Co. v. Sewat Ram Parshad Mills & Co. A I R 1927 Lah 721 = 101 IC 686.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 64

BHIDE J.

Kishen Chand—Plaintiff—Appellant.
v.Nanda Mal and another—Defendants — Respondents.Second Appeal No. 440 of 1937, Decided on 6th October 1937.(a) Custom (Punjab)—Pre-emption—Abadi of recent growth — Custom of pre-emption cannot be proved.A custom must be ancient and immemorial.
Therefore a custom of pre-emption cannot possibly be proved in an abadi which is of recent growth : A I R 1937 Lah 451 (F B), Rel. on.

[P 64 C 2]

(b) Punjab Pre-emption Act (1 of 1913),
S. 3 (3)—Government notification declaring certain place as town — No implication that custom of pre-emption prevails in that town.When Government issues a notification declaring that a certain place should be considered to be a town for the purposes of the Pre-emption Act, it does not mean that custom of pre-emption prevails in that town. It has got to be established by the person alleging it. [P 65 C 1]Nihal Singh — *for Appellant.*Shamair Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment.—This is a suit for pre-emption with respect to a house situated in abadi Kishan Ganj, which was described as a part of Hazro town. The defendants denied that the custom of pre-emption prevailed in the town of Hazro or that Kishan Ganj was a part of the abadi of Hazro. The trial Court held that the plaintiff had failed to prove the custom relied on and dismissed the suit. On appeal the learned District Judge relying chiefly on a judgment reported in 75 I C 910,¹ came to a contrary conclusion and decreed the suit on payment of Rs. 2,000. From this decision, the plaintiff has appealed challenging the decision on the ground that the suit should have been decreed on payment of Rs. 1,090 only as a sum of Rs. 910 was due to the plaintiff on account of a prior mortgage. The defendants have, on the other hand, filed cross-objections challenging the decision on the question of custom and praying that the suit should be dismissed.

It will be convenient to deal with the cross-objections first. The main point for decision in the case was whether the plaintiff had proved the custom of pre-emption in Kishan Ganj. The plaintiff only relied on the oral evidence of five witnesses in this respect: not a single judgment in which the custom was held to be proved was cited. The learned counsel for the appellant wanted to produce an unreported judgment of this Court in support of his case, but there was no ground for allowing him to produce additional evidence at this stage. The oral evidence of the witnesses produced by the plaintiff was of little value. The defendants on the other hand produced three copies of judgments in which it was held that the custom of pre-emption in the abadi of Kishan Ganj was not proved. From two of these judgments it appears that the village Abdul stood at the site where the Kishan Ganj abadi is now situated. But the plaintiff's case is based on the ground that Kishan Ganj is now a part of Hazro town and not on the ground that Kishan Ganj is a village. If Kishan Ganj were a village, the plaintiff would have had to show that he was entitled to pre-empt on grounds different to that relied on by him in the present case. Therefore, even if the custom of pre-emption prevailed in the village Abdul, that cannot help the plaintiff in the present case. The note of inspection by the learned Judge shows that Kishan Ganj is separate from Hazro town by the circular road and fields. It is apparently a recent out-growth and it was therefore necessary for the plaintiff to prove that the custom of pre-emption obtained in this locality. It has been held by a Full Bench of this Court recently (*A I R 1937 Lah 451*²), that a custom must be ancient and immemorial and in the circumstances I fail to see how a custom of pre-emption can possibly be proved in a comparatively recent abadi like that of Kishan Ganj. The ruling relied on by the learned District Judge does not appear to be in point. In that case expansion had occurred in a sub-division of Multan city and the parties had admitted in the Court below that the custom of pre-emption prevailed in that sub-division. On the other hand 84 P R 1910,³ 2 Lah 83⁴ and 75 I C 610⁵ are

2. Bahadur v. Nihal Kaur, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 451=169 I C 909=39 P L R 349 (F B).

3. Allah Ditta v. Mohamed Nazir, (1910) 84 P R 1910=7 I C 716.

4. Imperial Oil, Soap and General Mills Co. Ltd. Delhi v. Misbahruddin, (1921) 8 A I R Lah 69 = 61 I C 325 = 2 Lah 83 = 70 P L R 1921.

5. Diwan Chand v. Nizam Din, (1923) 10 A I R Lah 443=75 I C 610.

1. Ahmad Shah v. Church Missionary Trust Association, London, (1924) 11 A I R Lah 700=75 I C 910.

analogous cases which have been relied on for the respondents and these show that it was incumbent on the plaintiff to prove the custom of pre-emption in the new abadi of Kishan Ganj.

The learned counsel for the appellant stated that a notification had been issued by Government that Hazro would be considered to be a town for the purpose of the Pre-emption Act. But the notification does not mean that the custom of pre-emption obtains in the town of Hazro. This fact had to be established by the plaintiff who relied on the custom. In my opinion the plaintiff has failed to prove in this case that the custom of pre-emption obtains either in Hazro or in Kishan Ganj. I therefore dismiss the appeal and accepting the cross-objections dismiss the plaintiff's suit with costs throughout. It may be mentioned here that the sum of Rs. 910, which was claimed by the plaintiff in his appeal, was stated to be lying in deposit in the Court below. It was not taken by the defendants according to the statement made by the learned counsel appearing on their behalf. The defendants of course will have to refund the amount paid by the plaintiff in pursuance of the decree of the learned District Judge if it has been taken away by them.

B.D./R.K. Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 65

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Barkat Ram — Judgment-debtor — Appellant.

v.

Sardar Bhagwan Singh, Decree-holder and others — Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 134 of 1936, Decided on 25th February 1937, against judgment of Coldstream J., D/- 16th July 1936.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 49—Interest of partner in partnership assets is moveable.

An interest of a partner in partnership assets is intended to be treated as moveable under R. 49 of O. 21; Case law referred. [P 67 C 1; P 68 C 1]

(b) General Clauses Act (1897), S. 3 — Immovable property — Whether interest of partner in partnership assets consisting of land, can be described as benefit arising out of land (Quaere).

It is doubtful whether the interest of a partner in partnership assets consisting, among other things, of land can be rightly described as a benefit arising out of land within the definition of immovable property in S. 3. [P 67 C 2]

1938 L/9 & 10

(c) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 66 — Objections—Objection to sale by judgment-debtor on ground of defect in proclamation—Objection dismissed on ground that remedy under O. 21, R. 90 is open—Such remedy not found available — Judgment-debtor is entitled to claim adjudication upon earlier objection.

Where the judgment-debtor objects to the order of sale on the ground of material defect in the sale proclamation at a time when he was not prevented under law from raising such objection, but the application is dismissed solely on the ground that the remedy under O. 21, R. 90 is open to him and if it is eventually found that that remedy is not available to him under the law, the judgment-debtor is entitled to claim an adjudication upon the objections taken by him at an earlier stage: A I R 1925 Lah 507 and A I R 1921 P C 11, Ref. [P 68 C 2]

Mehr Chand Mahajan and Ram Lal Anand II — for Appellant.

Achhru Ram and N. L. Sadana — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — This Letters Patent appeal has arisen in the following circumstances: Under R. 49 of O. 21, Civil P. C., the interest of the judgment-debtor appellant in the property belonging to a partnership was charged with payment of the amount due under a decree on the application of the decree-holder against him. On 23rd March 1935 the Senior Subordinate Judge gave notice to the judgment-debtor's counsel under sub.r. 2 of R. 66 of O. 21, Civil P. C., to furnish the necessary particulars within a time fixed by him. On 1st April 1935 the judgment-debtor expressed his inability to supply the necessary particulars within the time allowed. Thereupon the Court caused the proclamation for sale to be made and ordered the sale to be held on 3rd May 1935. This proclamation was duly published in some newspapers. But as the sale was postponed under the orders of this Court on a certain petition filed by the judgment-debtor, it could not be held on the day originally fixed for it and eventually on 21st August the sale was ordered to be held on 21st October. On 19th October the judgment-debtor put in objections, pointing out certain defects in the proclamation, as also the fact that some of the assets of the partnership were in the form of immovable property and that the judgment-debtor's share in the stocks, machinery, tools, etc. in various places was worth more than the decretal amount.

This application was however dismissed by the Senior Subordinate Judge on 21st October 1935 mainly on the ground that the judgment-debtor would have ample opportunity to raise the question of irregularities in the publication or the conduct of the sale under R. 90 of O. 21, and that the application should not be entertained at that stage inasmuch as other remedies were open to the judgment-debtor. It was also stated by the Subordinate Judge that the decree-holder did not deny this right to the judgment-debtor. The sale was accordingly held on the prescribed date, and the judgment-debtor then submitted an application under S. 151, Civil P. C., read with R. 90 of O. 21, asking for the sale to be set aside on the ground of material irregularities in publishing and conducting it. In the meantime, the Senior Subordinate Judge, who had made the order on 21st October reserving to the judgment-debtor the right to challenge the sale under R. 90 of O. 21, had been succeeded by another Senior Subordinate Judge and the latter Judge dismissed the application, mainly on the ground that the property sold being moveable, no objection could be taken to the sale thereof on the grounds alleged as laid down in R. 78 of O. 21. On appeal to this Court the order made by the Senior Subordinate Judge was confirmed by Coldstream J. The judgment-debtor has appealed.

On behalf of the judgment-debtor Mr. Mehr Chand Mahajan has raised two points: (i) that a part of the property sold was immovable and not moveable, and (ii) that the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge, dated 21st October, debarred his successor from denying to the judgment-debtor the right to raise the question of irregularities after the sale. Counsel for the judgment-debtor contends that inasmuch as the partnership assets admittedly consisted of certain items which could not but be termed immovable, the judgment-debtor's interest in those assets did not lose its original character merely on account of the fact that it was being charged under Rule 49 of O. 21. He however admits that this Rule is based on S. 23, English Partnership Act, S. 22 of which clearly lays down that where land or any heritable interest therein has become partnership property, it shall, unless the contrary intention appears, be treated as between the partners (including the representatives of a deceased partner), and also as between the heirs of a deceased partner and his executors or administrators, as personal or moveable and not real or heritable estate. But he urges that S. 22 is limited in its scope and applies only to those cases which are specified therein, and that consequently as between a partner and a stranger, his interests in the partnership assets, if they consist of land or any interest in land, retain their original character. In this connexion, Counsel refers to Lindley on Partnership, pp. 419 to 422. At p. 419 the following passage appears:

From the principle that a share of a partner is nothing more than his proportion of the partnership assets after they have been turned into money and applied in liquidation of the partnership debts, it necessarily follows that, in equity, a share in a partnership, whether its property consists of land or not, must, as between the real and personal representatives of a deceased partner, be deemed to be personal and not real estate, unless indeed such conversion is inconsistent with the agreement between the parties.

At page 420 the learned author says:

The rule contained in the section now under consideration only applies in the absence of any intention to the contrary; and it is apprehended that the rule will be excluded by an agreement, express or implied, to the effect that the land shall not be sold. The principle of law upon which the section (S. 22) is based excludes its application in such a case. Upon this ground it was held in a difficult case that a farm and quarry worked by co-owners in partnership and additional lands bought by them out of their profits for the purposes of their business, were not to be treated as converted into money It may be doubted whether the partners can by agreement alter the character of their equitable interests except by putting an end to them by a partition of the land.

At p. 421 the following passage occurs:

The doctrine of conversion of partnership property merely amounts to this, that on the death of a partner, his share in the partnership property is to be treated as money and not as land as between those who claim his share under him.

Counsel particularly draws our attention to the fact that the marginal reference to this paragraph is couched in the following words: "Doctrine of conversion has only a restricted application." At p. 422 the question of a partner's share in partnership real estate qualifying him for voting on elections is discussed and it is remarked:

It is settled that if a partner has no interest in partnership realty as distinguished from the money arising from its sale, his interest in it does not confer a qualification; but unless this is the case, the equitable doctrine of conversion, which has no practical operation until his death, does not deprive him of the qualification which he would otherwise have as a joint tenant or tenant-in-common.

It would be obvious from the above quotations that though this doctrine "of conversion into money" is a legal fiction and is restricted in its scope, the principle on which it is based, viz: "that a share of a partner is nothing more than his proportion of the partnership assets after they have been turned into money and applied in liquidation of the partnership debts" is of general application. The Indian Legislature while importing S. 23, Partnership Act, 1890, had full knowledge of all its implications and in interpreting it, it is not possible to detach it from its original context. As already stated, S. 22 of that Act had expressly declared such interest to be moveable and it was as such that this interest had been treated in S. 23. In our opinion therefore the same incidence will hold good in Rule 49 of O. 21, Civil P. C., and the interest referred to therein shall have to be treated as moveable property.

Counsel for the judgment-debtor has placed his reliance on 17 Bom 235¹ which has since been quoted with approval in 55 Mad 72.² That was a case under the Registration Act, and the question at issue was whether the transfer by means of three letters by a partner of his share in the partnership, which consisted among other things of an interest in land, was compulsorily registrable. Telang J. discussed various authorities, English and Indian, on the subject and came to the conclusion that he would have been disposed to hold if necessary that the letters in question not being registered were rightly treated by the Court below as being inadmissible in evidence to prove directly a transfer of the share of the transferring partner in the partnership to the transferee. The case in 55 Mad 72,² which followed this judgment, was also a case under S. 17 read with S. 49, Registration Act. It may however be noted that S. 17 is very wide in its application and comprises in its fold all non-testamentary instruments which purport or operate to create, declare, assign, limit, or extinguish whether in present or in future any right, title or interest to or in immovable property, while R. 90 of O. 21, Civil P. C., merely refers to immovable property and not to any right, title or interest therein.

Counsel meets this situation by referring to the definition of "immovable property" as given in S. 3, General Clauses Act, 1897. It includes land, benefits to arise out of land and things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth. It is however doubtful whether the interest of a partner in partnership assets consisting, among other things, of land can be rightly described as a benefit arising out of land. It is also urged on behalf of the judgment-debtor that if he himself had voluntarily sold his share in the partnership assets, he could not have treated it as moveable property inasmuch as it consisted of property admittedly immovable in the form of quarries, etc., and that a compulsory sale of the same property will not alter its character. This argument is also open to the same objection to which we have adverted above. Considerations arising from the Registration Act are of no avail in solving the problem before us.

Counsel for the decree-holder has relied on 26 Bom 305,³ 18 P R 1909,⁴ 46 All 917,⁵ 41 All 513⁶ and A I R 1931 Lah 673.⁷ In 26 Bom 305³ a mortgage debt was held to be moveable property within the meaning of S. 268, Civil P. C., 1882 (corresponding to R. 46 of O. 21, Civil P. C., 1908). A similar decision was given in 18 P R 1909.⁴ In 46 All 917⁵ a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court held that a simple hypothecation bond was moveable property, not only for the purposes of attachment in execution of a decree, but also for the purposes of sale. In 41 All 513⁶ a suit for the dissolution of partnership was not treated as a suit for the determination of any right to or interest in immovable property. In A I R 1931 Lah 673,⁷ a suit for accounts was not considered to be a suit for an interest in immovable property merely because the accounts related to a factory. It would however appear that none of these judgments touches the point awaiting decision before us. Counsel for the respondent has further argued that in view of the arrangement of O. 21 and the

3. Bhola Natha v. Bai Kashi, (1902) 26 Bom 305 = 4 Bom L R 18.

4. Bantu v. Ganda Singh, (1909) 18 P R 1909 = 1 I O 450 = 22 P W R 1909.

5. Umrao Singh v. Lal Singh, A I R 1924 All 796 = 80 I O 890 = 46 All 917 = 22 A L J 840.

6. Durga Das v. Jainarain, A I R 1919 All 850 = 50 I O 156 = 41 All 513 = 17 A L J 567.

7. Nihal Chand v. Jairam Das, A I R 1931 Lah 678 = 132 I O 218 = 32 P L R 464.

1. Joharmal v. Tejram Jagrup, (1893) 17 Bom 235.

2. Samuvier v. Ramasubbier, A I R 1931 Mad 560 = 182 I O 805 = 55 Mad 72 = 60 M L J 527.

place given to R. 49 therein, which precedes R. 54 dealing with immovable property and is located among those Rules which deal with moveable property alone, it can be safely inferred that it was intended by the Legislature that an interest in partnership assets should be treated as moveable property and not as immovable property. There appears to be some force in this argument but the mere fact of the insertion of R. 49 in the place where it exists is not conclusive on the point that the property dealt with therein is moveable property. For instance in 1 Rang 360⁸ a money decree was not held to be moveable property, which shows that everything dealt with before R. 54 is not necessarily moveable.

From this discussion of the subject it would be clear that the question is not free from difficulty and one cannot be sure of the correctness of one's decision, whichever way one may lean. For the reasons stated above we are on the whole disposed to think that an interest of a partner in partnership assets is intended to be treated as moveable under R. 49, O. 21, Civil P. C. In support of the second point mentioned above, counsel has relied on A I R 1925 Lah 507⁹ and 48 Cal 499.¹⁰ In A I R 1925 Lah 507⁹ Jai Lal J. in an execution case remarked as follows :

On general grounds when a definite decision has been given between the parties on any matter in controversy and such decision purports finally to adjudicate on such matter, it is not competent to the same Judge or his successor in office to set aside the former decision. The parties, if they consider themselves aggrieved, have their remedy by review or appeal to superior Courts.

In 48 Cal 499¹⁰ their Lordships of the Privy Council observed that S. 11, Civil P. C., 1908, was not exhaustive of the circumstances in which an issue was res judicata. Where in an administration suit in the High Court during the life of the last surviving annuitant a contention on behalf of the next-of-kin that the gift-over was invalid as creating a perpetuity, was rejected, in further proceedings in the suit after the annuitant's death the same contention raised on behalf of the next-of-kin was held to be barred under the rule of res judicata. In the course of their judgment their Lordships relying on an earlier judgment of their own quoted with approval the following remarks of Sir Barnes Peacock :

"The binding force of such a judgment in such a case as the present depends not upon S. 18 of Act 10 of 1877" (now replaced by S. 11, Civil P. C., 1908), "but upon general principles of law. If it were not binding, there would be no end to litigation".

Counsel for the respondent, on the other hand, urges that those judgments have no bearing on the present case inasmuch as in this case the point at issue was not finally determined by the order of the Subordinate Judge dated 21st October 1935, and consequently the plea of res judicata, real or constructive, does not obtain in this matter. This may or may not be so, but the fact remains that certain objections were raised at a time when the law did not prevent them from being raised and were left undetermined on account of a mistaken notion of law. The judgment-debtor has strenuously urged that the non-determination of the points raised by him has resulted in serious prejudice to his case, but without expressing any opinion as to the merits of his case we consider that he had been deprived of an opportunity to redress his grievances if possible. The Senior Subordinate Judge did not apply his mind to the merits of the judgment-debtor's application solely on the ground that the remedy under R. 90 of O. 21 was open to him, and if it is eventually found that that remedy is not available to him under the law, the judgment-debtor is entitled to claim an adjudication upon the objections taken by him at an earlier stage. The property in suit is considerable and consists of various items situated at various places. It was absolutely essential therefore that the proclamation for its sale should have been issued in the manner in which the law required it to be issued, and if the judgment-debtor had intimated to the Court in time that the proclamation was defective, the Senior Subordinate Judge should have disposed of his objections on the merits.

The result is that we accept the appeal and send the case back to the trial Court with direction to dispose of the objections raised by the judgment-debtor on 19th October in accordance with law. If the objections succeed, the sale will be cancelled, otherwise the sale shall stand confirmed. Costs in this appeal will abide the event.

8. Mg. Lun Bye v. Mg. Po Nyun, A I R 1924 Rang 21=76 I C 679=1 Rang 360=2 Bur L J 171.

9. Sher Khan v. Prabh Dayal, A I R 1925 Lah 507=90 I O 688=26 P L R 587.

10. G. H. Hook v. Administrator-General of Bengal, A I R 1921 P O 11=60 I O 681=48 I A 187=48 Cal 499 (P O).

K.B./A.L.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 69

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Amir Chand — Plaintiff — Appellant.
v.

Des Raj and others — Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1282 of 1936, Decided on 6th April 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Gujranwala, D/. 27th August 1936.

Execution—Compromise—Executing Court is bound to record compromise between parties—It can be admitted in evidence without registration in suit relating to property comprised in compromise.

The executing Court is bound to record the compromise between the parties and the question whether such compromise extinguishes the old decree or whether it does not intend to extinguish the old decree, is entirely beside the question as to whether or not the Court has jurisdiction to record it.
[P 70 C 1]

Such compromise can be received in evidence, without registration, in a suit which relates to the property comprised in such compromise.
[P 70 C 1]

Shamair Chand — for Appellant.

L. Achhru Ram — for Respondent
(Des Raj).

Dalip Singh J. — Haveli Shah and Sardari Lal had a mortgage decree against Hari Singh. In execution thereof a compromise was entered into between the parties on 27th January 1927. It was reduced to writing and a copy of it is Ex. D. A. By this compromise the amount due under the mortgage decree was calculated with interest and costs up to the date of the compromise. Interest on this new amount was fixed at annas eight per cent. per mensem and instalments of Rs. 1,000 due every month were fixed for payment of this new sum, Rs. 1,000 being due and payable, immediately. Certain properties, other than the mortgaged properties, including three shops were to be considered as security for the payment of these instalments and it was further provided that on failure to pay any one of these instalments the mortgagee-decreeholders could recover the entire sum then falling due from the old mortgaged property as well as the new mortgaged property. The new mortgaged property consisted of three shops; two of these were mortgaged by the mortgagor-judgment-debtor, Hari Singh, to one Amir Chand on 2nd January 1931. The judgment-debtor made default in making payment of these instalments. Haveli Shah and Sardari Lal proceeded in execution and got the two shops sold on 9th July 1934 to one Des Raj. Amir Chand then brought a suit for a declaration that the shops in question had been mortgaged to him and could only be sold in execution subject to his prior mortgage of January 1931.

Various questions arose in the suit which do not now concern us. The Appellate Court held that the compromise had mortgaged the two shops in favour of the decree-holders, Haveli Shah and Sardari Lal, and consequently, they could be sold in execution of their decree without any reference to the subsequent mortgage in favour of Amir Chand. As regards a certain site, which was not included in the compromise, he held that Amir Chand's mortgage was prior and the said site could not be sold free of the encumbrance created by Amir Chand's mortgage. He left the parties to bear their own costs and dismissed Amir Chand's suit with respect to the two shops and gave him the declaration required with respect to the site. Amir Chand has come in second appeal and his learned counsel contends that the Court below was wrong in holding that the compromise could be admitted in evidence at all. In order to establish this the first contention was that the executing Court could not have recorded such a compromise as contained in Ex. D. A. in execution at all. For this purpose he relied on A I R 1931 Lah 608,¹ a Letters Patent appeal, A I R 1935 Lah 589,² another Letters Patent Appeal and A I R 1933 Lah 732,³ a decision by a single Judge. I am unable to see how these rulings help the learned counsel for the appellant at all. The Letters Patent Appeal, A I R 1931 Lah 608,¹ has been considerably modified in the subsequent Letters Patent appeal decision in A I R 1935 Lah 589,² the chief point in dispute being as to whether an executory contract could or could not form the adjustment of a decree. However the case may be as to that point, the question here before us is a different one. The question is whether the present compromise recorded in Ex. D. A. could or could not have been recorded by the Court in execution.

1. Bakshi Ram v. Des Raj, A I R 1931 Lah 608 = 132 I O 670 = 32 P L R 365.

2. Jagan Nath Charan Das v. Thakur Das Kalian Das, A I R 1935 Lah 589 = 158 I O 701 = 37 P L R 288.

3. Thakur Das Kalayan Das v. Jagan Nath Charan Das, A I R 1933 Lah 732 = 150 I O 237.

There seems to me no doubt possible that it could be recorded and the question, whether it extinguished the old decree or whether it did not intend to extinguish the old decree, is entirely beside the question as to whether or not the Court had jurisdiction to record it. It appears to me that the Court was bound to record the compromise and at any subsequent stage it might have been a matter open to decision as to whether a compromise having extinguished the old decree, the old decree could be no longer executed and the remedy of the party was by a fresh suit on the basis of the new compromise, or whether the new compromise had not extinguished the old decree and the decree could still be executed when the conditions of the new compromise had failed by default of any of the parties thereto. This question therefore could not touch the question of the jurisdiction of the Court to record the compromise. The Court may have erred in law in the view it took as to the nature of the compromise, or the remedies arising therefrom, but this is a totally different question. In my opinion therefore the compromise was duly recorded by the Court, and this being so, the compromise could be received in evidence in this present suit without registration. This practically ends the only point seriously urged by the learned counsel. He also contended that the appeal filed by the appellant's counsel was not a proper appeal inasmuch as the power of attorney did not specifically empower the counsel to file an appeal. On this point however O. 3, R. 4, sub-rules (2) and (3), Civil P. C., are perfectly clear. The power of attorney, as remarked by the Appellate Court, empowered the counsel to do everything connected with the suit, and under O. 3, R. 4 (3) an appeal is a part of the proceedings in the suit. I see therefore no force in this contention either. I would accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

Skemp J.—I agree.

W.D./A.L.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 70

BHIDE J.

Pala Singh — Defendant — Appellant.
v.

Mt. Harnami, Plaintiff and others,
Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 541 of 1937, Decided on 4th October 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Ludhiana, D/- 19th March 1937.

Appeal—Necessary party impleaded in suit but not in appeal — Appeal should be dismissed — Such party has right of second appeal.

Where a necessary party is impleaded in a suit but not impleaded in first appeal, such a party has a right of second appeal as he is interested in its right decision. An appeal should be dismissed if a necessary party is not impleaded : A I R 1923 Pat 404, Disting. ; A I R 1932 Rang 16, Rel. on. [P 70 C 2]

Vishnu Datta — for Appellant.

Tek Chand — for Respondent

(Plaintiff).

Judgment.—Plaintiff sued in this case for a declaration that a house which had been sold in execution of a decree to the appellant Pala Singh belonged to her. She failed in the trial Court, but succeeded in appeal. The appellant was however not impleaded in that appeal. He has now come up in second appeal and it is contended on his behalf that he was a necessary party to the first appeal and as he was not joined as a party, the suit should be dismissed. The learned counsel for the respondent urged that the decree passed by the lower Appellate Court does not affect the appellant's rights as he was not made a party to that appeal and that he has therefore no right of appeal. No authority in point was cited. The appellant was a party to the suit and he is obviously a person who was a necessary party to the litigation and interested in its right decision. A I R 1923 Pat 404,¹ cited for the plaintiff respondent, does not appear to me to help her. On the other hand 9 Rang 624,² cited for the appellant, clearly shows that as the appellant was not impleaded as a party to the first appeal, that appeal should have been dismissed as he was a necessary party.

No reason is given as to why the appellant was not made a party to the first

1. Dasi Chamar v. Ram Autar Singh, (1923) 10 A I R Pat 404=71 I O 475.

2. Ma Thaw May v. Mahomed Eusoof, (1932) 19 A I R Rang 16=195 I O 645=9 Rang 624.

appeal and I see no adequate ground for impleading him now under O. 41, R. 20, Civil P. C., and remanding the case, as suggested by the learned counsel for the respondent. I accept the appeal and dismiss the suit with costs throughout.

S.O./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 71

BHIDE J.

Tej Raj—Defendant—Appellant.

v.

Ram Lal, Plaintiff and others, Defendants—Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 379 of 1937, Decided on 1st October 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Hoshiarpur, D/- 18th December 1936.

Practice — Relief — Suit for compensation on express agreement—No relief under S. 70, Contract Act, asked — Court cannot decree suit on principles of S. 70.

Where a person brings a suit for compensation relying on an express agreement to that effect and does not ask for any relief under S. 70, Contract Act, the Court cannot grant a decree on the principles laid down in S. 70 : 11 I C 820; A I R 1930 All 545 and A I R 1933 Mad 344, Rel. on; A I R 1937 P C 50, Disting. [P 71 C 1]

M. O. Mahajan—for Appellant.

H. Bustomji—for Respondent

(Plaintiff).

Judgment.—This second appeal arises out of a suit for recovery of Rs. 880. The plaintiff alleged that he had agreed to the execution of a mortgage deed regarding some joint land by defendant Tej Raj, who is his uncle, on the understanding that he would either himself redeem the land or compensate plaintiff by the payment of half the mortgage money with interest. The Court below found that the alleged agreement was not proved. The trial Court dismissed the suit but on appeal the learned Additional District Judge held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover Rs. 880 on the principles laid down in S. 70, Contract Act. The learned counsel for the appellant (Tej Raj, defendant) has contended that the plaintiff having relied on the express agreement and not having asked for any relief under S. 70, Contract Act, it was not open to the learned Additional District Judge to grant him the decree passed against the appellant. In support of this contention the learned counsel cited 11 I C 820¹ at p. 825, A I R 1930 All 545² at p. 549 and A I R 1933 Mad 344.³ The learned counsel for the respondent was not able to cite any authority laying down a contrary proposition. He referred to A I R 1937 P C 50⁴ and other rulings in which relief was granted under S. 70, Contract Act, but in none of these cases had any express agreement been first relied on.

In 145 I C 687⁵ on which some stress was laid by the learned counsel for the respondent, it was found that goods in excess of the quantity ordered had been supplied to the Municipal Committee; the only defence of the Committee was that the plaintiff was entitled to the return of the goods and not to the price thereof. It was held that the defendants had been resisting the amendment of the plaint in this respect in the first instance and therefore they were not entitled to claim at the last stage that the plaintiff was not entitled to the price of the goods.

In view of the authorities cited, it seems to me that the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant must be upheld. On merits also the plaintiff's case appears to me to be very weak. He is a nephew of the defendant, and the mortgage was to be without possession. In the circumstances, there was nothing improbable in his having consented to the mortgage even without any consideration. If the question of consideration were present to his mind, he would probably have taken some agreement in writing. In view of the above facts, I accept the appeal and dismiss the suit but leave the parties to bear their costs throughout.

S.O./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

1. Krishna Prosad Singha v. Purnendu Sinha, (1911) 11 I C 820=15 O L J 40=16 O W N 753.
2. Roopji & Sons v. Dyer Meaken & Co. Ltd., (1930) 17 A I R All 545=124 I O 35=52 All 688=1930 A L J 673.
3. Sathivel Pillai v. Sivasami Pillai, (1939) 20 A I R Mad 344=142 I O 683.
4. Palanivelu Mudaliar v. Neelavathi Ammal, (1937) 24 A I R P C 50=167 I O 5 (P O).
5. Ram Chand Lotia & Sons v. Municipal Committee, Lahore, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 14=145 I C 687.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 72

BHIDE J.

Sant Ram—Decree-holder—Appellant. v.Buta Khan — Judgment-debtor —
Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 1660 of 1936, Decided on 10th May 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Gujranwala, D/- 24th August 1936.

* Civil P. C. (1908), S. 60 (c)—'Agriculturist' means person who carries on and makes living by tillage and not mere owner of land.

The term 'agriculturist' as used in S. 60 must be strictly construed. It denotes a husbandman and a person who carries on and makes his living by tillage and not a mere owner of land: 47 P R 1897, Foll.; Case law discussed. [P 72 C 1]

D. N. Aggarwal — for Appellant.

Abdul Karim — for Respondent.

Judgment.—Four houses of the judgment-debtor Buta Khan having been attached in execution, he claimed exemption under S. 60 (c) as an agriculturist. The executing Court held that he did not himself cultivate any land and was not an agriculturist within the meaning of that section and dismissed the objection. He preferred an appeal to the District Judge, who affirmed the finding that Buta Khan did not till any land 'with his own hands', but considered that this was not necessary and held him to be an 'agriculturist' on the ground that his main source of livelihood was agriculture. He accordingly upheld the objection and ordered the houses to be released from attachment. From this decision, Sant Ram has appealed. The word 'agriculturist' has not been defined in S. 60 (c), Civil P. C., and must be understood in its dictionary sense. It was held in 47 P R 1897¹ that the term 'agriculturist' as used in the section must be strictly construed and that it denoted a husbandman and a person who carries on and makes his living by tillage and not a mere owner of land. This view has been I believe consistently followed in this province and not been dissented from. A similar interpretation was placed on the word by a learned Judge of this Court recently in 38 P L R 333.²

The learned District Judge has relied on A I R 1928 Lah 132,³ A I R 1923 Bom 12⁴ and A I R 1936 Lah 532⁵ in support of his view that a person whose main source of income is agriculture is an agriculturist even if he did not till the land himself. But I do not think these rulings lay down any proposition contrary to that laid down in 47 P R 1897.¹ The latter ruling was in fact relied upon in A I R 1928 Lah 132.³ A I R 1923 Bom 12⁴ was also relied upon in the same ruling, but the head-note appears to be somewhat misleading. In A I R 1923 Bom 12⁴ the judgment-debtor had leased 150 acres of land, some of which he had let out again to tenants and some he tilled by the aid of his servants. One of the witnesses stated that the judgment-debtor used to supervise cultivation. But it was held that this did not justify a finding that he was personally engaged in agricultural labour. The lower Court had held in that case that the defendant's only business was agriculture, but it was held that this was not sufficient. In A I R 1936 Lah 532⁵ it was found that the judgment-debtor had not even proved that his main source of income was agriculture. But this did not mean that if the main source of livelihood was agriculture, this would have been sufficient to declare the judgment-debtor to be an agriculturist within the meaning of S. 60, Civil P. C. In fact the learned Judge who decided that case relied in the course of his judgment on the fact that the judgment-debtor did not cultivate the land himself and also referred to Madras and Bombay High Court rulings in 49 Mad 227⁶ and 12 Bom 363⁷ in which it was held that the term 'agriculturist' must be interpreted in the strictest sense for the purpose of the exemption under S. 60, Civil P. C., and that a large landed proprietor, even though his sole income is from land, is not an agriculturist within the meaning of Cl. (c) of that section. In the present case, it has been found that the judgment-

3. Abdullah v. Anjuman Dehi, A I R 1928 Lah 132=106 I O 45.

4. Rubine v. Balwantrao Ramnarayan, A I R 1923 Bom 12=105 I O 795.

5. Mahomed Akbar v. Harbans Singh, A I R 1936 Lah 532=161 I O 16.

6. Muthuvenkatarama Reddiar v. Official Receiver, South Arcot, A I R 1926 Mad 350=92 I O 398=49 Mad 227=50 M L J 90.

7. Jiwan Bhaga v. Hiray Bhaiji, (1888) 12 Bom 868.

1. Bawa Gurbakhsh Singh v. Ghulam Qadir, (1897) 47 P R 1897.

2. Gurbakhsh Singh v. Lal Chand Darshan Lal, A I R 1936 Lah 787=164 I O 690=38 P L R 333.

debtor does not cultivate land himself. His statement shows that he owns houses in two places and he has kept his two wives in one village and a mistress in another. He apparently owned a considerable area of land, but he is said to have gifted some of it to his sons. His statement also shows that he was for some time carrying on some business in United Provinces. In view of these facts, the decision of the trial Court was in my opinion correct. I accept the appeal and restore the order of the trial Court with costs throughout.

S.C./D.S.

Appeal allowed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 73

BHIDE J.

Basharat Ali Shah — Appellant.

v.

Ram Rattan (Official Receiver) and others — Respondents.

Second Appeals Nos. 15 and 17 of 1937, Decided on 2nd June 1937, from order of Addl. Dist. Judge, Hoshiarpur, D/- 5th December 1936.

* (a) Provincial Insolvency Act (1920), Ss. 4 and 53 — Powers of Insolvency Court—Transfer by insolvent more than two years before his adjudication — Transfer can be set aside under S. 4 and not under S. 53 — Insolvency Court can deal with question according to principles which govern a suit for avoidance of transfer under ordinary law.

Section 4 only empowers the Insolvency Court for the sake of convenience to decide any questions of title, priority, etc. which arise in the course of insolvency proceedings. It is open to the Insolvency Court to try such questions or leave them to be decided by an ordinary Civil Court, if it chooses to do so. [P 75 C 1]

Where a transfer is made by a person more than two years before his adjudication as insolvent, it can be set aside under S. 4 of the Act and not under S. 53 and the Insolvency Court can deal with the question according to the same principles which would have governed a suit for avoidance of the transfer under the ordinary law : A I R 1934 Lah 365 ; A I R 1929 All 105 (b B) ; A I R 1929 Sind 94 and A I R 1928 Lah 556, Rel. on. [P 75 C 1]

(b) Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 53—Fraudulent transfer by insolvent in favour of his wife more than two years before his adjudication—B purchasing property in execution of mortgage decree against her — Application by Official Receiver to avoid transfer—Transfer in favour of wife held voidable and could be set aside under S. 53 but only subject to B's rights—Transfer in favour of B held could not be set aside.

A Mahomedan transferred certain properties to his wife in lieu of dower but more than two years before his adjudication as insolvent. The property was mortgaged by the wife and in execution of the mortgage decree it was purchased by B. It was found that the transfer in favour of the wife was fraudulent. The Official Receiver thereafter applied to avoid the transfer :

Held that the transfer in favour of the wife was voidable and not void and was liable to be set aside under S. 53, but only without impairing the rights of a bona fide transferee for valuable consideration. As the rights of B had come into existence before the application for avoiding the transfer in favour of the wife was made by the Receiver, the transfer in his favour must stand.

[P 75 C 2]

F. C. Mittal for Achhru Ram —

*for Appellant.*J. N. Aggarwal — for Respondents.

Judgment.—Second Appeals from Order Nos. 15 and 17 of 1937 are connected and can be conveniently disposed of together. These appeals arise out of an application made by the Official Receiver in insolvency proceedings to avoid an alienation of property made by the insolvent Inayat Ali Shah in favour of his wives in lieu of dower. Inayat Ali Shah was adjudged insolvent on his own petition on 27th July 1933. The alienation had been effected by him in favour of his wives on 12th September 1929, i. e. more than two years before the adjudication. The Insolvency Court dealt with the matter under S. 4, Insolvency Act, and found that the alienation had been effected fraudulently in order to defeat the creditors and was therefore inoperative against the Official Receiver. From this decision an appeal was preferred to the Additional District Judge who confirmed the finding of the Insolvency Court and dismissed the appeal. An appeal against this decision has been presented (1) by the two wives of the insolvent, Mt. Walait Bibi and the legal representatives of Mt. Ghulam Fatima (who has died) ; and (2) by Sayed Basharat Ali Shah who purchased a portion of the property subsequently at a sale in execution of a decree against Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima.

The points raised by the learned counsel for the appellants in both the appeals were as follows : (1) that the onus of proving that the alienation was not binding on the Receiver lay upon him and the learned Additional District Judge has erred in deciding the case as though the onus lay on the transferees ; (2) that the trial Court erred in not giving sufficient opportunity to Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima to produce their oral and documentary evidence; (3) that Basharat Ali Shah was protected in respect of the alienation in his favour as the Courts below have found that he was a bona fide transferee who had paid valuable consideration; (4) that the Receiver was estopped from challenging the alienation as he himself sold a portion of the property in execution of the decree which was purchased by Basharat Ali Shah.

I shall deal with these points in the above order. As regards point No. (1), the onus had been wrongly placed on the transferees, but the trial Court corrected the onus and re-framed the issue as follows: Is the transfer in favour of the wives a void transaction and therefore inoperative against the Official Receiver? The onus being thus correctly placed and both parties having led their evidence, there is no force in the contention of the learned counsel that the case has not been judged from the proper stand-point by the learned Additional District Judge. The learned Additional District Judge has no doubt considered mainly the question whether the alienation was effected in lieu of a genuine debt of a dower, but this was probably because that was the point mainly agitated before him. The learned Judge of the trial Court has discussed at length the oral and documentary evidence which showed that the insolvent was in straitened circumstances at the time when the alienation in favour of Mt. Walait Bibi and Ghulam Fatima was effected in the year 1929. The learned counsel for the appellants did not challenge the correctness of the evidence relied on by the learned Judge of the trial Court. This evidence was in my opinion sufficient to shift the initial onus placed on the Receiver to the transferees. The finding of the learned District Judge on the point seems to me to be correct and I see no good ground for interference with it in second appeal.

As to the second point, an affidavit is produced by Mt. Walait Bibi that this point was urged before the learned Additional District Judge but he did not notice it in his judgment. The affidavit is however of the appellant Mt. Walait Bibi. The affidavit should have been at any rate of the learned counsel who appeared before the learned Additional District Judge. The learned Additional District Judge has considered at length the points which were urged before him and I am not prepared to believe merely on the above affidavit that he omitted any point which was pressed before him.

As to the third point, the learned Judges of the Courts below have held that Basharat Ali Shah was a bona fide transferee for valuable consideration. The learned counsel for the respondents pointed out that Basharat Ali Shah is the brother of the insolvent Inayat Ali Shah and that he could not have been unaware of the true nature of the alienation. The fact that Basharat Ali Shah is the brother of the insolvent is noticed by the learned Additional District Judge in his judgment, but in view of the other circumstances, the learned Judge came to the conclusion that he was a bona fide transferee for valuable consideration. This finding must I think be accepted as a finding of fact for the purpose of this second appeal.

The main contention urged by the learned counsel for Basharat Ali Shah was that the alienation had been effected more than two years before the adjudication, and it could only be dealt with according to the principles laid down in S. 53, T. P. Act. According to that section, a bona fide transferee for valuable consideration is protected even if the original transaction is fraudulent. It was therefore contended that even if the transfer in favour of Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima was fraudulent, the transfer in favour of Basharat Ali Shah should have been maintained on the finding arrived at by the Courts below, viz. that he was a bona fide transferee for valuable consideration. No authority directly in point was cited. The learned Additional District Judge has relied on A I R 1935 Lah 368¹ and A I R 1934 Lah 101,² but the question of the position of a bona fide transferee does not appear to have been considered in these cases. All that was decided was that if the original transfer was held to be fraudulent and avoidable, the subsequent transfer founded on it also fell with it. The contention urged in these cases was that the subsequent transfer could not be dealt with at all under S. 53, Provincial Insolvency Act; but this contention was repelled and it was held that the subsequent transfer could be annulled under S. 4 if not technically under S. 53, Provincial Insolvency Act.

1. Ata Muhammad v. Mehr Chand, A I R 1935 Lah 368 = 156 I C 1018 = 16 Lah 1013 = 88 P L R 24.

2. Dit Ram Mal v. Hans Raj, A I R 1934 Lah 101 = 148 I C 1013 = 15 Lah 849.

In the present case, it is beyond dispute that the alienation in favour of Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima was made more than two years before the adjudication of the insolvent and it could be set aside under S. 4 and not under S. 53, Provincial Insolvency Act. That section only empowers the Insolvency Court for the sake of convenience to decide any questions of title, priority, etc., which arise in the course of insolvency proceedings. It is open to the Insolvency Court to try such questions or leave them to be decided by an ordinary Civil Court, if it chooses to do so (see 15 Lah 294³ and 51 All 550⁴). It would appear to follow from this that the Insolvency Court could only deal with the question according to the same principles which would have governed a suit for avoidance of the transfer under the ordinary law (cf. A I R 1929 Sind 94⁵ and A I R 1928 Lah 556⁶). These principles, so far as the point at issue is concerned, are to be found in S. 53, T. P. Act. According to this section, a transfer of immovable property made with intent to defeat or delay the creditors of the transferor is voidable at the option of the creditor so defeated or delayed, but it is at the same time clearly provided that nothing in the section would impair the rights of a transferee in good faith and for consideration.

The Receiver in the present case, as representing the creditors of the insolvent, had the right to get the transfer in favour of Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima set aside, as it has been found that it was made fraudulently to defeat and delay the creditors of the insolvent. But as it has been also found that Basharat Ali Shah was a bona fide transferee for consideration, his rights cannot be affected (46 Mad 478⁷). It was urged that the property vested in the Receiver from the date of adjudication under S. 28, Provincial Insolvency Act, and as the original transfer in favour of Mt. Ghulam Fatima and Mt. Walait Bibi has been found to be fraudulent, they had no saleable interest which could be passed in favour of Basharat Ali Shah as the transfer in his favour took place after the adjudication of Inayat Ali. But this contention also seems to have no force. The transfer in favour of Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima was voidable and not void. After the transfer, they had mortgaged the property and it was in execution of the mortgage-decree that Basharat Ali Shah purchased the property. The transfer in favour of Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima was liable to be set aside under S. 53, T. P. Act, but only without impairing the rights of a bona fide transferee for valuable consideration. As the rights of Basharat Ali Shah had come into existence before the application was made by the Receiver for avoiding the transfer in favour of Mt. Walait Bibi and Mt. Ghulam Fatima, it seems to me that the transfer in his favour must stand.

On the above finding it is unnecessary to consider the fourth point, viz. as regards the question of estoppel. I may however note that there seems to be no force in it, as the Receiver sold the property not in his capacity as a Receiver, but because he happened to be also a Court-auctioneer and was ordered by the executing Court to sell the property. I accordingly accept the appeal of Basharat Ali Shah (C. A. No. 15 of 1937) and set aside the decree of the Courts below as regards that portion of the property in dispute which was purchased by him. He will have his costs throughout. The other appeal is dismissed with costs throughout.

K.B./R.K. Appeal No. 15 of 1937 accepted;
Appeal No. 17 of 1937 dismissed.

3. Ram Ditta Mal v. Official Receiver, Lahore, A I R 1934 Lah 865=147 I O 1026=15 Lah 294=35 P L R 271.

4. Anwar Khan v. Mohammad Khan, A I R 1929 All 105=113 I O 819=51 All 550=1929 A L J 155 (F B).

5. Atmaram Udhavdas v. Dayaram Sawney, A I R 1929 Sind 94=115 I O 880.

6. Ghani Muhammad v. Dina Nath, A I R 1928 Lah 556=108 I O 602.

7. Kunhu Pothanassiar v. Raru Nair, A I R 1923 Mad 558=72 I O 727=46 Mad 478=44 M L J 527.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 76

COLDSTREAM AND JAI LAL JJ.

Local Committee of Gurdwaras, Lahore —Objector — Appellant.

v.

Sardul Singh and another, Contesting objectors and another, Petitioner and others, Pro forma objectors — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 2328 of 1935, Decided on 19th February 1937, from decree of Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal, Lahore, D/- 23rd September 1935.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 1—Amendment or correction of mistake in decree but not review of judgment—Whether supersedes original decree necessitating dismissal of appeal presented with copy of original decree (Quære).

Where an application for review of judgment is granted, no appeal is competent against the original decree as that decree must be deemed to have been superseded and therefore non-existent. But it is doubtful whether an amendment in the decree, apart from the review of the judgment, to however slight an extent, and even a correction of a mistake under S. 152, Civil P. C., in the decree, have the effect of superseding the original decree so as to necessitate the dismissal of an appeal, which is presented with a copy of the original decree : Case law discussed. [P 78 O 1, 2]

(b) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 2 (a)—Followers of Baba Ram Rai are not Sikhs.

There is an essential difference both in belief and in practice between the Sikhs as defined in the Sikh Gurdwaras Act and the followers of Baba Ram Rai. Baba Ram Rai never became a follower of the 8th, 9th or the 10th Guru ; on the other hand, he was their rival and established an institution of his own at Dehra Dun ; neither he nor his followers therefore can be styled as the followers of the 10 Gurus, or believers in the 10 Gurus.

[P 79 O 2 ; P 80 O 1]

Badri Das, Manohar Lal Mehra, Kartar Singh, Amar Nath Grover and Harnam Singh — for Appellant.

Achhru Ram, Jagan Nath Aggarwal, Bhagat Singh, Kahan Chand and R. P. Khosla — for Respondents.

Jai Lal J.—On a petition being made by the prescribed number of persons under S. 7, Sikh Gurdwaras Act, 1925, claiming that an institution known as 'Gurdwara Chobacha Guru Ram Rai' situated within the limits of Moghalpura, Lahore, be declared to be a Sikh Gurdwara, the Local Government issued the usual notification under that section, whereupon the respondent Bachan Das claiming to be the Mahant of the alleged Gurdwara made an application under S. 8 of the Act praying that the institution be not declared to be a Sikh Gurdwara. This petition was opposed by the appellants, who are some of the applicants under S. 7 of the Act, and who style themselves as the Local Committee of the Gurdwaras at Lahore. The remaining respondents before us are some of the worshippers of the shrine. It may be noted at this stage that from the commencement of the proceedings the Shromani Gurdwara Parbhandak Committee declined to be a party to the proceedings before the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal. The case was consequently heard by the Gurdwaras Tribunal and the learned President and one of the Members, Rai Bahadur Dwarka Parshad, were of opinion that the institution was not a Sikh Gurdwara and should not therefore be declared as such. The other member, Sardar Man Singh, however, differed from this view and recorded a separate dissenting judgment holding that the institution was a Sikh Gurdwara and should be declared as such, but the opinion of the majority of the members of the Tribunal prevailed and consequently the petition presented under S. 8, Sikh Gurdwaras Act, was granted with costs and the institution declared not to be a Sikh Gurdwara. The Local Committee of the Gurdwaras at Lahore have preferred this appeal.

At the commencement of the hearing of the appeal, a preliminary objection was taken by Mr. Achhru Ram, Advocate, on behalf of the respondents that this appeal is incompetent and should not therefore be entertained. It appears that in consequence of the judgment of the majority of the members of the Tribunal, a decree sheet was prepared in which the judgment of the Tribunal was incorporated, but in the memorandum of costs the amount payable by the appellants to the respondent on account of subsistence for witnesses was mentioned to be Rs. 1,095-4-0. An application was then made on behalf of the appellants on 1st November 1935 objecting to this amount. This application was under O. 47, R. 1, Civil P. C., for review of the judgment of the Tribunal as well as the decree dated 23rd September 1935. The application was granted on 20th December 1935, the Gurdwaras Tribunal having held that the amount payable by the appellants as subsistence for witnesses was Rs. 731 and that the decree should be amended accordingly. This order is signed by the three members of the Tribunal and was given effect to on the same day by means of a correction of the original decree sheet in which the amount originally mentioned was reduced and the alteration initialled by the Clerk of Court of the Tribunal but not by any of the three members thereof. In the meantime the present appeal had been presented on 18th December 1935, that is to say two days before the order accepting the application of the appellants and altering the amount of costs as mentioned in the decree. With the memorandum of appeal a copy of the decree sheet as originally framed was filed and no attempt was, up to the hearing of the appeal, made to file a copy of the decree sheet as amended in pursuance of the order of the Tribunal. The learned counsel for the respondents contends that the decree sheet having been amended, no appeal is competent against the decree as originally framed which has now ceased to exist, and as the amendment was made on an application made by the appellants, they have no reasonable excuse for the omission, and are not therefore entitled to any extension of time.

A number of cases have been cited in support of this preliminary objection in which it has been laid down that where a decree has been amended, an appeal can be preferred only against the amended decree and not against the original decree. Under O. 41, R. 1, it is imperative that the memorandum of appeal should be accompanied by a copy of the decree appealed from and no discretion is given to the Court to dispense with the filing of such a copy. In 140 P R 1919¹ it was held that where a decree passed on 18th January 1915 had been set aside on 6th May 1915 on an application made by one of the parties, who was a respondent before the Chief Court, an appeal filed on 5th March 1915 against the original decree was not competent and must be dismissed. It appears however that in that case the original decree had been set aside by the order of 6th May 1915 on an application for review and a further inquiry had been ordered by the Court, therefore no decree existed on 6th May 1915. The learned Judges followed 28 All 240² and 34 All 282.³ The head-note of the former is :

1. Basheshar Nath v. Ram Kishan Das, A I R 1920 Lah 333=54 I O 966=140 P R 1919.
2. Kanhaiya Lal v. Baldeo Prasad, (1905) 28 All 240=1905 A W N 265.
3. Birghasi Lal v. Salig Ram, (1912) 34 All 282=14 I O 472=9 A L J 183.

Where an application for review of judgment is granted, the result is a new decree superseding the original decree, and not merely some amendment thereof. An appeal was filed pending an application for review of judgment in the Court below ; the review was granted, and an order passed which purported merely to amend the decree then under appeal : Held that the order of review superseded the original decree ; the decree under appeal had ceased to exist and the appeal could not be heard.

From the body of the judgment it appears that the application was for review of judgment and the decree was modified in important particulars and a new decree passed ; and it was held that the order passed on review amounted to a new decree, superseding the old decree, and therefore the decree against which the appeal had been preferred did not exist and the appeal could not be heard. The same view was expressed in the second Allahabad judgment relied upon by the learned Judges of the Chief Court. In that case also, it was the judgment which had been reviewed by the trial Court and consequently it was held that the order of review superseded the original decree which had ceased to exist. A I R 1918 Cal 530⁴ only indirectly supports the contention of the respondents. In that case, after the appeal had been preferred, the decree was amended. But an application made to the High Court to attach to the memorandum of appeal a copy of the decree as amended was granted and the appeal was heard on the merits. It was observed that from the moment the application to attach a copy of the amended decree to the memorandum of appeal was granted, the appeal became an appeal against the amended decree. In A I R 1931 Cal 323⁵ it was held that :

If a decree is modified in review, to however slight an extent it may be, the modified decree is the final decree for the purposes of an appeal and the fact that no decree is drawn up or that a decree was drawn up to the extent of the modification does not affect the question. Consequently an appeal against a decree anterior to review filed pending the review, without any appeal from the amended decree, is not competent.

This case fully supports the contention of the respondents. 6 Cal 22⁶ only indirectly supports the respondents' contention, because in that case the objection of 4. Sadupadhya Umeshanand Oja v. Ravaneshwar Prosad Singh, A I R 1918 Cal 530=48 I O 772.

5. Aditya Kumar v. Abinash Chandra, A I R 1931 Cal 323=131 I O 258=34 C W N 1002.
6. Joykishen Mookerjee v. Ataoor Rohoman, (1881) 6 Cal 22=6 C L R 575.

the respondent was that the appeal preferred within the prescribed time from the date of the amendment of the decree, but after the expiry of the prescribed time from the passing of the original decree, was barred by time. This objection was repelled by the High Court. Ratio decidendi in this case supports the respondents. In A I R 1931 Cal 578,⁷ it was held that if a decree is amended either by way of review or under S. 206, that is, S. 152 of the present Code, the decree to be appealed against is the amended decree and not the original decree. But in that particular case, the learned Judges held that the case was a fit one for extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act. On behalf of the appellants reliance was placed on A I R 1926 Cal 1166⁸ where it was held that :

Where, after the appeal is filed, a few words are added to a decree appealed from by the Court passing the decree in order to make it clear, the addition does not render the appeal incompetent in the absence of a copy of the decree after the addition.

This judgment does not in my opinion materially affect the question before us. An examination of the case-law on the subject as enumerated above shows that there can be no manner of doubt that where an application for review of judgment is granted and the decree is consequently amended, no appeal is competent against the original decree as that decree must be deemed to have been superseded and therefore non-existent. But it is a question whether in cases where no question of review or any amendment in the original judgment has been raised by either of the parties and there is a mistake in the decree either due to a miscalculation of the amount or due to its not conforming to the judgment and the decree is subsequently altered so as to bring it in conformity with the judgment, the same rule applies. Two of the Calcutta cases seem to hold that it would. Speaking for myself, I feel hesitation in adopting the view taken by the learned Judges that an amendment in the decree, apart from the review of the judgment, to however slight an extent, and even a correction of a mistake under S. 152, Civil P. C., in the decree, have the effect of superseding the original decree so as to necessitate the dismissal of an appeal, which was presented with a copy of the original decree. I need not however pursue this matter further because in my opinion even if it be held that the appeal should have been against the amended decree, as in the present case the memorandum of appeal was accompanied by the decree as it existed on the date of the presentation of the appeal and the alteration is only on the question of calculation of costs and no fresh decree sheet has been prepared, but an alteration has been made in the original decree in the amount of costs which is not signed by any of the members of the Tribunal, this is a fit case in which the appellants should be permitted to file a copy of the decree sheet as amended, provided they pay Rs. 50 as costs of this hearing to the respondents. A copy of the amended decree has been filed in Court and Rs. 50 have been paid to the respondents in pursuance of an order passed by us at the hearing of the appeal, and consequently we have heard the appeal on the merits.

There is not much doubt as to the history of the institution in dispute; it is called 'Chobacha Guru Ram Rai.' There is no evidence that the word 'Gurdwara' is affixed to it. 'Chobacha' means a pool of water or a small tank of water. Baba Ram Rai was the eldest son of the 7th Guru, Guru Har Rai. Owing to his conduct at the Court of Emperor Aurangzeb, where he had been deputed by his father, in returning a prevaricatory reply to a question of the Emperor relating to the observations of Guru Nanak about the Muslims, Baba Ram Rai was considered by his father to have fallen from the standard of veracity and conduct expected from a Guru, and was consequently banished by him. He was not allowed to go in his presence and was ordered to proceed in the direction in which he was facing; when the orders were communicated to him, he happened to be facing towards Lahore and consequently he came to Lahore. It was not apparently known to the followers of the Guru in Lahore that Baba Ram Rai had been banished by the Guru and consequently they misunderstood the injunction of the Guru not to give him kauri or paisa and presented him with silver and gold. Baba Ram Rai established his quarters near the shrine of Pir Mianmir in the vicinity of Lahore. But it is said that he had difficulty about water because the Muslims used to pollute the existing sources of water by throwing bones in the same. Consequently, he dug a small tank with his own hands and at a comparatively short distance from the surface of the ground water was obtained. This is called the 'Chobacha Sahib.' Baba Ram Rai was able to obtain water from this pool for a year or so after which it is said to have dried up. It used to be covered up during the night, and apparently guarded, in order to save it from pollution by the Muslims when its water was required for drinking. When subsequently Baba Ram Rai left Lahore and went to reside in Dehra Dun where his principal shrine now exists, he left the place near Mianmir in charge of his disciple Shah Ji. When the pool dried up, it used to be filled with water brought from other sources and this is apparently done up to this time.

7. Soudamini Das v. Nabalak Mia Bhulya, A I R 1931 Cal 578=139 I O 571=85 C W N 251.

8. Birendra Nath Ray v. Satis Chandra, A I R 1926 Cal 1166=97 I O 1008=44 C L J 121.

On behalf of the appellants it is further contended—and on this point there is controversy between the two parties—that the tank was dug up by Baba Ram Rai with a chhuri which was given to him by Pir Mianmir and that this chhuri originally belonged to Guru Nanak and was in the custody of the Pir. It is also contended—and again this contention is controverted by the respondents—that the particular spot was selected by Baba Ram Rai for the tank and for his residence because Guru Nanak had previously stayed at the same spot. Historically both these incidents do not appear to be correct. But if it is established that this is the belief of the followers of Baba Ram Rai, or the worshippers of the shrine, then it would be an important tradition connected with the life of Guru Nanak; and if it further be established that the place is worshipped on account of these two incidents on which there is a controversy, then, whether the incidents are historically correct or not, the place would be an object of respect and worship on account of the tradition. To this aspect of the case I will advert hereafter.

There has been a considerable controversy before us whether Baba Ram Rai was a Sikh and whether his followers can be called Sikhs. We are not however directly concerned with this question, because we have to deal with the definition of the term "Sikh" as contained in the Sikh Gurdwaras Act. In the popular sense, probably people would call Baba Ram Rai to be a Sikh and also his followers, but, as I will show presently, there is an essential difference both in belief and in practice between the Sikhs as defined in the Sikh Gurdwaras Act and the followers of Baba Ram Rai. I have already stated that Baba Ram Rai was banished by his father, the 7th Guru, and the latter was succeeded by his second son who became the 8th Guru. Now, it is beyond controversy that Baba Ram Rai throughout aspired to the gaddi of his father and was a rival of the 8th and the 9th Gurus. He never accepted their lead; on the other hand, he established himself in Dehra Dun where he had his own followers and supporters: not only that, he even intrigued against the 9th Guru and attempted to have him violently removed. There was, it appears, an interview between him and the 10th Guru, Guru Gobind Singh, on the river Jumna and apparently they parted as friends. But it does not follow, and it is not a fact, that Baba Ram Rai accepted Guru Gobind Singh as the Guru. The fact that Guru Gobind Singh admired him and called him a sacha Guru and his followers as bad people only shows that Guru Gobind Singh liked his kinsmen personally and subsequently protected his widows from the tyranny of the Masands, that is to say collectors of dues on behalf of Baba Ram Rai. But the fact remains, and there is ample authority on this matter, that Guru Gobind Singh subsequent to the death of Baba Ram Rai prohibited his followers from having any marital or social connexion with the followers of Baba Ram Rai. This injunction is an essential creed of the Sikhs and cannot be ignored in deciding the matter before us.

A "Sikh", according to the Sikh Gurdwaras Act, means a person who professes the Sikh religion and if any question arises as to whether any person is or is not a Sikh, he shall be deemed respectively to be or not to be a Sikh according as he makes or refuses to make in such manner as the Local Government may prescribe the following declaration: "I solemnly affirm that I am a Sikh, that I believe in the Guru Granth Sahib, that I believe in the Ten Gurus, and that I have no other religion". Now I have shown that Baba Ram Rai never became a follower of the 8th, 9th or 10th Guru; on the other hand he was their rival and established an institution of his own at Dehra Dun; neither he nor his followers therefore can be styled as the followers of the 10 Gurus, or believers in the 10 Gurus. Some evidence was led in this case to show that the followers of Baba Ram Rai do not believe in the Granth Sahib. It is not necessary to give any finding on this question. The evidence is interested on both sides and unsatisfactory both on this question and on other questions involved. But it is not unlikely that they do not believe in the Granth Sahib as it now exists. The Granth Sahib, as it existed before Baba Ram Rai was banished by his father, has been added to by the succeeding Gurus to whom he owed no allegiance and it may be that for that reason the Ram Rayias do not believe in the Granth Sahib.

One of the questions however that we have to determine in this case is whether the Granth Sahib is the object of worship predominantly by the Sikhs in the institution in question and has been before the presentation of the application. I have no hesitation in agreeing with the learned President and Rai Bahadur Dwarka Parshad that it has not been established that the Granth Sahib is predominantly the object of worship in this institution. There is evidence on the record from which it appears that when some quarters were built near the Chobacha Sahib, a room was converted into a Gurdwara for the worship of the Granth Sahib and that other Gurdwaras for the same purpose exist in the vicinity of the institution. It also appears that the followers of Baba Ram Rai shave their heads and smoke and this institution is used for the ceremony of shaving the heads, a practice which is strictly prohibited in the case of Sikhs as that term is now understood. There is also evidence that there is an idol of Baba Siri Chand kept in the institution and worshipped. If the Granth Sahib is read at all in the institution, it is not by way of public worship but as private study by the Mahant.

The place in my opinion has been rightly held by the majority of the members of the Tribunal to be intended and to be used primarily for worship of the Chobacha Sahib, that is to say, the tank which was dug with his own hands by Baba Ram Rai, the founder of the sect. None of the 5 clauses of S. 16 applies to the facts of this case. It was not established by or in the memory of any of the 10 Gurus or in commemoration of the life of any of the 10 Gurus, nor was it used before or at the time of the presentation of the petition for public worship by the Sikhs. It was, on the other hand, established by Baba Ram Rai in order to procure water from the tank and not in commemoration of the alleged visit of Guru Nanak to this place and, as I have already stated, it was not used for public worship by the Sikhs. Cl. (i) has therefore no application to the case. Similarly Cl. (ii) does not apply because it is not used for public worship predominantly by the Sikhs and further any worship that takes place is not owing to the alleged traditions mentioned above connected with Guru Nanak, even if we assume that the existence of that tradition has been proved. This disposes of Cl. (ii) of S. 16. Cl. (iii) would apply if the institution had been established for use by Sikhs for the purposes of public worship and had been used for such worship by the Sikhs. This matter also has been disposed of by the discussion under the previous clauses. Cls. (iv) and (v) also do not apply because the place has not been used for public worship by the Sikhs. The main ground therefore on which the appeal must fail is that it has not been established that the institution in question has been used by the Sikhs for public worship. Agreeing therefore with the majority of the members of the Gurdwaras Tribunal, I would dismiss this appeal with costs.

Coldstream J.—I agree.

S.O./D.S.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 80

BHIDE J.

Peoples Bank of Northern India, Ltd.
— Plaintiff — Petitioner.

v.

Kanaya Lal and others — Defendants
— Respondents.

Civil Revn. No. 156 of 1937, Decided on 11th May 1937, from order of Sub Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/- 18th February 1937.

Revision — Competency — No revision lies from order of Court calling upon plaintiff to make good deficiency in court-fees either under Civil P. C., S. 115 or Government of India Act (1935), S. 224.

Where the trial Court requires the plaintiff to make good the deficiency in court-fees, no revision lies against such order either under S. 115, Civil P. C., as, on rejection of the plaint on non-compliance with such order, an appeal lies or under S. 224, Government of India Act 1935, as the High Court cannot interfere with the judicial order in the exercise of its administrative functions under that section: A I R 1924 Lah 425 (F B); A I R 1936 Oudh 22 (F B) and A I R 1934 All 620 (F B), Rel. on. [P 81 C 1]

D. C. Balli — for Petitioner.

Kishori Lal and P. A. Bharadwaj —
for Respondents.

Order — This is a petition for revision of the order of the Subordinate Judge, 1st Class, Lahore, holding that the plaint in this case was not properly stamped and requiring the plaintiff to make up the court-fees.

A preliminary objection is raised that no revision lies, the order in question being an interlocutory one. Reliance is placed on 5 Lah 288¹; A I R 1936 Oudh 22² and A I R 1934 All 620³. The learned counsel for the petitioner requests that the order may be revised under S. 107, Government of India Act. In the first place the petitioner is not without a remedy in this case, as he can appeal from the order rejecting the plaint if he does not pay the court-fees. I am also doubtful if S. 107, Government of India Act, can be held to be properly applicable to a case of this type and it is significant that in the recently enacted Government of India Act of 1935, it is made clear that the High Court cannot interfere with judicial orders in the exercise of its administrative functions under S. 224 which corresponds to the old S. 107, old Government of India Act of 1919. I uphold the preliminary objection and dismiss the petition, but in view of all the circumstances I leave the parties to bear their costs.

K.B./A L. Petition dismissed.

1. Lalchand Mangal Sen v. Beharilal Mehr Chand, A I R 1924 Lah 425=84 I C 259=5 Lah 488 (F B).
2. Parasnath v. Ran Bahadur, A I R 1936 Oudh 22=158 I C 949=11 Luck 529=1936 O W N 1158 (F B).
3. Gupta & Co v. Kirpa Ram Brothers, A I R 1934 All 620=149 I C 1183=1934 A L J 381 (F B).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 81

BHIDE J.

Amrit Lal and others — Plaintiffs —
Appellants.

v.

Phool Chand and others — Defendants
— Respondents.

First Appeal No. 34 of 1937, Decided on 17th May 1937.

Limitation Act (1908), S. 5—Mistake of pleader—Mistaken advice of counsel is not sufficient to justify extension unless advice is given in good faith—Held on facts that counsel did not act in good faith and no extension could be granted under S 5.

A mistaken advice of counsel is not sufficient to justify extension of time being granted under S. 5 unless the advice was given in good faith that is, with due care and attention. [P 82 C 1]

In a case the value of the subject matter of the suit clearly showed that an appeal lay to the High Court and not to the District Judge but an appeal was preferred to the District Judge, under the advice of a counsel. The appeal was once dismissed for default and even though an objection was raised by opposite party at the time of the restoration that no appeal lay to the District Judge, the counsel did not care to examine the question but persisted in continuing it. The appeal was then presented to the High Court but was then time-barred. No reasonable explanation was given by the counsel as to why he thought that the appeal lay to the District Judge:

Held that the counsel had not acted in good faith and no extension could be granted under S. 5: 118 P R 1908; A I R 1918 Lah 67 and A I R 1933 Lah 568, Rel. on. [P 82 C 2]

A. R. Aggarwal for J. N. Aggarwal and J. N. Aggarwal—for Appellants.

Pt. Nanak Chand and P. N. Bhardwaj
—for Respondents.

Judgment.—This is an appeal from the order of the Subordinate Judge, First Class, Hissar, dismissing an application for filing an award under paras. 17 and 20 of Sch. 2, Civil P. C. The decision of the learned Subordinate Judge is dated 28th August 1935, while the appeal was presented to this Court on 18th February 1937. A preliminary objection was raised that the appeal was barred by time. The learned counsel for the appellants urged that extension of time should be granted under S. 5, Limitation Act, as the appellants had presented an appeal in the first instance to the District Judge, Hissar, under advice given by a local pleader. The learned counsel for the respondent contended in reply that the advice given by counsel in the circumstances of the present case could not be considered to have been given bona fide, that is, with due care and attention, and did not, therefore, constitute sufficient justification for granting an extension of time under S. 5, Limitation Act. The learned counsel for the appellants urged that it was the bona fides of the appellants and not that of the counsel which was to be considered. In support of this contention, he relied mainly on 43 Bom 376,¹ 45 Cal 94² and 14 Lah 206.³ None of these rulings, however, appears to me to go to the length of saying that mistaken advice of counsel even if it is not given in good faith, that is, with due care and attention, is sufficient to allow extension of time. In 43 Bom 376¹ there is only a brief remark to the effect that the defendants were not precluded from showing that it was due to their reliance on the evidence of the counsel that they had not presented their appeal to the Court of the District Judge within the prescribed period of limitation. 45 Cal 94², another ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council, was referred to, but in that ruling the question whether counsel had acted in good faith in presenting an application for review was considered. In 14 Lah 206,³ the learned Judges were apparently of opinion that the leading counsel at Mianwali had acted in good faith in giving his advice on the strength of certain rulings of the Allahabad High Court. These cases thus appear to have been decided on their own facts and do not lay down any general proposition that advice of counsel is in itself sufficient to justify extension of time being granted to an appellant who has acted on that advice, even if that advice were given without due care and attention.

The view appears to have been consistently taken in this High Court as well as the Punjab Chief Court that mistaken advice of counsel is not sufficient to justify extension of time being granted under S. 5, Limitation Act, unless the advice was given in 'good faith', that is with due care and attention. I need only refer in this respect to 118 P R 1908,⁴ A I R 1918 Lah 67⁵ and A I R 1933 Lah 568.⁶ In the present instance, no attempt was made to show that the learned counsel who advised presentation of the appeal to the District Judge had acted in 'good faith'. The question of forum of appeal was not a difficult one. The subject matter of the award was property worth Rs. 9,000 and Rs. 10,000 had also been fixed by the award as a penalty for failure to comply with certain conditions. The appeal thus lay prima facie to the High Court. The learned counsel for the appellants who advised them to appeal to the District Judge has not given any reasonable explanation in his affidavit as to why he considered that the appeal lay to the District Judge and not to the High Court. The natural inference therefore is that he did not trouble to examine the question with any care. It appears further that the appeal to the learned District Judge was once dismissed in default and the respondents pointed out in their application opposing the restoration of the appeal that no appeal lay to the District Judge. In spite of this the appellants persisted in proceeding with the application for restoration of their appeal before the District Judge. The learned counsel for the appellants apparently did not even then take the trouble of examining the question whether an appeal lay to the District Judge. In view of all the circumstances, it seems to me impossible to hold that the learned counsel on whose advice the appellants presented their appeal to the District Judge, Hissar, in the first instance, had acted in good faith. I therefore uphold the preliminary objection and dismiss this appeal with costs.

S.O./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

5. Resal Singh v. Shadi, A I R 1918 Lah 67=48
I O 817=95 P R 1917=13 P L R 1918.

6. Uttam Chand v. Vishan Das Bhagwan Das,
A I R 1933 Lah 568=144 I O 627.

A. I. R. 1933 Lahore 82

BHIDE J.

Ujagar Singh and another — Plaintiffs
v.

Gora and others — Defendants.

Civil Refs. Nos. 16 and 17 of 1937, Decided on 29th September 1937, made by Commissioner, Lahore Division, D/- 10th May 1937.

1. Sunderbai v. Collector of Belgaum, A I R 1918 P C 185=52 I O 897=46 I A 15=43 Bom 376 (P O).

2. Brij Indar Singh v. Kanshi Ram, A I R 1917 P O 156=42 I O 48=44 I A 218=104 P R 1917=45 Cal 94 (P O).

3. Ghulam Muhammad v. Usman, A I R 1933 Lah 541=149 I O 968=14 Lah 206=84 P L R 554.

4. Sant Singh v. Qaim, (1908) 118 P R 1908.

Punjab Tenancy Act (16 of 1887), Ss. 45, 50 and 50-A—Tenant ejected under S. 45—Suit by him for possession on ground of title by adverse possession is cognizable by Revenue Court and not by Civil Court.

Section 50 or S. 50-A does not restrict the grounds on which the liability to ejectment may be contested. Where therefore a tenant ejected under S. 45 institutes a suit for possession on the ground that he had acquired title by adverse possession, such suit is cognizable by a Revenue Court and not by a Civil Court: A I R 1935 Lah 719, Rel. on. [P 83 O 1]

Ganesh Datta — for Plaintiffs.

Order.—The facts giving rise to Civil References Nos. 16 and 17 of 1937 are similar. The suits in question were instituted by persons who were ejected under S. 45 of Punjab Tenancy Act, to recover possession of the land on the ground that they had acquired title by adverse possession over 12 years. The learned Subordinate Judge in whose Court the suits were first instituted held that the suits fell under S. 50, Punjab Tenancy Act, and were triable by a Revenue Court. But the Assistant Collector, to whose Court the suits were then taken, took a contrary view and held that the suits were triable by a Civil Court, as the plaintiffs based their claim on title by adverse possession. A reference has therefore been made to this Court under S. 99, Punjab Tenancy Act, for decision of the question of jurisdiction.

The learned Assistant Collector has relied on A I R 1927 Lah 35¹ in support of his view, but in that case the suit was held to be cognizable by a Revenue Court and the case does not appear to support his view. In view of the provisions of Ss. 50 and 50-A, Punjab Tenancy Act, the present suits appear to be clearly cognizable by a Revenue Court and not by a Civil Court. S. 50 or S. 50-A does not restrict the grounds on which liability to ejectment may be contested. A similar view has been taken in A I R 1935 Lah 719², the facts of which were analogous. I accordingly direct the suits to be tried by the Assistant Collector. Records to be returned.

S.C./R.K.

Reference answered.

1. Harl Shankar v. Nazir Khan, A I R 1927 Lah 35=98 I O 875.

2. Mehar Khan v. Atta Muhammad Shah, A I R 1935 Lah 719=156 I O 592=16 Lah 1086=87 P L R 507.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 83

BHIDE J.

Administrator, Lahore Municipality — Defendant — Petitioner.
v.

Siraj Din — Plaintiff — Respondent.

Civil Revn. Petn. No. 222 of 1937, Decided on 11th June 1937, from order of Small Cause Court Judge, Lahore, D/- 11th January 1937.

Decree—Validity of—Suit against Municipality—Municipality superseded by Government and administrator appointed before passing of decree—Administrator not brought on record—Decree passed against Municipality is nullity and cannot be executed against any property in hands of administrator.

A suit was brought against a Municipality to recover certain amount. Before the decree was passed the Municipality was superseded by the Government and an administrator was appointed. Neither the administrator nor any other legal representative of the Municipality was brought on record. A decree was subsequently passed and the decree-holder tried to execute it against the property in the hands of the administrator. Administrator raised an objection:

Held that the decree was a nullity as the legal representative of the Municipality was not brought on record and could not be executed against any property in the hands of the administrator: A I R 1930 Cal 388, Disting. [P 84 O 1]

S. C. Chatterji — for Petitioner.

B. C. Verma — for Respondent.

Order.—The respondent Siraj Din instituted a suit for recovery of Rs. 266 against the Municipal Committee of Lahore and obtained a decree on 4th November 1936. Before the date of the decree, however, the Municipal Committee was superseded by the Local Government under S. 238, Punjab Municipal Act, and an administrator was appointed to carry on the duties of the Committee. The plaintiff took no steps to bring the administrator or any other person as the legal representative of the Municipal Committee on the record before the decree was passed. When the decree was sought to be executed against the property in the hands of the administrator, he raised an objection that the decree was a nullity. The learned Judge of the Court below has disallowed this objection and has ordered the execution proceedings to continue. The administrator has preferred a petition for revision of this order.

The fact that the plaintiff had taken no steps to bring any legal representative of the Municipal Committee on the record after the supersession of the Committee is not disputed. The learned counsel for the plaintiff-respondent, however, contends that under O. 22, R. 10, Civil P. C., it was discretionary with the plaintiff to bring the legal representative of the defendant on the record and his failure to do so does not render the decree a nullity. The learned counsel referred to A I R 1930 Cal 388,¹ in which it was remarked that no duty was cast upon the plaintiff to bring an assignee or trustee on the record and that it was discretionary with the Court to allow such an application. But the facts of that case were different. One of the defendants had become an insolvent and the case could proceed against the other. The learned Judges, however, were careful to point out in the latter portion of the judgment that if the absence of the legal representative of the insolvent defendant vitiated the constitution of the suit, the plaintiff would have to take the risk of it. In the present instance as there was only one defendant and as the plaintiff did not take steps to bring any legal representative of the defendant on the record, it seems to my mind clear that the decree must be looked upon as a nullity. It follows that it cannot be executed against any property in the hands of the petitioner.

I accept the petition for revision and setting aside the order of the learned Judge of the Small Cause Court, disallow the application of the plaintiff for execution of the decree. In the peculiar circumstances of the case, I leave the parties to bear their costs throughout.

S.O./R.K.

Petition allowed.

1. Prince Victor N. Narayan v. Bhairabendra Narayan Deb, A I R 1930 Cal 388=125 I O 851=34 C W N 53.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 84

COLDSTREAM J.

Mt. Nazir Begam — Appellant.

v.

Ghulam Qadir Khan and others — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 122 of 1937, Decided on 8th July 1937, from order of Guardian Judge, Multan, D/. 5th May 1937.

Guardians and Wards Act (1890), Ss. 25, 4 (5) (b) (ii), 12—Application by mother for appointment as guardian of her minor daughter, who left jurisdiction of Court only few weeks before application, granted on ground that minor ordinarily resided within jurisdiction — Subsequent application soon after for custody of child to same Court — Court held could not entertain application as minor for the time being did not reside within jurisdiction—S. 12 held had no application.

Where the mother's application of 14th May 1935 for being appointed guardian of her minor daughter, who was removed from the Court's jurisdiction only a few weeks before the application, was granted on 7th January 1937 on the ground that the child ordinarily resided in the Court's jurisdiction and on 2nd February 1937 the mother applied to the same Court for the custody of her daughter :

Held that minor was not for the time being residing within the jurisdiction of the Court and hence the application could not be granted : A I R 1929 Rang 129, Rel. on ; A I R 1936 All 267, Ref. [P 84 C 2]

Held also that S. 12 was not applicable, as it applied to proceedings before the appointment of a guardian : A I R 1929 Lah 487, Rel. on. [P 85 C 1]

Muhammad Amin (Sheikh) —

for Appellant.

Mehr Chand Mahajan —

for Respondents.

Judgment. — The appellant Mt. Nazir Begam applied to the Guardian Judge, Multan, on 14th May 1935 to be appointed guardian of her daughter Fahmida Khanam who was born in August 1933. The Judge rejected her application, one of the grounds being that he had no jurisdiction as the minor did not ordinarily reside in Multan District (S. 9. Guardians and Wards Act), but had been removed from his jurisdiction into Bahawalpur State a few weeks before the application was made. On appeal to this Court Skemp J. holding that as the minor had resided with her mother for all her life until she was taken to Bahawalpur, she 'ordinarily resided' in the Multan District, and the Guardian Judge therefore had jurisdiction to entertain the application, he appointed the appellant to be guardian by his order of 7th January 1937 accepting the appeal (First Appeal No. 255 of 1936¹). On 2nd February 1937 the appellant applied to the Guardian Judge for custody of her daughter. The Judge has refused to entertain it holding that the minor was not "for the time being" residing within his jurisdiction (S. 4 (5) (b) (ii) of the Act).

The present appeal is by Nazir Begam against this order and it is contended on her behalf that Cl. 5 (b) (ii) of S. 4 of the Act does not deprive the Guardian Judge of the general jurisdiction conferred on him by Cl. 5 (b) (i). He has no authority to cite in support of this contention, which does not appear to me to have force. Had this been the intention of the Act it would presumably had been made clear. The use of the word 'or' at the end of Cl. 5 (b) (i) cannot mean that both the Court described in (i) and the Court described in (ii) may exercise jurisdiction, for the word occurs again at the end of (ii) and it is obvious that where a case has been transferred under S. 4-A, both the original Court and the Court to which the proceedings have been transferred cannot have jurisdiction to continue the proceedings.

1. Mt. Nazir Begam v. Ghulam Qadir Khan, Reported in A I R 1937 Lah 797=I L R (1937) Lah 426=39 P L R 640.

This view is in accordance with that taken by the Rangoon Court in A I R 1929 Rang 129.² S. 12 is not applicable. It applies to proceedings before the appointment of a guardian: see 119 I C 423.³ It may be that, as held by Collister J. in 161 I C 816,⁴ a ward must be deemed to be in the constructive custody of his or her guardian from the time of the latter's appointment and a refusal to deliver custody of the ward be regarded as amounting to a 'removal' of the ward for the purpose of S. 25, but this interpretation of that section does not remove the difficulty presented by S. 4 (5) (b) (ii). It was not suggested apparently in the lower Court that Fahmida Khanam was as a fact 'ordinarily' residing 'for the time being' in Multan District. It seems that she has been in Bahawalpur since April 1935. I dismiss the appeal but make no order as to costs.

V B.B./R K.

Appeal dismissed.

2. Ba Thein Mg. v. Ma Than Kin, A I R 1929 Rang 129=118 I C 415.

3. Indar Singh v. Kartar Kaur, A I R 1929 Lah 487=119 I C 423.

4. Mt. Sheo Kumari v. Mathura Ram, A I R 1936 All 267=161 I C 816=1936 A L J 211.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 85

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Gurdwara Dharmasala Doda —

Appellants.

v.

Mahant Gobind Dass and others —

Respondents.

First Appeal No. 191 of 1936, Decided on 7th April 1937, from order of Sub. Judge, Gurdaspur, D/. 24th June 1936.

Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 25-A — Scope — S. 25-A is only enabling section — It does not exclude jurisdiction of ordinary Courts — Party declared owner of certain property by Tribunal can sue for possession of such property in ordinary Civil Court.

Section 25-A is an enabling section and not an excluding section. It is intended to give the parties a quicker remedy on a cheap stamp within a year of decision, before the Tribunal itself. It however does not exclude the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts. The party in whose favour a declaration has been made by the Tribunal as to the ownership of the property can therefore sue for its possession in ordinary Civil Courts.

[P 85 C 2 ; P 86 C 1]

Sardar Charan Singh — for Appellants.

Sardar Bhagat Singh —

for Respondents.

Skemp J. — This appeal is against an order of a Subordinate Judge that he had not jurisdiction to try a suit. The suit was brought by the Gurdwara Doda, a notified Sikh Gurdwara, through the President of the Committee, for possession of properties on the ground that they belonged to the Gurdwara and also for a declaration. A petition under S. 7, Sikh Gurdwaras Act, was made in October 1926 and the list of properties attached with this petition included the properties now in dispute. The present defendant, Mahant Gobind Dass, lodged a petition under S. 10 of the Act claiming that the properties were his. After the Gurdwara had been declared to be a Sikh Gurdwara, Mahant Gobind Dass withdrew his petition under S. 10 and by order of the Tribunal it was dismissed with costs on 30th May 1935. On these facts the learned Senior Subordinate Judge held that his Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit but that it lay only under S. 25-A, Sikh Gurdwaras Act, before the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal.

In our opinion the Senior Subordinate Judge had jurisdiction to try this case on the simple ground that whatever the effect otherwise of the proceedings before the Tribunal—a point on which we express no opinion—S. 25-A is an enabling and not an excluding section. Before the Act was amended by the introduction of that section, the practice was that the party in whose favour the declaration had been made by the Tribunal as to the ownership of property brought a suit for possession before the Civil Court. S. 25-A was intended to give the parties a quicker remedy on a cheap stamp within a period of one year before the Tribunal itself. In our opinion it does not exclude the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts. This point is sufficient for the decision of the appeal which must be accepted with costs. The case is returned to the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Gurdaspur, for procedure in accordance with law. The parties have been informed that they are to appear in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge on 5th May 1937 for further orders.

W.D./A.L.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 86

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Shori Lal — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Damodar Das and another —Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 310 of 1936, Decided on 28th April 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, D/- 11th June. 1936.

Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 41—Scope—S. 41 applies even when person consenting to transfer has no knowledge of his title.

Consent mentioned in S. 41 includes a consent which is based on a mistake. Hence S. 41 applies even to a case where the person consenting to the transfer has no knowledge of his title to the property at the time of giving his consent: 20 Cal 296; A I R 1922 Nag 79 and A I R 1919 Oudh 398, Rel. on; 8 A L J 534, Dissent. [P 87 C 2]

M. L. Puri and Qabul Chand —

for Appellant.

J. G. Sethi and M. L. Sethi —

for Respondent (No. 1).

Coldstream J.—The property in dispute in this case, a shop in Amritsar, was the self-acquired property of one Bagh Mal, the maternal grandfather of Shori Lal, the plaintiff in the suit from which the appeal arises, and his brother Thakar Das, defendant 2. Thakar Das who was born about 1882 was adopted by Bagh Mal in 1888. About four years later Shori Lal was born. Bagh Mal died in 1904 and his daughter Mt. Melo with her sons, Thakar Das and Shori Lal lived together in the shop until Mt. Melo died in August 1934. On 23rd October 1920 Thakar Das mortgaged the shop in favour of Damodar Das for Rupees 4,000 by deed registered the same day. A sum of Rs. 3,000 was paid before the Sub-Registrar. The deed was witnessed by Shori Lal who also identified his brother and Damodar Das when the deed was registered. Damodar Das let the shop on rent to Thakar Das. In August 1934

Damodar Das obtained a final mortgage decree against Thakar Das for sale of the house. On 3rd December 1934 Shori Lal instituted in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, First Class, Amritsar, the suit giving rise to this appeal for a declaration that half the shop was not liable to sale in execution of the decree because it belonged to him, his allegation being that on 23rd January 1903 Bagh Mal had made a will (Ex. P-1) which was registered the same day, leaving the whole of his property to his two grand-sons in equal shares. Of the execution and existence of this will, Shori Lal, so he stated, had been unaware until he found the will among his mother's papers after her death, that is to say, until about four months before he brought the suit.

The Subordinate Judge found it proved that the will was genuine and effective in favour of Shori Lal, that Shori Lal was in fact ignorant of its existence but honestly believed until four months before the suit that his brother Thakar Das was the exclusive owner of the shop as Bagh Mal's adopted son and that he had witnessed the mortgage deed and the rent deed in this belief. He further held that, as it was not Shori Lal's attestation of the mortgage deed that had induced Damodar Das to accept the mortgage of the shop, Shori Lal was not estopped from asserting his claim to half the shop. Nor in his view was Shori Lal estopped by his conduct in not challenging the mortgage for so long, as he was unaware of his rights. But finding that Damodar Das was a mortgagee in good faith for consideration with the consent of the real owner and applying the principle embodied in S. 41, T. P. Act, he decided that the mortgage was not voidable at Shori Lal's instance and he dismissed the suit.

Against this decision Shori Lal has appealed. It is contended on his behalf that the learned Subordinate Judge was wrong in extending the principle of S. 41, T. P. Act, to a case where the consenting owner was unaware of his interest in the property transferred. Counsel for the respondents, while supporting the lower Court's application of S. 41, T. P. Act, argues further that the evidence does not justify its decision that Shori Lal was ignorant of his grandfather's will and asks us to dismiss the appeal on the ground that his consent was given with knowledge of his rights under it and with the intention of cheating the mortgagee. It is not disputed that if Shori Lal was aware of the will when he consented to the mortgage he is estopped from challenging the validity of the transfer by S. 115, Evidence Act, as well as by S. 41, T. P. Act.

There can be no question of the good faith of Damodar Das whose evidence has been accepted by the lower Court and is not attacked before us. It shows that his suspicions having been aroused by the fact that when repaying a previous mortgage loan Thakar Das had recorded his repayments on the mortgage deed untruly as being made by Shori Lal, he insisted on Shori Lal attesting the mortgage deed of 23rd October 1920, in corroboration of his assurance that he had no concern with the property. From the evidence it is established that Damodar Das accepted the mortgage after making proper and sufficient enquiry and relying on the assurance of Shori Lal that the shop belonged to Thakar Das alone. I find force in respondent's counsel's objection to the lower Court's decision that Shori Lal was ignorant of the will in his favour until 1934. Shori Lal was eleven years old when the will was executed. Durga Das and Ruldu Ram, neighbours of Bagh Mal, identified him as the testator before the Sub-Registrar and Thakar Das who was present there, was described as legatee. It is highly improbable that the contents of the will were not known. Ruldu Ram and Durga Das, P. W. 2, heard the will read out to Bagh Mal when it was executed. The will must have been handed over to Mt. Melo or Thakar Das and there is the strongest presumption in my opinion that some time during the thirty years while they lived with Shori Lal they told Shori Lal of his legacy. It is true that when litigation was going on in 1907-08 between Thakar Das and Hari Ram about a house which had belonged partly to Bagh Mal and partly to Hari Mal, Shori Lal was not made a party. Nor did Shori Lal object to two mortgages of the shop effected by Thakar Das in 1909. A possible explanation of his omission to claim his rights then is to be found in the fact that there were collaterals of Bagh Mal in existence, see the judgment of 31st March 1908 at p. 55 of the printed book, and the two brothers thought it safest to rely on the adoption and not disclose the bequest to Shori Lal.

The suit by Damodar Das was instituted on 11th January 1934, and obtained a preliminary decree on 3rd March 1934. It is significant that in December 1933 Shori Lal got a rent deed of part of the shop from a tenant Budhu Ram in which he was described as owner of the shop. In a rent deed dated 20th March 1934, Shori Lal was again described as owner of the shop (P/2) although the tenant seems to have executed another deed in favour of Thakar Das three days later (see D-11 and evidence of P. W. 8). On 14th December 1934 Shori Lal let the shop on rent as if it were his. These deeds strongly suggest that he was creating evidence for the present suit. My conclusion is that Shori Lal's suit is barred by S. 115, Evidence Act. It is clear that Shori Lal acknowledged Thakar Das as sole heir and that by his conduct throughout as well as his admission to Damodar Das at the time of the mortgage of 1920 he consented to Thakar Das being the ostensible owner of the whole shop and to his mortgage of it. Assuming that his consent was without knowledge of his title under the will, I think that S. 41, T. P. Act, has been rightly applied by the trial Court. The only clear authority against this view to which our attention has been drawn is the Single Bench decision of the Allahabad Court in 3 A L J 534.¹

On the other hand the proposition that the consent mentioned in S. 41, T. P. Act, includes a consent which is based on a mistake receives strong support from the judgment of the Privy Council in 20 Cal 296.² That judgment dealt only with S. 115, Evidence Act, but as noticed in 65 I C 477³ it appears to me to apply equally to S. 41, T. P. Act. 65 I C 477³ is directly applicable to the present case as also 53 I C 970⁴ where the learned Judges have remarked that in their opinion in order to invoke S. 41 it is not necessary to prove an intention to deceive... The object of S. 41 is to protect a bona fide transferee for good consideration who has made proper enquiries from being prejudiced by the conduct, however innocent, of the real owner in allowing the world at

1. Dungaria v. Nand Lal, (1906) 3 A L J 534 = 1906 A W N 182.

2. Sarat Chundar Dev v. Gopal Chundar Laha, (1893) 20 Cal 296 = 19 I A 203 = 6 Sar 224 (P O).

3. Ramparsad v. Mt. Imratbal, A I R 1922 Nag 79 = 65 I C 477 = 18 N L R 27.

4. Aziz-un-Nisa v. Ahsan Ashraf, A I R 1919 Oudh 398 = 58 I C 970 = 22 O O 248.

large to think some one else the owner of the property.

The suit was rightly dismissed and I would accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

Din Mohammad J.—I agree.

K.B./A.L.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 88

SKEMP J.

Mapal and others — Plaintiffs —
Appellants.

v.

Rana and another — Defendants —
Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1374 of 1936, Decided on 31st March 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Jhang at Sargodha, D/- 6th June 1936.

Estoppel—Outlay of money on another person's land — Acquiescence of true owner — Essentials to estop true owner stated.

In the case of an outlay of money by a person on another's land the following essentials must co-exist in order to constitute acquiescence which would estop the true owner :

In the first place the person incurring expenditure must have made a mistake as to his legal rights. Secondly he must have spent some money or must have done some act on the faith of his mistaken belief. Thirdly the true owner must know the existence of his legal right which is inconsistent with the right claimed by person incurring expenditure. Fourthly the true owner must know of the mistaken belief of the person incurring expenditure. Lastly the true owner must have encouraged the person incurring expenditure in his expenditure or in other acts which he has done, either directly or by abstaining from asserting his legal right : (1880) 15 Ch D 96, Foll. ; Case law referred. [P 89 C 2]

S. L. Puri — for Appellants.

Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din —

for Respondents.

Judgment. — This second appeal has arisen from a suit lodged as far back as 1932 for possession of 19 marlas of land on the ground that the defendants had taken an unlawful possession two or three years previously by sinking a well therein. The plaintiffs who were about 20 in number including three minors set forth in the plaint that they were the owners and that the defendants had forcibly and without right made a new well. The defendants knew that they were sinking the well in the land of the plaintiffs, that they did everything forcibly and without right. Hence the plaintiffs were entitled to possession. In a statement before issues the plaintiffs' pleader said :

The land is the property of the plaintiffs. They gave no permission to sink the well. They objected at the time of sinking the well.

The defendants pleaded that they were owners by adverse possession, that they had spent Rs. 1,200 on sinking the well, that the operation continued for a long time and that the plaintiffs were barred by estoppel from bringing the suit. They also pleaded that it was formerly part of the shamilat and that by the terms of the wajibularz they had become owners by sinking a well. The suit was decided and remanded for misjoinder of parties. At the retrial the Subordinate Judge found that the plaintiffs were the owners of the land, that the defendants were not in adverse possession, that the defendants could not benefit by the entry in the wajibularz as the land was not shamilat, and that the plaintiffs were not barred by estoppel. He said :

There is no doubt that the well continued to be constructed for several months together and that the plaintiffs did not object. But the reason is clear that the plaintiffs thought that the defendants were constructing a well in their own land while the defendants were under the impression that the plot formed part of the area in their possession. Both the parties were under a mistake of fact and therefore there can be no estoppel under S. 115, Evidence Act.

The Subordinate Judge therefore found that the plaintiffs were entitled to possession of the land in suit but he further held that equitably the defendants were entitled to the cost of constructing the well which was assessed by a commissioner at Rs. 550. He decreed accordingly. The defendants appealed as the learned District Judge held that the suit was barred by estoppel. He decided no other point except that he refused to allow the defendants to raise the point of limitation. The material part of the District Judge's finding is

The defendants led evidence which establishes that the well was dug openly and publicly, that the work took several months and people collected to watch the work. Rana defendant has deposed in the witness-box that he sunk the well in this case and that the reason it was sunk was that he honestly believed that it was land in which he was entitled to do this. It is a fact that he is in possession of a certain shamilat land which borders on the little patch in suit, and that if the shamilat area had included the patch in suit he would have a claim to the sinking of this well. . . The learned Subordinate Judge has rightly held that the plaintiffs never objected to the sinking of the well, a finding which involves the rejection of the case for the plaintiffs as put in their pleadings and their own counsel's statement before issues.

He then quoted the finding of the Subordinate Judge as to estoppel but proceeded :

I can find no justification for the learned Subordinate Judge's conclusion that the plaintiffs thought that the defendants were constructing the well in their own land. Not one of the plaintiffs has ever gone into the witness-box to tell the Court what he thought although they had two opportunities to do so.

The District Judge's finding on this point has not been criticised and it is, in any case, a finding of fact by which I am bound. The findings of fact then are that the land belonged to the plaintiffs, that the defendants sunk the well in this small area in the bona fide belief that they had a right to do so, that it was sunk openly and publicly and that the plaintiffs had knowledge that the well was being constructed but did not object. The District Judge then cited five rulings, A I R 1925 Cal 288;¹ A I R 1929 Lah 625;² 94 I C 168;³ 64 I C 520⁴ and 97 I C 441⁵ in support of his finding that the plaintiffs were barred by estoppel. He said that in the first two rulings it was laid down that for a party's acquiescence to amount to estoppel he must know of the infringement of the right to which he acquiesces, but in this case the plaintiffs did know. The real owner was estopped from challenging if there were special circumstances amounting to a standing-by so as to induce the belief that the owner intended to forego his right or to acquiesce in his building on his land. In A I R 1925 Cal 288¹ Mukerji J. quoted Lord Campbell in *Cairncross v. Lorimer*⁶:

Generally speaking if a party having an interest to prevent an act being done has full notice of its being done and acquiesces in it so as to induce a reasonable belief that he consents to it and the position of others is altered by their giving credit to his sincerity, he has no more right to challenge the act to their prejudice than he would have had if it had been done by his previous license.

But (he proceeded) "mere quiescence or absence of interference is not sufficient to create an estoppel" and

In the present case no act or conduct by the plaintiff has been proved which could induce the defendants reasonably to believe that he consented to their act nor any which could reasonably induce them to give credit to his sincerity, nor again any but for which they would have abstained from doing what they did.

In A I R 1929 Lah 625² Tek Chand J. referred to (1880) 15 Ch D 96⁷ where Fry L. J. laid down that to constitute acquiescence which would estop the plaintiff the following essentials must co-exist:

In the first place the plaintiff must have made a mistake as to his legal rights. Secondly the plaintiff must have spent some money or must have done some act on the faith of his mistaken belief. Thirdly the defendant, the possessor of the legal right, must know of the existence of his legal right which is inconsistent with the right claimed by the plaintiff. Fourthly, the defendant, the possessor of the legal right, must know of the plaintiff's mistaken belief of his rights. Lastly, the defendant, the possessor of the legal right, must have encouraged the plaintiff in his expenditure of money or in the other acts which he has done, either directly or by abstaining from asserting his legal right. Where all these elements exist, there is fraud of such a nature as will entitle the Court to restrain the possessor of the legal right from exercising it but, in my judgment, nothing short of this will do.

(1880) 15 Ch D 96⁷ was a case in which the plaintiff pleaded estoppel and the defendant possessed the legal right; in the present case the situation is reversed. These two cases and some others were quoted before me and in my opinion the plaintiffs on the facts found are not barred by estoppel because the fifth condition laid down by Fry L. J. is not established. There is no evidence that the plaintiffs encouraged the defendants in their expenditure of money or in sinking the well either directly or by abstaining from asserting their right. The District Judge said he had no doubt that Rana dug the well believing that he had a right to do so and that he had no doubt that many of the plaintiffs who were joint owners of the site saw him do so. In cross-examination the mason who sunk the well did depose that he never saw Mapal plaintiff while he was working, and Rana defendant said that he did not remember if the Bharwanas who were two of the plaintiffs ever came. I cannot find that there is any evidence that the plaintiffs' action was such as to encourage the defendants in what they did. In 94 I C 168³ the proposition was laid down which has been cited by the learned District Judge; but the facts of that case were that the owner had deliberately built on the land of another and of course it was held that

1. Baneswar v. Amulya Charan, A I R 1925 Cal 288=82 I C 809.

2. Amritsarya Ram v. Diwan Chand, A I R 1929 Lah 625=114 I C 70.

3. Karim Bakhsh v. Mahomed Shafi, A I R 1926 Lah 354=94 I C 168.

4. Dhanpat Rai v. Guran Ditta Mal, A I R 1921 Lah 110=64 I C 520=2 Lah 258=10 P L R 1922.

5. Hari Bhushan v. Sheikh Abdul, A I R 1927 Cal 54=97 I C 441.

6. (1860) 7 Jur (N S) 149=8 Macq H L 827=8 L T 180.

7. Willmott v. Barber, (1880) 15 Ch D 96=28 W R 911=48 L T 95.

the owner was not estopped. In 64 I O 520⁴ the facts were peculiar. One of the coparceners sold land belonging to the joint family without the consent of the remaining coparceners. The vendee erected a costly building and four years later sold the house. Seven years after the first sale the other brothers of the vendor brought their suit and were held to be estopped, relying on (1880) 15 Ch D 96.⁷ In 97 I O 441⁶ the rule of estoppel was stated as follows:

Where a person in bona fide belief that a certain property belongs to him, spends money upon it and the true owner stands by and allows him to spend the money and make improvements upon his lands, the true owner is estopped from asserting his title as against the person making improvements in the bona fide belief.

I think the rule is somewhat loosely stated, a fact of no importance in that case, where it was held that the rule did not apply but that the plaintiffs had given notice to the defendants to desist from building. Mr. S. L. Puri also referred to A I R 1930 Lah 392,⁸ a Division Bench ruling of this Court where it was held that the mere fact that the plaintiffs living in the neighbourhood of a factory must have seen it being built by the defendant is not sufficient to establish the plea of acquiescence where there is nothing in the evidence indicating that the plaintiffs encouraged the defendants to build. The appellants' counsel also referred to 67 I O 744⁹ a long judgment by a Letters Patent Bench of the Patna High Court. This refers to 19 I A 203,¹⁰ which points out that the question of estoppel is to be determined by S. 115, Evidence Act, and that the law of estoppel in India is the same as in England—so that the Courts are justified in following English cases. In 67 I O 744⁹ the facts were much stronger than the present facts, because the plaintiff's agent assured the defendant before he built that the lease on which the defendant erroneously relied was a permanent lease and put this assurance in writing. In discussing the law the Bench cited S. 115, Evidence Act, which runs:

When one person has, by his declaration, act or omission, intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true and to act upon such belief, neither he nor his representative shall be allowed, in any suit or proceeding between himself and such person or his representative, to deny the truth of that thing.

The Bench said:

In the case of a mere omission, no such intention can well be imputed unless the true facts are known to the person whose omission is in question.

In the present case according to the finding of the learned District Judge the plaintiffs had knowledge of the true facts and the question is whether by their omission they intentionally permitted the defendants to believe that they were sinking the well on their own land. I can find no indication that they had such intent. I think that the judgment of the learned District Judge must be set aside and that on the wording of S. 115 and on the principle of (1880) 15 Ch D 96⁷ cited in two of the above cases and A I R 1925 Cal 288¹ and A I R 1930 Lah 392,⁸ this appeal must be accepted and the case remitted to the Court of the District Judge for findings on the other points in appeal. Costs of this appeal are to be costs in the case. This case is obviously a case for compromise if possible and the case has twice been adjourned in the High Court in the hope of a compromise, once by Dalip Singh J. and once by me, but the parties have not attended.

P.R./D.S.

Case remanded.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 90

BHIDE J.

Ladha Ram Lakhi Ram Arora — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

*Hari Chand and others — Plaintiffs—
Respondents.*

Second Appeal No. 323 of 1937, Decided on 17th June 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Montgomery, D/- 1st February 1937.

(a) Evidence Act (1872), S. 89 — Presumption under — Question whether plaintiff mortgagor and defendant mortgagee—Plaintiff alleging entry as to mortgage made in mortgagee's bahi and calling upon defendant to produce it — Defendant denying to be in possession of it—Plaintiff's evidence showing entry made in ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper—No evidence by plaintiff to show that defendant possessed bahi and withheld it—Presumption under S. 89 held could not be drawn.

In a suit for redemption, the question was whether the plaintiff was the mortgagor and the defendant the mortgagee. The plaintiff alleged that the mortgage was executed 50 years ago and that the entry as regards mortgage was made in the mortgagee's bahi and called upon the defendant to produce it. The defendant denied that he possessed any such bahi. The plaintiff's evidence showed that the entry was made in ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper though required by law as such. Moreover there was no evidence by plaintiff to show that the defendant was in possession of the bahi and was withholding it though called upon to produce it :

8. Banarsi Das v. Sital Singh, A I R 1930 Lah 392=121 I O 295=81 P L R 88.

9. Ralli v. A. H. Forbes, A I R 1922 Pat 258=67 I O 744=1 Pat 717=8 P L T 467.

10. Sarat Chunder Dey v. Gopal Chunder Laha, (1892) 20 Cal 298 = 19 I A 203, = 6 Sar 224 (P O).

Held that no presumption under S. 89 could be drawn under the circumstances and as the entry was made in the ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper, no question of presumption arose in such case. [P 91 C 2]

(b) Stamp Act (1899), S. 35 — Secondary evidence — Entry as to mortgage made in ordinary bahi not duly stamped—Secondary evidence of such entry is inadmissible.

Where the entry as to a mortgage is made in an ordinary bahi and is not duly stamped though required by the Stamp Act, the secondary evidence of the contents of the entry is wholly inadmissible : A I R 1922 Lah 401, Rel. on.

[P 92 C 1]

Achhru Ram — for Appellant.

Shamair Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment.—This second appeal arises out of a suit for possession of a house by redemption of a mortgage on payment of Rs. 50. The plaintiffs, who are the descendants of one Godha, alleged that the house was mortgaged by Godha in favour of Hazari Mal some fifty years before the suit. The house was stated to be in possession of the defendants as the heirs of Hazari Mal. Out of the defendants, Ladha Ram defendant claimed that he was the owner of the house and denied the mortgage altogether. The other defendants, who were the descendants of Hazari Mal, stated that they had nothing to do with the house and their names were thereafter struck off. The main issue in the case was whether the plaintiffs were mortgagors and the defendant Ladha Ram the 'mortgagee' of the house in dispute. The trial Court held that the mortgage was not proved and dismissed the suit. On appeal however the learned Senior Subordinate Judge came to a contrary conclusion and decreed the suit. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred.

The decision of the learned Senior Subordinate Judge as regards the existence of the mortgage is based on the oral testimony of Mohri Mal and certain other witnesses and some documentary evidence. This evidence was of a secondary character. The plaintiffs did not state in the plaint whether there was any mortgage deed or any other documentary evidence in support of the alleged mortgage. Later on however they stated that an entry had been made with respect to the mortgage in a bahi belonging to the mortgagee Hazari Mal. The defendant Ladha Ram was called upon to produce the bahi but he stated that no such bahi was in his possession. Thereupon secondary evidence was led by the plaintiffs to prove the mortgage. According to the statement of Mohri Mal who professes to have been an attesting witness to the entry, the mortgage was duly entered in the bahi and attested and the learned Senior Subordinate Judge has accepted his testimony. It appears however clear from the statement of Mohri Mal that the entry with regard to the mortgage was written in an ordinary bahi and not on a stamped paper as required by law. At the time when mortgage was executed, the Indian Stamp Act of 1879 was in force and the mortgage should have been executed on a stamped paper. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge has held that as the bahi containing the entry with reference to the mortgage had not been produced by defendant 1, there was a presumption under S. 89, Evidence Act, that the document was duly stamped and executed. In the first place there is no reliable evidence to show that the bahi was in possession of Ladha Ram, defendant, and was withheld by him. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge has not referred to any evidence showing that the bahi was actually in the possession of the defendant. The learned counsel for the plaintiff-respondents referred in this connection to the evidence of Shankar Das P. W. 9; but this witness appears to be clearly inimical to defendant 1. In the absence of any reliable evidence to show that the bahi was in possession of defendant 1 and was being intentionally withheld by him, no presumption could be drawn under S. 89, Evidence Act. Moreover it is clear from the plaintiffs' own evidence, as already stated, that the entry with respect to mortgage was made in an ordinary bahi, and consequently no question of any presumption arises in this case.

The next point which requires consideration is whether when the entry with reference to the mortgage was not duly stamped and was not produced, any secondary evidence was admissible. The learned counsel for the appellant contended that secondary evidence was not admissible at all in the circumstances and relied on 3 Lah 282,¹ which supports him. The learned counsel for the respondents urged in reply that no objection as to the admissibility of the secondary evidence was taken when Mohri Mal's evidence was recorded and hence the objection as to admissibility cannot now be entertained. It appears that the objection was taken in the trial Court itself at the later stage and was upheld by the trial Court on the strength of the above mentioned ruling. But apart from this, as in the present case, the original bahi entry was not duly stamped, secondary evidence of the contents of the entry seems to be wholly inadmissible in view of the above mentioned ruling. The original is not forthcoming and no question of curing the defect by payment of penalty arises. Consequently, the fact that objection was not taken when Mohri Mal was examined is immaterial. In 3 Lah 282¹ the original had been lost and the secondary evidence had been admitted without objection and even penalty had been levied; yet the secondary evidence was excluded as the original document was not stamped according to law and was not forthcoming.

The learned counsel for the plaintiff-respondents attempted to get over this difficulty by contending that it was not proved that the entry in the bahi was signed by the mortgagor and was therefore not tantamount to a mortgage deed. This position was however never taken up in the Courts below, and it appears from the judgments of both the Courts that it was admitted all along that the entry in the bahi of Hazari Mal was tantamount to a mortgage deed. I am, therefore, of opinion that the trial Court was right in holding that secondary evidence as to the execution of the mortgage in the dispute was wholly inadmissible in this case. The plaintiffs' suit must therefore fail on this short ground.

There are, however, other points also which go against the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs alleged that the defendant Ladha Ram had inherited the mortgagee rights of Hazari Mal. The defendant had denied this fact and it was incumbent on the plaintiffs to show that these rights had devolved upon Ladha Ram. Ladha Ram is a nephew of Hazari Mal. Hazari Mal's own descendants are living and there is no evidence to show why the mortgagee rights of Hazari Mal should have devolved upon Ladha Ram rather than his own descendants. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge has remarked that there was nothing strange or improbable if on a partition the mortgaged house was allowed to remain in the occupation of the defendant. This remark appears, however, to be purely conjectural and the learned counsel for the plaintiff-respondents was unable to point out any evidence on the record to support it.

Lastly, it may be pointed out that the learned Senior Subordinate Judge has relied on certain documents in addition to the testimony of Mohri Mal and other witnesses in support of his conclusion that the mortgage was duly executed by Godha Ram in favour of Hazari Mal: see for instance Exs. P. W. 3/1 and P. W. 4/1. But in interpreting these documents also he seems to have resorted to conjectures. For instance in respect of Ex. P. W. 3/1 he has assumed that certain persons shown in the pedigree table, Ex. P. 1, namely, Tahla, Godha, Phaban, Wazira, Hira, Sajjan, Gajjan and Sat Ram, were descended from a common ancestor. The pedigree table, however, does not show that they were so descended. As regards Ex. P. W. 4/1 he has assumed that the house in dispute was the one shown as mortgaged by Phaban and Sajjan in favour of Hazari Mal. There appears to be, however, no evidence on the record to prove the identity.

In view of all the facts stated above, the decision of the learned Senior Subordinate Judge cannot be upheld. In my opinion the trial Court's decision was correct. The trial Court has fully discussed the evidence and I find myself in agreement with its conclusions. I therefore set aside the decree of the learned Senior Subordinate Judge and restore that of the trial Court dismissing the plaintiffs' suit. In view of all the circumstances, however, I leave the parties to bear their costs throughout.

A.L./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

¹ Mohammad Ayub v. Rahim Bakhsh, A I R 1922 Lah 401=69 I C 728=8 Lah 282.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 93BHIDE J.Sunder Singh Giyani — Judgment-debtor — Appellant.*

v.

Lala Ganga Ram — Decree-holder — Respondent.

Exn. First Appeal No. 5 of 1937, Decided on 20th April 1937, from order of Senior Sub.Judge, Ambala, D/. 12th November 1936.

Receiver—Appointment of — Execution of decree against son on death of father—Court directing receiver to take possession of property in hands of son — Property situated in State — According to law of State son not shown to be not so liable — Order directing appointment of receiver is not ultra vires — Court in such case should direct son to hand over property to receiver.

On the death of the judgment-debtor, the decree-holder in execution of his decree against his son sought to make him personally liable to the extent of the assets of the deceased held by him. These assets consisted of certain immovable property in a State. The executing Court merely appointed a receiver to take its possession and realize the rents. It was contended by the son that the order directing a receiver to take possession of property in a foreign territory was ultra vires. It was not however shown that according to the law prevailing in that State the son could not be made liable for the debts of his father in respect of property in his hands :

Held that the order directing the appointment of receiver was not ultra vires. [P 94 C 1]

Held also that as the Court could only act in the exercise of its jurisdiction in personam over the defendant and could not empower the receiver to take possession of the property as it could in British India, the proper course would have been to direct the son (who was in possession of the property) to hand over the property to the receiver : 5 Bom 249 ; A I R 1921 Bom 460 and A I R 1934 Sind 123, Ref.; (1900) 1 Ch 602, Rel. on. [P 94 C 1]

M. C. Mahajan — for Appellant.

Asa Ram Aggarwal — for Respondent.

Judgment — The respondent, Rai Bahadur Lala Ganga Ram obtained a decree for Rs. 55,000 against Sardar Jhanda Singh, who is dead and is now represented by his son Sardar Bahadur Sunder Singh as his legal representative. Part of the decree is satisfied, but a sum of Rupees 28 000 still remains unpaid. The decree-holder sought to make the appellant Sardar Bahadur Sunder Singh personally liable to the extent of Rs. 20,000 alleging that he was in possession of the assets of the deceased worth that amount viz. furniture worth Rs. 2,000 and three bungalows left by the deceased at Salogra in the Bhagat State worth about Rs. 18,000. As regards the furniture, the appellant alleged that the furniture was worth Rs. 150 only, but the Court found that the furniture was worth a good deal more and fixing its value at Rs. 750 held the appellant liable for that sum. As to the bungalows, the property being situated in an Indian State outside the jurisdiction of British Courts, the Court merely appointed a receiver to take possession of it and realize the rent and pay the proceeds after deducting necessary expenses, taxes, etc., in Court for satisfaction of the decree. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred.

There was reliable evidence produced on behalf of the decree-holder to show that the deceased left furniture of considerable value and its value as assessed by the Court (Rs. 750) is I think not at all unreasonable. As regards the appointment of a receiver, the learned counsel for the appellant contended that the jurisdiction of British Courts could not extend beyond the British territory to which alone the Code of Civil Procedure applies and that the order appointing a receiver to take charge of property in foreign territory was ultra vires. No authority directly in point was cited, but the learned counsel referred to 5 Bom 249¹ as an authority which supported his contention. The learned counsel for the respondent cited a number of authorities to support the view taken by the Court below. These also were not directly in point, but there are observations in some of them to show that the English Courts have held that the appointment of a receiver of property in foreign territory is justifiable in certain circumstances : see e. g. 45 Bom 1228² at p. 1231, and A I R 1934 Sind 123³ at p. 127. The subject was discussed in (1900) 1 Ch 602⁴ at pp. 610.11 and it was remarked therein, "It is well settled that the Court can appoint receiver over property out of its jurisdiction." This power, I apprehend, is based upon the doctrine that the Court acts in personam. The Court does not and cannot attempt by its order to put

1. Ghansham Lal v. Bhansali, (1880) 5 Bom 249.

2. Ismailji Haji Halimbhai v. Ismail Abdul Kadar, A I R 1921 Bom 460=63 I C 959=45 Bom 1228=23 Bom L R 543.

3. Dav Samaj Council, Lahore v. Amrit Lal Motilal, A I R 1934 Sind 123=155 I C 677=28 S L R 54.

4. In re Maudelay Sons and Field, (1900) 1 Ch 602=69 L J Ch 349=82 L T 378=48 W R 568=16 T L R 228.

its own officer in possession of foreign property, but it treats as guilty of contempt any party to the action in which the order is made who prevents the necessary steps being taken to enable its officer to take possession according to the laws of the foreign countries. The practice of English Courts as stated in the Exception to R. 53, Dicey's Conflict of Laws (Edn. 4, at p 219) and in Para. 172 of Westlake's Private International Law (Edn. 7, pp. 224-225) also appears to support the contention of the respondent's counsel. The latter Para. is as follows:

A proprietor of foreign immovables, or person interested in such, may be compelled by the English Court, if it has personal jurisdiction over him, to dispose of his property or interest in them so as to give effect to any obligation relating to them which arises from, or as from, his own contract or tort; and that obligation will not be measured by the lex situs of the foreign immovables to which it relates, but in accordance with the rules of private international law on obligations arising from, or as from, contract or tort. If indeed the law of the country where the land is situate should not permit, or not enable, the defendant to do what the Court might otherwise think it right to decree, it would be useless and unjust to direct him to do the act, but when there is no such impediment the Courts of this country, in the exercise of their jurisdiction over contracts made here, or in administering equities between parties residing here, act upon their own rules, and are not influenced by any consideration of what the effect of such contracts might be in the country where the lands are situate or of the manner in which the Courts of such countries might deal with such equities.

It is not suggested that according to the law prevailing in the Bhagat State the property in question would not be liable for the debts of Sardar Jhanda Singh, in the hands of the appellant. I therefore see no good reason to hold that the appointment of a receiver was ultra vires in the circumstances of the case. The order of the learned Subordinate Judge, however, does not appear to be quite in order in so far as it directs the receiver to take possession of the property. The Court could only act in the exercise of its jurisdiction in personam over the defendant and could not I think empower the receiver to take possession of the property as it can in British India. In my opinion, the proper course would be to direct the appellant (who is admittedly in possession of the property, as pointed out by the learned Subordinate Judge) to hand over the property to the receiver. The order of the learned Subordinate Judge is also defective in so far as it does not state for what period it will remain in force.

I accordingly accept the appeal and modify the decree to the extent of directing that the appellant shall hand over possession of the bungalows in the Bhagat State to the receiver for administration of the property and payment of receipts in Court for satisfaction of the respondent's decree as directed by the lower Court. If the appellant fails to do so, he will be liable to be dealt with for contempt of Court or otherwise according to law. The appointment of receiver will remain in force till the decree is fully satisfied. In view of all the circumstances, I leave the parties to bear their costs.

K.B./A.L.

Decree modified.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 94

BHIDE J.

Krishna Chandra — Plaintiff —
Appellant.

v.

Gopal Chand and others — Defendants
— Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1534 of 1936, Decided on 11th May 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Hissar at Gurgaon, D/- 29th April 1936.

* Tort—Nuisance — Injunction — Door of latrine constituting nuisance only when kept open — Injunction should be granted requiring owner to put up spring door.

Where the door of the privy opens on the public street and constitutes a nuisance only when it is left open, an injunction should be granted requiring the owner to put up a suitable spring door for the latrine. [P 94 C 2; P 95 C 1]

Shamair Chand — *for Appellant.*F. C. Mittal — for Respondents.

Judgment. — This is a second appeal arising out of a suit by the plaintiff for joint possession of a site and in the alternative for an injunction restraining the defendants from using it for purposes of a latrine, which he alleged was a nuisance. The claim for joint possession was held to be not proved, but the trial Court gave an injunction requiring the defendants to close the door of the privy which opens on the public street, and requiring him to construct another door for the sweeper to clear the privy from inside. The learned District Judge however accepted the appeal and dismissed the suit, holding that it was not proved that the nuisance was actionable.

The learned District Judge has found that if the door of the privy is left open the privy constituted a nuisance, and there is evidence to show that it does cause nuisance in this way. The defendant does not admit that the door is left open, but he is willing to have a spring door, so that there is no chance of the door being left open. This seems to me the best solution of the difficulty on the finding of the learned District Judge.

I accordingly accept the appeal and grant the plaintiff an injunction requiring the defendant to put up a suitable spring door for the latrine where it abuts the public street, which would automatically remain closed except when a person is entering or coming out. The parties to bear their costs of this appeal.

S.C./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 95

BHIDE J.

Kesho Das—Decree-holder—Petitioner.

v.

N. C. Goyal Co., Objector and another, Judgment-debtors—Respondents.

Civil Revn. Petn. No. 213 of 1937, Decided on 15th June 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Lahore, D/- 20th February 1937.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 24, 115—Case transferred under S. 24—No revision lies—Petition for transfer not found to be bona fide—Case can be retransferred.

Where a case is transferred under S. 24, no revision lies from the order of transfer; but if it is found that the application for transfer is not bona fide one, the case can be retransferred. [P 95 C 2; P 96 C 1]

(b) Execution—Property attached—Objection by third party to attachment—Objection can be decided only by executing Court—Transfer of objection proceedings to another Court without transferring execution proceedings is illegal (Obiter).

Where in execution of a decree certain property of the judgment-debtor is attached and a third person files an objection to the attachment on the ground that the property belongs to him, the objection can be decided only by the executing Court and therefore the transfer of the objection proceedings alone to another Court without transferring the execution proceedings to that Court is not in accordance with law. [P 96 C 1]

Sardar Iqbal Singh — *for Petitioner.*Shamair Chand — for Respondents.

Order.—This is a petition for revision of the order of the District Judge transferring a civil suit from the Court of Lala Ganga Bishen, Subordinate Judge, to the Court of Lala Ram Purshotam, another Subordinate Judge. The material facts of the case are briefly as follows. In the execution proceedings taken by Lala Kesho Das against the proprietors of the Prince Talkies, Delhi, certain property was attached upon which N. C. Goyal Co., Paper Merchants, Lahore, put in an objection that the property belonged to them. This objection petition was presented in May 1936 and the enquiry appears to have taken a long time. Ultimately on 17th November 1936, the case was postponed for orders but no date was actually fixed for pronouncement of the orders. On 15th January 1937 an application was made to the District Judge, Lahore, on behalf of the objector stating that the objection petition had been pending for a long time, that the arguments had been heard on 7th August 1936 and yet no orders had been pronounced, that the decree-holder was a retired Extra Assistant Commissioner and was saying that the objections would be decided in his favour and the objector apprehended that justice would not be done to him. The objector therefore prayed for transfer of the objection proceedings to another Court. The learned District Judge thereupon called for a report from the Subordinate Judge concerned. The Subordinate Judge reported that the order was practically ready on 14th January 1937 and that on enquiry by the pleader for the objector he had told him that he was going to dismiss the objection and that a formal order would be recorded in the evening in the presence of the parties. It appears that the learned Subordinate Judge was engaged in hearing another case when the enquiry was made by the counsel for the objector.

On receiving this report the learned District Judge thought that the Subordinate Judge had been indiscreet in informing counsel for the objector as to the order he was going to pronounce before it was actually signed and pronounced in open Court to the parties and, in view of certain other circumstances, he was of opinion that the objector had reasonable grounds for apprehension that justice would not be done to him. He therefore transferred the case to the Court of Lala Ram Purshotam, Subordinate Judge.

A preliminary objection is raised on behalf of the respondent that the learned District Judge had discretion to transfer the case under S. 24, Civil P. C., and that no revision is competent. There is force in this contention; but the learned counsel for the petitioner has prayed that the case should be retransferred under the same section in view of all the circumstances of the case. He has pointed out that as a matter of fact the application by the objec-tor was not a bona fide one as it was made after the counsel for the objector had been informed by the learned Subordinate Judge that the objection was going to be dismissed. This fact is not disputed on behalf of the respondents, although there is no reference in the application for transfer to the fact that the learned Subordinate Judge had already informed the counsel for the objector that the objection was going to be dismissed. Counsel for the objector evidently wanted to take undue advantage of the information given to him by the learned Subordinate Judge at his own request and to have the chance of getting the same matter decided by another Court. The learned Subordinate Judge may have been indiscreet in informing counsel for the objector as to the order he was going to pronounce, but the record does not show that the objector had any real apprehension that the case would not be decided on merits. If he had any such apprehension, the petition for transfer could have been made long before 15th January.

I am also doubtful as to whether the transfer of the objection proceedings by itself is in accordance with law. The objection could, in my opinion, only be decided by the execution Court. In the present instance the execution proceedings were not transferred and the objection petition alone was transferred to another Subordinate Judge. This might lead to complications. In view of the fact that the petition for transfer was not bona fide and the other circumstances referred to above, I re-transfer the objection proceedings to the Court of Lala Ganga Bishen, Subordinate Judge, and direct that the objection be decided on merits without any further delay. No order as to costs. Parties are directed to appear before Mr. Ganga Bishan, Subordinate Judge, on 24th June 1937.

D.S./R.K.

*Petition allowed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 96*COLDSTREAM J.

Sheikh Mohammad Ibrahim & Sons — Plaintiffs—Petitioners.

v.

Behari Lal Beni Pershad—Defendants
—Respondents.

Civil Revn. Petn. No. 374 of 1937,
Decided on 15th July 1937.

Partnership Act (1932), S. 69—Suit by firm —Plaint need not expressly note that firm is registered—Neither defendant denying registration nor reference to it in evidence—Suit cannot be dismissed on ground that registration was not proved.

The law does not require that a plaint by a firm must expressly note that it has been registered.

[P 96 C 2]

Where therefore in a suit by a firm the defendant does not deny registration and no reference to registration or non-registration is made in the evidence, the firm can assume that this objection had not been taken and a suit cannot be dismissed on the ground that the registration was not proved.

[P 96 C 2]

Indar Dev — *for Petitioners.*Bishen Narain—for Respondents.

Order.—This is a petition by the Delhi firm Mohammad Ibrahim and Sons against a judgment of the Small Cause Court Delhi dismissing a money suit by the firm against a Hindu firm Behari Lal Beni Parshad on the ground that the firm was not proved to be registered under the Partnership Act 1932. In their pleas the respondent firm mentioned that the plaint did not state that the firm was registered and, in a separate paragraph, objected that the suit could not proceed in the name of the firm. The suit being a small cause, no issues were struck but the Judge in his judgment considered that the first point for determination was whether the plaintiff's firm was registered and finding it not proved that it was, he dismissed the suit as already mentioned.

Now the respondents never denied that the plaintiff firm was registered as they were bound to do if they opposed the suit on this ground (O. 6, R. 6 and O. 8, R. 2, Civil P. C.), and it was natural enough for the plaintiffs to assume that this objection had not been taken. The law does not require (and this is not disputed) that a plaint by a firm must expressly note that it has been registered. No reference to registration or non-registration was made in the evidence or it certainly appears that the plaintiffs were taken by surprise as their counsel now alleges when they found at the time of arguments that the Judge was calling on them to show that they were a registered firm.

The petitioners have produced a certified copy of an order by the Registrar of Firms, Delhi, registering the firm Mohammad Ibrahim and Sons on 13th December 1933. I accept this petition, set aside the lower Court's judgment and remand the case for disposal according to law.
Costs to be costs in this case. Parties to appear in the Court on 9th August.

S O./R.K.

Case remanded.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 97

BHIDE J.

Chuni Shah — Plaintiff — Appellant.
v.Amar Singh — Defendant —
Respondent.Second Appeals Nos. 151 and 152 of 1937, Decided on 7th May 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Sialkot, D/- 26th October 1936.

(a) Evidence—Attestation—Attesting witness cannot be presumed to have knowledge of contents of document.

An attesting witness cannot be presumed, from the mere fact of attestation, to be aware of the contents of the document, much less of a mere recital of boundaries: A I R 1938 Lah 551, Rel. on. [P 98 C 1, 2]

(b) Highway — Dedication—Long user by pedestrians of roofs of shop for access to public street does not raise presumption of dedication—Intention to dedicate is necessary.

Where the roofs of a shop have been used by pedestrians for access to the neighbouring public streets for a long time, such user does not necessarily raise a presumption as to dedication in every case. There must be an intention to dedicate, of which the user by the public is mere evidence and no more: (1914) A C 388, Ref.

[P 98 C 2]

(c) Highway—Dedication—Intention.

A single act of interruption is of much more weight on the question of intention to dedicate than many acts of enjoyment: (1843) 11 M & W 827, Ref. [P 99 C 1]

Achhru Ram — for Appellant.

M. C. Mahajan — for Respondent.

Judgment.—Second Appeals Nos. 151 and 152 arise out of two suits of a similar character in which the main point for decision was the same, viz. whether the roofs of plaintiffs' shop along with those of certain adjoining shops situated in Sialkot town formed a public road. The plaintiffs sued to restrain the defendants from using the roofs of their shops as a public road and for certain other reliefs. The learned District Judge has held that the roofs in question were used as a public road, but he has given a decree restricting the right of user to a strip 10 feet in width adjoining defendants' houses. From this decision plaintiffs have appealed. The sole point argued in the appeals was whether the learned District Judge was right in holding that the roofs of the shops in question were part of a thoroughfare. It has been found that the roofs have not been under the management of the Municipal Committee of Sialkot and are not paved, cleaned, or lighted by that body. The roofs, however, give easy access to two public streets on either side through narrow entrances about 2 or 3 feet in width and have been used as a short-cut by pedestrians for a long time. On the basis of this long user the Courts below have presumed 'dedication' of the said roofs as a public thoroughfare.

1938 L/18 & 14

The learned counsel for the appellants has urged that the learned District Judge has erred in: (a) not taking into consideration certain relevant documentary evidence viz. Ex. P/3 and a judgment dated 22nd October 1914 by Mr. Rose in Civil Appeal No. 306 of 1914; (b) in relying on some irrelevant evidence viz. Exs. D-4 and D-5; and (c) in drawing an inference as to dedication from mere long user, when there were salient facts militating against the existence of any intention to dedication. In my opinion there is much force in these contentions. As regards (a), the judgment by Mr. Rose was given in a suit instituted by Sher Singh, a predecessor-in-interest of Amar Singh defendant and another person in the year 1914, to prevent Ali Bux (P. W. 2) from building a second storey on the roof of his shop. It is not disputed that Ali Bux's shop is in the same line along with plaintiffs' shop, and the roofs of all these shops taken together are alleged to form a public road, giving access to public streets on either side. This suit of 1914 was dismissed on appeal and it appears from the judgment that the plaintiffs did not then claim that the roof of Ali Bux's shop was a part of a public road, but merely claimed a right to restrain Ali Bux from building the second storey on the ground that it would interfere with their right to take long 'dolis' etc., into the adjoining public street. The learned District Judge has treated this judgment as irrelevant on the ground that it related to the roof of a different shop and the principles of res judicata could not apply. But the learned District Judge seems to have overlooked the fact that the judgment is evidence of plaintiffs' admission in that appeal that one of the roofs in question did not form a public road and that he then claimed only a lesser relief which was inconsistent with his present claim. It is true that the dispute in that case was with respect to the roof of Ali Bux's house. But that roof is a part of the alleged public road and stands on exactly the same footing as the plaintiffs' own roofs. There could not be any public thoroughfare consisting of the roofs in question, unless they were all used as a public road and thus could give access to the public streets on either side. In my opinion the judgment referred to above was relevant under S. 11, if not under S. 13, Evidence Act.

Another document relied on by the plaintiffs which was left out of consideration by the learned District Judge is Ex. P/3. This was an agreement between the predecessors-in-interest of the defendant Amar Singh and the plaintiff Chuni Lal. By this agreement Chuni Lal gave up his right of pre-emption while Sher Singh and Mehr Singh, the predecessors-in-interest of Amar Singh agreed to open no fresh doors or ventilators. Now, if the roofs of the plaintiffs' houses were a part of a public road as alleged by the defendant in the present case, there could be no dispute with Chuni Lal about any right to open door, windows etc. on such road. The agreement is thus inconsistent with the position taken up by the defendant in the present case and would be relevant under S. 11, Evidence Act.

I come now to the documents Exs. D.4 and D.5 which have been relied upon by the learned District Judge in addition to the oral evidence as regards the use of the roofs as a public road. Ex. D.4 is a sale deed by the predecessors-in-interest of defendant Amar Singh executed in his own favour. In this document, the roofs in question are mentioned as the boundary on one side of the house sold and are described as 'rasta hattan'. Now this is obviously a document between third parties and a mere description of boundaries therein cannot be considered to be a relevant piece of evidence as against the plaintiffs in this suit. It may however be mentioned that in this very document, another street, which formed the boundary of the house on another side was described as 'shara-e-am' (public thoroughfare), while the roofs are merely referred to as 'rasta hattan'. Evidently therefore, even the executants did not look upon the latter as a 'shara-e-am' (public thoroughfare).

The other document relied upon by the learned District Judge is a mortgage deed Ex. D.5, in which the roofs are similarly referred to as 'rasta hattan'. This document is attested by Gian Chand, one of the present plaintiffs. But it is well established that an attesting witness cannot be presumed, from the mere fact of attestation, to be aware of the contents of the document, much less to a mere recital of boundaries: 14 Lah 369.¹ I am therefore of opinion that the learned District Judge has also erred in relying on Exs. D.4 and D.5.

Excluding Exs. D.4 and D.5 and taking into consideration the judgment of Mr. Rose of the year 1914, and P/3, the point for decision is whether the evidence in this case is sufficient to justify a finding that the roofs in question form a public thoroughfare. To prove that the roofs form a public thoroughfare, it is necessary to have evidence as to their dedication for public use, express or implied. Admittedly, there is no evidence of any express dedication in this case and the only question is whether the dedication should be inferred from mere user.

There is no doubt evidence of respectable witnesses on the record to the effect that the roofs in question have been used by pedestrians for access to the neighbouring public streets for a long time. But such user does not necessarily raise a presumption as to dedication in every case: see (1914) A C 338.² In every case of this type there must be an animus dedicandi, an intention to dedicate, of which the user by the public is mere evidence and no more: of. (1843) 11 M & W 827.³ The question must therefore be decided with due regard to all the circumstances of the case. The facts of the present case are very peculiar. The shops in question belong to different persons. There is no evidence to show that they belonged to one person at any time as suggested. Roofs of houses are not ordinarily meant to be used as a public road and it is difficult to presume or infer that the owners of those shops may have intended to dedicate the roofs for any such user. Any such user would be wholly inconsistent with the right of the owners to make use of the roofs for ordinary purposes and also for building an upper storey, etc., when required. In addition to these facts, we have also the evidence furnished by the judgment of Mr. Rose of the year 1914 and P/3, which show that even the predecessors of the defendant did not look upon these roofs as forming a thoroughfare, at the time of the litigation of 1914 and also in 1918, when P/3 was executed. It is not disputed that Ali Bux did build an upper storey on his roof, and there was thus an interruption of the user of the alleged public road. A single act of interruption, it has been said, is of much more weight on the question of intention to dedicate than many acts of enjoyment: per Parke B in (1843) 11 M & W 827.³

1. Fazal Hussain v. Jiwan Shah, A I R 1933 Lah 551=141 I O 454=14 Lah 369=84 P L R 196.

2. Folkestone Corporation v. Brookman, (1914) A C 338=83 L J K B 745=110 L T 834=78 J P 273=12 L G R 934=30 T L R 297.

3. Poole v. Huskinson, (1843) 11 M & W 827.

After carefully considering all the facts, it seems to me that it would not be proper to infer dedication of the roofs for use as a public thoroughfare. I may note here that there was an issue as to easement, but no right of easement has now been relied on. I accordingly accept both the appeals and modify the decrees of the learned District Judge to the extent of adding a relief restraining the defendant from using the roofs of the plaintiffs' shops as a public road for giving access to the public streets on either side. In view of all the circumstances, I grant the plaintiffs in each case only half the costs throughout.

T.M./D.S.

Appeals accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 99

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Jiwan Singh—Defendant—Appellant.
v.

Dewan Radhakishen, Plaintiff and another, Defendant—Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 80 of 1936, Decided on 1st February 1937, from decree of Jai Lal J., D/. 5th March 1936, reported in A I R 1936 Lah 747.

Limitation Act (1908), Arts. 61, 96 and 120—Promissory note by R and N in favour of J and M. J alone realizing whole amount—Subsequent suit by J and M on basis of promissory note—Suit decreed for M only to extent of his half share—Suit by R to recover from J amount paid to M—Suit held was governed by Art. 61 or Art. 120 but not by Art. 96.

R and N borrowed certain amount on a promissory note from J and M. J alone realized the amount. Subsequently J and M brought a suit against R and N on the basis of the promissory note. As J had no authority to receive payment on behalf of M, the suit was dismissed to the extent of half the claim but was decreed in favour of M to the extent of half the claim. Thereupon R brought a suit against J to recover the amount paid to M on the ground that he had been compelled to pay it twice:

Held that the suit fell under S. 70, Contract Act, and was governed by Art. 61 or Art. 120, Lim. Act, and not by Art. 96: Case law discussed.
[P 101 C 1]

Achhru Ram — for Appellant.

Mehr Chand Mahajan—for Respondents.

Addison J.—On 16th February 1919, Radha Kishen and Narain Kishen borrowed Rs. 5,000 on a promissory note from Jiwan Singh and Milkhi Chand. On 27th May 1919, Jiwan Singh alone realized Rs. 5,000 on account of this promissory note from the debtors by means of a draft on them. In 1925 Jiwan Singh and Milkhi Chand sued Radha Kishen and Narain Kishen for recovery of Rs. 7,700 on the basis of the promissory note. The defence was that the promissory note had been discharged by the payment of 27th May 1919, and this defence was upheld. It was held however that Jiwan Singh had no authority to receive payment on behalf of Milkhi Chand. Consequently the suit by Jiwan Singh was dismissed to the extent of half the claim, while the suit so far as Milkhi Chand was concerned was decreed for half the amount in suit, the decree of the trial Court being dated 10th April 1926. There was an appeal to this Court which ended in dismissal on 29th January 1931. Milkhi Chand executed his decree to the extent of Rs. 1,200 up to October 1932. Thereupon the present suit was instituted by Radha Kishen to recover the sum of Rs. 1,200 from Jiwan Singh on the ground that he had been made to pay Rs. 1,200 twice over by reason of his action and was therefore entitled to a decree against him for that amount. The Courts below decreed the claim and there was an appeal to this Court on the question of limitation. A learned single Judge has held that the suit is not barred by time and dismissed the appeal. Against this decision Jiwan Singh has appealed under the Letters Patent.

The contention on behalf of the appellant is that Art. 96 applies. It is to the effect that there is three years' limitation from the date when the mistake becomes known to the plaintiff, when relief is sought on the ground of mistake. On the other hand the contention on behalf of the respondents is that Art. 61 or Art. 120 applies. Art. 61 gives three years from the date when the money is paid in a suit for money payable to the plaintiff for money paid for the defendant, while Art. 120 gives six years from when the right to sue accrues for a suit for which no period of limitation is provided elsewhere in the Schedule. A case which is nearly on all fours with the present is 13 Cal 155.¹ There one T first deposited a sum of 1. Torab Ali Khan v. Nil Ruttun Lal, (1886) 13 Cal 155.

money with a shroff in the name and to the credit of a third person but later withdrew it. The heirs of the third person sued the shroff to recover the sum deposited and obtained a decree against him, in satisfaction of which the shroff paid the money. The shroff then sued T, to recover the sum he had been compelled to pay under the decree of 1878. It was held that Art. 61 applied and that the plaintiff's cause of action arose at the time when he actually paid the money on 15th January 1883, and that the suit, which was instituted on 5th February 1884 was not barred by limitation. A somewhat similar case is reported in 31 P R 1904.²

Reliance was placed upon 87 I C 1017.³ There were three mortgagees of certain property. The mortgagor remitted the mortgage money by money order to the names of all the three mortgagees but the amount was received by S alone, who did not pay their share to the other mortgagees. A suit was subsequently brought for sale on foot of the mortgage and the Court held that payment to S alone did not amount to satisfaction of the mortgage deed and made a decree. Thereupon the mortgagor brought a suit to recover from the sons of S the amount received by S together with interest. It was held that the suit was governed by Art. 96 and that time began to run from the date of the judgment in the mortgage suit when the mistake was discovered. As against this, however, it was held in 4 Pat 448⁴ that in giving effect to a statute of limitation, if two Articles limiting the period for bringing a suit are wide enough to include the same cause of action and neither of them can be said to apply more specifically than the other, that Article which keeps alive rather than that which bars the right to sue should be preferred. Where therefore a patnidar brought a suit to recover from the landlord a sum of money paid in excess of the amount demandable for cess, the relief being based on mistake, it was held that Art. 62 (which corresponds to Art. 61), and not Art. 96 was applicable.

34 Mad 167⁵ dealt with a case where an agent sued to recover moneys spent by him on account of his principal. It was held that the right of the agent to recover was conferred by S. 70, Contract Act, and that he was entitled to bring the suit immediately after he had expended his own moneys, and that the Article applicable was Art. 61. It was said that that Article was not confined to cases where defendant was under a legal liability to make the payment but was also applicable to cases falling under S. 70, Contract Act. To the similar effect is A I R 1931 Lah 344.⁶ In 25 C W N 813,⁷ a case which fell within S. 70, Contract Act, it was held that Art. 120, Lim. Act, applied and not Art. 61. 133 I C 615⁸ is also somewhat in point. A mortgaged certain property to B for Rs. 750 in June 1921 directing B to pay Rs. 400 to A's creditors. B did not pay and A had to pay the amount to his creditors. Thereafter A instituted a suit against B to recover the amounts paid. It was held that the suit was not governed by Art. 61 but by Art. 120. Again, in 57 Mad 347⁹ the plaintiff, who was a principal partner of a firm, sued the defendant, his sub-partner, for the recovery of that portion of the plaintiff's share of the partnership losses paid by him to the creditors of the partnership on its dissolution which the defendant was bound to contribute under a special contract. Here again it was held that Art. 120 governed the suit, and not Art. 61. In another case the Allahabad High Court in 70 I C 582¹⁰ held that where a vendee, with whom a part of the sale money is left for payment to a creditor of the vendor, failed to pay the amount and the vendor had to pay it himself and then brought a suit for damages against the vendee, the suit is governed by Art. 61. A similar case of the same Court is reported in 63 I C 87.¹¹

5. Kandaswami Pillai v. Avayambal, (1911) 34 Mad 167=7 I C 399=20 M L J 989.

6. Shahbaz Khan v. Bhangl Khan, A I R 1931 Lah 344=135 I C 177=93 P L R 1090.

7. Upendra Krishna Mondal v. Naba Kishore, A I R 1921 Cal 93=62 I C 615=25 C W N 813.

8. Zaitun Aheer v. Sat Ram Singh, A I R 1931 All 549=133 I C 615=53 All 702=1931 A L J 588.

9. L. Seenayya v. L. Ramalingayya, A I R 1934 Mad 12=148 I C 204=57 Mad 347=65 M L J 789.

10. Brikant Pande v. Jamna Dhar Dube, A I R 1922 All 409=70 I C 582.

11. Sarju Misra v. Ghulam Husain, (1921) 63 I C 87.

2. Fitzgerald v. Musa, (1904) 31 P R 1904.

3. Ganesh Parshad v. Jot Singh, A I R 1925 Oudh 719=87 I C 1017.

4. Tofa Lal Das v. Molnuddin Mirza, A I R 1925 Pat 765=93 I C 129=4 Pat 448=7 P L T 481.

It is clear therefore that whether there is an obligation to pay or whether there is a case which falls within S. 70, Contract Act, the authorities lean to the view that Art. 61 applies or that Art. 120 applies in cases such as the present, but that Art. 96 does not apply. This is a case where S. 70, Contract Act, is applicable. It is unnecessary to decide in the present case whether the better Article is Art. 61 or Art. 120 as, whichever applies, the suit is within limitation. Perhaps the better view would be that Art. 120 is the appropriate Article, as such a suit as the present falls within that Article without straining the language thereof. For the reasons given we dismiss the appeal with costs.

P.R./D.S.

*Appeal dismissed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 101*JAI LAL AND BHIDE JJ.Ramel Singh and others*

Appellants.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 683 of 1937, Decided on 20th September 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Hoshiarpur, D/- 1st June 1937.

Criminal Trial — Retracted confession — Contradictory confessions cannot be relied upon in absence of direct testimony — Fact that some policemen were interested in investigation when confessions were made is good ground for not relying upon them.

In the absence of any direct evidence, it is not safe to rely upon the retracted confessions which are contradictory to each other in material details and which have been contradicted by the direct testimony. The fact that the confessions were retracted and that when they were made some policemen were interested in the investigation of the case, is a good ground for not relying upon the confessions. [P 102 C 2]

Dr. Nand Lal — for Appellants.

Sardar Jhanda Singh for Advocate-General — for the Crown.

Jai Lal J.—The three appellants, Ramel Singh, Kirhu and Fakhru, have been convicted of the murder of Prabh Dyal on the night preceding 29th October 1936 in a village called Bhall adjoining the main road between Pathankot and Kangra in the vicinity of Shahpur. Ramel Singh and Kirhu have been sentenced to death; Fakhru, a Gujjar, who was a servant of Ramel Singh has been sentenced to transportation for life. It appears that on the morning of 29th October 1936 the body of the deceased was noticed hanging on a tree by a lorry driver who reported the matter to the police and an enquiry was immediately started. Having regard to the position in which the body was found or for some other reasons which it is difficult to discover, the theory started during this enquiry was that the deceased had committed suicide. Mt. Pankho, mother of the deceased, and his cousin also made statements that Prabh Dyal had committed suicide. These statements were made on 31st October 1936. The body was sent to the Civil Surgeon for post mortem. His report was that the deceased had died as a result of asphyxia. In his statement in Court he was definitely of opinion that the deceased was not strangled to death but that he was hung alive on the tree. He was cross-examined at considerable length in order to enable him to agree with the theory which was subsequently propounded by the prosecution that Prabh Dyal had been throttled by three men and was hung on the tree after he had died, but the Civil Surgeon adhered to his original opinion that he was not throttled but was hung alive on the tree. At some subsequent stage, therefore, it was considered that Prabh Dyal could not have committed suicide and consequently the investigation was directed towards discovering the culprits who had caused his death.

It appears that Mt. Lachho, widow of Prabh Dyal, had been enticed away about a month previous to his death and Ramel Singh and Kirhu were considered to be the persons who had done so. She however returned to her husband after an absence of about ten days but after remaining with him for a few days she again disappeared. Prabh Dyal, it is said, after having made inquiries about her whereabouts and being unsuccessful in recovering her, filed a complaint in the Court of a Magistrate on 27th October naming Kirhu and Ramel Singh as the accused. It is however to be noted that in this complaint he stated that Kirhu had illicit intimacy with Mt. Lachho and was keeping her with criminal intention. He accused Ramel Singh of abetting this conduct of Kirhu. As I will show presently, the case for the prosecution is that it was Ramel Singh who had enticed Mt. Lachho and had contracted illicit intimacy with her and that Kirhu, the maternal uncle of Ramel Singh, was merely an abettor. On 28th October, according to the statement of Mt. Pankho, mother of Prabh Dyal, he was called away from his house by Kirhu and the next that she heard about him was when his dead body was being taken to Dharm-sala on 29th October.

At the trial, witnesses were produced for the prosecution to show that the accused were seen with the deceased on the previous evening. That evidence has however been disbelieved by the learned Sessions Judge. One Sohnun was produced as an approver. His statement also has been disbelieved by the Sessions Judge. The conviction is based on the existence of motive and the three retracted confessions made by the three convicts before an Honorary Magistrate of Second Class at Rehlu and the testimony of Mt. Pankho that on the evening of 28th October Kirhu took the deceased with him on the pretext of compromising the affair of Mt. Lachho. It may be mentioned here that though it is alleged that Mt. Lachho was with Ramel Singh on 28th October, it appears that immediately after the discovery of the corpse of Prabh Dyal, she is said to have gone into the custody of a head constable of police and for about six months after the incident, till her recovery, she lived with Tulsi Ram, a constable, in his village. It is said that she was handed over to them by one Situ who was a cousin of the deceased and that the woman remained with Tulsi Ram because she was assured that money had been paid to Situ as her price through Rup Singh. This incident I have mentioned only to show that some policemen were vitally interested in the result of the investigation and that the fact that almost immediately after the murder Mt. Lachho went into the possession of a policeman is a matter which has some bearing on the culpability or otherwise of the present accused and on the theory of suicide which was first started.

I have no doubt on the evidence that Prabh Dyal was murdered. The theory of suicide is not under the circumstances believable. The medical evidence shows that he was hung on the tree when he was alive. At the time of the recovery of his body, his handkerchief was found in his mouth. This circumstance clearly indicates murder and not suicide. The three confessions were made by the accused before the same Magistrate and the learned Sessions Judge has in his judgment described some of the discrepancies that exist in these three confessions and has remarked as follows :

From these confessions it is obvious that they were made by each accused according to his own choice and that Ramelu and Kirhu still hoped that there being no other evidence and Mt. Lachho having been secreted away, even these confessions might not completely condemn them.

It is clear that the confessions do not give the true circumstances of this crime. In the first instance it is stated in them that the deceased was throttled by the three appellants and the approver. The approver's evidence has been disbelieved by the Sessions Judge. According to the medical evidence there were no marks of throttling. This circumstance shows that the confessions do not contain a true statement of the circumstances under which the deceased died. It appears that after the confessions were recorded, all the three accused were remanded to police custody and not to the judicial lock-up, and before the Committing Magistrate they made an application and this application was made at a fairly early stage of the inquiry, stating that the confessions had been obtained by coercion. There is no evidence of coercion and it is not necessary to come to a finding whether there was or there was no coercion but the fact that the confessions were retracted and that when they were made some policemen were interested in the investigation of the case, is in my opinion a good ground for not relying upon the confessions specially when it has been admitted that the confessions do not agree in material details.

As to the circumstances under which Mt. Lachho left her husband's house, there are material discrepancies between the statement of Mt. Lachho and the statements of the two accused Ramel Singh and Kirhu. I consider that though there was a motive for Ramel Singh and Kirhu to cause injury to Prabh Dyal, in the absence of any direct evidence it is not safe to rely upon the retracted confessions which are contradictory to each other in material details and which have been contradicted by the direct testimony of Mt. Lachho. I may mention that Rup Singh, the head constable, who was the first, according to the prosecution case, to come into possession of the woman after the death of her husband and who is said to have disposed of her and is said to have been instrumental in selling her to Tulsi Ram, was at the time an orderly of police officer who was investigating this case. I do not feel inclined to accept the evidence of Mt. Pankho. She contradicts the other witnesses as to the interval between the disappearance of Mt. Lachho and the murder. On the whole the guilt of the appellants has not been satisfactorily proved and I would accept their appeal, set aside their convictions and direct their release from jail forthwith.

Bhide J.—I agree.

S.C./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 103

BHIDE J.

Jagta and another — Defendants — Appellants.

v.

Bugga and others, Plaintiffs and others, Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 80 of 1936, Decided on 8th February 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Ludhiana, D/- 16th November 1935.

Custom (Punjab)—Adoption—Jhali Jats of village Dehlon, Ludhiana District—Right of adopted son to succeed collaterally.

Among Jhali Jats of the village Dehlon in the Ludhiana District, an adopted son is entitled to succeed collaterally in the family of his adoptive father. [P 105 C 1]

F. C. Mittal for J. N. Aggarwal —

for Appellants.

Manohar Lal —

for Respondents (Plaintiffs).

Judgment.—The sole point for decision in this second appeal is whether according to the custom governing the parties, who are Jhali Jats of the village Dehlon in the Ludhiana District, an adopted son is entitled to succeed collaterally in the family of his adoptive father. The plaintiffs alleged that they were not so entitled, while the defendants joined issue on the point and disputed the plaintiffs' claim to the property in suit. The case came up to this Court once before but was remanded to the District Judge for re-decision, on a Letters Patent Appeal, by order dated 21st February 1935. The trial Court reported after further enquiry (which was ordered by the learned District Judge) that an adopted son was entitled to succeed collaterally in the family of the adoptive father; but the learned District Judge did not accept this finding and dismissed the appeal filed by the defendants. From this decision they have preferred a second appeal supported by the necessary certificate on the question of custom. The learned District Judge was of opinion that the onus lay clearly on the appellants to prove that the custom was as alleged by them, as it was contrary to the general custom as stated in paras. 48 and 49 of Rattigan's Digest of Customary Law and as there were two decisions of this Court relating to Jats of the Ludhiana District, in which the custom was found to be in accordance with the general custom. The Customary Law of the District, prepared by Mr. Dunnet in 1911, contains no specific rule on the precise custom in issue in the present case (see questions 69 and 70). The author has merely referred to two decided cases (only one of them related to Jats) and remarked 'presumably when the adopted son acquires no right of collateral succession in his adoptive family, he loses no right of collateral succession in his natural family'. As far as I can see, the answers to questions 69 and 70 contain no definite statement of custom on the point at issue in this case. The defendants-appellants proved three instances in support of the custom alleged by them; but these were considered by the learned District Judge to be insufficient to establish it.

On behalf of the appellants, it was urged that there is no 'general' custom in this province and the learned District Judge was wrong in relying on it and shifting to the defendants the onus of proof which clearly lay on the plaintiffs. In support of this contention, he relied on 17 Lah 10¹ and 17 Lah 296.² As regards the two decisions of this Court referred to by the learned District Judge, viz. 8 Lah 46³ and A I R 1929 Lah 216,⁴ it was urged that these were not in point as they related to Jats of different gotes and different localities. As regards the riwaj-i-am it was urged that it did not lay down any specific rule on the point at issue and was not against the appellants. Lastly, it was contended that the instances produced by

1. Mt. Samon v. Sahu, A I R 1935 Lah 93=161 I O 245=17 Lah 10=38 P L R 198.

2. Kartar Singh v. Mt. Banto, A I R 1936 Lah 804=168 I O 379=17 Lah 296=38 P L R 800.

3. Khushi Ram v. Mangal Singh, A I R 1926 Lah 630=96 I O 788=8 Lah 46=28 P L R 481.

4. Dulla v. Tara Singh, A I R 1929 Lah 216=113 I O 17.

the appellants clearly supported them and taken along with the oral evidence were sufficient to establish their case, even if the onus had been on them, especially in view of the fact that no instances were produced by the plaintiffs in support of their case.

The contention of the learned counsel for the appellants that there is no 'general' custom in this province and that the burden of proof lies on the party relying on custom is supported by the rulings cited by him; but it was urged by the learned counsel for the respondents that in view of the fact that a customary appointment of an heir merely creates a personal relation and does not transplant the adopted son into the adoptive family, the onus lay on the appellants to prove the alleged right of collateral succession in the adoptive family. In support of this contention reliance was placed by him on the reasoning adopted in the Full Bench ruling reported in 3 Lah 362.⁵ There is some force in this contention, though it is open to the criticism that custom is not matter of inferences but of fact, and if there is no 'general' custom in the province, no assistance can be gained from considering the nature or incidents of custom prevailing amongst other tribes or other localities. In the present instance, although the Customary law of the Ludhiana District does not state any precise rule on the point arising in this case, the answer to question 69 in the compilation of 1911 and the illustrations thereto show that an adopted son does not as a rule succeed to his natural father's estate as against his natural brothers. If the appointment of an heir is akin to gift and does not result in transplantation of the adopted son in the adoptive family as laid down in 3 Lah 362⁶, there is no reason why the adopted son should lose his right of succession in the natural family even in the presence of his brothers. The fact that he does lose such right shows that custom is not always logical or consistent. Its real test must therefore be found in instances. The plaintiff-respondents produced no instances in their favour. Their learned counsel has merely relied upon two reported cases, viz. 8 Lah 46³ and A I R 1929 Lah 216⁴, but these refer to Jats of different got's in other villages and are not directly in point.

The appellants, on the other hand produced three clear instances relating to Jhali Jats in support of their case, including one in their own family. The latter instance related to succession on the death of Sobha Singh when Gangu, an adopted son, was allowed to succeed collaterally (vide Mutation Ex. D/3 decided on 17th December 1894). The other two instances relating to Jhali Jats are from a neighbouring village called Ghorī (see Exs. D/11 and D/14). The fact that there are clear cut instances showing the parties concerned followed the rule of custom as alleged by the appellants, was not challenged by the learned counsel for the respondents; but he contended that the instances were few and are not sufficient to discharge the onus which lay on the appellants. However, I have already pointed out above that the Customary Law of the district does not lay down any rule on the point at issue and the presumption arising merely from the general statement as to the nature of customary adoption in 3 Lah 362⁵ cannot be considered to be very strong. It is significant that the plaintiffs have not been able to cite a single instance in support of their case. The oral evidence produced by them was of little value and they did not rely on it or even care to have it printed or typed for the purpose of this second appeal. The appellants have, on the other hand, relied on their oral evidence also and it is supported by three clear instances. The instances are few but a few clear cut instances are better than a large number of dubious ones. The parties in this case are admittedly governed by custom and the only point in dispute is the actual rule followed on the point at issue. This being the case, I do not see why a large number of instances should be insisted on. The case might have been different if there was a dispute as to whether personal law applied and a custom contrary to such personal law had to be established.

The fact that the right of collateral succession in the adoptive family has been found to exist in some cases of customary adoption cannot be disputed (see e. g. 3 Lah 17⁶ and other cases given under para 49, Rattigan's Digest of Customary Law). The appellants have produced a copy of an extract from the riwaj-i-am.

5. Mela Singh v. Gurdas, A I R 1922 Lah 493 = 68 I C 858 = 8 Lah 362 (F B).

6. Waryaman v. Kanshi Ram, A I R 1922 Lah 105 = 66 I C 309 = 8 Lah 17.

of pargana Ghungarana (in which the village of the parties is situated) prepared in 1882, which shows that the spokesman of the tribes concerned (amongst whom were some representatives of the got and the village of the parties) considered that an adopted son stood on the same footing as a natural son and hence lost his rights in the natural family (Ex. D/7). In the riwaj-i-am of the same pargana prepared in 1911, the custom was stated to be the same as before, though it must be said that the instances given are conflicting (Ex. D/9). In the Customary Law of the District prepared in 1911, the author has noted in the answer to question 69 that the custom varies in different villages and the uncertainty of custom about the rights of succession of the adopted son is also noticed at the end of the preface to that book. If the custom is so variable and uncertain, well ascertained instances from the Jhilli got including one from the family of the parties, even though they may be few, must obviously be given great weight. Taking into consideration all the facts stated above, the evidence produced by the appellants appears to me to be sufficient to prove that the custom amongst Jhilli Jats is as alleged by them. I therefore accept the appeal and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit, but in view of all the circumstances leave the parties to bear their costs throughout.

T.M./D.S.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 105

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Firm Haji Ghulam Rasul Khuda Bakhsh — Assessee — Petitioners.

v.

Commissioner of Income-tax, Lahore—Respondent.

Civil Misc. No. 214 of 1937, Decided on 1st July 1937, from decision of Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab, North West Frontier and Delhi Provinces.

Income-tax Act (1922), Ss. 26-A, 2 (14) — Registration — Income-tax authorities may go into evidence, circumstantial and direct, to determine if partnership document is genuine — Onus rests on person applying for registration.

It is open to the income-tax authorities to go into evidence, both circumstantial and direct, to determine whether the instrument of partnership is a genuine document or whether it merely embodies a bogus transaction for the purpose of evading the tax. The onus rests on the person who applies for the registration of the firm to prove that a genuine instrument of partnership has been executed and that all the persons named therein are actual persons and not "dummies."

A firm, consisting of two partners, applied for registration of partnership in 1934 on the ground that the sons of one of the partners had been included in the partnership as partners in 1932. On the conclusion of the financial year 1932-33, the profits were not divided between different partners. The sons lived in the houses belonging to their father and all their household expenses continued to be paid by the father. Neither was there any evidence that any of the sons contributed anything towards the capital of the firm, nor was it proved that they possessed any separate property from which the losses could have been recovered :

Held that the firm consisted only of two original partners: (1927) 11 Tax Cas 614; 7 I T C 38; A I R 1932 Bom 116 and 5 I T C 389, Rel. on.
[P 106 C 2 ; P 107 C 1, 2]

Kirpa Ram Bajaj — *for Petitioners.*Jagan Nath Aggarwal and S. M. Sikri —
for Respondent.

Abdul Rashid J.—This is an application under S. 66 (3), Income-tax Act, praying that the Commissioner of Income-tax may be required to state the case of the assessee "firm Haji Ghulam Rasul Khuda Bakhsh" to this Court for the decision of the questions of law arising therein. The firm Haji Ghulam Rasul Khuda Bakhsh consisted, according to the case for the assessee, of two partners, namely the brothers Haji Ghulam Rasul and Haji Khuda Bakhsh, till 1st July 1932. Haji Ghulam Rasul had a 12/16th and Haji Khuda Bakhsh 4/16th share in the firm. On 1st July 1932 the constitution of the firm was changed and the three sons of Haji Ghulam Rasul, namely Abdul Wahid, Abdul Rahman and Abdul Ghaffar, became partners in the firm to the extent of 3/16th, 3/16th and 2/16th respectively. The share of Haji Ghulam Rasul was reduced from 12/16th to 4/16th.

On 21st March 1934 a partnership deed was executed evidencing the fact that the firm consisted of five partners, and that their shares were as specified above. On the strength of this deed of partnership an application was presented to the income-tax authorities, under S. 26-A, Income-tax Act, for the registration of the firm. The Income-tax Officer was of the opinion that the deed of partnership was a bogus one, and that the three sons of Haji Ghulam Rasul were merely 'dummies' and not real partners in the firm. The Income-tax Officer gave a number of reasons for holding that the share of Haji Ghulam Rasul was 12/16th and that his sons were working in the firm as assistants of their father and not as real partners. On these findings the application for the registration of the firm was dismissed, and the firm was assessed to income-tax as originally constituted. Against this decision an appeal was preferred to the Assistant Commissioner of income-tax. He affirmed the decision of the Income-tax Officer, and gave additional reasons for holding that the deed of partnership did not embody a genuine transaction. The Income-tax Commissioner was approached under S. 66 (2), Income-tax Act, to refer the case of the assessee to this Court. On his refusal to do so, an application was preferred to this Court under S. 66 (3) as already mentioned.

It was contended on behalf of the assessee that the provisions of Ss. 2 (14) and 26-A, Income-tax Act, coupled with Rr. 2 to 4 framed under the Act, left no option to the income-tax authorities to refuse registration once an instrument of partnership specifying the individual shares of the partners was presented to them by the assessee. It was urged that the certificate produced by the assessee as regards the shares of the different partners must be regarded as conclusive of the matter by the income-tax authorities, and that the manner in which they could prevent evasion of taxation was to resort to the provisions of S. 48, Income-tax Act and disallow refunds in the case of persons who were not proved to be genuine partners of the firm in question.

In my opinion the contention put forward on behalf of the assessee is devoid of all force. The instrument of partnership specifying the individual shares of partners referred to in S. 26-A, Income-tax Act, means obviously a genuine instrument of partnership. If there is evidence, direct or substantial, showing the bogus nature of the so-called instrument of partnership, it is open to the income-tax authorities to refuse registration of the firm in question. Reference may be made in this connexion to the case in (1927) 11 Tax Cas 614.¹ In that case a farmer had entered into a deed of partnership with his three sons with the admitted intention of reducing the income-tax liability in respect of the profits. There were however circumstances showing that the deed of partnership did not embody a genuine transaction between the father and the sons. In these circumstances it was held that as a partnership did not exist in fact, there was no partnership for the special purposes of the Income-tax Act.

In a case reported in 7 I T C 38,² where a deed was drawn up as a partnership deed between the assessee and his major son for avoiding income-tax, the two minor sons not being admitted to the benefits of partnership, but no capital account was opened or any capital shown as the son's contribution, it was held that there was material on which the Income-tax Officer could find as a fact that a partnership did not exist. This case was not a case of a Hindu undivided family and was not governed by S. 25-A of the Act. Reference may also be made to a Bombay case reported in 6 I T C 13.³ In that case the assessee was a Mahomedan lady, and a document was put forward for registration as an instrument of partnership between the lady and her three minor children. This document purported to show the shares of the different partners in the profits of the firm without stating the business of the firm, or its assets, or wherefrom the profits were derivable and there was no combination of property, labour or skill other than the income proposed to be shared with her children which the lady received from certain investments in shares of a large sum of money left by her father. Registration was refused by the income-tax authorities on the ground that the whole transaction was illusory and bogus and that the deed of partnership was executed for the purpose of evading income-tax only. It was held by the High Court that the circumstances showed that in point of fact there was no partnership as defined in S. 239, Contract Act.

The principle underlying all the rulings mentioned above is that it is open to the income-tax authorities to go into evidence, both circumstantial and direct, to determine whether the instrument of partnership is a genuine document or whether it merely embodies a bogus transaction for the purpose of evading the tax. These rulings are fully applicable to the facts of the present case. It appears to me, therefore, that the Income-tax Officer was fully entitled to refuse registration of the firm if as a fact he found that the instrument of partnership did not embody a genuine transaction.

1. Dickenson v. Gross, (1927) 11 Tax Cas 614 = 187 L T 851.

2. Abowath Brothers v. Commr. of Income-tax, Burma, (1938) 7 I T C 88.

3. Bai Sakinaboo In re, A I R 1932 Bom 116 = 187 I C 908 = 34 Bom L R 100 = 6 I T C 13.

The next point urged by the learned counsel for the assessee is that the onus of showing that the three sons of Haji Ghulam Rasul were not partners in the firm was on the Department and that this onus had not been discharged. On this point also I do not agree with the contention put forward on behalf of the assessee. It was for the assessee, who applied for registration, to prove that a partnership in fact existed and who were the partners. In a case reported in 5 I T C 389⁴ it was claimed on behalf of the assessee that he was carrying on business in partnership, the partners being members of his family entitled to and paid a share in the profits. The Income-tax Officer was not satisfied with the evidence called in support of the contention by the assessee and assessed him as an individual on the profits of the business. It was held that the assessee having failed to discharge the onus of establishing that the business managed and controlled by him was a partnership, he was rightly assessed as an individual on the profits of the business. The onus would thus rest on the person who applies for the registration of the firm to prove that a genuine instrument of partnership has been executed and that all the persons named therein are actual persons and not "dummies".

In the present case it was alleged by the assessee that the three sons of Ghulam Rasul had become partners on 1st July 1932. No deed of partnership was, however, executed till 21st March 1934. No application for the registration of the firm was made till 20th March 1934. On the conclusion of the financial year 1932-33, the profits were not divided between the different partners. A division of profits took place on 31st March 1934, and a sum of Rs. 12,776 is alleged to have fallen to the shares of the three sons of Ghulam Rasul. They are alleged to have withdrawn their entire profits on the same day. No evidence has however been tendered to show what became of the profits in the hands of Abdul Wahid, Abdul Rahman and Abdul Ghaffar. The three sons of Ghulam Rasul live in the houses belonging to their father and all their household expenses continue to be paid by Ghulam Rasul. There is no proof that any of the sons of Ghulam Rasul contributed anything towards the capital of the firm nor has it been established that they possess any separate property from which the losses, if any, could have been recovered.

The above mentioned circumstances, in my opinion, provide ample material for the finding that the firm really consists of Haji Ghulam Rasul and Haji Khuda Bakhsh only and that the three sons of Haji Ghulam Rasul are not partners in the firm but are merely assisting their father in running the business. In this view of the matter, no question of law arises in the present case. I would therefore dismiss this application. The parties will bear their own costs of these proceedings.

Tek Chand J.—I agree.

V.B.B./R.K. Application dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 107

JAI LAL AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Feroze Din and others — Plaintiffs —
Appellants.

v.

Hassan Din and others — Defendants
— Respondents.

First Appeal No. 2314 of 1935, Decided on 23rd February 1937, from decree of Sub.Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/- 26th July 1935.

(a) Custom (Punjab)—Alienation — Ancestral property — Limited power — Persons should be mainly agriculturists and members of village community.

A presumption in favour of a restricted power of alienation of ancestral immovable property applies only to members of agricultural tribes who are members of village communities and whose main occupation is agriculture, but not to those who have altogether drifted away from agriculture as their main occupation and have settled for good to urban life and have adopted trade, industry or service as their principal occupation and means and source of livelihood : 55 P R 1908, Rel. on. [P 109 C 1]

(b) Custom (Punjab) — Father earning on service — Land in dispute, built upon and within municipal limits — Alienation of land by father — Sons contesting alienation must prove that they are governed by custom.

Where the father of persons contesting alienation made by him was found to be a person earning his livelihood by service and the land in dispute was within municipal limits and built upon, it is for the persons contesting alienation to show that they are governed by customary law and not by personal law. [P 109 C 1]

⁴ Raghu Karson v. Commr. of Income-tax, Bihar & Orissa, (1931) 5 I T C 389.

Abdul Haye, Mela Ram and Shabbir Ahmad — for Appellants.

Mehr Chand Mahajan, Daulat Ram (for Mt. Rahmat Bibi) and Kahn Chand (for Forbes, Forbes Campbell & Co. Ltd.) — for Respondents.

Abdul Rashid J. — This appeal arises out of a suit instituted by Feroze-ud-Din, Channan Din, Fazal-ud-Din and Qamar-ud-Din, sons of Hasan Din, for a declaration to the effect that the sale of land, measuring 6 kanals and 1 marla, by means of a registered sale deed dated 14th November 1930, made by their father Hasan Din, defendant 1, in favour of Asmat Ullah, defendant 2, is unlawful, null and void and shall not affect their reversionary rights after the death of defendant 1. The land in dispute is situated in the area of Naulakha, which is a suburb of the City of Lahore, and is included within the Municipal area. It was stated in the plaint that the land in dispute was the ancestral property of Hasan Din, the father of the plaintiffs and that Hasan Din sold this property to Asmat Ullah without consideration and necessity. According to the plaint Hasan Din, the father of the plaintiffs, was a simpleton and was in the service of Asmat Ullah, defendant 2, and the sale was effected by him without necessity and consideration as undue influence was exercised on him by Asmat Ullah. Rupees 53,707.11.0 was entered as the consideration for the sale in the sale deed.

Hasan Din, defendant 1, supported the claim of his sons and pleaded that he had been in the service of defendant 2 for 15 years as his gardener on Rs. 20 a month; that no consideration passed to him and the sale was fictitious. Defendant 2 denied that the land was ancestral and pleaded that the plaintiffs were governed by Mahomedan law, as they resided in the Lahore city, were not members of any village community and did not cultivate land with their own hands. It was further pleaded by defendant 2 that the land in dispute had been mortgaged in his favour by defendant 1 by registered deeds of mortgage, dated 18th November 1902, 8th September 1912, and 2nd August 1917, and that by virtue of these mortgage deeds defendant 1 was not entitled to possession of the land till the year 2016. The equity of redemption was sold by defendant 1 to him for a sum of Rs. 500 as on the date of the sale, the equity of redemption was not worth more than Rs. 500. Messrs. Forbes, Forbes, Campbell & Co. Ltd. were also made defendants as a part of the building erected on the land in dispute had been sold in their favour. On these pleadings the following issues were framed :

(1) Whether the plaintiffs are governed by custom ? (2) Whether the suit land is ancestral qua the plaintiffs ? (3) If the two preceding issues are found in favour of the plaintiffs, whether the alienation in question was for consideration and necessity ? (4) Is this alienation otherwise to be upheld on the ground of the same being an act of good management ? (5) Whether the plaintiffs are estopped by their conduct, omission or acquiescence ? (6) Whether the suit is a collusive one ? (7) How will the factum of the mortgages before the sale not being impugned affect this case ? (8) What relief is the plaintiff entitled to and against whom ?

The trial Court held that it had not been established that the plaintiffs were governed by Customary Law. Out of the land in dispute 2 kanals and 7 marlas were proved to be ancestral, while 3 kanals and 14 marlas were self-acquired. On issues 3 and 4 the Court came to the conclusion that the sale was for consideration and necessity and that it also amounted to an act of good management. It was further held that the three mortgages dated 18th November 1902, 8th September 1912, and 2nd August 1917, could not now be attacked by the plaintiffs owing to the expiry of limitation. On these findings the suit was dismissed. Against this decision the plaintiffs have preferred an appeal to this Court.

The first question for consideration is whether the plaintiffs are governed by Customary Law. In the year 1868 Ahman, the grandfather of the plaintiffs, owned two ghumaons of land. This land was mortgaged in favour of Sarab Dayal, son of Bulaqi Shah. The entire land owned by the father of the plaintiffs was only 6 kanals and 1 marla. This land was used prior to the year 1902 for the purposes of stacking fuel. After 1902, defendant 2 built a factory on this land. There is no proof on the record therefore that this land was ever actually cultivated either by the plaintiffs' father or his grandfather. Hasan Din, defendant 1, made a statement before the framing of the issues, in which he admitted that he lived inside the city of Lahore and that his father and grandfather had also lived inside the city. It is mentioned in the plaint itself that the father of the plaintiffs was earning his living by serving defendant 2 as a gardener and receiving Rs. 20 as his pay. Naulakha, as mentioned already, is within the Municipal limits of Lahore. The land in dispute has been built upon and all the lands contiguous to it are also occupied by buildings. In these circumstances I am of the opinion that it would be for the plaintiffs to prove that their family was governed by custom and not by Mahomedan law. It was held in 55 P R 1908¹ that a presumption in favour of a restricted power of alienation of ancestral immovable property applies only to members of agricultural tribes who are members of village communities and whose main occupation is agriculture, but not to those who have altogether drifted away from agriculture as their main occupation and have settled for good to urban life and have adopted trade, industry or service as their principal occupation and means and source of livelihood. The following instances are relied upon by the plaintiffs in support of their contention that they are governed by the Customary Law :

(1) One Ali Gohar Arain alienated land situated in village Nawan Kot in the year 1890. His sons brought a declaratory suit to the effect that the sale by their father should not affect their reversionary rights after his death. The parties were arains and the area in dispute consisted of 71 kanals and 2 marlas of land. It was held by Mr. Mir Ibrahim, Subordinate Judge, that the parties were governed by Customary law and the plaintiffs were entitled to the decree prayed for. This instance is of no assistance to the plaintiffs as in the year 1891 village Nawan Kot and the land attached to it comprised rural property. The land was actually under cultivation and the vendor and his sons lived entirely on agriculture.

(2) In the year 1898 Mian Kamal Din made a gift of some land in favour of his sons Taj Din and Siraj Din. Mian Amin-ud-Din thereupon brought a declaratory suit to the effect that his father was not entitled to make an unequal distribution of his ancestral property by granting a part of the area to two of his sons and by depriving him of any. The suit of Mian Amin-ud-Din was decreed. The plaintiff was an arain of village Baghbanpura and the land was agricultural. This instance has no bearing on the question involved in the present case. Moreover, Baghbanpura was and is still a village and the parties involved in the case lived solely on income from agricultural land.

(3) In the year 1912, Ibrahim sold 3 kanals and 10 marlas of land in Khubi Miran in favour of Nanak Chand. His son Mahraj Din contested the alienation and was given a decree. The parties were arains by caste and lived entirely on agriculture.

(4) An alienation made by Pir Bakhsh, arain of Rajgarh, of 40 kanals of agricultural land was set aside at the instance of his sons and his brother in the year 1914. The alienation referred to agricultural land. The parties were arains by caste and lived solely on agriculture.

(5), (6) and (7). These instances refer to agricultural land by certain arains in villages Bela Basti Ram and Bhogiwal in the years 1914 to 1919. The parties were arains by caste and their sole source of income was agriculture. Moreover, they were carrying on cultivation with their own hands.

The seven instances summarised above, in my opinion, do not in any way advance the case of the plaintiffs. None of these instances deals with arains residing inside the Lahore City. In none of these instances was the property at the time of the alienation situate within the limits of the Municipal area. In none of these instances had the land already been built upon before the alienation took place. These considerations deprive the above instances of all value. Ten witnesses were produced by the plaintiffs. They stated generally that the arains of villages Bhogiwal, Baghbanpura, Bela Basti Ram, Khubi Miran and Rajgarh were governed by the Customary Law. They were however not able to cite a single instance where any alienation made by an arain residing in Lahore City was set aside by a Court of law or challenged by the reversioners. It is established on the record that over 2500 alienations have taken place within the area of Naulakha during the last 20 or 30 years. None of these alienations has been successfully challenged by the reversioners of the alienors.

The learned counsel for the appellants relied on 26 P R 1915,² where it was held that arains residing in Lahore City who own land in the neighbourhood of the city and depend entirely upon agriculture for their living are in matters of succession governed by agricultural custom and not by Mahomedan law. The reported case is distinguishable from the present one, as in that case it was established that the plaintiffs possessed a great deal of agricultural land which they cultivated with their own hands and made their living by agriculture. In these circumstances, the Punjab Chief Court held that the concurrent findings of the Courts below could not be upset in second appeal as arains were predominantly an agricultural tribe of the province. Reference was also made to 49 P R 1915.³ In that case it was held that although the burden of proof of a special custom contrary to personal law was on the plaintiff, yet, considering that the tribe of Gul-farosh, arains of the Lahore City, is a mere fragment of a very large body of arains who are agriculturists and follow ordinary Punjab custom, the burden should not be a very heavy one. After going through the various instances it was held that in that case the plaintiff had succeeded in establishing that there was a practice of will-making among the arains; that in making the will Mahomedan law was on important point departed from and that, therefore, the will in dispute was valid by custom. This ruling, in my opinion, has no bearing on the present case.

1. Muhammad Hayat Khan v. Sandhe Khan, (1908) 55 P R 1908=105 P W R 1908.

2. Mohammad Din v. Ahmad Din, (1914) 1 A I R Lah 522=27 I O 577=26 P R 1915=31 P L R 1915.

Reference was made by the learned counsel for the appellants to question no. 136 of the Customary Law of the Lahore District, where it is stated that a sonless proprietor cannot alienate his ancestral property by gift or bequest except as provided in the answers to questions nos. 116 to 121. Questions nos. 116 to 121 deal with gifts in favour of relatives. The provisions of the riwaj-i-am are applicable to agriculturists and village communities. In the present case the plaintiffs are residents of Lahore City and the land in dispute is not shown to have been used for agricultural purposes, at any rate, since 1902.

After a consideration of the entire oral and documentary evidence on the record, I have reached the conclusion that it has not been established on the present record that the family of the plaintiffs is governed by Customary Law. It is unnecessary to give any finding on the wider question whether arains living inside the City of Lahore are governed by custom or by their personal law.

In the year 1902 Hasan Din, defendant 1 and his brother Imam Din, owned 12 kanals of vacant land, which includes the 6 kanals and 1 marla of land now in dispute. This land was mortgaged in favour of defendant 2 for a sum of Rs. 2,000. Rs. 80 per annum was payable as interest on this sum. A sum of Rs. 1,000 was received in advance on account of rent for five years at the rate of Rs. 200 per annum by the mortgagors. On 8th September 1912, the area in dispute was mortgaged for five years for a sum of Rs. 1,200 by Hasan Din, defendant 1 in favour of Asmat Ullah, defendant 2, interest was to be payable by the mortgagor at the rate of Re. 0-14-0 per cent. per mensem and compound interest was also to be charged if the interest was not regularly paid. On 2nd August 1917, the land in dispute was further mortgaged for a sum of Rs. 2,300 in favour of Asmat Ullah. The mortgagee was already in possession and he was given the right to retain possession for a period of 99 years. Interest on the mortgage debt was to be payable at the rate of Re. 0-14-0 per cent. per mensem. It is obvious that till the year 2016, Hasan Din could not claim possession of the land in dispute. On 30th September 1930, he received a sum of Rs. 500 as the price of the equity of redemption and sold the land in favour of Asmat Ullah and the sale deed was executed on 14th November 1930. The interest and principal on the basis of different mortgage deeds by the year 2016 would have amounted to considerably more than Rs. 53,707-11-0, which is stated to be the consideration for the present sale. A land which was so heavily encumbered and which could not revert to the mortgagor for a period of 99 years cannot be said to have been sold without consideration on the ground that the mortgagor only received Rs. 500 as the price of the equity of redemption.

The lower Court was therefore right in holding that the sale was made for valid consideration. No arguments were addressed to us on the question of necessity by the learned counsel for the appellants in his opening address. He tried to agitate this point during the course of his reply but was not allowed to do so. In any case, as the mortgages of the years 1902, 1912 and 1917 could not be challenged by the plaintiffs on account of limitation, it must be held that these mortgages were for consideration and necessity. Rs. 500 received as the price of the equity of redemption was, therefore, a very minor part of the consideration which passed to the vendor from the vendee. For the reasons given above, I would affirm the decision of the Court below and dismiss this appeal with costs.

3. Rahim Bakhsh v. Umar Din, (1915) 2 A I R Lah 255=29 I C 882=49 P R 1915=243 P L R 1915.

Jai Lal J.—I agree.

B.D./R.K. Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 111

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Mt. Gango and others — Plaintiffs —
Appellants.

v.

Mt. Hukam Kaur and others, Defendants and another, Plaintiff —
Respondents.

First Appeal No. 181 of 1936, Decided on 2nd July 1937.

(a) Custom (Punjab) — Succession—Widow succeeding collaterally—After her death heirs of her husband and not those of last male holder succeed.

In a case where a widow has succeeded collaterally, after her death it is the heirs of her husband who have to be sought for and not the heirs of the last male holder of the property: Civil Appeal No. 1090 of 1912 and A I R 1937 Lah 468, Foll. [P 112 C 1]

(b) Custom (Punjab) — Succession — Self-acquired property—Sansi Jats of Amritsar district—Daughters exclude collaterals of 7th degree.

Among Sansi Jats of Amritsar district, daughters exclude collaterals of the seventh degree in succession to the self-acquired property of their father: A I R 1936 Lah 991 and A I R 1935 Lah 408, Rel. on. [P 112 C 2]

Harnam Singh and S. L. Puri —
for Appellants.

P. A. Bahl and M. C. Mahajan — for Respondents 1 and 2.

Dalip Singh J. — Mt. Hukam Kaur widow of Fateh Singh gifted 5584 kanals 10 marlas of land in favour of her and Fateh Singh's daughter Mt. Malan. The plaintiffs claiming to be collaterals of Fateh Singh pleaded that as such collaterals the land being ancestral property the gift was void as against them. They further pleaded that even if the land was not ancestral they excluded the daughter from self-acquired property and therefore the gift was void as against them. Various issues were framed which do not now concern us. The trial Court held that the land was not ancestral, that the plaintiffs were collaterals in the seventh degree of Fateh Singh but that the daughter was the next heir and the gift was therefore only an acceleration of succession and dismissed the plaintiffs' suit. The plaintiffs have come in appeal.

It has not been contested before us that the plaintiffs are seventh degree collaterals of Fateh Singh and that the land is not ancestral qua the plaintiffs. The history of the land is that one Tara Singh gifted the land to his daughter's son Dal Singh. Dal Singh had a brother Bhag Singh but he does not appear to have been included in the gift and the line of Dal Singh held this land exclusively until it came to one Bur Singh. Bur Singh's son Ganda Singh predeceased him and after Bur Singh's death the land was mutated in favour of Ganda Singh's widow Mt. As Kaur. On Mt. As Kaur's death it was mutated in favour of Mt. Hukam Kaur widow of Fateh Singh who was a lineal descendant of Bhag Singh, brother of Dal Singh. The trial Court held that the gift in favour of Dal Singh was really a gift in favour of the daughter and her issue and that, therefore, while any of the daughter's issues whether male or female were alive, the collaterals could not come in. I am unable to accept the reasoning of the trial Court, for it seems to me that if the gift had been intended to be in favour of the daughter and her issue, Bhag Singh would have been shown jointly with Dal Singh as owner of the land. On the contrary it was Dal Singh's line alone which held exclusive possession of the land in dispute and it seems to me that the fairer inference is that Tara Singh made this gift to a favourite daughter's son and not to the daughter and her issue as such.

But assuming that this was so, the next question that arises is whether on Mt. Hukam Kaur's death it is the heirs of her husband who have to be traced or the heirs of the last male holder Bur Singh. On this point which is by no means free from difficulty, we have fortunately two authorities to guide us. One is Civil Appeal No. 1090 of 1912 (Ramal Devi's case) where the same point arose for decision, namely, whether in a case where a widow has succeeded collaterally as it is called after her death, the heirs of her husband are to be sought or the heirs of the last male holder of the property. It was held in that case that as the widow's right is only a fictitious extension of her husband's right, it is the heirs of the husband who should be sought for on the death of the widow. This Civil Appeal was followed in Civil Appeal No. 160 of 1935¹ by a Division Bench of this Court. I see no reason to differ from these rulings and respectfully following them I would hold that on Mt. Hukam Kaur's death it is the heirs of her husband who have to be sought for and not the heirs of Bur Singh as contended by the learned counsel for the appellants.

The next question, therefore, that arises is whether in the case of Sansi Jats of Amritsar District collaterals of the seventh degree exclude daughters to self-acquired property of their father. In the riwaj-i-am of the Amritsar District on which reliance is placed, certain sub-divisions of Jats were consulted qua the riwaj-i-am and certain others specifically mentioned were not so consulted because the number of the tribe or sub-division was under one thousand. Sansi Jats were therefore not consulted on the question of their custom in 1914. In 1865, similarly, Sansi Jats had been left out of the riwaj-i-am but they made a statement qua their custom which was embodied in a special riwaj-i-am. That riwaj-i-am however is silent as to the succession of daughters to self-acquired property. In these circumstances there are two Division Bench rulings from the same district, A I R 1936 Lah 991² and A I R 1935 Lah 408,³ where it was held that as there was no riwaj-i-am at all qua the tribe or sub-division of Jats in question, the collaterals on whom the onus lay had failed to prove that they excluded the daughters qua self-acquired property of the father. These rulings have been criticised in 17 Lah 296⁴ at pp. 302-3, but as the sub-division of Jats in that case was mentioned in the riwaj-i-am, the remarks on the point now before us appear to be obiter. I would therefore follow these Division Bench rulings which deal specifically with the point in question and hold that the collaterals on whom the onus lay had not discharged it by the production of a riwaj-i-am which does not refer to them nor by any instances. Even if I were wrong in this decision, I would further hold that in this particular case the onus if it be held to lie on the daughter by reason of the riwaj-i-am is a very light one and has been discharged. The collaterals in this case were unable to produce a single instance where daughters had been excluded by collaterals of the 7th degree in succession to the self-acquired property of the father. But the daughter, on the other hand, has produced three instances where the daughters succeeded in the presence of collaterals. These instances are mentioned in the judgment of the learned trial Court at page 31 of the printed paper book. Mutation 201 at page 288 of the printed paper book shows that one daughter got the property of the father and on extinction of her line the descendants of the other daughter got it in preference to the collaterals of the father. Ex. D. W. 1/8, mutation 165, at page 241 of the printed paper-book, an instance of Khaler Jats also not mentioned as one of the tribes consulted in the riwaj-i-am, shows that after the widow the daughter got the land and not the collaterals. Ex. D. W. 1/10, mutation 29, printed at pages 249 and 264 of the printed paper book, shows that daughters were preferred in favour of collaterals. These three instances are in my opinion sufficient to rebut the onus if any which lay on the daughter in the circumstances and I would therefore agree with the trial Court and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Skemp J.—I concur with the order of my learned brother dismissing the appeal and generally with his reasons. I agree that on Mt. Hukam Kaur's death it is the heirs of her husband who have to be sought for; and I agree that the onus cast by the riwaj-i-am is discharged by the instances proved. The onus cast by the riwaj-i-am in the case of Jat gotis or sub-tribes who were consulted depends on the assumption that those giving the answers understood the questions, knew the custom and stated it honestly and without ulterior motive. The onus in the case of Sansi or other Jats who were not consulted depends on the further assumption that if consulted they would have given the same answers as the other gotis or sub-tribes.

R.W./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

1. Diwan Singh v. Natha Singh, Reported in A I R 1937 Lah 468.

2. Ujagar Singh v. Mt. Dyal Kaur, A I R 1936 Lah 991=167 I O 710.

3. Thakar Singh v. Dhan Kaur, A I R 1935 Lah 408=157 I O 114=87 P L R 225.

4. Kartar Singh v. Mt. Banto, A I R 1936 Lah 804=168 I O 879 = 17 Lah 296 = 88 P L R 300.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 113JAI LAL AND DALIP SINGH JJ.Hari Shanker and another — Defendants — Appellants.*

v.

Pt. Ram Sarup, deceased, represented by Mt. Seoti—Plaintiff — Respondent.

First Appeal No. 336 of 1936, Decided on 28th September 1937, from decree of Sub.Judge, First Class, Delhi, D/- 20th August 1936.

(a) Hindu Law — Joint family — Trade — Extension of — Extended business is still ancestral business.

Where a business carried on by a father descends to his son, who extends it, that is, carries it on on a bigger scale, the business is still ancestral business and his sons acquire an interest in it on birth and in the property which is acquired out of the funds of that business as members of a joint Hindu family. [P 113 C 2 ; P 114 C 1]

(b) Hindu Law — Gift — Father's power — Power to gift portion of ancestral property to one son only extends only to moveables — Gift of immovables must be only for pious purpose.

Under Hindu law, the father's power to make a gift of ancestral property to a reasonable limit, in favour of one son to the exclusion of other sons, extends only to moveable property. In the case of immovable property the gift must be for a pious purpose. [P 114 C 1]

Shamair Chand, Parkash Chander and Qabul Chand Mital — for Appellants.

Achhru Ram and Bishen Narain — for Respondent.

Jai Lal J.—One Kallu, a Brahman of Delhi, had two sons from two different wives. The elder of these, Jagdish, was born on 1st February 1886: the younger, Ram Sarup, was born on 30th September 1893. The suit out of which this appeal has arisen was instituted by Ram Sarup for partition of the alleged joint family property, the defendants being Shib Shanker and Hari Shanker, two sons of Jagdish. The plaintiff Ram Sarup alleged that he was a member of a joint Hindu family with Jagdish and after his death with his sons and that the property in suit, which was described in the plaint, was the coparcenary property. Ram Sarup died during the pendency of the suit and is now represented by his widow, who is the respondent before us. The plea of the defendants was that there had been a separation of the joint family property in the year 1917. This plea however was taken at a late stage of the suit. They also claimed that in 1917 two items of the property in suit had been gifted by Kallu, father of Jagdish and Ram Sarup, to Jagdish, and therefore Ram Sarup had no right to them. On the pleas, therefore, it was admitted that up to the year 1917 the parties were members of a joint Hindu family. It was admitted, and it is admitted now before us, that property no. 1 in suit is the ancestral property of the parties having been acquired by Kanhaya, father of Kallu, and also that at the time of the death of Kanhaya there was one mortgage for Rs. 1400 of two shops with possession in favour of Kanhaya which subsequently was renewed in favour of Kallu. It also appears from the evidence that Kanhaya used to do money-lending business and also earned income as a priest and by teaching military officers. Ram Sarup has stated that Kallu used to carry on the ancestral business of Kanhaya.

The learned Subordinate Judge has found that the entire property in suit (except item 11) was coparcenary property, having been acquired by Kanhaya Lal or by Kallu as the manager of the joint family and out of the nucleus which came to him from Kanhaya. With regard to the property gifted by Kallu in 1917 to Jagdish, he has held that as it was ancestral and joint family property it could not be gifted by Kallu to Jagdish, and as it has not been shown that the nature of the enjoyment of the property was changed after the gift so that Ram Sarup had notice of adverse possession of, or denial of his title by Jagdish, therefore there was no substance in the plea of the defendants that Ram Sarup's suit with regard to the gifted property was barred by time. The suit with regard to property no. 11 was dismissed.

On this appeal it is contended on behalf of the appellants Shib Shanker and Hari Shanker that the conclusion of the learned Subordinate Judge that the property acquired by Kallu was acquired out of the ancestral nucleus is not justified by any evidence on the record and that in any case Kallu was entitled to make a gift of the property acquired by him in favour of his son Jagdish and also that as the suit was instituted more than 12 years after the date of the gift, it is barred by time. Counsel has taken us through the record. It appears that Kanhaya carried on money-lending business which descended to Kallu and that Kallu extended that business, that is to say, he carried on the ancestral business but on a bigger scale.

The business therefore in his hands was ancestral business, and his sons acquired an interest in it on birth and in the property which was acquired out of the funds of that business as members of a joint Hindu family. It follows that Kallu had no power to make a gift of any portion of the coparcenary property. It has not been proved that after the gift Jagdish had separate enjoyment of the gifted property of which Ram Sarup had notice. Therefore no plea of adverse possession with regard to that property can be sustained by the defendants.

It was then contended that under the Hindu law father has power to make a gift to a reasonable limit of ancestral property in favour of one son to the exclusion of other sons; but this power extends only to moveable property. In the case of immovable property the gift must be for a pious purpose. In this case no such purpose has been shown to exist or even alleged. In my opinion therefore the conclusion of the learned Subordinate Judge that the property in dispute is joint family property having been acquired out of the ancestral nucleus is supported by evidence and by the circumstances of the case, and the defendants have not established their exclusive title to any portion of it. The preliminary decree of the learned Subordinate Judge directing partition of the property is therefore correct. I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

(S.C./R.K. Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 114

BHIDE J.

Ram Sarup — Defendant — Appellant.
v.

Sarnu Mal — Plaintiff — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 431 of 1937, Decided on 3rd November 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/- 11th January 1937.

* (a) Res judicata—Suit by A against B — Another suit by B against A — Suits consolidated and tried together — A's suit dismissed but B's suit decreed — Appeal by A against decree in B's case only — Unappealed decree does not operate as res judicata.

A suit was instituted by A against B for recovery of certain amount. Another suit was instituted by B against A. The two suits were consolidated and tried together as the issues were practically identical. The Court dismissed A's suit but decreed that of B. A appealed against the decree passed in B's suit but did not appeal against decree passed in his own suit :

Held that the unappealed decree did not operate as res judicata. The existence of a contradictory decision was not fatal and it was the later decision of the highest Court that would be binding on the parties : A I R 1927 Lah 289, Rel. on.

[P 115 C 1]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 27 — Additional evidence when should be admitted stated.

The legitimate occasion for the exercise of the discretion to allow additional evidence is not whenever, before the appeal is heard, a party applies to adduce fresh evidence but when on examining the evidence as it stands some inherent lacuna or defect becomes apparent : A I R 1931 P C 143 and A I R 1937 Lah 285, Foll.

[P 115 C 2]

J. L. Kapur — for Appellant.

M. C. Mahajan — for Respondent.

Judgment.—The material facts of the case giving rise to the present appeal are briefly as follows : A suit was instituted by a firm named Suraj Bhan Ram Sarup against Sarnu Mal for recovery of Rupees 1578.2.0 on the basis of a balance struck in a bahi account by Sarnu Mal. Another suit was instituted later by Sarnu Mal for recovery of Rs. 1450 against the firm Suraj Bhan Ram Sarup, alleging that he had paid the debt due to the firm by a hundi for Rs. 2500 and that he was himself entitled to recover a sum of Rs. 1450 from the firm. The two suits were tried together as the issues were practically identical. The trial Court dismissed Sarnu Mal's suit and decreed that of the Firm Suraj Bhan Ram Sarup. On appeal however, the learned Additional District Judge came to a contrary conclusion and dismissed the suit of the firm and decreed that of Sarnu Mal. The firm Suraj Bhan Ram Sarup has presented an appeal from the decree passed in the suit instituted by Sarnu Mal. No appeal has been presented from the decree passed in the suit instituted by the firm.

The learned counsel for the appellant raised two main points in appeal : (1) that the learned Judge of the Appellate Court erred in admitting additional evidence contrary to the principle laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 10 Pat 654¹ and therefore the finding of the learned Additional District Judge that the debt due to the firm was discharged by a hundi for Rs. 2500 cannot be sustained; (2) that even if the finding of the learned Additional District Judge is accepted, the finding could at the most justify the dismissal of the present appellant's suit but could not sustain the decree granted against him.

1. Parsotim Thakur v. Lal Mohar Thakur, (1931) 18 A I R P O 143=132 I O 721=10 Pat 654=58 I A 254 (P O).

The learned counsel for the respondent on the other hand urged that the decision in the appellant's own suit which was dismissed and against which he has not appealed operates as res judicata. He also contended that the additional evidence was rightly admitted by the learned Additional District Judge, and that his finding based thereon is final and that the decree passed against the appellant is fully justified on that finding.

It seems to me that the contention of the learned counsel for the respondent that the findings in the appellant's own suit operate as res judicata cannot be supported in view of the Full Bench decision in 8 Lah 384.² The two suits were consolidated and tried together and consequently the principles laid down in the Full Bench ruling are clearly applicable. It is true that the finding in the appellant's case has become final, but that fact is not fatal; for, it was held in the Full Bench ruling that the existence of another contradictory decision does not operate as res judicata in circumstances such as those of the present case and that it is the later decision of the highest Court that will be binding on the parties. I accordingly overrule the objection.

Coming to the question of the additional evidence admitted by the learned Additional District Judge, I note that the evidence was admitted before the arguments were heard, and before the Judge had applied his mind to all the points requiring decision and was in a position to appreciate fully the question whether admission of additional evidence was necessary and justifiable in the circumstances of the case. The only ground urged before him to which he has referred in his order admitting the evidence (see order dated 7th December 1936) is that the finding of the lower Court would not stand if additional evidence is allowed to be let in to prove this fact (i. e. the handing over of the hundi to a notary public for presentation).

The learned Judge merely remarks that the point was important and would help him to a just conclusion in the case. But this would not appear to be a sufficient ground for admitting additional evidence in appeal in view of the principles laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 10 Pat 654.¹ As pointed out by their Lordships at p. 668 of the report :

The legitimate occasion for the exercise of this discretion is not whenever, before the appeal is heard, a party applied to adduce fresh evidence but when on examining the evidence as it stands some inherent lacuna or defect became apparent.

The provisions are not intended to help an unsuccessful litigant to patch up the weak parts of his case in appeal : see also A I R 1937 Lah 285.³ In view of this authority I hold that the learned Additional District Judge had no jurisdiction to admit the additional evidence in the circumstances and on the grounds on which he admitted it. It must therefore be excluded from consideration.

It was next urged by the learned counsel for the respondent that even apart from the additional evidence, the learned Additional District Judge has held Ex. P. 1 to be proved and on this finding the decree of the learned Judge is justified. This contention also does not appear to me to be correct. The finding of the learned Additional District Judge in respect of Ex. P. 1 is not given separately. He has considered Ex. P. 1 and other matters including the additional evidence and then come to the conclusion that "Sarnoo Mal did sell the hundi in satisfaction of the debt in suit".

Excluding the additional evidence, I think the finding of the trial Court on the evidence as it stood was quite sound. The learned Additional District Judge has not considered some of the points discussed by the learned Judge of the trial Court. The trial Court has given its reasons for holding the direct evidence as regards the execution of Ex. P. 1 to be unreliable and the evidence of the handwriting expert by itself inconclusive. The learned Additional District Judge gives no reasons for taking a different view on these points. He has also not considered the point that Amar Nath, the drawer of the hundi, was not produced. The mere fact that the evidence of Ram Sarup to the effect that he was out of Delhi was not considered to be reliable does not and cannot establish that Ex. P. 1 is genuine. I agree with the finding of the trial Court on the point and on that finding it is unnecessary to consider any other points. I accept the appeal and dismiss the suit of Sarnu Mal with costs throughout.

2. Mt. Lachhmi v. Mt. Bhull, (1927) 14 A I R Lah 289=104 I O 849=8 Lah 384=28 P L R 712 (F B).

8. Baga Singh v. Imam Din, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 285.

D.S./R.K.

Suit dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 116

BLACKER J.

Ata Mohammed and another —

Petitioners.

v.

Khanun and others — Respondents.

Criminal Revn. Petn. No. 473 of 1937, Decided on 6th July 1937, from order of Addl Sess. Judge, Shahpur at Sargodha, D/. 25th February 1937.

Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439—Enhancement of sentence—Petition for, by party—Policy is to dismiss such petition but rule is not hard and fast.

Although it is not the policy of the Lahore High Court to enhance sentences in criminal cases on a petition by a party, yet it is not an invariable rule and in proper cases sentence can be enhanced on the petition by a party also. [P 116 O 1]

S. L. Puri and D. R. Sawhney —

for Petitioners.

M. Sleem — for Respondents.

Order.—Khanun, Awrangzeb, Ata Mohamed, Mohamed Hussain and Mohammed Sharif, Awans of Khushab, were convicted by the learned Additional Sessions Judge of Shahpur, under S. 325, I. P. C. and sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment each. Their appeal was dismissed by me on 7th May last and the facts are given in full in my judgment in that case. The present petition is one by the complainants in the case praying for enhancement of the sentence and notice in it was issued by me on the day that I dismissed the appeal. Counsel for the convicts has raised one preliminary objection and that is that, it is not the policy of this Court to enhance sentences in criminal cases on a petition by a party. This is perfectly true, but it is not an invariable rule and in this case it is merely by chance that the order directing notice to issue to the respondents was written upon the revision petition put in by the complainants. Even if there had been no such revision, I would have issued notice in this case, of my own motion, after hearing and deciding the appeal.

It will be seen from the judgment in the appeal that the sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment inflicted on these appellants by the learned Additional Sessions Judge was inflicted by him in consequence of his finding that they had been acting in the exercise of their right of private defence and had only exceeded it. My finding on appeal after consideration of the circumstances was that there was no right of private defence at all and that the attack by the appellants was unprovoked and brutal. On the findings to which I have come, the Local Government, if so advised, could have put in a petition for the alteration of the conviction from S. 325 to that of a far more serious offence, and not merely for enhancement of sentence. The Crown has not taken this action but has instructed the Crown counsel to appear and support the petition for enhancement of sentence. The learned counsel for the convicts has also argued before me that as there has been no Government appeal or petition with regard to the actual conviction, that should be considered as finally settled and the accused should be regarded as having been acquitted of any offence under S. 304 or S. 302 and merely guilty under S. 325. He proceeded to argue that that being so, I should not be influenced in assessing the sentences by any consideration that the accused would have been liable to sentences such as transportation for life under S. 304 or even the capital sentence under S. 302, and that therefore I should not automatically pass the maximum sentence under S. 325. There is some force in this argument and I will certainly bear it in mind in assessing the sentences which I intend to inflict.

The third argument by the learned counsel for the convicts was that as the evidence is not clear in this case as to which of the petitioners inflicted which particular injuries, they could only be punished under S. 325 in consequence of their constructive liability under S. 149. On the other hand it cannot be denied that the act of the appellants was unprovoked, brutal and merciless. The medical evidence shows that no fewer than 70 injuries were inflicted by them on the unfortunate prosecution party, that many of these injuries were grievous and that two of their victims actually died. It is also perfectly obvious that if the learned Sessions Judge had not been misled by his erroneous finding that a right of private defence accrued to the convicts, he himself would have passed a very much heavier sentence than that which he has passed. For these reasons I accept the petition and enhance the sentence of each of the five convicts to six years' rigorous imprisonment.

B.D./R K.

Sentences enhanced.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 117

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Jodh Singh — Judgment-debtor — Appellant.

v.

Firm Bhagwan Das. Nanak Chand — Decree-holder — Respondent.

Letters Petent Appeal No. 118 of 1936, Decided on 4th February 1937, against judgment of Agha Haider J., reported in A I R 1937 Lah 404.

Limitation Act (1908), S. 14 (2) and Art. 182—Mortgage suit—Preliminary decree made final—Application within limitation for final decree and sale rejected—Application for execution out of time—Previous application held not step-in-aid (39 P L R 680 = A I R 1937 Lah 404, Reversed)—S. 14 (2) held did not help decree-holder.

In a mortgage suit, a preliminary decree was made final on 16th April 1929. On 23rd February 1932 the decree-holder put in an application under O. 34, R. 5, Civil P. C., asking the Court to pass a final decree and to sell the mortgaged property. On 19th May 1932 the application was rejected as the final decree had already been passed. On the same day, the decree-holder put in an application to execute the final decree, stating that on account of the wrong report of the Ahlmad, the decree-holder was prevented from applying for execution on 23rd February 1932. The entry in the register by the Ahlmad was correct in all respects except that the word "final" was not inserted before "decree":

Held that the step which the decree-holder contemplated by his application of 23rd February 1932 was only a step to further his suit and could not be a step-in-aid of execution: 39 P L R 680 = A I R 1937 Lah 404, Reversed; Case law discussed. [P 118 C 2; P 119 C 1]

Held further that the proceeding of 23rd February 1932 was in a Court which did not suffer from any defect of jurisdiction or other cause ejusdem generis. Nor could it be said that the application for final decree was for the same relief as an application to execute a final decree. S. 14 (2) therefore did not help the decree-holder.

[P 119 C 2]

Mehr Chand Mahajan, Achhru Ram and Ratan Lal Chawla — for Appellant.

Qabul Chand Mital — for Respondent.

Addison J.—On 12th March 1929 the decree-holder obtained an ex parte preliminary decree against the judgmentdebtor on the foot of a mortgage for Rs. 7000, dated 24th May 1922, for a sum of Rs. 14,000 together with costs and future interest. The judgment-debtor was directed to deposit the decretal amount in Court on or before 12th April 1929. There was a public holiday on the last date and it was therefore ordered that the case should come up for hearing on 16th April 1929 and not on 12 April 1929, notice of this being served on the parties. On 16th April 1929 both parties appeared in Court. The judgment-debtor did not deposit the decretal amount but put in an application asking the Court to set aside the ex parte decree which had been passed against him. This application was rejected by an order of that day, both parties being shown as present at the time the order was made. Another order was also made on 16th April 1929, both parties again being shown as present. This order directed the decree to be made final under the provisions of O. 34, R. 5, Civil P. C., instructions being given for a final decree to be drawn up. This was accordingly done. The order was a proper one, except that under the provisions of O. 34, R. 5 (3) an application should have been made by the plaintiff to pass a final decree. There was no written application to this effect but there may well have been an oral one. In any case, judgment was given on 16th April 1929 passing a final decree and directing a decree sheet to be prepared. The decree sheet was prepared and in the Court register the final decree was entered, but the preliminary decree of 12th March 1929 was not then entered in the register.

On 23rd February 1932 the decree-holder put in an application under O. 34, R. 5, Civil P. C., asking the Court to pass a final decree as the amount mentioned in the preliminary decree had not been paid into Court. This application was practically in the words of O. 34, R. 5. It asked for a final decree to be passed and that the mortgaged property, or a sufficient part thereof, should be sold. The words of the Code are "shall pass a final decree directing that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof should be sold," and the words in the vernacular would be the usual words to convey that idea. On the same date the Ahlmad made a report to the effect that a decree had been passed. He copied the entry in the register correctly except that he did not put in the word 'final' before 'decree'. This may well have been due to an oversight. He ended his report by stating that the applicant applied for a final decree and this was correct. Notice issued to the judgment-debtor and the Court heard the matter on 19th May 1932. The records were then before the Court and it was clear that a final decree had been already passed on 16th April 1929. Accordingly, on 19th May 1932, the Court rejected the application, as a final decree had already been passed on the date mentioned. The Court put some blame on the Ahlmad for not reporting the matter correctly, but, as has already been shown, the report was correct in all respects except that the word 'final' was not inserted before 'decree'.

On the same day, that is 19th May 1932, the decree-holder put in an application to execute the final decree. It was in the prescribed form but was not correct in every particular. For example, it gave the date of the decree as 12th March 1929, instead of 16th April 1929. In Col. 6, it was stated that a petition to make the decree final had been made on 23rd February 1932, but it was not then alleged that this was a petition for execution; while it was stated in the body of the application that on account of the wrong report of the Ahlmad the decree-holder was prevented from making an application for execution on 23rd February 1932. It may here be stated that if such an application had been made on 23rd February 1932, it would have been within the three years provided by Art. 182 of Sch. 1, whereas 19th May 1932 was beyond the three years provided.

On 20th May 1932 the Court passed an order that the application which had been made on 23rd February 1932 was for a final decree to be passed and that application had been dismissed the previous day. The question of limitation was considered and 27th May 1932 was fixed for arguments on this point without issuing notice. On this date the Court passed an order that prima facie the application appeared to be barred by time, but noted that the decree-holder sought to take advantage of the provisions of S. 14, Lim. Act. Notice was accordingly ordered to issue to the judgment-debtor to decide this matter, the date fixed being 21st July 1932. Service was not effected and the application was dismissed on 25th August 1932 the question of limitation being left open.

On 7th February 1935 another application for execution was made. In it again the date of the decree was given as 12th March 1929 instead of 16th April 1929. In Col. 6 an incorrect entry was made to the effect that the last application for execution was dated 23rd February 1932, which had been dismissed without any sum being realized. The application of that date was, as already shown, something else and the last application for execution was dated 19th May 1932. This application was again dismissed for default on 10th May 1935.

The last application for execution was made on 10th May 1935 the decree-holder apparently having turned up after the former one had been dismissed. In it again the date of the decree is given as 12th March 1929 but it was properly entered in Col. 6 that the last application for execution was dated 7th February 1935. The executing Court gave the decree-holder the benefit of S. 14 (2), Lim. Act, and the judgment-debtor appealed to this Court. The appeal was heard by a single Judge* who held that the application of 23rd February 1932 was also an application for execution as well as an application for a final decree, though as an application for execution it was defective; that in any case the application of 23rd February 1932 was a step-in-aid of execution; that as a corollary, an application under O. 34, R. 5, would in itself be a step-in-aid of execution; while he was also inclined to give the decree-holder the benefit of S. 14 (2), Lim. Act, though his decision was not definite in this respect. Against this decision the judgment-debtor has preferred this Letters Patent appeal.

From the application of 23rd February 1932 it is clear that it was an ordinary application under O. 34, R. 5, Civil P. C., for a final decree. Until such a decree is passed the suit is still pending and no execution can proceed. No other interpretation can be given to the document and this is our decision on the first question raised before us. The next question argued before us was whether the application of 23rd February 1932 was a step-in-aid of execution. It seems to us that there cannot be a step-in-aid of execution until execution has become possible by the passing of a final decree. This is clear from the definition of "preliminary" and "final" decrees in S. 2 (2), Civil P. C., and from the provisions of O. 21, Rr. 10 and 11. The first Rule mentioned is to the effect that "where the holder of a decree desires to execute it, he shall apply to the Court which passed the decree to do so".

*Reported in A I R 1937 Lah 404=39 P L R 680.

The step which the decree-holder contemplated by his application of 23rd February 1932 was a step to further his suit. In 17 Cal 53¹, it was held that the application contemplated was an application for the execution of a decree within the terms of S. 235, Civil P. C., that is to say setting the Court in motion to execute a decree in any manner possible. But having so set the Court in motion, any further application during the continuance of the same proceedings was an application to take some step-in aid of execution within the terms of Col. 5 of Art. 182 of the present Limitation Act. In 45 Mad 466² it was held by a Division Bench that an application to be a step-in aid of execution should be one made in a pending execution application. Again, in 37 All 226³ it was held that under the present Code there can be no doubt that the proceedings for a final decree must be held to be proceedings in a suit, that is, not in execution. In 39 All 532⁴ it was held that an application for a final decree is not an application for execution. In 40 All 203⁵ it was held that an application for a final decree is an application in the suit and not an application in execution. The same Court held in 118 I C 670⁶ that an application for the preparation of a final decree was not an application for the execution of a decree but an application governed by Art. 181 in a suit. This latter authority also went on to lay down that the time spent in proceedings for executing a preliminary decree could not be excluded under S. 14, Lim. Act from the period of limitation for making an application for the preparation of a final decree, capable of execution, as the two reliefs were not the same. We may here dispose of the argument based on S. 14 (2), Lim. Act. It is to the effect that :

In computing the period of limitation prescribed for any application, the time during which the applicant has been prosecuting with due diligence another civil proceeding, whether in a Court of first instance or in a Court of Appeal, against the same party for the same relief, shall be excluded, where such proceeding is prosecuted in good faith in a Court, which, from defect of jurisdiction, or other cause of a like nature is unable to entertain it.

Here the proceeding of 23rd February 1932 was in a Court which did not suffer from any defect of jurisdiction or other cause ejusdem generis. Nor can it be said that an application for a final decree is for the same relief as an application to execute a final decree. S. 14 (2) therefore does not help the respondent in any way. The learned counsel appearing for the respondent contended that an application for execution may still be a valid application though defective, as was held in 53 Cal 664.⁷ This is correct but the argument does not help him as in the present case there was no application for execution till 16th May 1932. He principally however relied on 44 Bom 227,⁸ 46 Bom 269,⁹ A I R 1924 Bom 71¹⁰ and A I R 1928 Mad 38.¹¹ In 44 Bom 227⁸ the decree was passed on 18th February 1899. The first application for execution was presented on 20th March 1907 ; another on 31st March 1910, and the third on 12th September 1910. On the last occasion the defence was raised that the application of 31st March 1910 was barred by time. The Court decided that the application of 12th September 1910 was in time and directed that the money due should be paid by instalments and Rs. 220 were paid to the plaintiff on 26th March 1913. Finally, there was an application put in on 19th November 1915 to recover the balance. It was dismissed as time-barred on the ground

1. Parooshrum Das v. Kallipuddo Banerjee, (1890) 17 Cal 53.

2. Kuppaswami Chettiar v. Rajagopala Iyer, (1922) 9 A I R Mad 79=70 I O 324=45 Mad 466=42 M L J 303.

3. Muhammad Masih Ullah Khan v. Jarao Bai, (1916) 2 A I R All 88 = 27 I O 771 = 37 All 226=18 A L J 807.

4. Ramji Lal v. Karan Singh, (1917) 4 A I R All 119=40 I O 424=39 All 532 = 15 A L J 448.

5. Nizam Ud-din Shah v. Bohra Bhim Sen, (1918) 5 A I R All 76 = 48 I O 870 = 40 All 203=16 A L J 85.

6. Maqbul Ahmad v. Partab Narain Singh, (1929) 16 A I R All 677=118 I O 670 = 1929 A L J 976.

7. Pitambar Jana v. Damodar Guchait, (1926) 18 A I R Cal 1077=98 I C 166 = 53 Cal 664 = 30 O W N 918=45 O L J 86.

8. Desalappa Khalilappa Desai v. Dundappa Malkappa, (1920) 7 A I R Bom 264 = 55 I O 329=44 Bom 227=22 Bom L R 76.

9. Gulappa Rudrappa v. Erava Basanagowda, (1922) 9 A I R Bom 118=63 I O 844=46 Bom 269=28 Bom L R 1013.

10. Bindu Govind Naik v. Hanmant Govind, (1924) 11 A I R Bom 71=79 I O 407.

11. Kunhammad Hajee v. Chatboth Parkun Kozhuvammal, (1928) 15 A I R Mad 88=106 I O 395.

that the decree was dead on 31st March 1910, as that application was barred by time. It was held that the application of 19th November 1915 was within time as the order made on the application of 12th September 1910 not having been reversed on appeal was valid. This decision followed a decision of the Privy Council reported in 8 I A 123,¹² where it was held that assuming that a decree was barred at the date of some order made for its execution, such order, though erroneously made, was nevertheless valid unless reversed upon appeal. These authorities are of no help in the present case.

In 46 Bom 269,⁹ a decree passed in a mortgage suit giving six months time for payment was dated 25th February 1904. On 12th June 1907, an application for execution was put in but was dismissed eventually. On 13th June 1910 another application for execution was presented for sale of the property, but it was dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had not applied for a final decree as required by the new Code of Civil Procedure 1908. The plaintiff accordingly applied on 7th October 1912 for a final decree, but the application was dismissed for non-payment of process fees. A similar application was made on 7th November 1913, but was withdrawn later. The application under discussion was filed on 7th September 1915. It was held that the applications of 7th October 1912 and 7th November 1913, in which the plaintiff applied for a final decree were steps-in-aid of execution. The decision was based on the following grounds, namely that the application of 13th June 1910 should not have been dismissed because the plaintiff had not applied for a final decree as required by the new Code of Civil Procedure, as that Code was not retrospective and that therefore when the plaintiff was endeavouring to get an order which he had been told to get when the previous application was dismissed, he must be held to be taking steps-in-aid of his execution. It was said that this followed from the decision in 44 Bom 227,⁸ though what that decision laid down was that, if an application which was barred by time is held to be in time and that order is not appealed against, a subsequent application cannot be dismissed on the ground that the former order was a wrong one. This of course was an elementary proposition based on the general principles of res judicata.

The matter was again considered in A I R 1924 Bom 71.¹⁰ In that case a decree was payable by yearly instalments, the first of which was payable on 31st March 1914. On failure to pay any one instalment in time, the decree allowed sale of the mortgaged property or a sufficient portion thereof to recover the amount of the instalment overdue. Each time default took place, the creditors sought to make the decree final instead of applying for sale, and final decrees were passed. Finally on 30th October 1919, the creditors again applied to make the decree final as regards the instalment due on 31st March 1917. This application was rejected on the ground that no final decree was necessary. It was nevertheless held in a later application that this application to make the decree final should be considered as a step-in-aid of execution. In this decision however it was said that an application to make a decree final may in one case be considered as a step-in-aid although in another case it may be not so. Macleod C. J. was a party to all the decisions and he qualified his remarks in 46 Bom 269⁹ in his later decision in A I R 1924 Bom 71.¹⁰ As already pointed out, 46 Bom 269⁹ was based on 44 Bom 227⁸ and 8 I A 123,¹² which do not appear to be in point. The Bombay decisions, therefore, on the whole are not very useful.

In A I R 1928 Mad 38¹¹ it was held that strictly speaking O. 34, R. 5 has no application to a compromise decree, but that where the decree-holder, by applying for a final decree, was endeavouring to get an order which he thought at the time was necessary before executing his decree, but afterwards due to better advice he gave up that attempt and applied for the execution of the decree without obtaining a final decree, such an application was a step-in-aid of execution; for he was asking the Court to make an order which was thought necessary before taking out actual execution of the decree. With all respect, this amounts to a decision that the decree-holder can take any step, whether necessary or not, and whatever that step may be, it will be counted as a step-in-aid of execution though unnecessary. This appears to us to go very far and in any case this decision has no application to the facts before us where there was already a final decree in existence passed in the presence of the decree-holder. Further, the decree-holder accepted the fact that the decree was made final on 16th April 1929, for he did not appeal against the decision of the Court rejecting his application of 23rd February 1932, asking for a final decree to be passed.

12. Mungul Pershad Dohit v. Grija Kant Labari, (1882) 8 Cal 51=8 I A 123=11 O L R 113=4 Bar 249 (P O).

The learned counsel appearing for the respondent further relied on 50 Mad 403.¹³ That was a case where an application was made by a decree-holder purchaser for delivery of property purchased by him in execution, and it was held that that was a step-in aid of execution within Art. 182, Cl. 5, Lim. Act, and it was said that in order that an application by the decree-holder should serve as a step-in-aid, it was not necessary that it should be made in a pending execution application. The learned Judges followed 5 Mad 141¹⁴ and stated that in such matters the principle of stare decisis was applicable. This simply amounts to saying that, what had for a long time been acted upon, should be applied though of doubtful legality. The other Madras decisions on this point need not therefore be considered. He also relied on 4 Pat 202¹⁵ and certain other cases. In 4 Pat 202¹⁵ it was said that any step taken by the decree-holder to remove an obstacle thrown by the judgment-debtor in the way of the execution of the decree was a step-in-aid of execution. Where the judgment-debtor raised an objection to the execution of the decree, and the decree-holder examined a witness in order to meet the objection, it was held that this action of his was a step-in-aid of execution. Such cases however cannot help the respondent before us, for he took no step which could be called a step on 23rd February 1932. He merely applied for something which had already been done in the suit. On all grounds, therefore, we consider that the decision of the single Judge was wrong and accepting this appeal, we dismiss the application for execution as barred by time. The parties will bear their own costs throughout.

S.C./D.S.

Appeal allowed.

13. Mathonkandi Kannan v. Avvulla Haji, (1927)

14 A I R Mad 288=99 I C 677=50 Mad 403=52 M L J 1.

14. Kunbi v. Seshagiri, (1882) 5 Mad 141.

15. Sheo Sahay v. Jamuna Prasad Singh, (1925)
12 A I R Pat 459=88 I C 607=4 Pat 202=6 P L T 777.

ABDUL RASHID J.

Mohammad Hayat Muhammad Yar — Complainant—Petitioner.
v.

Daulat Khan Saleh and others —
Accused—Respondents.

Criminal Revn. Petn. No. 822 of 1937, Decided on 28th September 1937, from report of Addl. Sess. Judge, Shahpur, D/- 3rd June 1937.

Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 247 — Case adjournd for judgment without attendance of complainant having been specially directed—Complainant absent on fixed day — Accused cannot be acquitted on that ground.

Section 247 does not apply when the entire evidence in a case has been concluded and the case has been adjourned only for judgment without the attendance of the complainant having been specially directed. The order of a Magistrate acquitting an accused on the ground of absence of the complainant on the date fixed for judgment cannot be sustained : A I R 1919 Cal 201, Foll.

[P 121 C 2; P 122 C 1]

Roop Chand — *for Petitioner.*Ved Kumar Ranade — for Respondents.

Order.—On 12th August 1936, Mohammad Hayat instituted a complaint under S. 447, Penal Code, against Daulat and others. The prosecution evidence was concluded on 5th February 1937. Thereafter the defence evidence was recorded. On 25th February the defence evidence was concluded, and the case was adjourned for pronouncing judgment to 2nd March. On 2nd March the complainant was absent.
The Magistrate acquitted the accused under S. 247, Criminal P. C., on the ground that the complainant was absent without any reasonable cause.

Mohammad Hayat complainant preferred a petition for revision in the Court of the Additional Sessions Judge, Shahpur, praying that the order of acquittal dated 2nd March 1937 may be quashed and the Magistrate may be ordered to proceed with the case in accordance with law. The learned Sessions Judge has recommended that the order of acquittal be set aside and the Magistrate be directed to decide the case on the merits.

It is well settled that S. 247, Criminal P. C., does not apply, when the entire evidence in the case has been concluded and the case has been adjourned only for judgment without the attendance of the complainant having been specially directed;

vide 46 Cal 867.¹ The order of the Magistrate acquitting the accused on the ground of the absence of the complainant cannot be sustained. I therefore accept this petition for revision, set aside the order of acquittal passed by Khan Mohammad Akhlas Khan, Magistrate, Third Class, Khushab, on 2nd March 1937, and direct him to decide the case on the merits after hearing arguments. Counsel for the parties have been directed to cause their respective clients to appear in the trial Court on 1st November 1937.

B.D / R.K.

Order set aside.

1. Girish Chandra Das v. Bhusan Das, (1919)
6 A I R Cal 201=51 I C 476=20 Cr L J 492
=46 Cal 867=29 C L J 387=23 C W N 959.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 122

JAI LAL J.

Mohammad Ali — Petitioner.

v.

Ladha and another — Respondents.

Criminal Revn. Petn. No. 922 of 1937,
Decided on 7th September 1937, from report of Sess. Judge, Sialkot, D/- 16th June 1937.

Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145—S. 145 is applicable even to case of dispossession of tenants by landlords.

The question of title does not arise before the Magistrate making an enquiry under S. 145. He is concerned with the question of possession in such proceedings. S. 145 equally covers the cases of dispossession of the tenants by their landlords.

[P 122 C 2]

K. A. Hamid — *for Petitioner.*Allah Din Malik — for Respondents.

Report.—According to the allegations set forth in the petition under S. 145, Criminal P. C., khasra nos. 680, 681, 682, 683 and 686 of the jamabandi of 1933-34 were shamilat deb, but they had been in possession of Mohammad Ali, the petitioner, from the time of his ancestors. A part of the land was given by Mohammad Ali to one Hussain for cultivating it under him. The respondents Ladha and Ahmad Din, sons of Umar Bakhsh who are the proprietors in the village, unlawfully turned out his tenant and cultivated the land. The petitioner therefore approached the learned Additional District Magistrate with the request that as the act of the respondents was likely to cause the breach of peace, hence action be taken under S. 145, Criminal P. C., and he be placed in possession of the property. The statement of the petitioner was first recorded by Mr. Skeaf on 7th April 1937, when it was made over for disposal to the Magistrate Ilaga. It then came up before Lal Amar Nath, Additional District Magistrate, who further examined the petitioner and recorded an order on 12th April 1937, dismissing the petition on the ground that the land is shamilat and the applicant is not a co-sharer in the village. Consequently no case was made out for action under S. 145, Criminal P. C. The petitioner has preferred the present petition for revision.

The revenue records, i. e. the jamabandi of 1933-34, would show that Mohammad Ali was in possession of this land as a tenant under the owners of the shamilat Taraf Suja. The copies of khasra girdawaris for the year 1935-36 show that the petitioner was in possession of this land in the capacity of a tenant as khidmat guzar takla. The allegations of the petitioner were that he was dispossessed by the respondents from a part of the land which was under his possession in the capacity of the tenant, and the learned Additional District Magistrate has rejected the application on the ground that the petitioner not being an owner in the village, his application could not be entertained under S. 145, Criminal P. C. From the order of the learned Magistrate it appears that he was of the opinion that whenever a dispute is between a landlord and a tenant, S. 145, Criminal P. C., is inapplicable. But this view appears to me erroneous. S. 145 equally covers the cases of dispossession of the tenants by their landlords and in such circumstances the learned Magistrate to my mind could not summarily dismiss the application of the petitioner. I therefore recommend the case of the petitioner under S. 438, Criminal P. C., to the Hon'ble the High Court with the request that the order of the learned Additional District Magistrate be set aside and he be directed to proceed with the petition in accordance with law.

Order of the High Court.

The view of the learned Sessions Judge is correct. The question of title does not arise before the Magistrate making an inquiry under S. 145, Criminal P. C. He is concerned with the question of possession in such proceedings. I set aside the order of the Additional District Magistrate and direct him to proceed with the application presented by the petitioner under S. 145, Criminal P. C., in accordance with law.

D.S./R.K.

Order set aside.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 123

BHIDE J.

Firm Durga Das Bhagwan Das —

Judgment debtor — Appellant.

v.

Peoples Bank of Northern India —

Decree-holder — Respondent.

Exn. First Appeal No. 139 of 1937, Decided on 15th October 1937, from order of Sub-Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/- 9th March 1937.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 57 — 'Consigned to record room' is tantamount to dismissal.

Where an execution is ordered 'to be consigned to record room,' the order is tantamount to 'dismissal' of the application: A I R 1924 Lah 645, A I R 1922 Lah 108 and A I R 1919 All 194, Foll. [P 126 C 1]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 57 — Agreement between parties that attachment should subsist till decree is satisfied and execution application consigned to record room — Attachment does not end—Subsequent application for attachment and sale of same property—Property found to be sold by judgment-debtor — Decree holder failing to proceed further and application consigned to record room with note that execution incomplete—Attachment held came to an end.

Certain property was attached in execution of the decree. But in the course of further proceedings, the parties made a compromise by which the judgment-debtor was given time and it was agreed inter alia that the attachment should subsist until the decree was fully satisfied. The result was that the application was consigned to the record room. Subsequently another application praying attachment and sale of the same property was made. The property was found to have been sold by the judgment-debtor. The decree-holder failing to take any further steps, the application was consigned to the record room with a note that the execution was incomplete. The decree-holder again applied for sale of the property on the ground that the attachment still continued under the compromise deed :

Held that the application was first consigned to the record room owing to the lawful agreement between the parties and not to the default on the part of the decree-holder and consequently the provisions of O. 21, Rule 57 did not apply. But when the decree-holder subsequently failed to proceed further as he ought to have done in assertion of his rights under the agreement and allowed the application to be dismissed, the attachment came to an end. The fact that the decree-holder did so under a wrong impression as to his rights cannot help him in view of the mandatory character of the provisions of O. 21, R. 57: A I R 1924 Mad 494 (F B), Rel. on ; Case law referred, [P 124 C 2 ; P 125 C 2 ; P 126 C 1]

D. N. Aggarwal — for Appellant.

Bhagwat Dayal — for Respondent.

Judgment. — The Peoples Bank of Northern India obtained a decree for about Rs. 5000 with interest against a firm, named Durga Das Bhagwan Das of Kasur, in the year 1930. Applications for execution were made from time to time and it appears that on 13th January 1933 a compromise was effected between the parties whereby the judgment-debtor agreed inter alia that the attachment of a certain factory belonging to him should subsist till the entire decretal amount was paid off. Some applications for execution were made after this compromise also, but it is unnecessary to refer to these for the purpose of this appeal. The most important application on which reliance has been placed before me is that of 20th November 1935. By this application, the decree-holder sought to attach and sell the factory referred to above which was to remain under attachment till the decretal amount was paid off according to the compromise. A warrant of attachment was issued, but a report was received that the property had already been sold by the judgment-debtor. The decree-holder's representative failed to take any further steps and as a consequence, the application for execution was consigned to the record room on 31st January 1936 with a note that the execution was incomplete. Two more applications were made for attachment and sale of certain moveable property, but these are also not material for the purpose of this appeal. Eventually a fresh application was made for the sale of the factory on 19th August 1936. It was stated in this application that the property was still under attachment by virtue of the compromise dated 13th January 1933 referred to above and therefore only an order for sale was prayed for. The judgment-debtor opposed this application on the ground that owing to the dismissal of various applications after the compromise, the attachment had ceased to subsist in accordance with the provisions of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C., and as the property had already been sold privately to the Central Bank of India it could no longer be sold in execution of the decree. The learned Senior Sub-Judge has however held that the attachment subsisted and the property was liable. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred.

In the final orders passed by the executing Court on the applications for execution, the words used were that the case was 'consigned to the record room'. But it was contended on behalf of the appellant that such an order amounted to a dismissal of the execution application within the meaning of O. 21, R. 57. In support of this contention, reliance was placed on A I R 1924 Lah 645,¹ 3 Lah 7² and A I R 1934 Lah 395.³ It was further contended that even if the attachment subsisted by virtue of the compromise dated 13th January 1933, the attachment ceased at least when on 20th November 1935 the decree holder sought to re-attach the property but failed to proceed further with the application for execution when a report was received that the property had been privately sold by the judgment-debtor. Reliance was placed in support of this contention on 47 Mad 483,⁴ 55 Bom 693⁵ and A I R 1935 Mad 17.⁶ The main points which appear to me to require decision in this appeal are: (1) the precise scope of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C., and (2) the effect of the agreement between the parties dated 13th January 1933 as regards the attachment of the factory remaining in force till the decree was fully satisfied. As regards the first point, O. 21, R. 57, runs as follows:

Where any property has been attached in execution of a decree but by reason of the decree-holder's default, the Court is unable to proceed further with the application for execution, it shall either dismiss the application or for any sufficient reason adjourn the proceedings to a further date. Upon the dismissal of such application, the attachment shall cease.

It would appear from the above that three things are necessary for an attachment coming to an end under the rule. viz.: (1) the property in question must have been "attached in execution"; (2) the decree-holder must have committed default, owing to which the Court is unable to proceed with the application for execution; and (3) lastly that the application for execution must have been dismissed owing to the default of the decree-holder.

As regards the first point, there is no doubt that the factory in dispute was attached in execution of the decree. But in the course of the proceedings on the application on which the attachment was made, the parties made a compromise by which the judgment-debtor was given time, and it was agreed inter alia that the attachment of the factory should subsist until the decree was fully satisfied. As a result of this compromise, the application for execution was consigned to the record room. It is not suggested that there was anything illegal in such an agreement or that in spite of the agreement, the attachment came to an end on the consignment to the record room of the application in the proceedings relating to which this compromise was arrived at. It seems clear enough that the dismissal of that application was due to a lawful agreement between the parties and not to any "default" on the part of the decree-holder and consequently the provisions of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C., could not apply to the consignment of the application to the record room, which as will be seen hereafter was equivalent to its "dismissal".

As regards subsequent applications also, it seems to my mind clear that O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C., could not in any case apply except to those applications in which the factory in question was sought to be sold. The Rule apparently contemplates that the property must have been the subject matter of the application. For, if this were not so, the decree-holder could not proceed against the property on that application and there could be no justification for any attachment of property outside the scope of the application coming to an end. It is open to the decree-holder to proceed against any properties of the judgment-debtor he likes, and the law does not require him to proceed against all properties of the judgment-debtor when he applies for execution. Even when an attachment already subsists, as for instance by virtue of an order made under O. 38, Civil P. C., before the passing of a decree, it is not incumbent on the decree-holder to proceed against that property as soon as he applies for execution after the decree is passed. He may, if he so chooses, proceed against other properties. There is a conflict of decisions as to whether O. 21,

1. Lakhpatt Rai v. Mayya Mal, (1924) 11 A I R Lah 645=75 I O 824.

2. Fateh Din Allah Ditta v. Qutab Singh, (1922) 9 A I R Lah 108=67 I O 543=3 Lah 7.

3. Daim Shah v. Vir Bhan, (1934) 21 A I R Lah 395=150 I O 1058=96 P L R 241.

4. Meyyappa Chettiar v. Chidambaram Chettiar, (1924) 11 A I R Mad 494=79 I O 144=47 Mad 483=46 M L J 415 (F B).

5. Harl v. Shrinivas (1931) 18 A I R Bom 550=184 I O 972=55 Bom 693=83 Bom L R 1130.

6. Ayyappa Naloker v. Thayammal, (1935) 22 A I R Mad 17=154 I O 786=67 M L J 801.

R. 57, Civil P. C., applies at all to an attachment before judgment, but in the Full Bench Madras judgment, 47 Mad 483⁴ wherein it was held by the majority that the Rule applies to attachments before judgment, it was laid down that the Rule applies only when the decree-holder actually applies for sale of the property attached before judgment and not till then. The Madras view has been dissented from by the Calcutta High Court in 56 Cal 416⁷ and the Allahabad High Court has also held in 46 All 894⁸ that O. 21, Rule 57, Civil P. C., only applies to properties attached in the course of proceedings in execution and not to attachments before judgment. But even if the Madras view is taken, the only application for execution in which a prayer for attachment and sale of the factory was actually made, but which was infructuous owing to failure on the part of the decree-holder to proceed further was that of 20th November 1935. If the attachment of the factory subsisted, then, as is contended for the decree-holder, there was, of course, no need to ask for its attachment at all. Such attachment was prayed for in this application apparently under the impression that the previous attachment had come to an end under O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C., owing to consignment to the record room or dismissal of previous applications. When a report was received that the judgment-debtor had privately sold the factory, the decree-holder took no steps to proceed further and the application for execution was consequently dismissed. The decree-holder's contention is that the application was made by the counsel for the decree-holder under an erroneous impression as regards the legal position in respect of the attachment and the attachment could not come to an end merely owing to such error. On the other hand on behalf of the appellant it is contended that the requirements of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C., were fulfilled and the attachment came to an end at any rate on the dismissal of this application.

After carefully considering the matter it seems to me that the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant is sound and should prevail. It may be that the application of 20th November 1935 was made under the error of law as to the subsistence of the attachment. But there seems no doubt that the decree-holder had made up his mind to proceed against the factory in the execution proceedings taken on that application. According to the compromise, the attachment of the factory was to subsist so long as the decree was not satisfied. It was therefore open to the decree-holder to proceed against any other properties he liked in the first instance, and the attachment of the factory would certainly have subsisted as long as he did not proceed against it in execution. But once he made up his mind to proceed against it, as he did in November 1935, it is difficult to see how he can get out of the mandatory provisions of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C. It is true that no attachment was actually effected on the application of 20th November. But according to the position of the decree-holder himself, the previous attachment subsisted and no fresh attachment was necessary. All that the Rule says is "where any property has been attached in execution" In the present instance, there can be no doubt that the factory had been attached in execution, though this was done on a previous application and not on the application of 20th November. But would this be sufficient to take the case out of the scope of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C., I think not. The reasoning adopted by the majority of the Full Bench in 47 Mad 483⁴ will, I think, apply to the circumstances of this case with greater force; for the difficulty which arises in the case of an attachment 'before judgment' does not arise in the present case. 'Attachment before judgment' and its consequences are specially provided for in O. 38 and as O. 21, R. 57 requires that the property shall have been attached in execution, there is difficulty at the outset in bringing an 'attachment before judgment' within the scope of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C. It is chiefly on these grounds that the Allahabad and Calcutta High Courts have held that 'attachment before judgment' is not subject to the provisions of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C. But in the present instance the attachment in question had been made in the course of execution and there seems to be no good reason for holding that it is not subject to the provisions of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C. It is true that the parties had agreed that the attachment should subsist till the decree was fully satisfied. But I do not think the agreement can override the mandatory provisions of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C. It seems to me that when the decree-holder chose to proceed against the factory in his application of 20th November, and subsequently failed to proceed further (as he ought to have done in assertion of his rights under the agreement) and allowed the application to be dismissed, the attachment came to an end as a result of the provisions of O. 21, R. 57, Civil P. C. The decree-holder may have done so under a wrong impression as to his rights, but that fact cannot I think help him in view of the mandatory character of those provisions.

7. Shibnath Singh Ray v. Saheruddin Ahmed, (1929) 16 A I R Cal 465=119 I O 118=56 Cal 416.

8. Bohra Akhey Ram v. Basant Lal, (1924) 11 A I R All 860=80 I O 106=46 All 894=22 A L J 828.

I may note here that although the words used in the order were that the proceedings were to be 'consigned to the record room', there is ample authority for the proposition that the order was tantamount to a 'dismissal' of the application: see A I R 1924 Lah 645,¹ 3 Lah 7² and 41 All 157,⁹ etc. The decree-holder himself understood this to be the effect of the orders of 'consignment to the record room' and filed fresh applications for execution after such orders. I accordingly accept the appeal and dismiss the application of the decree-holder for proceedings in execution against the factory, but in view of the circumstances I leave the parties to bear their costs.

S.C./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

9. Dildar Husain v. Sheo Narain. (1919) 6 A I R All 194=49 IC 113=41 All 157=17 A L J 52.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 126

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Murli Dhar — Judgment-debtor — Appellant.

v.

Firm Basheshar Lal Moti Lal through joint Receivers, Decree-holder and others, Judgment-debtors and another — Respondents.

Exn. First Appeal No. 130 of 1937, Decided on 9th November 1937, from order of Senior Sub-Judge, Hissar D/- 12th ary 1937.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 2 (as amended by Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act)—Payment out of Court—Judgment-debtor not applying for certification taking objection in execution—Executing Court must go into question: 39 P L R 6=A I R 1936 Lah 842=165 I O 358, Overruled.

Order 21, R. 2 has been amended by the repealing of sub-r. (3) by the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act and the executing Court must go into the question of payment made by the judgment-debtor out of the Court when he raises such objection in execution proceedings as the question relates to the discharge of the decree, although he has not taken advantage of the permission given him by sub-rule (2): 39 P L R 6=A I R 1936 Lah 842=165 I O 358, Overruled [P 127 O 2]

(b) Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (7 of 1934), S. 36—S. 36 has retrospective effect—Question of payment out of Court raised by judgment-debtor before passing of Act but pending till passing of Act—Court must decide question.

The general principle is that the alterations in procedure are always retrospective, unless there be some good reason against it. [P 128 O 1]

Section 36, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, has a retrospective effect. The repealing of sub-r. (3) of Rule 2, O. 21, Civil P. C. is merely an alteration in procedure and the question of payment by judgment-debtor out of Court although raised by him before the passing of the Act must be decided by the executing Court if it is pending at the time of the passing of the Act. [P 128 O 1]

Shamair Chand and Qabul Chand —

for Appellant.

Yashpal Gandhi — for Respondents.

Addison J.—The decree-holder obtained on the Original Side of the Calcutta High Court a decree for a large sum of money against the judgment-debtor. This decree was transferred to the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Hissar, in this province, for execution. The present execution application was made some time in 1933 and the judgment-debtor put in certain objections on the 27th July 1933. One of these objections was that the decree had been completely satisfied. Sub-rule (3) of O. 21, R. 2, Civil P. C., 1908, was omitted so far as this province was concerned by S. 36, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act 7 of 1934, which came into force on the 19th April 1935, when the execution was still pending and the objections had not been decided. The judgment-debtor contended that the question of complete satisfaction must be decided by the executing Court in view of the repeal of the sub-rule referred to. The executing Court has decided that this is not so and has repelled the objection. It held that an outside payment could only be certified under the provisions of sub-r. (2) of O. 21, R. 2, and that this had to be done within ninety days of the alleged payment under Art. 174, Limitation Act. Against this decision the judgment-debtor has appealed. Under S. 47, Civil P. C.,

All questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed, or their representatives, and relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree, shall be determined by the Court executing the decree and not by a separate suit.

It is clear therefore that it is the duty of the executing Court to decide the question of an alleged payment towards the decree or discharge of the decree, and a separate suit does not lie for this purpose. Under O. 21, Rule 1, which is headed "Modes of paying money under decree," it is enacted that:

All money payable under a decree shall be paid as follows, namely: (a) into the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree; or (b) out of Court to the decree-holder; or (c) otherwise as the Court which made the decree directs.

Then O. 21, R. 2 deals with "Payment out of Court to decree-holder". Sub-r. (1) is to the effect that:

Where any money payable under a decree of any kind is paid out of Court, or the decree is otherwise adjusted in whole or in part to the satisfaction of the decree-holder, the decree-holder shall certify such payment or adjustment to the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree, and the Court shall record the same accordingly.

Sub-rule (2) is:

The judgment-debtor also may inform the Court of such payment or adjustment and apply to the Court to issue a notice to the decree-holder to show cause . . . why such payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified; and if . . . the decree-holder fails to show cause . . . the Court shall record the same accordingly.

Sub-r. (3), which has now been repealed, runs:

A payment or adjustment, which has not been certified or recorded as aforesaid, shall not be recognized by any Court executing the decree.

The effect of these two Rules of O. 21 was that a duty was thrown upon the decree holder to certify any payment out of Court while no such duty was placed on the judgment-debtor, but he was permitted, if he so cared, to apply to the Court, within ninety days of the date of the alleged payment or adjustment, to issue a notice to the decree-holder to show cause why the payment should not be certified. If he did not do so, sub-r. (3) enacted that a payment or adjustment not so certified or recorded should not be recognized by the Court executing the decree. This meant that if the judgment-debtor failed to take advantage of sub-r. (2) of O. 21, R. 2, he was not allowed to plead payment or adjustment in the executing Court; and even if he had made payment, he had to make it again into Court. It was held however that in such cases he could institute a suit for return of the excess payment, which the executing Court was not allowed to go into by virtue of sub-rule (3).

This sub-rule has now been repealed so that as O. 21, Rr. 1 and 2 now stand, the duty still remains upon the decree-holder to certify payments out of Court, while the judgment-debtor is permitted to apply to the Court within ninety days of the date of an alleged payment to issue a notice to the decree-holder to show cause why the payment should not be certified. If he does not take advantage of this concession, no penalty is now placed upon him such as was done by the repealed sub-r. (3). The penalty formerly was that he could not plead payment in the executing Court. That penalty having gone and as S. 47 enacts that all questions relating to the discharge of the decree must be determined by the executing Court and not by a separate suit, it would now seem that the executing Court must go into the question, although the judgment-debtor has not taken advantage of the permission given him by sub-r. (2) of O. 21, R. 2, to apply to the Court to issue a notice to the decree-holder for certification. There seems to be no escape from this conclusion and we so decide. We have been referred to A I R 1936 Lah 842,¹ a decision by a single Judge of this Court, but with all respect we are unable to agree with his decision.

It was contended however that as the decree was passed by the Calcutta High Court and was only sent for execution to this Province, it must be executed according to the law in force in Calcutta. In this connexion reliance was placed upon 36 Mad 108.² This authority however seems to us to have nothing to do with the present case. S. 40, Civil P. C., which, as enacted for the first time in the Code of 1908, runs as follows:

Where a decree is sent for execution in another Province, it shall be sent to such Court and executed in such manner as may be prescribed by rules in force in that Province.

This section is plainly worded and can mean only one thing: that the rules applicable to executions in the Punjab are the rules which apply in execution of decrees sent from the Calcutta High Court or anywhere outside the Province. O. 21, Rr. 1 and 2, as amended by the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, S. 36, are the rules in force in this Province. In fact O. 21, R. 1, is headed "Modes of paying money under decree", while S. 40 is to the effect that the decree shall be executed in such manner as may be prescribed by rules in force in the Province to which the decree is transferred. It follows that now that O. 21, R. 2 has been amended by the repealing of sub.r. (3), the amended Rule is the rule which must be applied in execution of decrees in the Punjab.

1. Shadi v. Ram Ditta, (1936) 23 A I R Lah 842 = 165 I O 358 = 89 P L R 6.

2. Sree Krishna Doss v. Alambu Ammal, (1913) 36 Mad 108 = 11 I O 635 = 21 M L J 777.

It was however contended that S. 36, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, could not have a retrospective effect. It follows from what has already been said that the repealing of sub.r. (3) is merely an alteration in the procedure. Before it was repealed, the executing Court was debarred from trying a certain question which fell under S. 47, Civil P. C., if a particular act was not done by the judgment-debtor within ninety days. But the judgment-debtor still had his cause of action left by reason of the fact that he was debarred from raising the plea in the executing Court. Now that sub.r. (3) has been repealed, the question must be decided in the executing Court and not by a separate suit. Clearly therefore the enactment refers only to procedure. It is said at page 195 of Edn. 7 of Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes that :

Although to make a law punish that which, at the time when it was done, was not punishable, is contrary to sound principle, a law which merely alters the procedure may, with perfect propriety, be made applicable to past as well as future transactions, and no secondary meaning is to be sought for an enactment of such a kind. No person has a vested right in any course of procedure. * * * The general principle indeed seems to be that alterations in procedure are always retrospective, unless there be some good reason against it.

It is true that the objection of the judgment-debtor had been raised before the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, but it was still pending when the Act came into force and the procedure bar was removed. The question therefore is one which the executing Court must decide. We accept the appeal, set aside the order of the executing Court dated 12th February 1937, and direct it to hear on the merits the question of the alleged payment and satisfaction. We make no order as to costs.

S.O./R.K.

Order set aside.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 128

MONROE J.

Natha and others — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

*Siri Ram and others — Defendants —
Respondents.*

Second Appeal No. 218 of 1937, Decided on 20th May 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Hissar at Gurgaon, D/- 23rd November 1936.

Second Appeal—Question of law—Question of law requiring complete re-trial for its decision cannot be allowed to be raised.

A question of law cannot be allowed to be raised in second appeal, for the decision of which it is necessary to refer the case back for further findings of fact and a complete re-trial is necessary inasmuch as it was not raised in lower Courts. [P 128 C 2]

N. C. Pandit — for Appellants.

Shamair Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment. — In this second appeal Mr. Nanak Chand Pandit for the appellants has raised a question of law, which was discussed in neither the trial Court nor the first Court of Appeal. It seems to me that in order to decide this question, namely whether Mt. Dhohan acquired a title by adverse possession to property mutated in her name on the death of her brother-in-law Dewa, it would be necessary to refer the case back for further findings of fact and to permit the defendants to give evidence about the mutation to Mt. Dhohan and other matters as well. Inasmuch as this question was not raised and cannot be decided without a complete retrial, I refuse to allow it to be raised now; at best a decision on the point in the plaintiffs' favour would affect only a part of the property in suit.

The other point argued before me was whether fields nos. 328 and 331 were rightly held to have been in possession of Dhanna. The learned Judge has presumed that they were, because his son Dewa is shown to have been in possession of them. Dhanna is shown to have been in possession of other fields involved in this suit in the 1849 Settlement, but other persons are shown as having been in possession of fields nos. 328 and 331. In view of this fact I do not see how there is any presumption that Dhanna ever was in possession of these two fields. The plaintiffs are entitled to a decree for possession of fields nos. 328 and 331 in addition to field

No. 180 for which they have obtained a decree. The appeal has failed in its more important aspect; and the appellants will pay one-half costs of the appeal to the respondent.

S.O./B.K. Appeal partly allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 129

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Intizamia Committee Gurdwara Darbar Sahib, Amritsar — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Central Bank of India Ltd., Amritsar and another — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 76 of 1937, Decided on 17th November 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Amritsar, D/- 23rd November 1936.

(a) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), Ss. 3 (1) and (3), 5 (1), 31, 36 and 37 — B taking equitable mortgage from S and obtaining decree on it — Mortgaged property claimed under S. 3 (1) by Shromani Parbandhak Committee — Counterclaim made under S. 5 (1) by S — No reference made by either to mortgage in favour of B — Property declared by Sikh Gurdwara Tribunal to belong to Darbar Sahib, Amritsar, and decree passed accordingly — B taking out execution of its decree — Committee of management, Darbar Sahib, applying for stay of execution relying on S. 37 — Execution stayed — B instituting suit against S, Shromani Parbandhak Committee, and Committee of Management for setting aside decree by tribunal — B's suit decreed — B again starting execution proceedings — Suit by committee for declaration that decree in favour of B was without jurisdiction — Suit held maintainable — Court decreeing B's suit held to have no jurisdiction to try it and decree in favour of B held to be ultra vires and of no effect.

B, a bank, obtained an equitable mortgage of certain property situate in Amritsar from S and on default by S obtained a decree on the mortgage. Subsequently a claim was made under S. 8 (1) on behalf of the Shromani Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar, in respect of the mortgaged property but no mention was made of the encumbrance in favour of B. The only counterclaim that was made under S. 5 (1) was by S and he too did not make any reference to the mortgage in favour of B. B took out execution of its decree. An application under S. 31 by the Committee of Management, Darbar Sahib, Amritsar, for stay of execution was rejected. On the petition by S under S. 5 (1) coming for hearing before the Sikh Gurdwara Tribunal, a compromise was arrived at under which the property was declared to belong to Darbar Sahib, Amritsar, and a perpetual right of occupation and user was conceded to S and a decree was passed by the tribunal in terms of the compromise. Armed with this order, the Committee of Management again applied for stay of the execution, relying on S. 37 and the executing Court holding that the sale of the property would offend against the provisions of the Sikh Gurdwaras Act, stayed the execution. B then instituted a suit against S, Committee of Management, and the Shromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee for setting aside the ex parte decree of the tribunal and the Court holding that the compromise was based on fraud, decreed the suit of B. B again started the execution proceedings which were objected to on the basis of Ss. 36 and 37. The committee instituted a suit for declaration that the decree in favour of B was without jurisdiction, ultra vires and against the provisions of the Gurdwaras Act :

1938 L/17 & 18

Held that the suit by the committee of management, as instituted, was competent. The decree passed in favour of B had no existence in law so as to affect prejudicially the decree made by the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal. The decree clearly contravened Ss. 30, 36 and 37 and being made in teeth of statutory prohibition was ultra vires inasmuch as the Court had no jurisdiction to grant the relief prayed for and the fact that the committee had wilfully absented itself made no difference. The jurisdiction had been assumed in utter disregard of law, and for lack of inherent jurisdiction, the decree was no decree at all. The committee was entitled under S. 44, Evidence Act, to urge in course of the execution proceedings that the decree in favour of B was a nullity. It was not incumbent on the Shromani Parbandhak Committee applying under S. 8 (1) to have impleaded B as it was not in possession of any right, title or interest which was claimed in respect of the property. For the same reason no notice under S. 8 (3) could be sent to B. It was B's duty on the other hand under S. 5 (1) to forward to the Local Government a petition claiming the right, title or interest that it possessed to enable the Government to forward the petition to the Gurdwaras Tribunal for disposal and B failed to do this. [P 132 C 2; P 133 C 1; P 134 C 2; P 135 C 1]

(b) Decree — Setting aside — Person not party to decree is not entitled to have it set aside on ground of fraud.

No person who is not a party to a decree can claim to have it set aside on the ground of fraud or collusion. All that he can claim is that the decree may not affect his rights : A I R 1930 Cal 268 and 8 I C 614, Rel. on. [P 132 C 2]

(c) Jurisdiction — Absence of — Absence and inactivity of party does not cure want of jurisdiction.

Even the consent of parties cannot confer jurisdiction where it does not exist, much less would the absence of a party or its inactivity be sufficient to legalize what is ab initio illegal.

[P 133 C 1]

(d) Execution — Decree binding — Powers of executing Court — Court passing decree having no inherent jurisdiction to pass it — Decree has no real existence in law — Executing Court can decide whether decree was passed by Court, which for lack of jurisdiction could not pass it.

An executing Court must be able to decide whether a decree exists at all and therefore where the Court has no inherent jurisdiction to pass the so-called decree, the decree has no real existence in law and the executing Court within those narrow limits can decide whether the decree was passed by a Court which, for lack of inherent jurisdiction, could not pass such a decree; for, that point settles the question as to whether there is an existing decree upon which the executing Court can take action: A I R 1925 Cal 907 (F B), Foll.; A I R 1929 Lah 449; A I R 1927 Lah 651 and A I R 1928 Lah 829, Rel. on.

[P 133 C 1]

(e) Practice—Appeal—Failure by party to appeal—Decision holds good for what it is worth—Party not appealing is not debarred from having recourse to other modes of relief available to it.

Where there is an appeal against a decision, the effect of not appealing is that the decision holds good for what it is worth. So far as concerns any other modes of relief available, the person not appealing is in no worse position than if he had appealed and failed: 24 Cal 546; 28 Cal 475 and 29 Cal 395 (P C), Rel. on.

[P 133 C 2]

(f) Decree — Setting aside — Judgment passed without jurisdiction is void—Separate suit is maintainable for setting aside decree on ground that Court passing it had no jurisdiction to pass it.

A separate suit is maintainable for setting aside a decree on the ground that the Court passing had no jurisdiction to pass it. Judgments of a Court of law are either unassailable or assailable. To the former category belong those judgments which are pronounced by a competent Court and are free from defects otherwise. Judgments falling under the latter category may either be voidable or void. Those obtained by collusion or fraud are voidable and if not attacked they hold good, but judgments which are void have no existence in law and a judgment which is passed without jurisdiction is void: A I R 1926 Cal 167 and A I R 1923 Pat 242, Rel. on; A I R 1915 P C 99, Ref.

[P 134 C 1]

Bhagat Singh — for Appellant.

H. J. Rustomji, P. A. Bahl, Gauri Shankar and Manohar Lal Mehra — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J.—The facts disclosed in this case are an apt illustration of how a legal step missed at the right moment leads to a crop of proceedings. They cover a period of about 13 years and as they are inseparably linked together, it will be necessary to set them out in this judgment however briefly it may be. On 21st November 1924, the Central Bank of India, hereinafter called the Bank, obtained an equitable mortgage of certain property situate in Amritsar from Messrs. S. S. Charaya and Company, through its representative, Santokh Singh. The mortgagors having made default in discharging their liability, the Bank obtained a decree against them on 27th May 1926. In the meantime, the Sikh Gurdwaras Act, hereinafter referred to as the Act, came into force on 1st November 1925. Under S. 3 (1) of the Act, any Sikh could forward to the Local Government a list of all rights, titles or interests in any immovable property situated in the Punjab inclusive of the Gurdwara, which he claimed to belong to the Gurdwara, mentioning the name of that person alone who was in possession of such right, title or interest, and under S. 3 (2) the Local Government was enjoined to publish a consolidated list of all such rights, titles or interests claimed in respect of such property. Under S. 3 (3) the person in possession alone was to be notified of the claim. In pursuance of S. 3 (1) a claim was made on behalf of the Shromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar, on 27th January 1926, in respect of the mortgaged property and no mention was made of the encumbrance to which it was subject. The only counter-claim that was forwarded under S. 5 (1) of the Act was made by Santokh Singh alone, and he, too, did not make any reference to the simple mortgage that he had effected in favour of the Bank. The Bank in the normal course of events took out execution of the decree obtained by it, in reply to which an application under S. 31 of the Act was made by the Committee of Management, Darbar Sahib, Amritsar asking for stay of execution. This happened on 26th March 1928.

The executing Court rejected this application on 9th July 1928, and against that order a petition for revision was presented to this Court. A declaratory suit was also instituted by the Sikh Gurdwaras Parbandhak Committee which however was allowed to be dismissed for default on 28th April 1929. The revision referred to above was also dismissed in the absence of the parties on 27th May 1929. The petition of Santokh Singh under S. 5 (1), of the Act, came on for hearing before the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal, in which a compromise was effected on 17th July 1929, by which the property was declared to belong to the Darbar Sahib, Amritsar and a perpetual right of occupation and user was conceded to Santokh Singh, his lineal descendants and their families. All this happened behind the back of the Bank. The Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal made a decree in terms of the compromise and armed with this order, the Committee of Management, Darbar Sahib, once more applied to the executing Court to stay execution as regards the property mortgaged. The Committee placed its reliance on S. 37 of the Act, and the executing Court holding that the sale of the mortgaged property would offend against the provisions of the Act, stayed its hand and consigned the proceedings to the record room. From that order, the Bank preferred an appeal to this Court which was dismissed by Tapp J. on 18th May 1931. A Letters Patent appeal against that order also failed.

The Bank put in an application before the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal for setting aside the ex parte decree of 17th July 1929, but that application was dismissed. On 23rd July 1932, the Bank instituted a suit in the Court of the Subordinate Judge, First Class, Amritsar, against Santokh Singh as well as against the Committee of Management, Notified Gurdwaras of Amritsar and Shromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee for setting aside the decree of the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal dated 17th July 1929. Out of the three defendants, the Committee of Management alone appeared and contested the suit. A preliminary issue was framed as to the sufficiency or otherwise of the court-fee paid on the plaint, but on the date fixed for arguments on that issue, the Committee absented itself. The Subordinate Judge holding that the compromise was based on fraud, inasmuch as the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal had been kept in ignorance of the decree obtained by the Bank, decreed the suit of the Bank ex parte. This took place on 23rd December 1932.

On 17th January 1933, one Phuman Singh, an agent of Shromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee applied for setting aside the ex parte decree on the usual grounds, and it is very astonishing to find that these miscellaneous proceedings were protracted for more than two years. Ultimately, this application was dismissed on 4th May 1935, and an appeal against that order was dismissed in limine by a Division Bench of this Court on 6th November 1935. During this interval the Bank had again started execution proceedings which were objected to on the basis of Ss. 36 and 37 of the Act. On 11th July 1935 the executing Court expressed an opinion that execution proceedings could not be stayed in face of the decree of the Subordinate Judge dated 23rd December 1932, setting aside the decree of the Gurdwaras Tribunal, which alone was pleaded as a bar, and finding itself in an embarrassing position, it suspended further proceedings to enable the "Intizamia" Committee (Committee of Management) of the Gurdwaras to seek a proper remedy in a proper Court to have the decree of the Court of Mr. Kishen Chand (dated 23rd December 1932) reversed or set aside.

It appears that taking its cue from this decision, the Intizamia Committee on 21st December 1935, instituted the suit out of which this appeal has arisen for a declaration that the said decree was without jurisdiction, ultra vires and against the provisions of the Sikh Gurdwaras Act. The Subordinate Judge who tried the case dismissed it on 23rd November 1936 and the Intizamia Committee has appealed. Before dealing with the appeal however, it will be necessary in the interests of clearness to complete the history of this litigation upto the present time. Against the order of 11th July 1935, referred to above, an appeal was preferred to this Court which came on for hearing before Jai Lal J. on 5th May 1936. The learned Judge appreciated the complicated nature of the situation but came to the conclusion that it was not open to the executing Court to hold in execution proceedings that the decree dated 23rd December 1932 was without jurisdiction and that that decree 'prevented the appellants from raising the bar created by the decision of the Tribunal'. A Letters Patent appeal was presented against that order but it was dismissed on 28th January 1937 as time-barred.

Further, Messrs. S. S. Charaya and Company raised objections to the execution of the original mortgage decree on the basis of Ss. 36 and 37 of the Act but those objections were dismissed on 3rd November 1936, and an appeal against that order was dismissed in limine by this Court on 24th February 1937. A review against that order was dismissed on 1st October 1937. Santokh Singh filed another application to have the ex parte decree of 23rd December 1932 set aside but that application too was dismissed on 27th November 1936, and an appeal against that order was dismissed in limine by this Court on 19th April 1937. In the case now before us the trial Court, while conceding that Mr. Kishen Chand, Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction to try the suit which was instituted in his Court, came to the conclusion that all the same he had jurisdiction to decide, however wrongly, that he did possess the jurisdiction which did not actually exist. It was further held that the suit did not lie in the form in which it was lodged. Counsel for the appellant has attacked both the findings of the trial Court and has urged that, inasmuch as the decree passed by Mr. Kishen Chand was a nullity for more reasons than one and the Intizamia Committee had been denied the right of raising this point in the course of execution proceedings, the suit did lie, especially as the Committee was no party to the original mortgage decree which alone was being executed and was therefore not barred by the provisions of S. 47, Civil P. C.

On the other hand, counsel for the Bank has contended that both the Shromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee and the Intizamia Committee, Darbar Sahib had throughout been working in collusion with Santokh Singh and that their main object was to deprive the Bank of the benefit of its decree legitimately obtained against Santokh Singh in his presence and with his consent. In the compromise entered into before the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal, all that the Sikhs obtained was a mere declaration of ownership without any right of alienation and that the possession and user of the property in question was for ever surrendered to Santokh Singh, his lineal descendants and their families. It is further argued that, although both these bodies had been impleaded in the suit brought by the Bank for setting aside the decree of the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal and they knew that the validity of the decree had been challenged on the ground of fraud and that they ran the risk of an adverse decision which might create complications in the long run, they did not pursue their defence diligently. Even after an ex parte decree had been made against them which is now being attacked as ultra vires and opposed to the provisions of the Act, they contented themselves with prosecuting a doubtful remedy under O. 9, R. 13, Civil P. C., and did not seek to have the decree reversed on appeal. It is consequently urged that the suit as lodged was not maintainable and as neither equity nor law could come to the aid of the Intizamia Committee, its suit was rightly dismissed. We have given due consideration to the arguments advanced before us, and have come to the conclusion that however strongly we may condemn the conduct of the Intizamia Committee in not properly contesting the suit before Mr. Kishen Chand, and however reprehensible its ulterior object might be, it would be a sheer disregard of law not to grant to the Committee the relief prayed for in the present suit.

The true legal position in our view is this. Under S. 3 (1) of the Act, it was not incumbent on the applicant to have impleaded the Bank as it was not in possession of any right, title or interest which was being claimed in respect of the property on which it had only an equitable mortgage. Neither the section nor the rules enjoined it. For the same reason no notice under S. 3 (3) of the Act could be sent to the Bank. On the other hand, under S. 5 (1) it was the duty of the Bank to forward to the Local Government a petition claiming the right, title or interest that it possessed to enable the Government to forward its petition to the Gurdwaras Tribunal for disposal. This the Bank failed to do in spite of the warning it received in March 1928, when, to the execution that it had taken out, S. 31 of the Act was pleaded as a bar. So far therefore it was the Bank which was to blame and not the Committee, for the Committee could take shelter under the law but the Bank could not. Again, when even this Court had declared in 1931 that no such action could be taken by a Civil Court in pursuance of the mortgage decree in the face of S. 37 of the Act as would tend to come into conflict with the decree of the Gurdwaras Tribunal, the Bank instituted a suit of the same nature in the Court of Mr. Kishen Chand. In the first place, the relief it claimed there was illegal inasmuch as no person who is not a party to a decree can claim to have it set aside on the ground of fraud or collusion. All that he can claim is that the decree may not affect his rights : see A I R 1930 Cal 263¹ and 8 I O 614.² Secondly, in spite of the judgment of this Court referred to above, it again sought the help of a Civil Court to secure an order which could not but be inconsistent with the decision of the Tribunal. Besides S. 37 of the Act, S. 36 prohibited the entertainment by any Court of any suit the object of which was to question anything purporting to have been done by a Tribunal in exercise of any powers vested in it by the Act. In addition, a Civil Court, if satisfied under the first proviso to S. 30 of the Act that a claim that should have been made under the Act had not been so made on account of the ignorance of a party, is bound under S. 32 to frame an issue in respect of such claim and, instead of deciding the matter itself, to forward the record of the suit or proceeding to the Tribunal. The order of Mr. Kishen Chand clearly contravened the provisions of the Act, and was therefore ultra vires inasmuch as he had no jurisdiction to grant the relief prayed for in his Court. All that is contended by counsel for the respondent in this behalf is that for that order the wilful absence of the Committee was mainly responsible. But it is well established that even the consent of parties cannot confer jurisdiction where it does not exist and this being so, much less the absence of a party or its inactivity would be sufficient to legalise what was ab initio illegal.

1. Biswambar Biswas v. Nilambar Murari, (1930) 17 A I R Cal 263=125 I O 861=83 O W N 997.

2. Komerappa Chetty v. Beindu, (1910) 8 I O 614=8 Bur L T 41.

The decree of Mr. Kishen Chand was in itself not capable of execution. It could only be used to remove the bar created by the decree of the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal which was being relied upon in execution of the original mortgage decree and to that use alone it was put. Under S. 44, Evidence Act, any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment, order or decree which is relevant under Ss. 40, 41 or S. 42, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion. On the same reasoning, the Committee was in the course of execution proceedings competent to urge that the decree made by Mr. Kishen Chand was a nullity. It was remarked in 53 Cal 166,³ that :

An executing Court must be able to decide whether a decree exists at all, and therefore where the Court has no inherent jurisdiction to pass the so-called decree, the decree has no real existence in law and the executing Court within those narrow limits can decide whether the decree was passed by a Court which, for lack of inherent jurisdiction, could not pass such a decree ; for, that point settles the question as to whether there is an existing decree upon which the executing Court can take action.

These remarks were quoted with approval by a Division Bench of this Court in a case reported in A I R 1929 Lah 449⁴ and were prior to that followed by a single Judge of this Court in A I R 1927 Lah 651⁵ and A I R 1928 Lah 829.⁶ In this case, too, the Intizamia Committee raised objections on this score in the course of execution proceedings, but its objections were disallowed and it was referred to a regular suit to obtain a declaration to that effect. It was in these circumstances that the present suit was lodged. The Intizamia Committee preferred an appeal, too, from that order ; but, as stated above, the appeal was dismissed by this Court on the ground that it was not open to the executing Court to hold that the decree made by Mr. Kishen Chand was without jurisdiction. The effect of this remark might have been nullified on appeal under the Letters Patent as, in our view, the order of the executing Court not being one under S. 47, Civil P. C., the appeal before Jai Lal J. was incompetent. Unfortunately, no decision on that point could be given by the Letters Patent Bench as the appeal was time-barred. In this state of affairs, if the present suit also is thrown out on the ground that it does not lie, it would amount to a denial of justice. The Committee is entitled in law to have an adjudication from some Court or another on the question at issue and, after having failed to obtain the proper relief from the executing Court, the only course left to the Committee was to institute a regular suit. It is said that the Committee could lodge an appeal against the decree of Mr. Kishen Chand. No doubt it should have appealed and that would have been a better course to adopt ; but as observed in 24 Cal 546⁷ :

8. Gora Chand Halder v. Prafulla Kumar, (1925) 12 A I R Cal 907=89 I O 685=53 Cal 166=42 O L J 1=29 O W N 948 (F B).

When there is an appeal against a decision, the effect of not appealing is that the decision holds good for what it is worth ; so far as concerns any other modes of relief available, the person not appealing is in no worse position than if he had appealed and failed.

This case went on appeal to their Lordships of the Privy Council and the judgment of the Calcutta High Court was confirmed : see 28 Cal 475.⁸ The judgment

4. Parshotam Das Nathu Ram v. Radha Kishen, (1929) 16 A I R Lah 449=120 I O 279.

5. Mir Muhammad Khan v. Surjan Mal & Co., (1927) 14 A I R Lah 651=103 I O 673.

6. Roop Narain v. Hukum Chand, (1928) 15 A I R Lah 829.

7. Pran Nath v. Mohesh Chandra, (1897) 24 Cal 546.

8. Radha Raman Shaha v. Pran Nath, (1901) 28 Cal 475=5 O W N 757 (P O).

in 24 Cal 546⁷ was adopted by the same High Court in another case which also went on appeal to their Lordships of the Privy Council and the appeal was dismissed: see 29 Cal 395.⁹

If a separate suit can be maintained by a party to the suit in the circumstances related in the two judgments referred to above, a fortiori such a suit is maintainable if the person instituting the suit complains that the decree was without jurisdiction. There is apparently no distinction between the two cases. In one case, the party aggrieved seeks to set aside the decree on the ground of fraud or collusion and in the other on the ground of want of jurisdiction. Judgments of a Court of law are either unassailable or assailable. To the former category belong those judgments which are pronounced by a competent Court and are free from defects otherwise. Judgments falling under the latter category may either be voidable or void. Those obtained by collusion or fraud are voidable, and if not attacked, they hold good, but judgments which are void have no existence in law and a judgment which is passed without jurisdiction is void: see A I R 1926 Cal 167¹⁰ and A I R 1923 Pat 242.¹¹ In this connection reference may also be made to 37 All 485¹² which, though not exactly in point, emphasizes the distinction between the exercise of jurisdiction and its existence and impliedly holds that if there is a total want of jurisdiction, even a party to a suit is competent to sue for the rescission and destruction of the decree obtained therein.

It is true, as remarked in A I R 1928 Lah 178,¹³ relied upon by the Court below, that a decree once obtained can only be set aside on the ground of fraud and that it cannot be set aside on the ground of mistake where the mistake was not the mistake of the plaintiff nor of the defendant but the mistake of the Munsif who tried the suit or of the Judge who dismissed the appeal. But, in our view, that principle applies only where there is a decree in existence or, in other words, where the decree has been made by a competent Court. Where however the decree has emanated from a Court which had no jurisdiction whatsoever to make that decree, it will not be a decree at all. In the present case, the decree was made in teeth of statutory prohibition and jurisdiction was assumed in utter disregard of law. There was therefore a lack of inherent jurisdiction and the decree was no decree at all. The Intizamia Committee could ignore it altogether without taking any step to have it set aside but it could not do so in the present case in the face of the judgment of this Court dated 5th May 1936, which in unequivocal terms clothed it with the sanctity of a valid decree. The Committee had no option therefore but to seek its remedy by a separate suit and it cannot now be told that that remedy too is not available to it.

There is another way too of looking at the matter. In the course of the execution of a decree to which the Intizamia Committee was no party, an objection was made or a claim preferred by the Committee which in substance though not in form could be treated as an objection or claim under O. 21, R. 58, Civil P. C. This objection or claim, to all intents and purposes, amounted to this that the property which the Bank sought to attach did not belong to the judgment-debtor, Santokh Singh, but to the objector or claimant, the Committee, by virtue of the decree of the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal. This was met by a counter-objection by the decree-holder, the Bank, that the decree on which reliance was placed by the Committee no longer existed in law as it had been set aside by a later judgment of Mr. Kishen Chand. The decree-holder's objection prevailed and the objection or claim of the Committee was disallowed. The only course open to the Committee in these circumstances was to attack that order in a regular suit under O. 21, R. 63, Civil P. C., for a declaration that the property could not be attached in execution of the Bank's decree against Santokh Singh as it belonged to the Committee. This relief would have directly involved further declaration that Mr. Kishen Chand's decree was a nullity. The Committee did lodge the present suit within the prescribed time; but, instead ⁹ Khagendra Nath Mahata v. Pran Nath, (1902) 29 Cal 395=29 I A 99=6 C W N 473=8 Sar 266 (P O).

¹⁰ Fazluddin Mahammad v. Khetra Ghorai, (1926) 13 A I R Cal 167=90 I O 866=30 C W N 59.

¹¹ Satdeo Narain v. Ramayan Tewari, (1923) 10 A I R Pat 242=71 I O 705=2 Pat 385=4 P L T 147.

¹² Rajwant Prasad v. Ram Ratan Gir, (1915) 2 A I R P O 99=30 I O 849=42 I A 171=37 All 485 (P O).

¹³ Municipal Committee, Amritsar v. Harnam Dass, (1928) 15 A I R Lah 178=110 I O 628=9 Lah 85=29 P L R 316.

of claiming the relief in terms of O. 21, R. 63, merely sought a declaration against Mr. Kishen Chand's decree. The net result however would be the same. If once it was declared that Mr. Kishen Chand's decree was a nullity as being without jurisdiction, the conclusion that would inevitably follow would be that the interest which was being claimed by the Committee in respect of the property in suit was not liable to attachment or sale. This suit therefore would be immune from attack, being the only remedy permissible under the law.

We accordingly hold that the suit as instituted lay. We further order that the decree of Mr. Kishen Chand has no existence in law so as to affect prejudicially the decree made by the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal. This may work hardship on the Bank but for this result its own laches are responsible. It could easily have safeguarded its interests if it had proceeded in the manner enjoined by law and at the proper time. Not having done so, it cannot ask any Court to countenance an illegal order obtained in an unauthorised manner.

Before we conclude, we may refer to a matter which came to our notice while preparing this judgment. We found that Santokh Singh, one of the defendants in the suit, had been adjudged an insolvent by the Bombay High Court in April 1933, and was still undischarged. Despite the fact that the Bank knew that Santokh Singh had been adjudged an insolvent, and the Bank had raised an objection on that score in another case in this Court about the same time when the present suit was proceeding in the Court below, it did not raise that objection in the suit with the result that the Official Assignee, who was entitled to be brought on the record in place of Santokh Singh, was not so impleaded. The Bank did not take that objection even before us when the appeal was argued. We consequently called upon the parties to take note of the fact and to discuss the effect of the non-joinder of the Official Assignee either in the original suit or in appeal. Counsel for the appellant has relied on O. 1, R. 13, Civil P. O., where it is said that an objection as to misjoinder or non-joinder of parties, if not taken at the proper time, shall be deemed to have been waived. Counsel for the respondent has not been able to attack this position. We consequently ignore this defect. The only result of not impleading the Official Assignee will be that he will not be bound by the decree obtained by the Committee in this case. As to how it would eventually affect the execution proceedings, it is not our function to determine.

In the result we allow this appeal, set aside the decree of the Court below and grant the plaintiff the relief prayed for. We leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout as, in our opinion, neither party appears to have conducted its case properly in the trial Court nor has it rendered any appreciable help to us in the disposal of this appeal.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 135

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Puran — Convict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor

Criminal Appeal No. 579 of 1937, Decided on 6th October 1937, from order of Addl. Sess. Judge, Hissar, D/- 7th April 1937.

Criminal Trial — Approver resiling in Sessions Court from statement in Committing Court sent up for trial — Statement must be treated as confession and may be sufficient for conviction.

Where an approver is sent up for trial on resiling in the Sessions Court from a statement made in the committing Magistrate's Court, his statement should be treated as a confession and his conviction might follow on this confession alone without corroboration. [P 135 C 2]

A. G. Maurice — for the Crown.

Judgment.—This is a jail appeal. Puran was given a pardon as an approver in a murder case. He resiled from his statement in the committing Magistrate's Court when he was in the Sessions Court. He has therefore been sent up for trial.

There is the evidence of the appellant's own statement in the committing Magistrate's Court, in which he gave a detailed account of the murder. The learned Judge apparently thinks that as he was an approver, this statement, which amounts to a confession by himself, required corroboration in the same way as an approver's statement requires corroboration. This is a misunderstanding of the position. In this case it must be treated as a confession and on the confession alone conviction might follow. There is however ample corroboration of the confession. He himself produced from his house a mass of ornaments which were proved and identified to have been stolen from the house of the deceased. He produced them from a hidden place where he alone could know that the goods were. Many of the articles that he produced were blood stained and have been proved to be stained with human blood. It would be impossible to find stronger corroboration of his own confession than this.

His only point was that he had been forced by the police to make this statement. It only needs to be said that he waited about five months, until the trial in the Sessions Court, to raise this defence. It is unbelievable. There is ample evidence in this case on which to find the accused guilty. He has been mercifully and moderately dealt with by a sentence of transportation for life. The appeal is dismissed.

S.O./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 136

JAI LAL J.

Rattan Chand and another — Objectors
— Appellants.

v.

Firm Kishen Chand-Ishar Das and another — Respondents.

Exn. First Appeal No. 1 of 1937, Decided on 28th April 1937, from order of Sub-Judge, First Class, Amritsar, D/- 7th December 1936.

(a) Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 53— Mere fact that debts are due from transferor is not alone sufficient to establish fraudulent intention.

The mere fact that debts are due from transferor is not alone sufficient to establish a fraudulent intention; on the other hand it must be proved that at the time of the transfer, motive for the transaction was to defeat or delay the creditors. There can however ordinarily be no direct evidence of the existence of a fraudulent intention. This can be inferred from circumstances proved in the case. [P 137 C 1]

(b) Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 53— Fraudulent intention — Prior, subsequent and contemporaneous conduct of transferor is relevant— Debtor's motive in transfer held was fraudulent.

The subsequent and the prior conduct as well as the contemporaneous conduct of the transferor are all relevant and must be considered in order to decide what his motive was in transferring the property. [P 137 C 2]

Where at the date of transfer of the property to her sons the transferor did owe money to the creditors and subsequently had to transfer her goods at a great loss to some of the creditors and there were still creditors who had not been satisfied :

Held the inference was irresistible that her motive in transferring the property in favour of her sons was to screen it from her creditors.

[P 138 C 1]

* (c) Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 53— Objection to sale by transferee of property from judgment-debtor — Decree-holder can contest objector's claim on ground that transfer was fraudulent without filing separate suit— To such defence rule under S. 53, T. P. Act, as to form of suit does not apply— Defence by creditor moreover can be described to be made in representative capacity.

Where at the time of a sale of the judgment-debtor's property in execution of a decree an objection to the sale is made by a party under S. 47, Civil P. C., on ground that he is owner of the property by virtue of a transfer of the property in his favour by the judgment-debtor, the decree-holder is entitled to contest the objector's claim on the ground that the property was transferred fraudulently and he need not file a separate suit to have that transfer declared fraudulent. To such a defence by the creditor, the rule contained in S. 53, T. P. Act, as to the form in which the suit is to be brought does not apply. Moreover the defence of the creditor in such a case can be described to be made in a representative capacity to apply for a rateable share in the sale proceeds if the property is sold : A I R 1920 Mad 748 (F B), Rel. on.

[P 138 C 1, 2]

Mehr Chand Mahajan and Shambhu Lal Puri — for Appellants.

Jagan Nath Aggarwal and Dev Raj Sawhney — for Respondents.

Judgment.—In execution of a money decree obtained by the respondent firm Kishen Chand-Ishar Das of Benares against Mt. Kahan Devi, the decree-holder, attempted to sell a house situated in Amritsar. An objection was taken to the sale of this house by the appellants, Rattan Chand and Girdhari Lal, sons of Mt. Kahan Devi, on the ground that they were the owners of the house by virtue of a gift made in their favour by Mt. Kahan Devi on 15th November 1933. The objection was under S. 47, Civil P. C., because the objectors were originally parties to the suit in which the decree had been granted but had been absolved from liability. It appears that Wishva Nath, husband of Mt. Kahan Devi, and father of the objectors, carried on business. The business in connection with which the liability was incurred in favour of the respondent by Mt. Kahan Devi was, however, started by her after her husband's business failed. Prior to the date of the gift, the dealings between the parties were on an extensive scale as it appears that during the two years preceding the gift goods worth about Rs. 40,000 were purchased by Mt. Kahan Devi and Rs. 28,000 odd were paid back by her to the respondents. Consequently on the date of the gift about Rs. 11,000 was still owing to the respondents by Mt. Kahan Devi. Subsequently also, the business and the dealings continued and it appears that in the beginning of the year 1935 about Rs. 14,000 still remained due to the respondents from Mt. Kahan Devi. There had been transactions on both sides during the interval but the balance had always been on the side of the respondents.

The learned Subordinate Judge has disallowed the objection holding that the gift was a fraudulent transaction; in other words that the intention of Mt. Kahan Devi in making the gift of the house in the year 1933 was to defeat or delay the payment of debts due from her to her creditors. In this connection, the learned Judge has made a reference to a peculiar coincidence, that this house originally belonged to Wishva Nath, husband of Mt. Kahan Devi, and when he found himself to be involved in financial difficulties, he made a gift of the house to Mt. Kahan Devi. It is suggested on behalf of the respondents that when Mt. Kahan Devi found herself similarly involved, she transferred the house by way of gift to her own sons. It is common ground that the mere fact that debts are due from the donor is not alone sufficient to establish a fraudulent intention; on the other hand, it must be proved that at the time of the gift the motive for the transaction was to defeat or delay the creditors. There can however ordinarily be no direct evidence of the existence of a fraudulent intention. This can be inferred from circumstances proved in the case.

Now, the respondents claim that they have proved the following circumstances: (1) the previous history of the property which I have already mentioned; this however in my opinion has no direct bearing on the question in issue; (2) that in the transactions between the parties the balance was always in favour of the respondents; in other words that Mt. Kahan Devi was incurring liabilities for larger amounts than she could pay; (3) that she had other creditors who have not all been satisfied even up to this time and that on the institution of the suit out of which these proceedings have arisen when an attempt was made to prevent her from transferring the goods in the shop to others, it transpired that no goods remained in the premises. Subsequently in her statement Mt. Kahan Devi stated that she had handed over the shop goods to other creditors than the respondents in satisfaction of their debts and in most cases the consideration was far below the market value of the goods. She stated that she did so on account of the fear of the respondents. This however was in 1935 prior to the institution of the suit and it is contended by Mr. Mehr Chand, for the appellants, that the conduct of Mt. Kahan Devi more than a year after the date of the gift is immaterial and irrelevant in determining her intention at the end of 1933. I have already stated that what I have to see in this case is the intention on the date of the gift, but, in my opinion, the subsequent and the prior conduct as well as the contemporaneous conduct of Mt. Kahan Devi are all relevant and must be considered in order to decide what her motive was in transferring the house to her sons by way of gift. She adds in her statement that she handed over the goods to other creditors for fear of the respondents. This is a statement which I have not been able to follow.

Another circumstance relied on by Mr. Jagan Nath is that Mt. Kahan Devi has not produced her books to show the condition of her finances in November 1933. In the witness box she stated that her books had been eaten up by white ants. Mr. Mehr Chand says that this has nothing to do with the objectors, her sons. But there is a special ground for considering this statement of Mt. Kahan Devi as an important factor in this case because it is proved that Rattan Chand, objector, used to carry on her business and says that he does not know anything about the books. Therefore neither Rattan Chand has been able to produce the books nor Mt. Kahan Devi, and the latter has given a curious explanation for the disappearance of her books. The matter therefore is at least suspicious.

Then Mt. Kahan Devi was asked about the nature of her transactions and about the condition of her finances about the time when the gift was made and her answers were unsatisfactory. I do not think much stress can be laid on the fact that, after the gift on 28th September 1934, Mt. Kahan Devi served a notice signed by herself on one of the tenants in the house in dispute demanding possession.

of the house. The matter is not of much importance, though it is not irrelevant, because as Mr. Mehr Chand has pointed out, the tenant was holding the property under a lease granted to him by Mt. Kahan Devi in the year 1931. The notice was not issued by a lawyer and does not appear to have been written by a person whose knowledge of English could be said to be good. Under the circumstances the giving of the notice is not very material. But considering all the circumstances of the case, the relationship of the parties, the fact that Mt. Kahan Devi did owe money to the respondents and subsequently had to transfer her goods at a great loss to the other creditors and there are still creditors who have not been satisfied, the inference is irresistible that her motive in transferring the house in favour of her sons was to screen it from her creditors.

I must, at this stage, deal with a legal point urged by the learned counsel for the appellants. He referred to S. 53, T. P. Act, and contended that the section, as now amended, expressly provides that a suit to set aside an alienation brought by a creditor on the ground that the alienation was made with a view to defeat or defraud the creditors must be brought on behalf of all the creditors and in a representative capacity. It must however be observed that in the present case no suit has been brought by the creditor. On the other hand an objection has been raised by Rattan Chand and another, sons of Mt. Kahan Devi, and the creditor has defended his action in attaching the property to satisfy his decree. No authority has been cited that the rule contained in S. 53, T. P. Act, as to the form in which the suit is to be brought also applies to a defence raised by a creditor. The practical suggestion made by the learned counsel for the appellants was that what the executing Court should have done in this case is that on holding that a gift had been made it should have allowed the objection and should have directed the decree-holder to institute a suit to have the gift declared fraudulent. I see no justification for this suggestion because, as I have already stated, the proceedings before the executing Court were under S. 47, Civil P. C., which makes it incumbent upon it to decide all questions mentioned in that section and this is one of such questions in the execution proceedings and not in a separate suit. Moreover the defence of the creditor in this case can be described to be made in a representative character because it is open to any creditor to apply for a rateable share in the sale proceeds of the house if it is sold. 43 Mad 760,¹ a judgment of a Full Bench of the Madras High Court, seems to support the view that in a case like this a decree-holder is entitled to contest the claim of an objector on the ground that the disputed property was transferred fraudulently. The consequence is that in my opinion the conclusion of the Subordinate Judge is correct. I dismiss the appeal with costs.

T.M./D.S.

Appeal dismissed.

1. Ramaswami Chettiar v. Mallapa Reddhar, A I R 1920 Mad 748=59 I O 947=43 Mad 760=39 M L J 350 (F B).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 138

BHIDE J.

Amolak Chand, Defendant, Judgment-debtor — Appellant.

v.

Hoshiar Singh — Plaintiff, Decree-holder — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 340 of 1937, Decided on 8th October 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Delhi D/. 19th December 1936.

Limitation Act (1908), Art. 182 — Step-in-aid — Application for payment of money realized in execution is not step-in-aid.

Payment of money after realization in execution of a decree is a purely ministerial act when there is no dispute about it and an application for such payment does not advance or further execution. Such an application is not therefore a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 182 and does not save limitation: A I R 1931 Lah 81 and 103 P R 1908 (F B), Rel. on; A I R 1925 Mad 703, Dissent. [P 138 O 2 ; P 139 O 1]

R. L. Anand I — for Appellant.

Dharam Bhusan — for Respondent.

Judgment.—The sole point for decision in this second appeal is whether an application for payment of money realized in execution of a decree is a "step-in-aid" of execution within the meaning of Art. 182, Limitation Act and saves limitation. The learned District Judge has held that it does, following A I R 1925 Mad 703,¹ in preference to 207 P L R 1908 = 103 P R 1908.² He has distinguished the latter case on the ground that the money was realized in execution in the present case while it was paid voluntarily in 1903 P R 1908.² I think however that the reasoning of the latter ruling applies to payment of money realized in execution also. The question for consideration is whether an application for payment of money realized in execution can be considered to be a step-in-aid of execution. As pointed out in a Full Bench ruling of this Court reported in A I R 1931 Lah 81,³ unless an application "advances or furthers" execution, it cannot be held to be a step-in-aid of execution. Now even if money has been realized in execution, can an application for its payment be said to advance or further execution of the decree in any way? I think it does not. In Madras, it appears to have been held that it does, but the Madras view has been dissented from by the Full Bench in 103 P R 1908.² As pointed out in the latter ruling, payment after realization is a purely ministerial act when there is no dispute about it. I therefore hold that the learned District Judge's view cannot be sustained and the application for execution was time barred. In view of this finding the cross-objections must fail. I accept the appeal and dismiss the cross-objections, but in view of all the circumstances leave the parties to bear their costs.

1. Balaguruswami Naloken v. Guruswami Naloken, (1925) 12 A I R Mad 703=87 I O 939=48 M L J 506.

2. Kasu v. Atar Singh, (1908) 103 P R 1908=142 P W R 1908=207 P L R 1908 (F B).

B.D./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

3. Ghanaya Lal v. Nathu Ram, (1931) 18 A I R Lah 81=131 I O 100=12 Lah 158=92 P L R 84 (F B).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 139

COLDSTREAM AND MONROE JJ.

Sardarni Vidya Wanti Kaur and another—Defendants—Appellants.

v.

Sardar Shahdev (Shivdev) Singh — Plaintiff — Respondent.

First Appeals Nos. 573, 2174 and 2175 of 1935, Decided on 19th April 1937, from preliminary decree of Sub.Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/. 6th February 1935.

(a) Limitation Act (1908), Art. 62 — Applicability — Defendant asked to account for properties and moneys when person managing or collecting them is entitled to just allowances—Art. 62 does not apply.

Article 62 governs cases where a definite sum of money has been received by the defendant and which the law says he must hold for the use of the plaintiff, and is not applicable to cases where the defendant is asked to account for properties and moneys when the person managing or collecting them is entitled to just allowances.

[P 142 C 2]

(b) Limitation Act (1908), Arts. 48, 49, 62 and 120 — Widows of deceased coparcener filing suit for rendition of accounts against one of surviving coparceners — Suit not being for possession of any specific sum, Art. 120 and not Arts. 48, 49 and 62 held applied.

The widows of a deceased coparcener filed a suit for rendition of accounts against one of the surviving coparceners. The suit was not one for possession of any specific sum, as the amount recoverable could not be exactly known, for the person in possession was entitled to deduct his expenses of management even if the widows were in a position to state the exact amount of moneys which came into the hands of the surviving coparcener :

Held that Art. 120 and not Arts. 48, 49 and 62, applied : A I R 1922 Mad 150 (F B), Rel. on.

[P 142 C 2; P 143 C 1]

(c) Limitation Act (1908), Art. 120 — Defendant by denying plaintiff's position as co-tenant of property with himself cannot bar latter's subsisting right to ask for accounts.

There is nothing in Art. 120 warranting the view that where a defendant is a co-tenant of property with the plaintiff, he can bar the latter's subsisting right to ask him for accounts by merely denying that the plaintiff is a co-tenant. So long as the defendant is a co-tenant with the plaintiff, the latter has a right to ask for accounts. His right accrues continually as income comes into the co-tenant's hands. But this right is continually barred by Art. 120 when the account sought is more than six years old.

[P 143 C 1]

(d) Accounts—Suit for — Interest — When granted — Plaintiffs' suit and defendant's cross-suit for rendition of accounts relating to number of properties—Plaintiffs alleging that defendant acted as manager and co-sharer on their behalf—Plaintiffs claiming future interest only in their plaint — Both sides found liable to account — Defendant allowed interest on balance from year to year—Interest before date of final settlement held ought not to be allowed.

The plaintiffs in a suit for rendition of accounts relating to a number of properties with which they alleged that the defendant had dealt as manager and co-sharer on behalf of themselves, while setting forth in their plaint the relief asked expressly for future interest only. The defendant had also filed cross-suit against plaintiffs for accounts. Both sides were found liable to account and the defendant was allowed interest to be calculated apparently on balances as they stood from year to year :

Held that the suit was not one in which interest before date of final settlement ought to have been allowed, assuming that the Court had discretion to allow it, which it was perhaps doubtful. Interest would fairly be payable only on the amount found due on a balance of both accounts: A I R 1927 Lah 287, Rel. on.

[P 144 C 2]

(e) Res judicata — Constructive — Former suit as exclusive owner against persons in wrongful possession—On dismissal of such suit subsequent suit as co-sharer for accounts —Subsequent suit held not barred by Expl. 4 to S. 11, Civil P. C.

A person filed a suit as exclusive owner against persons in wrongful possession. This suit being dismissed, he instituted another suit for accounts as a co-sharer. It was contended that he was barred from instituting the subsequent suit for accounts :

Held that the two suits were brought in different capacities. The right to accounts was not in issue in his former suit and hence the rule of constructive res judicata embodied in Expl. 4 to S. 11, Civil P. C., was inapplicable to the case.

[P 145 C 1]

Badri Das and Vishnu Datta —

for Appellants.

M. C. Mahajan and Daulat Ram —

for Respondent.

Coldstream J. — This judgment will dispose of the three Appeals Nos. 573, 2174 and 2175 of 1935. They arise out of the following circumstances: Sardar Gulab Singh, the head of an important and wealthy family in Kapurthala State, died in 1905 leaving five sons Dwarka Nath Singh, Triloki Nath Singh, Rajeshwar Singh, Angadh Singh and Arjan Singh. Angadh Singh died soon after his father. His widow Sardarni Parbati was given a maintenance allowance. Gulab Singh's lands were recorded in the revenue records as having been inherited by his remaining four sons. Triloki Nath Singh, Rajeshwar Singh and Dwarka Nath Singh died in 1918. Triloki Nath Singh left two widows, Lajwanti Kaur and Chanan Kaur, Dwarka Nath Singh, a widow Vidya Wanti Kaur and Rajeshwar Singh a son Shahdev Singh (also called Shivdev Singh).

When Gulab Singh died, the family owned moveable and immovable property in Kapurthala State, in Bhika Nangal in Jullundur District, the Bhagat Mills in Jullundur city, shops in Jullundur, Amritsar and Lahore cities, land in Lucknow, and a tea estate in Kangra District besides land in Kheri District in the United Provinces from which it derived the greater part of its income. After his death more immovable property was acquired. When the three brothers died in 1918 and 1919 Shahdev Singh was a minor and Arjan Singh an inmate of the Mental Hospital in Lahore. The Maharaja of Kapurthala, to whom the family was related through Sardar Gulab Singh's grandmother, appointed his own sons to manage the family property and fixed allowances for the female members of the family. When Arjan Singh came out of the Mental Hospital he took over the management. In March 1920, after there had been some dispute between Arjan Singh and the widows, the shares of the latter's husbands in the lands in Jullundur and some other districts were recorded as their property by mutation in the revenue papers in spite of objections by Arjan Singh and his nephew Shahdev Singh who contended that the widows were entitled to maintenance only.

When Shahdev Singh attained majority, he brought a suit in Jullundur on 30th August 1921 against the widows, Arjan Singh and others, asserting that he and Arjan Singh had formed a joint Hindu family with Triloki Nath Singh and Dwarka Nath Singh whose widows were entitled only to maintenance, that the family property had passed to himself and Arjan Singh by survivorship and that by a custom followed by the family, widows were excluded from inheritance. He claimed a declaration of his title in respect of those lands in British India which had been recorded as belonging to the widows but were in possession of Arjan Singh as manager, and a decree for possession of the lands in possession of the widows. The widows contested the suit alleging that there had been a disruption of the joint family and denying that any special family custom excluding them from inheriting their husbands' property existed, but during the trial Lajwanti Kaur compromised with Shahdev Singh admitting his claim and agreeing to accept Rs. 20,000 and a monthly allowance in satisfaction of her rights.

The Subordinate Judge who tried the suit held that a complete disruption of the joint family had taken place in 1910 and he dismissed the suit against the other two widows Chanan Kaur and Vidya Wanti Kaur. Shahdev Singh appealed to this Court but his appeal was dismissed (Appeal No. 2632 of 1927 decided on 15th February 1932 published in A I R 1932 Lah 550.¹) Arjan Singh, I may here mention, disappeared from India in 1924 during the trial of the suit. On 5th July 1928, a year after the dismissal of Shahdev Singh's suit, while his appeal was pending in the High Court, Sardarni Vidya Wanti Kaur and Chanan Kaur instituted a suit against Shahdev Singh and Arjan Singh in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge,

1. Shahdeo Singh v. Lajwanti Kaur, A I R 1932 Lah 550=188 I C 401=89 P L R 747.

Jullundur, for rendition of accounts relating to a number of properties with which they alleged Shahdev Singh had dealt as manager and cosharer on behalf of themselves and Lajwanti Kaur. The following properties were concerned: (1) War Bonds to the value of Rs. 65,000. (2) A debt due to the family by Ram Lal. (3) Income from the property known as the Bhagat Mills in Jullundur. (4) The rent of a bungalow in Jullundur. (5) War Bonds of the value of Rs. 50,000. (6) Postal cash certificates purchased through the post office, Kapurthala, on 20th June 1917 to the value of Rs. 5812-8-0. (7) A War loan investment of Rs. 5000. (8) A sum of Rs. 6990 deposited with a firm Dherumal Baij Nath. (9) A saw mill which had been sold by Shahdev Singh. (10) A sum of Rs. 3000 said to be due to the family by one Kanshi Ram. (11) The rent of a shop in Basti Ghazan in Jullundur. (12) Postal cash certificates in Kapurthala.

On 28th August 1930, Sardar Shahdev Singh instituted a suit (No. 219 of 1930) in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Lahore, against Vidya Wanti and Chanan Kaur for rendition of accounts in respect of shops in Lahore city (the original plaint claimed relief in respect of other properties but that plaint was amended). His allegations were that he and Arjan Singh were the sole surviving owners of the whole property of the joint family of his father and uncles, the defendants being entitled to maintenance only but that he had been held by the decision of 23rd June 1927 to be owner of a 6/16th share only (4/16th being his by inheritance and 2/16th his by surrender to him of her rights by Lajwanti Kaur), that the defendants were in possession of his share and had refused to render accounts of their dealings with it. The widows' suit was transferred to the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Lahore, and was registered as Suit No. 89 of 1932. In that suit (No. 89) the learned Senior Subordinate Judge granted Vidya Wanti Kaur and Chanan Kaur a preliminary decree for rendition of accounts (apparently from the time when the properties concerned came into his possession) in respect of those properties which he found to have belonged to all the cosharers, dismissing it in respect of those not proved to have belonged to the family. Against this judgment both sides have appealed.

In Appeal No. 2174 of 1935, Vidya Wanti

Kaur and Chanan Kaur have appealed asking for accounts to be taken in respect of all the items in dispute, and in Appeal No. 2175 of 1935 Shahdev Singh contends that he is not liable to render accounts of any of the properties, the suit being barred by limitation, and that, in any case, the lower Court was wrong in holding some of the items in dispute to have belonged to the family. The decision in Shahdev Singh's suit (No. 219) was that the plaintiff was entitled to a 6/16th share in the suit property and that the widows were liable to render accounts of it with interest at 6% from 13th October 1918 (when Vidya Wanti's husband died) to the date of suit. Against the judgment in Shahdev Singh's suit, the widows have preferred the Appeal No. 573 of 1935. It will be convenient to dispose of all three appeals in one judgment as the suits were between the same parties and arise out of the same dispute, namely the right to claim accounts relating to properties in possession of the defendants on the ground that the properties belonged to the family of which the sons of Gulab Singh were members. I take first the two appeals Nos. 2174 and 2175 against the judgment in the widows' suit, registered as No. 89 of 1932. In contesting this suit Shah Dev Singh pleaded that it was barred by limitation in respect of all the properties specified by the widows. Four of the properties he admitted had been joint family property. Of five he asserted himself and his uncle Arjan Singh to have been exclusive owners and three, he declared, had never come into his possession.

In arguing Shah Dev Singh's appeal No. 2175 (originally filed in the Court of the District Judge but transferred to this Court) his counsel has first attacked the lower Court's judgment on the ground that a suit for account was not maintainable in the circumstances because no legal relationship such as entitled the widows to bring an action for accounts subsisted, as Shah Dev Singh was not an agent or a bailee, trustee, receiver, partner or mortgagor either by contract or implication, in respect of any of the properties in dispute and therefore not liable to accounts and because it was not open to the widows to ask for accounts of only some of the family property without disclosing the accounts relating to that part of it which was in their possession, that is to say, the suit could not be decreed without taking into consideration the accounts relating to all the family property. This is a new argument not advanced at the trial where no issue on the point was struck. It is true that in para. 32 of his written pleas Shah Dev Singh stated that the plaintiffs had no right to call for rendition of accounts but the argument now put forward was not the basis of that plea. When Shah Dev Singh instituted his suit for accounts (No. 219) the widows pleaded that the suit could not proceed until the plaintiffs rendered accounts of the property in his possession but this plea was dropped (see page 34 of the printed judgment) as the widows were themselves suing for accounts. Both suits proceeded on the assumption that the parties in possession were liable to render accounts of the properties in respect of which the suits had been instituted, and I do not think that it is open to Shah Dev Singh now to set up a new defence which is not suggested even in the grounds of appeal. In any case however the plea is met by the fact that Shah Dev Singh has himself sued for accounts relating to property in the widows' possession and the amount due from one party to the other can be adjusted in execution of the two decrees together.

I pass to the question of limitation. The four properties which Shah Dev Singh admitted to have been joint and of which the widows were therefore tenants in common or co-sharers under the decision in Shah Dev Singh's suit were: (1) war bonds to the value of Rs. 65,000; (2) a debt due to the family on a decree for Rs. 4200; (3) income from the property known as the Bhagat Mills in Jullunder (this income according to Shah Dev Singh, consisted wholly of the proceeds of grass grown in the mill precincts, the mills never having been worked during the time they were in his control); (4) rent of a bungalow in Jullunder. At page 41 of his printed judgment the learned Subordinate Judge has stated that Shah Dev Singh's counsel did not contend that the suit was barred in respect of these properties. Mr. Mehr Chand, in arguing Shah Dev Singh's appeal (the case was conducted in the lower Court by another counsel) informs us that this statement is incorrect, and this is asserted in the memorandum of appeal (which was filed by another counsel). We must proceed on the assumption that the judgment is correct, and as in my opinion the suit was not barred in respect of the accounts relating to these items, the matter is of no consequence. The trial Judge has held that the claim is governed by Art. 120, Lim. Act, and that as there was no refusal to render accounts before the suit was instituted, Shah Dev Singh must render accounts from the time he took possession of the properties concerned. It is contended by Mr. Mehr Chand that a suit for accounts was barred in respect of any property which was in his client's hands on the date of his suit of 1921 inasmuch as by that suit he clearly denied the widows' right in any of the family property and asserted a hostile title, alleging that he and his uncle were exclusively owners of it, the widows being entitled to maintenance only. He also contends that Art. 120 is inapplicable in the circumstances of this suit which in effect is one to recover possession of property misappropriated by the defendant and that the suit is governed either by Art. 48 or Art. 49 or probably Art. 62, that limitation ran either from the date of the death of the widow's husband (1918) or from the date of Shah Dev Singh's suit of 1921 or from the time when Shah Dev Singh converted the property concerned to his use, for example when he realized his Government Securities (war bonds) in 1923 or sold the saw mill (about 1922).

A very large number of authorities has been cited before us on the point of limitation, most of which deal with circumstances not wholly similar to those of this case. The suit is not one for possession of any specific sum, as the amount recoverable cannot be exactly known, for the person in possession was entitled to deduct his expenses of management even if the widows were in a position to state the exact amount of money which came into Shah Dev Singh's hands. Neither Art. 48 nor Art. 49 can therefore apply. Nor, in my opinion, does Art. 62 apply. That Article governs cases where a definite sum of money has been received by the defendant and which the law says he must hold for the use of the plaintiff, and is not applicable to cases where the defendant is asked to account for properties and moneys when the person managing or collecting them is entitled to just allowances. Here it cannot be said that Shah Dev Singh received money which belonged to the plaintiff. He was as a matter of fact a cosharer. As pointed out by the Full Bench of the Madras High Court in 45)

Mad 648², a suit for money had and received could not lie by one tenant-in-common against another who had received more than his share and I have no doubt that the learned trial Judge rightly applied Art. 120.

Next it has to be seen whether the suit is barred by that Article as contended by Mr. Mehr Chand because limitation began to run at the latest in 1921 when Shah Dev Singh asserted a hostile title to the knowledge of the plaintiff. Mr. Mehr Chand relies in this connexion on the last sentence of the Madras judgment² cited above. Shah Dev Singh's suit did no doubt positively assert such a title but though that clearly gave the widows a right to sue for accounts forthwith, there is nothing in Art. 120, and I say so with the greatest respect, warranting the view that where a defendant is, as a matter of fact, a co-tenant of property with the plaintiff, he can bar the latter's subsisting right to ask him for accounts by merely denying that the plaintiff is a co-tenant. So long as Shah Dev Singh was a co-tenant with the plaintiffs the latter had a right to ask for accounts. Their right accrued continually as income comes into the co-tenant's hands. In this case although Shah Dev Singh had denied the widows' rights in any of the family property, it was ultimately found that, in reality, his possession had never been adverse but that he held what he possessed of the joint property as a co-tenant on the widows' behalf. On the other hand that right is continually barred by Art. 120 when the account sought is more than six years old and the learned Subordinate Judge was in my opinion wrong in decreeing rendition of accounts for a longer period than six years.

My conclusion on the question of limitation is therefore that the widows' suit for accounts was not barred in respect of any of the family property, that is to say property which did not belong exclusively to Shah Dev Singh and that Shah Dev Singh must render accounts of the balances in his hands, in respect of the items concerned, on 6th July 1922 and the moneys received since. What those balances were is a question with regard to which the earlier accounts will be material, that is to say the accounts previous to that date will have to be examined as evidence of what Shah Dev Singh had in hand at that date. This ends the matter so far as the four properties which were admittedly joint are concerned.

The remaining properties about which there is still a dispute were: (1) war bonds to the value of Rs. 50,000 purchased in 1917; (2) postal cash certificates to the value of Rs. 5812.8.0; (3) war loan investments through the Kangra Post Office; (4) a sum of Rs. 6990 deposited with the firm Dheru Mal-Baij Nath; (5) the saw mill; (6) a shop at Basti Ghazan in Jullundur. The trial Judge has found that Shah Dev Singh is liable to accounts in respect of the properties 1, 2, 3, 5 and 6 and this decision is attacked in Shah Dev Singh's appeal. He has found it not proved that the sum of Rs. 6990 (the deposit with Dheru Mal-Baij Nath) was joint and the widows have appealed against this finding.

The oral evidence about the war bonds has been rejected by the learned Judge who has based his decision regarding this item on the documentary evidence. This evidence is carefully described and discussed at pp. 47 to 51 of the printed judgment. We have scrutinized this evidence carefully. Mr. Mehr Chand's contention is that the evidence on the accounts is discrepant and untrustworthy. His arguments have all been dealt with by the learned Judge and I do not think it necessary to say more than that the register of accounts (Ex. P.3) read with the accounts kept by the Bank of Bengal to which reference has been made in the judgment is good proof that these war loans were joint property and not the independently acquired property of Shah Dev Singh's father as he maintained. The register (Ex. P.3) was produced during the trial of the suit of 1921 and its genuineness has apparently never been attacked. The original bears the signatures of Shah Dev Singh's father who was in control of the family affairs in 1917 and it was produced by Arjan Singh at the instance of Shah Dev Singh. There is no reason why it should not be accepted unreservedly as strong evidence and no sufficient reason has been shown for interfering with the trial Court's decision about these bonds. The same register proves that the postal cash certificates (Rs. 5812.8.0) purchased at Kapurthala and a war loan investment through the post office in Kangra (Rs. 5000) were also of the joint family.

² Yerukola v. Yerukola, A I R 1922 Mad 150 = 71 I O 177 = 42 M L J 507 = 45 Mad 648 (FB)

As regards these items it is not necessary to add to what is said in the trial Court's judgment, of the correctness of which I am satisfied.

On the other hand it is not proved that the saw mill belonged to the family. The learned trial Judge has assumed that it was joint because it came out of the Bhagat Mills (which, it is admitted, are flour mills), but Mr. Badri Das has not been able to show us any evidence that the saw came from the mills. This item must therefore be excluded. As regards the shop at Basti Ghozan there is no rebuttal of the evidence of Shah Dev Singh himself made on 2nd December 1934 that the widows are in possession of this property. The allegation of Shah Dev Singh in the previous suit, on which the learned Subordinate Judge has based his finding that they are in his possession, was not that he was in possession of all the family property but that it was in his and Arjan Singh's possession. As it is not proved that he has ever been in possession of that property it also must be excluded.

The lower Court has also decreed that the widows are entitled to damages for omission to work the Bhagat Mills while they were in his possession. The widows claimed accounts of the profits of the mill and the decree in respect of damages is unwarranted, for it is not shown that Bhagat Singh was in a position to work the mills at a profit. There was no claim for damages and no issue on the question of Shah Dev Singh's liability for damages, a question which was outside the scope of the suit. So far as the income from grass is concerned, there is no appeal by Shah Dev Singh, but the order that Shah Dev Singh's liability for damages is to be investigated must be set aside. This disposes of Shah Dev Singh's appeal No. 2175, which is accepted to the extent indicated above. In view of the result, I would allow Shah Dev Singh to recover half his costs in this Court.

The widows' appeal, No. 2174, asks that the sum of Rs. 6990 deposited with the firm Dheru Mal-Baij Nath be included in the items in respect of which accounts were to be rendered, that they should have been allowed interest on the amount found payable on accounts from the date of the suit until realization and that they be allowed their costs. It is not disputed that Rs. 9000 were deposited with Dheru Mal-Baij Nath. For reasons I have stated the register P. 3 must be accepted as a strong piece of evidence. An entry in this register dated 28th December 1915 (see Ex. P. 99, which is part of P. 3 at page 1 of Part 2 of the printed record) shows that a sum of Rs. 7000 was drawn from the Bank of Bengal for joint purposes and deposited with the firm. Another entry of 4th May 1916 shows that a sum of Rs. 2000 was also deposited, but it does not mention that this money was taken for joint purposes. The first entry is signed by the plaintiff's father. The Bank account was produced (the excerpt has not been printed for this appeal, but is exhibited in the printed record of Shah Dev Singh's suit of 1921) and it shows that the money was drawn from the joint account. The learned Judge of the lower Court has excluded this item because no one representing the firm of Dheru Mal was called to give evidence. In my opinion no further evidence was necessary and I would accept the widows' appeal so far as to include Rs. 6990 which is the amount we are asked to include.

The learned Subordinate Judge has not allowed interest because in setting forth in their plaint the reliefs they desired, the widows asked expressly for future interest only, presumably from the date of the decree (see page 34 of the printed judgment in Appeal No. 573). In the cross-suit by Shah Dev Singh he has however allowed interest at 6 per cent. to be calculated apparently on balances as they stood from year to year. The suit is not one in which in my opinion interest before the date of final settlement ought to have been allowed, assuming that the Court had discretion to allow it, which is perhaps doubtful: see 8 Lah 524.³ Both sides have been held liable to account and interest would fairly be payable only on the amount found due on a balance of both accounts. As regards costs, the ordinary rule is that they follow the event and no good reason for withholding them in this suit is apparent. The widows have been successful as regards the greater part of their claim. I think that it will be just to allow them their costs in the lower Court and here.

There remains the third appeal, that of the widows against the decree granted to Shah Dev Singh (Appeal No. 573). The grounds pressed before us are that the suit was barred by the principle of res judicata and that under Art. 120, Lim. Act, the widows are liable to render accounts for the previous six years only. In the suit which Shahdev Singh instituted against the appellants and others in 1921 he prayed for possession with mesne profits until he obtained possession of the property now concerned. As against the widows that suit was dismissed and the argument is that this dismissal bars Shahdev Singh's present claim for accounts which might have been preferred in that suit. Shahdev Singh's right to accounts was not in issue in his former suit and in my opinion the rule of constructive res judicata embodied in Explan. 4 to S. 11, Civil P. C., is inapplicable to the case. The two suits were brought in different capacities. In the previous suit, Shahdev Singh sued as exclusive owner against persons in wrongful possession. His right as a co-sharer was admitted by the defendants and his suit was defeated on the plea that he was in joint possession. It is by virtue of this decision alone that he can claim the relief he now seeks. This claim would have been destructive of the case he set up in 1921 and although it might have been open to him to put forward entirely distinct pleas it cannot be said that he was bound to do so or ought to have done so. The cause of action in the previous suit was the mutation in the widows' favour which he was attacking, and until it was decided that the mutation was in accordance with his legal position, the present claim could not be maintainable. It follows that Shahdev Singh was not estopped by his previous conduct from bringing his suit for accounts as a co-sharer.

3. Kirpal Singh v. Jiwanmal Thakur Das, A I R 1927 Lah 287=101 I C 644=8 Lah 524=28 P L R 174.

In this case there is no question of the right to sue for accounts having become barred by the setting up of a hostile title, for the widows have all along admitted Shahdev Singh's rights as a co-sharer and tenant-in-common. For the reasons I have given in dealing with Shahdev Singh's appeal No. 2175, Shahdev Singh is liable for accounts only for the six years previous to the date of the institution of his suit, previous accounts being relevant as evidence to show what he had in hand on 5th July 1922. For the reasons given in disposal of the appeal No. 2174 I would set aside the lower Court's decree so far as it relates to interest. As regards costs I would leave parties to bear their own costs throughout in the appeal No. 573 of 1935.

1938 L/19 & 20

Monroe J.—I agree.

R.W./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 145

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Mt. Mohan Devi and others—Plaintiffs
—Appellants.

v.

Nawab Talib Mehdi Khan and others,
Defendants and others, Plaintiffs
—Respondents.

First Appeal No. 231 of 1936, Decided on 15th April 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Lahore, D/- 1st February 1936.

(a) Limitation Act (1908), Art. 132—Mortgage of property on 9th March 1918 — Three other successive mortgages of same property in favour of same mortgagee — Third mortgage dated 27th February 1920 containing clause that mortgagor would pay present and previous mortgage money after one year—Suit on basis of mortgages brought on 22nd December 1932 — Art. 132 held applied and suit was within time.

A property was mortgaged on 9th March 1918. The mortgagor effected three other successive mortgages of the same property in favour of the same mortgagee. In the third of these dated 27th February 1920, there was a clause "we agree to pay up the present and the previous mortgage money after one year." The assignee of the mortgage brought a suit on the basis of these mortgages for principal, interest and cost of improvements on 22nd December 1932 :

Held that Art. 132 applied and the suit brought within 12 years from 26th February 1921 was within time. [P 146 C 2]

(b) Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 67—Prohibition of sale by usufructuary mortgage—Principle underlying stated.

The principle underlying the statutory prohibition of sale by usufructuary mortgagee is that the mortgagee looks to the rents and profits for the satisfaction of his advance and inasmuch as no time is fixed for payment there can be no forfeiture. It is this forfeiture that gives right to the remedies of foreclosure and sale and in its absence the mortgagee is not entitled to the remedies that spring out of it. [P 147 C 1]

(c) Mortgage—Anomalous — One clause in deed making it usufructuary—Another clause providing for recovery of amount from mortgaged property—Mortgage is anomalous.

Where a mortgage deed contained one clause which would make it an usufructuary mortgage but another clause provided in the most explicit terms for recovery of the amount due from the mortgaged property :

Held that the mortgage was not usufructuary but was anomalous. [P 147 C 2]

(d) Mortgage—Mortgagee making sub-mortgage of part of mortgaged property—Suit on mortgage—Sub-mortgagee unwilling to be joined as plaintiff—Original mortgagee can maintain suit.

Where an original mortgagee creates a sub-mortgage over some of the mortgaged property and brings a suit on his mortgage against the mortgagor to which the sub-mortgagee refuses for some reason or other to be joined as plaintiff, the original mortgagee can maintain the suit to assert the right which still vested in him: 18 I C 389, Expl.; 15 Bom 692; 31 P R 1900; 18 All 113 and 29 All 385, Ref. [P 148 C 1, 2]

Achhru Ram and N. C. Mehra —
for Appellant.

Mohsin Shah — for Respondents.

Skemp J. — This is an appeal against an order of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Lahore, dismissing a suit for the recovery of Rs. 79,492.12.9 as principal, interest and costs of improvements due to the plaintiffs on the basis of certain mortgages and a deed of sale. The facts leading up to the suit are as follows: Kotu Mal defendant 10, Raghu Ram defendant 11 and Lachhman Das, father of defendants 12 and 13, mortgaged (a) a three storied house situate in Anarkali and (b) three shops with a taki and baithak, to Messrs. Mool Chand and Company. They effected in the first instance a mortgage for Rs. 51,000 by a deed dated 9th March 1918 and effected three further mortgages each for Rs. 10,000 on 8th March 1919, on 27th February 1920 and on 26th October 1920. All the deeds were registered. Interest was provided in the first deed at annas nine per cent. per mensem, in the subsequent deeds at rather higher rates; in other respects it was provided that the terms of the first mortgage should apply to the subsequent mortgages. On 31st March 1921 the original mortgagors sold property No. 1, the house, to defendants 1 to 8 and father of defendant 9 for Rupees 1,08,500 out of which Rs. 82,000 were kept in deposit with the vendees for payment to the original mortgagees, Messrs. Mool Chand and Company. The balance was paid to the vendors, Lachhman Das, Raghu Ram and Kotu Mal. The vendors then redeemed property No. 2 from the mortgage. On 5th January 1929 the representatives of Messrs. Mool Chand and Company sold their entire mortgage rights in house no. 1 to the present plaintiffs for Rs. 52,677.4.3. The present plaintiffs are the wives and daughters-in-law of the original mortgagors. On the same date, 5th January 1929, these ladies executed a sub-mortgage of their mortgage rights to Ral Bahadur Seth Ajudhia Parshad for Rs. 42,000. On 22nd December 1932, the plaintiffs, four ladies of the family of the original owners and mortgagors, brought the present suit for recovery of Rupees 79,492.12.9 principal, interest and cost of improvements.

Defendants 10 to 13 the original owners admitted the claim. Defendant 14 the sub-mortgagee, Seth Ajudhia Parshad, pleaded that he had no objection to a decree being passed in favour of the plaintiffs provided that his rights were preserved. The suit was contested by defendants 1 to 9, the vendees of 1921. They raised numerous objections to the suit as a result of which 16 issues were framed. The Senior Subordinate Judge only really decided three of the issues and found that another issue 8 was redundant. He dismissed the suit (a) as barred by limitation, (b) because a suit for sale on the basis of a usufructuary mortgage was incompetent, and (c) because a suit could only be brought by the sub-mortgagee and not by the present plaintiffs. In my judgment the findings of the Subordinate Judge on all three points are erroneous.

Point No. 1 : Limitation. The suit is one falling under Art. 132 of Sch. 1, Lim. Act: 'To enforce payment of money charged upon immovable property' and the period of limitation is 12 years from the date when the money sued for becomes due. The third mortgage deed dated 27th February 1920 contained a clause: 'We agree to pay up the present and the previous mortgage money after one year'. The mortgagees therefore had a period of 12 years from 26th February 1921 and the suit which was lodged on 22nd December 1932 is well within time. The Senior Subordinate Judge held that the suit was not within limitation because the plaintiffs had not proved this and some other acknowledgments to which he referred, but Lala Bal Kishan, P. W. 11, a partner of the firm Messrs. Mool Chand & Co. said:

The four mortgage deeds P. W. 1-3, P. W. 1-4, P. W. 1-5 and P. W. 1-6 were executed in favour of the old firm Mool Chand & Co. Lachhman Das, Raghu Ram and Kotu Mal were the mortgagors.

He continued his evidence about incidents of the mortgagees' possession and was not cross-examined as to the execution of the mortgages. Elsewhere in his judgment the Subordinate Judge said that the plaintiffs had succeeded in establishing that the property in dispute was mortgaged to Mool Chand & Co. by the four mortgage deeds. The highly technical ground on which the Subordinate Judge held that the suit was barred by limitation is therefore ill-founded.

Point No. 2. That the suit is barred because the mortgage is a usufructuary mortgage. The authority cited is a Division Bench ruling of this Court—141 I C 377.¹ In that judgment, it was held that a certain mortgage was purely a usufructuary mortgage as defined in S. 58 (d), T. P. Act, and that under S. 67 a suit for sale would be incompetent. It was also held that the insertion of a personal covenant to pay the mortgage debt on demand would not alter the character of the mortgage and give the mortgagee a right to sell the mortgaged property. The following is the definition of a usufructuary mortgage in S. 58 (d), T. P. Act, as amended in 1929 :

Where the mortgagor delivers possession [or expressly or by implication binds himself to deliver possession] of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee and authorises him to retain such possession until payment of the mortgage money and to receive the rents and profits accruing from the property [or any part of such rents and profits and to appropriate the same] in lieu of interest, or in payment of the mortgage money, or partly in lieu of interest [or] partly in payment of the mortgage money, the transaction is called a usufructuary mortgage and the mortgagee a usufructuary mortgagee.

The Exception to S. 67 states that nothing shall authorise a usufructuary mortgagee as such to institute a suit for sale. A familiar example of a usufructuary mortgage is a Mustajri under the Alienation of Land Act. The principle underlying the statutory prohibition is :

The essence of a usufructuary mortgage is that the mortgagee looks to the rents and profits for the satisfaction of his advance and inasmuch as no time is fixed for payment there can be no forfeiture. It is this forfeiture that gives right to the remedies of foreclosure and sale and in its absence the mortgagee is not entitled to the remedies that spring out of it (Gour's Law of Transfer in British India, Vol. 2, p. 909).

But in my opinion the present series of mortgages do not constitute an usufructuary mortgage. Cl. (2) of the original mortgage dated 9th March 1918 no doubt says : 'The amount of rent of the mortgaged property realised by the said mortgagee shall be taken credit for', but cl. (6) says :

If the entire mortgage money and the balance of interest are not paid at the termination of the said period, the rate of interest and the conditions of this mortgage deed shall continue as before even after the expiry of the term. The said mortgagee shall be competent to recover the amount due to him on demand. In case of default, the said mortgagee can recover the entire amount due to him from the mortgaged property, our person and our other property of all kinds, jointly and severally, through Court, together with the costs of Court.

A mortgage with these clauses is an anomalous mortgage as defined in S. 58 (g), T. P. Act :

A mortgage which is not a simple mortgage, a mortgage by conditional sale, a usufructuary mortgage, an English mortgage or a mortgage by deposit of title deeds within the meaning of this section is called an anomalous mortgage.

The name is suitable because while this mortgage contains one clause which would make it a usufructuary mortgage, another clause provides in the most explicit terms for recovery of the amount due from the mortgaged property. Therefore as the mortgage relied upon is not a usufructuary mortgage the ban of S. 68 has no application nor has the judgment: 141 I C 377.¹

Point No. 3. That where there is a submortgagee he alone can sue. The Subordinate Judge relied for this proposition on 18 I C 389² and 31 P R 1900.³ A headnote to 18 I C 389² does indeed contain a passage :

After the original mortgagee has made an assignment by way of submortgage, he is not entitled to exercise a power of sale as against the mortgagor.

In that case however it would appear that the original mortgagee transferred her entire rights to the submortgagee as the body of the judgment uses the word "assignment". In the present case the submortgage was not for the full rights of the present plaintiffs which they purchased for Rs. 52,000 odd and submortgaged for Rs. 40,000, i. e. they retained a substantial interest in the property. The body of the judgment in 18 I C 389² is not quite the same as the headnote. It says :

The submortgagee by virtue of the assignment is not only entitled to the usual remedies against his own mortgagor but he is also entitled to a remedy against the original mortgagor. The position of the original mortgagee after a submortgage

1. Mohammad Abdullah v. Mohammad Yasin, A I R 1933 Lah 151=141 I C 377=34 P L R 245.

2. Kanhai Lal v. Malu Deo Prasad, (1913) 18 I C 389.

3. Chela Ram v. Walldad, (1900) 31 P R 1900=219 P L R 1900 (F B).

becomes as it were that of a surety, the sub-mortgagee becoming the creditor while the original mortgagor remains the debtor. After assignment the original mortgagee is not in a position to bring a suit for sale against his mortgagor.

I agree if the assignment is of the mortgagee's entire rights. 31 P R 1900³ laid down that :

The purchasers of a submortgage of property are entitled to retain possession of it against the original mortgagor's representatives until the amount due under the submortgage is paid off, and are not obliged to see their remedy against their own transferor, i. e. the original mortgagee.

The judgment also laid down at page 111 that the submortgagee may sue the mortgagor for recovery of his money from the mortgaged property. The only thing that can possibly help the present defendants is a dictum that there is no essential difference between assignment and submortgage. Gour's Law of Transfer in British India, Volume (II), page 888, in discussing the incidents of submortgage states :

The position of the mortgagee in relation to the submortgagee is closely analogous to that of a surety and he is thus entitled to recover the debt from the original debtor but which he is bound to pay over to the submortgagee in discharge of the submortgage.

In 18 All 113⁴ a distinction was made between a submortgage and an assignment. The mortgagee made a submortgage without assigning his mortgage and it was held that the submortgagee could not bring a suit for the sale of the property originally mortgaged. This was no doubt distinguished in 29 All 385⁵ which held that :

A submortgagee of mortgagee rights in immovable property is entitled to a decree for sale of the mortgagee rights of his mortgagor.

It was not said that the prior mortgagee could not bring a suit. We were referred to 15 Bom 692⁶ which lays down:

In a suit for the redemption of land which has been submortgaged by the mortgagee in which suit the submortgagees are co-defendants, the mortgagee is entitled to have an account taken of the submortgage. The judgment should direct an account of what is due to the original mortgagee and then of what is due to the submortgagee.

The present case is almost the converse of that one. The matter would be free from difficulty if the mortgagees and the submortgagees had united to bring their suit, but if the submortgagee for any reason does not wish to be joined as a plaintiff I cannot see either in authority or in principle any ground for holding that the mortgagee cannot bring the suit to assert the right which is still vested in him. I would therefore accept the appeal, reverse the judgment of the Subordinate Judge and remit the case to his Court for procedure in accordance with law. Stamp on appeal to be refunded. Costs of this hearing to be borne by the defendants. In the course of his judgment the Senior Subordinate Judge said :

In view of my findings on Issues 6 and 9 it is needless for me to comment on any other issue except Issue 7 which relates to limitation.

He went on however to add that the plaintiffs had succeeded in establishing that the property in dispute was mortgaged to Mool Chand and Company, that the plaintiffs were their legal successors-in-interest and that the sale in favour of the plaintiffs was not benami. He gave no reasons for these opinions and none of these points have been argued before us especially in view of the introductory words of his paragraph. I would hold that there is no finding on these points, and as the issues dealing with them have to be re-decided, reasons may be given for the findings.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

S.C./D.S.

Case remanded.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 148

BHIDE J.

Sadhu Ram — Decree holder —

Appellant.

v.

Kishori Lal — Judgment-debtor —

Respondent.

Exn. Second Appeal No. 339 of 1937, Decided on 29th October 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Ambala, D/- 14th Dec. 1936.

* Provincial Insolvency Act (1920), S. 4 (2) — Execution of decree — Decree declared to be fictitious by Insolvency Court — Decree becomes non-existent — Decree cannot be executed — Insolvency decisions are binding on parties for all purposes even after proceedings are dismissed.

The scope of S. 4 (2) is not limited to the insolvency proceedings only. According to it the decision of the Insolvency Court is final for all purposes. Hence, a decretal debt which has been declared by an Insolvency Court to be fictitious in proceedings on an application by the judgment-debtor for being declared insolvent to which the decree-holder was also a party cannot be re-

4. Ganga Prasad v. Chunni Lal, (1896) 18 All 118=1896 A W N 8.

5. Ram Sankar Lal v. Ganesh Prasad, (1907) 29 All 385=4 A L J 273=1907 A W N 97 (FB).

6. Narayan Vithal v. Ganojl, (1891) 15 Bom 692.

covered by an execution of that decree. The decision of the Insolvency Court is tantamount to a declaration that the decree was non-existent and the finding is binding on the judgment-debtor as well as on the creditor even though the insolvency proceedings have been dismissed. [P 149 C 2]

Tek Chand — for Appellant.

Ram Lal Anand II — for Respondent.

Judgment. — This appeal arises out of execution proceedings relating to a decree obtained by one Sadhu Ram against Kishori Lal. It appears that Kishori Lal had applied for being declared an insolvent, but his claim was resisted by one of the creditors on the ground that the debts mentioned in the petition for insolvency with the exception of one were fictitious. Amongst the debts thus alleged to have been fictitious was the debt of Sadhu Ram. The learned Judge of the Insolvency Court came to the conclusion that the decretal debt claimed by Sadhu Ram was fictitious and that the petitioner Kishori Lal was in a position to pay his debts and his application was consequently dismissed. Sadhu Ram appealed from the finding given by the learned Insolvency Judge as regards his decretal debt being fictitious but the appeal was also dismissed. Sadhu Ram thereafter applied for execution of his decree when Kishori Lal raised a plea that as the decretal debt of Sadhu Ram had been declared to be fictitious in the insolvency proceedings the decree could not be executed. The executing Court disallowed the objection but on appeal the learned District Judge has allowed it and held that the decree could not be executed. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred. The learned counsel for the appellant contended that the executing Court was not competent to go behind the decree which had not been yet set aside by any competent Court and that the decision of the Insolvency Court, which was not given on any issue arising between the present parties was no bar to execution. The learned counsel for the respondent, on the other hand, contended that the decision of the Insolvency Court was final and binding on the present parties by virtue of sub.s. (2) of S. 4, Insolvency Act, which runs as follows :

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act and notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, every such decision shall be final and binding for all purposes as between, on the one hand, the debtor and the debtor's estate and, on the other hand, all claimants against him or it and all persons claiming through or under them or any of them.

The point is not free from doubt ; but in view of the wording of the sub-section referred to above, it seems to me that the contention of the learned counsel for the respondent should prevail. According to that sub-section, the decision of the Insolvency Court is final and binding "for all purposes." The scope of the section does not seem to be limited to the insolvency proceedings only. Under the circumstances there seems to be no reason why the present execution proceedings should not be held to be covered by the words "for all purposes." The judgment-debtor is not really going behind the decree but is relying on a decision subsequently given in the insolvency proceedings to which both the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor were parties and which according to the sub-section referred to above is binding on them. It is true that there was no issue on the point as between the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder ; but both of them were apparently colluding with each other. The issue was certainly necessary for the purpose of the petition filed by the judgment-debtor and I see no good reason why it should not be held to be binding on all parties to that petition, in view of the provisions of S. 4 (2) quoted above. There is authority for the proposition that the executing Court can go into the question whether the decree sought to be executed is still subsisting and operative : cf. 25 Cal 175¹ and 19 I C 630.² In the present instance the finding of the Insolvency Court had, I think, the effect of rendering the decree inoperative, as it was tantamount to a declaration that the decree was non-existent and the finding was binding on the decree-holder as well as the judgment-debtor.

It might be urged that the judgment-debtor was himself a party to the fraud and therefore cannot plead it ; but so was the decree-holder ; and hence the plea could be entertained : cf. 114 P R 1879,³ 21 P R 1916⁴ and 13 Lah 713.⁵ Besides

1. Doyamoyi Dasi v. Sarat Chunder Mozumdar, (1898) 25 Cal 175=1 O W N 656.
2. Ugra Narain Singh v. Basan Narayan Singh, (1913) 19 I C 630=17 O W N 868=18 O L J 209.
3. Dasondhi v. Sirdar Khan, (1879) 114 P R 1879.
4. Nand Lal v. Jethu Mal, (1916) 3 A I R Lah 130=33 I C 255=21 P R 1916.
5. Qadir Bukhsh v. Hakam, (1932) 19 A I R Lah 503=139 I C 17=13 Lah 713=38 P L R 851 (F B).

the real plea to be considered was that the decree had ceased to be operative and binding. The decision of the learned District Judge appears to me to be correct. I therefore dismiss the appeal but in view of all the circumstances I leave the parties to bear their costs.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 150

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Jowand Singh and others

Convicts — Appellants.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 191 of 1937,
Decided on 6th May 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Jullundur, D/- 27th January 1937.

(a) Criminal Trial — Evidence—Testimony of witnesses cannot be rejected merely because they are relations or partisans of one side—Such testimony can be rejected when witnesses tell lies.

Where a bitter feud exists between the party which supplied the prosecution witnesses, and the party of the accused, the testimony of witnesses cannot be rejected merely because they are relations or partisans of one side unless such witnesses tell lies on material points and their conduct is unnatural. [P 150 C 2]

(b) Criminal Trial — Circumstantial evidence
Presence of injuries on body—Presumption.

Where a person has injuries on his body, it cannot be presumed merely from such circumstance that he was present at the scene of occurrence.

[P 150 C 2; P 151 C 1]

Kesar Singh — *for Appellants.*Jhanda Singh for Advocate-General —
for the Crown.

Young C. J. — Eight persons were charged under Ss. 302 and 148, I. P. C., with the murder of Harbans Singh. It was stated that Kartar Singh also who had absconded had taken part in the murder. These eight persons were tried by the learned Sessions Judge, Jullundur. He sentenced Amar Singh, Jowand Singh and Musha Singh to death. In the case of Puran Singh and Resham Singh, on account of their youth, he reduced the sentence to one of transportation for life. He acquitted the other three accused. It is unnecessary to go in detail into the facts of the case. In the village a bitter feud existed between the party which supplied the prosecution witnesses and the party of the appellants, and for a considerable period there had been cases and cross-cases arising out of their quarrels, some of them being cases in which one party alleged an assault by the other. It may certainly be taken, as the learned Judge has found, that there was a motive for the crime in the present case if a crime has been made out. The case for the prosecution as presented to the learned Judge was that at Chhawela on 23rd October 1936 the eight persons who were charged together with Kartar Singh went to Harbans Singh's field where he was ploughing his land together with the witness Chaina. They immediately attacked Harbans Singh, Lachhman Singh, one of them, with a takwa and the others with dangs. They beat him to death. Chaina's evidence was that he raised an outcry and the prosecution witnesses arrived on the scene, that after the deceased had been knocked down Amar Singh turned and gave him a couple of lathi blows on which he immediately ran away. He went to his house, remained there and gave no information to anybody. The learned Judge says in discussing the evidence that in view of the conditions prevailing in most villages, it would be wrong to reject the testimony of witnesses merely because they were related or were partisans of one side but that the trouble in the present case was that the witnesses told lies on material points and their conduct was unnatural. There were no less than six people present watching this occurrence, if in fact it happened as alleged. The six people, of whom five were Jats, stood by and watched Harbans Singh being beaten to death. We agree with the view of the learned Judge that such conduct is not natural and with him we find it hard to believe that this took place.

The learned Judge came to the view that Chaina's story that he was present was true because Chaina had injuries. We are not at all sure that this conclusion is justified by the injuries which Chaina had. Anyone might well have two small bruises and a scrape without having been beaten with a lathi or indeed having taken part in any fight. Apart from believing that Chaina was there, the learned Judge puts no faith whatever in his evidence; he says that he would only believe Chaina's evidence where he finds that it is corroborated otherwise. He does not accept the evidence of the other witnesses at all, and rightly we think, because he found them to be telling lies in material particulars. We ourselves would not accept the evidence of Chaina as the learned Sessions Judge has done, but if we were to accept it even to the extent to which he has accepted it, we do not think that the points relied upon by the learned Judge as corroborating it in fact do so. His argument really amounts to saying that because the appellants belonged to the opposite party and were interested in the various points at issue between the two parties, it is incredible to think that if Harbans Singh was assaulted they would have remained out of the fight. This of course is really begging the question. In the case of Resham Singh and Amar Singh, there is perhaps a little more than this presumption that active members of the party would join in the party's activities. It is said that when after the assault, Harbans Singh, then an injured man, was being taken to hospital at Jullundur, Resham Singh and Amar Singh followed and tried to prevent the person in charge of him from going on to Jullundur, the object obviously being to prevent a complaint being made to the police. There is also evidence that Amar Singh went to a doctor with the object of creating a false alibi. We do not think that this evidence necessarily indicates that Resham Singh and Amar Singh took any part in the fight. They are connected with the party and if some members of the party did murder Harbans Singh they would as friends possibly have been sufficiently interested to try to prevent the report being made to the police. They have not been charged with an offence arising out of this action and we therefore can consider it no further than evidence to indicate their participation in the murder. As we have said, in itself it is not enough to show that they actually took part in the murder.

In our opinion the true view to take of this case is that the evidence for the prosecution is wholly untrustworthy and we cannot therefore base on it a verdict of guilty against the accused. We allow the appeal and acquit Amar Singh, Jowand Singh, Musha Singh, Resham Singh and Puran Singh.

K.B./A.L.

Appeal allowed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 151

DALIP SINGH J.

Rev. L. T. Dineen — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

First Appeal No. 139 of 1937, Decided on 8th November 1937.

* Succession Act (1925), S. 291—Order of Court granting probate of estate of a deceased Christian and requiring petitioner to furnish security for which no time limit was fixed—Grant held conditional on furnishing security and order therefore held appealable—Deceased being Christian, security could not be demanded.

On an application for the grant of probate of the estate of a deceased Christian, the Court granted the probate for which it called upon the petitioner to pay probate duty, required an inventory and accounts to be filed, and added a clause that the petitioner should furnish security. No time however was fixed within which the security was to be furnished :

Held that on the proper construction of the order, the grant of probate was made conditional on the petitioner furnishing security and hence the order was appealable : 8 C W N ccviii; 20 Cal 245 and A I R 1929 Cal 733, Ref. [P 152 O 1]

Held further that as the deceased was a Christian, security could not be demanded under S. 291 and there was no other section under which the Court had power to demand a bond. [P 151 O 2 ; P 152 O 1]

Eric Banerji — for Appellant.

Edmunds, Administrator General—

for the Crown.

Judgment.—In this case the learned Senior Subordinate Judge, Lahore, on an application made by the Rev. Brother L. T. Dineen for grant of probate of the estate of the late Mr. Benjamin Joseph Moran, granted the probate, valued the estate at Rs. 6324.5.0 for which he called upon the petitioner to pay probate duty, required an inventory and accounts to be filed by the petitioner within the prescribed period of six months and one year respectively, and added a clause that the petitioner should furnish security for Rs. 6400. An application for review of this order was put in on the ground that as the deceased Moran was a Christian, security could not be demanded. The learned Judge however held that S. 291, Succession Act, was no bar to demanding security in probate cases and dismissed the review petition. The petitioner has come in appeal. A preliminary objection has been raised by the Administrator General that no appeal lies and 8 C W N ccviii (Notes)¹, 20 Cal 245²

1. Rangini Das v. Debendra Narain Singha, (1904) 8 C W N ccviii (Notes).

2. Lucas v. Lucas, (1893) 20 Cal 245.

and 125 I C 99³ have been cited in support. In this case however, it seems to me, on a proper construction of the order, that the grant of probate was made conditional on the petitioner furnishing security for Rs. 6400. This is obvious when one considers that no time was fixed in the order within which the petitioner had to furnish the security. It would follow therefore either that the Court meant to keep this application in a state of suspense until the petitioner happened to furnish the security required, or it intended that the grant of probate should be conditional on his furnishing security. It seems to me the latter construction is the only reasonable one to take in the circumstances and I therefore hold that this order is appealable.

On the merits, it again appears clear from the terms of S. 291 that the District Judge is given a discretion to demand a bond from a person to whom probate is granted only when the deceased was a Hindu, Mahomedan, Buddhist, Sikh or Jain or an exempted person, as defined in S. 3 of the Act. It is conceded very properly by the learned Administrator General that the present deceased was not within any of the categories above detailed. There is no other section which gives a District Judge or any one else power to demand a bond from a person to whom probate is granted. It seems that there has been a change under the new Act which is pointed out in the commentary on this section by Mr. Sen Gupta at page 928. I therefore accept this appeal and make the order granting probate unconditional, that is to say I set aside the order demanding security. There will be no order as to costs.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

3. Monmohini Dassi v. Taramoni, (1929) 16 A I R Cal 788=125 I C 99.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 152

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Indar Ram and another—

Judgment-debtors — Appellants.

v.

Lila Dhar — Decree-holder —

Respondent.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 24 of 1937, Decided on 28th April 1937, from judgment of Tek Chand J., D/- 21st November 1936.

(a) Execution — Execution of mortgage decree by Revenue Officer—Procedure.

The procedure to be followed by a Revenue Officer carrying out a sale of land in satisfaction of a mortgage decree is that laid down in the Civil Procedure Code, the rules applicable being Rr. 65 to 69, 71, 72, 73, 84, 85, 88 and 89 of O. 21 in the absence of any rules by the Financial Commissioner or declaration by the Local Government.

[P 153 C 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 66 (2)—Application for sale giving required information—No presumption that proclamation issued by Collector did so.

The fact that the decree-holder's application for sale gave most of the information required by sub-r. (2) of R. 66 of O. 21, raises no presumption that the proclamation issued by the Collector did so.

[P 154 C 1]

(c) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, R. 90—Material irregularity in publishing and conducting sale—Auction price grossly inadequate—Substantial loss may be presumed.

Where there has been material irregularity in publishing and conducting a sale, and the price fetched by the auction is proved to be grossly inadequate, the Court may presume that substantial loss has been suffered by reason of the irregularity: 40 Cal 635 (P C), Rel. on.

[P 154 C 2]

Sardar Sahib Sardar Iqbal Singh —
for Appellants.

Mehr Chand Mahajan and Krishna Swarup — for Respondent.

Coldstream J.—On 15th March 1935 two properties belonging to Indar and Rawat, (1) a half-share in 1307 bighas of land with shamilat rights in Risaliya Khera and (2) a half-share in 234 bighas in Ratta Khera with shamilat rights in Sirsa Tahsil, were sold by auction in execution of a final mortgage decree for Rs. 17,375 with costs and future interest passed on 1st October 1934 in favour of Lila Dhar against the owners. The purchaser was the decree-holder. Indar and Rawat filed objections to the sale under O. 21, R. 90, Civil P. C. These were dismissed by the (executing Court, Senior Subordinate Judge of Hissar), on 9th May 1936 who confirmed the sale. An appeal by the judgment-debtors was dismissed on 21st November 1936 by Tek Chand J. and the judgment-debtors have preferred an appeal under S. 10, Letters Patent of the Court.

The executing Court was moved to sell the land by a regular application submitted on 10th November 1934 by Lila Dhar under R. 66 of O. 21 and a notice to settle the terms of the proclamation was served on the judgment-debtors for appearance on 25th January 1935. The judgment-debtors refused (and this is clearly proved) to accept these notices, but on 12th January 1935, Indar and Rawat put in an application asking that the lands be not sold but leased as the owners were members of an agricultural tribe. On 25th January, on which date Indar appeared in Court, the Senior Subordinate Judge dismissed the application for having the land leased instead of sold as it was found that the judgment-debtors were not members of an agricultural tribe, and ordered the sale to be conducted through the Collector to whom the papers were to be sent. The Collector was asked to sell, or have the land sold, by an Extra Assistant Commissioner ('deputy') after proper proclamation. The executing Court at the same time allowed the decree-holder to bid at the auction on condition that the Court might reject his bid. Next day the Collector ordered that the warrants of sale with sale proclamations be issued, that the sale be conducted by the Tahsildar to whom the papers were to be sent and that the Tahsildar should report about the sale before 30th March. The warrants were sent to the Tahsildar and a note on them shows that copies of the sale proclamations had been affixed to the Court door. On 2nd February the Tahsildar forwarded the papers to the Naib Tahsildar of Dabwali and on 6th February the Naib Tahsildar passed an order that the sales be proclaimed and the sale be held on 24th February 1935.

On 22nd February the sale was proclaimed by beat of drum, in both the villages in which the land is situated, for the 24th February. On the 24th the Naib Tahsildar postponed the sale to 15th March because he could not go to the place that day. He ordered that the sale be proclaimed again for 15th March. On 4th March the sale was proclaimed in one village Risalia Khera by beat of drum and the proclamation was put up in the village. The sale of all the land was held in Risalia Khera on 15th March, and as already stated, the decree-holder's bids were successful. It is contended that the procedure in ordering proclamation and conducting the sale was materially irregular throughout, that the prices fetched by the two parcels of land were ridiculously low and that the inadequacy of the prices may fairly be attributed to the irregularities.

It must be conceded that the procedure in ordering and conducting the sale was not regular. In view of the provisions of S. 141, Punjab Land Revenue Act, the executing Court acted rightly in forwarding the order for sale to the Collector. According to that section, the Collector in such cases has to proceed in conformity with the law applicable to the Court issuing the order for sale and with any rules made by the Financial Commissioner. The rules in the Financial Commissioner's Standing Order 64 about the attachment and sale of agricultural produce and of land, which embody the rules made by this Court and set forth in Chs. 12M and N, of its Rules and Orders, Vol. I, do not appear to relate to sales in execution of mortgage decrees. To such sales, S. 72, Civil P. C. has no application nor has the Local Government issued any declaration under S. 68 of the Code. In the execution of mortgage decrees no attachment is necessary. It follows that the procedure to be followed by a revenue officer carrying out a sale of land in satisfaction of a mortgage decree is that laid down in the Civil Procedure Code, the rules applicable being Rr. 65 to 69, 71, 72, 73, 84, 85, 88 and 89 of O. 21.

Assuming that R. 11 (i) of the High Court Rules in Ch. 12M of Vol. I of the Rules and Orders does not apply, the sale ought to have been carried out by the Collector himself for the order for sale was not addressed to any other officer. The executing Court did authorize the Collector to depute his Extra Assistant Commissioner (described as 'deputy' in the order) but there was no order authorizing a sale by a Tahsildar or by a nominee of the Tahsildar. If R. 11 of the High Court Rules is applicable to sales under a mortgage decree, the sale of property worth many thousand rupees by a Naib Tahsildar was not only not authorized by that Rule but contrary to its provisions.

It is contended that no proclamation under R. 66 of O. 21 of the Procedure Code was issued by the Collector. It is clear that some kind of proclamation was issued by the Collector, for the warrant of sale issued by the Collector on 26th January 1935 bears a note that one copy of the "notice" had been affixed to the door of the Court and an order that the warrant with a notice of the sale be sent to the Tahsildar of Sirsa. The Naib Tahsildar's order of 6th February that the sale be proclaimed and that it be held on 24th February 1935 contravened the provision of Rule 68 of O. 21 of the Code and the fixing of the sale for a date before the expiry of thirty days from 26th January was a material irregularity. The Naib Tahsildar, as already mentioned, postponed the date of the sale to 24th February 1935. Power to postpone in the circumstances is nowhere expressly conferred upon a delegate of the Collector. The postponement by the Naib Tahsildar was not an adjournment under R. 69 of O. 21. That Rule contemplates an adjournment when the sale is beginning or has begun, that is to say when the bidders are present and can take notice of the date when the sale will be held. R. 83 does not apply to sales in execution of mortgage decrees, but allows adjournment of sales in other cases to make a judgment-debtor to raise the amount of the decree. The adjournment was materially irregular.

Next it is contended that the proclamation issued by the Collector was not in conformity with the provisions of R. 66 of O. 21. Unfortunately we do not know what the contents of the proclamation published were, for no copy is on the record of the proceedings either of the executing Court or of the Collector. The executing Court as already mentioned issued notice under sub-r. 2 of the Rule which notice was refused. I can find nothing on the record to show that the executing Court drew up any proclamation, the record indicates that it did not. As the executing Court could not fix the time and date of sale, it could not have drawn up a proper proclamation which only the Collector could do. The Collector did not issue any notice under that sub-rule at all. The fact that the decree-holder's application for sale gave most of the information required by the sub-rule (it did not state the estimated value of the land) raises no presumption that the proclamation issued by the Collector did so. It follows that the sale took place without the Court having given notice to the judgment-debtor under sub-r. 2. This was certainly a material irregularity. Proclamation for sale on 24th February was made in both Ratta Khera and Risalia Khera. But no proclamation for the sale on 15th March was published in Ratta Khera which is about two miles from Risalia Khera. The omission contravened R. 67 read with R. 54 of the Procedure Code.

As regards the auction itself, I may mention that besides the decree-holder himself, five persons bid for the property in Ratta Khera and six for the land in Risalia Khera, the number of bids made being 24 and 43 respectively. The bidders were all Mahajans except one who was a Khatri.

It is not proved that the other bidders colluded with the decree-holder. A large number of local zamindars was present but, as stated by them to the Naib Tahsildar, they were unable to bid as they had not the money ready for the required deposit. (They asked for postponement of the sale until July by which time their crops would be sold). There was also a suit of the usual obstructive kind pending by a son of a judgment-debtor for a declaration that the mortgage was invalid. That there were material irregularities in proclaiming and selling the lands is not now disputed before us for it is clear that the procedure in the Revenue Courts leading up to the sale was wholly irregular, but the sale cannot be set aside unless upon the facts proved, we are satisfied that the appellants have sustained substantial injury by reason of the irregularities.

That where there has been material irregularity in publishing and conducting a sale, and the price fetched by the auction is proved to be grossly inadequate, the Court may presume that substantial loss has been suffered by reason of the irregularity seems clear from the judgment of their Lordships of the Privy Council in 40 Cal 635¹ at p. 643. The question is whether it is satisfactorily proved that the price obtained in this case was substantially below the real value of the property. The area sold in Ratta Khera fetched about Rs. 19 and that in Risalia Khera about Rs. 24 per acre not including the shamilat rights which in Ratta Khera extended to about 100 acres. The revenue payable on the Ratta Khera land was Rs. 61-15-0 and on the Risalia Khera land Rs. 340-4-10 and the price fetched was roughly 35 times the revenue in Ratta Khera and 46 times the revenue in Risalia Khera. This is certainly a low price if we compare it with that fetched on the average for land sold in the Province which in the five years ending 1930-31 was 260 times the revenue, in 1933-34, 311 times the revenue, and in 1934-35, 241 times the revenue (see Report on the Land Revenue Administration of the Punjab for the year ending 30th September 1935). Unfortunately we do not know what was the quality of the land sold, nor what was the estimate of its value (if any estimate was made) proclaimed by the Collector. One witness, a potter by caste, produced by the judgment-debtor, stated that the land was worth Rs. 50,000 or 60,000 but he had never bought land himself. Another, a nephew of the judgment-debtor, Indar stated he had bought 160 bighas (about 80 acres) of land for Rs. 10,000 (Rs. 125 per acre) jointly with nine other men. For his share he had paid Rs. 500. This sale was, however, about six months after the auction. A copy of the sale deed was produced (it is on the record). The decree-holder produced no evidence about value. One Ghuman offered Rs. 17,000 for the land in Risalia Khera, that is to say, Rs. 1300 more than the auction price. He was allowed ten days to deposit a fourth of the sum offered. This he failed to do.

1. Tekait Krishna Prasad Singh v. Moti Chand, (1913) 40 Cal 635=19 I O 296=40 I A 140 (P O).

From the judgment of the executing Court confirming the sale, it appears that the only objections raised before it (although the application set forth a great number of other objections) were that there was no proclamation and no beat of drum so that only a few bidders came to the auction, that the institution of the declaratory suit by one of the judgment-debtor's sons made people afraid to bid, and that the land was not saleable because the owners were members of an agricultural tribe. Having regard to the objections pressed before the executing Court and the inconclusive nature of the evidence regarding the real value of the property sold, I am unable to find it proved that substantial loss was caused to the judgment-debtors by reason of the irregularities in the proclamation and sale of the land. I would accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

Din Mohammad J.—I agree.

T.M./D.S. Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 155

BHIDE J.

Ram Lal and another — Defendants
— Appellants.

v.

Firm Karam Chand-Gopal Chand,
Plaintiff and another, Defendant
— Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 128 of 1937, Decided on 21st April 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Jhelum, D/- 30th October 1936.

* Contract Act (1872), S. 25—Promise to pay—Entry signed by debtor but not containing words amounting to promise to pay—Entry does not fulfil requirements of S. 25.

Mere implied promise to pay is not sufficient for the purposes of S. 25. [P 156 C 1]

More than three years from the last item of account the balance was struck and signed by the debtor. The entry however contained no words which could amount to a promise to pay. On a suit being brought on the basis of such entry:

Held that the entry did not fulfil the requirements of S. 25: A I R 1933 Lah 209 and C. A. No. 1675 of 1935, Rel. on; A I R 1929 Lah 263 and A I R 1934 Lah 835, Disting. [P 156 C 1]

Achhru Ram — for Appellants.

Sant Singh for Brij Lal —

for Respondents.

Judgment.—This is a second appeal arising out of a suit for recovery of Rs. 580 inclusive of principal and interest. The suit was dismissed by the trial Court but was decreed on appeal by the learned District Judge. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred. The suit was based on a balance, dated the 30th December 1929, which was struck more than three years after the last item of account. The contention of the plaintiff was that this balance amounted to a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25, Contract Act, and therefore the suit was maintainable, although the balance was struck after the expiry of the period of limitation since the last item. The trial Court held that the wording of the balance did not fulfil the requirements of S. 25, as there was no express promise to pay to be found in the wording of the balance. The learned District Judge however took a contrary view and held that the requirements of that section were fulfilled. The learned District Judge has referred to two rulings of this Court, namely *A I R 1929 Lah 263*¹ and A I R 1934 Lah 835.² In the first ruling, in view of the relations between the parties and the nature of the entry relating to the balance, it was held that the entry amounted to a novation of contract within the meaning of Art. 64, Limitation Act. In the present instance no reliance was placed before me on this Article. The second ruling *A I R 1934 Lah 835*² was based on the specific words "dewne kite" used in the entry in that case which were taken to amount to an express promise to pay. In the present instance no such words are to be found in the entry in question. The entry is merely to the effect that "Rs. 489-6-0 baqi kadhi lekha uprle wichon sambat 1986, pohdin 15". This is followed by the signatures of the debtor. There are no words in this entry which could be held to amount to a promise to pay. The question whether the entry imports a promise to pay seems to be irrelevant for the purpose of S. 25, Contract Act, for there is ample authority in support of the proposition that a mere implied promise to pay is not sufficient for the purposes of that section. The question was discussed by me in A I R 1933 Lah 209³ and in C. A. No. 1675 of 1935 recently decided by Jai Lal J. in which the case law has been considered at length.

1. Kahanchand Dula Ram v. Daya Ram Amrit Ram, A I R 1929 Lah 263=115 I C 764=10 Lah 745=30 P LR 240.

2. Nihal Ram Chela Ram v. Radhu Ram Hukmi Ram, A I R 1934 Lah 835=155 I C 1074=16 Lah 258.

The learned counsel for the respondent was not able to cite any authority in which an entry of which the wording was similar to the entry in the present case was held to fulfil the requirements of S. 25, Contract Act. I therefore accept this appeal and setting aside the order of the learned District Judge restore that of the trial Court with costs throughout.

W.D./A.L.

Appeal allowed.

3. Mukhilal Chand v. Gul Muhammad, A I R 1933 Lah 209=141 I O 617=34 P L R 430.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 156

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Mila—Plaintiff—Appellant.

v.

Mangal Ram and another—

Defendants—Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 138 of 1937, Decided on 2nd June 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Jullundur, D/- 12th November 1936.

(a) Transfer of Property Act (1882)—Applicability to Punjab.

The principles of the Transfer of Property Act are enforced in the Punjab. [P 157 O 1]

* (b) Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 53—Transfer preferring one creditor to another is not void if debtor retains no benefit for himself—Debtor, during execution of decree against him of one creditor, mortgaging his property to third person and keeping consideration of mortgage in mortgagee's hand to be paid to debtor's prior mortgagee—Transfer is not affected by S. 53.

The transfer which defeats or delays creditors is not an instrument which prefers one creditor to another, but an instrument which removes property from the creditors to the benefit of the debtor. The debtor must not retain any benefit for himself. He may pay one creditor and leave another unpaid. [P 157 O 1]

A debtor, during the execution of a simple money decree against him of a creditor and while in civil prison executed a mortgage in favour of a third person. The consideration of the mortgage was not received by him in cash but was left in the hands of the mortgagee to be paid to the debtor's prior mortgagee. The debtor did not retain any benefit to himself:

Held that the transfer was in principle only a transfer which paid off previous creditor to the disadvantage of another creditor and therefore was not affected by S. 53, T. P. Act. [P 158 O 1]

Held further that the circumstance that the debtor's action was prompted by revenge against the creditor who got him imprisoned was irrelevant: A I R 1915 P C 115, Foll.; A I R 1934 Lah 161, Disting. [P 158 O 1]

Aohhru Ram and Inder Dev Dua—

for Appellant.

Jhanda Singh—for Respondents.

Skemp J.—The facts which have led to this second appeal are not in dispute. On 20th February 1932 one Mangal Ram obtained a simple money decree for Rs. 1600 and Rs. 200 costs against Batna, a Jat. On 29th June 1934 Mangal Ram applied for execution of the decree by attachment of the judgment-debtor's land measuring 25 kanals 7 marlas and by arrest of the judgment-debtor. The judgment-debtor was arrested on 3rd July and on 24th July, while still in the civil prison, he executed a deed of mortgage of his land in favour of Mila Arain which was registered the following day. The land was not attached until 31st July although the field Kanungo had received the warrant of attachment on 12th July. On 17th January 1927 Batna had mortgaged his house in favour of Ram Lal, Walaiti Ram and Khairati Ram, a father and his two sons, by three separate deeds each for Rs. 80 bearing interest at 2 per cent. per mensem. The consideration for the mortgage deed of 24th July 1934 was Rs. 560 being Rs. 28 for expenses of the deed and Rs. 532 to be retained by Mila mortgagee for payment to the three mortgagees of the house. Mila preferred an objection in the execution of Mangal Ram's decree to the attachment of Batna's land. This objection was dismissed and he then brought the present suit for a declaration that he was a mortgagee of the land. The defendant Mangal Ram relied on S. 53, T. P. Act. The trial Judge found that S. 53 did not govern the case, that the transfer was not fraudulent and granted the plaintiff a decree upholding the mortgage. On appeal the learned District Judge took the contrary view that the mortgage in favour of Mila was fraudulent and avoided by S. 53. The sole question for determination in this appeal is whether the mortgage is avoided by S. 53, T. P. Act. The principles of the Transfer of Property Act are of course enforced in the Punjab. The relevant part of S. 53 runs :

Every transfer of immovable property made with intent to defeat or delay the creditors of the transferor shall be voidable at the option of any creditor so defeated or delayed.

It took its present form in 1929. In England the law was contained in certain statutes of Queen Elizabeth which have recently been repealed and replaced by S. 173 (2), Law of Property Act (1925), which the amended section of the Transfer of Property Act follows closely. The prohibition is statutory. In the principles of the common law there is nothing to prevent a man from doing what he likes with his own property. The limitations have been introduced by statutes from motives of equity. The first thing to notice about the statute both in this country and in England is that the transfer must not be made with intent to delay or defeat the creditors, i. e. the creditors as a body and accordingly it has been laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 43 Cal 521¹ at page 525 that :

The transfer which defeats or delays creditors is not an instrument which prefers one creditor to another, but an instrument which removes property from the creditors to the benefit of the debtor. The debtor must not retain a benefit for himself. He may pay one creditor and leave another unpaid.

The record in the present case makes no mention of any other creditors except Mangal Ram and Ram Lal and his two sons. Prima facie the case would appear to be a preference of one creditor (Ram Lal and his sons were practically one creditor) to another. If this is so, then the fact that the transfer was made deliberately to defeat the creditor who had imprisoned Batna makes no difference. A possible point of distinction in this case is that the transfer was made not to Ram Lal and his sons but to Mila an outsider and not a creditor. This is the argument relied on by the learned District Judge who says :

The case of a transferee who happens to be a previous creditor is entirely different from that of a person to whom the transfer is made for cash consideration. In the former case there was no duty cast upon a previous creditor to forgo his claim in favour of the other creditor. But a transferee who pays cash consideration . . . has to satisfy the Court that the transaction was bona fide and was not a contrivance to defraud the attaching creditors.

As has been shown above, the consideration for Mila's mortgage deed was not cash but Mila was to retain the money for payment to the previous creditors. The respondent's counsel argues that it is the same as if Mila had paid Batna in cash and then Batna had paid off the mortgagees. Mr. Achhru Ram for the appellant on the other hand argues that in principle the transaction is the same as if the land had been mortgaged to pay off the prior mortgagees. An important point is whether Batna the debtor retained any benefit for himself. He obtained so much that by virtue of S. 60, Civil P. C., the house would probably have been exempt from attachment in execution of Mangal Ram's decree, whereas Ram Lal and his sons to whom the house was mortgaged could have obtained foreclosure, but this benefit is more apparent than real because by virtue of S. 5, Punjab Debtors' Protection Act 1936, it would probably now be held that the judgment-debtor's land was partly exempted from temporary alienation. As a matter of fact, S. 5 did not do much more than crystallize previous practice. I do not think, therefore, that the judgment-debtor retained much advantage for himself out of the transaction. The learned District Judge relied on a passage in 35 P L R 163², a Single Bench Judgment. In that judgment Jai Lal J. said:

There is ample authority in support of the proposition that where the transfer is in favour of a creditor for a pre-existing debt, the knowledge of the creditor that the transfer is likely to defeat or delay the other creditors does not make the transfer 'in his favour voidable under S. 53'.

He cited seven judgments in support of this proposition and proceeded:

A distinction has been drawn in these cases between a transfer made in consideration of ready cash and a transfer made in discharge of pre-existing debts. In the first mentioned case the question of good faith of the transferee does arise. In the second class of cases, however, it has been held that no question of good faith arises.

I have already pointed out that Batna did not obtain ready cash by means of the

1. Musahar Sahu v. Hakim Lal, A I R 1915 P O 115=82 I O 848=48 I A 104=48 Cal 521 (P O).

2. Gobind Ram v. Ohbog Mal, A I R 1934 Lah 161=152 I O 472=35 PLR 163.

mortgage to Mila. I have however examined the seven rulings cited and find that the reference to ready cash is made in only one of them, i. e. A I R 1930 Mad 665.³ There it was said at page 668:

If the transfer be for cash and be made to a stranger who had knowledge of the intention of the transferor to convert the immovable property (which cannot be secreted), into money, (which could easily be secreted) and to defeat the creditors of the transferor, then the transfer would be invalid.

Put in this way, it will be seen that the obiter dictum of Jai Lal J. has no application to the present case. In my judgment this transfer is in principle a transfer which paid off three previous creditors to the disadvantage of one. The debtor retained nothing substantial for himself and the circumstance that his action was prompted by revenge against Mangal Ram for getting him imprisoned is irrelevant. I would therefore accept this appeal but direct the parties to bear their own costs throughout. It would indeed appear that this is the first occasion on which the point has arisen in its present form.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

3. Mohideen Tharagan v. Muhammad Mustappah Rowther, A I R 1930 Mad 665=126 I C 604.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 158

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Naman — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

Uttam — Plaintiff — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 945 of 1937, Decided on 6th December 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Jullundur, D/- 16th April 1937.

(a) Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act (1 of 1920), Art. 1 — Suit attacking will—Limitation cannot be avoided by cleverly wording plaint.

Alienation includes a testamentary disposition of property and where a suit in substance is a suit attacking a will, it is not open to the plaintiff by cleverly wording his plaint to avoid the proper limitation for the suit : A I R 1934 Lah 913, Approved; A I R 1935 Lah 313, Dissent.; A I R 1934 Lah 725, Rel. on. [P 159 C 1]

(b) Interpretation of Statutes — Duty of Court.

It is not for Judges where the words are clear to attempt to get round a statute. [P 159 C 1]

Shamair Chand — for Appellant.

Prem Nath Bhardwaj — for Respondent.

Addison J. — The following pedigree-table is necessary in order to understand this appeal :

Uttam instituted a suit, stating that his nephew Naman had taken possession of the entire land left by Pala and that Uttam and Naman were equally entitled to the land. Uttam accordingly brought a suit for possession of one-half of the land left by Pala. Naman contended that Pala had executed a registered will in his favour on 10th January 1902 and that as that will had not been challenged within the period of limitation allowed by the Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act 1 of 1920, the suit was barred by time. It was also asserted that the land was not ancestral and therefore the plaintiff had no right to recover any portion thereof. The Courts below have held that only 16 kanals of land were ancestral qua the plaintiff, that the plaintiff could only succeed with respect to the ancestral land and that the suit was not time-barred. They therefore granted a decree for possession of 16 kanals of land with a proportionate share in the shamilat to the plaintiff. Against this decision Naman defendant has preferred this second appeal. Apparently, on the findings arrived at, the Courts below should have granted the plaintiff a decree for only one-half of 16 kanals of land with a proportionate share in the shamilat, as Naman is obviously entitled to half of that area along with Uttam.

In coming to the conclusion that the suit was not barred by time, the Courts below have based their decision on A I R 1935 Lah 313.¹ They did set out, as held in 6 Lah 206² and 16 Lah 237³ that what has to be regarded is the true effect of the suit, not its formal or verbal description; but as in A I R 1935 Lah 313,¹ this consideration was not given effect to, the Courts below held that the plaintiff could frame his suit so as to get round the provisions of Punjab Act 1 of 1920. It was stated there that a suit, which was based purely on the right of inheritance and in which there was an alienation set up and relied upon by the defendant, could not be considered to be a suit on the ground that the alienation was not binding on the plaintiff so as to bring it within the provisions of section 7 of the Act. Curiously enough, one of the Judges who decided A I R 1935 Lah 313¹ was one of the Judges who decided 16 Lah 237,³ where the contrary was held to be the correct view. The matter has come before another Division Bench which in A I R 1934 Lah 913⁴ has held that where a suit in substance is a suit attacking a will, it is not open to the plaintiffs by cleverly wording their plaint to avoid the proper limitation for the suit. We have no hesitation in endorsing this view. "Alienation" is defined in section 3 of the Act to include any testamentary disposition of property. Limitation is provided for in the Schedule to the Act. Art. 1 gives the limitation for a suit for a declaration that an alienation of ancestral immovable property will not, according to custom, be binding on the plaintiff after the death of the alienor, and if the alienation is by a registered deed, the date of registration of such deed provides the starting point for limitation which is six years. Under section 6 of the Act, therefore, a suit for a declaration should have been brought in 1921, seeing that "alienation" includes a testamentary disposition of property. It was said in A I R 1935 Lah 313¹ that though a will was registered, no one except the executant or his agent was competent to take inspection or copies and it would be scarcely justifiable to take registration as sufficient notice for the purposes of limitation. This question however does not arise, for, according to Article 1 of the Schedule, limitation starts from the date of registration of the deed effecting the alienation which, according to section 3 of the Act, includes a testamentary disposition of property. It is not for Judges, where the words are clear, to attempt to get round a statute.

1. Gopal Singh v. Thakar Singh, (1935) 22 A I R Lah 313.

2. Kaura v. Ramchand, (1925) 12 A I R Lah 985=88 I C 945=6 Lah 206=26 P L R 383.

3. Milkha Singh v. Ramkishan, (1934) 21 A I R Lah 725=154 I C 988=16 Lah 287=37 P L R 353.

Article 2 of the Schedule provides that in a suit for possession of ancestral immovable property which has been alienated on the ground that the alienation is not binding on the plaintiff according to custom, where no declaratory decree of the nature referred to in Article 1 is obtained, the period of limitation is six years from the date of registration of the document. This suit for possession therefore is clearly time-barred. For the reasons given we accept the appeal and, setting aside the decrees of the Courts below, we dismiss the plaintiff's suit. The parties will, however, bear their own costs throughout.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 159

DIN MOHAMMAD J.

Nazir Ahmad — Defendant —

Petitioner.

v.

*Jiwan Das and another — Plaintiffs
— Respondents.*

Civil Revn. Appln. No. 837 of 1936, Decided on 26th April 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Shahpur, Sargodha, D/- 31st August 1936.

* Contract Act (1872), S. 25 (2)—Contract by minor—Ratification on attaining majority—Effect—Consideration in earlier contract cannot be imported into subsequent contract—S. 25 (2) does not apply.

A contract entered into by a minor, being null and void, its subsequent ratification by the minor on attaining the age of majority cannot form a valid contract on which a suit can be maintained. The consideration which passed under the earlier contract cannot be imported into the contract into which the minor entered on attaining majority. S. 25 (2) has no application to the contract of this kind : A I R 1935 Lah 561 (F B), Foll.

[P 160 C 1]

* (b) Contract Act (1872), S. 25 (3)—Petitioner entering into money bond to pay off father's time-barred debts—Decree can be passed only against estate of deceased in petitioner's hands — He is not personally liable.

Where the petitioner enters into a money bond not to raise personal loan but only to pay off his deceased father's time-barred debts, a decree on the bond can be passed only against the estate of the deceased in his hands, but no personal decree can be passed against the petitioner : A I R 1934 Cal 178 and A I R 1929 All 586, Rel. on.

[P 160 C 2]

Mohsin Shah — for Petitioner.

S. D. Puri — for Respondents.

Order. — Jiwan Das and his brother instituted a suit against Nazir Ahmad for recovery of Rs. 340 on the footing of an instalment bond said to have been executed by Nazir Ahmad in their favour on 16th January 1934. Nazir Ahmad resisted the suit mainly on the ground that the bond was without consideration. At the trial, it transpired that the bond in suit was executed in lieu of another bond which had been jointly executed on 9th January 1931, by Nazir Ahmad and one Ilam Din, the second husband of Nazir Ahmad's mother. That bond too had been executed in lieu of a previous bond dated 17th March 1930, by Nazir Ahmad and Ilam Din. The consideration of that bond was a previous bond executed on 30th July 1926, by Nazir Ahmad's mother Mt. Kaki as a guardian of Nazir Ahmad, minor, and her second husband Ilam Din, the consideration of the bond being some old debts owed by Nazir Ahmad's father, Lal Din, to Jiwan Das and his brother in relation to which a balance was said to have been struck by Lal Din on 23rd August 1923. Holding that Nazir Ahmad was a minor in 1930, when he along with Ilam Din executed the first bond in favour of Jiwan Das and his brother and that consequently the bond was void qua him and so were his subsequent ratifications thereof, the trial Court dismissed the suit. On appeal, the Senior Subordinate Judge, while agreeing with the finding of the trial Court as to the original bond executed by Nazir Ahmad being void, decreed the suit on the ground that his execution of the last bond dated 16th January 1934 was for consideration, having been executed in lieu of a bond that was valid qua Ilam Din. It is against this decision that the present petition has been lodged by Nazir Ahmad.

⁴ Mohammad Ali Khan v. Anwar Hussain (1934) 21 A I R Lah 918=155 I C 1104.

Counsel for the petitioner relies on 16 Lah 546,¹ where a Full Bench of this Court has held that a contract entered into by a minor being null and void, its subsequent ratification by the minor on attaining the age of majority cannot form a valid contract on which a suit can be maintained. The consideration which passed under the earlier contract cannot be imported into the contract into which the minor entered on attaining majority. The learned Judges have also observed that S. 25 (2), Contract Act, has no application to a contract of this kind. In my view, in the absence of any circumstances distinguishing the present case from the one before the Full Bench, there can be no question but that the present petition must succeed.

1. Govind Ram v. Piran Ditta, A I R 1935 Lah 561=158 I O 248=16 Lah 546=87 P L R 690 (F B).

The only point of distinction that has been urged by the respondent's counsel is that in the bond of 1931, Ilam Din was a joint executant with Nazir Ahmad and that it was on account of the inducement made by Nazir Ahmad that Jiwan Das and his brother gave up their claim against Ilam Din and contented themselves with a bond from Nazir Ahmad alone. There is however not a shred of evidence on the record in support of this allegation. This point does not appear to have been raised even before the Court below. The statement of Jiwan Das himself before the trial Court is inconsistent with the position now taken up on his behalf. The only thing he stated there was that he gave up his claim against Ilam Din as Nazir Ahmad assented to executing a bond on his own account. This in my view is quite different from saying that Nazir Ahmad had induced Jiwan Das and his brother to abstain from proceeding against Ilam Din. This ground therefore fails leaving the present case clearly within the purview of the Full Bench judgment alluded to above.

Counsel for the petitioner has further urged that, inasmuch as no personal loan had been raised by Nazir Ahmad, it was not open to the Senior Sub-Judge to have passed a personal decree against him. At the most a decree could be passed against the estate of the deceased in his hands. He has relied in this connexion on A I R 1934 Cal 178² and 51 All 983.³ Counsel for the respondent concedes that the law is as stated by the petitioner's counsel. In any circumstances therefore, no personal decree could be passed against Nazir Ahmad. In view however of my finding on the first point that the bond was without consideration, and that the subsequent ratifications of Nazir Ahmad could not validate a contract which was void ab initio, I allow this petition, set aside the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit. In view of the fact however that Nazir Ahmad's father did owe something to Jiwan Das and his brother which is now lost, I leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

V.B.B./A.L.

Application allowed.

2. Abani Bilas v. Kantil Chandra, A I R 1934 Cal 178=148 I O 1035=88 O W N 258.

3. Asa Ram v. Karam Singh, A I R 1929 All 586=119 I O 109=51 All 983=1929 A L J 901.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 161*

SKEMP J.

Bur Singh — Defendant — Appellant.
v.Santa Singh and others, Plaintiffs and another, Defendant — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1156 of 1936, Decided on 15th March 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Lyallpur, D/- 20th June 1936.

* Civil P. C. (1908,) O. 41, R. 27 (1) (b)—Test laid down in Cl. (b) is one relating to state of mind of Appellate Court and not external standard.

The test laid down in Clause (b) of O. 41, R. 27, viz. 'If the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment' is one relating to the state of mind of the Appellate Court and not an external standard. In other words, the test is not, whether any tribunal would be unable to pronounce any judgment without the production of the additional evidence in question, but, whether the mind of the appellate Judge is in such a condition on the evidence on record that he requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable him to pronounce judgment. The object is to enable the appellate Judge to satisfy his own mind, when he entertains a doubt; the test proposed is therefore not an external one, viz. whether some other mind or an average mind would require additional evidence to be produced in order to pronounce some judgment or other : A I R 1916 Mad 816 and 36 Mad 477. Rel. on.

[P 162 O 1]

J. N. Aggarwal and Amar Singh —
for Appellant.

Anant Ram Khosla — for Respondents.

Judgment.—This second appeal has arisen from an alienation effected by a childless proprietor, Wadhawa Singh adopted son of Jowand Singh, who had mortgaged his property for Rs. 3900. The Senior Sub. Judge of Sheikhpura found that the transfer was not for consideration and legal necessity. In fact he said that the debt appeared to be bogus; but he dismissed the suit of the collaterals on the ground that the land was not proved to be ancestral. In the circumstances he directed the parties to bear their own costs. On appeal, the learned District Judge, without any application being made by the parties, directed the special qanungo to produce further excerpts from the revenue records, after consideration of which he found that the land was ancestral. He also found that the mortgage was binding on the reversioners to the extent of Rs. 1500 and decreed accordingly. He directed the parties to bear their own costs throughout "as the alienee has taken a good deal of advantage of the alienor." The alienee Bur Singh has appealed through Mr. Jagan Nath Aggarwal. The main point is that the learned District Judge should not have taken additional evidence. There are grounds for attacking the finding as to consideration and necessity, but they were given up. Mr. J. N. Aggarwal relied upon the wording of O. 41, R. 27, Civil P. C. which runs :

27 (1). The parties to an appeal shall not be entitled to produce additional evidence, whether oral or documentary, in the Appellate Court. But if : (a) the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has refused to admit evidence which ought to have been admitted, or (b) the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, the Appellate Court may allow such evidence or document to be produced, or witness to be examined.

(2) Wherever additional evidence is allowed to be produced by an Appellate Court, the Court shall record the reason for its admission.

Admittedly (a) has no application, but Mr. Jagan Nath urged that the learned District Judge did not comply with the express provisions of O. 41, R. 27 (1) (b).

In discussing the issue as to the ancestral character of the land, the trial Judge had said :

The plaintiffs have entirely failed because one serious omission has been committed by them . . . that the land in the line of Jiwan Singh has not been traced

The appeal was first heard by the District Judge on 4th May 1936. He discussed the excerpts and said: "From these entries one could not come to any finding whether all this land was ancestral or not"; and after considering the history of the land and certain rulings at length he said:

In view of the cautious attitude prescribed by these later rulings, I will certainly give the parties an opportunity to bring up before me the extent of holdings by all the descendants of Sahib Singh in the year 1856, so that we might be able to see how far those holdings in this entire village were conformable to ancestral shares.

Accordingly, at the next hearing on 20th May 1936 he gave a brief order to the special qanungo to prepare a statement showing the respective areas owned by the three sons of Koer Singh in 1856 and by the descendants of Sahib Singh. On 10th June 1936 having considered these new excerpts he came to the conclusion that the land was ancestral, and he concluded the case at a further hearing on 20th May by a finding as to consideration and necessity. Mr. J. N. Aggarwal relies on 10 Pat 654,¹ A I R 1935 Rang 21² and 37 I C 1008.³ In the first case at page 668 their Lordships of the Privy Council discussing R. 27 (1) (b) said :

* Affirmed on Letters Patent Appeal by Addison and Dln Mohammad JJ.

It is only where the Appellate Court "requires" it (i. e. finds it needful) that additional evidence can be admitted. It may be required to enable the Court to pronounce judgment, or for any other substantial cause, but in either case it must be the Court that requires it. This is the plain grammatical reading of the sub-clause. The legitimate occasion for the exercise of this discretion is not whenever before the appeal is heard a party applies to adduce fresh evidence, but 'when on examining the evidence as it stands, some inherent lacuna or defect becomes apparent'.

They said that the provisions of R. 27 are clearly not intended to allow a litigant who has been unsuccessful in the lower Court to patch up the weak parts of his case and fill up omissions in the Court of Appeal.

In this case however it was not the Court that called for the evidence but a party which before the hearing of the appeal wished to produce it. Similar opinions in similar circumstances were given in A I R 1935 Rang 21.² 37 I C 1008³ is a Division Bench judgment of the Patna High Court upholding the action of the District Judge who had refused to admit a document tendered in appeal. In the present case, it is the Court that itself called for the evidence. In 38 Mad 414,⁴ where the Appellate Court had admitted additional documents on appeal, a Division Bench of the Madras High Court said of Rule 27 :

Considering the clause apart from the decided cases, it appears to me that the test laid down in Cl. (b) "if the Appellate Court requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable it to pronounce judgment", is one relating to the state of mind of the Appellate Court and not an external standard. In other words, the test is not, whether any tribunal would be unable to pronounce any judgment without the production of the additional evidence in question, but, whether the mind of the appellate Judge is in such a condition on the evidence on record that he requires any document to be produced or any witness to be examined to enable him to pronounce judgment. The object appears to me to be to enable the appellate Judge to satisfy his own mind when he entertains a doubt; the test proposed is therefore not an external one, viz. whether some other mind or an average mind would require additional evidence to be produced in order to pronounce some judgment or other.

1. Parsotim Thakur v. Lal Mohar, A I R 1931 P O 148=182 I C 721=58 I A 254 = 10 Pat 654 (P O).

2. U Kya v. U Nyo, A I R 1935 Rang 21.

3. Kalika Dutt Mandar v. Tulsi Mandar, A I R 1918 Pat 253=37 I C 1008=1 Pat L J 435.

4. Ambuja Ammal v. Appadurai Mudali, A I R 1916 Mad 816=80 I C 402=38 Mad 414.

To much the same effect is a previous Division Bench judgment of the Madras High Court, 36 Mad 477;⁵ indeed, one of the learned Judges was common to both Benches. Mr. J. N. Aggarwal did not contest this subjective test, but he said that the learned District Judge had not recorded reasons for the admission of the additional evidence, as required by R. 27 (2). It is true that the District Judge did not use the words "I admit this evidence for the following reasons"; but the whole trend of his order of 4th May is that he could not come to a satisfactory judgment without further evidence. I think that there was sufficient compliance therefore with R. 27 (2). The circumstances are unusual. The parties are illiterate peasants; and do not accurately know the early history of the land they have inherited. In order to help them in ascertaining the truth in such cases, Government has appointed a revenue expert — the special qanungo or special patwari — to trace out the history of the land in dispute. If the history supplied in the excerpt is incomplete, and the District Judge does not feel that he can come to a satisfactory judgment, I do not think it is wrong for him to obtain further information from the old revenue records through the special qanungo. There is no question of fabrication of evidence; it is simply a case of search of old records by a Government expert. At the time the order was given to the special qanungo nobody knew what would be the result of his research and the opposite party made no objection. I therefore think that the District Judge was within the legitimate limits of judicial discretion in his action.

Mr. Anant Ram Khosla for the respondents also sought to justify the finding of the District Judge by an admission of Wadhawa Singh made in the year 1904. Wadhawa Singh had shortly before been adopted by Jowand Singh and one Jiwan Singh brought a suit for possession of Jowand Singh's land after his death on the ground that he had no right to adopt. Para. 1 of the plaint set forth the brief history of the land, and para. 2 said :

Out of the lands aforesaid in the ancestral ownership of Jowand Singh and the plaintiffs the owners have divided some of the lands and kept some of them joint.

5. Andlipa Pillai v. Muthu Kumara Thevan, (1918) 86 Mad 477=14 I C 140.

These two paragraphs were admitted by Wadhawa Singh in his statement. The trial Judge did not think that this admission amounted to anything and I am inclined to agree. The District Judge held that it lent support to his finding. I exclude the admission on the ground that it was not tendered in evidence or exhibited. It was also not specifically put to Wadhawa Singh who however said: "I had appeared in that previous suit, and I do not know if I put in the written statement". The trial Judge has remarked that the witness was trying to suppress the facts. Although the documents are 30 years old and do not require formal proof, they ought to have been formally tendered and exhibited. Mr. J. N. Aggarwal began to argue that the documentary evidence did not prove that the land was ancestral; but in this case the documents relied on are not documents of title, and I think the finding is one of fact. The District Judge went into the matter at considerable length. The result is therefore that this appeal is dismissed but in the circumstances, like the lower Courts, I direct that the parties bear their own costs throughout.

[This judgment was affirmed by Addison and Din Mohammad JJ. on Letters Patent Appeal.]

T.M./D.S.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 163

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Madan Lal — Plaintiff — Appellant.

Diwan Chand and others — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 342 of 1936, Decided on 15th April 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Rawalpindi, D/- 18th May 1936.

Hindu Law—Family arrangement—Mother of deceased making gift of property to sister of deceased—Reversioners challenging gift — Compromise between parties to suit — Sister thereby getting share in such property — Compromise arrived at when sister and sister's son were not recognized as heirs — Subsequently Act passed recognizing them as heirs nearer than collaterals—Suit by sister's son afterwards challenging compromise — Compromise held bona fide family arrangement and prudent act on part of sister and therefore binding on her son.

A family arrangement can be arrived at so as to be binding on a reversioner not party to the suit brought by other reversioners, declaratory in its nature, to set aside or challenge a gift by the limited owner. Whether such arrangement can be binding on such reversioner depends on the circumstances of each case: A I R 1936 All 507 (F B), Dissent. [P 165 C 1]

A Hindu died leaving behind him his sister, mother and two cousins who were the then reversioners. The mother gifted the property to the sister and thereupon the two cousins brought a suit for declaration challenging the gift. In that suit, a compromise was arrived at between the two reversioners, the mother and sister whereby each got one-third share in the property. This was before the Hindu law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act 2 of 1929 came into force. The sister thus got a share in the property left by her brother at a time when she would not have been entitled to it at all. After the Act came into force, the sister and the sister's son were recognized as heirs and the sister's son then brought a suit to set aside the compromise:

Held that inasmuch as all the possible near heirs of the deceased were parties to the reversioners' suit and the compromise was entered into bona fide by the plaintiff's mother and grandmother, and further that as it was really an act of prudence on the part of the plaintiff's mother to enter into such compromise at a time when no one contemplated that an Act would be passed making the plaintiff a nearer heir than the suing reversioners, the compromise under such circumstances could well be described as a family settlement or arrangement binding on the plaintiff: A I R 1919 P O 27, Rel. on. [P 165 C 2]

D. R. Sawhney and S. N. Bali —

for Appellant.

Achhru Ram and Indar Dev —

for Respondents.

Dalip Singh J. — The pedigree table necessary for the facts of this case is at p. 24 of the paper book and is as follows:

Piara Mal died somewhere about 1907, the exact date not being known. His son Nathu Ram died in 1911. In 1917 Mt. Jamna Devi made a gift in favour of her daughter Mt. Janki Devi. Diwan Chand and Raunaq Shah, then the nearest and so far as appears from the record, the only reversioners of Nathu Ram, brought the usual declaratory suit challenging the gift made by Mt. Jamna Devi. A compromise was arrived at in that suit, by which one-third of certain shops included in the gift was to belong in full ownership to Diwan Chand and Raunaq Shah: one-third was to go in full ownership to Mt. Janki Devi and one-third was left with Mt. Jamna Devi with the condition that after Mt. Jamna Devi's death, the one-third share would go to Diwan Chand and Raunaq Shah. Mt. Jamna Devi was declared owner of the whole of a certain haveli. She already owned one-half of this haveli in her own right and the result was that she got the whole haveli as full owner. After her death presumably the haveli would descend to her heir Mt. Janki Devi. This happened in 1925. In 1933 Mt. Jamna Devi, Diwan Chand, Raunaq Shah and Mt. Janki Devi and one Kishan Chand, defendant 6, sold a shop, which was the joint property of Kishan Chand and Piara Mal originally, in favour of defendant 5, Ram Ditta Mal, and divided the sale proceeds among themselves according to the shares in the compromise referred to above. The present plaintiff, the son of Mt. Janki Devi, brought a declaratory suit in which he asked for two declarations: (1) that the compromise referred to above should not affect his reversionary rights after the death of Mt. Jamna Devi and Mt. Janki Devi and (2) that the sale of the shop should similarly not affect his reversionary rights. He contended that both the compromise and the sale were made without consideration and necessity, that Nathu Ram had suffered from certain incurable diseases which debarred him from inheritance and that he having become an heir by the Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act 2 of 1929, his rights were unaffected by either the compromise or the sale. Mt. Jamna Devi and Mt. Janki Devi admitted the claim. The suit was resisted by Diwan Chand and Raunaq Shah and the vendee Ram Ditta Mal. The other party to the sale had no objection to the plaintiff's claim. Various issues were framed which do not now concern us, but the relevant issues were:

(1) Whether Nathu Ram suffered from such a disease as to exclude him from inheritance? (2) What was the effect of Act 2 of 1929 on the compromise and the decree which was passed in that suit in accordance with the compromise?

There was no evidence on the question of Nathu Ram's exclusion from inheritance and the learned trial Court decided that Nathu Ram was not proved to have been excluded from inheriting. On the question of the effect of Act 2 of 1929 on the compromise, the trial Court held that the plaintiff was competent to sue by reason of Act 2 of 1929, but he was bound by the compromise deed and hence his suit failed and was dismissed. The plaintiff has come in appeal and the only points argued before us are as follows: Firstly it is contended that by reason of Act 2 of 1929 the plaintiff was competent to maintain the suit and the trial Court was wrong in holding that he was bound by the compromise; Secondly it was contended that in any event, the sale was not proved to be for necessity and therefore the second declaration prayed for should have been granted. The second point can be disposed of on the short ground that no issue was framed on the question of necessity and evidently the parties relied simply on the question whether the compromise was binding or not upon the plaintiff. It was therefore unnecessary to go into the question whether there was any necessity for the sale and if not, what the effect of the sale would be.

The only point to be decided in the case is whether the plaintiff is or is not bound by the compromise entered into between the reversioners and his mother and grandmother. The learned counsel for the appellant has relied on A I R 1936 All 507,¹ a Full Bench decision, in which it was held that the plaintiff was competent to sue in that case by reason of Act 2 of 1929 and that where in a declaratory suit a widow and certain reversioners had compromised the case by division of the property among themselves, such a compromise could not possibly be regarded as a family settlement and therefore was not binding on other reversioners. The facts in A I R 1936 All 507¹ were that two co-widows of a deceased Hindu had made a certain gift to a certain person alleged to be a sister's son of the deceased Hindu. The fact that he was the sister's son was challenged and a declaratory suit was brought to set aside the gift. This declaratory suit was compromised and the reversioners, who brought the suit, and the widows, without any reference, it appears, to the donee, compromised the suit between themselves by dividing the property in certain shares. With the greatest respect to the ruling, and the learned Judges who decided it, I am unable to accept the proposition broadly laid down that no family arrangement can be arrived at binding on the reversioner in a suit which is only declaratory, to set aside or challenge a certain gift. Much depends on the circumstances of each case. In the Full Bench Allahabad case¹ it was clear that the only persons profiting by the compromise were the donors and the reversioners. In the present case the position was somewhat different. Mt. Jamna Devi when making the gift could only do so on two grounds: either she claimed to be full owner of the property, or she could claim that Mt. Janki Devi, her daughter, was the next heir and therefore the reversioners could have no locus standi to contest the gift to the next heir. Now, it is clear that in the Punjab, before Act 2 of 1929 came into force, a sister could not be a nearer heir than the present reversioners if she was an heir at all. A sister's son was not an heir at all. Mt. Janki Devi could only be an heir nearer than the present reversioners if the contention advanced in the present case, namely that Nathu Ram was incapable of inheritance, was correct. The position therefore was that all the then possible near heirs were concerned in the suit.

1. Rajpali Kunwar v. Surju Rai, A I R 1936 All 507=163 I C 756=1936 A L J 659 = 58 All 1041 (F B).

The question as to whether Nathu Ram was or was not capable of inheritance made the rights of the parties possibly doubtful to each side. It appears according to the compromise deed itself that the brotherhood intervened and the parties entered into the compromise, the result of which was that the reversioners got immediately one-third of the shops in dispute, the donee Mt. Janki Devi got one-third of the shops, and the remaining one-third remained with Mt. Jamna Devi with subsequent descent to the reversioners and Mt. Jamna Devi got half of a haveli as full owner with subsequent descent presumably to Mt. Janki Devi; in other words, as between the widow and her daughter, about half the estate was left with them and about half the estate was given to the reversioners. At that time the position appears to have been that there were no other possible near heirs of Piara Mal. Had the compromise not been entered into, Mt. Jamna Devi would have held a life-estate only and after her death the reversioners might have got the entire property, or if Nathu Ram was proved to have been incapable of inheritance, Mt. Janki Devi would have got the whole property. I am unable to see why a compromise entered into at that time, which was obviously bona fide and whose bona fides had not been challenged by all the then probable heirs, should not be considered binding on the present plaintiff who is the son of Mt. Janki Devi. It cannot be considered that his grandmother and his mother were trying to defraud the present plaintiff of his rights. It appears that in the sale which led to the present suit the father of the present plaintiff was an attesting witness of the sale deed. It is thus clear that nobody considered that the plaintiff had in any way been defrauded or wronged by the compromise entered into by his mother and grandmother. On the contrary it was an act of prudence on their part, for, it secured a half-share of the property to Mt. Janki Devi originally with subsequent descent to the plaintiff himself. Nobody at that time could have contemplated that Act 2 of 1929 would make the plaintiff a nearer heir than the collaterals. There is nothing to show that there were any other collaterals of Piara Mal at all, but if there were any such, the reference in the compromise to the brotherhood would tend to show that those reversioners had also joined in arranging this compromise. In these circumstances, it appears to me that such a compromise might well be described as a family settlement or arrangement and as such binding on the reversioners.

In 50 I C 812² where the facts were that a certain widow had divided her property among her daughters and her then living grandsons, one of the daughters having subsequently brought a suit to succeed to her sisters' property setting aside the compromise, their Lordships of the Privy Council held that she having entered into the compromise and benefited thereby, was estopped from contesting the compromise. Their Lordships left open the question as to whether the grandsons were bound or not; but their Lordships spoke of the compromise as a family arrangement to which favour has always been shown by the Courts. If their Lordships had been of opinion that such a compromise could never be called a family arrangement at all, they would not have expressed themselves as they did in that case. It is true that this point was not before their Lordships of the Privy Council, but the fact remains that their Lordships did not regard it as impossible that such a compromise should be called a family arrangement. I would therefore hold, in agreement with the trial Court, that the present plaintiff is bound by the said compromise; and it is conceded that if he is so bound, the suit must fail. I would therefore dismiss the appeal with costs. The order of the trial Court on costs in that Court stands.

2. Hardel v. Bhagwan Singh, A I R 1919 P C 27 = 50 I C 812 (P O).

Skemp J.—I agree.

A.L./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 166

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Mohammad Nawaz and another — Judgment-debtors — Appellants.

v.

Kaura Ram — Decree-holder —

Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 205 of 1936, Decided on 18th May 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Mianwali, D/- 13th November 1935.

(a) Punjab Laws Act (4 of 1872), S. 5—Person asserting that he is ruled by custom — Burden lies on him to prove that he is so governed — There is no presumption in favour of custom.

In all cases under the (Punjab Laws) Act it lies upon the person asserting that he is ruled in regard to a particular matter by custom, to prove that he is so governed, and not by personal law, and further to prove what the particular custom is. There is no presumption created by S. 5 of the Act in favour of custom; on the contrary, it is only when the custom is established that it is to be the rule of decision: 110 P R 1906 (F B) and A I R 1917 P C 181, Foll. [P 167 C 1]

(b) Custom (Punjab)—Alienation — Ancestral property — Sanda Jats and agriculturists of Mianwali District — Male proprietor has unrestricted powers of alienation.

Among Sanda Jats and the agriculturists of Mianwali District, generally, a male proprietor has unrestricted power of alienation in respect of ancestral property and such property can be attached and temporarily alienated for realization of his unsecured debts after his death.

[P 166 C 2; P 167 C 2]

Abdul Karim — for Appellants.

J. G. Sethi — for Respondent.

Tek Chand J.—Sarwar, a Sanda Jat of Chah Sandanwala, Dakhli Harnoli, Tahsil and District Mianwali, had money dealings with Kaura Ram. After Sarwar's death, Kaura Ram brought a suit against Mohammad Nawaz and Mohammad Zaman, sons of Sarwar (defendants-appellants), for recovery of the amount due to him by their father. In this suit a decree was passed for the sum claimed against the appellants, realizable from the estate of Sarwar in their hands. In execution of the decree the decree-holder attached the land in dispute and applied for its temporary alienation for a period not exceeding 20 years. The appellants objected that the land was ancestral and was not liable to attachment and temporary alienation in execution of a decree for an unsecured debt of their father obtained after his death. The decree-holder replied that the land was not ancestral, and that among Sanda Jats, and the agriculturists of Mianwali District generally, a male proprietor had unrestricted power of alienation in respect of ancestral property and that such property could be attached and temporarily alienated for realization of his unsecured debts after his death.

The Subordinate Judge found the land to be ancestral, but held that among the agricultural tribes of Mianwali District, a male proprietor could alienate ancestral land without necessity, uncontrolled by his reversioners, and that after his death such land was liable in the hands of his legal representatives for payment of his unsecured debts. On appeal by the judgment-debtors, the learned District Judge, after further inquiry, held that the powers of alienation possessed by a proprietor in the Mianwali District, though extensive, were not unrestricted, but that it had been proved that in this District, or at least in the tribe to which the judgment-debtors belonged, ancestral property is considered to be that of the last male-holder and the judgment-debtors are his legal representatives so that such property in the hands of the latter is liable to attachment in execution of a decree for an unsecured debt obtained against the deceased's estate. He accordingly dismissed the judgment-debtors' appeal, but left the parties to bear their own costs. On an application by the judgment-debtors, the learned Judge granted a certificate under S. 41 (3), Punjab Courts Act, for a second appeal to this Court on the question of custom involved.

Before discussing the evidence on the record bearing on this question, the learned counsel for the appellants asked us to raise certain initial presumptions as to the inalienability of ancestral agricultural land in the Punjab, and from these presumptions to infer by a process of inductive reasoning the existence of certain customs. This is a line of argument which we cannot accept. We do not think in a matter like this, we can start with any presumption in favour of the existence of any particular custom. As laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 45 Cal 450¹ at p. 459, approving the dictum of Robertson J. in 110 P R 1906² at page 410,

In all cases under the (Punjab Laws) Act it lies upon the person asserting that he is ruled in regard to a particular matter by custom, to prove that he is so governed, and not by personal law, and further to prove what the particular custom is. There is no presumption created (by S. 5 of the Act) in favour of custom; on the contrary it is only when the custom is established that it is to be the rule of decision. The Legislature did not show itself enamoured of custom rather than law, nor does it show any tendency to extend the principle of custom to any matter to which a rule of custom is not clearly proved to apply. It is not the spirit of Customary law, nor any theory of custom, or deductions from other customs, which is to be a rule of decision, but only, "any custom applicable to the parties concerned which is not . . .", and it therefore appears to me clear that when either party to a suit sets up custom as a rule of decision, it lies upon him to prove the custom which he seeks to apply; if he fails to do so, Cl. (b) of S. 5, Laws Act, applies, and the rule of decision must be the personal law of the parties subject to the other provisions of the clause. It is not sufficient to show that in regard to certain other matters the parties are governed by custom.

Sarwar, deceased, was a Mahomedan, and admittedly his personal law was Mahomedan law. It lay therefore on those who asserted that in any particular matter he was governed by custom, to prove the existence of the alleged custom. This they could do by entries in the Riwaj-i-am to which a presumption of correctness attaches or by proof of instances of the exercise of the custom in the tribe. No copy of the Riwaj-i-am has been placed on the record; and the "Customary Law of Mianwali District", published in 1908, does not contain any entry to the effect that in this tribe, or among agricultural tribes of this district generally, a male proprietor has restricted power of alienation in respect of ancestral property. Nor does the Customary Law of the Mianwali District deal specifically with the question of the liability of ancestral property for payment of unsecured debts of a male proprietor in his life time, or after his death. The presumption arising from the correctness of entries in the Riwaj-i-am is therefore not available to the appellants in this case, and the matter must be decided on the evidence produced by the parties. The extracts from the revenue papers which have been placed on the record, show that in the village of Harnoli to which Sarwar, deceased belonged, there have been no less than 252 sales and 1461 other alienations of agricultural land from 1907 to 1927 and that not a single one of these alienations had been challenged by the sons or other reversioners of the alienor. We also find that Sanda Jats living in this village had effected 209 sales and 29 mortgages from 1878 to 1923; but during this long period none of them was assailed by the reversioners.

The absence of any entry in the Riwaj-i-am restricting the power of alienation and the fact that male proprietors of this and other tribes living in this village have so extensively exercised their power of alienation from 1878 up to the present day without control or challenge by the reversioners, clearly indicates that the proprietors in this village enjoy unrestricted right of alienation. In addition to this, as has been pointed out by the learned District Judge, there is on the record proof of seven instances in which ancestral property has been attached and alienated in execution of money-decrees, or otherwise alienated for satisfaction of unsecured debts of male proprietors, and there is not a single instance cited on behalf of the appellants to show that any such alienation or attachment was challenged by the reversioners. Further, there is the significant fact, that every one of the witnesses produced by the judgment-debtors admitted that he had alienated his ancestral land, without objection by his reversioners, and as found by the learned District Judge none of these alienations was effected for valid necessity. The learned counsel for the appellants contended that in certain other matters this tribe is governed by custom, but as ruled by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case cited above, this circumstance by itself is not sufficient to prove that the tribe is governed by custom in this particular matter also. We are of opinion that the decision of the learned District Judge overruling the appellants' objection is correct. The appeal fails and is dismissed. Having regard to all the circumstances we leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

1. Abdul Hussain Khan v. Bibi Sona Dero, A I R 19 7 P O 181=48 I O 806=45 I A 10=45 Cal 450=12 S L R 104 (P O).

2. Daya Ram v. Sohail Singh, (1908) 110 P R 1906=81 P L R 1907=59 P W R 1907 (F B).

P.R./D.S.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 168

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Sheikh Abdul Majid — Plaintiff

— Appellant.

v.

Motor Union Insurance Co. Ltd. —

Defendant — Respondent.

First Appeal No. 105 of 1936, Decided on 21st May 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Rawalpindi D/- 9th December 1935.

(a) Insurance — Fire — Policy is document complete in itself — Warranty in policy that no hazardous goods are to be stored — Assured cannot plead that he can store one per cent. of hazardous goods because other companies allow it.

The contract between the insured and the company is the policy. The policy is a document complete in itself. [P 169 O 2]

Where therefore in a fire insurance policy there is a warranty by the assured that no hazardous goods will be stored, he cannot plead that he can store one per cent. of hazardous goods because under the terms on which the insurance company generally does business or according to warranties in force at other times or allowed by other companies one per cent. might have been allowed. [P 169 O 2]

(b) Insurance — Fire insurance — Warranty by assured not to store any hazardous goods — Breach — Building destroyed by fire — Claim of assured must fail.

Where under a fire insurance policy there is a warranty by the assured that no hazardous goods will be stored by the assured in the premises, the assured if he commits breach of the warranty and if the building is destroyed by fire, will not be entitled to any claim against the company. [P 172 O 2]

(c) Insurance — Fire insurance — Company by merely taking possession of salvage and keeping it for month is not estopped from contesting claim of insured.

When in a fire insurance policy there is no clause relating to salvage, the mere fact that the insurance company takes the salvage and keeps it for about a month does not operate as an estoppel against its pleading that the insured cannot make a claim under the policy : (1922) 2 A C 541, Distinguishing. [P 171 O 2; P 172 O 1]

J. N. Aggarwal and S. N. Bali —

for Appellant.

S. C. Isaacs and R. B. Sawhney —

for Respondent.

Skemp J.—This appeal has been lodged against a judgment of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Rawalpindi, dismissing a claim brought on a policy of fire insurance. The plaintiff Sheikh Abdul Majid of Abdul Majid and Sons of Majid's house, Murree and Rawalpindi, was insured with the defendant Company, the Motor Union Insurance Company of Calcutta. He was insured with them in respect both of his Rawalpindi and Murree premises. On 12th April 1933 his premises and stock as a general retail merchant at Murree were largely destroyed by fire. The Company refused to pay the amount claimed on the grounds of misdescription of the premises and breach of a warranty not to store hazardous goods. The plaintiff then on 1st August 1933 brought the present suit for Rs. 48,000. His building was insured under the policy for Rs. 20,000 and his stock for Rs. 15,000 (reduced to Rs. 10,000) but the plaintiff claimed Rs. 48,000 including building Rs. 20,000, stock Rs. 22,684, furniture Rs. 1315 and other items including rent and interest. The defendant Company resisted the claim on a large number of grounds including fraudulent claim, misdescription of building and breach of warranty. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge framed no less than 25 issues, and after a trial which was unusually expeditious considering the complexity of the case disposed of them in a clear and exhaustive judgment. He found most of the issues for the plaintiff but dismissed the suit on a finding that the plaintiff had stored on the premises hazardous goods in breach of his warranty.

The plaintiff has appealed and the first point for determination is, what are the actual terms of the warranty on the plaintiff's policy? The original of the plaintiff's Policy No. 5251014 with the defendant Company was recovered in a half burnt condition after the fire and is marked Ex. P-1. The defendant Company produced a duplicate, Commissioner's Ex. 31. This is proved by the evidence of Mr. V. J. Alexander, Secretary of the Calcutta Branch of the defendant Company. It appears from his evidence (pp. 73, 74, 75, Vol. 4 of the printed books) that two carbon copies of every fire policy are made, one for the Company's London office and one for the Calcutta office. They are typed together and bound in a book, the duplicate being Commissioner's Ex. 31. The warranties are impressed by stamps automatically. The warranty in question on given as Commissioner's Ex. 32 is Ex. 31 in the following terms :

During the currency of the policy it is hereby warranted :

That no hazardous goods are stored and that no hazardous trade or process is carried on in the building described or in any building communicating therewith.

On the half-burnt policy Ex. P-1, the following words and letters can be read in fragmentary form :

... the currency of this ... it is hereby warranted :

... dous goods are stor ... d ... ied ... ng

The learned Senior Subordinate Judge found :

A comparison of the warranties on these two policies made it clear beyond a shadow of doubt that these two warranties were the same and I agree. The plaintiff's case was that the warranty was the same as that stamped on his Rawalpindi policy Ex. P-3, which is as follows :

That no hazardous goods be contained in the premises described but allowing storage of hazardous goods to the extent of 1 per cent. only of the total value of stock such quantity of hazardous goods not to include more than six gallons of petrol or other volatile spirits.

A comparison of legible parts of the warranty on Ex. P-1 with this warranty made it quite clear that they are not the same and this was ultimately admitted by Mr. J. N. Aggarwal for the appellant. Agreeing with the Subordinate Judge, I would find that the terms of the warranty are as stamped on Ex. P-31, the material part being 'that no hazardous goods are stored'. The plaintiff's pleadings about hazardous goods are found in para. 13 of the plaint :

That while repudiating the plaintiff's claim, the defendants based their repudiation on misdescription of property and storage of hazardous goods, which the plaintiff totally denies and whereof he puts the defendants to proof ...

No hazardous goods were stored in the premises and what goods were stored could not and did not constitute hazardous goods causing any change in the rate of premium applicable. In any case according to the warranty applicable to retail premises as those of plaintiff's hazardous of the value of 1 per cent. of total stock were exempt ...

The defendants dealt with these pleas in paras. 15 (iv) and 17 (b) of their written statement. Para. 15 (iv) "denies the allegation that no hazardous goods were stored in the premises". Para. 17 (b) alleges that at the time of fire there were stored on the said premises not less than 10 rolls of coir matting, not less than six dozen tins of paint and/or enamel. All of these were hazardous goods for insurance purposes.

The Subordinate Judge framed three main issues dealing with hazardous goods:

(5) Was the plaintiff entitled to store hazardous goods to the extent of 1 per cent. of the total value of stock ? (6) Was the plaintiff entitled to store 5 per cent. hazardous goods in tins, bottles, or cartridges according to the terms of the warranty attached to the retail premises ? (8) Did the plaintiff store any hazardous goods, and if so, what was the percentage of hazardous goods to the total stock ?

On these issues he found : (5) that according to the terms of the warranty on the policy 'the plaintiff was not entitled to store hazardous goods to the extent of even one per cent. of the total value of the stock on account of the warranty being the essence of the contract'. On Issue (6) he found that according to the warranty, the plaintiff was entitled to store goods of which the detail is mentioned in the copy of the rule Ex. P-46 provided their value did not exceed in all 5 per cent. of the total value of the stock. On Issue (8) he found that the plaintiff had in stock at the time of the fire ten rolls of coir matting, three dozen coir doormats and three or four dozen tins of paints, the total value of which was approximately Rs. 263.10.0, more than 1 per cent. of the stock insured.

Mr. Isaac for the respondent Company urged that the findings were inconsistent and apparently this is so ; though perhaps the Subordinate Judge gave a finding on every issue which he had framed for the sake of completeness. It is clear that in face of the warranty that no hazardous goods are stored, the plaintiff could not be allowed to plead that he might keep 1 per cent. of hazardous goods or under certain conditions 5 per cent. The policy is a document complete in itself. As Mr. Maitland said 'The contract between the insured and the Company is the policy'. It is irrelevant that under the terms on which Calcutta fire insurance companies generally do business or according to other rates of premium or according to warranties in force at other times or allowed by other companies 1 per cent. might have been allowed.

The plaintiff relied on Ex. P-46, a manuscript extract from Ex. P-152. Ex. P-152 and Ex. P-153 are mofussil tariffs of the Calcutta Fire Insurance Association. Ex. P-153 is marked "Private and Confidential", and these tariffs must have come into the hands of the plaintiff by backdoor methods. They were used for cross-examination of witnesses and at the very end of the case placed on the record by consent of both parties. It is pointed out to us that neither of these tariffs apply to the policy in suit which was entered into with effect from 13th June 1931 and renewed from 13th June 1932. Ex. P-152 expired in the year 1925 and Ex. P-153 began in October 1932. Mr. Isaac for the respondent company stated that he had with him the tariff relating to the date on which the policy was entered into and offered to produce it; but it appears to us that the whole discussion is irrelevant and that the matter is concluded by the terms of the warranty 'that no hazardous goods are stored'. The findings on Issues 6 and 8 are irrelevant. It was also argued that coir matting was not 'stored' but was in use on the floor of the shop. This point was not pleaded or put in issue nor referred to in the judgment of the Subordinate Judge, although Mr. Bali says that it was raised in final arguments. The argument really depends on expressions used by Mr. Warrington, who took over the salvage on behalf of the defendant Company, and Kahan Chand, a clerk of Lloyds Bank. Mr. Warrington said :

The coir matting rolls were spread throughout the debris and from the position of these rolls it was evident that they were situate on the floor at the shop at the time of the fire, as the masonry had fallen on the top of these rolls. (Vol. 2, p. 54).

Kahan Chand said, "the coir matting was not lying in a heap but scattered inside the shop" (Vol. 2, p. 22). I do not think weight can be attached to such expressions, used when the point was not in issue or before the minds of the witnesses. Mr. Isaac drew our attention to the fact that several of the witnesses spoke of rolls of coir matting, and relied on this as showing that the matting was not spread; but in most instances the word "rolls" or any equivalent is not found on the vernacular record. Kahan Chand however said, according to both records, that he saw two rolls one day and eight rolls the next. Mainly because the point was not pleaded, I think it is without force.

The next question that would appear to arise is, what are hazardous goods? I do not think however that it arises in this case. The pleadings of both parties and the issues have been quoted and it will be seen that the plaintiff did not say clearly that coir matting, coir mats and oil paints were not hazardous goods or that he did not know that they were hazardous goods. The plaintiff put in no replication and his counsel's opening statement was merely a repetition or summary of what had been pleaded. This is particularly important because in their letter Ex. P. 62, dated the 13th May 1933, the defendant Company had rejected the claim on the ground inter alia of breach of warranty. They said :

Requisite warranty appears on the policy, i. e. that no hazardous goods are stored Whereas we find that there were hazardous goods such as coir matting, coir mats, oil paints etc., in the premises at the outbreak of the fire'.

If the plaintiff had not known that these goods were hazardous, one would have expected him to say so in the plaint and before it. If he had been able to plead that no doubt he had coir matting, etc., but that he had never been told and did not know that these things were hazardous goods, this case might have been on a very different footing. One would expect the Company when insisting on warranty that hazardous goods should not be stored to specify the hazardous goods and this is done generally or at any rate frequently; for instance, the plaintiff's father Mohammad Din produced his policy with a list of hazardous goods attached and Macgillivray, Law of Insurance, page 884, refers to three cases on the construction of the words "hazardous goods", (two from the United States and one from Canada) in which articles denominated "hazardous" were annexed to the policy. The point does not arise in this case because the plaintiff did not plead it specifically although he knew that it was a specific ground of the Company's refusal to pay his claim. This consideration is re-enforced by some others. The plaintiff produced Ex. P-46, a list of hazardous goods. His father produced Ex. P. W. 10/5, a list of hazardous goods attached to his policy by another company. His witness Inayat Ullah stated :

I read out the list of hazardous goods to the plaintiff and asked him whether he stored any of these goods I told the plaintiff that according to the rules of the Insurance Company he could store one per cent. of the hazardous goods in accordance with the rates quoted by me. The plaintiff told me that he did not deal in hazardous goods.

I doubt very much whether this evidence is true, and if it is, what Inayat Ullah told the plaintiff is unavailing in face of the terms of the warranty. I mention it only as tending to show that the plaintiff knew what hazardous goods were. Thus we now come to the question whether the plaintiff had in his shop hazardous goods at the time of the fire. As already noted, the learned Subordinate Judge found that he had ten rolls of coir matting, three dozen coir doormats, three dozen tins of paints valued approximately

Rs. 263-10-0. The plaintiff admitted in his evidence that he had in his shop one roll of coir matting, three dozen doormats and less than six dozen of paint tins valued about Rs. 30. The plaintiff gave evidence that the value of the coir matting and the doormats was Rs. 48-1-0 and this was substantiated by the invoice Ex. P-91 produced by the vendor.

The defendants' case is founded on the salvage reports. They appointed Mr. War-rington, Manager of Messrs. Cox and Kings Ltd., Murree, to represent their interest, and he prepared a number of reports which were signed by Abdul Majid and himself (Vol. 2, p. 43). The most important of these reports is Ex. D.26 dated 15th April 1933, the correctness of which the plaintiff admitted in cross-examination with the exception of two details which do not affect this point (Vol. 2, P. 7). Ex. D.26 says :

Two rolls of coir matting have today been stored in the same godown as used for remainder of today's salvage and that salvaged yesterday (approximate total eight rolls) has been stored outside the said godown.

That is why the Subordinate Judge found that there were ten rolls of coir matting. He did not believe the evidence of the plaintiff that some of it came from his father's shop adjacent and was mixed up with the salvage of his own shop. The plaintiff's evidence consists of his father Mohammad Din, Rattan Singh and Suleman; the defendants produced Kahan Chand but Mohammad Din said: "I had two rolls of coir matting and three bundles of doormats." The doormats are irrelevant, because the plaintiff's own statement proved that he had three dozen doormats and not more are asserted. If Mohammad Din's evidence be accepted, it still leaves the plaintiff with eight rolls of coir matting to be accounted for. I am inclined to agree with the learned Subordinate Judge for the reasons which he gave and notice that Kahan Chand, Head Clerk of Lloyds Bank, said that he had seen two rolls of coir matting one day and eight rolls of coir matting the next day when the goods were sorted. He added that the plaintiff gave no explanation and did not say that the coir matting did not belong to him. He also said that after the salvage was sorted, a statement was prepared every evening. But even if two rolls be deducted it still leaves the plaintiff with eight rolls of coir matting. These rolls were valued by the Subordinate Judge at Rs. 20-14-0 per roll and the valuation has not been objected to. Three bundles of coir mats valued at Rs. 30 are admitted and as the plaintiff himself admitted "less than six dozen of paint tins" it seems unduly to favour him to hold that there were only three dozen. Taking the figure at five dozen tins, the total value of the goods by this calculation would amount approximately to Rupees 223-3-0 which cannot be called entirely negligible.

It may be noted in passing that although the plaintiff's case is that only liquid paint was hazardous goods, there is nothing on the record to show how much of this paint was dry or how much liquid. The question of kerosine oil was also raised, two or three bottles being found in the salvage, but it was dropped by the Company because it was found that the kerosine oil was introduced the evening before the fire. A British Officer deposed that he wanted to try a lamp and the plaintiff sent a servant for oil. The Company did not press this point and indeed the important part of their argument is that ten (or at the very least eight) rolls of coir matting were found among the salvage of the plaintiff's shop. It was also argued that the defendant Company took possession of the salvage, and that this operated as an estoppel against their pleading that the plaintiff could not make a claim under the policy. This question formed the subject of Issue 14 : the Subordinate Judge found that the defendants took possession of the salvage, but that this had no effect on the suit. After hearing arguments we are not prepared to find otherwise on the facts ; Mr. Alexander, Secretary of the defendant Company himself wrote, in disclaiming liability in letter Ex. P-62 dated 13th May 1933 : "We are advising our assessors to make over to you all salvage in their possession immediately".

But how does the mere fact that the assessors took the salvage and kept it for about a month operate as an estoppel? The plaintiff-appellant's learned counsel was quite unable to explain this on principle. He relied on a passage in (1922) 2 A C 541¹ at p. 546. That proceeded on the construction of Cl. 12, relating to salvage in the policy in question; whereas in policy Ex. P-1 there is no corresponding clause about salvage. The facts were also different: in that case the Insurance Company had taken possession of the assured's premises, his machinery and plant (which were not insured) and his stock of motor cars and remained in possession despite the protests of the assured for four months. Here the Company took possession only of the salvage stock which was of little or no value and for one month. There is no force in this point. The plaintiff's main case however is that he was covered against additional risks caused by the storage of these goods. This case falls under two main heads: (1) that he had actually received cover notes and (2) that he was covered by reason of certain correspondence between himself and Messrs. Laurels, Lahore Agents of the defendant Company. The plaintiff mainly relies on (1) a post card marked Ex. P. W. 18/2 dated 23rd March 1933, (2) a letter Ex. P. 118 dated 25th March 1933, and (3) a post card Ex. P. 119 dated 7th April 1933. (After discussing evidence his Lordship came to the conclusion that cover notes were not received and correspondence was not sent and then proceeded further.) In final arguments, for the first time Mr. Bali contended that leaving everything else, the plaintiff was covered by reason of the action taken by the defendant Company on the admitted part of the post card Ex. P. W. 18-2. This was not pleaded. In my opinion it is not covered by any of the Issues Nos. 5, 8 or 13, it is not referred to in the judgment and it was not even raised in opening arguments.

1. Yorkshire Insurance Co. v. Craine, (1922) 2 A C 541=91 L J P C 226=66 S J 703=38 T L R 845.

The admitted part of the post card was communicated to the defendant Company by Laurels by letter Ex. P. W. 18/3, dated 27th March 1933 in reply to which the Company issued a letter, the original of which is Ex. P. W. 18/16 and the copy supplied to the plaintiff is Ex. P. 49, dated 30th March 1933. This letter repeats the information received, asks for the exact amount of cover as soon as possible in order that the requisite endorsement may issue and says that "in the meantime we are holding the risk covered". After the fire in a letter Ex. P. 55, dated 19th April 1933, the defendant Company said that in the latter portion of the letter (Ex. P. W. 18/2) you requested us to hold you covered for a week when the shop would open and you could supply us with full details. In reply we agreed to hold you covered for the period mentioned in your letter but no further particulars have been received up to date and as the fire occurred nearly three weeks afterwards the Company disclaimed liability except for amounts for which endorsements had issued. This letter strikes me as a bit of sharp practice. It is not really what the plaintiff wrote but I do not think that the plaintiff can be held covered by reason of the admitted part of his post card dated 23rd March and of the defendant Company's communication to Laurels not only because the point was no part of the plaintiff's original case but because this reply was never communicated to the plaintiff and was simply a communication from the defendant Company to their own agents. This point therefore also fails. The result of all this is that the appeal fails and must be dismissed with costs. It is unnecessary to consider the issues as to misdescription of the property, fraudulent claim, and some other minor points and these issues were not argued before us. In his judgment the Senior Subordinate Judge directed the parties to bear their own costs because "the plaintiff had suffered heavy loss and the suit fails on a technical plea". The defendant-respondent in cross-objections applied for costs in the trial Court. They also applied for special costs of the appeal which was argued before us on 12 days.

On consideration I would not interfere with the discretion of the trial Judge as to the costs, although it would appear that the plaintiff has fabricated some evidence to support his case. At the same time he did suffer a heavy loss by the fire after being insured with the defendant Company for some years and it has not been suggested that the fire was anything but accidental or that the loss was not severe. His case has failed because he stored hazardous goods. The nature of the hazardous goods forbidden was never communicated to him by the Company and it has not been shown that they contributed in any way to the fire. Indeed as eight or ten rolls of coir matting were recovered they could not have been burnt. I would therefore leave the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge as it stands. The appellant must pay the costs of this appeal because we have substantially agreed with the Senior Subordinate Judge and when we have differed it has been to the disadvantage of the plaintiff but I see no reason to grant more than the ordinary costs of this appeal. There will be no order as to the costs of the cross-objection.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 173

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

William Butler Yeats, (through E. M. Chambers) — Plaintiff — Appellant.
v.

Prof. Eric Dickinson and others — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 420 of 1936, Decided on 19th May 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Lahore, D/- 18th July 1936.

(a) Contract—Construction—Author agreeing to grant to publishers sole and exclusive license to print, publish and sell his work—Author reserving to him copyright of such volume and also other rights—Agreement held amounted to only publishing agreement and not assignment of copyright.

The author agreed to grant the publishers the sole and exclusive license to print, publish and sell his works in book form in the English language in certain parts of the world but reserved the entire copyright of the volume as his property and also reserved to himself all other rights except those mentioned in the agreement :

Held that the agreement merely amounted to a publishing agreement and could not be regarded as an assignment of copyright : (1907) 1 Ch D 651, Rel. on; (1929) A C 151, Disting.

[P 175 C 1]

(b) Copyright Act (1911, 1 & 2 Geo. V, Ch. 46) Ss. 6 and 7—Scope—Remedies given by Ss. 6 and 7 are not alternative—Yet owner of copyright getting damages under S. 6 is not generally entitled to anything as damages under S. 7.

Though the remedies given by S. 6, Copyright Act, are not alternative to those given by S. 7, yet when an owner of a copyright right obtains damages under S. 6, it often happens that he can recover nothing further in respect of damages under S. 7. Where the amount of damages awarded under S. 6 covers the price for permission to publish the work in question, the author is not entitled to damages also under S. 7 : 52 T L R 280, Rel. on.

[P 175 C 2]

Ishar Das Khanna — for Appellant.

Bishan Nath and H. S. Ray — for Respondents Nos. 2, 3 and 1.

Abdul Rashid J.—In the year 1933 a book entitled 'A Recession of English Poetry' was published by Messrs. Uttar Chand Kapur and Sons, Lahore. This book contains a large number of poems by various authors from the earliest times upto the present day. Mr. Eric Dickinson, Senior Professor of English Government College, Lahore, is the author of this compilation of English poetry. The book contains two poems by Mr. William Butler Yeats, the plaintiff in this case, entitled 'Adam's Curse' and 'The Stolen Child'. On 23rd August 1934 a letter was addressed by the Acting Manager of Messrs. Macmillan and Co. Ltd. to Messrs. Uttar Chand Kapur and Sons enquiring as to who had given them permission for including Mr. Yeats' poems 'Adam's Curse' and 'The Stolen Child' in the book entitled 'A Recession of English Poetry' by Dickinson. In the concluding sentence of this letter, it was mentioned by Messrs. Macmillan and Co. Ltd. that they had the copyright of these poems. The suit, which has given rise to the present appeal was instituted by Mr. Yeats on 19th July 1935. Messrs. Macmillan and Co. Ltd. did not join Mr. Yeats in instituting the suit. Mr. Dickinson author of 'A Recession of English Poetry' was defendant 1 and Guran Ditta Kapur and Uttar Chand Kapur were also made defendants on the ground that the former was the printer and the latter the publisher of the work in question. It was alleged in the plaint that the plaintiff was a well-known poet and was the author of numerous poems in the English language and that two of his poems entitled 'The Stolen Child' and 'Adam's Curse' had first been published in 1889 and 1904 respectively. It was further stated that Messrs. Macmillan and Co. Ltd. had the exclusive right to print all poetical works written by the plaintiff, that Messrs. Macmillan and Co. Ltd. had published a book entitled 'The Collected Poems of W. B. Yeats', and that the defendants had infringed the copyright of the plaintiff by including two of his poems in the book entitled 'A Recession of English Poetry'.

The defendants pleaded inter alia, that the plaintiff had no locus standi to sue as he had assigned the copyright in his poems to Messrs. Macmillan and Co. Ltd. by an agreement dated 15th March 1933. It was further pleaded that copyright does not exist in individual poems, that the defendants had not infringed any copyright belonging to the plaintiff and that the plaintiff was not entitled to any damages. On the pleadings of the parties, the trial Court framed the following issues :

(1) Is the plaintiff entitled to bring the suit in view of Macmillan's letter and allegation in the plaint that that firm is entitled to print and publish solely the poems of the plaintiff? (2) Is there no copyright in individual poems? (3) To what damages, if any, is the plaintiff entitled to?

 (4) Is plaintiff entitled to the injunction sought?
 (5) Whether the defendants have not infringed the copyright of the poems "Stolen Child" and "Adam's Curse"?

On Issue 1 it was held by the trial Court that the plaintiff had a locus standi to bring the present suit, as the agreement dated 15th March 1933 was a publishing agreement only and not an assignment of copyright. It was also held that copyright exists in individual poems and that the defendants had infringed the copyright of the plaintiff by including the poems "The Stolen Child" and "Adam's Curse" in their book entitled "A Recession of English Poetry". The trial Court also found that Mr. Dickinson, defendant 1, had included the two poems of Mr. Yeats in his book owing to a bona fide mistake as he was under the impression that he had obtained permission from Messrs. Macmillan & Co. Ltd. for the inclusion of these poems in his book. On these findings, the trial Court awarded the plaintiff a decree in the following terms: (a) For an injunction restraining the defendants from infringing the plaintiff's copyright in the two poems "The Stolen Child" and "Adam's Curse"; (b) for an injunction restraining the defendants from printing, producing or publishing these two poems; (c) for Rs. 25 to be paid as damages by the defendants; and (d) for an order that the defendants shall extract from the copies of their work at present unsold these two poems and make them over to the plaintiff along with printed proof sheets, pages or other papers designed to be or prepared as parts of any work in connexion with the publication of these two poems. The plaintiff was also granted proportionate costs.

Against the decision of the trial Court, the plaintiff has preferred an appeal to this Court praying that the damages granted by the trial Court may be enhanced and that the decree may be modified so as to include damages for conversion under S. 7 of the Act in addition to the penalties leviable under S. 6. The defendants have filed cross-objections under O. 41, R. 22, Civil P. C., praying inter alia that the suit of the plaintiff may be dismissed as he had no locus standi to sue. The first question for consideration in this case is whether the agreement dated 15th March 1933, between the plaintiff and Messrs. Macmillan & Co. Ltd. amounts to an assignment of copyright in favour of the latter.

The relevant provisions of this agreement may be reproduced in extenso:

1. That the author (W. B. Yeats) shall grant the publishers the sole and exclusive license to print, publish and sell in book form in the English language in the United Kingdom of Great Britain, its Colonies and dependencies and in Ireland a volume containing all the poetical, nondramatic works written by him and at present entitled "Collected poems" and he shall also grant to the publishers a license to sell the said volume in book form in the English language in any other part of the world except the United States of America.

2. That the published price of the said volume shall be fixed by the publishers at or about ten shillings and six pence (10-6d.) net and they shall pay to the author a royalty of twenty per cent. of the published price on all copies of the said volume which they may sell.

5. That all rights in the said volume other than those herein granted are reserved by the author.

11. That the entire copyright of the said volume is to remain the property of the author and at the expiration of five years from the day on which it is first published in book form by the publishers or at the expiration of any subsequent period of one year thereafter this agreement may be terminated by either party on giving six months' notice to that effect.

It was contended by the learned counsel for the respondent that Cl. (1) of this agreement amounts to a complete assignment of the copyright in favour of Messrs. Macmillan & Co. Ltd. and that Cl. (11) which lays down that the entire copyright of the said volume is to remain the property of the author cannot be so construed as to outdown the plain grant which is embodied in Cl. (1). It was further urged by the learned counsel for the respondent that if the agreement in question amounts to an assignment of the copyright in favour of Messrs. Macmillan & Co. Ltd. the mere use of the word "license" and "licensee" in the agreement cannot alter the legal effect of the various terms of this document. Reliance was placed in this connexion on a ruling of the House of Lords in (1929) A C 151.¹ In the reported case, the plaintiff-appellant Messenger was the composer of the music in a play known as "Les Petites Michus" and two other persons were the authors of the play. The authors and the composer granted a license to Mr. George Edwards of Daly's Theatre in London giving him the sole and exclusive right of representing or performing the play in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, America and the British Colonies and Dominions. Cl. (2) of the agreement provided that :

1. Messenger v. British Broadcasting Co. Ltd., (1929) A C 151=98 L J K B 189=140 L T 227=45 T L R 50.

The copyright in the music of the play shall remain the property of the said Andre Messenger and he shall be at liberty to use the English lyrics for sale with the music.

The British Broadcasting Co. in pursuance of permission granted to them by the licensee gave a broadcast performance of the play at their studio in London. In an action brought by Messenger for infringement of copyright, it was held that the agreement as a whole amounted to an absolute assignment of the performing rights of the play within the prescribed area and was not a mere license, that it was not limited to representation on the stage of a theatre and that the defendants had therefore not infringed the copyright of the plaintiff. This ruling is not applicable to the facts of the present case as by Cl. (2) of the agreement, the copyright in the music of the play remained the property of the plaintiff Messenger, but so far as the rights of representing or performing the play were concerned, the agreement amounted to a complete assignment in favour of the licensee. Lord Sumner in his judgment indicated that Cl. (2) stated what rights had not been included in the grant. In the present case it is definitely laid down in the agreement, dated 15th March 1933, that the entire copyright of the said volume is to remain the property of the author and that all rights in the said volume other than those therein granted are reserved by the author. In these circumstances the agreement between Mr. Yeats and Messrs. Macmillan & Co. Ltd, amounts merely to a publishing agreement and cannot be regarded as an assignment of copyright in the poems of Mr. Yeats. Reference may be made in this connexion to the case in (1907) 1 Ch D 651.² The trial Court was right therefore in holding that the plaintiff had a locus standi to institute the present suit.

The plaintiff has examined two witnesses on commission who have stated it as their opinion that five guineas (5 Gns.) would be a reasonable fee to charge for the publication of each of the poems. Mr. Francis, Manager of Messrs. Macmillan & Co. Ltd. was however compelled to admit that only two guineas had been charged for the reproduction of a poem of Mr. Yeats by the Karnatak Press, Bombay. This fee was collected by Messrs. Macmillan & Co. Ltd. on behalf of Mr. Yeats, and therefore the amount of the fee charged was within the personal knowledge of Mr. Francis. I am of the opinion that in the present case also, a sum of two guineas would be a reasonable fee for permission to publish each of the two poems which form the subject matter of the present litigation. It was contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that in addition to damages under S. 6, Copyright Act, the plaintiff should be awarded a substantial sum for conversion under S. 7 of the Act. Reference was made in this connexion by the learned counsel to the case in 52 T L R 230.³ It was held in that case that the remedies given by Ss. 6 and 7, Copyright Act, respectively, whereby damages can be recovered for the infringement of copyright and for conversion of any infringing copies are cumulative and not alternative. It was however observed by their Lordships that though the remedies given by S. 6 are not alternative to those given by S. 7, it must often happen that where an owner of copyright obtains damages under the former section he can recover nothing further in respect of damages under the latter. In my opinion, if a sum of four guineas be awarded to the plaintiff in the present case under S. 6, he would not be entitled to any damages under S. 7, as four guineas would be the price of the permission given by him to the defendants to publish the two poems.

For the reasons given above, I would accept this appeal only in so far as to enhance the amount of damages from Rs. 25 to Rs. 56. I would dismiss the cross-objections. The parties will bear their own costs in this Court. The order of the trial Court regarding costs in that Court will stand.

Tek Chand J.—I agree.

K.B./A.L. Appeal partly accepted.

3. Sutherland Publishing Co. Ltd. v. Caxton Publishing Co. Ltd., (1935) 52 T L R 280.

2. In re Jude's Musical Compositions, (1907) 1 Ch D 651=76 L J Ch 542=96 L T 766=28 T L R 461.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 176

YOUNG C J. AND MONROE J.

Bahadur Singh Arjan Singh
Convict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 534 of 1937,
Decided on 28th June 1937, from order of Addl. Sess. Judge, Amritsar, D/- 30th
April 1937.

Criminal Trial—Evidence—Medical officer examined before trying Magistrate should be insisted to come before Sessions Court.

It is likely to cause a miscarriage of justice of a grave character if a medical officer witness is examined in the Court of committing Magistrate but he is not examined before the Sessions Judge.
Counsel for accused should insist upon his coming before the Sessions Court. [P 176 C 2]

B. R. Puri — *for Appellant.*D. R. Sawhney — for the Crown.

Judgment.—Bahadur Singh has been condemned to death by the learned Additional Sessions Judge of Amritsar for the murder of Chanan Singh. Tara Singh, it is said by the prosecution, had a row on the morning of 5th April 1936, with Pritu and Labhu, because his buffalo had trespassed into their field. It is said there was abuse and a threat by Pritu and Labhu. That afternoon Tara Singh was in his field sowing sugarcane. Chanan Singh and some others came to get him to attend some religious ceremony of the Sikhs. In order that Tara Singh might go with them, all of them took part in the sugar-cane planting so that Tara could finish and get away. While they were thus engaged, it is said that Bahadur Singh with Pritu, Labhu and another man named Chanan, came armed with dangs and spears, it is said, to attack Tara.
Chanan Singh said he would protect Tara and when the opposite party came forward, it is said that Chanan Singh hit Chanan a blow with his dang on the shoulder. Thereupon, Bahadur Singh thrust his spear into the chest of Chanan Singh, inflicting a very severe wound which, according to the doctor, Lieutenant-Colonel Dargan, I. M. S. went into the chest between the fourth and fifth rib-cartilages on the right side; the covering of the heart was incised and there was blood in the sac round the heart. The diaphragm had been cut and there was blood in the right lung cavity. The left lobe of the liver had been cut to the extent of nearly three inches and there was much blood in the abdominal cavity. Death was due to the irritation of the heart and loss of blood. It is said that Tara ran away upon this and that Chanan Singh also ran a distance of about 240 yards to the bank of a canal in the vicinity and there fell down and died.

There were several eye-witnesses who bore out this story. It is to be noticed that if Chanan Singh was killed in the field of Tara Singh, that would clearly connote that Bahadur Singh and his party were the aggressors. On the other hand, if Chanan Singh was killed on the bank of the canal, it is not at all necessary that the accused were the aggressors. That was neutral ground. It struck us that this was a very important point and it appeared to us that the prosecution witnesses may have made Chanan Singh run, after receiving this deadly wound, a distance of 240 yards in order that the plea of aggression might be maintained. We were so impressed with the evidence of Lieutenant Colonel Dargan on the record that we adjourned the case and asked Colonel Dargan to come here to give evidence. He has given evidence this morning and the result of it is that he thinks it extremely unlikely that a man, who had received a wound of this character, would have moved from the place where he was hit, and certainly unlikely that he ran a distance of 240 yards. It is an amazing thing to us that an obvious point of this nature was never taken in the lower Court at all. Of course, Colonel Dargan was examined in the committing Magistrate's Court and not in the Sessions Court; and this is another instance where a miscarriage of justice of a grave character might have been caused by the examination of the medical officer not taking place in the Sessions Court. In any event, counsel who acted for the accused in the Sessions Court should have noticed this point and insisted upon Colonel Dargan coming to the Sessions Court.

The result of Colonel Dargan's evidence to us, acting as ordinary prudent persons, is that there is grave doubt as to the evidence of the eye-witnesses that Chanan Singh ran this distance after receiving the wound. We must therefore conclude that Chanan Singh probably was not killed in Tara Singh's field but that he was either killed on the canal or carried there after he had been killed. From this point of view it is interesting to note that although the inspecting officer of police says that he collected blood-stained earth from Tara Singh's field and from the canal, no blood has been discovered in any of these exhibits. We do not know what has happened in this case. All we know is that the prosecution story is probably untrue as regards Chanan Singh running the distance he is said to have run to the canal bank. This means that the whole case is in the air and we do not know the true facts. Therefore we must obviously allow this appeal, set aside the sentence of death and the conviction of Bahadur Singh and order that he be set at liberty.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 177

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Sant Lal and others—Decree-holders—Appellants.

v.

Ramaya Ram and another—Judgment-debtors—Respondents.

Exn. First Appeal No. 9 of 1937, Decided on 20th May 1937, from order of Sub-Judge, First Class, Jhang, D/- 5th October 1936.

(a) Arbitration — Award — Partition proceedings — Award declaring rights of parties in property without giving them possession — Award is declaratory and possession cannot be given in execution proceedings.

In partition proceedings, the award declared the rights of the parties in the property and did not state that possession was to be given to the parties:

Held that the award was merely declaratory and hence possession of the properties could not be given to the parties in the execution proceedings. [P 178 O 1]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908) S. 47 (2) — Partition proceedings—Award declaring rights of parties without giving possession — Decree in accordance with award — Bona fide application for execution claiming possession with alternative prayer to treat application as suit — Case held was fit for application of S. 47 (2).

In a partition proceedings the award declared the rights of the parties without giving them possession. A decree was passed in accordance with the award. In a bona fide application for execution of the decree, the applicant claimed possession of the property and made an alternative prayer that in case possession might not be given, the application should be treated as a suit under S. 47 (2), Civil P. O., on payment of additional Court-fee:

Held that the question of payment of additional court-fee could arise only when the Court had decided that application for execution did not lie. After this had been done, the applicant could have been called upon to make good the deficiency in the court-fee. The case was a fit one in which the salutary provisions of S. 47 (2) should have been applied. [P 178 O 2]

J. L. Kapur—for Appellants.

Aohhru Ram and Indar Dev—

for Respondents.

Tek Chand J.—Sant Lal and Ramaya Ram are two brothers, residents of Maghiana (Jhang). On 29th October 1929 Sant Lal and his sons brought a suit against Ramaya Ram and his son for partition of certain properties, alleging that they were members of a joint Hindu family and that the properties in dispute were held by them in coparcenary. The properties consisted of agricultural land, houses, jewellery, money, decrees and outstandings. After some proceedings had been taken in the suit, it was referred to the sole arbitration of Rai Bahadur Nihal Chand. On 10th August 1930 the arbitrator, with the consent of the parties, gave a preliminary award laying down the mode of partition and on 23rd December 1930 he delivered his final award. On 17th August 1931 the Subordinate Judge passed a decree in accordance with the award. A few months later, Sant Lal applied to the revenue authorities for mutation of properties mentioned in list N attached to the award, alleging that in the award and the decree which followed thereon he had been declared to be the sole owner thereof. The Assistant Collector held that Sant Lal had been granted only one-half share in these properties and that he was not the owner of the whole as alleged by him. He accordingly sanctioned mutation in his favour as owner of one-half. Sant Lal appealed to the Collector, who held that the portions of the award and the decree, dealing with the agricultural land in question, were obscure and that it was not possible for Revenue Officers to give effect to the decree as it stood. He accordingly cancelled the mutation and directed that the revenue entries should stand as before, until the matter had been made clear by a competent Court. Sant Lal appealed to the Commissioner who upheld the order of the Collector.

Sant Lal then applied to the Senior Subordinate Judge, Jhang, for execution of the decree passed in accordance with the award on 17th August 1931, praying that possession of the properties mentioned in list N be delivered to him as sole owner. In the alternative, he prayed that if the Court held that possession could not be handed over in execution proceedings, the application might be treated as a suit under S. 47 (2), Civil P. C., on payment of additional court-fee by him. The Senior Subordinate Judge held that the decree was not executable as it was merely declaratory so far as the properties in list N were concerned and therefore the application for execution did not lie. As to the alternative prayer, the learned Judge came to the conclusion that this was not a fit case in which the discretion given to him under S. 47 (2) should be exercised. On the merits, he found that the plaintiff had not been declared in the award to be the exclusive owner of the properties in list N. For all these reasons he dismissed the application. Sant Lal appeals.

The first contention raised by his learned counsel is that para. 8 of the final award which deals with the properties in list N, read with paras. 7 and 12 of the preliminary award, dated 10th August 1930, shows that the arbitrator had awarded possession of the properties in list N to the appellant. After examining the two awards and hearing counsel, I see no force in this contention. The award is merely declaratory of the rights of Sant Lal in the properties in question. It nowhere states that possession of those properties was to be given to him. I would therefore affirm the finding of the lower Court on this point and hold that possession of the properties could not be given to the defendant in execution proceedings.

The second question is whether in the circumstances of this case, the alternative prayer should have been granted and the execution proceedings converted into a suit on payment of the proper court-fee. The learned Judge has given two reasons for not acceding to this prayer : (1) that the question of court-fee payable could not be determined on the materials on the record, the appellant not having produced the sadar qanungo to prove the amount of revenue assessed on the land in dispute, and (2) that the application for execution did not appear to have been made bona fide. In my opinion both these grounds are untenable, and in the very peculiar circumstances of this case, the learned Judge should have granted the prayer. The question of payment of additional court-fee could only arise when the Court had decided that the application for execution did not lie. After this had been done, the plaintiff could have been called upon to make good the deficiency in the court-fee, and if necessary the sadar qanungo should have been summoned. There is nothing on the record to indicate that the application for execution had not been made bona fide. As already stated, the decree had been passed in August 1931. In May 1932 the appellant applied to the revenue authorities for mutation of the properties in dispute in accordance with what he alleged had been awarded to him by the decree. The defendants themselves then objected that the Revenue Court had no jurisdiction to deal with the matter and that the proper remedy of the appellant was to apply to the Civil Court for execution of the decree. The proceedings remained pending before the Revenue Officers for more than two years, and as soon as they finally directed him to have the matter settled in the Civil Court, he filed the present application before the Senior Subordinate Judge asking, in the first instance, for execution of the decree, and in the alternative, praying that if that application did not lie, it might be treated as a suit on payment of appropriate court-fee. There is nothing to indicate bad faith on the part of the appellant in making these alternative prayers. In my opinion this was a fit case in which the salutary provisions of S. 47 (2) should have been applied.

I would accordingly accept the appeal, set aside the order of the lower Court and remand the case to it with the direction that the execution proceedings be converted into a suit for possession of the properties mentioned in list N on payment of appropriate court-fee. Having regard to all the circumstances, I would leave the parties to bear their own costs in this Court. Before concluding, I think it necessary to point out that the Subordinate Judge having decided against the appellant on both the preliminary points ought not to have proceeded to discuss the case on the merits and give a finding thereon. The Court, which will try the suit now, ought not to be influenced, one way or the other, by the finding of the Senior Subordinate Judge in the judgment under appeal. Both counsel have been directed to cause their clients to appear before the Senior Subordinate Judge, Jhang, on 28th June 1937.

when a date for further proceedings will be fixed.

Abdul Rashid J.—I agree.

P.R./D.S.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 179

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Kartar Singh and others —

Defendants — Appellants.

v.

Mt. Bhagan, Plaintiff and others,

Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 303 of 1937, Decided on 22nd June 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Gujranwala, D/- 2nd December 1936.

Res judicata — Question of plaintiff's title raised in appeal but suit dismissed entirely on other ground — Question of title cannot become res judicata in subsequent suit.

Where in appeal to the High Court in a declaratory suit, the plaintiff's title is challenged but the High Court dismisses the plaintiff's suit entirely not going into those grounds because it accepts another ground that the procedure of the lower Court is entirely wrong, the question of title is sub judice and cannot act as res judicata in a subsequent suit; 1924 Mad 626 and A I R 1929 Cal 449, Disting.; A I R 1922 P C 241; 11 Cal 301; 13 Cal 17; A I R 1932 Mad 207 and A I R 1935 Mad 701, Rel. on. [P 180 C 1]

J. G. Sethi — for Appellants.

Bashir Ahmed — for Respondents.

Dalip Singh J. — One Taj Din died some time in 1920 and his land, 236 kanals and 14 marlas in area, was mutated in favour of his widow Mt. Bhagan on 29th December 1920. Mt. Bhagan remarried on 25th January 1922. On 21st February 1923 she executed a gift deed in favour of three sets of persons who constituted her own relations as well as her husband's relations. She gifted the property that she had left with her, that is 216 kanals and 14 marlas, to these persons in equal shares in the early portion of the deed. In an addendum to the deed however, she stated that she was only entitled to one-fourth of her husband's property, that is to about 59 kanals, and that she had sold 20 kanals out of this and was therefore only gifting 39 kanals and 3 marlas to the three sets of persons in equal shares. Mutation following this gift took place on 21st June 1924, and the entire landed property which then stood in the name of Mt. Bhagan was transferred to the donees. Defendants 1 and 2, who are some of these donees, on 27th January 1931, mortgaged a portion of the property to defendants 7 to 9. Defendants 4 and 5, who are other donees, on 3rd February 1931 mortgaged certain portions of the property to defendants 10 and 11. After this on 9th February 1931, Mt. Bhagan brought a declaratory suit for a declaration that the gift was void altogether on various pleas.

The trial Court held that the gift was good only so far as 39 kanals and 3 marlas of land was concerned. He dismissed the suit on the ground that it was time-barred and that a suit for a mere declaration did not lie for Mt. Bhagan was not in possession of the suit property. On appeal the District Judge held that the suit was not time-barred, that a suit for a mere declaration did not lie; he held that Mt. Bhagan should have been asked to amend the plaint into one for possession and gave her a decree for possession of 177 kanals and 14 marlas on payment of court-fee presumably converting the plaint into one for possession. The defendants appealed to the High Court and the High Court, holding that the procedure followed by the learned District Judge in allowing amendment which had never been asked for at any stage and, further in not considering that there might be defences open in a possessory suit which were not open in a declaratory suit was wrong and that the learned District Judge should at least have given the defendants a chance of replying to a possessory suit if he had allowed amendment, accepted the appeal and dismissed the suit with costs throughout.

On 10th May 1935, the present suit for possession of 177 kanals and 14 marlas was brought by Mt. Bhagan. Various issues were framed which do not concern us. The trial Court held on the merits that the suit could proceed, was not barred by time, there was no res judicata, the defendants 7 to 11 were not shown to be transferees in good faith and without notice, and that the gift was valid only to the extent of 39 kanals and 3 marlas and therefore decreed the suit. On appeal the learned District Judge held that the decision of the learned District Judge in the declaratory suit to which reference has already been made, had held that the gift of Mt. Bhagan was valid only to the extent of 39 kanals and 3 marlas. According to him, this was a finding of fact and could not be disputed by the High Court. Rely.

ing on two rulings A I R 1924 Mad 626¹ and I R 1930 (Cal.) 243² he held that the finding was res judicata and therefore dismissed the appeal. Defendants 7 to 11 have appealed against this decision urging that the rulings cited do not support the inference drawn by the learned District Judge and that there is no res judicata in the finding of the learned District Judge.

In A I R 1924 Mad 626¹ it was held that the decision qua certain rights of the plaintiff was res judicata but the decision proceeded on the ground that as by reason of that finding costs had not been allowed to the defendant, the finding in plaintiff's favour on these rights was res judicata because the defendant could have appealed to the High Court by reason of the costs having been disallowed. It is unnecessary to go into the question whether that ruling was rightly or wrongly decided but it is distinguishable on the simple ground that in this case the judgment and decree of the learned District Judge were not allowed to stand and were appealed against to the High Court. It was sought to be argued that the grounds of the decision about the plaintiff's title to the land were not challenged in the High Court. A reference to the grounds of appeal however shows that the title of the present plaintiff was challenged and the High Court which dismissed the plaintiff's suit throughout did not go into those grounds because it accepted the earlier ground that the procedure of the learned District Judge was entirely wrong. In these circumstances I am unable to see how the matters which became sub judice by reason of the appeal to the High Court became res judicata when the suit of the plaintiff was entirely dismissed by the High Court.

In I R 1930 (Cal.) 243² the suit was both for a declaration of title and for actual possession by judgment. A declaration of title was given, but actual possession was refused on the ground of lack of notice. The defendant had pleaded that he was not a tenant but a cosharer. In a subsequent suit for ejectment after notice, it was held that as the suit had not been dismissed but a declaration of title had been given to the plaintiff, the finding was res judicata on the ground of plaintiff's title. The facts are clearly quite different and have nothing to do with the present case. There was no decree given in the present case to the plaintiff whose suit was dismissed in toto. The learned counsel for appellants has cited the following rulings, 48 Cal 460,³ 11 Cal 301,⁴ 13 Cal 17,⁵ 55 Mad 483⁶ and 161 I C 103.⁷ These rulings support his contention that the finding is not res judicata. I would therefore accept the appeal and remand the case back to the learned District Judge for decision according to law. Stamp on appeal will be refunded to the appellants who will also have costs of this appeal.

Skemp J.—I agree.

S.C./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

3. Midnapur Zamindari Co. Ltd. v. Nares Narayan Roy, A I R 1922 P C 241=64 I C 231=48 I A 49=48 Cal 460 (P O).
4. Runbahadur Singh v. Luch Koer, (1885) 11 Cal 301=12 I A 23=4 Sar 602 (P O).
5. Nundo Lal Bhattacharjee v. Bidhoo Mookhy Debee, (1886) 13 Cal 17.
6. Kumarappa Chetti v. Muthuvijaya Raghunatha, A I R 1932 Mad 207=137 I C 616=55 Mad 483=62 M L J 141
7. Venkatachala Padayachi v. Velayudha Padayachi, A I R 1935 Mad 701=161 I C 103.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 180

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Labh Singh and another — Plaintiffs
— Appellants.

v.

Mt. Jasso and another — Defendants —
Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 286 of 1937, Decided on 11th June 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Hoshiarpur, D/- 7th January 1937.

(a) Second Appeal—Interpretation of facts found by lower Court can be dealt with in second appeal.

Where the lower Court has arrived at a certain finding of facts, and the facts are clear but the dispute relates not to the facts but to interpretation of facts by the lower Court, it can be dealt with in second appeal. [P 181 C 1]

(b) Custom (Punjab) — Ancestral and non-ancestral proportion of land not distinguishable—Whole is non-ancestral.

If a Court is unable to find what proportion of land is ancestral and which is non-ancestral the whole must be held to be non-ancestral: 42 P R 1910 (P C) and 60 I C 520, Rel. on. [P 181 C 2]

Amar Singh, D. N. Aggarwal for Krishan Swarup — for Appellants.

Harbhajan Das and J. N. Talwar —
for Respondents.

Skemp J.—This appeal concerns the holding measuring 86 kanals 12 marlas of 1. Veerasami Mudali v. Palaniyappan, A I R 1924 Mad 626=84 I C 799=46 M L J 515.

2. Murad Blewas v. Basti Mandal, A I R 1929 Cal 449=122 I C 547=I R 1930 Cal 248.

Khushal Singh who died in 1934. Khushal Singh who had no son made a will leaving this land and also a house to his daughters. The will was contested by the two sons of Khushal Singh's first cousin who brought this suit for possession of the land and the house. The learned trial Judge found that the will was proved and that in accordance with the Customary law of the district, if the land were ancestral, the collaterals were entitled to it, if non-ancestral, the daughters. He found that part of the land was ancestral and part non-ancestral and decreed accordingly. Both sides appealed to the learned District Judge who found that the whole of the property in dispute was non-ancestral. He accepted the appeal and dismissed the suit entirely. The collaterals have come here in second appeal. We overruled the preliminary objection that the finding of the learned District Judge was a finding of fact on the ground that the facts are clear and what is in dispute is his interpretation of the facts.

It was admitted before the District Judge that 9 khasra numbers measuring 42 kanals 14 marlas were ancestral qua the plaintiffs reversioners at the time of the Settlement of 1911-12 but it was contended that the remainder of the land was non-ancestral. The District Judge went through the fourteen numbers alleged to be non-ancestral and divided them into several categories. One he found to be untraceable, two or three non-ancestral simpliciter and his findings about these numbers are not contested. He found that two sets of numbers in the year 1852 belonged in part to Khushal Singh's father Jaimal Singh and in part to a stranger named Ram Dhan. In reference to these areas, he held that as out of the whole it could not be said which was ancestral and which was non-ancestral, the whole must be presumed to be non-ancestral. He applied the same principle to the remaining numbers. These numbers were either part of shamilat which had gone to Jaimal Singh by partition between the Settlements of 1852 and 1884 but it was impossible to say how much was on account of ancestral land held by Jaimal Singh or on account of non-ancestral land held by him. He therefore held that these 14 numbers were all non-ancestral.

Then the District Judge came to a later period and found that the whole of the property held to be ancestral and non-ancestral was exchanged by consolidation of holdings for other lands, and that it was not possible to say which of the exchanged land corresponded to the ancestral and which corresponded to the non-ancestral land and therefore he held the whole to be non-ancestral. The other findings of the learned District Judge about the house property and about the land which he definitely held to be non-ancestral have not been attacked, what has been attacked being his findings about consolidation and about shamilat. The argument is the same in both cases that if it could be ascertained, as it probably could, how much ancestral and how much non-ancestral Jaimal Singh held the shamilat land which came to him ought to be divided in those proportions; and similarly that at the time of consolidation new consolidated holdings which Khushal Singh acquired should be regarded as ancestral and non-ancestral in the same proportion as his original holdings. In other words, if before consolidation he held 40 kanals ancestral and 60 kanals non-ancestral that out of his new consolidated holding 40 per cent. should be recorded as ancestral and 60 per cent. as non-ancestral. This indeed was the argument adopted by the learned trial Judge and it has undoubtedly the advantage of equity. But I do not myself see and the appellants' counsel was unable to explain how this rule of proportion can be brought into line with any legal principle. Ever since the well-known Privy Council ruling, 42 P R 1910,¹ the principle has been followed that if a Court is unable to find what proportion of land is ancestral and which is non-ancestral, the whole must be held to be non-ancestral. We were referred to a particular case, 60 I C 520,² where that principle was followed in regard to land part of which had been acquired by the common ancestor of the parties and part broken up by his successors. I do not see how any other principle can be applied to the present case, and appellants' counsel cited no authority in support of his argument.

This may possibly have unfortunate results if it is applied to consolidation of holdings but all I am concerned with is the application of a legal principle. If the result is unfortunate, it is either for the revenue authorities to lay down that

1. Attar Singh v. Thakar Singh, (1910) 42 P R 1910=35 Cal 1039=6 I C 721=35 I A 206 (P O).

2. Lehnun v. Gupta, (1921) 60 I C 520.

at the time of consolidation of holdings, it shall be laid down what area each owner obtains for every field which he exchanges or for the Legislature to remedy the evil by laying down a rule of proportion such as is suggested by counsel for the appellants. I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

V.B.B./R.K. Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 182

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din and others — Plaintiffs — Appellants.
v.

*Mt. Hajran Bibi and another —
Defendants—Respondents.*

Second Appeal No. 336 of 1937, Decided on 14th June 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Amritsar, D/- 2nd January 1937.

Second Appeal—Appellate Court erring in law in arriving at conclusion upon facts.

Where the lower Appellate Court errs in law in holding on the facts of a case that the descent has not been from preceptor to disciple, the finding can be interfered with in second appeal: A I R 1931 Lah 607, Disting. [P 183 C 1]

Mohammad Monir — for Appellants.

Barkat Ali — for Respondents.

Skemp J.—This second appeal has arisen from a suit brought by three Muslims of Amritsar as well-wishers of a takya for a declaration that the takya in question known as Takya Billu Sain is wakf property and seeking that Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din, plaintiff 1, be appointed its mutwalli. The plaintiffs obtained sanction of the Collector under S. 92, Civil P. C. to their suit. The suit was mainly contested by Abdul Karim, who had a timber stall on the spot and relied on a will in his favour executed by the last fakir. The Courts below dismissed the suit on the ground that it was not proved that the property was wakf. The plaintiffs have come here in second appeal. The only questions argued before us are: (1) is the property wakf, and (2) is the finding of the learned District Judge on this point a question of fact not assailable in second appeal. From the earliest British records until the year 1934, the Crown has been recorded the owner of the land in question which measures 2 kanals 18 marlas. Various fakirs have been shown in possession: in 1865 Rode Shah Fakir, in 1887 Kamal Shah Fakir, in 1892 Phine Shah under Kamal Shah and in 1911 certain potters under Kamal Shah. Throughout this period, the land has been described in the column of cultivation as a takya and in the column of revenue as kharij as baohh. On 23rd December 1925, Phine Shah made a will in favour of the contesting defendant in which he described himself as chela Kamal Shah Fakir. In the course of the will Phine Shah stated that the tomb of his dada murshad Billu Sain is situate at the takya which his murshad Kamal Shah had tended and Phine Shah himself for a period of 48 years. The will also mentioned that Abdul Karim had a timber stall of which he was owner, that Abdul Karim and his ancestors had looked after him, that Phine Shah left his so-called "rights of possession" to Abdul Karim. The will also spoke of income from offerings. There is some oral evidence which is not very conclusive, and there is no possible ground for dissenting from the remarks of the learned District Judge that besides the timber stall the remaining portion contains an akhara or wrestling ground, a mosque, two tombs, a well with two bath rooms, three shops adjoining the road side, a kothri and a verandah. The evidence shows that the mosque is a mere platform without any roof. The well was a gift to Billu Sain by a lady.

A copy of the inscription on the well was brought on to the record; it is both in Gurmukhi and in Persian and is to the effect that "Alif Sain's widow, Jawai, sunk this well in the name of God and gave it to Billu Fakir in charity." The date is 1282 Hijra (1866 A. D.). In the year 1934 by order of the Deputy Commissioner a mutation was sanctioned transferring the rights of Government as owner to Takya Phine Shah. It appears to me that all the facts taken together, namely that the place has always been a takya, that no land revenue has ever been paid, that there are tombs, that Government has ultimately recognized the rights of the takya to ownership, that Phine Shah's will speaks of offerings, that the well was gifted in the name of God and by way of charity, are sufficient to prove that this institution is wakf. Further the succession has been from murshad to balka. The learned District Judge says that:

The presumption in favour of the wakf nature of the property arising from the fact that it descended from preceptor to disciple is not applicable in the present case because it is not shown that there were in existence any natural heirs of Kamal Shah who were excluded. The mutation on the death of Phine Shah was contested by two men, Nathu Sain and Mahni Shah, both of whom are shown therein to be balkas of Phine Shah. Nathu stated before the Revenue Officer that Phine Shah was his cousin as well as his murshad and that Kamal Shah was his uncle and the murshad of Phine Shah and that Kamal Shah's property was inherited by Phine Shah.

From this it would appear that although Phine Shah was a natural heir of Kamal Shah and so also was Nathu Sain, yet Phine Shah was preferred to Nathu Sain. This can only be explained on the presumption that Phine Shah was preferred as disciple of Kamal Shah. In other words in this instance at least the descent was from preceptor to disciple as such and the mutation order says so. Moreover according to the mutation by which Abdul Karim succeeded to Phine Shah, he succeeded in his capacity as balka. As already noted, it is also argued that in any case, the finding of the learned District Judge is one of fact and 12 Lah 540¹ was quoted as authority, but this is a ruling on very different facts. In this case the learned District Judge has erred in law in holding that on the facts the descent has not been from preceptor to disciple.

For these reasons I would accept the appeal and grant the plaintiffs a declaration that the takya Billu Sain is wakf property. It will be necessary to remand the case for further enquiry into the prayer whether Ghulam Mohy-ud-Din ought to be appointed its mutwalli and for decision of the issues left undecided by the trial Judge. The parties have been told to appear in the Court of the learned trial Judge, Mr. J. N. Kapur, Subordinate Judge, First Class, Amritsar, on 12th July 1937 in order to obtain orders. Costs are to be costs in the litigation.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

K.B./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

1. Mehraj Din v. Ghulam Muhammad, A I R 1931 Lah 607=134 I C 492=12 Lah 540=32 P L R 276.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 183

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Firm Harnam Singh-Sohan Singh — Defendants—Appellants.

v.

Firm Nikka Ram-Parma Nand — Plaintiffs—Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 34 of 1937,
Decided on 19th May 1937, from judgment of Skemp J., D/- 11th January 1937.

Negotiable Instruments Act (1881), S. 66 — Applicability — Hundi payable on certain day on which it is drawn—S. 66 does not apply — Hundi must be presented within reasonable time—Hundi drawn at Peshawar on certain day on which it was made payable at Bombay—Presentment after three days of date held was not unreasonable delay.

Where a hundi which is not made payable at a specified period after date or sight thereof but purports to have been drawn on a certain day and is made payable on the same day, the hundi is not governed by S. 66 and must be presented to the drawee within reasonable time. [P 184 C 1, 2]

A vendee firm sent a hundi drawn at Peshawar for a certain amount payable at Bombay on a certain date on which it purported to have been drawn in part payment of the unpaid purchase money. The hundi reached vendor firm two days before the date on which it was made payable.
The vendor presented it to the drawee three days after the fixed date but the hundi could not be cashed due to the insolvency of the drawee :

Held that there was no unreasonable delay in presentment and therefore the vendee firm was not discharged from paying the amount of hundi to the vendor firm. [P 184 C 2]

Nihal Singh — for Appellants.

Jhanda Singh — for Respondents.

Tek Chand J. — This appeal arises out of a suit instituted by firm Nikka Ram-Parma Nand of Amritsar against firm
Harnam Singh-Sohan Singh of Peshawar for recovery of Rs. 1337.0.9 alleged to be due as balance of the price of goods purchased by the defendant firm from the plaintiff firm. The trial Judge passed a decree in favour of the plaintiffs for the full sum claimed. The defendants appealed to the District Judge who dismissed their appeal. They filed a second appeal to this Court but that appeal also was unsuccessful. They have now filed this appeal under Cl. 10, Letters Patent. The only disputed point is whether the defendants were entitled to credit for the sum of Rs. 800 for which they had sent a hundi to the plaintiffs in part payment of the amount due in the account, but which had not been cashed. The relevant facts are that a post dated beopari shahjog hundi for Rs. 800, bearing date 26th Chet 1990 (= 7th April 1933), was drawn by firm Kishen Das-
Gobind Lal of Peshawar on Seth Kaka Ram-Kishen Das of Bombay, in favour of the defendant firm Harnam Singh-Sohan Singh of Peshawar, payable on 26th Chet,
i. e. the same day on which it purported to have been drawn. The exact date on which the hundi was executed is not known, but it was handed over by the drawer to the payee (defendant) at Pesh-war on 20th Chet (=1st April), i. e. six days before it purported to be drawn, 26th Chet (=7th April). At that time the defendants owed a considerable sum of money to the plaintiffs as balance of the price of goods purchased for which the plaintiffs had made a demand. In part payment of the amount due, the defendants endorsed the hundi in favour of the plaintiffs, and sent it to them by post. It reached the plaintiffs at Amritsar on 24th Chet (=5th April). The next day they sent it to a firm at Bombay for collection. It reached Bombay some time on 27th Chet (=8th April 1933). 28th Chet was a Sunday. The hundi could have been but was not presented to the drawee for payment on 29th. On 30th Chet (=11th April) the drawee firm Kaka Ram-Kishen Das failed. The hundi therefore could not be collected, and was returned to the plaintiffs at Amritsar, who in due course informed the defendants at Peshawar and demanded payment of the full amount due to them. The defendants having failed to pay, the plaintiffs brought the present suit against them for recovery of Rs. 1337.0.9.

In their written statement, the defendants pleaded inter alia that they were entitled to credit for Rs. 800, the amount of the hundi above-mentioned, even though it had not been cashed. They contended that the plaintiffs should have presented the hundi to the drawee at Bombay, at the latest on 29th Chet, when the drawee firm was doing business, and as the plaintiffs or their Bombay agent did not do so, the defendants were discharged. This contention has not been accepted by the Courts, who have concurrently held that the plaintiff firm, as the endorsee of the hundi, should have presented it "within reasonable time" of its receipt by them, and that having regard to the distance between Amritsar and Bombay and the other circumstances, it could not be said that the plaintiffs were guilty of negligence in delaying its presentment till 30th Chet, when the drawee firm suspended its business. Mr Nihal Singh for the defendants-appellants relied on S. 66, Negotiable Instruments Act. That section lays down that :

A promissory note or bill of exchange made payable at a specified period after date or sight thereof, must be presented for payment at maturity.

It is evident that the hundi in question was not made payable at a specified period after date or sight thereof. It purported to have been drawn on 26th Chet and was made payable on the same day. Evidently it is not governed by S. 66, and the holder was not bound to present it on the third day after the date on which it was expressed to be payable. The learned counsel has referred us to certain rulings under S. 45 (1) of the English Bills of Exchange Act, 1882. These rulings are of no assistance as the wording of that section is materially different from that of S. 66, Indian Negotiable Instruments Act 1881. The hundi having been drawn on 26th Chet and made payable the same day, it should have been presented for payment "within reasonable time". The learned Judge in Chambers, agreeing with the Courts below, has held that in the circumstances of the case the plaintiff, or his Bombay agent, cannot be held to be guilty of unreasonable delay in not presenting the hundi before 30th Chet. No valid ground has been urged for interference with this finding in Letters Patent appeal. On this finding, it must be held that the defendants are not discharged from liability for payment of the amount of the hundi which had been endorsed by them in favour of the plaintiffs, but which could not have been cashed owing to the insolvency of the drawee. The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

Abdul Rashid J.—I agree.

K.B./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 184

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Abdul Ghafur Khan — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Firm Mangat Rai. Ganga Sahai, Decree-holder and another, Judgment-debtor and others, Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1098 of 1936, Decided on 25th May 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Jullundur, D/. 19th May 1936.

Transfer of Property Act (1882 as amended by Act 20 of 1929), S. 92 — Applicability of principles of S. 92 in Punjab — Co-mortgagor redeeming entire mortgage — He is subrogated to rights of original mortgagee to claim contribution from co-mortgagors by foreclosure or sale of their shares.

If a subsequent mortgagee or purchaser pays off a mortgage he is subrogated to the rights of the prior mortgagee whose debt he discharges. Similarly a redeeming co-mortgagor is subrogated to the rights of the original mortgagee, as regards his right to claim contribution from the co-mortgagors by foreclosure or sale of their share in the mortgaged property. Indeed, the position of the co-mortgagor is much stronger than that of a subsequent mortgagee or purchaser who pays off a prior mortgagee, for, under the law it is incumbent on the mortgagor to pay the entire mortgage charge before he can redeem his own share of the mortgage. This equitable principle is equally applicable in the Punjab: 2 Mad 223; 14 All 1 (F.B.); A I R 1934 Lah 248 and 50 Am Dec 637, Rel. on; A I R 1920 Lah 234; A I R 1923 Lah 311 and A I R 1926 Lah 238, Disting. [P 185 C 2; P 186 C 1, 2]

Mela Ram — for Appellant.

Krishna Swarup and Mohammad Din Jan — for Respondents 1 and 3.

Tek Chand J.—The house in dispute originally belonged to one Jehangir Khan who on 14th July 1920 mortgaged it to defendant 1, firm Mangat Rai-Ganga Sahai, for Rs. 400. Some time after the mortgage Jehangir Khan died, leaving three sons Abdul Ghafur Khan plaintiff, Abdul Majid Khan, defendant 2, and Abdul Shakur Khan, defendant 4, who succeeded to the equity of redemption. On 2nd January 1932, Abdul Ghafur Khan alone redeemed the mortgage paying the entire mortgage money. Subsequently, in execution of a money-decree, obtained by defendant 1 Mangat Rai-Ganga Sahai, against Abdul Majid Khan for a personal debt of his, the one-third share of Abdul Majid Khan in this house was attached and sold to Jan Mahammad, defendant 3. Before the confirmation of the sale, Abdul Ghafur Khan objected before the executing Court that he having paid the entire amount due on the mortgage of 14th July 1920, had stepped into the shoes of the mortgagee qua the share of his brothers and therefore Abdul Majid Khan's share in the house could only be sold subject to his rights as a mortgagee. The objection was dismissed by the executing Court and Abdul Ghafur Khan instituted a suit for a declaration under O. 21, R. 63, Civil P. C.

The suit was resisted by the auction-purchaser Jan Mohammad who pleaded that on payment of his brothers' share of the mortgage money, the plaintiff had acquired merely a "charge" on their share of the property, and had not been subrogated as a mortgagee, and as the auction-purchaser had purchased the property in good faith without notice of the charge, the plaintiff could not claim priority for it. The trial Judge upheld the plea and dismissed the suit. This decision was affirmed on appeal by the Senior Subordinate Judge. On second appeal the case came up before Bhide J. sitting in Single Bench who has referred it to a Division Bench. It is common ground between the parties that after the death of Jehangir Khan, the position of his three sons, Abdul Ghafur Khan, Abdul Majid Khan and Abdul Shakur Khan was that of co-mortgagors of the property, and under the law any one of them could not redeem his own share of the mortgaged property only, but it was incumbent upon him to redeem the mortgage as a whole on payment of the entire amount due on foot of the mortgage. It is also admitted that the redeeming co-mortgagor is entitled to contribution from the other mortgagors for their pro rata share of the amount paid by him. The question for decision is whether for the purpose of claiming this contribution the redeeming co-mortgagor is placed in the position of the mortgagee whom he had redeemed.

In the Punjab there is no statute law applicable to cases of this kind, and therefore the matter has to be decided on principles of equity, justice and good conscience, and I have no doubt that on these principles the answer to this question must be in the affirmative. It is well settled that if a subsequent mortgagee or purchaser pays off a mortgage, he is subrogated to the rights of the prior mortgagee whose debt he discharges. If this is so, there is no reason why one of the co-mortgagors, who pays off the entire mortgage, should not be equally subrogated. Indeed, it seems to me that the position of the co-mortgagor is much stronger than that of a subsequent mortgagee or purchaser who pays off a prior mortgagee, for, under the law, it is incumbent on the co-mortgagor to pay the entire mortgage charge before he can redeem his own share of the mortgage. This equitable principle has long been recognized in England, and it appears to have been followed by the Courts in India before the Transfer of Property Act was passed in 1882: see inter alia 2 Mad 223¹ at p. 225 and 14 All 1.² In 1882 however the Transfer of Property Act was enacted, S. 95 of which ran as follows:

Where one of several mortgagors redeems the mortgaged property and obtains possession thereof

1. Asansab Ravuthan v. Vamana Rau, (1879) 2 Mad 223.

2. Ashfaq Ahmad v. Wazir Ali, (1891) 14 All 1 = 1891 A W N 211 (F.B.).

he has a charge on the share of each of the other co-mortgagors in the property for his proportion of the expenses properly incurred in so redeeming and obtaining possession.

But, as observed by Dr. Rashbehary Ghose in his Law of Mortgages in India, Edn. 5, Vol. 1, p. 372, this "unskillfully drawn and clumsily worded section" gave rise to considerable confusion in the applicability of the equitable doctrine mentioned above. In some Courts, the view was taken that the word "charge" in this section must be construed strictly according to the definition given in S. 100 of the Act and therefore a redeeming co-mortgagor was not subrogated to all the rights of the mortgagee to whom he had redeemed. In other Courts, it was held, on the contrary, that notwithstanding the wording of S. 95 the correct legal position was that the redeeming co-mortgagor stepped into the shoes of the mortgagee and was subrogated to his rights and remedies. In this state of the law, the Legislature intervened in 1929, when the relevant sections of the Transfer of Property Act were amended, and it has now been clearly laid down in S. 92 that any co-mortgagor shall, on redeeming property subject to the mortgage, have so far as regards redemption, foreclosure or sale of such property, the same rights as the mortgagee, whose mortgage he redeems, may have against the mortgagor or any other mortgagee. The position therefore has now been put beyond doubt in the provinces where the Transfer of Property Act is in force. In the Punjab, where that Act has not been applied so far, the legal position has all along been that the equitable doctrine of subrogation applied to the case of a redeeming co-mortgagor. Reference has however been made to three Single Bench rulings of this Court in 55 I C 450,³ 71 I C 847⁴ and 92 I C 980,⁵ in which, it is contended, the contrary view was taken. The point involved in all these cases was that of limitation, that is whether Art. 148 or Art. 144, Limitation Act, governed a suit brought by one of the co-mortgagors against the others after one of them had redeemed the entire mortgage. For the purposes of the case before us, it is not necessary to decide whether these cases were correctly decided on the particular question relating to limitation. It is sufficient to say that none of them is an authority for the broad proposition that the redeeming co-mortgagor is not subrogated to the rights of the original mortgagee as regards his right to claim contribution from the co-mortgagors by foreclosure or sale of their share in the mortgaged property. As I have already stated, in this province the matter must be governed by the principles of equity, justice and good conscience. These principles are very clearly explained in Pomeroy on Equity Jurisprudence, Vol. 3, Arts. 1221-2, as follows:

Where a party interested in the premises, who is not personally and primarily liable as the principal debtor for the whole mortgage debt, pays the mortgage to the holder thereof, he is entitled to regard the transaction as an equitable assignment of the mortgage to himself and to keep it alive as security of his own rights against others, who are owners of or interested in the land. Any such person who redeems, no matter how small a portion of the premises he may own, or how partial may be his interest, must redeem the entire mortgage by paying the whole mortgage debt. The doctrine of contribution among all those who are interested in having the mortgage redeemed, in order to refund the redemtor the excess of his payment over and above his own proportionate share, and the doctrine of equitable assignment in order to secure such contribution, are the efficient means by which equity completely and most beautifully works out perfect justice and equality of burden.

Similarly it is stated in Sheldon on Subrogation (Art. 169):

One of several joint debtors will, as against his co-debtors, ordinarily be subrogated to the securities and means of payment of the common creditor whom he has satisfied, so as to enable him to recover from his co-debtors, by means thereof, their proportional share of the indebtedness which he has discharged; and this, as in other cases of subrogation, arises rather from natural justice than from contract. Each joint debtor is regarded as the principal debtor for that part of the debt which he ought to pay, and as a surety for his co-debtors as to that part of the debt which ought to be discharged by them.

The iniquity of the opposite view is very well brought out in an American case, 50 Am Dec 637⁶ at p. 639 cited at p. 371 of Ghose's Law of Mortgages in India:

If one who may be obliged to redeem the share of a co-tenant to relieve his own share from incumbrance, could have no right to retain the share of such co-tenant as security and to obtain a reimbursement of the amount equitably chargeable to it, he might utterly fail to obtain compensation. And yet his co-tenant without making any payment might be entitled to the full possession and benefit of his share of the land discharged from the incumbrance. The law cannot justly be charged with such results as pro-

3. Basanta v. Dhanna Singh, A I R 1920 Lah 284=55 I C 450.

4. Wazir v. Gidhari, A I R 1928 Lah 811=71 I C 847.

5. Narain Das v. Saraj Din, A I R 1926 Lah 288=92 I C 980=27 P L R 65.

6. Walker v. Eaton, 50 Am Dec 637.

duced by conformity to its provisions. The principle is well-established and is of frequent application in the redemption of mortgages, that one having an interest in an estate under incumbrance may redeem the whole estate when necessary to redeem his own share or to relieve his own title from incumbrance even against the pleasure of a co-tenant or other owner and may be regarded as the assignee of the incumbrance upon the other shares or interests.

The whole position is very clearly put by Straight J. in 14 All 1² at p. 5 in the following words :

A co-mortgagor redeeming the whole mortgage stood in the shoes of the original mortgagee and was entitled to all the rights and the incidents connected with his estate. The principle that underlies that is that he having paid off the obligation to the creditor is entitled to take advantage of all the incidents connected with the security as it stood in the hands of the mortgagee, or in other words he is entitled to all the rights and incidents connected with the mortgage as they were in the hands of the mortgagee at the time the redemption took place.

In a case recently decided in this Court, 15 Lah 746⁷ Hilton J. sitting in Single Bench held that a mortgagor redeeming the entire mortgage was entitled to avail himself of all the creditor's securities and was therefore subrogated to his rights in respect of the mortgage. Applying this principle to this case it must be held that the auction sale of Abdul Majid Khan's share in the house in execution of the money decree obtained by defendant 1 against him was subject to the rights to which the plaintiff had been subrogated on his redeeming the entire mortgage, and that he is entitled to claim priority for the amount which was due to the original mortgagee by Abdul Majid Khan as his proportionate share of the mortgage charge. This amount has been determined by the Courts below to be Rs. 175, and this finding has not been impugned by any of the parties before us.

I would accordingly accept this appeal, set aside the judgment and decree of the learned Senior Subordinate Judge and in lieu thereof pass a decree in favour of Abdul Ghafur Khan plaintiff declaring that the sale of Abdul Majid Khan's one-third share in the house to Jan Muhammad, defendant 3, is subject to the plaintiff's mortgage charge of Rs. 175. Having regard to all the circumstances, I would leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

Abdul Rashid J.—I agree.

V.B.B./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

7. Jagan Nath v. Abdullah, A I R 1934 Lah 248 =150 I C 366=15 Lah 746=38 P L R 140.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 187

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Ganga Ram Thandi Mal —

Defendant — Appellant.

v.

Naurata Ram Shadi Ram —

Plaintiff — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 563 of 1937, Decided on 16th June 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Ambala, D/- 4th February 1937.

Hindu Law—Widow—Adverse possession—Widow taking possession of property as limited owner—Character of her possession or title not altered at any time—Her possession is not adverse to that of reversioners—Period of her possession cannot be tacked on to that of her alienee.

Where a widow takes possession of the property after the death of the last male holder as a Hindu widow with a limited estate and there is nothing to show that the character of her title or possession was altered at any time, such possession could not be adverse to her husband's reversioners and any rights which she acquires by reason of her possession would be accretions to the estate of her husband to which her husband's reversioners are entitled to succeed. The period of her possession therefore cannot be tacked on to that of her alienee : 29 Cal 664, Disting.; A I R 1924 P C 121; A I R 1930 Lah 504 and A I R 1928 Mad 820, Rel. on. [P 188 C 1, 2]

R. L. Anand I and II — for Appellant.

Asa Ram Aggarwal — for Respondent.

Coldstream J.—The circumstances out of which this second appeal has arisen are made clear in the judgments of the Courts below. Before us, only one point is taken on behalf of the appellant, and that is that the lower Courts ought to have held that the suit was barred by limitation. It is contended for the defendant-appellant Ganga Ram that as Mt. Rughri's possession was adverse to the reversionary rights of Naurata Ram, the respondent, Ganga Ram is entitled to tack on the period of her possession to the period of his own possession and that these two periods exceeded the 12 years adverse possession required to give him a prescriptive right. For the plaintiff-respondent, it is admitted that if Mt. Rughri's possession was adverse to his, and the period of it can be tacked on to that of his possession the suit was time-barred. It is however denied that Mt. Rughri's possession was adverse to Naurata Ram's title and argued that, even if it was, the period of it cannot be tacked on to the time for which Ganga Ram held adversely because Ganga Ram's possession was that of an independent trespasser, the alienation in his favour having been proved to be void for lack of consideration and necessity.

There is no force in this last argument, namely that Ganga Ram could not in the circumstances of this case tack on his own possession to that of Mt. Rughri for the purpose of his plea of limitation because he was an independent trespasser. He derived his claim to possession from Mt. Rughri, his vendor. No doubt the lower Courts have found that the alienation must be set aside as not binding on Naurata Ram because consideration did not pass, but the sale was for stated consideration and was not void but voidable. The finding that consideration was never paid to Mt. Rughri is not based on any evidence. Indeed the evidence on which the respondent's counsel relies is that consideration did pass, but was forcibly recovered from her subsequently by Ganga Ram or another person. That Rs. 500 was actually paid is proved by the evidence of the Sub-Registrar's endorsement made at the time the deed was registered.

The only question for decision therefore is whether the lower Court erred in holding that Mt. Rughri's possession was possession under a claim and colour of title hostile to the right of the reversioner Naurata Ram. In support of his contention that it was, the appellant's counsel has cited 29 Cal 664.¹ The facts in the case decided by the Privy Council in 29 Cal 664,¹ were not on all fours with those of the present case, the essential difference being that in that case the widow whose possession their Lordships held to have been adverse had repudiated the title of her husband's reversionary heirs at least 13 years before the latter sought to dispossess them. From the appellant's pleas it is clear that he admitted that Mt. Rughri took possession after Rama Nand's death and there is no evidence on the record to show that she took possession immediately on Kundan Lal's death adversely to Rama Nand or that at any time before she sold the suit property she had claimed to be absolute owner of it.

It is clear that Rughri took possession of the property after Rama Nand's death as a Hindu widow with a limited estate. There is nothing to show that the character of her title or possession altered at any time. Such possession could not be adverse to her husband's reversioners and any rights which she happened to acquire by reason of her possession would be accretions to the estate of her husband to which her husband's reversioners were entitled to succeed: see 5 Lah 192,² 11 Lah 424³ and A I R 1928 Mad 820.⁴ This being so, her possession was not adverse to the reversioners' rights and its period of possession cannot be tacked on to that of her alienee. The appeal accordingly fails and is dismissed with costs.

S.C./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

2. Lajwanti v. Safa Chand, A I R 1924 P O 121 = 80 I C 788 = 51 I A 171 = 5 Lah 192 (P O).
3. Mahajan v. Mt. Purbho, A I R 1930 Lah 504 = 123 I C 276 = 11 Lah 424 = 31 P L R 233.
4. Muthuswami Kavundan v. Ponnayya Kavundan, A I R 1928 Mad 820 = 110 I C 613 = 51 Mad 815 = 55 M L J 436.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 188

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Krishan Lal and another — Defendants
— Appellants.

v.

Siri Jain Mandir Panchaiti at Hansi and others — Plaintiffs — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 439 of 1936, Decided on 27th May 1937, from preliminary decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Hissar, D/- 13th August 1936.

(a) Mortgage—Costs—Trying Court imposing personal liability for costs on mortgagor—Order can be executed against person of mortgagor without selling mortgaged property.

Ordinarily costs awarded to a mortgagee decree-holder in a mortgage suit or appeal in the absence of any express direction to the contrary would be part of the mortgage amount decreed and would be a charge on the mortgaged property. [P 190 C1]

But where the trying Court imposes personal liability for costs on the mortgagor in express terms, the order is intra vires and can be executed against the person of the mortgagor apart from the sale of the mortgaged property: A I R 1926 All 424; A I R 1931 All 124; A I R 1934 All 89; A I R 1932 Mad 155; A I R 1935 Mad 101; A I R 1936 Lah 387 and A I R 1936 Lah 607, Rel. on. [P 189 C 2; P 190 C 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 33—Power to amend decree—Judgment imposing personal liability for costs on mortgagor—Decree drawn up in usual form and making no mention of such liability—Appellate Court can direct the decree to be amended and brought in conformity with judgment.

Where the judgment imposes personal liability for costs on the defendant mortgagor in express terms, but the decree is drawn up in the usual form and nowhere imposes any personal liability on the mortgagor for costs, what is executed is the decree and not the judgment, and unless the decree is brought into conformity with the judgment, it will not be permissible to the decree-holder to realize the costs in suit personally from the mortgagor. O. 41, R. 93, invests an Appellate Court with plenary powers and authorizes the Court to pass any decree or order as the case may require and even in favour of any respondent who may not have appealed. Even otherwise under S. 151, Civil P. C., the inherent powers of the Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice are unlimited. The Appellate Court can order the decree to be amended and brought in conformity with the judgment.

1. Sham Koer v. Dah Koer, (1902) 29 Cal 664 = 29 I A 182 = 6 O W N 657 = 8 Sar 280 (P O).

[P 190 C 2; P 191 C 1]

R. C. Soni — for Appellants.

M. L. Sethi, J. G. Sethi and Mehr Chand Sud — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J.—The only question that is raised in this appeal is, whether the defendant-appellant against whom a suit for sale of the property mortgaged by him to the plaintiff-respondent was decreed could be made personally liable for costs, especially when his personal liability for the mortgage debt was held to be time barred. Counsel for the appellant contends that no such liability could under the law be fixed on him and relies in support of his contention on 20 All 523;¹ 30 Mad 464;² 40 All 109³ and A I R 1925 Cal 1135.⁴ In 20 All 523,¹ a case decided by five Judges, a decree was drawn up in accordance with S. 88, T. P. Act, and it was further ordered that the defendant do pay to the plaintiffs the sum of Rs. 876.8.0, the amount of costs incurred by them in the High Court. It was held that the clause about costs was merely a formal compliance with the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code and was not intended to be a direction for the recovery of costs personally from the judgment-debtor. At p. 527 of the report however, it was made clear that the judgment in that case did not in the slightest degree indicate that the Court intended to award costs against the defendant personally. The claim in the plaint was only for a decree for the sale of the mortgaged property and the judgment directed that a decree should be prepared in accordance with S. 88, T. P. Act. In these circumstances the learned Judges observed :

In our opinion, the judgment so far from indicating, negatives an intention to make the defendant personally liable for the amount of the costs.

In 30 Mad 464,² a Division Bench remarked that it would be contrary to the scheme of the Transfer of Property Act and to the practice of the English Courts of equity to make the mortgagor personally liable for costs in any case before the sale proceeds have proved insufficient to satisfy the mortgage claim. They further observed that the decree under S. 88, T. P. Act, must not order the defendants personally to pay the costs. It might contain a declaration of the personal liability of the defendants for principal or costs but such a declaration could be enforced only under S. 90, T. P. Act. In 40 All 109,³ a decree had been drawn up in the ordinary form and it was consequently held that the intention was that there should be the ordinary mortgage decree awarding the costs incurred in the suit by sale of the mortgaged property. In A I R 1925 Cal 1135,⁴ all the above-mentioned authorities were considered and followed. There the trial Court had dismissed the suit. On appeal, the suit was decreed in the following terms among others: "The appellants are entitled to costs of this Court". A decree was drawn up in accordance with this order. The decree-holder thereafter applied for execution of the decree of the Appellate Court awarding him costs of the appeal against the person and property of the defendants. On the strength of the authorities cited above, it was held that the costs in a mortgage suit are not to be treated as independent claims by the mortgagee irrespective of the right under the mortgage and such costs should form part of the amount decreed in the mortgage suit to be realized in accordance with the procedure laid down in the Code.

Counsel for the respondents does not demur to the general proposition of law indicated above but argues that where, as in the case before us, the trying Court imposes personal liability for costs on the defendant mortgagor in express terms, the order is intra vires and can be executed against the person of the mortgagor apart from the sale of the mortgaged property. He places his reliance on A I R 1926 All

1. Magqud Fatima v. Lata Prasad, (1898) 20 All 528=1898 A W N 157 (F B).

2. Kamamma v. Narasimha Charlu, (1907) 30 Mad 464=17 M L J 817.

3. Dambar Singh v. Kalyan Singh, (1918) 5 A I R All 866=48 I O 557=40 All 109=15 A L J 914.

4. Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. Basiruddin Ahammad, (1925) 12 A I R Cal 1135=98 I O 864=41 O L J 607.

424,⁵ A I R 1931 All 124,⁶ 151 I C 294,⁷ 55 Mad 332,⁸ 58 Mad 418,⁹ A I R 1936 Lah 387¹⁰ and A I R 1936 Lah 607.¹¹ In A I R 1926 All 424,⁵ a Division Bench composed of Mears C. J. and Lindsay J. observed that it is certainly competent to the Court in the exercise of its discretion to award the costs personally against the mortgagor, but where the terms of the decree are ambiguous, it ought to be construed that they are a charge on the property. The learned Judges in the course of their judgment approvingly referred to the following passage in Ghose's Law of Mortgages in India:

But the costs of the action will as a rule be only added to the amount of the security and the mortgagor will be made personally liable for them only in very exceptional cases of misconduct.

In A I R 1931 All 124,⁶ Dalal J. remarked that unless there is in the judgment a specific direction that the costs should be recovered from the mortgagor personally, the presumption must be that the decree directed costs to be added to the mortgage amount. In 151 I C 294,⁷ which again is a case from Allahabad, a Division Bench observed that ordinarily costs awarded to a mortgagee-decree-holder in a mortgage suit or appeal in the absence of any express direction to the contrary would be part of the mortgage amount decreed and would be a charge on the mortgaged property. But where the form in which the decree was framed made the mortgagors personally liable for the payment of the costs on the interpretation of the decree, the mortgagors were liable to pay the costs of the appeal personally. In 55 Mad 332,⁸ it was remarked by a Division Bench that in a suit by the mortgagee for sale of the mortgaged properties, the Court has power to pass a personal decree for costs of the suit against the defendants who had not executed the mortgage even at the stage when an application under O. 34, Rule 6 Civil P. C., is made and though the preliminary decree is silent in respect of the same. In 58 Mad 418,⁹ a Division Bench at page 426 of the report said:

As regards the direction for costs in the lower Court's decree, it is no doubt true that in mortgage suits the amount of costs is usually directed to form part of the mortgage money to be realized by sale of the mortgaged property, but when one of the defendants disputes the right of the mortgagee or raises other contentions calculated to negative his right to maintain the suit, this rule cannot be insisted on. The lower Court was right in directing that he and those who sided with him must pay the costs of the plaintiffs.

In A I R 1936 Lah 387,¹⁰ a Division Bench made the mortgagors personally liable for the amount of the costs incurred in the preliminary decree even though the personal remedy in respect of the mortgage debt was barred. In A I R 1936 Lah 607,¹¹ in a similar case, it was observed that the discretion of the Judge trying the suit could not be limited and that the discretion under S. 35, Civil P. C., was absolute. It would be clear therefore that the trend of authority is in favour of the proposition advanced by the respondent, and even the judgments relied upon by the appellant do not go against it. It is difficult to hold in the face of these authorities that the trial Court could not make the mortgagors personally liable for costs, even if the personal remedy against them was barred, especially when the mortgagors had raised all sorts of frivolous pleas in the suit. There is however one consideration which cannot be ignored in the present case. Although the judgment does impose this liability in express terms, the decree has been drawn up in the usual form and it nowhere imposes any personal liability on the mortgagors for costs. What is executed is the decree, and not the judgment, and unless the decree is brought into conformity with the judgment, it will not be permissible to the decree-holder to realize the costs in suit personally from the mortgagors. The question then arises, whether we can and should amend the decree to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. O. 41, R. 33, invests an Appellate Court with plenary powers and authorizes the Court to pass any decree or order as the case may require and even in favour of any respondent who may not have appealed. Even otherwise under S. 151, 5. Sheo Sarshan Singh v. Beni Chaudhuri, (1926) 18 A I R All 424=94 I O 872 = 48 All 425=24 A L J 424.

6. Kannu Lal v. Bhagwan Das, (1931) 18 A I R All 124=129 I O 554.

7. Aziz Ahmad v. Riaz-ul-Hasan, (1934) 21 A I R All 89=151 I O 294=1934 A L J 446.

8. Rajagopalaswami Naicken v. Palaniswami Chettiar, (1932) 19 A I R Mad 155=185 I O 578=55 Mad 332=62 M L J 98.

9. Lakshmi Naidu v. Gunnamma, (1935) 22 A I R Mad 101=154 I O 1053 = 58 Mad 418 = 68 M L J 470.

10. Dost Mahomed v. Miraj Din, (1936) 28 A I R Lah 887=168 I O 100=88 P L R 74.

11. Sital Das v. Punjab and Sind Bank Ltd., Lyallpur, (1936) 28 A I R Lah 607=164 I O 841=17 Lah 520=88 P L R 1024.

Civil P. C., the inherent powers of this Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice are unlimited. I would therefore order that the decree be brought in conformity with the judgment and dismiss this appeal with costs. Before concluding, I would draw the attention of the Court to O. 34, R. 4 and O. 34, R. 6, Civil P. C. as well as to Appx. D where the forms to be used in cases of mortgage-decrees are set forth and impress upon it the necessity of imposing the personal liability, if any, at the proper stage. In this connexion 52 All 363¹² may be perused with advantage.

Coldstream J.—I agree.

R.W./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

12. Sahu Radha Krishna v Tej Saroop, (1930) 17 A I R All 69=128 I O 321=52 All 863=1929 A L J 1294 (F B).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 191

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mt. Gugni and another — Defendants
— Appellants.

v.

Kahan Ram and others, Plaintiffs and others, Defendants — Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 83 of 1936
Decided on 13th January 1937, from judgment of Agha Haidar, J., D/- 19th March 1936.

(a) Punjab Courts Act (6 of 1918), S. 41 (3) — First appeal to District Judge involving question of existence or validity of custom—District Judge giving finding that custom is valid and existing — Such finding cannot be interfered in second appeal without necessary certificate under S. 41 (3).

One G, a widow, made a gift of her land in favour of A, on which the proprietors of the pattis in which the land in suit was situated instituted a suit for a declaration that the gift should not affect their reversionary rights. At the trial reliance was placed on answer to question 56 of the Manual of Customary Law of the District of Karnal. The Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that both the widow and the donee had failed to prove that any such permission was given and he consequently decreed the suit. On appeal the District Judge referred to the evidence examined by the donee on this point and, relying upon it, allowed the appeal. On second appeal by the plaintiff to a single Judge of the High Court the plaintiff's suit was decreed. On appeal:

Held that as the defendants attempted to prove by the evidence led on the particular issue covering the question of custom that a declaration made by R in the presence of two or three persons was a sufficient compliance with the requirements of answer to question 56 of the Manual of Customary

Law of the District of Karnal, the finding of the District Judge therefore in their favour amounted to declaring the custom as proved by them to be existing and valid, and this finding could not be impugned on second appeal without the necessary certificate under S. 41, sub-s. (3): A I R 1916 Lah 276, Rel. on; Case law referred. [P 192 C 2 ; P 193 C 1]

(b) Second appeal—Finding of fact based upon consideration of evidence on record — Finding cannot be interfered in second appeal.

Where there is no error or defect in the procedure, the finding of the first Appellate Court upon a question of fact is final, if that Court had before it evidence proper for its consideration in support of the finding. Such finding cannot therefore be interfered in second appeal: 18 Cal 23 (P C) and A I R 1929 P C 152, Rel. on. [P 193 C 1]

Rama Nand — for Appellants.

Iqbal Singh — for Respondents
(Plaintiffs).

Din Mohammad J. — This appeal has been preferred in the following circumstances. One Mt. Gugni, widow of Ramji Lal, made a gift of her land in favour of one Antu, on which the proprietors of the pattis in which the land in suit was situated instituted a suit for a declaration that the gift should not affect their reversionary rights. At the trial reliance was placed on answer to question 56 of the Manual of Customary Law of the District of Karnal, the material portion of which reads as follows:

The answer of the Indri tribes was that a widow could only adopt if her husband had given her permission before the brotherhood and the collaterals.

The Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that both the widow and the donee had failed to prove that any such permission was given and he consequently decreed the suit. On appeal, the District Judge referred to the evidence examined by the donee on this point and, relying upon it, allowed the appeal. The plaintiffs preferred a further appeal to this Court which came on for hearing before Agha Haidar J. He observed in his judgment, that in order to succeed, the donee had to prove that the husband of the widow had given her permission to adopt before the brotherhood and the collaterals and, after reviewing the evidence led by the donee on the point, came to the conclusion that the evidence being conflicting was wholly unreliable. He accordingly allowed the appeal and decreed the plaintiffs' suit with costs. From that decision both Mt. Gugni and Antu have appealed.

At the outset, counsel for the respondents has raised a preliminary objection.

that as the appellants have taken new points before us which were not urged before Agha Haidar J., this appeal is not entertainable. In support of his contention, he has relied on 55 I O 983,¹ A I R 1923 Lah 151,² A I R 1929 Lah 536,³ A I R 1930 Lah 632⁴ and A I R 1933 Lah 685.⁵ In 55 I O 983,¹ a Division Bench of this Court held that an appellant was not entitled to ask a Division Bench hearing an appeal under the Letters Patent to set aside the judgment of the Single Bench when it was found that the judgment was correct on all points upon which the Single Judge was called upon to adjudicate; nor was it open to the parties in such an appeal to raise a contention which was not urged before the Court from the judgment of which the appeal was preferred. The principle that no new point can be raised before a Letters Patent Bench was reiterated in the remaining cases. We do not however consider that there is any force in this preliminary objection, as the judgment of Agha Haidar J. is being attacked before us on the points decided by him and not on any new point.

The main contention raised on behalf of the appellants is that the learned Judge was not competent to interfere with the decision of the District Judge as (a) the question involved in the case was one of the existence and validity of the custom relied on by the defendants and no certificate as required by sub-s. (3) of S. 41, Punjab Courts Act, had been obtained; and (b) the finding of the District Judge being a finding of fact arrived at after considering the evidence led by the parties could not be disturbed on second appeal. We are of opinion that these objections go to the root of the jurisdiction exercised by the learned Judge and can therefore be raised on appeal before us.

Counsel for the respondents contends that no such question was involved in the case as would have required a certificate and refers in this connexion to A I R 1932 Lah 397,⁶ A I R 1932 Lah 473,⁷ A I R 1931 Lah 433,⁸ A I R 1934 Lah 229⁹ and A I R 1934 Lah 300.¹⁰ In A I R 1932 Lah 397⁶, Jai Lal J. remarked that where the question involved was whether the answer to a question of the Customary law was exhaustive, so as to apply to certain cases which were not expressly provided for therein, no certificate was necessary. In A I R 1932 Lah 473,⁷ Abdul Qadir J. observed that where no party had led any evidence as to the existence or non-existence of a custom and the decision had been given purely on a point of law, no certificate was necessary to raise that point in second appeal. In A I R 1931 Lah 433⁸ a Division Bench of this Court held that where the District Judge after pointing out that Customary law was admittedly applicable to the parties came to the conclusion that there existed a lacuna in the answer to a certain question in the Manual of Customary Law, the finding of the District Judge was not one as to the existence of custom. In A I R 1934 Lah 229⁹ Coldstream and Bhide JJ. held that where the plaintiffs merely contended that the District Judge had misunderstood their claim and that he was wrong in holding that the plaint did not disclose any cause of action, no certificate was required in support of the appeal. In A I R 1934 Lah 300,¹⁰ Jai Lal J. expressed his doubt whether a certificate was necessary in a case where the contention of the appellants was that the District Judge had legally erred in not considering their evidence. It would appear therefore that none of the authorities discussed above is helpful to the respondents.

In our view the finding of the District Judge did involve the question of the existence or validity of the custom relied on by the defendants. They attempted to prove by the evidence led on the particular issue covering the question of custom that a declaration made by Ramji Lal in the presence of two or three persons was a

1. Ahmad Shah v. Faujdar, (1920) 7 A I R Lah 824=55 I O 983=28 P L R 1920.

2. Mohammad Taqi v. Abdul Rahman, (1923) 10 A I R Lah 151=79 I O 281.

3. Jal Parshad v. Chartered Bank of India, etc., (1929) 16 A I R Lah 536 = 120 I O 284 = 30 P L R 438.

4. Teja Singh v. Gurcharan Singh, (1930) 17 A I R Lah 682=128 I O 57=11 Lah 535=31 P L R 281.

5. Mewa Singh v. Tara Singh, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 685=145 I O 416=84 P L R 853.

6. Ghafur v. Shahab-ud-din, (1932) 19 A I R Lah 397=138 I O 680=83 P L R 416.

7. Waras Khan v. Mt. Mehran, (1932) 19 A I R Lah 473=139 I O 110=13 Lah 826=33 P L R 564.

8. Sohnu v. Bahga, (1931) 18 A I R Lah 433=135 I O 54.

9. Imam Din v. Roshan Bibi, (1934) 21 A I R Lah 229=149 I O 1049.

10. Alam Bibi v. Jawaya, (1934) 21 A I R Lah 300=150 I O 356=85 P L R 110.

sufficient compliance with the requirements of answer to question 56 of the Manual of Customary Law of the District of Karnal. The finding of the District Judge therefore in their favour amounted to declaring the custom as proved by them to be existing and valid, and in our view this finding could not be impugned on second appeal without the necessary certificate under S. 41, sub.s. (3). As remarked by a Division Bench of the Punjab Chief Court in 22 P R 1916¹¹:

The natural meaning of S. 41 (1) and S. 41 (3), Punjab Courts Act, appears to be: (a) Even though the decision on custom by the lower Appellate Court is wrong; (b) even though the lower Appellate Court has failed to determine a material point of custom; (c) even though the lower Appellate Court's procedure is marred by grave irregularities, still this Court shall not interfere unless the certificate has issued.

Adverting now to the second point. The finding arrived at by the District Judge was clearly a finding of fact based on consideration of the evidence led by the defendants and could not therefore be disturbed on further appeal to this Court. If any authority is needed for this proposition, reference may be made to 18 Cal 23¹² and 52 Mad 538.¹³ In 18 Cal 23¹² their Lordships of the Privy Council remarked:

It is enough in the present case to say that an erroneous finding of fact is a different thing from an error or defect in procedure and that there is no jurisdiction to entertain a second appeal on the ground of an erroneous finding of fact however gross or inexcusable the error may seem to be. Where there is no error or defect in the procedure, the finding of the first Appellate Court upon a question of fact is final, if that Court had before it evidence proper for its consideration in support of the finding.

In 52 Mad 538¹³ these remarks were quoted with approval and followed. It is true that in the case before us, the District Judge has not expressed his opinion in very clear terms, but the fact remains that his conclusion is that the evidence led by the defendants to prove their compliance with the requirements of custom is sufficient and reliable and in face of this finding it was not open to the learned Judge of this Court to go behind that finding and to interfere with it. On these grounds, we hold that Agha Haider J. had no jurisdiction to entertain this appeal without a certificate, nor was he competent to disturb the finding of fact arrived at by the District Judge. We accordingly allow the appeal and restore the judgment of the District Judge in this case, but the parties will bear their own costs throughout.

K.B./A.L.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 193

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mt. Manbhari — Plaintiff —

Appellant.

v.

Mt. Surti and another — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 448 of 1936, Decided on 1st July 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Rohtak, D/- 5th June 1936.

Limitation Act (1908), Art. 118—Brahmin dying leaving behind widow and three daughters—Widow adopting son and mutating her husband's land in his name—Suit by daughter for declaration that adoption and gift could not affect her rights as daughter, after six years of her knowledge of alienation—Suit held barred whether Art. 118 or Art. 3 of Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act was applicable.

A Brahmin died leaving behind him a widow and three daughters. The widow who came into possession of the land of her husband executed a deed adopting a son as heir to her husband. The deed was registered and mutation was effected accordingly in adopted son's name. The collaterals of the husband had brought a suit to contest the adoption. Subsequently after six years of this suit one of the daughters brought a suit for declaration that the adoption and gift could not affect her rights as daughter:

Held that as the starting point of limitation, whether Art. 8, Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act was applicable or Art. 118, Limitation Act, was applicable, was the date of plaintiff's knowledge of the alienation, the suit was barred as it was brought after six years. [P 194 C 1]

S. L. Puri for M. L. Puri and Bishen Narain — for Appellant.

Mehr Chand Mahajan and Faqir Chand Mittal — for Respondents.

Coldstream J. — One Ramji Lal, a Brahman of Gohana tahsil, in the Rohtak district, died about 19 years ago, leaving a widow Mt. Surti and three daughters Mts. Man Bhari, Dhapan and Darkhan. Surti, who had taken possession of his land for her life executed on 17th May 1927 a deed adopting a boy Ram Richhpal as heir to her husband. The deed was registered on 19th May 1927, and on 7th June 1927, the Patwari entered the muta-

11. Sohna Mal v. Nanak Chand, (1916) 8 A I R Lah 276=84 I C 904=22 P R 1916.

12. Durga Chowdhani v. Jawahir Singh, (1891) 18 Cal 23=17 I A 122=5 Sar 560 (P O).

13. Venkata Kumara Mahipati Surya Rao v. Secy. of State, (1929) 16 A I R P O 152=117 I C 481=56 I A 228=52 Mad 538 (P O) 1938 L/26 & 26

tion in accordance with the deed. This mutation in favour of Ram Richhpal was sanctioned by the Collector on 10th November 1927. On 1st November 1934, Mt. Man Bhari, Ramji Lal's daughter, instituted the suit out of which the present appeal has arisen for a declaration that the adoption and gift in favour of Ram Richhpal would not affect her rights as daughter of Ramji Lal. One of her sisters sided with the plaintiff: the other does not appear to have taken any part in the proceedings. On behalf of Ram Richhpal a number of pleas were raised one of which was that the suit was barred by limitation. On the issues arising out of the pleadings all of them except that of limitation were decided in favour of the plaintiff Mt. Man Bhari, but, holding that the suit was barred by time, the Subordinate Judge dismissed the suit. Against this dismissal Mt. Man Bhari has appealed to this Court.

As we are of opinion that the suit was rightly dismissed on the ground of limitation, it is not necessary to mention all the points on which the parties joined issues in the lower Court. The lower Court appears to have found that the suit was barred by the provisions both of the Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act of 1920 and Art. 118, Limitation Act. It is contended before us on the appellant's behalf that the Punjab Act has no application because the land in suit is not ancestral qua the plaintiff who claims as a daughter and not by reason of her descent from any common ancestor of herself and her mother, and that Art. 118, Limitation Act, does not bar the suit because it is not proved that the plaintiff had knowledge of the alienation more than six years before she instituted her suit.

The learned Subordinate Judge has not referred expressly to the Article of the Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act which he considered to be applicable to the case, but from his discussion regarding the question of the plaintiff's knowledge it seems clear that he has applied Art. 3. Whether Art. 3 of the Punjab Act or Art. 118, Limitation Act, be applicable, it is in our opinion clear that the suit is barred. In either case the starting point of limitation is the date on which the plaintiff had knowledge of the alienation. The lower Court has given good reasons for holding that the plaintiff must have had knowledge of the alienation on 31st July 1928 at the latest. I have already noticed that the deed of adoption was registered on 19th May 1927, and the mutation sanctioned on 10th November 1927. On 31st July 1928, the collaterals of Ramji Lal brought a suit to contest this same adoption. It is incredible that while all this was going on the plaintiff remained in ignorance of her mother's adoption. The learned counsel for the appellant has not been able to show us any reason for holding that on this point the lower Court's judgment is wrong. On the other hand, counsel for the respondent has referred to evidence which the appellant has not brought on the printed record but of which the appellant's counsel has certified copies showing that the adoption was celebrated in a public manner in which the brotherhood had assembled. Finding that the suit was rightly dismissed as barred by limitation we dismiss the appeal with costs.

K.B./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 194

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Messrs. Mohammad Mohsin Maula-Bakhsh — Petitioners.

V.

Commissioner of Income-tax —

Respondent.

Civil Ref. No. 14 of 1937, Decided on 21st April 1937, made by Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab, North West Frontier and Delhi Provinces, D./ 12th February 1937.

Income-tax Act (1922) S. 26 — Partnership — Application for re-constitution — Mere fact that re-constitution reduces incidence of tax does not make re-constitution unreal — Non-introduction of new capital or failure to value assets, or firm reverting to old constitution on refusal of registration — No presumption that constitution is bogus arrangement.

It is open to any person to reduce the incidence of his income-tax in any legitimate way, and the mere fact that a reconstitution of the firm has reduced the incidence of the tax is by itself no evidence that the reconstitution is not real.

At the time of the reconstitution of a firm, the new capital was not introduced. Nor was there the valuation of assets. After registration had been refused the firm reverted to its old constitution:

Held that these were not sufficient grounds for supposing that the reconstitution was a bogus arrangement. [P 195 O 1]

Bashir Ahmad — for Petitioner.

J. N. Aggarwal and S. M. Sikri —
for Respondent.

Coldstream J.—This is a reference by the Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab and North-West Frontier Provinces, under S. 66 (3), Income-tax Act. The circumstances out of which it has arisen are set forth in the order of this Court in Civil Misc. No. 396 of 1936 of 8th December 1936. The Commissioner, as I understand, in his statement has justified the rejection of the application of the petitioners for registration of their firm on the following grounds: (1) That no fresh capital is shown to have been added for the constitution of the new firm: (2) That no provision for valuation of the assets of the new partners of the partnership appears to have been made: (3) That after the application for registration of the firm was refused, the petitioners reverted to their old constitution; and (4) that the object of the reconstitution of the firm was to reduce the incidence of the income-tax.

As regards the first of these reasons, it is an admitted fact that one of the new partners, that is to say, the wife of Fazal Rahman brought in with her Rs. 3000 in cash. In any case, the fact that the new capital was not introduced would be no material for holding that the reconstitution was not genuine. There is no statutory obligation for the valuation of assets before a firm can be reconstituted. The fact that after registration had been refused the petitioners reverted to their old constitution clearly raises no presumption or affords any ground for supposing that a constitution must be a bogus arrangement; for, after their application for registration had been rejected, there was no other course open to the petitioners than to proceed with their business as the old firm. It is not disputed before us that it is open to any person to reduce the incidence of his income-tax in any legitimate way, and the mere fact that a reconstitution of the firm has reduced the incidence of the tax is by itself no evidence that the reconstitution is not real. We answer the question before us in the negative. The petitioners will be entitled to their costs.

V.B.B./A.L.

Reference answered.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 195

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.
Bakht Singh — Debtor — Petitioner.
v.

Municipal Committee, Sargodha, and others — Creditors — Respondents.

Civil Revn. No. 170 of 1937, Decided on 7th December 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Shahpur at Sargodha, D/. 22nd December 1936.

Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (7 of 1934), S. 25 — Insolvency Court is Civil Court — Application to Board — Insolvency proceedings respecting same debt — Insolvency Court is bound to stay proceedings.

An Insolvency Court is a Civil Court for the purposes of S. 25. Hence on an application made by the debtor to a Debt Conciliation Board, an Insolvency Court is bound to stay proceedings of an insolvency application in respect of the same debt for the settlement of which an application has been made to the Board: A I R 1937 Lah 861 and A I R 1937 Lah 680, Rel. on.

[P 196 C 2]

R. C. Chawla — for Petitioner.

Amolak Ram Kapur and Bhagwat Dayal
— for Respondents.

Addison J. — The point raised in this civil revision is whether S. 25, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, applies to an Insolvency Court and whether on an application made by the debtor to a Debt Conciliation Board an Insolvency Court is bound to stay proceedings of an insolvency application in respect of a debt for the settlement of which an application has been made to the Board. The Courts below have held that an Insolvency Court is not a Civil Court for the purpose of S. 25, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, and the debtor has preferred this civil revision against their decision. S. 25, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, runs as follows:

When an application has been made to a Board under S. 9, no Civil Court shall entertain any new suit or other proceeding brought for the recovery of any debt for the settlement of which application has been made to the Board, and any suit or other proceeding pending before a Civil Court in respect of any such debt shall be suspended until the Board has dismissed the application or an agreement has been made under S. 17.

An application has been made to a Debt Conciliation Board by the debtor in respect of the debt of the creditor who put in the application in the Insolvency Court, and in respect of other debts. This matter was brought to the notice of the Insolvency Court which has refused to stay the insolvency proceedings. S. 18, Punjab Courts Act, runs as follows:

Besides the Courts of Small Causes established under the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act 1887, and the Courts established under any other enactment for the time being in force, there shall be the following classes of Civil Courts, namely: (1) the Court of the District Judge; (2) the Court of the Additional District Judge, and (3) the Court of the Subordinate Judge.

This seems to us to mean that Civil Courts include the Court of the District Judge, the Court of the Additional District Judge, the Court of the Subordinate Judge, the Court of Small Causes and any other Court established under any other enactment for the time being in force. As this section is worded, that seems to us to be the only possible interpretation of the section. According to S. 18, Punjab Courts Act, therefore an Insolvency Court is a Civil Court. In S. 2 (1) (b), Provincial Insolvency Act, "District Court" means the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, that is, the Court of the District Judge, while under the proviso to S. 3 (1) of the same Act a subordinate Court may be invested with jurisdiction as a District Court under the Provincial Insolvency Act. By reason of S. 6, Provincial Insolvency Act, the Insolvency Court, that is the District Court, shall have the same powers and shall follow the same procedure as it has and follows in the exercise of original civil jurisdiction while it has already been pointed out that the District Court, which is the Insolvency Court, is a Civil Court according to S. 18, Punjab Courts Act. There seems therefore to be no doubt that Insolvency Courts are Civil Courts.

It was objected however that in a later Act, the Punjab Debtors' Protection Act, 1936, in S. 2 (4) of that Act "Court" was defined as including a Court acting in the exercise of insolvency jurisdiction and that this showed that "Court" did not include an Insolvency Court without special legislation. This does not follow: by the time this later Act was passed, the point now before us had been raised in many Insolvency Courts and numerous applications were pending in this Court and the Legislature may have specifically defined "Court" to include an Insolvency Court for the purpose of this later Act by reason of its knowledge that this point had been raised under the earlier Act. There is no force therefore in this objection.

In the present case an application has been made to a Debt Conciliation Board under S. 9, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act. Under S. 25 of the Act therefore, any suit or other proceeding pending before a Civil Court in respect of any debt for the settlement of which application has been made to the Board shall be suspended until the Board has dismissed the application or an agreement had been made under S. 17. The application of the creditor in the Insolvency Court to have the debtor adjudicated an insolvent is obviously a proceeding pending before a Civil Court in respect of a debt for the settlement of which application has been made to the Board. It follows that the Insolvency Court must stay proceedings under S. 25. This has already been held by a Division Bench of this Court, the decision of which is published in (1937) 39 P L R 756.¹ It was said there that if an application under S. 9 is made to the Board and this is brought to the notice of the Insolvency Judge the proceedings pending before the Insolvency Court must be suspended under S. 25 of the Act. There is also a decision of a Single Judge to the same effect. This is published in (1937) 39 P L R 338.²

For the reasons given we hold that the Insolvency Court is a Civil Court for the purpose of S. 25, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, and we accept this petition, set aside the orders of the Courts below and direct the Insolvency Court to stay the proceedings pending before it until the Board has dismissed the application of the debtor or an agreement has been made under S. 17. We allow the petitioner his costs in this Court but parties will bear their own costs in the other Courts.

V.B.B./R.K.

Petition allowed.

1. Chanan Das v. Ghulam Mahomed, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 861=170 I O 33=(1937) 39 P L R 756.
2. Murad v. Lala Hans Raj, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 680=39 P L R 338.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 196

ABDUL RASHID J.

Firm Haji Mahbub Baksh Rafi-ud-Din through Mohamad Ashraf — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

Abdul Ghaffar — Plaintiff — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 488 of 1937, Decided on 25th October 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/- 26th February 1937.

* Limitation Act (1908), Arts. 29 and 83—Suit by A for declaration that property attached by M in execution of his decree against H did not belong to H but to himself and also for injunction restraining M from auctioning the property—Undertaking by M that he would indemnify A after auction sale if it would be proved that property belonged to A—Suit decreed in favour of A—Property auctioned by M—Suit by A for price of property sold—Suit held not one for damages for wrongful seizure — Art. 83 and not Art. 29 applied.

Article 29 must be interpreted to apply only to the seizure and not govern any suit arising out of what happens at the time of sale : A I R 1924 Lah 136, foll. [P 198 O 1, 2]

One A brought a suit against M for declaration that certain property attached by M in execution of his decree against H belonged to him and not to H. He also applied for temporary injunction forbidding M from getting the property auctioned. But M undertook to indemnify A after the auction sale if it was proved that the property in dispute belonged to A. The suit was subsequently decreed in favour of A and it was declared that the property belonged to A. Meanwhile the property was auctioned by M. A thereupon brought a suit for the price of the property sold :

Held that the suit was not for damages for wrongful seizure. The cause of action for the suit was the undertaking given by M and not the wrongful seizure. Art. 83 and not Art. 29 therefore applied. [P 198 O 2]

Bhagwat Dyal — for Appellant.

Shamair Chand and Madan Lal —

for Respondent.

Judgment. — On 7th December 1929, the firm Mahboob Bakhsh-Rafi-ud-Din got 10 bags of Unab attached in execution of their decree against Hafiz-ud-Din. Abdul Ghaffar plaintiff filed objections against this attachment on 22nd February 1930, stating that the 10 bags of Unab belonged to him and were not the property of Hafiz-ud-Din, judgment-debtor. These objections were dismissed on 25th February. On 17th March Abdul Ghaffar instituted a declaratory suit to the effect that the 10 bags of Unab belonged to him and were not liable to attachment and sale in the decree of Mahboob Bakhsh-Rafi-ud-Din against Hafiz-ud-Din. On 18th March, Abdul Ghaffar presented an application for the issue of a temporary injunction to the defendants forbidding them from getting the 10 bags of Unab sold. On the same day an order was issued to the defendants not to have the 10 bags of Unab auctioned. This prohibitory order was taken by the process-server to the defendant firm but the proprietors of the firm as well as their Mukhtar-i-am refused to receive the order, and a report to that effect was made by the process server to the Court. On 25th March Abdul Ghaffar made another similar application. An order was therefore issued to Messrs. Beni Parshad-Nasir Din auctioneers restraining them from selling the goods in suit till further order of the Court. Notice was also issued to the defendants to show cause why proceedings should not be taken against them for contempt of Court in refusing to take service of the notice of the temporary injunction issued against them. On 27th March the defendants presented an application to the effect that the temporary injunction should be cancelled as it was illegal. When the parties appeared in Court however Mohammad Ishfaq, Mukhtar-i-am of the defendants, made the following statement on solemn affirmation :

After the auction of the property in dispute if it is proved that the property was of the plaintiff I will be responsible for any damages fixed by the Court.

It appears that the bags of Unab had been auctioned on 25th March but this fact was not revealed to the Court by the defendants, nor was any reservation made in the statement made by the Mukhtar-i-am of the defendants. That statement implied that the defendants would indemnify the plaintiff for any damages suffered by him on account of the auction of the "property in dispute." On 17th March 1931, the plaintiff's suit was decreed and it was held that the ten bags of Unab worth Rupees 580.6.6 belonged to Abdul Ghaffar and were not liable to attachment and sale in execution of the decree secured by the defendants against Hafiz-ud-Din.

The suit, out of which the present appeal has arisen, was instituted by the plaintiff Abdul Ghaffar on 12th March 1932 for recovery of Rs. 896.6.6 from the defendants : Rs. 580.6.6 were claimed as the price of ten bags of Unab, Rs. 116 as interest and Rs. 200 as damages for wrongful seizure. The plaintiff's suit, so far as the claim for interest and damages is concerned, was held as barred by limitation by the trial Court. A decree for Rupees 580.6.6 was however awarded to the plaintiff. The trial Court held that, so far as the price of 10 bags of Unab was concerned, the case fell under Arts. 48 and 49, Lim. Act, and was within time. Against this decision, the defendants preferred an appeal in the Court of the learned Additional District Judge. The learned Additional District Judge held the suit to be within time under Art. 83, Lim. Act. The defendants have preferred a second appeal to this Court.

It was strenuously contended by the learned counsel for the appellants that on 25th March 1930, ten bags of Unab had already been sold by the auctioneers and that the undertaking given by the Mukhtar of the defendants on 27th March 1930, referred merely to goods that were yet unsold and had no reference to goods that had already been sold. In my opinion this contention is without any force. The undertaking refers to the "property in dispute." The property in dispute was "ten bags of Unab" only which had been sold to the knowledge of the defendants on 25th March. It cannot therefore be said that the undertaking referred to goods that were to be sold in the future. If the defendants' Mukhtar-i-am wanted to make any reservation with respect to the goods that had already been sold it was open to him to state that fact plainly at the time the undertaking was given. The temporary injunction prohibiting the sale of ten bags of Unab had been issued on 18th March. On 25th March a notice had also been issued to the defendants to show cause why they should not be prosecuted for contempt of Court. In view of these eventualities the defendants' Mukhtar gave an unconditional undertaking on 27th March.

The learned counsel for the appellants relied on 31 Mad 431,¹ 53 Mad 621² and 130 I C 157.³ The first two cases, in my opinion, have no applicability to the facts of the present case. The cause of action in the present case is the undertaking given by the defendants' Mukhtar on 27th March 1930. Wrongful seizure is not the cause of action so far as the claim for Rs. 580-6-6 is concerned. 130 I C 157³ is a Single Bench Nagpur case and the view taken therein is in direct conflict with the view taken by a Division Bench of this Court in A I R 1924 Lah 136.⁴ It has been laid down by this Court that Art. 29, Lim. Act must be interpreted to apply only to the seizure and not to govern any suits arising out of what happens later at the time of sale. The present suit for the price of ten bags of Unab is not a suit for damages for wrongful seizure. Rs. 200 were claimed as damages for wrongful seizure and the suit with respect to that item has been dismissed. The cause of action for the suit for the price of the Unab is the undertaking given by the Mukhtar-i-am on 27th March 1930. The suit is therefore clearly within limitation under Art. 83. For the reasons given above I affirm the decision of the Court below and dismiss this appeal with costs.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 198

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

A. R. Davar — Auction-purchaser — Appellant.

v.

Jhinda Ram, Judgment-debtor and another, Decree-holder — Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 16 of 1937, Decided on 21st May 1937, from order of Jai Lal J., D/- 8th December 1936.

Civil P. C. (1908), O. 21, Rr. 85, 86 and 90 — Failure to deposit 75 per cent. of purchase money within fortnight does not amount to material irregularity in conducting or publishing sale—Court cannot extend time for making such deposit and must resell property—Discretion given in Rule 86 is only with respect to forfeiture of deposit and not resale.

The 'publishing' of the sale has reference to all proceedings that take place till the sale is actually held. Any proceedings that take place after the deposit of 25 per cent. of the purchase money has been made cannot be regarded as falling within the meaning of the words 'publishing' or 'conducting the sale'. The failure to deposit 75 per cent. of the sale price within a fortnight as required by O. 21, R. 85, Civil P. C., does not therefore amount to a material irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale within the meaning of O. 21, R. 90. When default is made by the auction-purchaser in paying into Court full amount of the purchase money within the time allowed by O. 21, R. 85, the Court has no jurisdiction to extend the time but must order a resale under R. 86. The only discretion given by R. 86 is in the matter of forfeiture of the deposit of 25 per cent. made by the auction-purchaser, and not in the matter of resale: A I R 1935 All 243, Rel. on; A I R 1937 Lah 113; A I R 1924 Rang 81; A I R 1933 Oudh 345 and 28 All 238, Disting. [P 199 C 2; P 200 C 1]

Mela Ram and Faqir Chand Mital for Manohar Lal — for Appellant.

J. L. Kapur — for Respondent (Judgment-debtor.)

Manohar Lal Sachdeva — for Respondent No. 2.

1. Damaraju Narasimha Rao v. T. Gangaraju, (1908) 31 Mad 431=18 M L J 590.

2. Pannaji Devi Chand & Co. v. Sanaji Kapur Chand, (1930) 17 A I R Mad 695=126 I C 721=53 Mad 621=59 M L J 859.

3. Krishna v. Sitaram, (1931) 18 A I R Nag 47=130 I C 157.

4. Chanda Singh v. Jai Kishen Das, (1924) 11 A I R Lah 136=85 I C 24.

Abdul Rashid J.—On 22nd May 1933, the Model Town Society Ltd., Lahore, obtained a decree for Rs. 12,000 with interest at 9 per cent. per annum against Rai Sahib Jinda Ram. A house belonging to the judgment-debtor in the Model Town was attached and put to auction on 15th April 1935. The house was purchased by Mr. A. R. Davar for a sum of Rs. 8100. Immediately after the conclusion of the sale, the auction-purchaser paid a sum of Rs. 2025 to the auctioneer. On 17th April 1935 objections against the sale were preferred by the judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 90, Civil P. C. A sum of Rs. 6075 was to be deposited in Court by the auction-purchaser within 15 days of the sale of the property as required by O. 21, R. 85, Civil P. C. This sum was however not deposited within the required time. On 27th May the auction-purchaser made an application to the Court asking for permission to deposit the sum of Rs. 6075. This application did not mention the date of the decree or the date of the sale, nor did it ask for extension of time. At the back of this application the following order appears in the handwriting of the Reader, and is initialled by the presiding officer of the Court: 'Hasab zabta rupiya dakhil khazana howe'. On 18th October the objections that had been preferred by the judgment-debtor on 17th April against the sale, were dismissed in default. On 22nd May 1936 the case was taken up by the Court for the purposes of determining whether the sale should be confirmed. At that time objection was taken to the confirmation of the sale on the ground that 75 per cent. of the sale price had not been deposited in Court within the prescribed period, and that the Court was therefore bound to resell the house. The executing Court did not give effect to this objection and confirmed the sale. Against this decision an appeal was preferred to this Court which was heard by a learned single Judge. The learned Judge held that the provisions of O. 21, Rr. 85 and 86, Civil P. C., were mandatory and that as 75 per cent. of the sale price had not been deposited in Court within 15 days of the sale the Court was bound to resell the property. On this finding the appeal preferred by the judgment-debtor was accepted and a resale of the house in question was ordered. In the concluding portion of the judgment, it was remarked by the learned Judge that it had been brought to his notice by the auction-purchaser that he had spent a considerable amount of money in effecting improvements after the purchase of the property, and that the amount he had spent on these improvements should be allowed to him if the house was ordered to be resold. The learned Judge held that if the executing Court finds that the auction-purchaser had spent any money on the improvements of the property bona fide, then it would be open to that Court to direct that out of the sale proceeds of the property on its resale the amount spent by the auction-purchaser shall be first paid to him and the balance if any shall be paid to the decree-holder. Against this decision two appeals have been preferred to this Court under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent: one by the auction-purchaser A. R. Davar and the other by Rai Sahib Jinda Ram. Both of these appeals can be conveniently disposed of by one judgment.

It was contended on behalf of the auction-purchaser that failure to pay 75 per cent. of the sale price as required by R. 85 of O. 21 amounts to a mere irregularity within the purview of O. 21, R. 90 and that a sale cannot be set aside on account of this irregularity unless the judgment-debtor has sustained substantial injury by reason of such irregularity. The learned counsel for the auction-purchaser further contended that the Division Bench ruling of the Allahabad High Court, 57 All 658,¹ relied upon by the learned single Judge does not lay down the law correctly and that the provisions of O. 21, R. 85, Civil P. C., are not mandatory but are merely directory. It has been held in 57 All 658¹ that when default is made by the auction-purchaser in paying into Court the full amount of the purchase money within the time allowed by O. 21, R. 85 the Court has no jurisdiction to extend the time but must order a resale under R. 86. The only discretion given by R. 86 is in the matter of forfeiture of the deposit of 25 per cent. made by the auction-purchaser, and not in the matter of resale.

The contention raised on behalf of the auction-purchaser is that the failure to deposit 75 per cent. of the sale price within a fortnight, as required by O. 21, R. 85, amounts to a material irregularity in publishing or conducting a sale and such irregularity is covered by O. 21, R. 90, Civil P. C. In my opinion this contention is devoid of all force. The "publishing" of the sale has reference to all proceedings that take place till the sale is actually held. The sale is held or conducted on a particular day or days appointed by the Court. As soon as the sale is concluded the highest bidder is declared, under O. 21, R. 84, to be the purchaser. He is to pay immediately after this declaration a deposit of 25 per cent. of the purchase price to the officer or other person conducting the sale. Any proceedings that take place after this deposit has been made, cannot, in my opinion, be regarded as falling within the meaning of the words 'conducting the sale'. In this view of the matter the rulings dealing with the provisions of O. 21, R. 84 are not fully applicable to the facts of the present case. Most of the rulings referred to by the learned counsel for the auction-purchaser such as A I R 1937 Lah 113,² A I R 1924 Rang 81,³ 8 Luck 731⁴ and 28 All 238⁵ deal with the provisions of O. 21, R. 84. A few rulings were quoted in which reference has been made to the provisions of O. 21, R. 85, Civil P. C. In each of these rulings however, the auction-purchaser, the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder signified their consent to the extension of time for making a deposit of 75 per cent. of the purchase price by the auction-purchaser. It was therefore remarked in some of these rulings that the effect of consent was to waive the irregularity in the procedure and the proper view to take of the transaction was to hold that the old sale was equivalent to a resale: vide 59 Cal 117⁶ at p. 127. A similar observation was made in a Division Bench ruling of the Madras High Court reported as A I R 1923 Mad 48.⁷ I would therefore respectfully agree with the view propounded in 57 All 658.¹ In the result I would dismiss the appeal of the auction-purchaser (Letters Patent Appeal No. 16 of 1937).

1. Nawal Kishore v. Buttu Mal, A I R 1935 All 243=153 I O 910=57 All 658=1935 A L J 167.

There is no substance in the appeal preferred by the judgment-debtor (Letters Patent Appeal No. 17 of 1937). The learned single Judge has not held that the auction-purchaser will be entitled to the costs of the improvements if he proves that any bona fide improvements have been carried out. The learned Judge has left it to the executing Court to determine whether the auction-purchaser would be entitled to claim any sum on account of improvements and if so whether any bona fide improvements have in fact been made. It would be open to the auction-purchaser to make an application to the executing Court for compensation on account of improvements and it would be for that Court to determine whether it is permissible to allow any sum, and if so, what amount on account of improvements. I would therefore dismiss the appeal of the judgment-debtor also. I would direct the parties in both the appeals to bear their own costs of these appeals.

Tek Chand J.—I agree.

K.B./A.L.

Appeals dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 200

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Mohammad Din Mehar Din and another — Appellants.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 1381 of 1936, Decided on 16th February 1937, from order of Addl. Sess. Judge, Lahore, D/- 30th November 1936.

(a) Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 148, 533 — Confessions recorded under S. 164 — Actual questions and answers put by Magistrate to accused not recorded but Magistrate giving evidence under S. 533 and satisfying Court that usual precautions were taken — Confessions are admissible in evidence.

Where certain confessions are recorded under S. 164 and although the actual questions and answers put by the Magistrate to the confessing accused are not recorded, the Magistrate gives evidence under S. 533 and satisfies the Court that questions had been asked and the usual precautions had been taken by him, the confessions are admissible in evidence under Ss. 164 and 533 taken together. It is not possible to lay down the particular questions to be asked in each particular case but the Magistrate and the High Court have to be satisfied that the confession was in fact voluntary: A I R 1936 P C 253, Disting.

[P 201 C 1, 2]

(b) Penal Code (1860) S. 302 — Murder — Sentence—Extreme youth.

2. Mahomed Ali v. Ram Dass, A I R 1937 Lah 113.

3. Mg. Obit Hlaing v. N. A R. M. Chetty, A I R 1924 Rang 81=79 I O 747=2 Bur L J 166.

4. Jangli Bakhsh Singh v. Buddhanlal, A I R 1938 Oudh 345=144 I O 814=8 Luck 731=10 O W N 440.

5. Ahmad Bakhsh v. Lalta Prasad, (1905) 28 All 238=1905 A W N 263.

6. Kalipada Mukerji v. Basanta Kumar, A I R 1932 Cal 126=138 I O 177=59 Cal 117=35 O W N 877.

7. Subramanyam Nambudri v. V. Kamanathi, A I R 1923 Mad 48=69 I O 1001=48 M L J 477.

Extreme youth of the accused is a sufficiently strong reason for not passing a sentence of death on them. [P 202 O 2]

Durga Das Jain and M. Aslam —
for Appellant.

D. S. Sawhney, Public Prosecutor —
for the Crown.

Young C. J. — Mohammad Din and Wali Mohammad and two others were charged with the murder of one Bashir, a boy 11 years of age. The Additional Sessions Judge of Lahore found Mohammad Din and Wali Mohammad guilty and sentenced them to death: the other two he acquitted. The evidence in this case upon which these two boys have been convicted consists of the evidence of a confession by each of them made under S. 164, Criminal P. C., before a First Class Magistrate, the recovery from their bodies of clothes bearing human bloodstains, track evidence proving that they were at the spot where the body of the murdered boy was discovered and also evidence of a motive. If the confessions are believable and admissible, no other evidence is in law required. In this case however there is the corroboration by the recovery of the bloodstained garments and the track evidence.

It has been argued by counsel that the confessions are not admissible and he attempted to rely upon the latest decision of the Privy Council in 17 Lah 629.¹ That decision however has no bearing whatever on the facts of this case. The confessions were recorded under S. 164, Criminal P. C., and although the actual questions and answers put by the Magistrate to the confessing accused were not recorded, the Magistrate gave evidence as is permitted under S. 533, Criminal P. C. and he satisfied the Court that questions had been asked and that the usual precautions had been taken by him. The Privy Council ruling, 17 Lah 629,¹ did not consider the effect of S. 533, Criminal P. C., and their Lordships themselves said they expressed no opinion on the question of the operation or scope of S. 533, Criminal P. C., as it had no bearing on the case which was then under discussion before them. In our opinion Ss. 164 and 533 taken together make it clear that these confessions are admissible in evidence. The learned Honorary Magistrate in Court says:

1. Nazir Ahmad v. Emperor, (1936) 23 A I R P C 258=1936 Cr O 752=168 I O 881=68 I A 872=17 Lah 629 (P C).

I questioned him (Wali Mohammad) in order to satisfy myself if he was making his statement voluntarily. I explained to the accused that I was a Magistrate and that any statement which he might make could be used as evidence against him. I explained this by questions and answers.

And later on under cross-examination he says:

I asked the accused if he was making the statement under police influence and he replied that he was speaking voluntarily and for the sake of truth.

It is not possible to lay down the particular questions in each particular case which ought to be put, but the Magistrate and the High Court have to be satisfied that the confession was in fact voluntary. We cannot see any reason to doubt the voluntary nature of these confessions. These two boys had been in police custody for about a fortnight before the confessions were made, and we have no doubt that if the police had wished illegally to obtain confessions, boys of this age would have succumbed to police pressure at a very much earlier date. The confessions set out the motive namely, that the wife of Mohammad Din had been abducted by one Dullah, and therefore the accused came to the conclusion that as Dullah was a man it would be easier to murder his small son Bashir in order to obtain revenge: Bashir was caught in a field and these two assisted in the murder. A pagree, loin cloth and a shirt were taken from the body of Mohammad Din shortly after the murder and they were found stained with human blood. A shirt was taken from person of Wali Mohammad and it was also found to be stained with human blood. The track evidence which appears to us to be reliable shows that both these appellants were in the company of Bashir at the place where the murder took place. We are satisfied on this evidence that the conclusion of the learned Additional Sessions Judge cannot be attacked.

We disagree however with the learned Judge when he thought that he was bound to condemn both these boys to death. Their ages are given in the heading of the judgment as 12 years. The learned Judge however comes to the conclusion that they are 16 and 17. We have had the advantage of seeing them here ourselves and we would put their ages in the neighbourhood of 15½. Not only do we think that it would be wholly wrong to hang boys of this age, but in this case there is some evidence contained in the confessions which is of course the real evidence against both of them, that there was provocation at the hands of Dullah, the father of Bashir, who was murdered. This provocation flowing from Dullah would not, it is true, have affected our minds if these appellants had been of mature age as Dullah was not murdered but his son. Taking into consideration the youth of the appellants which, in any event, we consider to be a sufficiently strong reason, we set aside the sentence of death in both cases and sentence them instead to transportation for life; the Government will probably consider the advisability of keeping these two youths in the Borstal Jail.

R.M./R.K.

*Order accordingly.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 202*TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.Jamala — Plaintiff — Appellant.*

v.

*Mohammada and others — Defendants
— Respondents.*

First Appeal No. 341 of 1936, Decided on 28th May 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Ferozepore, D/- 29th April 1936.

Punjab Land Revenue Act (17 of 1887), S. 117 (1)—Suit for declaration of title by J—No application for partition to revenue authorities—No direction by revenue authorities to bring civil suit—Previous admission by J that land in suit was already partitioned—Even then suit was maintainable under S. 117 (1) and principle of estoppel did not apply.

J instituted a suit in which he alleged that the entire estate left by his ancestor was joint, that no private partition ever took place, that he was entitled to a declaration to the effect that the land in question belonged to him and the co-sharers jointly and that he was entitled to have it partitioned. The suit was contested by the co-sharers on the ground that J had no right to sue for the declaration prayed for on the ground that he never applied for partition to the revenue authorities, that he was not directed to bring a civil suit, that he was estopped from instituting the suit since he had previously admitted that the land had already been partitioned:

Held that suit being for a declaration of title was maintainable under S. 117 (1), Land Revenue Act: 150 P R 1890, Rel. on. [P 208 C 1, 2]

Held further that the principle of estoppel did not apply. [P 208 C 1]

R. P. Khosla and Nazar Mohammad —
for Appellant.

J. L. Kapur — for Respondents.

Abdul Rashid J.—The facts, relevant to the question of law involved in this appeal, may be shortly stated. Hasham had four sons, namely Jamala (plaintiff), Mohammada (defendant 1), Jaimal (defendant 2) and Fateh Mohammad. Fateh Mohammad had one son, namely Nura (defendant 3). Hasham died on 16th March 1926. His estate consisted of 3005 kanals and 1 marla of land situate in village Ghulam Patra in the Ferozepore district. On 3rd September 1927 Jaimal (defendant 2) filed an application for the partition of the property left by his father before the Assistant Collector. On 23rd September 1927, Jamala, plaintiff, and Nura and Mohammada, defendants, filed a written statement. They pleaded inter alia that a private partition had already taken place between the parties after the death of Hasham and that the application did not lie. Mr. Gokal Chand, Assistant Collector, held that a part of the property left by Hasham had been partitioned amongst his heirs, and that a part of the property of Hasham was still joint. He returned the application to the applicant with the remark that either he should file an application in respect of unpartitioned land or if in reality there had been no private partition, as alleged by him, he should establish his right in a Civil Court. A similar application was again presented by Jaimal on 19th June 1928. The order on this application was similar to the one reproduced above. On 3rd August 1933, Jaimal presented a third application for partition. On this application it was held by Mr. Ladha Ram, Assistant Collector, that once a private partition had been established it was the function of the Civil Court to decide as to whether a private partition had converted joint property into separate property. He was of the opinion that either the Revenue Officer should proceed under S. 117, Land Revenue Act, or he should reject the application till the question has been determined by a Civil Court. At the end of his judgment however he remarked that under the circumstances no change having taken place after the previous order of the Revenue Assistant, the application is dismissed under S. 115, Land Revenue Act.

Having failed before the Revenue Officer, Jaimal did not institute any suit in the Civil Court. Jamala, plaintiff, however instituted the presentsuit on 30th November 1934. The principal allegation of the plaintiff is that the entire estate left by Hasham is joint, that no private partition has ever taken place, that he is entitled to a declaration to the effect that the land in question belongs to him and the defendants jointly, and that he is entitled to have it partitioned. The suit was contested by Mohammada and Nura, defendants only, who pleaded, inter alia, that the plaintiff had no right to sue for the declaration prayed for on the ground that he never applied for partition to the revenue authorities, and he was not directed to bring a civil suit, that the land had already been partitioned, that the suit was barred by time and that the plaintiff was estopped from instituting the present suit on account of his conduct during the course of the proceedings that took place before the Revenue Officers. On these pleadings the following issues were framed :

1. Has the plaintiff no right to sue on the ground that he never applied for partition of the land and was not directed to institute a civil suit?
2. Did the plaintiff admit on 23rd September 1927 and 27th October 1928 in the applications for partition by Jaimal that the land had already been partitioned and is he therefore not competent to institute the present suit?
3. Is the order of the Revenue Assistant dated 17th September 1934 dismissing the application of Jaimal a bar to the present suit?
4. Is the plaintiff estopped from instituting the suit on account of his act and conduct?
5. Is the suit within time?
6. If Issue No. 2 is decided in favour of the defendants, has there been no partition of the land and has the plaintiff a right to claim its partition now?
- 6-A. If Issue No. 2 is decided against the defendants, has the land already been partitioned and has the plaintiff therefore no right to claim its partition?
7. Relief.

The trial Court did not decide Issues Nos. 6 and 6-A. On Issues Nos. 2 and 4 it held that the principle of estoppel did not apply to the present case and that the admission of Jamala, plaintiff, if any, may be availed of by the defendants under Issues Nos. 6 and 6-A. On Issue No. 3 it was decided that the order of the Revenue Assistant dated 17th September 1934 was not a bar to the present suit. On Issue No. 5 it was held that the suit was within time. After giving these findings on the various issues, the suit of the plaintiff was dismissed on the ground that it was not maintainable either under S. 45, Land Revenue Act, or S. 42, Specific Relief Act. Against this decision, the plaintiff has preferred an appeal to this Court. The judgments of the Revenue Officers alluded to above make it perfectly clear that they were of the opinion that a question of title was involved in the applications presented by Jaimal, and that it was open to him to get that question of title determined by a Civil Court. This was the real reason why the various applications preferred by Jaimal for partition were returned to him by the Revenue Officers concerned. The procedure followed by the Revenue Officers is prescribed in sub-s. (1), S. 117, Punjab Land Revenue Act, which runs in the following terms :

When there is a question as to title in any of the property of which partition is sought, the Revenue Officer may decline to grant the application for partition until the question has been determined by a competent Court or he may himself proceed to determine the question as though he were such a Court.

It appears to us that a question of title is involved in the present case. The plaintiff claims to be a joint owner of the entire property in suit, the contesting defendants deny his title in the entire property, and state that he is merely the owner of the fields that are in his possession, and that these fields fell to his share at the time of a private partition that took place soon after the death of Hasham. The title of the plaintiff to the fields that are in the possession of the contesting defendants has therefore clearly been denied. Reference may be made in this connexion to a Division Bench ruling of the Punjab Chief Court reported as 150 P R 1890.¹ In that case a claim for partition was made and liability to partition on the ground of a private division was denied by the defendants. The plaintiff contended that the so-called division did not sever the joint title or convert the joint property, or any portion of it, into severalty. Under these circumstances it was held that the suit was cognizable by a Civil Court, and that a question of title had been raised within the meaning of S. 116, Punjab Land Revenue Act which could only be decided after a regular trial either by a Civil Court or a Revenue Court acting under S. 117 as a Court and not by a Revenue Officer as such. We accordingly reverse the decision of the trial Court on Issue No. 1, and hold that the present suit for a declaration was maintainable.

So far as the findings of the lower Court on Issues Nos. 2 and 4 are concerned, they have not been challenged before us by the learned counsel for the respondents. The decision on these issues is therefore affirmed. Issue No. 3 does not arise in view of our finding on Issue No. 1. Issue No. 5 can only be tried in the present case after a decision has been arrived at on the merits on Issues Nos. 6 and 6.A, as it is a mixed question of fact and law.

1. Radhu v. Mt. Nando, (1890) 150 P R 1890.

For the reasons given above, we accept this appeal, set aside the judgment and the decree of the Court below and remand the case for decision on the merits, in the light of the observations made above. Court-fee on this appeal will be refunded, other costs will abide the result. The learned counsel for the parties have been asked to cause their clients to appear before the trial Court on 5th July 1937.

R.W./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 204

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mool Raj and others — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

*Manohar Lal and others — Defendants
— Respondents.*

First Appeal No. 278 of 1936, Decided on 27th May 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/. 24th March 1936.

(a) Hindu Law—Joint family—Presumption—Initial presumption that Hindu family is joint in estate—Hindu family owning ancestral property, presumption is all property possessed by members is joint — In Punjab however fact that family owns undivided ancestral property is not inconsistent with its separation — Such families though joint in respect of such property are considered separate in other respects.

There is an initial presumption that a Hindu family is joint in estate and that where a joint Hindu family owns ancestral property which has not been partitioned, the presumption is that all the property possessed by the members is joint. In Punjab however the fact that the family owns undivided ancestral land is not inconsistent with its separation. In Punjab it is usual to find Hindu families in which disruption has taken place without any formal division, and members have separated without the execution of the formal deed. The sons go away by mutual understanding, one or two perhaps carry on their father's business, others start new trades of their own, and others enter service, yet there is no partition, no drawing up of deeds of any kind, a certain number of ancestral shops, houses or gardens remain and these are admittedly joint, while in all other respects the family is disrupted : 102 P R 1889, Rel. on. [P 204 C 2 ; P 206 C 2]

(b) Hindu Law—Joint family—Self acquisition—Co-parcener can acquire separate property for himself out of his separate income.

A member of a joint Hindu family can acquire property for himself out of his own separate income, and it is his own separate property unless it is proved that such member has blended his income with that of the other members of the family. [P 204 C 2 ; P 205 C 1]

(c) Legal Practitioner—Witness—Counsel is not incompetent to give evidence — It is but undesirable for him to depose as to matter other than formal either for or against his client.

A counsel is not incompetent to give evidence, whether the facts to which he testifies occurred before or after his retainer. As a general practice it is undesirable that when a matter to which a counsel deposes is other than formal, he should testify either for or against the party whose case he is conducting : A I R 1914 Cal 396 and A I R 1930 Lah 361 Rel. on. [P 206 C 2]

Ram Saran for D. R. Bhasin —
for Appellants.

M. C. Mahajan, Harbans Singh for Daulat Ram and Daulat Ram and
P. A. Behl for M. C. Mahajan —
for Respondents 1, 2 and 4.

Coldstream J.—The suit giving rise to this appeal was brought by Mul Raj and his two sons, the present appellants, against Ram Kishen, father of Mul Raj and Manohar Lal, Kishori Lal and Jia Lal, the sons of Mehr Chand, brother of Mul Raj, for a declaration that the parties constituted a joint Hindu family and that a house in Lahore Cantonments occupied by the parties was joint property of the family. The suit was contested by all defendants who denied that they and the plaintiffs were a joint family and asserted that the house concerned belonged exclusively to the sons of Mehr Chand by whom the site had been acquired and the house constructed. The Subordinate Judge who tried the suit found that Mehr Chand had separated from his father Ram Kishen ever since he entered Government service in 1903 or 1902, that the plaintiff Mul Raj had been separate from his father since before 1921, when his brother Mehr Chand died and that the site of the house was acquired for himself by Mehr Chand who had built the house with his own money. On these findings he dismissed the suit. It is contended for the appellants before us that the evidence is wholly insufficient to displace the onus which lay upon the defendants of proving that their family was not joint or that the house and site were not co-parcenary property of the family. There is no doubt an initial presumption that a Hindu family is joint in estate and that where a joint Hindu family owns ancestral property which has not been partitioned, the presumption is that all the property possessed by the members is joint. But a member of a joint Hindu family can acquire property for himself out of his own separate income and the trial Court having found it proved that the house in suit was so acquired by Mehr Chand it is for the appellants to show us sufficient reason for holding the decision to be wrong.

The matter really in dispute here is the ownership of the house and I deal first with this question. The site of the house was purchased in 1908 for Rs. 120 ostensibly by Mehr Chand, the transaction being by deed executed on 29th June 1908 and registered three days later on 1st July. The property bought included two kachha houses. Mehr Chand who was in Government service was then stationed in Ambala came to Lahore when the deed was executed and according to Rai Sahib Dhian Chand (D. W. 9) before whom the deed was executed brought the money with him. At that time Ram Kishen who if the plaintiffs' case is true must have been karta of the joint family was in Lahore Cantonments. But Ram Kishen did not attest the deed nor did he appear before the Sub-Registrar when it was executed. The plaintiffs' evidence about the source of the sale money is that a sum of Rs. 100 was given by Mehr Chand's mother to the witness Suja (not Laja as printed) Ram, P. W. 7, who had been asked by Mehr Chand to get it for him from his mother and that Mehr Chand added only Rs. 20 of his own. Why Mehr Chand did not himself ask his mother for the money is not explained and the story is extremely improbable. Before issues were struck the plaintiff declared that he did not know who purchased the site but in the witness box on 18th December 1935 he stated that his mother gave a currency note to Mehr Chand and he had seen an entry to this effect in his father's daily account book in 1908 that his previous statement was untrue and that he himself, Suja Ram and his sisters were present when the money was given. I have no doubt that this story is a fabrication and that all the money was produced by Mehr Chand. The property was subsequently registered in the Cantonment records as belonging to Mehr Chand and remained so registered until Mehr Chand's death after which it was recorded as belonging to his son Manohar Lal.

The house in dispute was mainly built in 1918. Ram Kishen was then in Lahore but the application for permission to build it was made to the Cantonment Committee not by him but by one Jan Mohammad described as Mehr Chand's manager (D/15). Mehr Chand was in that year earning pay as a Government servant and as a shareholder individually in the Peoples Bank then in liquidation; he drew considerable sums in dividends in 1915, 1917, 1918. His pay was admittedly his separate property. In July 1919 Mehr Chand applied for permission to lay out a garden and build an ihata in front of the house (D/27). As Mehr Chand was not in Lahore the application was submitted by Ram Kishen who described himself as Mehr Chand's Mukhtar. One coparcener could not be the mukhtar of another in dealing with joint property and if the site had been joint family property Ram Kishen as karta could not have acted in this manner. Another application for permission to add a chaubara to the house was made in November of the same year (D/16). This was submitted on Mehr Chand's behalf by a carpenter. In 1920 Mehr Chand had separate money dealings in Ferozepore and was drawing comparatively large sums from his account there (D. W. 1/1). He was also lending money separately as is proved by the mortgage deed (D/2) showing that he lent to two Jhiwars of Ghawind Rs. 1200 on 14th April 1920.

By the evidence it is clearly established that Mehr Chand was carrying on his own separate business before and after the house and chaubara were built and that he was treating this property as his own with the express approval of his father and the apparent acquiescence of his brother. In November 1931 Mul Raj petitioned to be adjudicated insolvent. In the duly verified schedule of property (D/9) attached to his petition Mul Raj declared that he had no property in British India. This is very strong evidence to prove that in 1931 Mul Raj claimed no interest in any of the properties of which he now says he is joint owner. In the insolvency proceedings Manohar Lal, Mul Raj's brother, the defendant, acted for Mul Raj and stood surety for him. Lastly we have the fact that Ram Kishen has flatly denied that he is joint with his sons. According to him Mul Raj and Mehr Chand separated from him in 1903.04 and Mul Raj separated in 1914 when he took service in the Great War and he testifies that the house and its site belonged to Mehr Chand. No reason is proved for supposing that Ram Kishen is giving false evidence to injure Mul Raj. The suggestion by the plaintiff that there is enmity between them resulting from Ram Kishen's misconduct with Mehr Chand's widow is not credible. Ram Kishen must be well over 70 years old. For enmity towards Mul Raj on the part of Ram Kishen in 1920 when he admitted Mehr Chand's ownership of the site and house no explanation is suggested.

Against all this, besides the plaintiffs' oral evidence described at page 106 of the lower Court's judgment, are merely the facts that the family owns 17 bighas of undivided ancestral land and a haveli which is still joint, that Ram Kishen signed some attendance rolls of labourers employed to build the house and some receipts for bricks used in the building and that Mul Raj and his family have occupied a part of the building since Mul Raj returned from Africa where he spent the years 1925-31. The oral evidence that the family is joint is of little value. It includes that of the plaintiffs' own counsel, Pandit Ram Saran Das (P. W. 3), who is married to the sister of Mul Raj. Giving evidence on 21st May 1934 Pandit Ram Saran Das stated that the family was still joint although there had been a separate mess since 1922. At that time it appears Ram Saran Das was not acting as plaintiffs' counsel, but he appeared as their counsel on 12th June 1934 and on 15th May 1935 he was summoned as a witness by the defendants in order that he might be confronted with a statement made by him in 1927 when he was defending a suit on behalf of Ram Kishen. Ram Kishen had been sued along with Mul Raj for a sum of Rs. 150 alleged to be due to the plaintiff in that suit as the price of ornaments. Ram Kishen repudiated liability and Pandit Ram Saran Das went into the witness box and gave evidence that Mul Raj had separated seven years previously. He also then stated first that Ram Kishen built the house after partition and then that Mehr Chand had built it and it was known as his. It is obvious that to evidence of witnesses of this kind no weight whatever can be attached. The lower Court has disbelieved the oral evidence produced to show that Ram Kishen supervised the building of the house. Even if he did supervise it, signed attendance rolls and receipts for bricks this was perfectly consistent with the house being built really for Mehr Chand who was not stationed in Lahore all the time.

The defendants' explanation that Mul Raj and his family occupied the chaubara of the house with the permission of the defendants and not as a joint owner has been accepted by the lower Court and I think that the lower Court was right to accept it. The fact that the family owns undivided ancestral land is not inconsistent with the separation alleged by the defendants. The family is one of the kind described in 102 P R 1889¹ where it was pointed out that in the Punjab it is usual to find Hindu families in which disruption has taken place without any formal division, and members have separated without the execution of any formal deed.

The sons go away by mutual understanding, one or two perhaps carry on their father's business; others start new trades of their own, and others enter service, yet there is no partition, no drawing up of deeds of any kind; a certain number of ancestral shops, houses or gardens remain and these are admittedly joint, while in all other respects the family is disrupted.

In the present case the nucleus of ancestral property is comparatively insignificant. It remained with Ram Kishen and it is proved that the site of the house was purchased by Mehr Chand with his own money, that Mehr Chand kept his money separate, and it is not proved that Mehr Chand blended his income with that of the other members of the family. In residence and mess Mul Raj and his father and his brother have been separate admittedly since 1922. There was no common chest. My conclusion is that it has been rightly decreed that when the suit was instituted the parties did not constitute a joint family, that the house in dispute belonged to Mehr Chand alone and that the plaintiffs have no joint interest in it. I would accordingly dismiss this appeal with costs.

I must add that the appearance of Pandit Ram Saran Das as counsel in a case in which he was a witness for the plaintiff was not in accordance with the interests and the tradition of the Bar. A counsel is not incompetent to give evidence, whether the facts to which he testifies occurred before or after his retainer. As a general practice, it is undesirable that, when a matter to which counsel deposes is other than formal, he should testify either for or against the party whose case he is conducting, 40 Cal 898² at p. 938 and see

1. Rup Chand v. Basanta Mal, (1889) 102 P R 1889.

2. D. Weston v. Peary Mohan Das, A I R 1914 Cal 896=23 I C 25=40 Cal 898=18 C W N 185 (S B).

also A I R 1930 Lah 361.³ It is true that in this case Pandit Ram Saran Das, when he first gave evidence, was not the plaintiff's counsel but having given evidence and being fully conversant as a close relation of the parties with the whole facts in dispute he ought not subsequently to have taken the brief for his brother-in-law. I may also notice that the Court ought not to have allowed the defendants to cross examine Pandit Ram Saran Das on 17th May 1935. They had called him as their own witness on 15th May to confront him with his previous statement of 1927, knowing him to be on the other side, that is to say, hostile, and they had had full opportunity, of which they had taken advantage, to cross-examine him on 21st May 1934 when he had given evidence for the plaintiff.

Din Mohammad J.—I agree.

A.L./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

3. Sita Ram v. Ram Lal, A I R 1930 Lah 361 = 1930 Cr O 966 = 117 I O 66.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 207

COLDSTREAM AND BHIDE JJ.

Chandar Bhan and others — Plaintiffs — Petitioners.

v.

Fateh Sher and others — Defendants
— Respondents.

Civil Misc. No. 207 of 1937, in Civil Misc. Nos. 146 to 151, 153, 155 to 157 and 163 of 1936 and Second Appeals Nos. 657 to 662, 665, 667 to 669 and 726 of 1934, for consolidation of all appeals for appealing to Privy Council decided on 3rd June 1937.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 45, R. 4—Cases not directly falling under—Court has power to consolidate such appeals under R. 7 of Schedule to Rules of Indian Order in Council (9th February 1920).

Rule 7 of the Schedule to the Rules of the Indian Order in Council (9th February 1920) regarding appeals to the Privy Council invests the High Court with power to allow consolidation of appeals for the purpose of giving security in cases not falling directly within the scope of O. 45, R. 4, : O. M. 650 of 1936 and A I R 1936 All 882 Ref. [P 208 O 1]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 45, R. 7—No power to extend period prescribed by R. 7.

Court cannot extend time for giving security beyond the period prescribed by O. 45, R. 7, Civil P. C. : A I R 1936 Lah 788, Rel. on. [P 208 O 2]

M. L. Puri — for Petitioners.

J. N. Aggarwal and Hargopal — for Opposite Parties.

Coldstream J. — By an order in the case, C. M. 146 of 1936, dated 15th January 1937, this Bench gave leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council against the judgment of this Court disposing of the following eleven cases :

Second Appeal No.	657	of	1934,
do	658	"	1934,
do	659	"	1934,
do	660	"	1934,
do	661	"	1934,
do	662	"	1934,
do	665	"	1934,
do	667	"	1934,
do	668	"	1934,
do	669	"	1934,
do	726	"	1934.

By our order in the case (Civil Miscellaneous No. 353 of 1936) dated 18th November 1936 this Bench also gave leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council against the judgment of this Court in the following cases :

Second Appeal No.	1325	of	1934,
do	1327	"	1934,
do	1376	"	1934,
do	1326	"	1934,
do	1328	"	1934,
do	2151	"	1934,
do	404	"	1934,
do	465	"	1935,
do	466	"	1935,
do	642	"	1935.

On 19th February 1937 Chandar Bhan, Fateh Chand and Jethu Ram, to whom leave had been granted to appeal against the decision in Second Appeal No. 657 of 1934, petitioned that all these appeals be consolidated as the question for decision in all of them was the same. The petition prayed that as the petitioners were poor, the sum of Rs. 4000 which had been deposited by some of the persons to whom leave to appeal had been granted in cases other than those mentioned above might be accepted as sufficient security given for the costs of the respondents in all the appeals. It was further prayed that if this prayer could not be granted, those appeals at any rate to which this Court's order of 15th January 1937 related might be consolidated and treated as one appeal and time for depositing the costs required be extended. Notice of this petition was given to the opposite parties in the cases to which the order of 15th January 1937 related, those having been decided by one judgment (see O. 45, R. 4, Civil P. C.).

The petition is opposed by the respondent decree-holders on whose behalf it is contended that the rules regulating the procedure of this Court in admitting appeals to His Majesty in Council do not empower this Court to allow consolidation of appeals for the purpose of giving security for costs and that the application must fail inasmuch as the security which the applicants were bound to deposit under the rules was not deposited within the time allowed by R. 7 of O. 45, Civil P. C. Reliance is also placed on the order of this Bench in C. M. 650 of 1936 where it was held following the Allahabad Court's decision in A I R 1936 All 832¹ that the High Court had no inherent jurisdiction to allow consolidation except in so far as it was specially permitted by the rules (as under O. 45, R. 4, Civil P. C.) as the inherent powers of the High Court must be held to be confined to cases within its jurisdiction and cannot be extended to appeals which are to be heard by their Lordships of the Privy Council. I may here notice that Mr. Mukand Lal Puri for the petitioners confines his arguments to the cases dealt with by the order of 15th January 1937.

When the application in case C. M. No. 650 of 1936 was argued before us, the only question discussed was whether the Court had inherent jurisdiction to consolidate appeals to the Privy Council no reference being made to R. 7 of the Schedule to the Rules of the Indian Order in Council of 9th February 1920 regarding Privy Council appeals to which learned counsel for the applicants has now drawn our attention. That Rule does appear to invest the High Court with a power to consolidate appeals in cases not falling directly within the scope of R. 4 of O. 45, Civil P. C. But even if this Court has the power to consolidate for the purpose of giving security appeals to the Privy Council, this particular case is not one in which it ought to be exercised. R. 7 of O. 45, Civil P. C., does not empower the High Court to extend time for giving security beyond six weeks after the date of the grant of the certificate allowing an appeal. The question whether the Court had such power was considered by a Division Bench of this Court in A I R 1935 Lah 733.² After referring in that judgment to the case law on the subject which has been cited before us, Addison and Abdul Rashid JJ. decided that the Court could not extend time for giving security beyond the period allowed by O. 45, R. 7 of the Code. We see no reason for differing from that decision. The present petitioners did not deposit security within the time allowed and the certificate for the admission of the appeal may therefore be cancelled. The persons given leave to appeal against the judgments in the cases to which our order of 15th January related other than the case No. 657 of 1934 have neither deposited security nor asked for their cases to be consolidated with the case of the present petitioners. We do not know if they are prepared to contribute their share of the deposit required if leave to consolidate is given. There is no material before us warranting an assumption that they are so prepared. The petitioners have not joined them as parties in the present proceedings. The parties in all the appeals are not the same. The amount required to be deposited as security is fixed by the rules of the Court of which counsel are very well aware and it was the duty of the petitioners in my opinion to pay in the amount fixed stating either that it was paid in on account of their appeal or, if the Court was prepared to allow this, as sufficient security for the costs of the respondents in all the appeals. There is however no petition by the other appellants in this group of appeals and they have not moved in the matter.

I would accordingly reject this petition and cancel the certificate granting leave to appeal in all the cases to which our order of 15th January 1937 relates.

Bhide J. — I agree.

V.B.B./R.K.

Petition rejected.

2. Munna Lal v. Gajraj Singh, A I R 1935 Lah 733=159 I O 282.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 208

BHIDE J.

Hans Raj and another — Plaintiffs
— Appellants.

v.

Jagat Singh and another — Defendants
— Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 421 of 1937, Decided on 6th October 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Ambala, D/- 10th February 1937.

1. Mukand Lal v. Hashmatunnissa, A I R 1936 All 832=166 I O 288=I L R 1937 All 105=1936 A L J 1025.

Tort—Trespass—Lane alleged by plaintiff to be joint — Construction of overhanging structure on it by defendant in assertion of exclusive right amounts to injury—Suit for demolition of structure is competent.

Construction of a 'ohatra' (overhanging) structure in assertion of an exclusive right to a lane which is alleged by the plaintiff to be joint amounts to an injury so far as the plaintiffs rights are concerned and a suit for demolition of the 'ohatra' is maintainable. [P 209 C 1]

Aohhru Ram, Balkishen (Pandit) and Inder Dev — for Appellants.

Puran Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment. — Plaintiffs sued in this case for demolition of a 'ohatra' (overhanging structure) built by the defendants over a lane, which plaintiffs alleged to be joint. Defendants claimed that the lane was their exclusive property. The suit was dismissed by the trial Court and the learned District Judge has upheld the decision on the ground that the plaintiffs had no cause of action, as no damage was proved. I am unable to accept this view. In the present instance the defendants had built the 'ohatra' in assertion of an exclusive right to the lane and this itself was obviously an 'injury' so far as plaintiffs' rights were concerned. The question whether the lane was or was not joint has not been decided.

I must therefore accept this appeal and remand the case to the learned District Judge for giving a finding on that point and redeciding the case according to law in the light of the above remarks. Costs to follow final decision. Parties to appear before the District Judge on 25th October 1937.

R.M./R.K. Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 209

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Messrs. Paras Dass Munna Lal — Petitioners.

v.

Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab,
North West Frontier and Delhi Provinces — Respondent.

Civil Misc. Petn. No. 178 of 1937, Decided on 16th June 1937.

Income-tax Act (1922), S. 23 (2) and (3)— Word 'evidence' in S. 23 (2) is not confined to direct evidence but also includes circumstantial evidence. Held after considering facts of case that there was material before Income-tax Officer for rejecting account books and fixing sales at Rs. 1,50,000 and applying 15 per cent. profit rate on sale.

1938 L/27 & 28

The word 'evidence' as used in sub-s. (2) of
S. 23, Income-tax Act, is not confined to direct evidence but it is comprehensive enough to cover circumstantial evidence. [P 210 C 2]

The assessee who was a cap manufacturer, carried a whole sale trade in that commodity.
The assessee had omitted to enter into his account books certain purchase transactions amounting to Rs. 1,39,000. The Income-tax Officer disbelieving the account books of the assessee, fixed the sales at Rs. 1,50,000 in the accounting period and assessed the income applying a flat rate of 15 per cent. as the reasonable rate of profit. The sum of Rs. 1,50,000 was worked out by taking a rough average of sale for the last 10 years. Though the sale for the accounting period was shown as considerably diminished, the expenditure account as shown in the account books was the same. The assessee had himself showed that he had made a profit of 15 per cent. on the sales in the subsequent year:

Held that the omission of the transactions from the account books of the assessee did provide some material for the Income-tax Officer justifying the rejection of account books and the High Court could not go into the question of sufficiency of the material. [P 210 C 2]

Held also that there was material for fixing the sale at Rs. 1,50,000 and applying a flat profit rate of 15 per cent. on the sale: A I R 1930 P C
108 Foll. [P 210 C 2; P 211 C 1]

Kirpa Ram Bajaj — for Petitioners.

Jagan Nath Aggarwal and S. M. Sikri
— for Respondent.

Abdul Rashid J.—This is an application under S. 66 (3), Income-tax Act, praying that a mandamus be issued to the Commissioner of Income-tax, Punjab,
North West Frontier and Delhi Provinces, requiring him to state the case of Messrs.
Paras Dass Munna Lal, Cap Merchants, Delhi, and refer it to this Court for the determination of the question of law arising therein. The question of law has been formulated by the assessee in the following terms:

Whether there is any material on the record justifying the rejection of accounts and estimating the sales at Rs. 1,50,000 and applying a flat rate of 15 per cent. profits to the sales.

The assessee, who is a cap manufacturer, carries on wholesale trade in that commodity in the City of Delhi. The sales as shown by his account books for the last 10 years are as follows:

1925-26	Rs. 2,70,336
1926-27	" 2,20,909
1927-28	" 2,12,840
1928-29	" 1,35,114
1929-30	" 2,24,784
1930-31	" 1,85,979
1931-32	" 1,54,785
1932-33	" 51,980
1933-34	" 49,880
1934-35	" 81,866

The books show a capital account of Rs. 1,20,000 which is increased or decreased by the profit or loss shown in each year. During the assessment for the year 1934-35, it came to the knowledge of the income-tax authorities that the assessee had purchased a house in Chandni Chowk seven years previously for a sum of Rs. 50,000, and that he had been realizing its rent amounting to Rs. 2320 per year. Neither the purchase of the house nor the realization of the rent was shown in any of the books of account produced by the assessee. The amount of rent was also not included in the return made by the assessee. It also came to light that the adopted son of the assessee had been implicated in a conspiracy case some time in the year 1931 or 1932 and the assessee had spent a sum of about Rs. 50,000 in defending him. Property worth Rs. 18,000 had been purchased by the assessee in October 1933 and another house was purchased by him for a sum of Rs. 21,000 in June 1934. None of the four transactions referred to above find any place in the account books of the assessee. The accounting period in this case is 5th July 1932 to 24th June 1933. The books of the assessee show that sales amounting to Rs. 81,866 had taken place during this period. In view of the omission from the books of the assessee of the transactions referred to above, the Income-tax Officer came to the conclusion that the books did not reveal the true extent of his business both as regards sales and as regards profits. In view of the large business that had been carried on by the assessee for the ten years from 1925-26 to 1934-35, the sales for the accounting period were fixed at the sum of Rs. 1,50,000. The Income-tax Officer calculated the profits at a flat rate of 15 per cent. for wholesale business. The assessee was taxed on an income of Rs. 20,841 to tax and super-tax aggregating Rupees 2578.1.0 as against the declared income of Rs. 3983.5.4 from property and Rupees 3638.3.8 from business. The Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax rejected the appeal of the assessee and the Commissioner declined to make a reference to this Court under S. 66 (2), Income-tax Act.

The case of the assessee was that the sums of Rs. 50,000 for the purpose of purchasing a house in Chandni Chowk, Delhi, Rs. 50,000 for the expenses of the conspiracy case, and Rs. 39,000 for the purchase of property in the years 1933 and 1934 were not shown in his books, as these sums were taken from the reserves of money that he had at home. This explanation was found to be utterly unsatisfactory by the income-tax authorities, and they accordingly came to the conclusion that the accounts of the assessee did not reveal the true state of his business and that his income could not properly be deduced from those books. In the circumstances I am of the opinion that the omission of these transactions from the account books of the assessee did provide some material justifying the rejection of the accounts. It is not open to the High Court to go into the question of the sufficiency of this material.

The next question for consideration is whether the estimate of Rs. 1,50,000 is based on any material. The main ground given by the income-tax authorities for fixing the sales at Rs. 1,50,000 for the year under assessment is the fact that the assessee had been carrying on a very large business from 1925 to 1934. His sales in the year 1925-26 amounted to Rs. 2,70,336. The sales in the year 1931-32 amounted to Rs. 1,54,785. Thereafter there was a sudden drop. The sales in the next three years amounted to Rs. 51,380, Rs. 49,380 and Rs. 81,866 respectively. It appears that the figure of Rs. 1,50,000 was worked out by taking a rough average of the business of the assessee for the last ten years. Past assessments therefore provided the material for the fixing of the sales at Rupees 1,50,000. Though the sales in the last three years, according to the books of the assessee, decreased considerably, there was no consequent decrease in the staff employed by the assessee or in the overhead charge. The shop expenditure in 1925-26 when the sales amounted to Rs. 2,70,336 was Rs. 5365. In subsequent years the expenditure account throughout has been between Rs. 5000 and Rs. 6000.

The word "evidence" as used in sub-s. (2) of S. 23, Income-tax Act, obviously cannot be confined to direct evidence. This word is comprehensive enough to cover circumstantial evidence. The circumstances alluded to above, in my opinion, provide material for fixing the sales during the year under review at the sum of Rs. 1,50,000. In the year 1933-34 the assessee himself showed that he had made a profit of 15 per cent. on the sales. There was therefore material for the Income-tax Officer to come to the conclusion that a flat rate of 15 per cent. was a reasonable rate of profit in this case. The rate of profit so far as retail trade in caps is concerned, according to the Income-tax Officer, is 25 per cent.

In a case reported in 12 Pat 318¹ an assessment was made under S. 23 (3), Income-tax Act. It was argued in the High Court in that case that the Income-tax Officer was not entitled to make a guess without any evidence. The Court agreed with that contention but held that the state of affairs in the previous years, coupled with the fact that the assessee had a large mortgage loan business and must have enforced mortgages by sale on many previous occasions afforded ample material for the assessment made. When the case went up to the Privy Council, their Lordships agreed with the observations made in the judgment of the High Court and added that if the assessee wished to displace the Taxing Officer's estimate, it was open to him to adduce evidence of all his purchase transactions during the year and of the financial results thereof which he apparently had made no attempt to do. Following 12 Pat 318,¹ I would hold that in the present case there was evidence justifying the rejection of the accounts, and justifying the fixing of the sales at Rs. 1,50,000 and applying a flat rate of Rs. 15 per cent. profits under S. 23 (3), Income-tax Act. I would therefore dismiss this application but leave the parties to bear their own costs.

Tek Chand J. — I agree.

K.B./R.K. Application dismissed.

1. Commr. of Income-tax B. & O. v. Kameshwar Singh, A I R 1930 P C 108=142 I C 437=60 I A 146=12 Pat 318 (P C).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 211

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Malik Ghulam Mohammad Khan — Judgment-debtor — Appellant.

v.

Nawab Zada Malik Amir Mohammad Khan — Decree-holder — Respondent.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 41 of 1937, Decided on 4th June 1937, from order of Skemp J., D/- 28th January 1937.

Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (7 of 1934), S. 34—Burden of proof — Burden lies upon decree-holder to prove circumstances which would bring judgment-debtor under S. 34 — Onus then shifts to judgment-debtor to give valid reasons for not paying amount — Issue of warrant of arrest without allowing opportunity to judgment-debtor to give his reasons for non-payment is illegal.

Under S. 34, a duty is in the first instance cast upon the decree-holder to bring circumstances on the record from which the Court may be in a position to draw its own inference as to the conditions laid down in the substantive part of the section. This burden may possibly be discharged otherwise as for example by the admission of the judgment-debtor that he owns some money or by other unimpeachable evidence that he owns it, but this will not be conclusive. It will merely shift the onus on to the judgment-debtor to prove his immunity from arrest. Once it is proved that the judgment-debtor had property available for discharging his debts after being called upon to pay them the onus falls back upon him to prove some just cause for not having discharged them, more especially when a Court has granted him time on a promise to use that property for paying his decree-holder, and if he offers no kind of explanation the Court can legally conclude that he has without just cause contumaciously refused to pay the amount of the decree in whole or in part. The mere fact that a judgment-debtor admits that he has certain crops to be harvested and that he will pay the decretal amount out of the money realized from such crop but fails to pay the amount is not enough to prove his capacity to pay, absence of just cause and contumacy. If therefore the Court issues a warrant of arrest without going into the question of contumacy or just cause and without allowing opportunity to the judgment-debtor to give his reasons for not paying the amount, the warrant of arrest so issued is illegal.

[P 212 C 2; P 213 C 2; P 214 C 1]

B. H. Ali, Badr-ud-Din for A. G. Maurice and A. G. Maurice — for Appellant.

Mahmud Ali for Dr. Mohammad Alam — for Respondent.

Coldstream J. — Malik Amir Mohammad Khan, the respondent to this appeal, holds a money decree against the appellant Malik Ghulam Mohammad Khan. On 28th May 1936 he sought to execute it by attachment of all the judgment-debtor's property and by his arrest. The Senior Subordinate Judge executing the decree ordered attachment of all the appellant's property, lands, houses and cattle and gave notice to him, presumably under O. 21, R. 37, Civil P. C. to show cause why he should not be arrested. On 4th June the appellant's lands and cattle were attached. On 3rd July the appellant put in a petition stating that he had not had sufficient time to make arrangements for paying the decretal amount, that he was not being contumacious and that he would pay the debt in instalments as best he could if given time after selling his wheat crop, which had not yet been completely harvested. The Subordinate Judge passed an order allowing the appellant until 7th August to pay the money and recording that if he had not paid by 7th August it would be presumed that his failure had been contumacious. On 4th July the appellant submitted a petition objecting to this order and asking for an issue to be struck for trial whether his failure to pay had been contumacious. In another petition put in on 9th July he represented that his lands could not be attached as they were ancestral property and asked that in any case he should be allowed to retain land yielding Rs. 500 per annum to maintain himself, his two wives, two daughters and three sons and to defray his expenses which were heavy as he was a zaildar, a member of the District Board and of the Jirga, and had to spend money on hospitality. On 6th August the petitioner submitted another petition protesting that he was ready to pay the debt in instalments, and that he was not being contumacious but was ready to go to jail if it were found that he was in fact being contumacious.

On the date of hearing, 7th August, the appellant's Mukhtar being present, the Subordinate Judge refused to go further into the question of the appellant's contumacy finding sufficient evidence for it in the appellant's admission made in the petition of 3rd July that he was possessed of wheat by the sale of which he could and would pay off his debt and in the appellant's failure to pay anything after having been given time in consideration of this admission. He ordered a warrant to issue accordingly. Against this Malik Ghulam Mohammad Khan appealed to this Court. His appeal was dismissed by a single Judge and he has submitted a further appeal under the provisions of the Letters Patent of this Court. It is contended that the Subordinate Judge acted illegally (1) in issuing a warrant of arrest without giving the appellant an opportunity of showing cause against its issue, as required by S. 34, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act 7 of 1934, and (2) in refusing to strike an issue on the question whether there had been contumacy placing the onus on the decree-holder to prove that the appellant had contumaciously refused to pay the decretal amount in whole or in part without just cause. It is also contended that the Subordinate Judge ignored the provisions of the second proviso to that section, but this part of the argument I have not understood.

Under S. 34 of Act 7 of 1934 an executing Court has power to issue a warrant of arrest on two conditions: (1) that it is satisfied that the judgment-debtor has without just cause contumaciously refused to pay the amount of the decree in whole or in part within his capacity to make payment, and (2) that the judgment-debtor has been given an opportunity to show cause against his arrest. In deciding as to the judgment-debtor's capacity to pay, regard is not to be had to the value of a temporary alienation of land which could be temporarily alienated in execution of a decree (second Proviso to S. 34) and only that property is to be taken into account which could be sold by a Civil Court in executing a decree (third Proviso to that section). We are not concerned here with the second and third provisos.

No doubt the onus is on the decree-holder to prove the contumacy which entitled him to arrest his debtor but I see nothing in the Act to warrant the proposition that this onus cannot be discharged by merely pointing to evidence already on the record, or that before a Court comes to the conclusion that it is satisfied as to the judgment-debtor's contumacy it must in every case strike an issue and formally call upon the decree-holder to prove what is patent on the record. I take it that if it is established that a judgment-debtor has or had property with which he can pay or could have paid his debt or part of it and has not used it for this purpose when called upon to do so, and can offer no explanation of his failure, he may justly be regarded as having acted with contumacy. Once it is proved that the judgment-debtor had property available for discharging his debts after being called upon to pay them, the onus surely falls back upon him to prove some just cause for not having discharged them, more especially when a Court has granted him time on a promise to use that property for paying his decree-holder, and if he offers no kind of explanation I have no doubt that the Court can legally conclude that he has without just cause contumaciously refused to pay the amount of the decree in whole or in part.

There is however force in the contention that in this case the judgment-debtor has not been given the opportunity of showing cause against his arrest as required by the law. The order passed on 3rd July which was, in effect, that if the appellant had not paid the decretal amount by 7th August he would be arrested, prejudged a decision as to his liability to arrest. An objection to this effect was promptly taken by the appellant, who nevertheless was not called upon subsequently to explain his conduct. In the face of this order, it would have been futile for the appellant to appear on 7th August for the question of his ability to pay and his contumacy had already been practically decided and he naturally took it for granted that if he appeared he would forthwith be arrested. It was incumbent on the Court to postpone the issue of a warrant until it had been satisfied that as a fact the appellant had been possessed of the means to make payment before 7th August (this was for the decree-holder to prove in any manner he could) and that in spite of his ability to pay he had deliberately and without just cause (and it would be for the judgment-debtor who had special knowledge of his own reasons to show such cause) refused to pay.

My view being that the Court has issued the warrant illegally, I would accept this appeal with costs, set aside the order issuing the warrant and remit the case to the executing Court to make the enquiry required by law. The parties will appear before the executing Court on 5th July 1937.

Din Mohammad J.—I agree that the appeal be allowed and that the case be remitted to the executing Court for disposal in accordance with law. The order of 3rd July betrays on the part of the executing Court a complete disregard of the provisions of law as contained in S. 34, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, 1934. This Act introduced a salutary change in the law for the time being in force in order to afford protection to debtors against vexatious arrests. The substantive part of S. 34 deals with the question of a judgment-debtor's liability to arrest and prohibits arrest for default in the payment of any money due under a decree unless and until the condition laid down therein is fulfilled. That condition is that the Court should be satisfied that (1) the amount of the decree in whole or in part is within the debtor's capacity to pay, and (2) the refusal to pay that amount is without just cause and contumacious.

In order to determine the capacity to pay, certain directions are laid down in the form of the second and third provisos. By the second Proviso it is enacted that the value of the temporary alienation of the land of a judgment-debtor is not to be taken into account and by the third Proviso it is enjoined that only that property is to be taken into consideration which a Civil Court can under the law sell. Now, the value of the temporary alienation of the land is nothing else than the value of the produce of the land and this proviso consequently prohibits the value of the produce being calculated while determining a debtor's capacity to make payment. Similarly, the property that a Civil Court cannot dispose of in execution of its decree is the land of a statutory agriculturist besides some other properties that are mentioned in S. 60, Civil P. C. The combined effect of these two provisions is to exclude from calculation the value of the land and its produce besides those properties which are already exempt otherwise. It follows therefore that it is only when in the light of these two provisions the question of a judgment-debtor's capacity to make payment is determined and the Court is satisfied that the amount demanded from him is within his capacity to pay and it further holds that he is withholding this amount from the decree-holder without any just cause and contumaciously, which again connotes want of any sound reason coupled with wilful and stubborn disobedience, that the Court can legally come to the conclusion that the debtor is liable to arrest. But even then it is not empowered to arrest him straightway. There is a further safeguard provided in the form of the first Proviso and by that proviso the Court is bound before issuing a warrant of arrest to give an opportunity to him to show cause against its issue. In other words, he must be allowed time to prove that the Court has gone wrong while deducing its conclusion as to his capacity to make payment, or the absence of just cause or his contumacy. The mere fact that some money has fallen into his hands which he has not paid is not enough to establish any of these factors. He may have valid reasons not to pay that amount and unless he is allowed to prove them, how can an executing Court come to the conclusion that he is liable to arrest or an appellate Court determine that the order is just and legal?

The question of onus is simple. A duty is in the first instance cast upon the decree-holder to bring circumstances on the record from which the Court may be in a position to draw its own inference as to the conditions laid down in the substantive part of the section. This burden may possibly be discharged, otherwise, as, for example, by the admission of the judgment-debtor that he owns some money or by other unimpeachable evidence that he owns it, but this, as remarked before, will not be conclusive. It will merely shift the onus on to the judgment-debtor to prove his immunity from arrest. It may further be observed that prior to the issue of the warrant in question, a further protection was afforded to debtors in the shape of the Punjab Debtors' Protection Act, which provides among other things that such portions of a judgment-debtor's land shall be exempted from temporary alienation as is necessary to provide for his maintenance and the maintenance of those who are dependent on him. Reading S. 34, Relief of Indebtedness Act, in the light of S. 5, Debtors' Protection Act, the inevitable conclusion is that if a debtor is able to prove that the produce of his land is hardly sufficient for the maintenance of himself and the other members of his family, his refusal to surrender that produce or the value thereof will not be without just cause or contumacious.

The executing Court in this case does not appear to have appreciated this position correctly and appears to have made up its mind at the very commencement of the case against the judgment-debtor. As stated above, his admission that he had realized some produce from his land or was in a position to realize it was not enough to prove his capacity to pay, absence of just cause and contumacy, simply because he failed to place the value of that produce at the disposal of the decree-holder. The attitude of the Court is all the more inexplicable as the judgment-debtor appears to have made repeated attempts to put it on the right track. The Courts are expected to administer the law as they find it, however repugnant to their notion of justice it might appear to be, and protective measures like these should be construed in a liberal spirit and not otherwise. The executing Court would now determine the issue before it in the light of these remarks and after paying due regard to all the mandatory provisions that the law lays down in the interest of judgment-debtors.

K.B./A.L.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 214

TEK CHAND AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Anjuman Imdadi Bank—Plaintiff—
Appellant.

v.

Ujagar Singh — Defendant —Respondent.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 30 of 1937,
Decided on 17th June 1937, from judgment
of Skemp J., D/- 6th January 1937.

Civil P. C. (1908), S. 47 — Execution — Application for temporary alienation of judgment-debtor's land — Mortgage created and mortgagee given possession but mortgage money not realized from mortgagee — Decree recorded as fully satisfied by mortgage — Subsequent suit by decree-holder against mortgagee held not barred by S. 47.

In execution of his decree the decree-holder applied for a temporary alienation of the land of the judgment-debtor. The land was attached and reference made to the Collector. A mortgage was created and the mortgagee given possession; but neither the executing Court nor the Collector realized the mortgage money from the mortgagee. On application of the judgment-debtor, the decree was recorded as completely satisfied by the creation of a valid mortgage even though the mortgagee tried to back out from the transaction. Subsequently the decree-holder filed a regular suit against the mortgagee for the money. It was contended by the mortgagee that the suit was barred by S. 47 :

Held that the mortgage was in the nature of a judicial hypothec which had satisfied completely the decree. If either of the parties to this hypothec wanted to enforce its rights against the other, the remedy was obviously by a regular suit and not in execution of the decree to which the mortgagee was not a party and which was already judicially satisfied. The decree having been held to have been satisfied, the question between the decree-holder and the mortgagee could not possibly be said to be one "relating to the execution discharge or satisfaction of the decree". This being so, no question of bar by S. 47 could arise.

[P 215 C 2 ; P 216 C 1]

Din Dayal Khanna—for Appellant.

Charanjiva Lal Aggarwal —

for Respondent.

Tek Chand J. — The sole question for determination in this appeal is whether the suit of the appellant, Anjuman Imdadi Bank, zemindara of mauza Khapar Kheri, District Amritsar, against Ujagar Singh, defendant-respondent, for recovery of Rs. 1098 is barred by S. 47, Civil P. C. In order to appreciate the point it is necessary to state briefly the relevant facts. In 1928 the plaintiff Anjuman obtained a decree against one Bhagat Singh for Rs. 1098. In proceedings in execution of this decree, the Anjuman applied for a temporary alienation of the land of the judgmentdebtor. The land was attached and a reference made to the Collector for suggesting the mode and terms of the temporary alienation. The proceedings were transferred by the Collector to the Tahsildar, before whom no suitable offer for mustajri was made, but Ujagar Singh respondent offered to take the land on mortgage undertaking to pay the decretal amount in full to the decree-holder. The Tahsildar considered this offer to be in the interests of the judgment-debtor, and supported it in his report to the Collector. The Collector in turn made a recommendation to the executing Court to accept the mortgage. The executing Court accepted the recommendation and sanctioned the mortgage. Possession of the land was accordingly given to Ujagar Singh and mutation duly effected in his favour as mortgagee. Neither the executing Court nor the Collector however took any steps to realize the mortgage money from Ujagar Singh. Some months later, Ujagar Singh applied that he did not want to pay the decretal amount and that the mutation be cancelled. The decree-holder raised no objection and the executing Court ordered the cancellation of the mutation. The judgment-debtor however had not been informed of these proceedings, and the order of cancellation had been passed behind his back. On coming to know of the order, he applied to the executing Court, objecting to the cancellation, and asking the Court to certify, under O. 21, R. 2, Civil P. C. that the decree had been satisfied by a binding mortgage in favour of Ujagar Singh. Ujagar Singh contested the application, urging that the mortgage was not binding on him, he having originally agreed to take it under a mistake as to the extent of the area mortgaged. The executing Court after a lengthy inquiry into the contentions of the parties, held that a valid mortgage had been created in favour of Ujagar Singh, that he had entered into possession of the land as mortgagee and that he could not back out of the transaction at that stage. It was accordingly held that the decree had been satisfied fully; the application of the judgment-debtor under O. 21, R. 2, was granted and the execution proceedings consigned to the record room as "completely satisfied." Ujagar Singh's appeal to the District Judge and second appeal to this Court were both unsuccessful: see O. A. 8 of 1932, decided by Bhide J. on 26th May 1932.

In the meantime, Ujagar Singh had continued in possession of the land, and had appropriated the rents and profits without paying anything to the decree-holder Anjuman. In July 1935, the Anjuman brought a suit against him for recovery of Rs. 1750 alleged to be due on foot of the mortgage above mentioned. Ujagar Singh resisted the suit on numerous grounds pleading inter alia that it was not maintainable under S. 47, Civil P. C. The trial Judge upheld this preliminary plea and dismissed the suit. On appeal, the learned District Judge came to a contrary conclusion; he accepted the appeal and remanded the case under O. 41, R. 23, Civil P. C. for decision on the merits. From his decree the defendant preferred a second appeal to this Court, which has been accepted by Skemp J. sitting in Single Bench and the suit dismissed as barred by S. 47. From this judgment the present appeal has been lodged under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent.

Before the learned Judge it was argued on behalf of the defendant-respondent that Ujagar Singh, being a mortgagee from the judgment-debtor, was his representative within the meaning of S. 47, Civil P. C., and therefore the claim of the decree-holder for recovery of the mortgage money from him was a matter which was exclusively determinable in execution proceedings. This contention appears to have been accepted by the learned Judge. Before us both counsel have cited rulings on the point as to whether a person to whom the property of the judgment-debtor has been mortgaged in the course of execution proceedings, is or is not a representative of the judgment-debtor. It is unnecessary to discuss these rulings or to decide this point, for, the first question that falls to be determined is whether the present claim of the appellant against the respondent is a matter relating to "the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree", within the meaning of S. 47. Now, as already stated, the decree obtained by the Anjuman against Bhagat Singh, had, after a lengthy inquiry under O. 21, R. 2, been held to have been duly satisfied by the creation of the mortgage in question. This order was upheld by the District Judge and the High Court as far back as 1932, in proceedings to which Ujagar Singh respondent, was a party. That finding is admittedly binding on him. The decree having been held to have been satisfied, the question now in issue between the appellant and Ujagar

Singh cannot possibly be said to be one "relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree". That order was passed upon the finding that a valid mortgage had been created in the course of the execution proceedings in favour of the respondent. This mortgage was in the nature of a judicial hypothec and indeed it was the creation of this hypothec which had satisfied completely the decree of the Anjuman against Bhagat Singh. If either of the parties to this hypothec now wanted to enforce its rights against the other, the remedy is obviously by a regular suit and not in execution of the decree to which Ujagar Singh was not a party, and which has been held judicially to have been satisfied several years ago. This being so, no question of bar by S. 47 can arise.

For these reasons, I would accept this appeal, set aside the judgment of the learned Judge in Chambers and restore that of the District Judge remanding the case under O. 41, R. 23, Civil P. C., for decision on the merits. Court-fee on this appeal will be refunded; other costs shall be costs in the cause. Both counsel have been directed to cause their respective clients to appear before Mr. Ghulam Rabhani Akhtar, Subordinate Judge, First Class, Amritsar, on 2nd August 1937 when a date for further proceedings in that Court will be fixed.

Abdul Rashid J.—I agree.

R.W./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 216

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Pokhar Das Ganga Ram

Convict—Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 800 of 1937, Decided on 21st October 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Mianwali, D/- 3rd July 1937.

(a) Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 540-A—Absence of accused—Trial is nullity—Exemption under S. 540-A—Provisions must be strictly complied with.

Normally, a trial in the absence of the accused is a nullity and it is only by virtue of S. 540-A that this consequence of the absence of the accused can be avoided: if the requirements of the section are not fulfilled, the trial remains a nullity. [P 216 C 2]

(b) Criminal Trial—Joint trial—One accused absent—Exemption granted illegal—Trial is vitiated.

Where eight accused are jointly tried and one of the accused is absent throughout the trial being granted an illegal exemption, the trial of other accused with that of the absentee being one and indivisible, the whole trial is vitiated.

[P 217 C 1]

Dr. Mohammad Alam — for Appellant.

Diwan Ram Lal, Advocate General — for Respondent.

Young C. J.—The seven appellants and Laiqa Ram (who was acquitted) were tried together for offences under Ss. 302 and 307, I. P. C. the seven appellants were convicted. The trial took place in the absence of Khem Chand, appellant, who was ill at the commencement of it. A few days before the trial commenced, the learned Judge summoned Khem Chand at Mianwali and in the presence of the Public Prosecutor, Khem Chand and his counsel, but in the absence of the other accused, made an order dispensing with the attendance of Khem Chand at the trial. The trial afterwards proceeded in the presence of all the appellants except Khem Chand, who was represented by counsel. Mr. Puri has raised an objection to the validity of the trial, on the ground that the power to dispense with the presence of an accused person is defined by S. 540-A, Criminal P. C., and that the learned Judge has not complied with the provisions of the section; and he has argued that the trial is wholly bad and the convictions of all the appellants ought to be set aside. Mr. Puri bases his argument on the wording of the section, which, he suggests, requires the presence of the accused "before the Court" as a condition precedent to an order dispensing with his attendance during the further proceedings. Mr. Puri emphasizes the requirement of the section that the trial must have commenced. The learned Advocate General, though stating that it might be argued that even the trial of Khem Chand was good, "for the purpose of argument" conceded that the trial so far as Khem Chand was concerned was bad. We ourselves have not been able to discover any ground for holding the trial of Khem Chand good. Normally, a trial in the absence of the accused is a nullity and it is only by virtue of S. 540-A that this consequence of the absence of the accused can be avoided: if the requirements of the section are not fulfilled, the trial remains a nullity. The learned Advocate-General sought to ignore the fact that Khem Chand had been tried with his co-accused: and argued that the trial should be treated as the trial of the other seven accused, the inclusion of Khem Chand being ignored: that the trial of each accused was a separate trial, and that eight trials were actually conducted at the same time. No authority for any such view of a joint trial was cited to us.

In the absence of such authority, we are constrained to hold that a joint trial is a single trial and cannot be considered as a separate trial of each person accused: it is one and indivisible. It follows, we think, that an illegality which vitiates the trial so far as one of the accused is concerned, prevents the trial from holding good in respect of the remaining accused. We have therefore no option but to hold the trial bad, and order the appellants to be retried by the Sessions Judge, Mianwali.

B.D./R.K.

Order accordingly.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 217

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Haveli Shah and others — Decree-holders—Appellants.

v.

Mt. Hussaina Jan and another — Judgment-debtors — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 37 of 1937, Decided on 8th December 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Rawalpindi, D./ 12th October 1936.

* Provincial Insolvency Act (1920), S. 44 (2)—Creditor holding mortgage decree against insolvent realising his security before order of discharge but not proving balance personally due after valuing security — Order of discharge releases insolvent from personal liability under mortgage.

Where a creditor holding a mortgage decree against the insolvent, realises his security before the order of discharge is passed, but does not value his security and prove the balance personally due from the insolvent, the order of discharge releases the insolvent from personal liability under the mortgage as it is a debt provable under the Act and the creditor cannot subsequently claim a personal decree for the balance against the insolvent. [P 218 C 2]

V. N. Sethi — for Appellants.

M. L. Sethi — for Respondents.

Judgment. — Haveli Shah, etc., obtained a decree against Hussaina Jan and Mt. Zohra Jan on a mortgage in favour of the decree-holders' father in respect of certain property, the mortgage deed being dated 14th February 1921. The principal amount of the mortgage was Rs. 1,00,000 and it was to carry compound interest at the rate of 15 per cent per annum with quarterly rests. The mortgage was with possession and the rent realized was to be appropriated towards interest. The mortgagees instituted the suit on their mortgage on 26th January 1925 the claim being then for Rs. 1,69,474-6-3. A preliminary decree was passed on 16th May 1928. According to the decree Rs. 1,54,375 were due on 16th May 1928, and it was further stated that on the sum of Rs. 1,00,000 interest at 15 per cent per annum would run until realization. Costs were also allowed. The money was not paid by the due date, i. e., by 16th June 1928, and a final decree was passed for sale of the property on 24th July 1928. A receiver was appointed to collect rents etc., before the property was sold and these rents have been paid to the decree-holders. The property was sold in 1932, but the sale was not confirmed till June 1934, the sale-certificate being issued on 6th July 1934, with respect to the bulk of the property. The decree-holders, although Rs. 1,18,345-8-0 had been realized by them, applied on 16th August 1935, for a personal decree for Rs. 2,42,318-13-9 with future interest against the two ladies. Various defences were raised. The trial Court held that the evidence produced by the decree-holders was insufficient to show what was due to them and that for this reason alone no personal decree could be passed. It further held that Mt. Zohra Jan, who is now a discharged insolvent, was protected by the Insolvency Act and could not be held personally liable for any amount. As regards Mt. Hussaina Jan, however it held that she would be personally liable had anything been found due. In the result a personal decree was refused and the decree-holders have appealed.

It is correct that the evidence produced by the decree-holders is most defective and the account produced by the servant of the decree-holders was certainly insufficient to prove that the large sum claimed was due. This account is printed at page 12 of the paper-book. It was admitted that Rs. 1,18,345-8-0 had been realized towards execution of the decree, most of it before 1934 or in that year. That means that in the year 1934 the principal sum of Rupees 1,00,000 had been paid and it was only this principal sum which bore interest. There could therefore be no interest after 1934. Upto the middle of 1934, counting interest and costs, the sum due comes to approximately Rs. 2,40,000 while certainly over Rs. 1,18,000 has been paid. This leaves a balance of about Rs. 1,22,000 due to the decree-holders, but in the absence of a proper account we think it will be safe to hold that only Rs. 1,00,000 remain due. This we do on account of the unsatisfactory nature of the evidence as to the exact sum due. This sum, of course, does not bear interest, as the principal which alone bore interest has been paid. For this sum Mt. Hussaina Jan is certainly liable and there must be a personal decree for this amount against her.

The only other question argued on behalf of the appellants was that Mt. Zohra Jan was also liable for this amount. She was declared insolvent during the execution proceedings, but was discharged by order, dated 2nd August 1934. By that time all the mortgaged property had been sold so that the decree-holders could have claimed in insolvency the amount which she was personally liable to pay. S. 34, Provincial Insolvency Act runs as follows:

34. (1) Debts which have been excluded from the schedule on the ground that their value is incapable of being fairly estimated and demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract or a breach of trust shall not be provable under this Act. (2) Save as provided by sub.s. (1), all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is adjudged an insolvent, or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such adjudication, shall be deemed to be debts provable under this Act.

Sub clause (2), it will be seen, is very wide and includes all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is adjudged an insolvent or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such adjudication. S. 47, Provincial Insolvency Act, deals with secured creditors. Sub-clause (1) lays down that where a secured creditor realizes his security, he may prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realized.

It will be seen in the present case that the decree-holders could have done this before the discharge order, dated 2nd

August 1934. Apart from that, sub-clause (2) lays down that:

Where a secured creditor relinquishes his security for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

This does not arise in the present case. But sub-clause (3) enacts that:

Where a secured creditor does not either realize or relinquish his security he shall, before being entitled to have his debt entered in the schedule, state in his proof the particulars of his security, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

Under S. 44 (2), Provincial Insolvency Act, save as otherwise provided by sub.s. (1) an order of discharge shall release the insolvent from all debts provable under that Act. In the circumstances described, this sub-section obviously applies to the present case, where not only had the security been realized before the date of discharge, but the decree-holders could have valued their security and proved for the balance personally due by the insolvent. Under these circumstances we hold that under S. 44 (2) the order of discharge released Mt. Zohra Jan from personal liability under the mortgage as that was a debt provable under the Act. The appeal must therefore fail as regards her. In the result we accept the appeal and direct that a personal decree be passed against Mt. Hussaina Jan to the extent of Rs. 1,00,000. Parties will bear their own costs.

R.M./R.K.

Order accordingly.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 218

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Ghulam Ahmad and another — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

*Nand Lal and others —
Defendants — Respondents.*

Letters Patent Appeal No. 66 of 1937, Decided on 25th October 1937, from decree of Bhide J., D/. 9th February 1937, reported in A I R 1937 Lah 940.

(a) Second Appeal—Finding of fact — Concurrent finding cannot be disturbed.

A concurrent finding of fact by the trial Court and the lower Appellate Court cannot be disturbed in second appeal. [P 219 C 1]

* (b) Minor — Guardian — Defence saving valuable property not taken — Guardian held guilty of gross negligence.

A guardian of a minor, who neglects to put forward a defence which saves a valuable property of the minor from alienation, is guilty of gross negligence. [P 219 C 1]

J. N. Aggarwal and Udai Bhan —
for Appellants.

Mehr Chand Mahajan and V. N. Sethi
— for Respondents.

Judgment. — This is a Letters Patent appeal from the judgment of a single Judge. The documents Ex. P. 7, dated 26th May 1916, Ex. P. 6, dated 30th March 1925, Ex. P. 2, dated 13th June 1926 and Ex. D 1, dated 27th November 1928, leave no doubt that only plot No. 1 was mortgaged to Nand Lal and that plot No. 2 shown in the plan Ex. L. C/1 was not mortgaged to him. There was a concurrent finding of fact by the trial Court and the lower Appellate Court on this question which was correctly arrived at. The single Judge therefore had no power in second appeal to alter this finding.

Further, there can be no doubt that a guardian of a minor, who neglects to put forward a defence which saves a valuable property of the minor from alienation, is guilty of gross negligence. In this respect also we agree with the trial Court and the lower Appellate Court and not with the single Judge of this Court.

The counsel for the appellants states that he will be content with the decree passed by the trial Court and this is accepted by the counsel for Nand Lal. We therefore accept this Letters Patent Appeal, set aside the decrees of the single Judge of this Court and of the lower Appellate Court, and grant the plaintiffs a decree declaring that plot No. 2 belongs to them and also give them a decree for possession of plot No. 2. The parties will bear their own costs throughout.

B.D./R.K. Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 219

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Simar Nath — Defendant — Petitioner.

v.

Lala Anand Lal Kaul, (now Mr. Khanna) Official Receiver — Plaintiff
— Respondent.

Civil Revn. No. 533 of 1937, Decided on 7th December 1937, from decree of Judge, Small Cause Court, Amritsar, D/. 12th April 1937.

(a) Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (1887), Sch. 2, Art. 31 — Suit for mesne profits even though for sum ascertained is excepted.

A suit for recovery of mesne profits, even though for a sum ascertained comes within the purview of Art. 31 and is excepted from the cognizance of the Court of Small Causes: A I R 1928 Rang 102 (F B); 8 I C 270; A I R 1933 Nag 87; A I R 1918 All 222; A I R 1933 Lah 509 and 25 Bom 85, Foll.; 23 Cal 884 (F B); 35 P R 1902, (F B); 94 P R 100; 32 Bom 560 and A I R 1927 Cal 375, Dissent. [P 219 C 2; P 220 C 1]

(b) Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (1887), Sch. 2, Art. 31 — Sums received on basis of sale — Sale set aside — Sum is wrongfully received within Art. 31.

The effect of annulment of a sale under S. 53, Provincial Insolvency Act, is to hold that no transaction had taken place at all, and any sum that the vendee receives by virtue of that transaction is received by him wrongfully within the meaning of Art. 31, Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. [P 220 C 2]

Nand Lal Bhalla — for Petitioner.

Shamsher Bahadur — for Respondent.

Din Mohammad J. — This is a petition for revision of the order of the Judge Small Cause Court, Amritsar, partially decreeing a claim for recovery of mesne profits against the petitioner. It is contended on behalf of the petitioner that the judgment of the Judge, Small Cause Court is not according to law, inasmuch as (i) he had no jurisdiction to try the suit, (ii) the suit was barred by limitation and (iii) the petitioner was in any circumstances legally entitled to retain part of the profits realised by him prior to the time when the sale in his favour was set aside. In our view it is not necessary to decide the last two questions as the petition can be disposed of on the short ground that the Judge Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit. Art. 31 of Sch. 2 to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (9 of 1887) reads as follows :

Any other suit for an account, including a suit by a mortgagor, after the mortgage has been satisfied, to recover surplus collections received by the mortgagee, and a suit for the profits on immovable property belonging to the plaintiff which have been wrongfully received by the defendant.

Counsel for the respondent contends that a suit for a sum ascertained does not come within the purview of Art. 31 and relies on 23 Cal 884,¹ 35 P R 1902,² 94 P R 1900,³ *32 Bom 560*⁴ and A I R 1927 Cal 375.⁵

1. Kunjo Behary Singh v. Madhub Chandra, (1896) 23 Cal 884 (F B).

2. Mt. Klehen Kaur v. Tulaa Singh, (1902) 35 P R 1902=84 P L R 1902 (F B).

3. Ishar Singh v. Wasawa Singh, (1900) 94 P R 1900=89 P L R 1901.

4. Kesri Sang v. Naransang, (1909) 82 Bom 560=10 Bom L R 788.

5. Srinath Roy v. Taraprasanna Roy, (1927) 14 A I R Cal 375=102 C 128=45 C L J 230.

These judgments no doubt support his contention, but there is a large array of authority on the other side too, as, for example, 6 Rang 60,⁶ 25 Mad 103,⁷ 8 I C 270,⁸ 141 I C 825,⁹ 40 All 142,¹⁰ A I R 1933 Lah 509¹¹ and 25 Bom 85.¹² The argument employed in the former set of cases is that the words "any other suit for an account" govern the latter part of the Article also and only those suits are excepted from the cognizance of the Small Cause Courts which contemplate a decree for account. The second set of authorities holds a contrary view mainly on the ground that claims to mesne profits directly involve title to immovable property and not incidentally and that the Legislature had properly excepted suits for mesne profits from the cognizance of the Courts of Small Causes.

With all respect, we do not agree with the construction put by 23 Cal 884¹ and other similar authorities on the wording of Art. 31 and are in respectful agreement with the opinion expressed in A I R 1933 Lah 509,¹¹ especially as the trend of authority in the High Courts of Bombay, Madras, Rangoon, Allahabad and Nagpur is also in the same direction. Some of the judgments cited above from these Courts have discussed the matter at length from every point of view and it would be a mere act of supererogation to recapitulate those arguments here. We hold therefore that the suit as instituted was excepted from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court.

It is next contended by counsel for the respondent that Art. 31 does not apply on another ground also viz. that the profits were not 'wrongfully' received by the defendant inasmuch as the sale not being void ab initio, the vendee had a perfect title up to the date when the sale was set aside. Here also we do not agree. A decision under S. 53, Provincial Insolvency Act, results in the annulment of the sale and if once the sale is annulled, it cannot be argued that any sum received on the basis of that sale was rightfully received by the defendant. In our view, the effect of the annulment is to hold that no transaction had taken place at all, and this being so, any sum that the vendee receives by virtue of that transaction is received by him wrongfully. We need not further dilate on the subject as this aspect of the case has also been dealt with in some of the judgments cited above.

On the grounds mentioned above, we accept the petition, set aside the order of the Judge, Small Cause Court and direct him to return the plaint to the plaintiff for presentation in a proper Court. The question whether the plaint so presented would not be affected by the provisions of the Limitation Act will be determined by the Court entertaining the suit. In view of there being a sharp conflict of authority in this matter, the parties will bear their own costs upto date.

V.B./R.K.

Order set aside.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 220

COLDSTREAM J.

Lal Chand — Judgment-debtor — Appellant.

v.

Sohan Lal and others — Auction-purchasers and Decree-holder — Respondents.

Exn. First Appeal No. 180 of 1937, Decided on 12th July 1937, from order of Senior Sub-Judge, Amritsar, D/- 8th May 1937.

* Civil P. C. (1908), O. 39, R. 1—Temporary injunction under and stay of execution—Distinction between—Sale in contravention of injunction under O. 39, R. 1 is not nullity as in case of stay order.

A temporary injunction under the provisions of Rule 1, O. 39, is not a stay order issued by a Court competent to stay execution proceedings under any provision of the Code authorizing such an order. The effect of non-compliance with an injunction issued under O. 39, R. 1 is to make the offender liable to the punishment prescribed in O. 39, R. 2 (3) and a completed sale in contravention of an injunction under O. 39, R. 1 is not a nullity as being without jurisdiction. A temporary injunction under O. 39, is not a mandatory direction to a Court, as is a stay order of the kind provided for by the Procedure Code, but is an order directed against a particular person which can be issued only in the circumstances described in R. 1 : A I R 1920 Nag 12 ; A I R 1930 Lah 858 and A I R 1925 Lah 644, Rel. on; A I R 1932 Lah 515 and A I R 1925 Oudh 424, Dissent. ; A I R 1935 Lah 694 and A I R 1933 Rang 416. Ref. [P 221 C 2]

6. U Min Din v. U Po Thaung, (1928) 15 A I R Rang 102=109 I C 689=6 Rang 60 (F B).

7. Savari Muthu v. Althurusu Rowthar, (1902) 25 Mad 103=11 M L J 428 (F B).

8. Nand Rani v. Swasha Neshwar, (1910) 8 I C 270.

9. Dukreya Mehra v. Muktee Mahrin, (1933) 20 A I R Nag 87=141 I C 825=29 N L R 61.

10. Drig Pal Singh v. Kunjal, (1918) 5 A I R All 222=44 I C 689=40 All 142=16 A L J 55.

11. Ubedul Rahman v. Darbari Lal, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 509=146 I C 845=84 P L R 262.

12. Antone v. Mahadev, (1901) 25 Bom 85=2 Bom L R 688.

Charanjiv Lal Aggarwal—for Appellant.
 Faqir Chand Mital and A. R. Kapur
 — for Respondent 1.
 Respondent 2 in person.
 Mehr Chand Mahajan —
for Respondent 3.

Judgment.—On 11th April 1930 the Punjab and Sindh Bank Ltd., Amritsar, obtained a mortgage decree for Rupees 41,709.15.9 against Lal Chand. Execution was attempted in the same year but was delayed by another suit until 1934 when execution proceedings were revived. Lal Chand was allowed time for a private settlement but effected none. Ultimately the mortgaged property, a house and a shop, were put to sale on 23rd and 25th October 1935 by which time the debt had increased to over Rs. 51,000. Meanwhile on 2nd October a declaratory suit had been instituted by a firm Nand Lal Radha Kishan against the Bank relating to the execution of a decree of Rs. 1000. They managed to secure ex parte a temporary injunction in the Court of the Subordinate Judge First Class staying the sale of the house and shop and on 25th just before the sale was being concluded, they presented a copy of the stay order to the Manager of the Bank. A rodkar asking the executing Court (that of the Senior Sub-Judge) to stay the sale was received by the executing Court at 3.55 P. M. The Court did not stay the sale but concluded it at 4.57 P. M. The house was sold for Rs. 8000 and the shop for Rs. 17,700. The purchasers paid up the price. They have not yet succeeded in obtaining possession of the property and their money had been lying useless for more than 18 months pending the disposal of objections submitted by Lal Chand, Nand Lal, Radha Kishan and another under O. 21, R. 91, Civil P. C. The objections were disallowed by the executing Court by an order passed on 8th May 1937. The present appeal is by Nand Lal alone against that order.

Several of the objections raised in the executing Court related to alleged irregularities in the publication of the notice of sale. The appellant's counsel has stated that he does not press these but confines his appeal to the grounds that the sale was void as it was concluded in defiance of the injunction issued by the Subordinate Judge First Class and that the conduct of the executing Court, in continuing the sale after it was known that the injunction had been obtained, resulted in substantial injury to the appellant. Here I may notice that a petition for revision of the executing Court's order refusing to have regard to the injunction was presented to this Court but was dismissed by Skemp J. on 28th January 1937 (Civil Revision No. 871 of 1936) on the grounds that it had become infructuous because the Court issuing the injunction had withdrawn it, and the suit in which it had been issued had been dismissed. I am informed, I may add, by respondents' counsel that Lal Chand attempted unsuccessfully to have the bank manager punished under the provisions of O. 39, R. 2 (3), Civil P. C. In support of his contention that the sale was void, counsel has relied upon A I R 1925 Oudh 424,¹ A I R 1932 Lah 515,² A I R 1935 Lah 694³ and A I R 1933 Rang 416.⁴

A temporary injunction under the provisions of R. 1, O. 39, Civil P. C., is not a stay order issued by a Court competent to stay execution proceedings under any provision of the Code authorizing such an order. Such an order can be passed for example by the executing Court (O. 21, Rr. 29 and 83) or by an Appellate Court (O. 41, R. 5) or perhaps by a High Court in exercise of its inherent powers. The effect of non-compliance with an injunction issued under O. 39 is to make the offender liable to the punishment prescribed in sub-r. 3 of R. 2 of that Order and so far as I know, that is the only effect, and I can find no statutory authority for the proposition that a completed sale in contravention of an injunction under O. 39, R. 1 is a nullity. A temporary injunction under O. 39 is not a mandatory direction to a Court, as is a stay order of the kind provided for by the Procedure Code, but is an order directed against a particular person which can be issued only in the circumstances described in R. 1. Had it been the intention of the Legislature that a Court sale effected while an injunction under O. 39 was in force should be a nullity the statute would surely have been made this clear, as it has made it clear in S. 64 of the Code that a private alienation

1. Sitapat Ram v. Mahabir Prasad, A I R 1925 Oudh 424=88 I C 582=2 O W N 315.
2. Sri Mandar Das v. Atmaram, A I R 1932 Lah 515=189 I C 842=88 P L R 667.
3. Nihal Chand v. Shah Dev Singh, A I R 1935 Lah 694=160 I C 838.
4. Ma Ti v. Ma Tait, A I R 1933 Rang 416=147 I C 700=11 Rang 410.

of property under attachment is void. It is to be noted in passing that S. 64 does not make such a private alienation void but merely provides that it shall be void as against all claims enforceable under the attachment. In the present case the injunction was not for the benefit of Lal Chand but for the supposed protection of a third party (although of course the circumstances point to collusion between that party and Lal Chand in order to defeat the decree-holder bank).

It is true that a different view was apparently taken by Broadway A. C. J. in A I R 1932 Lah 515² where it was held that an executing Court acted without jurisdiction in disregarding an injunction staying a sale. With great respect, I am not convinced that a sale in contravention of an injunction is a nullity as being without jurisdiction, even if it be conceded that the Court would have acted properly in postponing the auction. A I R 1935 Lah 694³ deals with a case where a postponement order had been regularly issued by the executing Court and has no applicability here. A I R 1933 Rang 416⁴ also relates to a case of a stay order issued by the executing Court. The judgment of the Oudh Court in A I R 1925 Oudh 424¹ is certainly in favour of counsel's contention but if it lays down correctly that a sale by an executing Court was a nullity under the existing Code when effected in face of an injunction, it is difficult to see why it was necessary to amend Rule 1 of O. 39 as the Oudh Court has done so as to provide specifically for an injunction being issued by a Court trying a suit restraining a Court from executing a decree by sale of the suit property. (The Amended Rule will be found printed at pp. 252-3 of Chitaley's Code of Civil Procedure, Edn. 2).

My own view is that the sale was not without jurisdiction and a nullity; in taking this view I am fortified I think by the remarks of the Nagpur Judicial Commissioner in 54 I C 928⁵ and by Tek Chand J. in 128 I C 304.⁶ See also 6 Lah 380.⁷ Assuming that the executing Court ought not to have proceeded with the auction after 3.30 P. M. on the second day of the sale and that its action in doing so made the sale materially irregular it has to be seen whether the lower Court has wrongly found it not proved that in consequence of the continuance of the sale and the manner in which it was conducted the appellant sustained substantial damage.

I have been taken through the evidence by the appellant's counsel, and after considering it, I am in complete agreement with the conclusion of the learned Senior Subordinate Judge that it does not establish that the property was sold for less than its value or that had the sale not been carried to completion, a larger price would have been obtained for the property. The learned Subordinate Judge described and discussed the evidence in detail. That of the witnesses who say they were prepared to pay more than the property fetched has properly been rejected as worthless for the reasons given in the judgment. The mere prolongation of the auction manifestly could not injure the judgment-debtor. The sale on 25th was begun in the Court compound and continued in the presence of the Judge himself in his Court. From this fact no prejudice to the judgment-debtor can be assumed. The record of the bids produced by the Court auctioneer is regular, nothing suspicious in it is suggested and there is no reason to reject the evidence of the decree-holder's witnesses that the sale was regularly conducted to the finish. As regards the price it is notorious that at Court auctions, bidders are shy to risk their money in view of the astonishing facilities afforded by the practice of the Courts for delaying satisfaction of decrees by sale of property. In this case however there is no good reason for believing that the property was sold for less than its real value. In 1934 when execution proceedings were revived and the judgment-debtor appeared in Court resisting execution and asked for time to effect a private settlement, he stated that he had succeeded in finding prospective buyers who were prepared to pay Rupees 15,000 for the shop and Rs. 7500 for the house and that if they were put to auction they would fetch much less. It is true that the decree-holder's notice valued the property at a considerably higher price but in view of the judgment-debtor's own estimate it is clearly impossible to hold it proved that the judgment-debtor sustained substantial injury by the sale of the properties at what they ultimately fetched.

5. Dharamchand v. Mitsui Bussan Kaisha & Co., A I R 1920 Lah 12=54 I C 928.

6. Darbari Ram v. Ghulam Farid-Fazal Karim, A I R 1930 Lah 858=128 I C 804.

7. Bell Ram & Bros. v. Ram Lal, A I R 1925 Lah 644=90 I C 987=6 Lah 380.

The decree-holder's counsel Mr. Mehr Chand has stated deliberately in Court that the judgment-debtor has no other property of any kind out of which the decree can be satisfied. The statement he is prepared to support by an affidavit of his client and the appellant's counsel cannot deny its truth. It is clear therefore that Lal Chand cannot himself profit by resale, for admittedly his debt now far exceeds the value of the property. Mr. Mehr Chand has made an offer in Court to the judgment-debtor that he is ready to give Lal Chand credit for Rs. 30,000 or even Rs. 32,000 (at which amount Lal Chand now values his property) if Lal Chand will hand over the property to a receiver for resale. This offer Lal Chand's counsel has rejected and it is obvious that Lal Chand's only object in prolonging the execution proceedings is to retain possession of his property. Lal Chand's objections were not in good faith nor is there any honest purpose in this appeal. I dismiss the appeal with costs.

K.B./R.K.

*Appeal dismissed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 223

JAI LAL J.

Messrs. Kidar Nath Ram Chandra — Defendant — Petitioner.

v.

Secretary of State — Plaintiff —
Respondent.

Civil Revn. Petn. No. 777 of 1936, Decided on 23rd February 1937, from order of Addl. Dist. Judge, Lahore, D/- 24th June 1936.

(a) Arbitration—Validity—Agreement between Military Department and contractor providing that disputes between parties are to be referred to arbitration of sanctioning authority—No mention made, as to by whom reference is to be made—Reference by any officer of department and to the officer holding appointment of sanctioning authority is perfectly valid

Where an agreement between a Military Department and a contractor provides that in case of a dispute between the parties as to the subject matter of the contract, the same is to be referred to the arbitration of the sanctioning authority but does not say by whom the reference is to be made, in absence of any indication in the contract that the reference should be made by a particular officer a reference by any officer of the department is competent. So also where the reference has to be made not to the person sanctioning the contract but to the officer who might be holding the appointment of sanctioning authority at the time of the dispute a reference to the officer who happens to hold such appointment at the time of the dispute is perfectly valid. [P 224 C 2]

(b) Arbitration — Validity — Judicial misconduct—Party is entitled to know details of claim preferred against him—Aggrieved party not ignorant of nature of claim against him—Details of claim supplied to him on date of hearing — Failure by arbitrator to allow him further opportunity to meet the case does not amount to judicial misconduct.

Although ordinarily a litigant appearing as a party before an arbitrator is entitled to know the details of the claim which has been preferred against him, yet where it appears that the aggrieved party was not ignorant of the nature of the claim against him when he appeared before him and was supplied with the details of the claim on the date of the hearing, mere failure by the arbitrator to allow the party further opportunity to meet the case set up against him does not amount to judicial misconduct on the part of the arbitrator and the conclusion of the lower Appellate Court on the point cannot be attacked in revision.

[P 224 C 2 ; P 225 C 1]

Jagan Nath Aggarwal and Faqir Chand Mital — for Petitioner.

Anant Ram Khosla — for Respondent.

Order. — On 12th May 1933, the petitioner took a contract for the supply of fodder to Camel Units in the Lahore Military District. The agreement was signed on the same day and was sanctioned by Major Penrose Welsted, Deputy Director of Grass Farms, and signed by him in token of his sanction. On the ground that the petitioner had failed to keep to his agreement, the contract was subsequently cancelled, and on the petitioner making a demand for his alleged dues on account of supplies made by him a counter-claim was preferred against him by the Military Department for the sum of Rs. 3219-9-0. This claim was for the first time communicated to him on 30th March 1935, by means of a letter sent to him by Major Penrose Welsted, who was then officiating as Director of Farms. In that letter he intimated to the petitioner that he had been asked to decide a claim preferred against the petitioner by the Assistant Director of Grass Farms, No. 2 Circle, Lahore Cantonment, and that he had fixed 23rd April 1935, at 11 A. M. at Lahore Cantonment for deciding the case. He also intimated to the petitioner that if he failed to appear at the time appointed, he would proceed with the case in his absence. This letter was written in pursuance of an appointment of Major Penrose Welsted, as arbitrator. It appears from this letter that the matter was referred to him for arbitration by the Assistant Director of Grass Farms who at the time happened to be Lieutenant Colonel Crawford. Clause 20 of the agreement reads as follows :

Any dispute or difference arising out of this contract, settlement of which is not herein provided for, shall be referred to the arbitration of the officer sanctioning the contract, whose decision shall be final and binding.

On receipt of the letter of 30th March 1935, the petitioner made an application to the arbitrator to summon some documents and witnesses which he intended to produce before the arbitrator. On 17th April 1935, a reply was sent to him by the Assistant Director of Grass Farms that an attempt would be made to produce the witnesses who were employed in the department at the date of the hearing but that the arbitrator had no power to summon any other witnesses who should be produced by the petitioner if he required their evidence. On 23rd April 1935, when the case came up for hearing before the arbitrator, the petitioner raised a question that he had not been supplied with the details of the claim by the Military Department. It appears that on that day some details of the claim were supplied to him and on the same day, in spite of his prayer for an adjournment of the case, the arbitrator proceeded to arbitration and gave an award against the petitioner.

An application was then made on behalf of the Secretary of State for India in Council to the Subordinate Judge to file this award but the learned Judge declined to file it holding that the arbitrator had been guilty of judicial misconduct. On appeal to the Additional District Judge of Lahore, this order of the learned Subordinate Judge was set aside and it was held that there was no judicial misconduct on the part of the arbitrator who had conducted himself in a proper and businesslike manner. The consequence was that the award was ordered to be filed and a decree passed in accordance therewith. This is a petition for revision of the order of the learned Additional District Judge. I have heard counsel on both sides. Only three questions are raised before me. First that the reference by Colonel Crawford was illegal; secondly that the reference being made to Major Penrose Welsted who at the time of the arbitration proceedings was acting as Director of Farms, was illegal, and thirdly that the decision of the Court below that there was no judicial misconduct was erroneous and that in fact the arbitrator was guilty of judicial misconduct, his proceedings being opposed to natural justice.

The agreement does not provide by whom a reference has to be made. It only says that if there is a dispute between the parties as to the subject matter of the contract, the same shall be referred to arbitration of the sanctioning authority. The reference in this case was made by the Assistant Director of Grass Farms. There is no contention that this officer had nothing to do with the contract in question, therefore, in the absence of any indication in the contract that the reference should be made by a particular officer a reference by any officer of the department, in my opinion, was competent in this case. Reference has been made to the rules framed by the Government regarding the conduct of Government litigation. Those rules, in my opinion, have no bearing on the question of reference to arbitration. They only refer to conduct of litigation by or on behalf of the Government or the Government Departments in Courts.

With regard to the second contention, it appears that when the contract was cancelled, there had been a re-organization of the department and the post of the Deputy Director of Farms was abolished and the work up to then done by the Deputy Director was assigned partially to the Assistant Director and partially to the Director of Farms. It is expressly provided in the scheme of re-organization that the sanctioning of the contracts has to be done by the Director of Farms. Therefore the Director of Farms became the successor of the Deputy Director of Farms as the sanctioning authority and it is conceded by counsel on both sides that the reference has to be made not to the person who sanctioned the contract but to the officer who might be holding the appointment of the sanctioning authority at the time of the dispute. A reference therefore in this case to the Director of Farms, who happened to be at the time Major Penrose Welsted was perfectly valid.

On the third question, though I am not prepared to agree with the conclusion of the Additional District Judge that the proceedings of the arbitrator were absolutely businesslike, I am unable to hold at the same time that judicial misconduct has been proved in this case. It is true that ordinarily a litigant appearing as a party before an arbitrator is entitled to know the details of the claim which has been preferred against him, but the correspondence in this case indicates that the petitioner was not ignorant of the nature of the claim when he appeared before the arbitrator, and this is obvious from his letter of 13th April 1935 in which he specified the documents and the witnesses whom he wanted to be summoned in support of his case. The information that he required from these witnesses and the documents mentioned indicate a knowledge of the nature of claim of the Government against the petitioner. The arbitrator however has not proceeded on this ground as on 23rd April 1935 he supplied the petitioner with details of the claim of the Government and then proceeded to give his award on the same day. In my opinion he should have given the petitioner further opportunity to meet the case set up against him, but I am unable to hold that his failure to do so amounted to judicial misconduct in the present case. The conclusion of the learned Additional District Judge on this point cannot be attacked on revision. I therefore dismiss this petition but in the circumstances I leave the parties to bear their own costs of these proceedings throughout.

R.M./R.K.

Petition dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 225

JAI LAL AND DALIP SINGH JJ.

Risaldar Ali Shan Khan and another —Plaintiffs—Appellants.

v.

Ahmad Nawaz Khan — Defendant—
Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 1372 of 1936, Decided on 7th October 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Jhelum, D/- 19th May 1936. Limitation Act (1908), S. 13 — Secunderabad cantonment is under British administration—Party residing in cantonment area —Period of limitation is not saved.

Although Secunderabad cantonment is not within British India, yet it is under the administration of Government of India. Hence a party's residence at Balram in Secunderabad cantonment will not help him in saving limitation under S. 13 : 21 Cal 177 and A I R 1938 P C 134, Rel. on. (P 225 C 2)

L. M. Datta and Anant Ram Khosla —
for Appellants.

M. Khurshid Zaman — for Respondent.

Dalip Singh J.—In this case the plaintiffs brought the usual declaratory suit alleging that the gift by one Faqir Khan, 1938 L/29 & 30 their fathers' brother, to one other brother's son was ineffectual and void as against them. Various issues were raised which need not now concern us, but the suit was dismissed inter alia on the ground that it was barred by limitation. The plaintiffs had admittedly brought this suit more than six years after the date of the alienation in question, but they pleaded extension of time under S. 13, Limitation Act, on the ground that the defendant had been absent from British India during a period of the six years.

The facts proved, however, are that the defendant was stationed with his regiment in Balram. Balram forms a part of the area of Secunderabad Cantonment and the evidence of the Officer Commanding is that Secunderabad Cantonment is under the administration of the Government of India. Now S. 13, Limitation Act, lays down not only that the defendant will be absent from British India but also from the territories beyond British India under the administration of the Government. In 21 Cal 177,¹ which was approved by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 142 I O 552,² it was pointed out that the administration of Secunderabad Cantonment was in British hands but the territory on which the Cantonment is located had never been ceded by the Nizam of Hyderabad or acquired by conquest by the British Government, the sovereignty of the territory still vested in the Nizam of Hyderabad, and therefore Secunderabad Cantonment was not within British India. This, however, is a totally different question from whether Secunderabad Cantonment is a territory beyond the British India which is under the administration of the Government of India. It is clear from the answers given to the interrogatories by the Officer Commanding at Secunderabad and the notification mentioned in 21 Cal 177¹ that Secunderabad Cantonment is under the administration of the Government of India.

The plaintiffs therefore cannot claim any extension of time under S. 13, Limitation Act, and their suit being barred by limitation was rightly dismissed and the appeal must be dismissed with costs.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

1. Hossain Ali Mirza v. Abid Ali Mirza, (1894) 21 Cal 177.

2. Anantapadmanabhaswami v. Official Receiver of Secunderabad, (1933) 20 A I R P C 134 = 142 I O 552 = 60 I A 167 = 56 Mad 405 (P O).

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 226

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Gopi Chand — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Khazan Chand and others —Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1640 of 1936, Decided on 25th November 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Sialkot, D/- 20th July 1936.

* Arbitration Act (1899), S. 2 — Award relating to mortgaged property situated at Sialkot—Amritsar Court has no jurisdiction to make order filing award.

Though S. 2, Arbitration Act, does not expressly refer to the provision of the law contained in S. 16, Civil P. O. the implication is obvious when it states where the suit could be instituted.

[P 227 C 1]

Where mortgaged property which was involved in the award is situated at Sialkot, the Court of the District Judge at Amritsar has no jurisdiction to make an order filing the award, inasmuch as if the subject matter submitted to arbitration were the subject of a suit, the suit could not be instituted at Amritsar.

[P 227 C 1]

Lala Achhru Ram — for Appellant.

J. N. Aggarwal and Mehr Chand Mahajan — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — This appeal has arisen in the following circumstances: The firm Hira Singh Gopal Singh was a firm of commission agents working at Amritsar. Hereinafter this firm will be called defendant 3. The firm Bhagat Ram Mangal Sain, hereinafter called defendant 4, was working at Sialkot and entered into some sort of grain transactions with defendant 3. On 2nd November 1932, Bhagat Ram, proprietor of defendant 4, executed a deed, Ex. P.3, in favour of defendant 3, in which he admitted his liability to pay Rs. 5000 to defendant 3 and further stated that he had deposited three title deeds relating to his immovable property with defendant 3 by way of equitable mortgage. One of the conditions of business between defendant 3 and defendant 4 was that in case any disputes arose between the parties, they would be settled under the Arbitration Act 9 of 1899. Disputes did arise and they were consequently referred to arbitration under the provisions of the Arbitration Act, into the details of which it is not necessary to enter. Suffice it to say that an award was made on 12th June 1933 and a notice of it was also personally served on defendant 4 on 12th July 1933. On 18th July 1933, the award was filed in the Court of the District Judge, Amritsar. Defendant 3 applied for transfer of the award to Sialkot with a view to execute it there. The application was allowed and the execution proceedings started at Sialkot. Notice under O. 21, R. 66, Civil P. C., was issued and served personally on defendant 4 on 12th November 1933. A regular sale of the property followed on 7th March 1934 and the sale which covered the house in dispute was confirmed on 14th April 1934 in favour of one Gopi Chand who was the plaintiff in the Court below and is the appellant before us.

In the meantime, on 11th June 1933, defendant 4 had mortgaged the equity of redemption of the house in dispute to the firm Raja Ram Jai Parkash, hereinafter called defendant 2, for Rs. 1925. The document evidencing the mortgage was registered on 8th July 1933. On 4th February 1934, defendant 2 and defendant 4 agreed to refer to arbitration the disputes that arose between them in relation to this mortgage. On 21st February 1934, an award was made stating that defendant 3 had no priority in respect of his mortgage. On 27th February 1934, this award was made a rule of the Court and, on 2nd May 1934 the house in dispute was once more sold to Khazan Chand who was defendant 1 in the Court below. On 11th June 1934, the sale in his favour was confirmed. On 11th June 1935, the suit out of which this appeal has arisen, was instituted by Gopi Chand against defendants 1 to 4, and was for possession of the house in dispute. It may be remarked that on 22nd June 1935 defendant 1 resold the house to defendant 2.

Various pleas were raised by the contesting defendants on which as many as 15 issues were framed covering all questions of law and fact that could possibly arise in the case. The Subordinate Judge decreed the suit against defendants 1, 2 and 4, and further burdened them with the plaintiff's costs. Dissatisfied with that decision, defendant 2 appealed to the District Judge who accepted the appeal and reversing the decision of the Subordinate Judge, dismissed the plaintiff's suit. He however ordered that the parties should bear their own costs throughout. Thereupon the plaintiff appealed to this Court and the appeal has been referred to us for disposal. Various questions of law have been raised before us but in our view this appeal can be disposed of on the short-ground that the Court of the District Judge, Amritsar, had no jurisdiction whatsoever to make an order filing the award. By S. 2 of Act 9 of 1899, the Act applied only in those cases, where, if the subject matter submitted to arbitration were the subject of a suit, the suit could, whether with leave or otherwise, be instituted in a Presidency town.

By the Proviso annexed to this Section, the Local Government is empowered to declare the Act applicable in any other local area as if it were a Presidency town. It is common ground that the Act has been declared to be applicable to the town of Amritsar. By S. 16, Civil P. C., any suit for foreclosure, sale or redemption in the case of a mortgage of or charge upon immovable property can only be instituted in the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property is situate, and though S. 2, Arbitration Act, does not expressly refer to this provision of the law, the implication is obvious when it states where the suit could be instituted. The immovable property which was involved in the award was admittedly situated at Sialkot and any suit enforcing any encumbrance against it could only be instituted in Sialkot and not anywhere else. Consequently by S. 2, Arbitration Act, the Court of the District Judge at Amritsar had no jurisdiction to make an order filing the award, inasmuch as if the subject matter submitted to arbitration were the subject of a suit, the suit could not be instituted at Amritsar. There was thus a lack of inherent jurisdiction in the Court ordering the filing of the award as the award was incompetent under the Arbitration Act and was altogether void. This being so, all subsequent proceedings taken in connexion therewith were without jurisdiction and have no effect in law. The plaintiff having acquired his rights on the basis of this award, cannot be said to have acquired any such title as can be protected or enforced in law. There is abundant authority in support of the proposition that the defendants were entitled in this suit to raise pleas on this ground and this is practically conceded by the plaintiff.

We accordingly dismiss the appeal and uphold the decree of the lower Appellate Court dismissing the plaintiff's suit though on a different ground. In the peculiar circumstances of the case however, we leave the parties to bear their own costs before us.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 227

BHIDE J.

on difference between

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Rura and another — Plaintiffs—

Appellants.

v.

Banta and others — Defendants—

Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1604 of 1936, Decided on 4th October 1937.

* (a) Limitation — Starting point — Fresh invasion of right amounting to repetition of old invasion—No distinction between new invasion and repetition of old one. (Per Skemp J.)

Every invasion of right although it might be a repetition of the old one gives a new cause of action with a new starting point of limitation. The distinction between a fresh invasion and a repetition of a previous invasion is a distinction without a difference. [P 228 C 2; P 229 C 1]

(b) Res judicata—Co-defendants — Suit by K for his share against J and X—J ex parte—Suit decided in K's favour with reliance on particular pedigree table — J in possession of property—Application by X for shares, relying on another pedigree table—Suit by J against X for declaration that X was entitled to shares only under table relied on in K's suit—As J was absent in K's suit, and as point was not necessary between J and X, K's suit did not operate as res judicata.

(Per Bhide and Dalip Singh JJ., Skemp J. Contra)—To establish res judicata between co-defendants it should be established that there should be conflict of interests between co-defendants; that it should have been necessary to decide that conflict in order to give plaintiff the relief which he claimed; that the question between the co-defendants must have been finally decided : A I R 1931 P C 114, Rel. on.

[P 231 C 2]

In a suit by K for partition against J and X, J who was in possession of the entire property did not put in any appearance and it was decided that K was entitled to a certain share in accordance with a particular pedigree table. Thereafter X put in applications for their shares under a different pedigree table, whereupon J brought a suit for a declaration that X would be entitled to those shares only which were in accordance with the pedigree table relied on in K's suit, which fact being disputed by X, J claimed that that point was res judicata as between J and X both being co-defendants in K's suit :

Held that the question of preference between the two pedigree tables was neither raised nor decided as between the co-defendants in K's suit, nor was it necessary to decide that in that suit, hence decision in K's suit was not res judicata in favour of J in his suit against X : A I R 1931 P C 114, Disting.

[P 231 C 2]

Aohhru Ram and Indar Dev —

for Appellants.

D. N. Aggarwal and Ram Lal Anand I

— for Respondents.

Skemp J.—The land in suit measuring 167 kanals 17 marlas originally belonged to one Ruldu who died sometime between the Settlements of 1850 and 1885. Ruldu was childless and it devolved by inheritance on various of his collaterals one after another and finally on Mt. Tabo, widow of Bhupa, the last collateral. Mt. Tabo was in possession at the Settlement of 1885 and did not die till 1918. Since her death, there have been no less than five suits about this land, mostly because the pedigree tables of 1850 and 1885 are at variance with each other. On the death of Mt. Tabo, the land passed by mutation to the various collaterals of Bhupa who shared in accordance with the pedigree table of 1850. The mutation was sanctioned on 12th January 1921. On 23rd August 1921, one Jhandu whose name will become familiar, brought a suit for a declaration that the entire land had been gifted to him by Mt. Tabo. The suit was dismissed and so was the appeal. The Subordinate Judge's judgment is not on the record but it was dismissed by the District Judge on the ground that the gift was not proved. The District Judge made some remarks that the pedigree table of 1850 was to be preferred to the latter one, but these are clearly obiter. On 26th June 1924, Jhandu brought a second suit for a declaration that he was entitled to 1/108th share in the property in accordance with the pedigree table of 1885. The suit was dismissed by Sheikh Laiq Ali, Subordinate Judge, on the ground—in my opinion erroneous—that the decision about the comparative value of the pedigree table was res judicata. Jhandu appealed to the District Judge and Colonel Roe, District Judge, on 18th October 1925, dismissed the appeal. His main finding was that the suit was barred by the provisions of O. 2, R. 2, Civil P. C. but in the last sentence of his judgment he referred to res judicata.

Apparently Jhandu had been up to this time in possession of the entire area of 167 Kanals 17 Marlas, but after Colonel Roe's decision the other share-holders applied for partition in accordance with the mutation of 1921. The plaintiff objected and was referred to a Civil Court. He instituted a third suit in the Court of Sheikh Hamid Asghar, Subordinate Judge, where he sought that the shares should be determined by the pedigree table of 1885 and based his cause of action on the defendants' application for partition. This suit was dismissed by Sheikh Hamid Asghar on the ground that the plaintiff already had more than he would be entitled to under the pedigree table of 1885. No appeal was lodged. The fourth suit was lodged by one Kala Singh, who is one of the parties to the present case relying on the pedigree table of 1885. The Subordinate Judge relied on the pedigree table of the earlier Settlement and dismissed the suit on the merits. Kala Singh appealed to the Court of the learned District Judge and Khan Zaka-ud-Din accepted the appeal and relying on the pedigree table of 1885 granted Kala Singh a decree for 1/12th share.

After the decision of this suit, the other parties made a second claim for partition on the basis of the mutation of 1921 and on the 10th April 1934, Jhandu brought the present suit for a declaration that the defendants could not claim in partition proceedings any shares greater than those they were entitled to according to the pedigree table of 1885. On the issues, the trial Judge found that the plaintiff had a locus standi to sue, that the pedigree table of 1885 was to be preferred, that the plaintiff's conduct did not operate as an estoppel but that the suit was barred by the rule of res judicata owing to the judgment of Colonel Roe. The plaintiff appealed and the learned District Judge allowed new points to be raised. He framed an additional issue: Did the decision in Kala Singh's case operate as res judicata in favour of the plaintiff-appellants and also allowed arguments on the points whether the suit before Sheikh Hamid Asghar operated as res judicata, and on limitation. He found that the suit was barred by limitation, that the plaintiff had no cause of action on account of the decision of Sheikh Hamid Asghar. He further held that Colonel Roe's judgment operated as res judicata and that Khan Zaka-ud-Din's judgment in Kala Singh's case would also operate as res judicata in favour of the present plaintiff. But in view of his findings as to cause of action and limitation he dismissed the appeal. The plaintiffs have come here in second appeal.

In my view the decision of the learned District Judge with regard to limitation is erroneous. He admitted that if Jhandu was in possession the second invasion of his rights would give him a further right of action but he took the view that the second application for partition in accordance with the mutation of 1921 was not a fresh invasion of Jhandu's rights but a repetition of the first invasion. The distinction between a fresh invasion and a repetition of a previous invasion is, in my opinion, a distinction without a difference. The inhabitants of North-West India would not be much concerned whether Nadir Shah's subsequent invasions were repetitions of his previous invasion or fresh invasions. The application which led to Jhandu's last suit was not made in the same partition proceedings as those which led to the previous suit but was a subsequent application for partition and therefore there was, in my opinion, a fresh invasion of Jhandu's title which he had a right to repel, and the suit is within time.

As to the ground that the result in the suit in Sheikh Hamid Asghar's Court would operate as res judicata I do not agree. In the suit tried by Sheikh Hamid Asghar, it was merely decided on a preliminary issue that that suit could not proceed. The question now is whether the present suit can proceed. The reasoning of the learned District Judge on this point is :

Comparing the plaint in the suit of 1927 with that in the present case, I find that both the allegations relating to the cause of action and the relief claimed are almost identical. The only difference is that in 1927 the order of the revenue authorities was said to have been passed on 25th March 1927 while that in the present case is dated 6th January 1934. But in both cases the order arose out of partition proceedings and directed the plaintiff to establish his claim . . . by a civil suit. . . . In face of the decision in 1927 case it cannot be held that the plaintiff has any cause of action to bring the present case.

In my opinion this reasoning would be correct but for Kala Singh's intervening suit, which is specially mentioned in the present plaint. Para. 3 says :

That the pedigree table of 1850 has no value when compared with the pedigree table of 1885, has been held in the case, Kala Singh v. Harnam Singh by the District Judge, Jullundur, on 14th July 1932. The parties in the present suit were parties in the previous suit ; hence they are bound by the decision.

Part at least of the present cause of action is that suit and the fact that it operated as res judicata. Therefore in my opinion the decision of Sheikh Hamid Asghar is not res judicata. The learned District Judge also held that the suit was covered as res judicata by reason of Colonel Roe's judgment. I do not agree. Colonel Roe found that the suit was barred under O. 2, R. 2, Civil P. C. The last sentence of his judgment runs :

There seems to be no doubt that O. 2, R. 2, is a bar to the present suit apart from the fact that there is an express decision by a competent Court that the plaintiff is not entitled to the land . . . though that land was then included in a larger area.

This portion of one sentence is his sole reference to res judicata, and it seems to me that this was obiter. But I agree with the learned District Judge that Khan Zaka-ud-Din's decision in Kala Singh's case which incidentally is a decision on the merits, is res judicata. Both the present plaintiff and the present defendants were parties to that suit, both being defendants. The present plaintiff at any rate did not appear but he now wishes to rely on the decision in favour of Kala Singh. Both he and the defendants had the opportunity of appearing. The case was tried out on the merits and in my opinion they are bound. For these reasons, I would accept this appeal, set aside the judgment and decree of the District Judge and grant the plaintiff the decree he sought viz. that the defendants are only entitled to shares in partition according to the pedigree table of 1885. In the circumstances I would direct the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

Dalip Singh J. — The facts of this appeal are sufficiently given in the judgment of my learned brother and need not be recapitulated here. I agree with him in the finding that the learned District Judge was wrong in holding that the suit was barred by limitation. It seems clear to me that there was a fresh invasion of Jhandu's rights by the second application for partition, for Jhandu had been throughout in possession of the land in dispute. This application for partition was not a revival of the old application for partition but was a fresh application. I also agree with my learned brother in holding that the judgment of Sheikh Hamid Asghar would not operate as res judicata. The plaint in that case was badly drafted. The plaintiff sought to get a declaratory decree that the defendants were not entitled to get the land partitioned at all. It did not state that the plaintiff's possession would be disturbed by giving the defendants a greater share than was allowed to them by the pedigree table of 1885, and the mutation which was based on the pedigree table of 1850 was wrong. The judgment proceed.

ed on the basis that the possession of the plaintiff was not mentioned in the plaint and as the plaintiff had admittedly got more than his share by the mutation according to the pedigree table of 1850 than he would get by partition under the pedigree table of 1885, therefore the plaintiff had no cause of action. In the present suit it is alleged that the defendants are not entitled to partition according to the pedigree table of 1885 and they are not entitled to take more land from plaintiff's possession than what they would be entitled to under the pedigree table of 1885. Thus the disturbance of plaintiff's possession is the main cause of action according to the present plaint. Whatever might be therefore the merits of the decision by Sheikh Hamid Asghar in the previous suit, it does not operate as res judicata to hold that the present plaint also discloses no cause of action. I also agree with my learned brother in holding that the judgment of Colonel Roe does not operate as res judicata. That judgment proceeded on the basis of O. 2, R. 2, Civil P. C. and though there was a passing reference to the rule of res judicata the decision in my opinion was really based on a misinterpretation of O. 2, R. 2. In any event I do not think that it operates as res judicata.

With great respect however to the decision of my learned brother, I am unable to agree with him that the judgment pronounced by Khan Zaka-ud-Din Khan operates as res judicata. The present plaintiff and the present defendants except Kala Singh were defendants in that case, and in order to make the decision res judicata, it would be necessary to find that the point at issue between the present defendants was in issue in the previous case and was heard and decided. Now it appears to me clear that all the grounds which would be open to the present defendants to urge against the present plaintiff were not open to be urged by the present defendants in the suit of Kala Singh. Therefore as the question of res judicata the main defence of the defendants in this case against the suit of the present plaintiff could not be urged by the defendants in the suit brought by Kala Singh I do not consider that that judgment is the final decision between the parties.

Reliance was placed on 53 All 103¹ for holding that the decision in Kala Singh's case was res judicata. But in that case what was in dispute between the parties was the title of the two co-defendants and all the defences that could be urged by one party or the other were open to the defendants and the plaintiff in that case. Here as already pointed out technical defences against the present plaintiff were not open to the present defendants and hence the ruling is no authority for the proposition that the present suit is barred by the rule of res judicata. I would therefore accept the appeal but remand the case back to the trial Court for redecision under O. 41, R. 23. Stamp on the appeal would be refunded. In view of the circumstances of the case I would leave the parties to bear their own costs up-to-date.

[On account of the above difference, the case was heard by Bhide J.]

Bhide J. — This appeal was first heard by a Division Bench consisting of Dalip Singh and Skemp JJ. but, on account of a difference of opinion between them on a point of law, has been placed before me for decision according to Cl. 21 of the Letters Patent. The point* of law on which the learned Judges differed will appear from the following. The present suit was instituted by one Jhandu for a declaration that he and the other co-sharers in certain land of which the last holder was Mt. Tabo widow of Bhupa, were entitled to a partition thereof according to their shares as shown by the pedigree table of 1885. On the death of Mt. Tabo, this land had been mutated in favour of the collaterals of Bhupa, according to their shares as shown by the pedigree table of 1850. The pedigree table of 1850 differed from the pedigree table prepared in the year 1885 and this difference led to a great deal of litigation. Jhandu at first brought a suit for the whole of the land left by Mt. Tabo on the allegation that the land had been gifted to him, but the gift was held to be not proved and the suit was dismissed. He then instituted two other suits for his share in that land, founding his claim on the pedigree table of 1885. One of these suits was dismissed by the District Judge on the main ground that it was barred by O. 2, R. 2, Civil P. C. The other one was dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff was already in possession of more land than what he was entitled to.

1. Munni Bibi v. Tirloki (1931) 18 AIR P C 114 = 182 I C 598 = 58 I A 158 = 53 All 103 (PC).

The fourth suit was instituted by one Kala Singh another co-sharer in the land. He also based his claim on the pedigree table of 1885. In this suit, Jhandu as well as the present defendants were impleaded as defendants. It was held in this suit that the pedigree table of 1885 was to be preferred to that of 1850 and Kala Singh's claim was decreed on this basis. After the above decision, some of the co-sharers applied for partition according to the pedigree table of 1850. Thereupon Jhandu instituted the present suit for a declaration that defendants could not claim in the partition proceedings any share in excess of what they were entitled to according to the pedigree table of 1885. This suit was dismissed on various grounds and the plaintiff has preferred a second appeal. The learned Judges of the Division Bench were agreed that the final decision in the first three suits instituted by Jhandu did not operate as res judicata for the purposes of the present suit. The only point on which the learned Judges differed was whether the decision in Kala Singh's suit as regards the preference to be given to the pedigree table of 1885 operated as res judicata as between plaintiff Jhandu and the defendants in the present suit. Jhandu and these defendants were joined as defendants in Kala Singh's suit as stated already. The contention of the plaintiff was that the decision in Kala Singh's suit on the above point operated as res judicata in his favour. Skemp J. accepted this contention as correct. Defendants on the other hand contended that the previous decision could not operate as res judicata between them and Jhandu as they were merely co-defendants in the previous suit and the necessary conditions for the previous decision operating as res judicata between co-defendants were not satisfied. Dalip Singh J. was in favour of this view.

There is no doubt that the main point for decision in the present case is the same as the one decided in the suit of Kala Singh, viz. whether the pedigree table of 1885 was to be accepted as correct in preference to that of the year 1850. The present plaintiff as well as the present defendants were admittedly parties to the suit of Kala Singh, but they were then co-defendants and the only question which now needs consideration is whether the conditions for the previous decision operating as res judicata as between co-defendants are satisfied. These conditions have been clearly laid down in several decisions of their Lordships of the Privy Council. In 53 All 103¹ they were stated as follows: (1) That there should be a conflict of interests between co-defendants; (2) that it should have been necessary to decide that conflict in order to give plaintiff the relief which he claimed; (3) that the question between the co-defendants must have been finally decided.

It appears from the record of Kala Singh's case that Jhandu did not put in appearance or raise any plea in that case. So no question was either raised or actually decided as between Jhandu and the present defendants. So far as Kala Singh was concerned, it can be said that as Jhandu did not care to contest the suit, the matter must be held to be decided as between him and Kala Singh. But can it be said that it was so decided between Jhandu and the defendants in the present suit? I think not. In the first place, Jhandu not having raised any pleas, there was actually no conflict between Jhandu and the other defendants before the Court in Kala Singh's suit. But assuming that there should be deemed to have been a conflict of interests by implication in view of the position taken up by Jhandu and the defendants in the present suit, I do not see that it was necessary to decide that conflict in order to give relief to Kala Singh the relief he claimed. It cannot be said that Kala Singh could not succeed, unless Jhandu was also held to be entitled to the share he now claims, according to the pedigree table of 1885. For, Jhandu may be debarred from claiming it owing to various other reasons, e. g. owing to a compromise with other sharers, or such pleas as res judicata, estoppel, etc. arising from the previous suits instituted by Jhandu. But the decision of the latter pleas would obviously have been irrelevant and unnecessary for the purpose of deciding Kala Singh's claim. It seems to me therefore that it was neither necessary for the Court to decide, nor could or did the Court decide finally the issue now arising between Jhandu and the defendants. Consequently conditions 2 and 3 for a decision operating as res judicata as between co-defendants do not at any rate seem to be satisfied in the present case.

The facts in 53 All 103¹ which was strongly relied on by the learned counsel for the plaintiff were different. In that case it was found that the creditor of one Amar Nath had sued to establish his right to sell certain property which as alleged belonged to Amar Nath. He joined as defendants (1) Mt. Munni, daughter of Amar Nath and (2) Mt. Kunno and Mt. Kashi, who were rival claimants to the property. The former claimed it as the heir of Amar Nath, while the latter claimed it on the basis of a gift alleged to have been made by Amar Nath in favour of his wife, Mt. Mukandi. The suit was decreed, on the finding that the property belonged to Amar Nath and there was no valid gift. Subsequently Gokal Nath, a son of Mt. Kashi paid off the creditor's decree and retained possession of the property. Mt. Munni then sued for possession on the basis of her title as heir of Amar Nath. It was held by their Lordships, that the decision in the previous suit operated as res judicata in favour of Mt. Munni Bibi, as the creditor's suit could not have succeeded unless it was decided as between the rival claimants that the property belonged to Amar Nath and that there had been no valid gift in favour of Mt. Mukandi. It is therefore clear that it was necessary in that case to decide the question of title as between the co-defendants in order to give relief to the plaintiff. That is not the position in the present case.

For reasons given above, I agree with the view taken by Dalip Singh J. and accepting the appeal, remand the case to the trial Court under O. 41, R. 23 Civil P. C., for decision as proposed by him. I leave the parties to bear their costs up to this stage in view of all the circumstances. Parties to appear before the learned trial Judge on 21st October 1937.

B.D./R.K.

Case remanded.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 232

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Jaspat Rai — Appellant.

v.

Kahan Chand and others—Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 106 of 1937 and Second Appeal No. 942 of 1937 Decided on 6th December 1937, from order of Dalip Singh J., D/- 8th June 1937.

(a) Execution Sale — Mortgage decree directing sale of mortgaged property free from mortgage—Sale proceeds to be deposited in Court for payment to previous mortgagee and entitling decree-holder only to surplus — Decree-holder himself purchasing property in execution and obtaining sale certificate, without impleading previous mortgagee or depositing sale proceeds in Court — Sale held invalid and should be set aside.

Where though mortgage decree directed that the property in question should be sold free from mortgage, but the sale proceeds should be deposited in Court for payment to the previous mortgagee and entitled the decree-holder to the surplus alone, the decree-holder purchased the property in question in execution neither impleading the previous mortgagee, nor depositing the money in Court and obtained the sale certificate behind the back of the previous mortgagee :

Held that the sale was not valid and not binding on the previous mortgagee, because the decree-holder did not conduct himself in an honest manner, as his intention appeared to be to keep the previous mortgagee in the dark and not to let him know how the affairs were being arranged to his detriment. Further the property could not be sold without protecting the rights of the previous mortgagee and the decree-holder could not purchase it in utter disregard of the burden under which it rested : 32 Bom 572 and A I R 1932 Lah 344, Ref.

[P 294 C 1]

* (b) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11—Order is not final until time of appeal has elapsed—Application by previous mortgagee for setting aside execution sale on ground of illegality dismissed—Appeal against order pending—Suit for possession against previous mortgagee as purchaser of equity of redemption decreed after repelling same contentions of previous mortgagee, as raised in application for setting aside sale — Appeal against latter decree not barred — Decision in suit for possession held not res judicata in pending appeal in execution.

An order is not final until the time of appeal has elapsed or the appeal has been finally decided.

[P 224 C 1]

In execution proceedings an application for setting aside sale by the previous mortgagee on the ground of illegality was dismissed. An appeal against the order was pending. In the meanwhile the decree-holder auction-purchaser filed a suit for possession against the previous mortgagee who had purchased the equity of redemption, in which the same question of illegality of sale that was raised in execution was raised once more. The suit was decreed, repelling all the contentions of the previous mortgagee. The appeal in execution was dismissed on the ground that the judgment on the same question was pronounced against previous mortgagee in the suit by the decree-holder for possession, though the appeal against the order in the suit for possession was not barred :

Held that in appeal in execution the matter was not res judicata and that the case should have been disposed of on merits : A I R 1916 Lah 177 (F B) ; A I R 1927 Lah 289 (F B) ; 34 Cal 616 (P C) and A I R 1917 P C 201 Ref.

[P 294 C 2]

Sodhi Charan Singh — for Appellant.

Charan Singh — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — This judgment will dispose of Letters Patent Appeal No. 106 of 1937 and Second Appeal No. 942 of 1937. The facts bearing upon the questions of law involved in these appeals may be shortly stated. On 23rd October 1922, one Lok Nath mortgaged certain property to one Jaspat Rai and, on 15th April 1925, he mortgaged the same property along with some other property to Khushi Ram. Khushi Ram instituted a suit on the foot of his mortgage, impleading Jaspat Rai among the defendants. Jaspat Rai put in his pleas stating that Khushi Ram was not entitled to the relief prayed for unless and until he (Jaspat Rai) was fully paid off or the property mortgaged was sold subject to his (Jaspat Rai's) rights. In a very unhappily worded judgment, the Subordinate Judge held that the property should be sold free from mortgage but the sale proceeds should be deposited in Court for payment to Jaspat Rai, the previous mortgagee, and to the surplus alone, if any, would Khushi Ram be entitled. A preliminary decree was drawn up in accordance with this judgment, and was made final on 14th August 1931. In execution of this decree, Khushi Ram himself purchased the property in question, but he neither impleaded Jaspat Rai in the course of execution proceedings nor did he deposit the money in Court. The sale in favour of Khushi Ram was confirmed behind the back of Jaspat Rai and the sale certificate, too, was issued to Khushi Ram. In the meantime, Khushi Ram died and one Kahan Chand was brought on the record as his legal representative. Charan Das and Jagiri Mal, sons of Lok Nath, who had taken the place of the mortgagor, Lok Nath, were adjudged insolvents and their estate vested in the Official Receiver.

On 20th June 1935, Jaspat Rai made an application under S. 47 read with S. 151, Civil P. C., alleging that Khushi Ram had committed fraud on the executing Court in not disclosing the terms of the decree and in not depositing the sale proceeds in Court as directed by it. He further averred that no notice was sent to him in the course of the execution proceedings and that his rights had thus been adversely affected. This application was resisted by Kahan Chand and was dismissed by the executing Court on 22nd May 1936. Against this decision, Jaspat Rai appealed to the Court of the District Judge, Mr. Dhawan. In the meantime, the Official Receiver of the insolvent's estate put the property in question to auction and Jaspat Rai purchased the equity of redemption.

Thereupon, on 12th February 1936, Kahan Chand instituted a suit against Jaspat Rai and others for possession of a part of a house along with certain other property. The same questions that were raised in the course of execution proceedings were once more raised in the regular suit. On 12th January 1937, the Subordinate Judge decreed the suit with costs repelling all contentions raised by Jaspat Rai. On 20th January 1937, the appeal of Jaspat Rai, which had arisen out of the execution proceedings, came on for hearing before Mr. Dhawan and was dismissed on the ground that the question of the legality of the sale to Khushi Ram was res judicata, inasmuch as a judgment on that point had been pronounced against Jaspat Rai by the Subordinate Judge on 12th January 1937, and no appeal had been presented against that order till then. From that decision Jaspat Rai preferred an appeal to this Court which was heard by Dalip Singh J. on 8th June 1937. He endorsed the opinion of the District Judge on the question of res judicata and dismissed the appeal. It may be mentioned here that by that time the order of the Subordinate Judge, on the basis of which the plea of res judicata had prevailed, had been set aside by Sardar Sewa Singh, Additional District Judge, on 14th May 1937. Letters Patent Appeal No. 106 of 1937 has been preferred from the decision of Dalip Singh J. while appeal No. 942 of 1937 has been presented by Kahan Chand against the order of the Additional District Judge dismissing his suit.

The first question that arises for decision in this case is whether the sale in favour of Khushi Ram was valid and hence binding upon Jaspat Rai. We have no hesitation in saying that Khushi Ram did not conduct himself in an honest manner in so far as he did not implead Jaspat Rai in the course of execution proceedings and did not deposit in Court any amount for him. It appears that his intention was to keep Jaspat Rai in the dark and not to let him know how the affairs were being arranged to his detriment. In 32 Bom 572,¹ a sale that was held without notice to the person affected thereby was set aside. Similarly in A I R 1931 Lah 344,² a Division Bench of this

1. Parashram v. Balmukand, (1908) 32 Bom 572 = 10 Bom L R 752.

2. Mul Rai v. Bura Mal, (1931) 18 A I R Lah 344 = 134 I O 292 = 12 Lah 602 = 32 P L R 863.

Court maintained the order of the Subordinate Judge who had set aside a sale suo moto on the ground that the property which was to be sold free from any encumbrance had been sold subject to a mortgage in favour of the decree-holder. The learned Judges remarked :

There can be little doubt that when the Court is empowered to make an order, it has inherent jurisdiction to see that that order is carried into effect. The sale admittedly contravened the express direction of the Court and S. 151, Civil P. O., confers ample power upon the Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court.

Here the mortgaged property could not be sold without protecting the rights of Jaspat Rai nor could Khushi Ram purchase it in utter disregard of the burden under which it rested. There still remains the question whether Jaspat Rai not having appealed against the order of the Subordinate Judge in Kahan Chand's suit, before the hearing of his appeal by Mr. Dhawan, could maintain the plea of the illegality of the sale in the Court of Mr. Dhawan. On behalf of Jaspat Rai, reliance has been placed on 48 P R 1916³ which says that an order is not final until the time of appeal has lapsed or till the appeal has been finally decided. We are in respectful agreement with the principle enunciated therein. Further the position appears to us to be this: if the word "suit" conveys only the idea of proceedings in an original Court, as held in 8 Lah 384,⁴ the plea of res judicata could not be taken for the first time in appeal and if "suit" covers appeals and it is open to the parties to raise a plea of res judicata even in the Appellate Courts then the plea could not prevail before Dalip Singh J. as long before he heard the appeal, the order of Subordinate Judge repelling the contention raised by Jaspat Rai, had been reversed by the Additional District Judge. There is abundant authority in support of the proposition that the appeal destroys the finality of the decision of the original Court and the judgment of the original Court is superseded by that of the Court of Appeal. See 24 Cal 616⁵ and 45 Cal 442.⁶ We hold therefore that the matter was not res judicata in the Court of Mr. Dhawan and that the case should have been disposed of on the merits. On the same ground Dalip Singh J.'s order cannot stand.

We however do not consider it necessary to remand the appeal arising out of execution proceedings to the District Judge as we have given ample opportunity to the parties to argue their appeal on the merits and it will serve no useful purpose to remit the case and to waste further time of the Courts in this matter. We are satisfied that the objections raised by Jaspat Rai were valid and that they should have been allowed. For these reasons we accept the appeal, reverse the order of Dalip Singh J. as well as the order of the District Judge and that of the executing Court and allowing the objections of Jaspat Rai, set aside the sale in favour of Khushi Ram. In view of the decision arrived at above, it is not necessary to deal at length with Second Appeal No. 942 of 1937. The decision of the Additional District Judge accords with the view taken by us and we therefore dismiss the appeal. Jaspat Rai will get his costs from Kahan Chand in all the Courts in both Letters Patent Appeal No. 106 of 1937 and Second Appeal No. 942 of 1937.

V.B.B./R.K.

Letters Patent appeal allowed.

6. Abdullah Ashgar Ali Khan v. Ganesh Dass, (1917) 4 A I R P O 201=42 I O 959=44 I A 213=45 Cal 442 (P O).

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 234

FULL BENCH

COLDSTREAM, DALIP SINGH AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Shanti Parkash and another — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

*Harnam Das and others —
Defendants — Respondents.*

Letters Patent Appeal No. 164 of 1936, Decided on 22nd November 1937, from decree of Skemp J., D/- 8th October 1936, reported in A I R 1937 Lah 642.

(a) Limitation Act (1908), S. 4 — Words of S. 4 do not extend period of limitation.

All that S. 4 provides is that the suit might be brought on the day when the Court reopened if the Court happened to be closed when the period

3. Dalipa v. Suraj Kaur, (1916) 3 A I R Lah 177 =34 I O 581=48 P R 1916.

4. Mt. Laohmi v. Mt. Bhulli, (1927) 14 A I R Lah 289=104 I O 849=8 Lah 384=28 P L R 174 (F B).

5. Sheosagar Singh v. Sitaram Singh, (1897) 24 Cal 616=24 I A 50=1 O W N 297=7 Sar 124 (P O).

prescribed expired. The words of S. 4 do not extend limitation: A I R 1935 P C 85 (P C), Foll. [P 236 C 2]

* (b) Contract Act (1872), S. 25 (3) — Balance struck and interest fixed — This amounts to promise to pay: A I R 1937 Lah 642, Reversed.

Wherever there is a balance struck and interest has been fixed or agreed to be paid, the words have always been construed to mean a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3): Case law followed; A I R 1937 Lah 642, Reversed.

[P 237 C 1]

(c) Limitation—Acknowledgment implying promise to pay—Suit can be based on it considered as agreement provided consideration is proved—Plea of lack of consideration if not raised by defendant, consideration must be taken to have been proved — This point can be allowed to be newly raised even if question before trial Judge was whether S. 4, Lim. Act extends limitation — (Per Dalip Singh and Din Mohammad JJ., Coldstream J. dissenting).

Where acknowledgment implies a promise to pay, a suit can be brought on the basis of such acknowledgment considered as an agreement provided consideration is proved. Where a suit is brought on such basis, the plaintiff must be taken to allege a valid agreement and if the defendant does not plead lack of consideration, then consideration must be taken to have been proved. As it is an agreement for consideration, whether it is before expiry of limitation or even after it, a suit on its basis cannot be held to be time-barred.

[P 238 C 2; P 239 C 1]

Even if such point is newly taken before the Full Bench the question before the trial Judge and Single Bench being whether an acknowledgment of a debt made after the period of limitation has expired but during the time in which owing to the provisions of S. 4, Lim. Act, the suit might have been instituted, will start a fresh period of limitation, it is open to the Full Bench to allow the point to be raised as the question to be decided in both the points is the same viz., whether the suit is barred by limitation.

[P 239 C 2]

J. N. Aggarwal — for Appellants.

Achhru Ram and Inder Dev —
for Respondents.

Order of Reference

Coldstream and Din Mohammad JJ. — The main point arising for decision in this appeal is whether an acknowledgment of a debt made after the period of limitation for a suit prescribed by Sch. 1, Lim. Act has expired but during the time in which owing to the provisions of Ss. 4 to 25 of the Act, the suit might have been instituted, will start a fresh period of limitation under the provisions of S. 19. There has been some conflict on this question in the various rulings mentioned by Skemp J. who delivered the judgment under appeal. In Civil Revision No. 178 of 1936¹ Tek Chand J. took a view different from that of Skemp J. agreeing with Jai Lal J. in Civil Appeal No. 515 of 1930.² But there is support for Skemp J.'s decision in the judgments of the Calcutta and Bombay Courts. We think that the question involved is of considerable importance and that in view of the difference of opinion upon it, this case should be decided by a Full Bench. We order that the case be laid before the Hon'ble the Chief Justice for constituting a Bench accordingly.

Judgment of Full Bench

Dalip Singh J. — The plaintiffs in this case sued the defendants for recovery of Rs. 923. The plaint in its heading stated that it was based on an entry dated 1st July 1928. In the body of the plaint the plaintiff proceeded to state that there had been a bahi account on which an entry was made on 11th July 1922, by two persons in lieu of an advance made in cash. On 30th June 1925, another balance was struck by the same two persons acting on behalf of the joint Hindu family. On 1st July 1928, one of the aforesaid persons namely Lachman Das, acting on behalf of the same family struck a new balance of Rs. 725.8.0. Lastly, on 14th July 1929, Lachman Das made a payment of Rs. 50 and entered it against the last mentioned balance in his own hand. The plaintiffs therefore sued claiming that this payment of Rs. 50 in the hand of the judgment-debtor extended limitation. The suit was instituted on 14th July 1932. The defendants admitted the original entry and the first balance but pleaded that Lachman Das alone was responsible for the same. So far as the second balance was concerned, they pleaded that Lachman Das and Harnam Das signed it on behalf of themselves but not on behalf of the family. Defendant 1 did not deny the existence of the joint family, the other defendants denied that also. The main plea of all the defendants, however was limitation. They denied the genuineness of the payment entry of 14th July 1929, alleging that it was a forgery. Eight issues were framed by the trial Court. The issues on the merits were found in favour of the plaintiffs and it was also held that the balance which was struck on 1st July 1928, was not struck at a time when the original debt was barred by limitation. It will be remembered that the previous balance had been struck on 30th June 1925. 30th June 1928, was a holiday and hence the point arose as to whether the balance struck on 1st July 1928, was within time or not. The trial Court, therefore gave a decree for Rs. 923 against the estate of the joint family of the defendants together with costs. None of the defendants was held liable personally.

1. Kishan Singh v. Sardar Ali, reported in (1937) 24 A I R Lah 162=164 I O 650=38 P L R 934.

2. Buta Singh v. Bhan Singh, reported in (1930) 17 A I R Lah 978=129 I O 125.

The defendants appealed and the learned Senior Subordinate Judge on appeal upheld the findings of the trial Court on the merits but held that the suit was barred by limitation as the entry made on 1st July 1928, was made after limitation had expired and S. 4, Limitation Act did not extend the period of limitation. It appears to have been contended before him as had been contended before the trial Court that the words of the balance struck were a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act and that therefore apart from any other question the suit would lie on the basis of this entry alone. The trial Court had given no decision on this point. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge, however held that the words did not come within the purview of S. 25 (3) and as the debt was time-barred on that date it could not form the basis of a suit. He therefore held that the suit was barred by time and accepted the appeal and dismissed the suit of the plaintiffs leaving the parties to bear their own costs. An appeal from this decision was heard by a Single Bench of this Court and before the Single Bench it appears to have been contended again that S. 4, Limitation Act extended limitation and that the debt was not time-barred on the date of the entry in question. On the second point it was contended again that under S. 25 (3) the words of this entry were a promise to pay within the meaning of that section and therefore the suit was not barred by limitation. The learned Judge repelled both these contentions, holding that S. 4, Limitation Act did not extend limitation, that the original debt was therefore time-barred at the date of this entry and that the words in the balance did not come within the purview of S. 25 (3), Contract Act and therefore the appeal failed on both points urged. He dismissed the appeal, leaving the parties to bear their own costs. In the Letters Patent appeal it was pointed out that there was a conflict of decisions on the question whether an acknowledgment of a debt made after the period of limitation for a suit prescribed by Sch. 1 to the Limitation Act had expired but during the time in which owing to the provisions of Ss. 4 to 25 of the Act the suit might have been instituted would start a fresh period of limitation under the provisions of S. 19. The case was therefore referred for decision to a Full Bench. Before the Full Bench, the learned counsel for the appellants has contended, firstly, that the suit is not barred by limitation because of the provisions in S. 4, Limitation Act; secondly, that the words of the acknowledgment in question fall within the purview of S. 25 (3) and, thirdly, in any circumstances the debt not being time-barred on the date when the acknowledgment was made, S. 25 (3) did not apply and, as the acknowledgment had been made in such terms as implied a promise to pay and was with consideration, it could in itself form the basis of a suit and consequently the suit having been brought within three years of the acknowledgment was well within time.

So far as the first point is concerned, it is unnecessary to enter into any lengthy analysis of the admittedly conflicting rulings on the point, for, the matter appears to me to be concluded by the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in 57 All 242.³ In that case their Lordships of the Privy Council pointed out that there was a distinction in form between S. 4 and S. 14. The language employed in S. 4 indicated that it had nothing to do with computing the prescribed period. According to their Lordships, all that the Section provided was that the suit might be brought on the day when the Court reopened if the Court happened to be closed when the period prescribed expired. There was therefore according to their Lordships nothing in the Section which altered the length of the prescribed period. The matter was otherwise under S. 14 and other sections of a similar nature where the words used were "in computing the period of limitation prescribed for any application certain periods should be excluded." It appears to me clear that their Lordships of the Privy Council have therefore laid down that the words of S. 4, Lim. Act do not extend limitation, and therefore the argument based on S. 4, Lim. Act is of no force. Indeed the learned counsel for the appellants on being referred to the Privy Council ruling did not press the matter further. There remain the question whether the words actually used in the entry fall within the purview of S. 25 (3), Contract Act and the other question already referred to above. Now, so far as the question of S. 25 (3), Contract Act is concerned, the words in the entry are as follows :

3. Maqbul Ahmad v. Onkar Pratab Narain Singh, (1935) 22 A I R P O 85=155 I O 205 =62 I A 80=57 All 242 (P O).

Hisab yad dashit Lachhman Das wald Dhani Nath va Harnam Das wald Lachhman Das jat Khatri Khosla sakin Nurmahal, ba sud bahisab fi sadi 12 anna senkra mahwar muqarir kiya giya our bahaq Shanti Parkash baligh va Lachhmi Chand Ram Parkash nabalghan bawalayat Shanti Parkash tahrir kar diya. 1 July 1928.

Below this are the words :

Mubligh 725-8-0 bakaya hissab mundarja bala tahrir kiya gaya hai. Ticket 4 anna ka lagaya gaya.

Lachhman Das bakalam khud.

The question before the Bench is therefore whether these words amount to, or contain, a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act. I may say at once that if the matter were res integra, I should have found considerable difficulty in coming to the conclusion that the words were within the purview of S. 25 (3), Contract Act, but the matter is not entirely res integra. In a long course of decisions in this Court beginning with 72 P R 1879⁴ where a Division Bench of this Court held in a case in which somewhat similar words were used that the fact that a balance was struck and the interest was fixed and there was no set off against any other account were equivalent to a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act, down to the present day a number of rulings have held that whenever a balance is struck and over and above that interest is fixed or there is a promise to pay interest then there is a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act. In this connexion, I may refer to 8 I C 575⁵, a Single Bench ruling, 8 I C 811⁶, a Division Bench ruling, 35 P R 1903⁷, a Full Bench ruling on a somewhat different point, A I R 1929 Lah 511,⁸ A I R 1929 Lah 695⁹ and Civil Appeal No. 2183 of 1930, a Division Bench ruling decided on 25th January 1933, in which I was one of the Judges deciding the appeal. In this last mentioned ruling, the same point arose and was referred to a Division Bench. It was pointed out that so far as this Court was concerned, wherever there was a balance struck and interest had been fixed or agreed to be paid the words had always been construed to mean a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act and there was no ruling to which the attention of the Division Bench had been drawn to the contrary. In the present case too, the learned counsel for the respondents very frankly conceded that he had not been able to find any ruling to the contrary either in this Court or in any other Court in India. He has however contended that these rulings are wrong and that the mere promise to pay interest or the statement that interest has been agreed upon or determined or fixed do not make an express promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act. He contends that the preponderant weight of authority is that a mere acknowledgment, though it implies a promise to pay under the ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council in 33 Cal 1047¹⁰ at p. 1059, has always been held not to amount to a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act. He therefore contends that the mere mention of interest as fixed or a promise to pay interest cannot be said to be a promise to pay the principal and though it may imply a promise to pay the principal, it does not fall within the purview of S. 25 (3), Contract Act.

Again, I may say that if the matter were res integra, the contention would weigh considerably with me and I would be inclined to give effect to it; but the matter is not res integra. A long course of rulings has held, not only on the question of interest but where the words used amount to the words "is payable" or "to be paid" or "to be taken" or "to be given" "baqi

4. Ladhu Shah v. Fazl Dad, (1879) 72 P R 1879.

5. Bholaram v. Nanak Chand, (1910) 185 P R 1910=8 I C 575.

6. Tirka v. Rizak Ram, (1910) 8 I C 811=188 P W R 1910=8 P L R 1911.

7. Daula v. Ganda, (1903) 85 P R 1903=101 P L R 1908 (F B).

8. Om Prakash Mitter v. Haji Abdul Rahim & Sons, (1929) 16 A I R Lah 511=117 I C 377.

9. Gopi v. Singh Ram, (1929) 16 A I R Lah 695=122 I C 238.

10. Mani Ram v. Seth Rup Chand, (1906) 33 Cal 1047=39 I A 165=4 C L J 94=10 O W N 874=2 N L R 180 (P O).

dena" "baqi lena" etc., almost invariably that such words amount to a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act. So far as interest is concerned, there is no ruling in this Court to the contrary, no ruling of any other High Court to my knowledge to the contrary. In these circumstances, it seems to me that it is too late in the day now to urge that these words should not be held to fall within the purview of S. 25 (3), Contract Act. After all, people have entered into contracts and have forborne to sue on the strength of these rulings as reported in various reports and it would upset matters greatly if now it were held that these acknowledgments were useless or that no suit would lie on the basis of these acknowledgments because they did not fall within the purview of S. 25 (3) Contract Act. With some reluctance therefore, I come to the conclusion that the words in this case must be held to contain a promise to pay within the meaning of S. 25 (3), Contract Act and I would hold accordingly.

There now remains the other point raised by the learned counsel for the appellants, namely that the acknowledgment could form the basis of a suit and that this acknowledgment was actually the basis of the present suit and that as the suit was brought on the basis of this acknowledgment, that is to say, it was alleged that there was a valid agreement between the parties on this date and as the defendants had not pleaded lack of consideration for this acknowledgment treated as a contract and as this acknowledgment was made at a time when the suit could have been brought on the basis of the original debt, therefore S. 25 (3), Contract Act, did not apply at all and the suit was not barred by limitation. This argument depends first of all upon a construction of the plaint and pleadings in this suit. After considering the plaint and the pleadings, oral and written, of the parties and the action of the Court on the question, it appears to me that the suit was brought on the basis of this entry and not on the basis of a bahi account as shown in the judgment of the learned Judge sitting in Single Bench. The first point to notice in this connexion is the heading of the plaint which refers only to this entry. The second point to notice is that the plaintiff did not claim that limitation was extended by reason of this entry and the subsequent payment of Rs. 50 but only contended that limitation was extended by reason of the payment of Rs. 50 following this entry. In the oral pleadings as recorded the plaintiff again relied on this entry only and made no reference to other entries in his bahi. This entry was described as manat dawa by one of the defendants in his oral evidence. It seems to me that all these facts taken together show that the plaintiff was suing on the basis of this entry. The trial Court itself appears originally to have regarded the suit as so framed, because before any evidence was led it took up suo motu the question whether this entry amounted to an agreement and finally decided that it did and called upon the plaintiff to pay Rs. 8-4-0 by way of penalty treating this entry as an agreement. From all these facts it seems to me that the correct conclusion is that the suit as framed originally was on the basis of this entry.

The next point that appears to me to follow is that if the suit was so framed then it must be taken that the plaintiff had alleged a valid agreement constituted by this entry and it was for the defendants then to plead that this agreement was not valid because there was no consideration for this agreement. The defendants did not plead any such thing. All that they alleged was that they denied the execution of the agreement and also pleaded ignorance as regards one of the executants. Also that they were not bound by the document even if it were executed. They never pleaded lack of consideration. It must therefore be taken that if the agreement was otherwise good, consideration must be taken to have been proved. If so, then, the only question left is whether a suit could be brought on the basis of this entry considered as an agreement. The learned counsel for the respondents conceded that on the rulings of this Court this agreement could form the basis of a suit. He contended however, rightly in my opinion, that while this Court had held that such acknowledgments implying a promise to pay under the Privy Council ruling were agreements and therefore could form the basis of a suit nevertheless if a suit were actually brought on the basis of such acknowledgments treated as agreements, it would be for the plaintiffs to prove that the agreement was for consideration and the mere existence of old debts could not be consideration for the agreement. I have no doubt that this argument is correct so far as it goes. I do not think that this Court has ever held that merely because an acknowledgment implies a promise to pay it can form the basis of a suit apart from proof of consideration. All that the words used in some of the rulings, namely that this acknowledgment can be the basis of a suit mean is that in previous rulings before the ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council a suit based on such an acknowledgment was thrown out in the preliminary stage on the ground that the document relied upon as showing the agreement did not contain any promise to pay and therefore could not be the basis of a suit.

After the ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council, it was merely pointed out that the suit could not be so thrown out but it has never been held so far as I am aware that the suit can proceed without proof of consideration. It is a different question depending upon the circumstances of each case as to the onus of proof of consideration. In my opinion, on the pleadings and in the circumstances of the present case, where a suit is brought on the basis of such a document, the plaintiff must be taken to allege a valid agreement and if the defendant denies that the agreement is valid he must allege lack of consideration if that is the ground on which he contends that the agreement is invalid. In the present case it seems to me that the defendant did not deny consideration. Therefore it must be taken that the implied allegation of the plaintiff that there was consideration was not denied and that therefore the suit could succeed on this document. Looked at from this point of view, none of the questions raised before the learned Judge sitting in Single Bench really arise, for, it is obvious that if this was an agreement for consideration before the expiry of limitation or even after it, a suit on its basis would succeed and could not be held to be barred by limitation. The learned counsel for the respondents contended strongly that this case was never urged before the lower Appellate Court or before the learned Judge of this Court in Single Bench. I do not think this case was urged as put before us now but it seems to me that the question before the lower Appellate Court and before the learned Judge in Single Bench was whether the suit was barred by limitation or not. The actual point therefore is the same and it cannot therefore be held that the Letters Patent Bench is barred from going into this question on the ground that the case was not so argued before the lower Appellate Court or before the learned Judge in Single Bench. The matter is not entirely free from difficulty for it might be argued that even before the trial Court finally the case appears to have been dealt with as if the suit was on a bahi account and that this entry merely served to extend limitation. But this was not the actual pleading of the plaintiffs as already pointed out. The learned trial Court did not enter into other matters because it was clear that S. 4 governed the case and extended limitation. The point was not argued before the lower Appellate Court or before the Single Bench. It therefore might well have been held that the point was no longer open to the learned counsel for the appellants. On the whole however, after considering the matter, it seems to me that the essential point being whether the suit was barred by limitation or not and this form of argument being that of a point of law going to the root of the case and patent on the record it is open to the Full Bench to hold that the suit is not barred by limitation on this ground also.

I would therefore allow the appellants to raise this point and hold as stated above that the suit is not barred by limitation. I would therefore accept the appeal and restore the decision of the trial Court. In the circumstances I would leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

Din Mohammad J.—I agree ; but, in order to make my position clear, I wish to add that so far as I am concerned, I entertain no doubt that the entry in question does fall under S. 25 (3). In a country like India, where people do not yet fully appreciate the technicalities of law and are still in the habit of using archaic expressions which before the introduction of British-made laws completely served their purpose, too much stress cannot be laid on the mere wording of the agreements entered into by them. To me, it appears that it was mainly on this consideration that in the decisions cited before us any words that indicated even remotely an intention on the part of the debtor to pay his debt were considered sufficient for the purposes of S. 25 (3). When an unconditional acknowledgment implies a promise to pay as laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 33 Cal 1047,¹⁰ I fail to see why mention of interest should not make that implication express. In the case before us, the words used are "Memorandum of account (of) Lachman Das . . . with interest (which has been) fixed at the rate of twelve annas per cent. per mensem, written in favour of Shanti Parkash. . . ." The fixing of future interest on the sum acknowledged to be due obviously indicates that the writer of the entry at the time of its making made some sort of a promise to pay the amount and then in order to give his promise the garb of language used such terms as in his parlance were sufficient to convey his intentions and were considered enough by his creditors. I am supported in my conclusion by the fact that stamps of the value of four annas were affixed, although a mere acknowledgment could be made on a stamp of the value of one anna only. Relying therefore on the authorities cited at the Bar which I consider to be quite in consonance with law and against which not a single decided case has been quoted on behalf of the respondents, I have no hesitation in saying that the entry in suit fully satisfies the requirements of S. 25 (3).

I am further of opinion that the so called new point too, could be raised before us, being one of law pure and simple and being determinable on the record as it stands without the necessity of ascertaining any additional facts. To my mind it is not a new point at all, but only another way of dealing with the same old point of limitation an alternative argument put forward to protect the suit against the attack founded on the plea of limitation. No doubt the attention of the parties or the Courts below was never directed to this aspect of the case, but this will not debar the plaintiffs from bringing it to our notice. The question however is of mere academic interest, as the appeal before us succeeds even if this point is left undecided.

Coldstream J.—I agree entirely with my learned brother Dalip Singh as regards the effect of S. 4, Lim. Act. As regards the interpretation of the acknowledgment of 1st July 1930, I must say that I am unable to find in its actual words any express promise to pay. It is, I think, settled law in this province that a bare acknowledgment of a stated debt is not a promise to pay within the meaning of

S. 25 (3), Contract Act. It is not easy to understand why the mere addition of a statement of the rate of interest payable should turn an acknowledgment which is not "a promise to pay" into "a promise to pay". But in view of the weight of the authorities against me, I am not prepared to dissent from my learned brother's decision on this point.

As regards the argument that the entry in question records a contract, which, in the circumstances, must be presumed to have been for consideration, I think it would be wholly wrong to allow such a case to be put forward now. It was not the case tried in the first Court, nor does such a case appear to have been noticed in the Court of first Appeal; and it is certain that it was not set up before the learned Judge whose judgment is under appeal. Only two points were taken before that Judge: (1) that S. 4, Lim. Act, extended the period of limitation; and (2) that the words of the entry recorded a promise to pay within the purview of S. 25 (3), Contract Act. We do not know what answer the respondent would have made to such an argument had it been advanced at the trial or in the Appellate Courts. No doubt, the argument does relate to the question of limitation which has been the main point for decision throughout; but the question whether there was consideration for the making of the acknowledgment is not one of law alone but also of fact, and I do not see any justification in this case for presuming that the appellant alleged that there had been consideration for the entry. As regards this argument therefore with great respect I regret that I am unable to concur with my learned brother Dalip Singh.

By the Court.

The order is that the appeal is accepted, the judgments of the lower Appellate Court and of the Single Bench of this Court are set aside and the decree of the trial Court is restored. Parties to bear their own costs throughout.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 241

BHIDE J.

Karim Bakhsh and others —Defendants — Appellants.

v.

Shadi, Plaintiff and others,Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 606 of 1937, Decided on 24th November 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Jullundur, D/- 8th February 1937.

Limitation Act (1908), Art. 142—Parties to suit co-sharers Plaintiff alleging that he was in possession of certain property and was dispossessed by defendants—Case is governed by Art. 142 Plaintiff must prove possession within 12 years—Mere fact that defendants are co-sharers makes no difference when plaintiff himself alleges that he is in possession of separate property Plaintiff cannot be held to be in constructive possession of property.

Where the parties to a suit are co-sharers and the plaintiff comes to the Court with an allegation that he was in possession of certain property and was dispossessed by the defendants, the case is governed by Art. 142 and it is necessary for the plaintiff to prove his possession within 12 years. The mere fact that the defendants have been held to be co-sharers cannot help the plaintiff when he himself alleges that he is in separate possession of property. In such case although partition pleaded by the defendants is not proved, the defendants cannot be held to be holding possession of the property in dispute on behalf of the plaintiff and the plaintiff cannot be held to have been even in constructive possession of the same. He must prove actual dispossession within 12 years: A I R 1934 All 993, Rel. on. [P 241 O 2; P 242 O 1]

Nanak Chand and Prem Chand —

for Appellants.

P. A. Behl for Malik Barkat Ali —

for Respondent (Plaintiff).

Judgment.—The plaintiff sued in this case for possession of one third share in a house on the ground that he was in lawful possession thereof and had been ousted by the defendants some nine months before the suit. The defendants pleaded that there had been a partition of the property and that they had been in possession of the house in question for some 30 years. The trial Court dismissed the suit but on appeal the learned Senior Subordinate Judge granted the plaintiff a declaration to the effect that he was entitled to one-third share of the property in dispute. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred.

The only point argued by the learned counsel for the appellants was that of limitation. It was urged that on the facts recited in the plaint, it was clear that the suit was based on an allegation that the plaintiff being in possession had been dispossessed by the defendants, and therefore it clearly fell within the scope of Art. 142, Lim. Act. It was therefore contended that it was incumbent on the plaintiff to prove his possession of the house in dispute within 12 years before the institution of the suit. It was next urged that according to the findings of the Courts below the defendants had been in possession of the house for over 12 years before the institution of the suit and consequently the suit ought to have been dismissed. The learned counsel for the respondent, on the other hand, contended that the learned Senior Subordinate Judge has found that the parties were co-sharers and therefore the possession of the defendants must be presumed to have been on behalf of the plaintiff also. It was further urged by him that the plea of adverse possession was given up on behalf of the defendants. As regards the latter point, it appears from the record that all that was stated on behalf of the defendants was that no issue need be framed on the question of adverse possession. This statement was probably made in view of the fact that the burden of proving possession within 12 years lay upon the plaintiff in accordance with the provisions of Art. 142, Lim. Act. The issues as to limitation were correctly framed with reference to that Article: vide Issues 3 and 4. The learned counsel for the appellants has strongly relied on a Full Bench ruling of the Allahabad High Court reported in A I R 1934 All 993.¹ That was also a case in which the parties were co-sharers and yet it was held that when a plaintiff comes to Court with an allegation that he was in possession of certain property and was dispossessed, the case is governed by Art. 142, Lim. Act, and it is necessary for the plaintiff to prove his possession within 12 years. The mere fact that the defendants have been held to be co-sharers in the property cannot, in view of this authority help the plaintiff in the circumstances of this case. According to the plaintiff's own allegation, his father had built separate houses for himself and his brothers and had put them in separate possession. The defendants pleaded that there had been a partition.

1. Bhindyachal Chand v. Ram Gharib, (1934) 21 A I R All 998=152 I O 1=1934 A L J 973 (F B).

This partition was not proved, but when separate possession was alleged by the plaintiff himself it cannot be held that the defendants were holding possession of the property in dispute on behalf of the plaintiff. The following passage in the Allahabad ruling referred to above supports the appellants' contention that in view of the allegations of the parties plaintiff cannot be held to have been even in constructive possession within 12 years before the institution of the suit :

But it cannot be denied that one co-owner can dispossess another co-owner and can exercise adverse possession over a joint property. If therefore the plaintiff, a co-owner, admits that he has been dispossessed and that, at any rate, for a short period prior to the suit, the possession of his co-owner was adverse to him, then he cannot fall back on a mere presumption of joint possession in his favour and succeed without showing any other circumstances whatsoever. But if the co-owner, who has been dispossessed, were to satisfy the Court that he was actually dispossessed on some date within 12 years, he discharges his burden ; or even if he proves that prior to that period the parties were on good terms with each other without any denial of title and without any quarrel, the Court may record a finding that the possession of the plaintiff prior to the period of actual possession was constructive. In such an event, the finding would be that the plaintiff has succeeded in establishing that he was in constructive possession of the property within 12 years of the suit.

But there is no such evidence in this case. I therefore uphold the contention of the learned counsel for the appellants and accepting this appeal set aside the decree of the learned Senior Subordinate Judge and dismiss the suit ; but in view of all the circumstances leave the parties to bear their costs throughout.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 242

DIN MOHAMMAD J.

Pandit Harbhagwan Das — Defendant Appellant.

v.

Sardar Partap Singh, Plaintiff and others, Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 251 of 1937, Decided on 6th July 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Lyallpur, D/- 27th November 1936.

(a) Pre-emption — Prior to suit original vendee transferring property to person having right equal to that of pre-emptor—Pre-emptor cannot oust him — Principle applies even where sale by original vendee has not taken place in exercise of pre-emptive right of subsequent vendee.

If before the institution of the suit for pre-emption, the original vendee transfers the property to a person claiming a right equal or superior to that of the pre-emptor, the pre-emptor cannot legally oust him. This principle is not confined to those cases only where the re-sale takes place in exercise of the pre-emptive right of the subsequent vendee. There is no distinction between cases where the re-sale takes place in exercise of a pre-emptive right and those where the re-sale takes place without an assertion of his right by the subsequent vendee because the effect in both cases is the same, that is, the purchase of the land in suit by a person possessing a right equal or superior to that of the pre-emptor and, in these circumstances, the fact that the purchase takes place in assertion of the right or otherwise is immaterial.

[P 243 C 1, 2 P 244 C 1]

(b) Pre-emption — Suit for — In order to succeed, pre-emptor must have superior right even at stage of suit and decree.

A pre-emptor in order to succeed in his claim must not only possess a superior right at the time of the sale but must retain the superiority on the basis of which he claims to pre-empt also at the stage of the suit and the stage of the decree : A I R 1933 Lah 481 and A I R 1935 Lah 529; Rel. on.

[P 244 C 1]

S. L. Puri for M. L. Puri — for Appellant.

Harbhajan Das and Hazara Singh Uppal — for Respondent (Plaintiff).

Judgment.—This appeal has arisen in the following circumstances : On 2nd June 1934, one Labh Singh sold about 2½ marlas of land situated in the old abadi of Qilla Sheikhpura to one Mt. Yashodhan for Rs. 343.12.0. On 18th January 1935, Mt. Yashodhan sold it to one Mathra Das for Rs. 450. On 27th May 1935, Mathra Das sold the same land to his father, Har Bhagwan, for the same amount for which he had purchased it. On 30th May 1935, one Partap Singh instituted the suit out of which the present appeal has arisen for pre-emption of the land in question both on the ground of his relationship to the original vendor Labh Singh which however was immaterial and on the ground of his owning a contiguous plot of land. This suit was instituted against the vendor and the vendees, Mt. Yashodhan and Mathra Das only. On 3rd July 1935, Har Bhagwan was on his own application impleaded as a defendant in the case. He resisted the suit on various grounds. His main plea however was that as he also owned property contiguous to the land in suit, he had a right equal to that of the pre-emptor and as he had purchased the land in question prior to the institution of the suit, the pre-emptor could not defeat his title. This plea found favour with the trial Court and the suit was dismissed. On appeal however, the District Judge reversed the decision of the trial Court mainly on the ground that the sale in favour of Har Bhagwan had not taken place in the exercise of any pre-emptive right and consequently the title of the pre-emptor was indefeasible. Har Bhagwan has appealed. After hearing counsel on both sides, I have come to the conclusion that this appeal must succeed. There is abundant authority in support of the proposition that if before the institution of the suit the original vendee transfers the property to a person claiming a right equal or superior to that of the pre-emptor, the pre-emptor cannot legally oust him.

In 69 P R 1898,¹ the land in suit was in the first instance sold to three persons, of whom two were co-sharers in the joint holding but the third was not. Subsequently the plaintiff, who was also a co-sharer in the said holding, sued for pre-emption in respect of the sale, but shortly before the institution of his suit, the stranger vendee sold his share to another co-sharer in the same holding. Accordingly at the time when the suit was instituted, the land was in the hands of three vendees against none of whom the plaintiff could assert a superior right. It was however contended on behalf of the plaintiff that regard must be had to the original transaction. It was held by a Division Bench of the Punjab Chief Court, overruling the said contention, that the mere fact that at one stage a stranger had a share in the bargain could not be held to vitiate the right of the three persons who were the vendees at the date of suit and resisted plaintiff's claim with rights that were not inferior to his own. In 20 All 100,² it was held that if the land, which was subject to pre-emption, having been sold to a stranger, was subsequently re-sold by the stranger vendee before suit to a co-sharer having equal rights with those seeking pre-emption, the right of pre-emption did not survive. In 21 All 374³ at p. 379 this decision was referred to with approval. In 23 All 247,⁴ it was again held that a stranger vendee could defeat the claim of a co-sharer having a right of pre-emption by sale to a co-sharer having a similar right, stress being laid on the fact that the re-sale to have such effect must be completed before any suit for pre-emption is brought by a co-sharer entitled to pre-empt. In 37 P L R 1921,⁵ Martineau J. observed that the claim of a pre-emptor could be defeated if before the suit was instituted, the vendees whose rights were inferior, sold their share to a person who had an equal or superior right to that of the plaintiff. In 87 I C 652,⁶ a similar decision was arrived at by the same learned Judge. In 26 A L J 1378,⁷ a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court remarked if on the date the suit for pre-emption is brought the property has been transferred to a person as against whom the plaintiff has no preference, the claim cannot be decreed.

To the same effect is the case reported in 41 I C 9.⁸ Counsel for the respondent refers to a passage in 138 P R 1884⁹ where it has been remarked that the land was re-sold to the subsequent vendee in compliance with his pre-emptive right. He further relies on similar remarks made in 11 Lah 258¹⁰ and 164 P W R 1913.¹ These decisions however are of no avail in the present case. In the first instance, the remarks relied upon do not confine the applicability of the principles deducible from the judgments alluded to above to those cases only where the re-sale takes place in exercise of the pre-emptive right of the subsequent vendee and secondly the judgments where the re-sale had taken place pendente lite are not relevant to the present case. I am unable to distinguish between cases where the re-sale takes place in exercise of a pre-emptive right and those where the re-sale takes place without an assertion of his right by the subsequent vendee, because in my view the effect in both cases is the same, that is the purchase of the land in suit by a person possessing a right equal or superior to that of the pre-emptor and, in these

5. Hira v. Sardara, (1921) 59 I O 712=37 P L R 1921.

6. Abdul Aziz v. Abdulla, (1925) 12 A I R Lah 418=87 I C 652=26 P L R 215.

7. Badri Pandey v. Parsotam Singh, (1928) 15 A I R All 697=110 I O 869=26 A L J 1378.

8. Lalta Prasad v. Raghubar Singh, (1917) 4 A I R Oudh 314=41 I O 9=20 O O 160=4 O L J 459.

9. Amirullah Shah v. Tabe Husseln (1884) 188 P R 1884.

10. Moolchand v. Ganga Jal, (1930) 17 A I R Lah 356=132 I O 369=11 Lah 258=31 P L R 342 (F B).

11. Fazl Din v. Lal Singh, (1918) 20 I O 843=164 P W R 1913.

1. Mughal v. Jalal, (1898) 69 P R 1898.

2. Serh Mal v. Hukam Singh, (1898) 20 All 100.

3. Janki Prasad v. Ishar Das, (1899) 21 All 374=1899 A W N 126.

4. Narain Singh v. Parbat Singh, (1901) 23 All 247=1901 A W N 66.

circumstances, the fact that the purchase takes place in assertion of the right or otherwise is immaterial.

Besides, there is overwhelming authority in support of the proposition that a pre emptor in order to succeed in his claim must not only possess a superior right at the time of the sale but must retain the superiority on the basis of which he claims to pre-empt also at the stage of the suit and the stage of the decree: see 14 Lah 421¹² and 16 Lah 921.¹³ Now, can a pre-emptor whose right is not superior to that of a vendee at the time of the suit or at the time of the decree be allowed to pre-empt the land merely because the vendee did not expressly assert his right of pre-emption before obtaining the sale of the said land. To me, it appears that the only proper answer that can be given to this question is in the negative. On these grounds, I accept the appeal, set aside the judgment of the District Judge and dismiss the suit with costs throughout.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

12. Het Ram v Dalchand, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 481=141 I O 535=14 Lah 421=34 P L R 101.
 13. Hayat Bakhsh v. Mansabdar Khan, (1935) 22 A I R Lah 529=160 I O 826=16 Lah 921=37 P L R 873.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 244

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Chaudhri Hakam Ali — Plaintiff —
Appellant.

v.

Hashu — Defendant — Respondent.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 76 of 1936, Decided on 1st July 1937, from decree of Bbide J., Lahore, D/. 3rd March 1936, reported in A I R 1937 Lah 146.

(a) Punjab Colonization of Government Lands Act (5 of 1912), Ss. 3 and 19—'Collector of District' held did not include Settlement Officer having powers of Collector.

Where the Commissioner by letter empowered 'the Collector of the Lyallpur District' to sanction sales under S. 19:

Held that the words 'the Collector of the Lyallpur District' did not include the Settlement Officer having powers of Collector. [P 245 O 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 17—Suit on contract of sale of land—Contract found to be void owing to invalid sanction—Purchaser though not claiming alternative relief for refund of purchase money held should be allowed to amend his plaint to recover purchase money: 39 P L R 287=A I R 1937 Lah 146=162 I O 557, Reversed.

A suit was brought on a contract of sale of land which was subject to the conditions of the Punjab Colonization of Government Lands Act. The sale was discovered to be void owing to invalid sanction. The purchaser had not claimed an alternative relief in the plaint for the recovery of the purchase money which he had paid under the contract:

Held that the purchaser should be permitted to amend his plaint in order to obtain the refund of the purchase money and should not be referred to a separate suit: 39 P L R 287=A I R 1937 Lah 146=162 I O 557, Reversed. [P 245 O 2]

Abdul Majid — for Appellant.

Abdul Karim — for Respondent.

Skemp J.—This Letters Patent Appeal has arisen in the following circumstances: The land in suit is situate within the limits of the Lower Chenab Canal Colony and is subject to the conditions of the Colonization of Government Lands (Punjab) Act, 1912. On 2nd November 1922, the defendant sold the land to the appellant by registered deed being only a tenant at the time. According to the registered deed Rs. 200 had been paid in advance; the balance of Rs. 2300 was paid in cash before the Sub-Registrar. On 11th January 1923, the respondent applied to the Collector of the Lyallpur district for sanction. This application was actually put up before Mr. J. D. Penny, Settlement Officer, Lyallpur, who had the powers of a Collector. He called for a report from the Assistant Colonization Officer, which was to the effect that proprietary rights could not be given until the malikana on the whole khata had been paid. Mr. Penny then gave formal sanction to the sale and on 9th June 1923, the sale formed the subject of a mutation in the revenue records.

On 7th February 1934, the plaintiff sued for possession of the land which had been sold to him, saying that possession had not been given. The defendant took all possible defences. He pleaded that the consideration had not been paid and also that the sanction of the Commissioner to the sale, as required by law, had not been obtained and that the sale was therefore void. The trial Judge dismissed the suit on the merits, but the learned District Judge accepted the appeal. He found that the deed of sale had been executed and consideration had been paid in full. As to the question of the Commissioner's sanction, he allowed the plaintiff to bring on the record two documents Exs. P. A and P. B. which had been obtained from the office of the Commissioner of Multan with very great difficulty. He held that the Commissioner under S. 19, Colonization of Government Lands (Punjab) Act, had empowered Mr. Penny to sanction sales as Collector and that the sale was good. He granted the plaintiff the decree he sought.

The defendant appealed to the High Court and Bhide J. held that the sanction Ex. P.A actually granted by the Commissioner applied in terms only to the Collector of the district and not to Mr. Penny, Settlement Officer, as Collector. He therefore accepted the appeal and dismissed the suit. A suggestion was made before him that the plaintiff might at least be granted refund of the money he had paid under the contract but the learned Judge thought that a separate suit should be lodged. The plaintiff has lodged a Letters Patent appeal, a certificate being given by the learned Judge in Chambers, and three points have been argued before us: (1) What is the effect of Ex. P.A? (2) Whether the plaintiff had actually acquired proprietary rights? and (3) Whether the plaintiff, if unsuccessful otherwise, should not be allowed a refund of the money which he has paid?

On the first point it is necessary to consider the law. S. 3, Colonization of Government Lands Act (1912) lays down:

"Collector" means the Collector of the district as described in the Punjab Land Revenue Act, 1887, and includes any officer appointed by the Local Government to perform all or any of the functions and exercise all or any of the powers of the Collector under this Act.

Mr. Penny, Settlement Officer, was gazetted with all the powers of a Collector subject to the control of the Deputy Commissioner, Lyallpur, under the authority of this S. 3 by Gazette Notification dated 2nd December 1920.

S. 19 of the Act lays down:

None of the rights or interests vested in a tenant under this Act shall without the consent in writing of the Commissioner or of such officer as he may by written order empower in this behalf be transferred or charged by any sale, exchange, etc.

The Act came into force on 6th June 1912 and on 26th July 1912, in Ex. P.A, the Commissioner wrote to the Deputy Commissioner of Lyallpur, saying:

I hereby empower the Collector of the Lyallpur District to sanction transfer of rights under S. 19 of Act 5 of 1912.

Ex. P.B is a letter, dated 10th June 1935, from the Commissioner to the Deputy Commissioner, Lyallpur, saying the words "the Collector of the Lyallpur District" in the letter of 26th July 1912, should be interpreted as applicable to the Settlement Officer, Lyallpur, as well as the Deputy Commissioner, Lyallpur. This letter was written after the trial of the present action in the original Court was completed and the learned District Judge quite rightly held that it could not possibly affect the present action. The question for determination then is whether the words "the Collector of the Lyallpur district" include the Settlement Officer of Lyallpur. He had been endowed with all the powers of a Collector subject to the control of the Deputy Commissioner of Lyallpur.

In our opinion, the words in the letter do not include the Settlement Officer as Collector. S. 3 of the Act itself, as already quoted, makes a distinction between the Collector of the District and any officer appointed to perform functions or exercise powers as Collector. The appeal fails, therefore on the main point. As to the second point, prima facie the finding of the learned District Judge on this point is a question of fact and after hearing Mr. Abdul Majid we see no reason to differ from this finding. On the third point, however we do not see why the plaintiff should not be permitted to amend his plaint in order to obtain the recovery of Rs 2500 under the contract. The necessary findings of fact have already been arrived at by the learned District Judge in consequence of untrue pleadings made by the defendant and we do not see any reason why the plaintiff should be referred to a separate suit which might now possibly be barred by time.

The learned counsel for the respondent has also contended that there could be no pleading in the alternative for a refund of the money in case the contract was held to be void, and secondly, that he should be given an opportunity to prove that the plaintiff knew all along that Mr. Penny's sanction was not a good sanction. Neither of these arguments has any force. We therefore accept the Letters Patent appeal to this extent that we allow the plaintiff time until 13th July to pay into this Court the Court fee on Rs 2500. If he does so, he will be granted a decree for recovery of this amount from the defendant. In view of the circumstances, the parties are to bear their own costs throughout.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal partly allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 246

COLDSTREAM AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Imam Bakhsh Munawar Din and others — Defendants — Appellants.

v.

Mandar Narsingh Puri Parhalad Puri — Plaintiff — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 1391 of 1936, Decided on 5th July 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Multan, D/- 23rd July 1936.

(a) Mahomedan Law—Wakf—Plots of land described in revenue records as graveyard and from very early time, in existence as kabaristan — Land is presumed to be wakf—Fact that no objection had been taken to original owner's taking reeds from graveyard will not alter nature of wakf.

The fact that certain plots of land were described in the revenue records as graveyard and had been in existence and used from a very early time as kabaristan by the Mahomedan community, is by itself presumptive evidence that the land had been set apart for use as a burial ground and that by user, if not by dedication the land is wakf. The nature of wakf will not be altered by the fact that Mahomedan community had taken no objection to the original owner's taking reeds from the graveyard: A I R 1936 P C 83 and 27 P R 1913, Rel. on. [P 247 O 1, 2]

(b) Mahomedan Law—Wakf—Definite area of land dedicated for use as graveyard—Presumption.

Once it is found that a certain definite area of land has been dedicated for use as a graveyard, it must be presumed, in the absence of any proof that the dedication was limited, that the whole of the land was set apart to be used solely for the purpose of burying the dead: 27 P R 1913 and A I R 1934 All 335, Rel. on. [P 247 O 2 ; P 248 O 1]

Barkat Ali and Shabir Ahmad —

for Appellants.

Aohhru Ram and Vishnu Datta —

for Respondent.

Coldstream J.—The dispute giving rise to this second appeal is over a piece of land outside Multan City. This land, through, or into, which a broad pathway runs, measures 33 kanals and 17 marlas and has been used as a Mahomedan graveyard for generations but in the revenue records is described as the property of an ancient Hindu temple in Multan City, the Mandar Narsinghpuri Parhalad Puri. In 1932, according to the plaintiff, but some 40 years ago according to the defendants, some Mahomedans built a mud wall round the land and erected a building upon it alleged to be for the convenience of people using the graveyard.

On 4th November 1932, the managing body of the temple, through its President instituted a suit against a number of Mahomedans, as representing the Mahomedan community, for a declaration that the temple was owner of the land, and the defendants had no right to interfere with its rights, in particular the right of passing along the path, and for an order that the defendants should demolish the wall and building, remove the graves and obstructions on the pathway and cease from cutting reeds growing on the land. A sum of Rs. 140 was also claimed as damages done to the land by digging, taking water, cutting reeds and pruning a tree.

The trial Court found that the land had been a graveyard established a long time before the first land revenue records of 1868 described it as such, that the pathway was part of the graveyard to which place alone it gave access, that the land must be presumed to have been dedicated for use as a graveyard and therefore it was wakf. It further held that the plaintiff temple had no right whatever in the land and had not proved that the temple had suffered any damage. On these findings it dismissed the suit.

The temple manager appealed and the learned District Judge found that there was evidence showing that the management of the temple had from time to time cut trees and reeds in the graveyard and that the pathway did not end in the graveyard but had to be used for the exercise of the temple's rights in the land. His conclusion was that the temple was owner of the land subject to the right of the defendant community to use the land as a graveyard. He accordingly accepted the appeal and gave the plaintiff a declaration of ownership and an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the plaintiff's right to cut trees and reeds, and ordered the defendants to demolish the building and wall, give up possession of an area of 7 marlas of the old path in which graves had been made (the graves were not however to be demolished) and pay Rs. 5 compensation to the plaintiff for unauthorized use of water and earth.

From this judgment the defendants have appealed. It is contended that the evidence proves that the whole area described in the revenue records and the pathway are a consecrated burial ground and that the suit had therefore been rightly dismissed in the trial Court and wrongly decreed by the learned District Judge. The land is measured for land revenue purposes in three plots numbered in the records of 1923.24 as Nos. 3094, 3095 and 3096. The last two are described as a graveyard in possession of the Mahomedan community. No. 3094 is shown as a road (rasta) running between these plots from end to end, covering an area of 2 kanals 7 marlas of which a portion measuring 7 kanals is occupied by graves (goristan).

At the first regular settlement in 1868 the plots now numbered 3095 and 3096 were described as "a graveyard" (zer kabaristan) and the description in the subsequent records is the same until 1895.96 when they were shown as a graveyard in possession of the Mahomedan community. The pathway was described simply as a road until 1923.24 when the area of 7 marlas occupied by graves was shown as in possession of the Mahomedan community as was the rest of the graveyard. From the history of the land given in the settlement records, it appears that during the time of the Sikhs a Bairagi applied to be given the land, which was uncultivated and unclaimed and appropriated it. Of the land irrigated by five of the wells situated on it, that pertaining to three wells was given to the Bairagi as a muafi by Maharaja Ranjit Singh (1804.39). From the fact that the whole area now mapped as Nos. 3095 and 3096 was described as a graveyard in 1868, it is certain that the graveyard had been in existence a long time and the admitted fact that since then it has been a kabaristan is by itself presumptive evidence that the land had been set apart for use as a burial ground and that by user, if not by dedication, the land is wakf : 38 P L R 182.¹ It is still used as a Mahomedan graveyard and the right of Mahomedans so to use it is admitted.

The argument of the respondents' counsel before us is that the evidence of user raises a presumption merely that the Mahomedans have a right to bury their dead in the land and no presumption that the plaintiff temple has lost its rights as owner, and in support of this argument reliance is placed on the finding by the lower Appellate Court that the plaintiff temple has been removing reeds from the graveyard from time to time. This finding, which is one of fact and final, is justified by the evidence, but it proves no more than that up to that time no objection was taken to the plaintiff's taking the reeds from this area as well as from other areas of waste land recorded as his. At least one Mahomedan bought reeds from the temple. The Mahomedans may have been apathetic or probably enough, were content at that time to live in amity with an important Hindu landlord and such conduct will not alter the nature of the wakf if there was a wakf: see the Chief Court's judgment in 27 P R 1913² at page 97. What the nature of the wakf is seems clear from the records, a dedication of the whole area for use as a burial ground. The area has been distinctly defined since 1868 and there is no evidence justifying the conjecture that the original owner merely allowed Mahomedans to use his land for burying their dead while reserving to himself a right to cut reeds and trees. It was for the plaintiff to prove such a special form of dedication. But the plaintiff's case is that there has never been any dedication. The presumption raised by the documentary evidence is that dedication was effective long before the Bairagi was granted his muafi by Maharaja Ranjit Singh. Most of the judgments to which respondents counsel has referred us in this part of his argument deal with cases wholly different in circumstances from that before us.

23 Bom 666,³ was a case in which a customary right of burial in privately owned land was claimed. There existed no ancient Mahomedan graveyard.

33 I O 91⁴, a judgment by a single Judge of the Allahabad Court certainly supports the contention that trees on a Mahomedan graveyard may be the private property of the successors of the person by whom the graveyard was dedicated. But the defendants appropriated the trees for a purpose unconnected with the wakf, a fact which greatly influenced the Court in decreeing the plaintiff's suit.

In my view, once it is found that a certain definite area of land has been dedicated for use as a graveyard it must be presumed, in the absence of any proof that

2. Court of Wards v. Ilahi Bakhsh, (1913) 27 P R 1913=17 I O 744=40 I A 18=40 Cal 297 (P O).

3. Mohidin v. Sivlingappa, (1899) 23 Bom 666=1 Bom L R 170.

4. Fakhruddin v. Mohammad Rafiq, AIR 1916 All 117=88 I O 91.

1. Ballabh Das v. Nur Mohammad, A I R 1936 P O 88=160 I O 579=88 PLR 182 (P O).

the dedication was limited, that the whole of the land was set apart to be used solely for the purpose of burying the dead : see the Chief Court judgments in 27 P R 19, 3² and 149 I C 966.⁵ My conclusion is that the only possible decision as to the legal effect of the facts proved is that the land recorded as Nos. 3095 and 3096 is wakf property in which no private rights exist. That the revenue records show the plaintiff to be owner no doubt shifted the onus in this case on to the defendants but this onus they have, in my opinion, discharged by the production of the entries in those same records showing that from 1868 the land has been a 'kabaristan'.

The learned District Judge has referred in his judgment to evidence that there are in the graveyard Hindu tombs of Purbias who were buried instead of burnt. He has mentioned two witnesses Kanmu Ram and Girdhari Ram. When the trial Judge inspected the graveyard some graves alleged to be of Hindus were shown to him. The learned District Judge has found that there are distinctive Hindu graves at a distance from the Mahomedan graves. But it was never the plaintiff's case that the land had been dedicated for use as a burial ground by others than Mahomedans. The trial Court's judgment makes no mention of any such suggestion. The plaintiff's case was that although the plots 3095 and 3096 are as a fact a Mahomedan graveyard but he himself is entitled to certain rights in them quite unconnected with any Hindu grave.

As regards the road, the trial Court found that it goes nowhere except to the graveyard. The learned District Judge who also inspected the place says that after leaving the graveyard the path joins another leading to a neighbouring well and this finding cannot be questioned. The plaintiff's own plan shows however that now at any rate the path is closed at its exit by the defendants' wall and the "village map" (presumably the map on the revenue records) does not show that the path goes further than the graveyard. (D. W. 1 Nabi Bakhsh) Graves were made on the pathway as already indicated between 1919 and 1923. The plaintiff apparently raised no objection to this. There is no evidence that the pathway has ever been used by others than those visiting the graveyard, or that its use is necessary to reach any place other than the graveyard. The learned District Judge has decided that the plaintiff must use it for exercising his rights but as in my view he does not possess the rights he claims this ground for the Lower Court's decision regarding the paths disappears.

Respondents' counsel has not attempted to support the lower Appellate Court's award of nominal damages. I know of no authority for the view that a tenant has no right to allow a third party to take water from his well for his own purpose if the tenant does not require it for himself and the evidence is that the water used by the defendants was given to them by a tenant of Tarkhanwala well. It is not found that the earth taken had any market-value or that the taking of it did any appreciable damage. For the reasons indicated, I would accept this appeal and dismiss the suit with costs throughout.

Din Mohammad J.—I agree.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 248

COLDSTREAM AND MONROE JJ.

In the matter of B, a Pleader, Simla.

Civil Misc. No. 345 of 1937, Decided on 15th July 1937.

Legal Practitioners Act (1879), S. 13 — A engaging B a pleader to defend one and to conduct another suit — Fees settled were to be paid within one year—Both suits then referred to arbitration—A paying B certain amount, half to be paid as arbitrator's fees and rest towards B's fees — B appropriating whole amount towards his fees—Year of payment of fees had not elapsed—B held to have wrongfully retained amount and his conduct was grossly improper. Even if B committed no criminal offence his conduct called for disciplinary action.

A appointed B, a pleader, to defend a suit instituted against her and also to conduct another suit filed by her. Both these suits were subsequently referred to arbitration. Certain fees were settled for these suits and they were to be paid within one year. A paid Rs. 100 to B and told him that Rs. 50 were to be paid as her contribution to the arbitrator's fees and Rs. 50 should be credited by B towards his fees. B did not pay Rs. 50 to the arbitrator but appropriated the whole of Rs. 100 towards his fees. One year during which fees were to be paid had not yet elapsed :

Held that B wrongfully retained for himself Rs. 50 which had been handed over to him for payment to the arbitrator and that his conduct in doing so was grossly improper in the discharge of his professional duty. Even if no criminal offence was committed by B in appropriating the amount towards his fees which were due to him, his conduct was gravely improper on the part of the counsel and called for disciplinary action.

5. Jhao Lal v. Ahmudullah, A I R 1984 All 885 =149 I C 966=1936 A L J 248.

[P 250 C 2]

Diwan Ram Lal (Advocate-General) —
for the Crown.

Shamair Chand — for Respondent.

Order.—In September 1936, Dr. Jessie George, a retired member of Women's Medical Service, submitted a representation supported by her affidavit, accusing B, a lawyer practising in Simla of unprofessional conduct in the course of his duties as her counsel. The matter was referred to the District Judge of Simla for enquiry and report. Dr. Jessie George's case was as follows :

In September 1934 a Mr. King of Simla who was acting as agent for Dr. George instituted with his daughter a suit against Dr. George to recover a loan on the basis of an alleged equitable mortgage in the plaintiff's favour and to recover agency charges. Dr. George filed a cross suit against Mr. King. In July 1935 the parties referred both disputes to arbitration, the arbitrator being Lala Shankar Nath, an advocate of Simla.

In both suits Dr. George engaged B, the fee agreed on according to her, being Rs. 300 and Rs. 30 for munshi's fees for both suits. Rs. 100 was paid when B was briefed in December 1934. The Court accepted a preliminary objection as to the competency of Mr. King's suit as framed and allowed Dr. George Rs. 50 costs. This sum of Rs. 50 was recovered and paid to B in June 1935. Dr. George's story is that in October 1935 she handed Rs. 100 to B telling him that Rs. 50 were to go towards his fee and Rs. 50 were to be paid as her contribution to the arbitrator's fee. B appropriated the whole of Rs. 100 towards his fee.

The arbitrator made his award on 21st December 1935. It was it seems generally favourable to Mr. King and Dr. George instructed B to file objections to it. The Simla Courts were closed for their winter vacation. When they reopened B filed an application on 1st February, the last day within limitation, stating that objections were raised which would be detailed subsequently and on 10th February detailed objections drawn up with the help of another pleader were presented. These were dismissed as barred by time. The learned District Judge drew up three charges against B : (1) that he had been grossly negligent in delaying the filing of the objections until they were barred by limitation ; (2) that B had wrongfully retained documents belonging to his client (B claimed a lien on the documents until his fee was paid); and (3) that B had wrongfully retained Rs. 50 given him for payment to the arbitrator.

The learned District Judge found it not established that the conduct of B fell within any of the clauses in S. 13, Legal Practitioners Act in respect of any of the three charges. At the same time he remarked that the conduct of B "did not redound to his credit" and that he had not given true answers on certain points. He also recommended that Dr. George should be allowed her expenses as she had discharged a public duty.

On 21st May 1937 the Advocate-General submitted a petition praying this Court to call upon B to show cause why he should not be dismissed or suspended from practice under S. 13, Legal Practitioners Act, and a notice was issued accordingly by the Registrar under the orders of the Court. The respondent has appeared before us and we have heard the learned Government Advocate in support of the petition and Mr. Shamair Chand who has opposed it on behalf of the respondent.

As regards the first two charges which have not been seriously pressed before us by the learned Advocate General, after considering counsel's arguments and examining the evidence we do not think that it is necessary to take action against the respondent. As to the charge of wrongful retention of Rs. 50, the respondent's case is that the whole of the Rs. 100 was given him in October 1935 by Dr. George towards payment of his fee of Rs. 300 plus Rs. 30 munshiana which was to be paid within six months from the time of his engagement in December 1934, that the arbitrator had not demanded payment, as Dr. George alleges he had done, and that when the Rs. 100 were handed to him he was still owed the greater part of his fee for the mortgage suit and the whole of his fee for the cross suit which had been fixed at Rs. 200 plus Rs. 20 munshiana. According to George, she had attended the respondent's wife during her confinement, and there was due a fee of Rs. 130 for her professional services. Nothing therefore was due from her to the respondent, the amount being settled thus :

Rs. 100 paid when respondent was briefed.

Rs. 50 (costs awarded in Mr. King's suit and paid to respondent).

Rs. 50 paid in October 1935 and

Rs. 130 set off on account of the fee for medical attendance.

From the evidence of Dr. George (cross examined) it appears that she engaged respondent before she filed her cross suit, but no further agreement about fees was made and she understood that another fee was not required. The respondent's statement is that he asked Dr. George for his fees in both the suits so that he could put in a certificate and claim the amount as costs and Dr. George "then adjusted the fees of the mortgage suit and promised to pay the fees of the account suit later on," this was in April 1936 (p. 7 of the printed record).

On a consideration of the evidence we are satisfied that in respect of the purpose for which the Rs. 100 were handed to the respondent in October 1935 Dr. George's version is correct. It is corroborated by the evidence of the witness Mr. Mondieta (P. W. 2) who is a retired Registrar of the office of the Survey of India (he says the transaction was in November, but there is a slip of memory). The witness is quite certain of his facts. He says the respondent asked Dr. George for the arbitrator's fee and thereupon Dr. George took Rs. 100 from her bag in notes explaining that Rs. 50 were to be paid to the arbitrator and Rs. 50 only retained towards counsel's fee. This was after a discussion at Dr. George's house, where the parties and witness met and drank tea, on the result of the arbitration. There is also the evidence of the arbitrator Lala Shankar Nath P. W. 3. From this it appears that his fee was raised from Rs. 100 to Rs. 200 after October 1935. Lala Shankar Nath says he did not demand payment until his fee had been raised, which testimony corroborates the respondent. But he has testified that Dr. George wrote and told him (the documents show that this was in 1936) that Rs. 50 had been given by her to the respondent for payment of the arbitrator's fee. From the writing (p. 45) given by the respondent to Dr. George on 10th December 1934, acknowledging receipt of Rs. 100 out of Rs. 330 as fee and munshiana for defending her in Mr. King's suit, it appears that the balance was to be payable within one year from that date. So that in October 1935 Dr. George had still time to pay the balance under her agreement with her counsel.

Our conclusion is that the respondent wrongfully retained for himself Rs. 50 which had been handed to him for payment to Lala Shankar Nath and that his conduct in doing so was grossly improper in the discharge of his professional duty. It is contended before us by counsel for the respondent that even if he retained Rs. 50 knowing that it was intended to be paid to the arbitrator he committed no criminal offence as he merely appropriated money due to him and this did not cause Dr. George any wrongful loss. But there is no criminal charge before us for decision and even if no criminal offence was committed, the respondent's conduct was in our opinion gravely improper on the part of a counsel and calls for disciplinary action. From our finding as to the facts, it follows that the respondent did not speak the truth when examined by the learned District Judge in denying that he was given the money for the arbitrator and not for himself—a fact which we must take into consideration in deciding what orders we have to pass against him.

On the other hand, it is clear that in October 1935 the respondent had not been paid his full fee and whereas previously Dr. George and he were on friendly terms (this is shown by the documents) a dispute arose owing to the arbitrator's award being unfavourable to Dr. George over the amount due from one to the other. There is no evidence that the respondent agreed to pay Rs. 130 for Dr. George's professional services or when, if ever, as fee for these services was fixed. The respondent has credited her with Rs. 50 more paid in cash towards his fee than Dr. George says she had paid, and with Rs. 50 on account of her professional services to his wife.

Having regard to all the circumstances, we think it proper to pass the following order: We suspend B from practice for three months but postpone the effect of this order until 1st October 1937 and direct him to pay the costs of the Advocate-General which we fix at Rs. 100 and also Rs. 500 towards the costs of Dr. George, the petitioner in this case. If he pays the said costs before 1st October 1937 the suspension will not take effect. If he does not so pay in the money by that date, the suspension will take effect on 1st October and continue for three months or, if the money is paid before the expiry of three months, until the money is paid in.

S.O./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 251

JAI LAL AND BHIDE, JJ.

Emperor.

v.

Jagiri Lal — Accused — Respondent.

Criminal Appeals Nos. 212 and 213 of 1937, Decided on 20th July 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Lyallpur, D/- 14th November 1936.

(a) Telegraphs Act (1885), S. 27—Applicability — For offence under S. 27, there must be transmission of message without recovering charge therefor, required to be recovered before-hand—Defrauding should be result of such transmission — No offence under S. 27 when charge is not required to be recovered before-hand but it is to be recovered in terms of monthly bills submitted to telephone owners.

Section 27 is intended only to apply to those cases in which the charge prescribed is recoverable before transmission of the message. The section contemplates that the defrauding should be the result of the transmission of the message without recovering the prescribed charge. [P 251 C 2; P 252 C 1]

Where the charges for the messages are not payable before the transmission of the messages according to the rules but it is to be recovered from the telephone owners by submitting monthly bills to them for the calls made by them and the head operator of the telephone exchange transmits a certain message on behalf of the telephone owner without recovering the charge for the message beforehand, the head operator cannot be said to have committed an offence under S. 27 of the Act. [P 251 C 2]

(b) Interpretation of Statutes — Statute should be interpreted according to plain meaning of words and sentences.

The first and foremost canon of interpretation is that a statute should be construed according to the plain meaning of the words and sentences contained therein. [P 252 C 1]

Mohammad Munir — for the Crown.

A. G. Maurice — for Respondent.

Bhide J. — This judgment will dispose of Criminal Appeals Nos. 212 and 213 of 1937, which arise out of two cases under S. 27, Telegraph Act, against the respondent Jagiri Lal. Three charges under this section were tried together in each of these cases. The respondent was convicted by the trial Court on most of these counts, but the learned Sessions Judge having acquitted him, the Local Government has preferred these appeals. The first important question which arises for decision in these appeals is whether the charges against the respondent fall properly under S. 27, Telegraph Act. The section runs as follows :

If any telegraph officer transmits by telegraph any message on which the charge prescribed by the Government, or by a person licensed under this Act, as the case may be, has not been paid, intending thereby to defraud the Government or that person, he shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, or with fine, or with both.

The respondent Jagiri Lal was the Head Operator at the telephone exchange at Gojra in the Lyallpur district and the allegation against him was that he transmitted certain messages on behalf of a telephone-owner at Gojra, with the intention of defrauding Government. The charges for these messages were admittedly not payable before the transmission of the messages according to the Rules, but it was the duty of the respondent to prepare certain memoranda and register the particulars of the calls, so as to furnish the basis for the monthly bills to be submitted to the caller for payment. The prosecution case was that the respondent had either omitted to prepare these memoranda or had prepared false ones in order to defraud Government. Assuming for the moment that he did so, the question for consideration is whether the charge would fall under S. 27, Telegraph Act. The learned Sessions Judge has held that it would, though he has found in favour of the respondent on facts. But after carefully considering the wording of the section, it seems to me that the charge cannot properly be held to fall within its scope. The essence of the offence, according to the plain wording of the section would appear to be the transmission of a message 'on which the charge prescribed by the Government has not been paid', and the intention must be 'thereby to defraud the Government'. In the present instance, the charge prescribed by the Government was not payable in advance as stated above and consequently there was nothing wrong in the mere transmission of a message without payment of the charge. It follows therefore that the respondent could not intend to defraud the Government by the mere transmission of the message without payment. The section on the other hand, seems to me to contemplate that the defrauding should be the result of the transmission of the message without recovering the prescribed charge. The word 'thereby' and the context in which it occurs in the section is noteworthy in this connexion.

The learned counsel for the Crown contended that the section is applicable as the message was one which was transmitted without recovering any charges, and the respondent either omitted to record the necessary particulars with respect to the call, or recorded false particulars. But if this be so, the offence would seem to consist in the omission to record the entries required by the rules and not in the transmission of the message without recovering the prescribed charge. The section however says nothing about omission to record the particulars regarding the call. The fact appears to me to be that the section was intended only to apply to those cases in which the charge prescribed was recoverable before transmission of the message and the situation which has arisen in the present case was not contemplated by the framers of the section. The marginal note of the section also would seem to support this view. The construction sought to be placed on the section by the learned counsel for the Crown appears to me to be a forced one. The first and foremost canon of interpretation is that a statute should be construed according to the plain meaning of the words and sentences contained therein and applying this test, I feel no hesitation in holding that the charges against the respondent do not fall properly within the purview of S. 27 of the Telegraph Act. The acts alleged, might constitute offences under the Indian Penal Code, but the respondent was not charged with any other offence and it is therefore not necessary to consider that aspect of the question for the purpose of the present appeals.

On the above finding, it is unnecessary to discuss the findings of facts of the learned Sessions Judge. I would accordingly dismiss these appeals.

Jai Lal J. — I agree.

A.L./R.K. Appeals dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 252

ABDUL RASHID J.

Singha Khobi — Convict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 809 of 1937, Decided on 8th November 1937, from order of Special Magistrate, Punjab and Delhi at Lahore, D/. 20th January 1937.

(a) Penal Code (1860), S. 457—Mere recovery of complainant's shirt from accused person is not sufficient for conviction under S. 457.

The recovery of a shirt alleged to belong to the complainant from the person of accused charged under S. 457 is not alone sufficient for his conviction under that section. [P 252 C 2]

(b) Criminal Trial—Confession retracted—Evidentiary value.

A retracted confession may be valuable evidence against the accused making the confession, but it is of very little value against a co-accused. [P 252 C 2 ; P 253 C 1]

S. N. Bali for Advocate-General —

for the Crown.

Judgment.—On 23rd January 1936 a burglary took place in the quarters of Rishi Raj Sarup and Charanji Lal, railway clerks, at Panipat. Some shirts, coats and other clothing belonging to the two complainants were carried away by the culprits. Four persons, namely Mubarak Ali, Singha, Lajja and Atu, were placed on their trial for this burglary under S. 457, Penal Code. Atu was acquitted by the trial Court. Mubarak Ali and Singha were convicted under S. 457, Penal Code, and sentenced to five years' and nine months' rigorous imprisonment respectively. Lajja was awarded a sentence of six months' rigorous imprisonment under S. 411. The three convicts have preferred separate appeals to this Court from jail which can be conveniently disposed of by one judgment.

Singha, appellant, made a confession on 7th April 1936, and this was duly recorded by a Magistrate under S. 164, Criminal P. C. One shirt (Ex. P.3) belonging to one of the complainants was recovered from the house of Singha on 3rd April 1936. This evidence in my opinion establishes the guilt of Singha, appellant, beyond all reasonable doubt, and I therefore dismiss his appeal. The only evidence against Mubarak Ali, appellant, is that a shirt alleged to belong to one of the complainants was recovered from his person on 11th February 1936. This shirt has been identified by one of the complainants as his property. According to the confession of Singha, only one quilt, one durrie and one mattress were taken away by Mubarak Ali out of the articles stolen at Panipat. The stolen shirt did not fall to Mubarak Ali's share. Moreover, the recovery of a shirt from the person of Mubarak Ali in my opinion is not sufficient for his conviction under S. 457, Penal Code. A retracted confession may be valuable evidence against the accused making the confession but it is of very little value against a co-accused. In these circumstances I am not satisfied that Mubarak Ali participated in the burglary in question. Accordingly I accept the appeal of Mubarak Ali, and acquit him.

Three articles, namely a coat, a durrie and a quilt belonging to the complainants were recovered from the house of Lajja on 12th February 1936, that is, about three weeks after the commission of the burglary. This evidence in my opinion is sufficient for the conviction of Lajja, appellant, under S. 411, Penal Code. I therefore dismiss his appeal.

V.B.B./R.K. Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 253

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

B. C. G. A. Punjab Limited —
Defendant — Appellant.
v.

Bharat Krishna Trading Company Limited, Plaintiff — Respondent.

First Appeal No. 19 of 1936, Decided on 7th May 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Montgomery, D/- 23rd December 1935.

Contract—Pucca Arhtia is so-called agent acting as principal—S. 230, Contract Act, does not apply to Pucca Arhtia.

Ordinarily the words "Pucca Arhtia" convey that the so-called agent is acting as a principal on behalf of the person with whom he buys or sells the commodities in question. There can therefore be no question of the application of S. 230 in his case. [P 254 O 1]

Aohhru Ram and Indar Deva —
for Appellant.

Shamair Chand and Arjan Das —
for Respondent.

Dalip Singh J. — The plaintiff, the Bharat Krishna Trading Co. Ltd. Okara, sued the two defendants, the B. C. G. A. Punjab, Ltd. Khanewal, and the Seeds Department, B. C. G. A. Punjab, Ltd. Khanewal, for recovery of Rs. 51,474.3.0 on the basis of a bahi account. The plaint is reproduced in extenso in the judgment of the trial Court printed in Vol. III of the printed paper-book at p. 65; so also is reproduced the entire written statement of the defendant-respondent, B. C. G. A. Punjab, Ltd. Khanewal. The defence of the other defendant was naturally the same, as it was alleged by the plaintiff that the one was merely a branch of the other though an alternative plea was taken that in any case defendant 1 was a partner with defendant 2. The plaintiff in brief alleged that he had entered into certain transactions of forward contracts of wheat and gram on behalf of the Seeds Department, Okara, which was again, according to the plaintiff, only a branch of defendant 1, the alternative plea again being taken that defendants 1 and 2 were, at any rate, admitted partners of the Seeds Department, Okara firm. The plaintiff alleged that owing to these transactions, after accounts had been gone into, a loss occurred by reason of the rates falling below the contract rate and in accordance with term 5 of his agreement with the Seeds Department, Okara, printed in Vol. III, p. 108, he called upon the defendants to make good the loss to the extent warranted by clause 5 of the said agreement that the defendants refused to make the deposit demanded by him and that therefore he settled the forward contracts, as he was entitled to do under clause 5 of the agreement, with the result that there was a loss of Rs. 47,325 8 0 principal, in addition to which the plaintiff claimed Rs. 4148.14.0 as interest due: thus making up the total claim of Rs. 51,474.3 0.

The defendants in reply raised all kinds of pleadings which do not now concern us and the trial Court framed issues which are printed in Vol. I, pp. 24 and 27, of the printed paper book, and also in the judgment at p. 74. Most of the relevant issues framed were decided in favour of the plaintiff and finally the Court passed a decree for Rs. 45,129.1.9 with proportionate costs. The reason for the difference between the sum allowed and the sum claimed was that the Court held that the plaintiff was not entitled to settle accounts on 1400 bags of gram Maghar, 200 bags of wheat Pbagan and 800 bags of gram Maghar. This amounted to a total of Rs. 2676.10.3, and, along with an arbitration fee of Rs. 20, which was also disallowed, made the difference between the two sums, adding the item of interest on damages which the Court disallowed. Both sides have appealed, the defendant claiming that nothing was due to the plaintiff at all and the plaintiff claiming that the sums disallowed by the Court had been wrongly disallowed. I shall deal first with the main appeal, namely that of the defendant. The learned counsel contended, firstly, that the plaintiff was not competent to sue inasmuch as he was only an agent and the names of the principals had been disclosed to the parties concerned. I do not consider that there is any force in this contention at all. It was clearly found by the Court, and it was not contested before us, that the plaintiff acted as a Pacca Arhtia. Now, ordinarily speaking, the words "Pacca Arhtia" convey that the so-called agent is acting as a principal on behalf of the person with whom he buys or sells the commodities in question. There can therefore be no question of the application of S. 230, Contract Act. What the learned counsel for the appellant endeavoured to argue was that the term "Pacca Arhtia," which occurs in the agreement printed in Vol. III at p. 108, meant something different from the ordinary connotation of the term because he contended that the term was not a term with a fixed meaning but varied according to the different markets where the term might be employed. This may be so, but no such plea was taken by the defendants; on the contrary, they pleaded that the plaintiff was not a "Pacca Arhtia" at all and when faced with the express agreement, they relied on the fact that Kuljas Rai had not been competent to execute any such agreement, or had not, as a matter of fact, executed it. It was held by the Court and the matter has not been contended before us that Kuljas Rai did execute the agreement in question and therefore the point now sought to be raised by the learned counsel for the appellant does not really arise. I would therefore repel the first contention. (After discussing evidence on other points raised, their Lordships continued.) The result is that the appeal of the defendant-appellant fails and is dismissed with costs. Turning now to the plaintiff's cross-appeal I have already dealt with the item of Rs. 2676.10.3 which must be allowed. The learned counsel for the appellant has not pressed the item of Rs. 20 (arbitration fee) or the item for interest upon damages; nor has he pressed the claim to interest up to date of suit or to future interest. This sum should therefore be added to the sum allowed by the trial Court with proportionate costs to the plaintiff-appellant throughout. The plaintiff's cross-appeal is therefore accepted with costs proportionate to the amount allowed.

Skemp J.—I agree.

B.D./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 254

BHIDE J.

Mohammad Din and others —

Defendants — Appellants.

v.

Mohammad Din and others, Plaintiffs and others — Defendants —

Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 242 of 1937, Decided on 14th June 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Sialkot, D/- 29th October 1936.

Limitation Act (1908), Art. 120 — Applicability—Representative suit by certain Mahomedans for declaring certain land as graveyard and for injunction directing defendants to remove buildings erected thereon—Suit is governed by Art. 120.

Where certain Mahomedan residents bring a suit on behalf of all the Mahomedan residents for a declaration that certain property is a graveyard and for an injunction directing certain Mahomedans to remove the buildings erected by them on portions thereof the suit is governed by Art. 120, as the acts of the defendants amount to ouster of the plaintiffs from the use of the common land which was reserved for specific purpose, i.e. for grave-yard : A I R 1933 Lah 705, Rel. on.
[P 254 C 2; P 255 C 1]

Shabir Ahmad — for Appellants.

Mohammad Amin — for Respondents.

Judgment. — This second appeal arises out of a suit by certain Mahomedan residents of Sialkot City suing on behalf of all the Mahomedan residents of Mohalla Sharianwala for a declaration that certain property is a graveyard and for an injunction directing the defendants to remove the buildings erected by them on portions thereof. The suit has been decreed by the Courts below and defendants have appealed. Four points were raised by the learned counsel for the appellants, viz. (i) that the suit was barred by time under Art. 32, Limitation Act, (ii) that it was barred by the rule of res judicata, (iii) that the decree for possession was not justified, and (iv) that costs should not be allowed.

As regards the first point, the learned counsel relied mainly on A I R 1929 Lah 186.¹ But this ruling was considered in the Full Bench ruling reported as 14 Lah 267² and in view of the remarks at p. 280 of that ruling, I think the present suit was rightly held to be governed by Art. 120, Lim. Act. It was found by the Courts below that buildings were constructed within four or five years and this finding of fact must be accepted as final. The suit was therefore within time. There is no force in the next contention. The previous suits were not of a representative character and Explan. 6 to S. 11, Civil P. C., is clearly inapplicable. The decree for possession seems to be wrong, the suit being for a declaration and injunction. This was conceded by the learned counsel for the respondents.

¹ Nand Ram v. Jai Chand, A I R 1929 Lah 186
=112 I C 844.

As the defendants have succeeded to the above extent, and in view of all the circumstances, I think that parties should bear their costs in this Court. I accept the appeal to the extent of setting aside the decree for possession and granting plaintiffs the declaration and injunction as prayed for. Defendants must remove the buildings within three months of this date, otherwise plaintiffs can take out execution for removal thereof. Parties to bear their costs in this Court.

K.B./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

2. Mastan Singh v. Santa Singh, A I R 1938 Lah 705=145 I O 553=14 Lah 267=34 P L R 618 (F B).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 255

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Madan Lal — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Ganga Bishan and others —Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 319 of 1936, Decided on 13th July 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Gurdaspur, D/. 31st July 1936.

(a) Power of Attorney — Construction — Power of attorney must be strictly construed — Word, "etc." used in such power must be construed as ejusdem generis with rest of document — Power to carry on proceedings in "Court etc." — Document cannot be construed as conferring power to present documents before Sub-Registrar or Registrar.

The Registration Act being a technical measure, must be strictly complied with and it is well settled law that a power of attorney must be strictly construed and limited to the exact words contained therein. The word "etc." used in power of attorney must therefore be construed as ejusdem generis with the rest of the document. A Sub-Registrar or a Registrar is not a Court and therefore a document empowering a person to carry on proceedings in a Court, etc., cannot be construed as conferring power on such person to present the document before a Sub-Registrar or a Registrar.

[P 257 C 1]

(b) Registration Act (1908), Ss. 34 and 75 (2) — Presentation under S. 75 (2) does not take the place of presentation under S. 34 as procedure followed under each is different (Obiter).

A presentation of documents under S. 75 (2), does not take the place of a presentation under S. 34. The procedure to be followed after presentation under S. 75 (2) is different from the procedure to be followed after a presentation under S. 34 and this might make a vital difference in a particular case: A I R 1922 P C 279, Disting.

[P 258 C 1]

(c) Registration — Wrong entry — Document intended and ordered to be registered as partnership deed entered by mistake in wrong register — Document is validly registered as partnership deed.

The mere fact that a document, which was intended to be registered as an alienation, is by mistake entered in some wrong book, does not make the registration invalid for the purpose of an alienation; so similarly where a document is intended to be registered as a partnership deed under the order of the Registrar but is by mistake entered in the book pertaining to alienations, the document is not validly registered as an alienation but is only validly registered as a partnership deed.

[P 258 C 1]

(d) Mortgage — Equitable — Suit on — Pleadings must be strictly construed — Documents of title of moveables such as machinery cannot be construed as those of immovables only because in interval machinery had become immovable property by fixation.

In a suit on equitable mortgage, the pleadings must be fairly strictly construed as it is easy to assert an equitable mortgage where none exists merely because some title deed or other has passed to the party asserting the equitable mortgage. The document of title of moveables such as machinery cannot be construed as documents of title of immovable property because in the interval the moveable machinery had by fixation to the earth become immovable property. It is a well-known principle that the scope of an equitable mortgage does not extend beyond the scope of the title deeds.

[P 258 C 2 ; P 259 C 1]

J. G. Sethi and M. L. Sethi —

*for Appellant.*M. C. Mahajan and Shamsheer Bahadur
— for Respondents.

Dalip Singh J.—The plaintiff in this case sued for dissolution of partnership, recovery of Rs. 25,000 or as much amount as might be found due to the plaintiff from the defendants, after rendition of accounts, on the security of certain property mentioned in the plaint printed at p. 1 of the paper book. The plaintiff alleged that there had been first a partnership between the defendants and himself under a partnership deed dated 14th June 1932. On 3rd January 1934 this partnership deed was cancelled and accounts being taken, a sum of Rs. 25,000 was found due to the plaintiff from the defendants. Separate promissory notes on various dates given in the plaint had been given by the defendants with respect to this amount of Rs. 25,000. On 9th January 1934 an equitable mortgage by deposit of title deeds was made with respect to the machinery employed in the business. A writing was also secured giving a list of the documents of title so deposited on 11th January 1934. In order to carry on the partnership business in the future, a new deed of partnership was drawn up on 9th January 1934. In this new partnership deed, there was a clause charging a sum of Rs. 20,000 on the land, building, machinery and goods of the factory. The shares were also fixed in the partnership deed; the plaintiff had a six anna share and the defendants a ten anna share. This partnership continued from 9th January 1934 to 8th August 1934. The defendants had since become insolvents and hence the suit for dissolution of partnership, rendition of accounts and for a declaration as to security.

The defendants denied the equitable mortgage: they denied the legal mortgage, pleaded ignorance of the partnership deed of 9th January 1934 because according to them the deed was not registered, and generally contested the plaintiff's suit except as to dissolution of partnership. The defendants having been declared insolvents, the Official Receiver was made a party. A decree for dissolution of partnership and rendition of accounts was granted without objection and the question of the security and the amount due on this item of Rs. 20,000 and for what period the accounts were to be taken was left open for the final decree. The Court then proceeded, having drawn up issues on the pleadings, to find that the plaintiff had not succeeded in proving any equitable mortgage by deposit of title deeds on 9th January 1934 because the letter of 11th January 1934 embodied the transaction and being a document in writing not registered, no equitable mortgage or any kind of mortgage was effected. As regards the legal mortgage, it held that the document in question had not been properly registered and was not properly stamped and therefore no legal mortgage was effected on the houses and buildings, these being immovable property. On the question of machinery, it pointed out that there was no evidence to determine whether the machinery was fixed to the earth or not but presumably it was so fixed and that at any rate as land and buildings were included in the property sought to be mortgaged, the deed needed registration and hence there was no legal mortgage on any of the three kinds of property mortgaged. On the question of accounts, etc., it gave no decree on account of the partnership, old or new, but it held that the plaintiff was entitled to a simple money decree for Rs. 20,000 which had been acknowledged in the partnership deed and for which promissory notes had been executed by the defendants. It pointed out that though no claim had been based on these promissory notes, yet the promissory notes were separately mentioned in the plaint and hence it gave a decree in equity for the total amount of the promissory notes. Interest was disallowed as not claimed and hence the plaintiff got a simple money decree for Rs. 20,000 with proportionate costs against defendants 1 and 2.

The plaintiff has come in appeal and his learned counsel urges: (1) that there was a legal mortgage and that the trial Court was wrong in holding that the document was not properly registered; (2) that there was an equitable mortgage, that the trial Court had rightly held that the documents were documents of title and had wrongly held that the writing of 11th January was a repository of the transaction and hence there was an equitable mortgage of the machinery. In urging this plea, he seemed to contend that the machinery was immovable property but really in subsequent arguments he took an alternative position, namely that if the machinery was immovable property, then an equitable mortgage was created on 9th, 10th and 11th January, and if the machinery was moveable property, then the legal mortgage of that machinery was valid to that extent without registration. No other points were really urged in the appeal. As regards the question of the legal mortgage, the defence of the learned counsel for the respondents was that the mortgage deed had never been properly presented for registration and therefore any registration effected was invalid; secondly that the registration was only as a partnership deed and not as a mortgage deed and its mere entry in the book for mortgages did not make the registration valid as a registration of a mortgage deed. On the question of equitable mortgage it was contended that the plaintiff pleaded an equitable mortgage on 9th January but no equitable mortgage on that date was proved at all. As regards the equitable mortgage created by deposit of documents on 9th, 10th and 11th it was contended: (1) that the letter of 11th of January was a repository of the transaction and therefore needed registration; (2) that there was as a matter of fact no intent to create an equitable mortgage at all and the evidence was reconcilable with the deposit of documents on account of the legal mortgage created on 9th January 1934; (3) that the documents in question were not documents of title at all; and (4) that there could be no equitable mortgage of moveable property to which the documents referred. I shall now take up these points separately: The facts so far as the legal mortgage is concerned are as follows:

One Mohammad Ismail, who had a power of attorney on behalf of the plaintiff to present documents in Court, etc. but who was not specifically authorized to present documents to the Sub-Registrar or the Registrar under S. 33 and whose power of attorney does not appear to have been executed before a Sub-Registrar or Registrar, though it appears to have been authenticated by the Sub-Registrar, presented the mortgage deed in question before the Sub-Registrar. The Sub-Registrar in the absence of the defendants after notice held that the defendants were denying execution by implication and therefore refused registration. An appeal was made to the Registrar and he held that Mohammad Ismail who had presented the appeal and the document was empowered to present documents for registration because of the word "etc." in the power of attorney. I do not consider that this conclusion was correct. The Registration Act being a technical measure must be strictly complied with and it is well settled law that a power of attorney must be strictly construed and limited to the exact words contained therein. The word "etc." must therefore be construed as eiusdem generis with the rest of the document. A Sub-Registrar or a Registrar is not a Court and therefore a document empowering Mohammad Ismail to carry on proceedings in a Court etc., cannot be construed as conferring power on Mohammad Ismail to present the document before a Sub-Registrar or a Registrar. Hence I have no hesitation in holding that the first presentation by Mohammad Ismail of the document was not valid and the appeal filed before the Registrar was also not a validly filed appeal. The Registrar therefore had, strictly speaking, no jurisdiction to decide on the question as there was no proper appeal before him. The Registrar however proceeded to hold that the document was not properly stamped as a mortgage deed but that the document represented one transaction with two aspects, namely, (1) as a partnership deed pure and simple and (2) as containing a clause whereby a charge was created on immovable property. He held therefore that the document had to be registered because it could be registered validly as a partnership deed without being registered as a mortgage deed. The question of stamp therefore on the deed in question did not arise for the purpose of registration. It was a matter for impounding the document and levying a penalty, which matter he proposed to deal with subsequently. In the meantime he ordered registration of the document by the Sub-Registrar holding that execution by the defendants was proved. He seems to have taken no steps about impounding the document. The document was re-presented under the provisions of S. 75 (2) to the Sub-Registrar by the plaintiff himself and the Sub-Registrar ordered its registration according to the order of the Registrar. By some mistake in the procedure, the document instead of being entered in the book for registration of partnership deeds was entered in the book reserved for mortgages, etc. It has been contended by the learned counsel for the appellant that the presentation by the plaintiff himself to the Sub-Registrar validated the registration and that the Registrar had no power, having ordered the document to be registered, to determine whether the document was a mortgage or not and the question of the lack of stamp on the document only meant the paying of a penalty now, because the document had been validly registered though improperly stamped.

1938 L/88 & 34

The learned counsel relied on 44 All 514¹ and 36 P L R 371² at p. 376. The

1. Chhotey Lal v. Collector of Moradabad, A I R 1922 P C 279=69 I C 44=49 I A 375=44 All 514 (P C).

2. Barkhudar Shah v. Mt. Sat Bharal, A I R 1931 Lah 677=182 I O 881=86 P L R 371=15 Lah 583.

second ruling need not concern us. It is a ruling based on particular facts and any extension of the principles, if any, laid down in it, as sought by the learned counsel for the appellant, is not possible in view of the Privy Council rulings reported in 23 All 233³ at p. 241 and 37 All 49⁴ at p. 54. So far as 44 All 514¹ is concerned, it has no bearing on the present case. All that it lays down is that the presentation under S. 75 (2), if valid, makes it obligatory on the Sub-Registrar to register but that if the first presentation under S. 34 is valid, the Sub-Registrar may register without a presentation under S. 75 (2). This is obviously a totally different point from the present one. In the present case what is really sought is that the presentation under S. 75 (2) should take the place of a presentation under S. 34, Registration Act. The matter is not free from difficulty, but as at present advised, I would be inclined to hold that a presentation under S. 75 (2) does not take the place of a presentation under S. 34. The procedure to be followed after a presentation under S. 75 (2) is different from the procedure to be followed after a presentation under S. 34 and this might make a vital difference in a particular case, but I express no final opinion on this point. Secondly, even if I am wrong in this, I am definitely of opinion that the Registrar having ordered registration of the document exclusively as a partnership deed and not as a mortgage deed, the deed could not become mortgage deed merely because by some mistake the entry of the registration was made in the wrong book. It is not clear how this entry came to be made, but it seems to me clear that if, as held by their Lordships of the Privy Council, the mere fact that a document, which was intended to be registered as an alienation, was by mistake entered in some wrong book, does not make the registration invalid for the purpose of an alienation; so, similarly, where a document was intended to be registered as a partnership deed under the order of the Registrar but was by mistake entered in the book pertaining to alienations, the document is not validly registered as an alienation but is only validly registered as a partnership deed. Therefore the document not being registered as a mortgage deed was not validly registered as such and no legal mortgage of immovable property was thereby created. Hence it follows that there was no legal mortgage of the land and the buildings.

As regards the machinery however, there is no evidence on the point one way or the other and I do not think there is any presumption that the machinery was either immovable or moveable property. It would all depend on the facts and circumstances of each case and the result might be different with reference to particular pieces of machinery. The legal mortgage was therefore good so far as there was any moveable machinery at all. I am unwilling to draw any presumption in favour of the plaintiff on this point because his own plea of the equitable mortgage of the machinery would rather tend to show that there was no moveable machinery at all and that the machinery was a fixture in the land and therefore should be treated as immovable property, but in the absence of evidence on the point, I am not prepared to give a final decision other than to hold as stated before that the legal mortgage was good qua any machinery that was moveable property if any such existed.

I now pass to the question of the equitable mortgage. The various documents of title are Exs. P. 1 to P. 21-A, printed on pages 71 to 114 of the printed paper book. It is unnecessary to give a detailed analysis of each of them. It appears to me that essentially these are documents relating to pieces of machinery. I do not see that documents of title of moveables such as machinery can be construed as documents of title of immovable property because in the interval the moveable machinery had by fixation to the earth become immovable property. It is a well known principle that the scope of an equitable mortgage does not extend beyond the scope of the title deeds. It is not at all clear that the documents of title referred to the entire machinery which formed the machinery as finally erected in the business. I am therefore unable to see how there could be an equitable mortgage created by those documents of title which referred to moveable property. I consider however that the writing of 11th January did not purport to be a repository of the transaction and did not therefore need

3. Mt. Mujibunnisa v. Abdul Rahim, (1901) 28 All 238=28 I A 15=7 Sar 829 (P O).

4. Jambu Prasad v. Muhammad Nawab Aftab Ali Khan, A I R 1914 P O 16=28 I O 422=42 I A 22=37 All 49 (P O).

registration, differing in this from the trial Court. But here again I also consider that the plaintiff had definitely pleaded an equitable mortgage of 9th January. The evidence shows that documents of title were deposited on 9th, 10th and 11th. It is not shown what documents were deposited on 9th at all. Therefore there was no equitable mortgage on 9th January 1934 as pleaded by the plaintiff and in matters of this kind the pleadings must be fairly strictly construed as it is easy to assert an equitable mortgage where none exists merely because some title deed or other has passed to the party asserting the equitable mortgage. On both these grounds, I would therefore hold that no equitable mortgage of the machinery is proved at all in this case. The result is that the plaintiff's appeal fails. In the peculiar circumstances however I would leave the parties to bear their own costs in this appeal.

Skemp J.—I agree.

S.C./R.K.

Appeal fails.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 259

ADDISON AND ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Sonun Ram Mukhi Lal Chand and others — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

Sewa Ram and others — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 79 of 1937, Decided on 2nd December 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Dera Ghazi Khan, D/- 4th November 1936.

Partnership—Dissolution — Until accounts are settled, individual partners cannot sue for their share of any separate part of partnership assets.

After dissolution, until the accounts of the partnership are completely settled, individual partners cannot sue for their share of any separate part of the partnership assets. Such suit will lie if the partnership has been completely wound up and the asset has become available to the partnership thereafter.

[P 260 C 1]

R. L. Anand I — for Appellants.

L. M. Datta — for Respondents.

Addison J. — The plaintiffs are the descendants of Lal Chand. They pleaded that there was a firm whose partners were Lal Chand (a five annas share), Gonda Ram, the deceased father of Pari Ram minor, defendant 2 (a four annas share), Khan Chand, the deceased uncle of Lekhu Ram, defendant 3 (a three and a half annas share) and Ganga Ram, the deceased nephew of Tharia Ram, defendant 4, (a three and a half annas share). It was stated that Gonda Ram, the father of Pari Ram, minor, usually worked at the shop and that he got from defendant 1, Sewa Ram, a registered mortgage deed, dated 18th January 1924, for Rs. 2500 in his own favour, though the money was really advanced by the firm. Gonda Ram died in 1927 and it is alleged that after his death the mortgagor, Sewa Ram, borrowed a further sum from the firm and executed a new mortgage deed, which is in suit, for Rs. 4500 on 13th November 1929 in favour of the firm which at that time was made up of the plaintiffs, Pari Ram, the minor son of Gonda Ram, Khan Chand and Ganga Ram. It was further stated that Ganga Ram, now deceased, who is represented by Tharia Ram, defendant 4, orally transferred the rights under this last mortgage deed, which included the sum due on the first mortgage deed, in favour of the plaintiffs on 20th July 1932 and had this transaction entered in the firm's books. Accordingly the plaintiffs brought the present suit on the basis of the mortgage, claiming to be entitled to the whole mortgage money.

The suit was resisted by the mortgagor and by the minor Pari Ram, defendant 2. The mortgagor pleaded that there was a contractual partnership, registration of which was necessary, that he had no dealings with, and did not know of, such a firm as was set up in the plaint, that his dealings were with Gonda Ram alone in whose favour the first mortgage deed was executed and that the second deed was secured from him by Lal Chand, a member of the plaintiff's family, by undue influence and fraud. The minor Pari Ram, defendant 2, pleaded that the debt was due to him alone, that he was not bound by the subsequent deed, and that Ganga Ram had no right to transfer his rights in favour of the plaintiffs. He pleaded that the partnership must be taken to have been dissolved by the death of his father. The trial Court held that there was a partnership and that the dealings were those of the partnership. It found that Ganga Ram made the transfer in favour of the plaintiffs but that he had no right to do so without the consent of the minor Pari Ram, who stood in his father's shoes with respect to the partnership and whose grandfather was not consulted though he was alive. With respect to Khan Chand's share it held that the transfer of it was valid as Lekhu Ram, his nephew, defendant 3, did not object to it. It then went on to hold that the plaintiffs could not sue for the entire mortgage money as the rights of Pari Ram minor could not be transferred and that a suit for the plaintiff's share of the mortgage money would not lie. The suit was therefore dismissed and the plaintiffs have preferred this appeal.

In our judgment this suit was properly dismissed. Under S. 263, Contract Act, after dissolution of partnership the rights and obligations of the partners continue in all things necessary for winding up the business of the partnership. It is true that, seeing that Gonda Ram died in 1927, a suit for dissolution of partnership and settlement of accounts will not lie at the instance of any of the parties except Pari Ram minor, limitation for whom is protected by his minority. Until the accounts of the partnership are completely settled, individual partners cannot sue for their share of any separate part of the partnership assets. It is alleged that this mortgage is a part of those assets. As a suit for accounts is still maintainable at the instance of Pari Ram, with whom no settlement has been made, the suit of any partner for his share of this mortgage cannot lie. It would have been different had the partnership been completely wound up and this asset had become available to the partnership thereafter. In such cases it has been held that a suit will lie for its recovery and that when recovered the money should be distributed according to the shares of the partners. This follows from S. 263, Contract Act, which was in force at the time while S. 47 of the new Partnership Act is more or less to the same effect. For the reasons given above we dismiss this appeal but make no order as to costs of this Court.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 260

YOUNG C. J. AND ABDUL RASHID J.

Uttam Singh Sochet Singh
Convict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 896 of 1937, Decided on 10th December 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Amritsar, D/- 23-7-1937.

Criminal Trial—Murder—Enhancement of sentence—Power to enhance sentence should be sparingly exercised by High Court only when failure to do so would lead to serious miscarriage of justice.

The power to enhance sentences should be sparingly exercised by the High Court and sentences should be enhanced only in cases where the failure to enhance the sentence would lead to a serious miscarriage of justice. The mere fact that the High Court, had it been trying the case, might have imposed capital sentence is not a sufficient reason for enhancement. [P 262 C 1]

J. G. Sethi — for Appellant.

Diwan Ram Lal, Advocate-General —
for the Crown.

Young C. J.—Uttam Singh, Ghanaya Lal and his son Mulkh Raj have been convicted under S. 302, read with S. 149 I. P. C., for the murder of Narain Singh. Uttam Singh has been sentenced to death, while a sentence of transportation for life has been awarded to each of the other appellants. All the three culprits have also been sentenced to ten years' rigorous imprisonment under Ss. 307/149 I. P. C., for the attempted murders of Jindar Singh and Indar Singh. The learned Sessions Judge has ordered that this sentence will come into operation only if they are acquitted of the charge of murder. Uttam Singh has preferred an appeal to this Court through Mr. Sethi. Ghanaya Lal and Mulkh Raj have filed a separate appeal through Dr. Nand Lal. Both these appeals can be conveniently disposed of by one judgment.

Briefly stated, the case for the prosecution is, that there existed a dispute between Mangal Singh, the father of Narain Singh deceased, and Ghanaya Lal appellant over the possession of a house of which each claimed to be the mortgagee with possession. Shortly before sun set on 9th February 1937, Jindar Singh (P. W. 5) one of the sons of Mangal Singh, was returning home from the fields and as he passed in front of the shop of Ghanaya Lal the appellants together with five others came out of the shop and attacked him. The assailants were armed with spears, takwas and dangs. Jindar Singh raised an outcry and his father Mangal Singh, his mother Mt. Kisso and his brother Indar Singh ran to his assistance. On seeing Indar Singh the assailants left Jindar Singh and assaulted Indar Singh. Narain Singh ran to the assistance of his brothers and he too was attacked and beaten till he dropped down having been pierced through the chest by Uttam Singh with a spear. The whole occurrence was witnessed by Achhar Singh (P. W. 7), Banta Singh (P. W. 8) and Ajaib Singh (P. W. 9).

Mangal Singh the father of the deceased, at once proceeded to the police station which is situated at a distance of three miles from village Panjgarain. The first information report was lodged by him at 7 P. M. The version of the incident embodied in the first information report tallies in all important particulars with the version put forward by the prosecution in Court. The names of all the witnesses have also been mentioned in this report. The Sub-Inspector at once proceeded to the place of occurrence in a motor lorry and the investigation started at about 7.30 P. M., that is within two hours of the murder of Narain Singh. The statements of all the eye-witnesses were recorded immediately by the Sub-Inspector.

The principal criticism levelled against the eye-witnesses by the learned counsel for the appellants was that Banta Singh, Ajaib Singh and Achhar Singh were related to Mangal Singh, being his collaterals in the third degree, and that as there was enmity between Mangal Singh and his family on one side and Ghanaya Lal and his son on the other, the statements of Banta Singh, Ajaib Singh and Achhar Singh were not entitled to any weight. The murder took place in broad daylight. The first information report was lodged at the earliest possible opportunity, and Banta Singh, Ajaib Singh and Achhar Singh were mentioned therein as eye-witnesses. There was no personal enmity between Banta Singh, Ajaib Singh and Achhar Singh and the appellants. The mere fact that they are related to Mangal Singh is not sufficient, in our opinion, for discarding their testimony, particularly as their names were mentioned in the first information report and their statements were recorded by the Sub-Inspector of Police shortly after the occurrence. Jindar Singh and Indar Singh bore a large number of injuries on their persons and they were undoubtedly present on the scene of the occurrence. It is unlikely that they would give up the real assailants and implicate Uttam Singh, Ghanaya Lal and Mulkh Raj falsely. We are therefore of the opinion that it has been established beyond all reasonable doubt that Uttam Singh, Ghanaya Lal and Mulkh Raj killed Narain Singh and inflicted a number of injuries on Jindar Singh and Indar Singh.

It was contended by Mr. Sethi on behalf of Uttam Singh that he could not possibly join Ghanaya Lal in the commission of this crime as, according to the prosecution he had been carrying on an illicit intrigue with the wife of Ghanaya Lal. The wife of Ghanaya Lal died about two years before the present occurrence. Uttam Singh had some enmity against Mangal Singh. It is quite likely therefore that after the death of the wife of Ghanaya Lal, Uttam Singh and Ghanaya Lal compromised their differences and were on friendly terms with each other. Moreover, there is no evidence on the record to prove that Ghanaya Lal knew that Uttam Singh had been carrying on an illicit intrigue with his wife. The fact that both Ghanaya Lal and Uttam Singh were inimical to Mangal Singh would naturally draw them together. We are therefore of the opinion that there is no force in the contention that Uttam Singh and Ghanaya Lal could not possibly participate in the commission of murder together. It has not been established that 8 persons participated in the assault on Narain Singh, Indar Singh and Jindar Singh. The provisions of S. 149, I. P. C. are therefore inapplicable to this case. This fact however does not make any material difference as the provisions of S. 34, I. P. C. are fully applicable. For the reasons given above, we dismiss the appeals of Uttam Singh, Ghanaya Lal and Mulkh Raj. We also confirm the sentence of death imposed on Uttam Singh.

The learned Advocate-General has presented a petition on behalf of the Local Government praying that capital sentences should be awarded to Ghanaya Lal and his son Mulkh Raj as they deliberately participated in the assault on Narain Singh which resulted in his death. Narain Singh had nine injuries on his person. All the injuries with the exception of injury No. 5 were of a minor character. Injury No. 5 resulted in his death and this according to the unanimous testimony of all the prosecution witnesses was inflicted on his person by Uttam Singh. In these circumstances, it cannot be said that the learned Sessions Judge was patently wrong in giving the lesser sentence to Ghanaya Lal and Mulkh Raj. Moreover, Mulkh Raj is 18 years of age and this fact is a further justification for awarding him the lesser sentence permissible under S. 302. We are of the opinion that the power to enhance sentences should be sparingly exercised by this Court and sentences should be enhanced only in cases where the failure to enhance the sentence would lead to a serious miscarriage of justice. The mere fact that this Court had it been trying the case, might have imposed the capital sentence, is not a sufficient reason for enhancement. We therefore dismiss the petition for the enhancement of the sentences awarded to Ghanaya Lal and Mulkh Raj.

R.M./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 262

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Anant Ram Maya RamConvict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 926 of 1937, Decided on 8th November 1937, from order of Addl. Sess. Judge, Gujranwala, D/- 9th August 1937.

Evidence Act (1872), S. 32 Dying declaration—Gunshots in all parts of body—Probability is that victim would immediately become unconscious and would be incapable of making any declaration.

The receipt of forty-two gunshot wounds in the liver, heart, stomach and lungs and profuse haemorrhage occasioned thereby, would cause a great deal of shock and the probability is that the victim becomes unconscious within a few minutes incapable of making any dying declaration.

[P 262 C 2; P 263 C 1]

B. R. Puri — *for Appellant*Nazir Hussain, Asst. Legal Remembrancer — for the Crown.

Young C. J.—Maya Ram, Anant Ram, Kirpa Ram and Jagan Nath were charged in the Court of the learned Additional Sessions Judge of Gujranwala with the murder of Kartar Singh. They were also charged under Ss. 148 and 149, I. P. C. The learned Additional Sessions Judge found Anant Ram guilty under S. 302, I. P. C., and sentenced him to death. He convicted Maya Ram under Ss. 302/114, I. P. C. and sentenced him to three years' rigorous imprisonment. He acquitted Kirpa Ram and Jagan Nath. There is also before us an application for enhancement of the sentence passed against Maya Ram.

The motive for the murder of Kartar Singh—the fact that Kartar Singh was murdered is the only certain fact in this case—was alleged to be a quarrel concerning land. It is said that the accused went to the house of Sant Singh, father of the deceased, to tell him that on the next morning they would take possession of this disputed land; that a quarrel took place and that Kirpa Ram and Anant Ram fired guns at Kartar Singh killing him and also wounding other persons. The occurrence took place about 5.45 on the evening of 23rd March. After half an hour a doctor, who lived about a mile away, arrived on the scene. It is alleged that this doctor, seeing the serious condition of Kartar Singh, immediately recorded a dying declaration which dying declaration has been placed on the record. Further, there were nine persons who alleged that they were eye witnesses and who gave evidence. All these persons said that Kirpa Ram had fired his gun at the deceased. The first information report was made by one Hari Singh who, according to Sant Singh, one of the chief prosecution witnesses and the father of Kartar Singh, was present at the spot during the attack and till it was over.

The learned Sessions Judge, in a very careful and well thought out judgment, has come to the conclusion that every one of these prosecution witnesses has lied with regard to the firing of a gun by Kirpa Ram. He also has found that the dying declaration is a false and forged document deliberately produced for the purposes of this case. He also acquits Jagan Nath on the ground that he was not mentioned in the first information report; nor was he mentioned by Hari Singh (who made the first information report) when Hari Singh gave evidence in the committing Magistrate's Court. These various findings of the learned Sessions Judge are, of course, fatal to the prosecution case unless counsel could show that the learned Judge was not justified in coming to any such conclusions upon the evidence. We have carefully examined the evidence and the findings of the learned Additional Sessions Judge. We are satisfied, as he was, that the dying declaration was a forged and false document. Kartar Singh, according to the evidence of the Civil Surgeon, had no less than forty-two gunshot wounds on his body. That means that the gun must have been fired at a moderately close range. His chest was pierced with fifteen different wounds. There were shot wounds in both right and left lungs. There were shot wounds in the pericardium and there were shot wounds in the heart itself. There were shot wounds in the liver, and, in addition, haemorrhage had been so severe that the various cavities of the body were filled with fluid blood. We would have been ourselves prepared to say, apart from any medical evidence, that a person who had received wounds of this description could certainly not have been conscious for more than a few minutes, and certainly would have been dead within a very short time. The Civil Surgeon takes the same view. He says: "Kartar Singh could not remain in a condition fit to make a statement for more than a few minutes after receiving his injuries." He says the receipt of forty-two gunshot wounds in the liver, heart, stomach and lungs, and the profuse haemorrhage occasioned thereby, would have caused a great deal of shock and that the probability is that the deceased became unconscious within a few minutes.

The Medical Officer, Basbir Mahmood, who took the dying declaration, could have not realized when he either forged the dying declaration by himself, or at the instigation possibly of Sant Singh, the serious nature of the internal injuries which the post mortem examination would disclose. Another point against the dying declaration is that this doctor kept the dying declaration for over 24 hours. He did not, although the Civil Surgeon and the police had arrived, hand over this dying declaration to the proper authorities for this considerable period of time. It appears to have been used as a bargaining factor between the two parties.

Another important point is that Hari Singh in the first information report states that Kartar Singh was dead when he left the scene of the murder. Hari Singh left before the doctor arrived and clearly would know the facts. We are also satisfied that Kirpa Ram never fired a gun even if he was there. Nothing is said about Kirpa Ram in the first information report although Hari Singh according to the father of Kartar Singh himself, was present during the whole occurrence and was the last to leave the spot when he left to make the first information report. Nothing is said about Kirpa Ram firing a gun even in the dying declaration which had been forged. So, whoever instigated the doctor to forge this document, that person never knew that Kirpa Ram had fired a gun. Hari Singh who made the first information report does not mention that Kirpa Ram fired a gun, even in his evidence in the committing Magistrate's Court, and the final and conclusive point is the fact that although Kirpa Ram had a gun about two and a half years ago it had been forfeited and placed in the mal-khana where it happened to be at the date of this murder. Further no gun was found by the police in Kirpa Ram's house after the occurrence. A clue to the real truth on this matter is contained in the evidence of Fauja Singh. He says in cross-examination: "Everyone was certain that Kirpa Ram had a gun and hence I say that Kirpa Ram had a gun." The truth about this point clearly is that the complainant's party knew that Kirpa Ram had a gun but did not know that it had been forfeited and that it was then deposited in the malkhana.

Another curious point about this case is that no blood marks were found at the alleged scene of the murder, neither were there any spent cartridges found there. The learned Sessions Judge in spite of coming to these very sound conclusions came to the only unsound conclusion in the judgment eventually when he thought that he could on this evidence convict anyone. As regards Anant Ram he comes to the conclusion that there is some evidence of corroboration of this futile and useless evidence. This corroboration is that Anant Ram is proved to have bought a gun the day before the murder and to have bought with it 25 cartridges. It has also been proved that two cartridges have been used. We agree, this would have been corroborative evidence of value provided there had been some evidence upon which reliance could be placed which could be corroborated. We must clearly discard every scrap of evidence in this case, except this alleged "corroborative" evidence. This evidence therefore stands entirely by itself. The mere evidence that Anant Ram bought a gun and that he had used two cartridges and that the gun had been fired, is no evidence upon which the crime of murder could be brought home to him. There are many other occasions and things upon which two cartridges and a gun might be used.

This is a case where evidence, in our opinion, has been forged on behalf of the prosecution to procure a conviction. Every single witness has given false evidence. There is also evidence of an attempt to implicate innocent persons. Every witness says that in addition to the four persons who were actually prosecuted in this case, there was a second rank of persons standing behind who were also interested in the murder. In this additional rank of persons whom the witnesses alleged were connected with the murder, are included every single male relative of the accused persons with the exception of one who was away at the time. This case presents every single objectionable feature which could possibly be found in any prosecution case. There is no legal evidence upon which we can find anyone guilty and therefore we accept this appeal and set aside the sentence of death passed upon Anant Ram. We accept the appeal of Maya Ram and acquit him and we direct that both Anant Ram and Maya Ram be set at liberty forthwith. The application for enhancement of sentence against Maya Ram is also dismissed. One Fauja Singh has filed an affidavit in this Court which is before us to-day. In this affidavit he says that he shot Kartar Singh and that Anant Ram is innocent. We direct that this affidavit be put in the hands of the District authorities for such action as they may care to take.

B.D./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 264

JAI LAL AND DALIP SINGH JJ.

Basheshar Nath Goela, Official Receiver — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Baij Nath and others — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 391 of 1937, Decided on 7th October 1937, from decree of Senior Sub.Judge, Delhi, D/- 24th June 1936.

(a) Insolvency — Receiver — Powers of — Estate vesting in Official Receiver — Other Receivers appointed to help Official Receiver — Vesting of estate in Official Receiver not vacated — Official Receiver can by himself maintain suits for recovery of estate.

Where the Insolvency Court vests the estate of an insolvent in the Official Receiver and later on appoints two other persons as additional receivers to administer the estate, without vacating the order vesting the estate in the Official Receiver and making another order vesting the estate in a body of three receivers, the Official Receiver can by himself maintain suits to recover the estate of the insolvent. [P 265 C 2]

(b) Contract Act (1872), S. 25—Mere acknowledgment of liability does not fall under S. 25.

Mere acknowledgment of liability without any express promise to pay or without any reference to the future liability to pay does not fall within the meaning of S. 25. [P 266 C 1]

(c) Limitation Act (1908), Art. 85—Mutual obligations and intentions to set off must be established — Express contract need not be proved.

In order to apply Art. 85, it must be established that there have been mutual obligations and that it has been the intention of the parties that such obligations would be set off against each other. It is not of course necessary that there should be direct evidence of a contract as such a contract can be gathered from the surrounding circumstances. [P 266 C 1]

Mehr Chand Mahajan and Hem Raj Mahajan — for Appellant.

Vishnu Datta — for Respondents.

Jai Lal J.—The Official Receiver of Delhi representing the estate of the firm, Gobind Parshad Shibban Lal, insolvents, instituted a suit against Baij Nath and his two minor sons Amar Nath and Ram Bharsa for recovery of Rs. 6459-1-6 on account of principal and interest alleged to be due from the defendants. It was alleged in the plaint that Baij Nath as the manager of the joint Hindu family constituted by himself and his two minor sons entered into a partnership with the firm Gobind Parshad Shibban Lal, his share in the profits and losses being two annas in the rupee, that the partnership remained up to 24th October 1928, after which Baij Nath became a servant of the firm on a salary of Rs. 100 per month, that on accounts being taken of the losses of the partnership and of advances made to Baij Nath during his period of service and partnership a sum of Rs. 4485-13-3 was found due from him on 7th July 1929, and that finally on a notice being given by the Official Receiver to Baij Nath he signed an acknowledgment in favour of the Official Receiver on 27th August 1931, in respect of Rs. 6459-1-6. The agreed rate of interest originally was 10 as. per cent. per mensem; but a notice had been served by the Official Receiver on 20th April 1930, demanding interest at 12 per cent. per annum. Interest at this increased rate had been included in the sum acknowledged on 27th August 1931.

Baij Nath defendant denied that he was a partner in the firm. He alleged that he was merely a servant and was promised a salary of Rs. 1200 per year and a share in the profits of the business equal to two annas in the rupee. He asserted that his minimum salary was to be Rs. 1200 per year, and if the profits of the business did not amount to Rs. 1200 a year, then he had to be paid that sum by Gobind Parshad, one of the partners of the firm. He admitted that he had taken moneys from the plaintiff firm from time to time, but he pleaded that the plaintiff's suit was barred by time. The other two defendants pleaded that they were not liable for the money advanced to Baij Nath. Amar Nath attained the age of majority during the pendency of the suit and was allowed to plead as a major.

The trial Judge held that there was no partnership between the parties and that the suit with regard to the items advanced to Baij Nath prior to 28th August 1928 was barred by time; but that it was within time with regard to the items subsequent to that date. Adding interest at Rs. 12 per cent. per annum from the date of the notice and at 0.9.6 per cent. per mensem prior to that date he held that a sum of Rs. 1699.8.9 was due from the defendants to the plaintiff for which he granted a decree with proportionate costs and future interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the date of the suit till realisation against the defendants. Defendants 2 and 3 however were not made personally liable but only to the extent of their interest in the coparcenary property. Against this decree, the Official Receiver has preferred this appeal, and it is claimed on his behalf that the entire sum claimed by him should have been decreed by the trial Judge.

An objection in the form of a preliminary objection was taken by the respondents that the appeal by the Official Receiver alone was not competent. An objection also had been taken at the trial to the maintenance of the suit by the Official Receiver. It appears that when the firm Gobind Parshad-Shibban Lal was adjudicated insolvent, the Official Receiver was appointed as the Receiver of its assets which therefore vested in him. Subsequently however there was a scheme of composition agreed to between some of the creditors and the insolvents. This was presented to the Insolvency Judge who issued a notice to all concerned, and on 24th April 1930, passed an order that two persons Kishori Lal and Basheshar Lal are appointed additional receivers along with the Official Receiver to administer the estate. Report by Official Receiver on 19th June 1930.

It is contended that by the addition of those two persons as additional receivers the Official Receiver ceased to have any authority to administer the estate alone. It appears however that before filing the suit the Official Receiver had made an application to the Insolvency Judge for permission to institute the suit and permission was granted to him not only in respect of this case but also with regard to all other cases to institute suits in his own name without joining the two persons mentioned above. The argument of the learned counsel for the respondents is that on 24th April 1930, the learned Judge having constituted the two persons as joint receivers with the Official Receiver he was not competent, without setting aside the previous order, subsequently to authorize the Official Receiver alone to institute the suit.

It appears however that on 24th April 1930, the Insolvency Judge did not modify his previous order vesting the estate of the insolvent firm in the Official Receiver and therefore if an order was necessary expressly cancelling the order of 24th April 1930, it was for the same reasons necessary to pass an express order on 24th April 1930, divesting the Official Receiver of the estate and vesting the same in the three receivers said to have been appointed on 24th April 1930. But it is urged that the order of 24th April 1930, did not constitute the two persons as joint receivers with the Official Receiver and that they were merely appointed to help the Official Receiver in the administration of the estate with a view to carry on the scheme of composition. It is not necessary to decide this matter. It may be remarked that this scheme of composition has admittedly not been sanctioned even up to this time. In my opinion the Official Receiver was alone competent to sue in this case apart from any order by the Court authorising him to do so. But the order passed by the Insolvency Judge puts the matter beyond any controversy and I hold that the suit was properly instituted by the Official Receiver and consequently he is entitled to present this appeal.

On the merits, it is contended on behalf of the appellants that the view of the learned trial Judge that the items before 28th August 1928 are barred by time is erroneous and that the whole of the amount claimed by the plaintiff is within limitation and that in any case even if it be held that the acknowledgment of 27th August 1931, does not constitute a novation of the contract, as was urged on behalf of the appellants, then at the most the suit would be barred by time only in respect of the principal sum of Rs. 121.15.6 and proportionate interest thereon. It was claimed on behalf of the appellants that the balance of 27th August 1931 should be considered to contain an express promise by the debtor to pay and therefore to fall within S. 25, Contract Act. The acknowledgment is in the following form :

The bahi account having been checked and understood, the sum of Rs 6459-1-6 was found due from me and my minor sons whose lawful guardian I am to the firm Gobind Parshad Shibban Lal and I admit the amount to be due from me.

It is contended that the last sentence "I admit the amount to be due from me" which in the original document is 'mere zima wajib hain' contained an express promise to pay. It was conceded that unless an express promise to pay is held to be contained in this acknowledgment, the acknowledgment can be used only to extend limitation under S. 19, Limitation Act. No authority was cited in support of the main contention. After reading the acknowledgment carefully, I hold that there is no doubt that it cannot be read to contain an express promise to pay. There is no reference to the future liability to pay the amount. It is merely an acknowledgment of liability which does not fall within the meaning of S. 25, Contract Act. It was then urged that the suit is governed by Art. 85 of Sch. 1, Limitation Act, which relates to suits for balance due on a mutual, open and current account where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties. Now in order to apply this Article, it must be established that there have been mutual obligations and that it was the intention of the parties that such obligations would be set off against each other. It is not of course necessary that there should be direct evidence of a contract as such a contract can be gathered from the surrounding circumstances. In the present case it has been found that there was really no partnership between the parties, that Baij Nath had joined the firm as a servant on a salary of Rs. 1200 per year and a share in the profits. Baij Nath being the manager of the firm began to borrow money from the firm. It does not appear that he obtained the express consent of the partners of the firm before doing so. The amounts were generally drawn by him in small items. It also appears that he used to draw from the firm amounts with the intention of using them for the purpose of carrying on the business of the firm; but sometimes he utilized portions thereof on his own account. The amounts taken by him are described as uchant in the dealings of the partners.

It seems that there were other agents of the plaintiff firm who used to take money from the firm as uchant. The amounts so taken by Baij Nath and other agents as uchant used to be entered in daily balances in the rokar bahi of the firm under the heading of uchant but periodically accounts were taken from the agents and whatever remained unaccounted for by them was debited to their respective accounts in the rokar bahi and the entry as to uchant proportionately reduced. The item finally found due from the agents on the day of taking accounts out of the uchant advance or on account of money taken by them from the firm after the previous settlement of the account was debited in the rokar bahi to the agents individually. This was done in the case of Baij Nath also. I have stated that Baij Nath was to be paid a salary of Rs. 1200 a year and a share in the profits; but I find that the first entry crediting him with his salary was made in his favour after a considerable time from the commencement of his service and that entries have been made in respect of his share of profits subsequently. This state of accounts in my opinion does not necessarily establish the existence of a mutual and current account such as is contemplated by Art. 85, Limitation Act. It appears that the partners of the firm did not intentionally make any advances to Baij Nath. On the other hand, Baij Nath being in charge of the firm without the express permission of the partners began to utilize money for his own purpose and no objection was taken because it was considered that salary would become due to him and probably the amount would be repaid by him. The contention of the appellants' counsel does not seem to be sound and the suit is not governed by Art. 85.

There is however force in one contention of the appellants' counsel that the amounts due from the respondent must be deemed to have been advanced to him as loan on the day on which they were debited to him in the rokar bahi. Previous to that the amounts could not be ascertained and they were in the form of a suspense account. It also appears that interest has been charged against the respondents from the date of the entry in the rokar bahi and not from the actual date on which the amount was appropriated or utilised by the respondents for their own purposes. In fact these dates cannot be ascertained. The acknowledgment of 27th August 1931 admittedly can be relied upon to save limitation under S. 19, Limitation Act. It follows therefore that the view of the learned trial Judge that only those items can be held to be within limitation by virtue of this acknowledgment which were actually taken by the respondent within three years from the date of the acknowledgment is not correct because the liability of the respondent began from the date when the entries were made against him in the rokar bahi and not before and it is from that date that the amounts were deemed to have been advanced to him. It may be mentioned that all the entries in the book are in the hand-writing of the respondent himself including the balances struck from time to time.

It was also argued that as the whole of the account is in the hand-writing of Baij Nath and as he has made entries in the account book debiting the various items against him and as on one occasion, i. e. on 7th July 1929 he made an entry of Rs. 4485.13.3 in the plaintiff's account book as due from him the making of this entry would amount to an acknowledgment of liability under S. 19, Limitation Act. The contention of the learned counsel was that though there is no signature of the respondent under this entry but as the opening entry of the account mentioning that it was the account of Baij Nath was in his own hand-writing therefore all the entries made by him subsequently below the heading must be deemed to have been signed by him. It is necessary to mention this argument to reject it as untenable. The entry has not been signed by Baij Nath and cannot be deemed to have been signed by him merely because the heading of the account is in his hand-writing.

As a result of the above discussion it follows that all the items which are debited to the respondent within three years from 28th August 1928 would be within time and it is conceded before us that in this manner the plaintiff's suit would be within time except with regard to Rupees 121.15.6 and proportionate interest thereon. Interest calculated at as. 9.6 per cent. per mensem comes to Rs. 27.10.9. Therefore the total deduction from the plaintiff's claim would be Rs. 149.10.3. The plaintiff would thus be entitled to a decree for Rs. 6309.7.3. I would therefore accept this appeal and modify the decree of the trial Judge by increasing the decretal amount to Rs. 6309.7.3 with proportionate costs throughout. The decretal amount shall carry interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the date of the suit till realisation.

Dalip Singh J. — I agree.

B.D./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 267

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Municipal Committee, Amritsar — Defendant—Appellant.
v.

Kanshi Ram—Plaintiff—Respondent.

First Appeal No. 111 of 1937, Decided on 24th October 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Amritsar, D/- 7th December 1936.

Limitation Act (1908), Art. 115—Municipal Committee using another's land for cattle fair for years—Implied agreement to compensate land owner — Suit for compensation is governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 39 or Art. 120.

Where a Municipal Committee continues to hold a cattle fair on another's land from year to year, an inference can be drawn that there was an implied contract between the Committee and the landowner that the Committee should pay to the owner and that the owner should allow the Committee to hold the fair :

A suit therefore for compensation not received will be governed by Art. 115 and not by Art. 39 or Art. 120. [P 268 C 1]

M. Sleem and Behari Lal —

for Appellant.

Achhru Ram and Vishnu Datta —

for Respondent.

Judgment.—The Municipal Committee of Amritsar holds a cattle fair twice a year. The land on which the fair is held did not belong to the Committee but to different landowners. The fair has been held on the same ground for a considerable number of years, though it is not definitely established when this commenced. No compensation was paid to the various landowners up to 1919. In that year compensation was claimed by the plaintiff and other landowners. Most of the claims have been settled but the Municipal Committee and the plaintiff did not come to terms. Accordingly the plaintiff instituted the present suit against the committee on 23rd July 1935 for Rs. 7250 as compensation for the land from 1929 to Baisakhi 1935. Various defences were raised. The trial Court decreed the claim to the extent of Rs. 5800 with proportionate costs and the Municipal Committee has appealed.

It was held by the trial Court that Art. 120, Lim. Act, applies. In our opinion this is not so. Nor do we think that Art. 39 applies as it cannot be said that there was any trespass, for obviously there was an implied understanding or contract that the fair should be held there. This is the only possible inference from the fact that it has been held there for so many years. This means that the proper Article is 115, that is the suit must be treated as a suit for compensation for a breach of an implied contract not in writing registered and not specially provided for. The time when limitation begins under this Article is when the contract is broken or (where there are successive breaches) when the breach in respect of which the suit is instituted occurs, or (where the breach is continuing) when it ceases. It seems to us however that the question of limitation does not arise in this suit. The plaintiff has been asking for compensation since 1929. For the first three years from 1929 to 1931 a cheque for Rs. 2400 was actually made out in the Committee's office and on 13th June 1931 the President, to whom full powers had been handed over to settle the matter, ordered the cheque to be paid. It was not however paid but the fair continued to be held on the land and the Committee and the plaintiff continued to dispute as to what was the proper rate of compensation. The land supervisor of the Committee (D. W. 1) has stated that so far as he knew the matter was still pending before the committee. This means that the committee has never refused to pay though the rate of compensation has been in dispute. No breach therefore can be said to have occurred and limitation cannot be held to have started.

The trial Court has taken the report of the Tahsildar as the best basis for computing the compensation due. It is in evidence that many of the other landowners have been compensated at that rate. There was another report by a servant of the committee, but it is not so reliable as that of the Tahsildar, while the principal reason given in that report for reducing the Tahsildar's figure was that the plaintiff did not own much of the land which he claimed. There is not much difference as to the actual rate. There is now no dispute that the land as mentioned in the plaint did belong to the plaintiff. On the record therefore there is no question but that the report of the Tahsildar, (who went into the witness-box) corroborated as it is by certain other evidence, is the best evidence as to what should be given in the present case. The Tahsildar however allowed a special rate for 25 kanals of land for the first three years. It does not seem to have been established that this special rate is correct. We therefore reduce the compensation for the first three years by Rs. 1000. The rate allowed for the subsequent years is reasonable and is justified on the record. In the result we accept the appeal so as to reduce the decretal amount to Rs. 4800 with proportionate costs on that amount in the trial Court. The parties will bear their own costs here. The cross-objections were not pressed and are dismissed without costs.

B.D./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 268

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Dharam Singh—Convict—Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 1065 of 1937, Decided on 28th October 1937, from order of Addl. Sess. Judge, Ferozepore, D/- 4th September 1937.

Criminal Trial—Dying declaration—Wound puncturing liver, lung, stomach etc. — Victim, held not capable of making any declaration.

Where a deceased received a spear wound which penetrated the chest wall on the right side, went through the ribs, through the diaphragm, penetrated the right lobe of the liver, completely penetrated the whole liver and came out of the left lobe of the liver and then went through the stomach and finally through the ribs on the left side of the chest and through the chest wall :

Held that there was great difficulty in believing that the deceased could possibly have lived for two hours after receiving an injury of this description, much less could have been conscious. The probability of his ever living to make a dying declaration two hours later is too remote to be considered. [P 269 C 1, 2]

Mahtab Singh — for Appellant.

Anant Ram Khosla for Advocate-General — for the Crown.

Young C. J.—Dharam Singh has been condemned to death by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Ferozepore, for the murder of Chanan Singh. It is alleged that Dharam Singh together with Gulabu, who has been made an approver in this case, and Kaka, an absconder, lay in wait for Chanan Singh, attacked him and killed him and that each of the three persons engaged in the murder inflicted wounds upon the deceased. Apart from the approver's statement, the only evidence of corroboration tending to connect Dharam Singh with the crime is the evidence of a dying declaration by Chanan Singh. This corroborative evidence has been severely attacked in our Court, and we consider, with great justification. In the first place, the deceased Chanan Singh received a spear wound which according to the medical evidence penetrated the chest wall on the right side, went through the ribs, through the diaphragm, penetrated the right lobe of the liver, completely penetrated the whole liver and came out of the left lobe of the liver. It then went through the stomach and finally through the ribs on the left side of the chest and through the chest wall. According to the evidence of Lt. Colonel Batra, I. M. S. this was one wound. In fact, the spear completely transixed the body spitting the liver on the way through. A mass of liquid blood on post mortem was found in the pleural cavities and in the peritoneal cavity. We are invited to believe that after receiving this wound the deceased took off his turban, tied it round his chest to stop the blood flowing from his body, then walked about 200 yards and fell outside the house of a man who clearly is a bitter enemy of the accused, that there after he was taken to the hospital, another 200 or 300 yards away, and eventually, some two hours after receiving the injury that he made this dying declaration.

We have great difficulty in believing that the deceased could possibly have lived for two hours after receiving an injury of this description, much less could he have been conscious. It is within our own knowledge, from medical evidence in previous cases, that an injury of this description to the liver would result in the sufferer losing consciousness in a very short time. The probability of his ever living to make a dying declaration two hours later is too remote to be considered.

Secondly, the approver and the dying declaration say that three separate blows by the three different persons were inflicted. The opinion of the Civil Surgeon is, as pointed out above, that only one blow was inflicted. Whether the Civil Surgeon is right or wrong in this opinion, it is again a matter throwing doubt upon the dying declaration. The approver himself is not too satisfactory. He is a bad type of approver and, according to his own statement in the committing Magistrate's Court, became an approver after he heard that Dharam Singh was likely to be made an approver.

In view of the above, we think that it would be extremely dangerous to rely upon this dying declaration as corroboration of the approver's statement. We therefore have to accept this appeal, set aside the conviction and sentence and direct that Dharam Singh be set at liberty if he is not required for any other offence.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 269

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Karamat Hussain Mulla
Convict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 864 of 1937, Decided on 10th November 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Rawalpindi, D/. 17th July 1937.

Penal Code (1860), S. 100—Woman being terribly beaten by her husband rushing to her brother for protection—Husband saying that he would continue to beat her — Brother killing him with hatchet in order to save his sister and himself from being killed—Brother held acted in right of self-defence.

A woman was being brutally beaten by her husband. She rushed out of her room and asked her brother who was sleeping near by to protect her. She was followed by her husband who said that he was going to continue the beating. He was a very brutal and dangerous man. The brother of the woman thereupon seized a hatchet and killed him. There was evidence that if he had not done so the deceased might have killed him ;

Held that under these circumstances the brother acted in the right of self-defence not only of his sister but of himself and he could not therefore be said to have committed any offence. Moreover the right of self-defence could not be said to have been exceeded. [P 270 C 2]

L. M. Datta — for Appellant.

Ch. Nazir Hussain, Asst. Legal Remembrancer — for the Crown.

Young C. J. — Karamat Hussain was charged with the murder of his brother-in-law Fazal. The learned Sessions Judge, Rawalpindi, found him guilty and sentenced him to transportation for life. Karamat Hussain from the very beginning admitted having killed Fazal; but his defence has been throughout that he acted in defence of his sister and himself. The sister of Karamat Hussain was married to Fazal. According to the prosecution evidence, this Fazal appears to have been a brute and a dangerous man who had been suspected of murders and who was a village bully and who had threatened every one. He was a man of powerful physique. He again according to the evidence of the prosecution brutally ill-treated his wife, the sister of Karamat Hussain. On the night when Fazal was killed, Fazal had again been beating this unfortunate woman. She rushed out of her kothri to where her brother was sleeping and pleaded with him to protect her. She was followed by Fazal. Karamat Hussain then asked his brother-in-law why he was continuing beating his wife and asked him to stop. According to the evidence of Hukam Dad, the witness, on whom the Judge mainly relies, Fazal said that he would beat his wife and would not spare her. Thereupon Karamat Hussain seized a hatchet and hit the deceased on the head and killed him. It is also in evidence that immediately after this was done Karamat Hussain said that if he had not killed his brother-in-law, his brother-in-law would have killed him. This brother-in-law, according to the evidence, could easily have killed Karamat and he was certainly a man of such a temperament that he might have done it.

It appears to us that the above is a true statement of what occurred. Under these circumstances, we have to consider what offence, if any, has been committed. We think that the accused Karamat Hussain had a perfect right to defend his sister from the brutal treatment she was getting from her husband. The whole episode of that night may be treated as one. There was the fact that the woman was getting a terrible beating, that she rushed out and asked her brother for protection, that she was followed by her husband who said he was going to continue the beating and therefore we think the right arose to Karamat Hussain to defend his sister. In addition, there is some evidence that the axe with which Fazal was killed was originally in the hand of Fazal, deceased. The woman herself gave evidence and she definitely said so. The learned Judge however doubts this evidence perhaps not unnaturally. No doubt the woman would be inclined to help her brother. On the other hand however her evidence possibly may be true. Karamat Hussain himself at once stated that he had taken the axe from the hand of the deceased. In any event, whether this be true or not, we think that the right of private defence of his sister arose and it is difficult to say by how much that right has been exceeded. It is very possible, as suggested by all the evidence, that if Karamat Hussain had not killed or seriously disabled Fazal he himself would have been in great danger of being killed. Taking into consideration the brutal character of Fazal and the right of Karamat Hussain to interfere, we think it can be said that Karamat Hussain had reasonable apprehension for his own life. Under these circumstances it is difficult to say that Karamat Hussain has committed any offence. We therefore hold that Karamat Hussain acted in the right of self-defence not only of his sister but of himself and it would be very difficult to hold that under the circumstances of this particular case he exceeded that right. We accept this appeal and set aside the sentence of transportation for life and acquit the accused.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 270

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Messrs. Jaini Brothers and Co. —

Defendant—Appellant.

v.

Shankar Lal — Plaintiff —

Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 443 of 1937, Decided on 25th November 1937, from preliminary decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/- 17th February 1937.

(a) Accounts—Suit for—Official Receiver of ex-broker's assets in insolvency assigning definite sum of money due from latter's principal and not right to sue for accounts—Suit for rendition of accounts for recovery of sum assigned is incompetent.

Where, what is assigned to the plaintiff by the Official Receiver of an ex-broker's assets in insolvency, is a definite sum of money due from the latter's principal and not a right to sue for account, if any, a suit for rendition of account for the recovery of the amount thus assigned is incompetent. [P 271 C 2]

(b) Deed—Construction—Instrument must be construed according to plain meaning of words and sentences contained therein.

An instrument must be construed according to the plain meaning of the words and sentences contained therein. It is not proper to assume an intention apart from the language of the instrument itself and having done so to bend the language in favour of the assumption so made. [P 271 C 2]

(c) Pleadings — Amendment — High Court will not interfere with discretion of trial Court unless discretion is exercised arbitrarily.

The trial Court has complete discretion whether to allow or refuse a prayer for an amendment of pleadings and where the discretion has not been exercised injudiciously or arbitrarily, the High Court will not interfere. [P 272 C 1, 2]

M. C. Mahajan and Shamsher Bahadur
— for Appellant.

J. N. Aggarwal — for Respondent.

Din Mohammad J. — The suit out of which this appeal has arisen was for rendition of accounts and was instituted by an assignee of an ex-broker's assets in insolvency against the latter's principal. It was resisted on the grounds, inter alia, that a right to sue for accounts had not been assigned, that a broker who worked on commission had no right to call for accounts, that even if he had such right, it could not be assigned in law, and that, in any circumstances, the suit was time barred. The Subordinate Judge held that a right to sue for accounts had been assigned by the Official Receiver, that a broker could under the trade usage prevailing in Delhi call for accounts from his principal, that the right to take such accounts could be legally assigned and that the suit was within time under Art. 120, Lim. Act. From this decision an appeal was preferred to the District Judge who did not go into the matter whether what was assigned was an ascertained sum or a right to sue for accounts but agreed with the Subordinate Judge in holding that a broker could sue for rendition of accounts. He however based his decision on an admission of a member of the defendant firm made in a previous suit between another broker and a different firm. On the question whether such right could be transferred, he relied on some judgments of the Allahabad and Calcutta High Courts, and treating it as a claim for money had and received, came to the conclusion that its transfer was permissible. On the question of limitation, he was of opinion that Art. 113 and not Art. 120, Lim. Act, governed the matter and remanded the case under O. 41, R. 25, Civil P. C. after indicating the points to be determined by the trial Court to fix the terminus a quo for the suit. The trial Court submitted its report in due course and the Additional District Judge who had succeeded the District Judge in the mean time holding the suit to be within time dismissed the appeal. The defendant presented a second appeal to this Court which came before one of us and, in view of the conflict of judicial decisions on some of the points involved in the case, was referred to a Division Bench for disposal.

After hearing counsel on both sides, we have come to the conclusion that this appeal must succeed on the ground that what was assigned by the Official Receiver to the plaintiff was a definite sum of Rs. 2600 and not a right to sue for accounts, if any, and that for the recovery of a specified sum thus assigned, a suit for accounts did not lie. As stated above, this matter was decided against the defendant by the trial Court and though it was again raised in the grounds of appeal, was not considered by the District Judge in any explicit manner. The trial Court mainly relied on the wording of the deed as interpreted by the Official Receiver, but in spite of the fact that the Official Receiver could be taken to be the best judge of the signification of the words used by him in the deed of assignment, we are constrained to remark that the construction put by him on the plain wording of the deed is, to say the least, altogether far-fetched and erroneous. In the words of Lord Halsbury

Whatever the instrument, it must receive a construction according to the plain meaning of the words and sentences therein contained . . . and it is arguing in a vicious circle to begin by assuming an intention apart from the language of the instrument itself, and, having made that fallacious assumption, to bend the language in favour of the assumption so made. (Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes, Edn. 7, p. 6).

The words used in the deed were haquo dakhli wa kharji wasuli wa adum wasuli which, literally interpreted, mean "rights, internal and external, of recovery and non-recovery" and by no stretch of imagination could they be taken to include a right to sue for accounts. The words "external or internal rights" are generally used in deeds relating to immovable property and were altogether out of place in this document which concerned specific sums of money only. They appear to have been used as a mere matter of habit and conveyed no sense whatever in regard to the thing assigned. The sum in dispute was not the only sum assigned by the deed. There were two other sums also included in the schedule annexed to the deed of assignment and whatever rights the plaintiff possessed in respect of the other two items assigned to him, the same he could exercise in respect of the item in suit too. It cannot be seriously urged on his behalf that he could sue for accounts for recovery of those two items and if he could not do so in their case, it passes one's comprehension, how he could resort to that method in respect of this item. We hold therefore that what was assigned to the plaintiff was an ascertained sum of money and for the recovery thereof a suit for rendition of accounts is incompetent. In fact the plaintiff himself realized the weakness of his position and applied to the trial Court for permission to amend the plaint so as to convert his suit in the alternative into one for recovery of Rs. 2600. This application of his was however disallowed. Counsel for the respondent has submitted that he may now be allowed to amend his plaint and to bring a suit in the regular form on payment of proper court-fee. We are not however inclined to accede to his request at this late stage, especially as there are no equities in favour of the respondent, he having purchased outstandings amounting to Rs. 6900 odd for a paltry sum of Rs. 70 only. Not being content with the profit he had made on this bargain, he deliberately sought to evade the provisions of the Court-fees Act in this case and started with eyes open in a manner which was obviously risky. Further, his prayer for amendment has once been refused by the trial Court which had complete discretion in the matter to allow or refuse the suggested amendment and we are not prepared to say that that discretion was so injudiciously or arbitrarily exercised as to call for our interference.

In the view of the case that we have taken, no other question arises and it would be sheer waste of time to attempt to decide other matters the decision on which will be mere obiter dictum. We accordingly accept this appeal and set aside the decisions of the Courts below. The appellant will get his costs from the respondent in all the Courts.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 272

JAI LAL AND DALIP SINGH JJ.

Bawa Sohan Singh and another — Defendants — Appellants.

v.

Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar — Petitioner — Respondent.

First Appeal No. 360 of 1936, Decided on 19th October 1937, from decree of Sikh Gurdwaras Judicial Commission, Lahore, D/- 9th May 1936.

(a) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 142—Member of Gurdwara acquitted of charge of negligence — Costs should be awarded.

Where the Judicial Commission acquits a member of the Committee of Management of a Gurdwara of charges of negligence etc. it should award him his costs. [P 273 O 1]

(b) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 142—Acts done in due course of business — Negligence of agents — Member cannot be warned.

Where a member of the Committee of Management of a Gurdwara does acts in the due course of its management and it is found that persons on whom he had to rely were negligent in their duties, such member cannot be warned by the Judicial Commission. [P 273 O 1, 2]

Bhagat Singh — for Appellants.

Charn Singh — for Respondent.

Jai Lal J.—An application under S. 142, Sikh Gurdwaras Act, was made by the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar, to the Sikh Gurdwaras Judicial Commission, against Bawa Sohan Singh, President, and S. Narain Singh member of the Committee of Management of the Gurdwara at Muktsar. It was alleged that on the occasion of Maghi in January 1934 a mela was held at Muktsar and Rs. 870 were alleged to have been spent on account of travelling allowances and refreshment expenses of sewadars.

The mela was under the supervision of a Mela Sub.Committee of which S. Narain Singh was the chairman. The expenses were incurred under the direct supervision of Narain Singh but were finally sanctioned by Bawa Sohan Singh. It was alleged that the expenses incurred or alleged to have been incurred were extravagant and proper receipts had not been obtained and it was complained that the defendants had committed misfeasance with regard to Rs. 300 out of Rs. 870. After evidence of both the parties had been recorded and arguments heard, the Judicial Commission came to the conclusion that Bawa Sohan Singh was not guilty of any negligence. They dismissed the application against him but left the parties to bear their own costs. As to S. Narain Singh it was held that he had made payments to Ishar Singh and others who were jathedars and had relied upon their word that payments had been made to sewadars. They did not hold that Narain Singh was guilty of any negligence. On the other hand their conclusion was that though several payments shown to have been made to the sewadars were fictitious, in this case they could not blame S. Narain Singh for what was done by Ishar Singh. He had no doubt been negligent to some extent in taking absolutely no steps to see whether the payments were actually made by the jathedars to the sewadars. But his fault was not very grave, because at the time of such a rush one is apt to depend upon others.

Under these circumstances they thought that a warning to S. Narain Singh for discharging his duties as a member of the Gurdwara Committee negligently in this respect would meet the ends of justice. They consequently warned S. Narain Singh for his negligence. Both the defendants have preferred this appeal—Bawa Sohan Singh with regard to the order as to costs and S. Narain Singh with regard to the warning given to him.

It is claimed on behalf of Bawa Sohan Singh that in view of the finding of the Judicial Commission, there was no justification for not ordering the costs to follow the event. No reasons are given by the Judicial Commission for not awarding him costs against the petitioner. There is force in this contention. Having found that Bawa Sohan Singh was not guilty of any negligence or dishonesty and having dismissed the application against him, costs should have been awarded to him against the petitioner. As to the appeal of S. Narain Singh, I am unable to see on what ground the Judicial Commission could give him a warning. He had done what was normal in such circumstances. He trusted Ishar Singh and other jathedars and paid them the amounts according to the bills prepared by them. These amounts had to be distributed by the jathedars to the sewadars and if there was any irregularity on the part of these jathedars or any dishonesty, Narain Singh could not be made responsible. Indeed the Judicial Commission do not make him responsible and admit that on such occasions one has to rely upon others. That being so, the warning given to Narain Singh was not justified.

1938 L/95 & 86

Cross-objections have been filed on behalf of the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee but nothing has been urged in support of them. Consequently this appeal must be accepted and the order of the Judicial Commission giving a warning to Narain Singh should be set aside and also the order leaving the parties to bear their own costs. The costs in this case should follow the event and the Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee shall pay the costs of both the appellants both before the Judicial Commission and also in this Court.

Dalip Singh J.—I agree.

B.D./R.K.

Appeals allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 273

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Kanshi Ram Sharma and another — Plaintiffs—Appellants.

v.

*Lahori Ram and another —
Defendants — Respondents.*

Second Appeal No. 405 of 1937, Decided on 19th October 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Ferozepore, D/- 11th January 1937.

(a) Punjab Pre-emption Act (1 of 1913), S. 16 (Sixthly) — Waiver—Contract with third party not in existence!—Property offered for sale but declined by pre-emptor amounts to waiver.

The right of pre-emption can be waived by a pre-emptor when property is offered to him for sale before a definite contract of sale with any other person has come into existence and such person has refused to purchase the property or intimated his intention of not purchasing the property: A I R 1929 Lah 265 and A I R 1935 Lah 884, Foll.

[P 274 O 2]

(b) Pre-emption — Hindu joint family — Word 'co-sharer' is not proper.

The word 'co-sharer' is not the right word to use as regards the joint property of a joint Hindu family. The members of the family are coparceners but have no 'share' until there is disruption of the family: 35 P R 1908, Doubted; 67 I C 76 and A I R 1925 Oudh 352, Rel. on. [P 274 C 2]

(c) Pre-emption—Waiver of right by karta of joint Hindu family..

A waiver of right to pre-empt by the manager of a joint Hindu family operates as a complete waiver by all the members of the family: A I R 1918 P C 154 and A I R 1931 All 216, Rel. on. [P 275 C 1]

J. N. Aggarwal and R. P. Khosla —
for Appellants.

Achhru Ram and Faqir Chand Mital —
for Respondent No. 1

Addison J. — This is a second appeal in a pre-emption suit by the plaintiffs, Kanshi Ram and Hans Raj, who form a joint Hindu family, the manager being Kanshi Ram. The only question, involved in the appeal, which was argued, was that of waiver. It had been pleaded by the defendants that the house was offered to Kanshi Ram and that he refused to purchase it; this amounting to waiver. The sixth issue was therefore struck on this question, namely whether the plaintiff was asked to purchase and was estopped from suing? The right of pre-emption claimed by the plaintiffs was under S. 16 (Sixthly), Punjab Pre-emption Act 1 of 1913, that is they claimed as persons who owned immovable property contiguous to the property sold. It was not counter-pleaded in the trial Court by the plaintiffs that Hans Raj would not be estopped from suing merely because his brother was estopped. It seems then to have been considered that if Kanshi Ram had waived his right to pre-empt, the suit must fail. Accordingly the trial Judge dismissed the suit, holding that waiver was established. There was an appeal to the District Judge, when it was contended before him for the first time on behalf of Hans Raj that the evidence and finding simply amounted to this, that Kanshi Ram, one of the appellants, had waived his right of pre-emption. The District Judge therefore remanded to the trial Court an additional issue as to whether the waiver of the right of pre-emption by Kanshi Ram operated as waiver by both the plaintiffs. Thereafter, the District Judge held that the two brothers constituted a joint Hindu family holding the contiguous property from which they derived their right to sue and other property as coparceners of that family of which Kanshi Ram was the manager and that, as the manager had waived his right to pre-empt, Hans Raj was also estopped and had no separate right of suit. Against this decision this appeal has been preferred.

It has now been settled by this Court in A I R 1929 Lah 265¹ and A I R 1935 Lah 884² that the right of pre-emption can be waived by a pre-emptor when property is offered to him for sale before a definite contract of sale with any other person has come into existence and such person has refused to purchase the property or intimated his intention of not purchasing the property. There is no doubt therefore that Kanshi Ram is estopped.

There remains the question whether Hans Raj can pre-empt in the circumstances described. It was stated in 35 P R 1908³ that where the property, on the ownership of which the right to pre-empt is based, belongs to a joint Hindu family, the right of pre-emption vests under Cl. 7 of S. 13, Pre-emption Act 1905, in every co-sharer in such property. It seems to us that the word "co-sharer" is not the right word to use as regards the joint property of a joint Hindu family. The members of the family are coparceners but have no "share" until there is disruption of the family. Besides, though the head-note of the authority mentioned refers to the Punjab Pre-emption Act 1905, the case was apparently one governed by the Punjab Laws Act 1872. We were also referred to 6 Lah 1,⁴ but that case does not purport to decide the question before us.

It was held by the Court of the Judicial Commissioners, Oudh in 88 I C 879⁵ that an undivided member of a joint family cannot, apart from the other members of the family, unless he represents the whole family as karta, claim to be a cosharer within the meaning of S. 9, Oudh Laws Act. The expression "cosharer" in that Section means a juristic person and not merely an individual who collectively with other individuals constitutes a single juristic person. A converse case was decided

1. Ram Sahai v. Muhammad Tufail, (1929) 16 A I R Lah 265=115 I C 767=30 P L R 88.
2. Sardar Muhammad v. Khuda Bakhsh, (1935) 22 A I R Lah 884=10 I C 937
3. Ishri Parshad v. Bashehar Nath, (1908) 35 P R 1908=92 P W R 1908=179 P L R 1908.
4. Sa Narain v. Behari Lal (1925) 12 A I R P O 18=84 I C 88=52 I A 22=6 Ah 1 (P O)
5. Gajadhar v. Lal Behari (1925) 12 A I R Oudh 352=88 I C 879=28 O C 189=2 O W N 264.

in this Court and reported in 67 I C 76.⁶ It was held there that the sons in a joint Hindu family cannot maintain a suit to pre-empt a sale of joint family property, made by the father as managing member of the family, and which is not alleged to be otherwise than for necessity. Here again the idea is that the family is one until separation. A case on all fours with the present is A I R 1931 All 216⁷ where it was held that the refusal of a karta of a joint Hindu family to purchase the property sought to be pre-empted bound the coparceners as well and they could not claim a separate right of pre-emption. This principle also obtains some support from the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in 82 P R 1919.⁸ The occupancy tenants of a village sued for pre-emption in respect of the sale of the village by the proprietor. It was found that two of the body of tenants, acting on behalf of the whole village, introduced the vendees to the vendor's agent as prospective purchasers, telling him that an agreement had been come to whereby those vendees should pay the money and acquire the property, which should then be held as three-quarters for the vendees and one quarter for the tenants. Thereafter the tenants sued to pre-empt the sale, but it was held that they were estopped as two of the tenants, acting for the village, had helped the vendees to have the purchase effected. It was held further that there was no need that the two representatives of the whole village should have held powers of attorney and that it would require very strong and cogent reasons to compel the Court to hold so extremely reasonable arrangement bad simply because some of the villagers happened to be infants.

On the authorities therefore, we hold that a waiver by the manager of a joint Hindu family operates as a complete waiver by all the members of the family. That is the only reasonable view which can be taken. The appeal accordingly fails and is dismissed. We however make no order as to costs of this Court.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

6. Sukha Ram v. Kotu Ram, (1922) 67 I C 76.

7. Suraj Prasad v. Oudh Behari, (1931) 18 A I R All 216=131 I C 681=1931 A L J 204.

8. Idris v. J. Skinner, (1918) 5 A I R P O 154=56 I C 723=82 P R 1919.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 275

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mt. Sat Bhawan — Plaintiff —
Appellant.

v.

Bedi Ram Kishen Singh and others —
Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 18 of 1937, Decided on 18th October 1937, from order of Sub-Judge, First Class, Amritsar, D/- 21st December 1936.

(a) Court-fees — Possession — Possession howsoever obtained is good possession—Constructive possession through tenant is good possession.

Possession although obtained by force, fraud or collusion is valid possession in the eye of the law for the purposes of the Court-fees Act. Possession may be actual or constructive and possession through tenant is recognised by law. [P 276 C 2]

(b) Court-fees Act (1870), Sch. 2, Art. 17 (vi) and S. 7 (v)—Person not in possession of property claiming to be entitled to it—S. 7 (v) and not Art. 17 (vi) applies.

If a person is not in possession of property to which he considers he is entitled on the strength of any right, title or interest that he claims in relation thereto and seeks to obtain possession thereof from the person who is keeping it back from him, there being no jointness of possession or title between the two, his suit is one for possession bare and simple, to which the provisions of S. 7 (v) apply, and no occasion arises to invoke Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. 2 in his favour: A I R 1930 Lah 839 and A I R 1934 Lah 563 (F B), Disting.

[P 277 C 1]

Shamair Chand and D. N. Aggarwala
— for Appellant.

Nihal Singh — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — The suit out of which this appeal has arisen was instituted by Mt. Sat Bhawan widow of Baba Manmohan Singh and her married daughter Mt. Har Narinjan Kaur. It was brought on 19th August 1935 and was 'for partition of property by metes and bounds.' The principal defendants in the suit were Bedi Ram Kishen Singh brother of Baba Manmohan Singh and his son Devindar Singh. The plaintiffs alleged that the two brothers, Baba Manmohan Singh and Bedi Ram Kishen Singh, separated about 21 years ago and since then had been in possession of their respective shares. The immovable property, however, was left joint. On 3rd May 1931, Baba Manmohan Singh bequeathed his property to the two plaintiffs and on 16th February 1933 he died. The relations of the parties became strained after Baba Manmohan Singh's death and as the plaintiffs apprehended loss at the hands of Bedi Ram Kishen Singh, they claimed a decree for 'possession by partition and separation of their one half share.' A court-fee stamp of the value of Rs. 10 only was paid on the plaint.

The suit was resisted on various grounds by the principal defendants. While admitting that the property was joint of the two brothers, Baba Manmohan Singh and Bedi Ram Kishen Singh, they denied the factum of partition as alleged in the plaint. Besides, both the existence and the legality of the will as also the status of the plaintiffs were repudiated. Along with the pleas on facts, certain technical pleas were also raised of which the sole plea with which we are at present concerned is that of the insufficiency of court-fee stamp. This plea was raised on the ground that neither of the plaintiffs was in possession of any portion of the property in suit and was mainly founded on a previous order made by another Court in a previous suit brought by these plaintiffs on the same facts. The Subordinate Judge recorded certain evidence on this issue and came to the conclusion that the plaintiffs had failed to show that they were in possession of any part of the property in suit and could not consequently institute it unless they paid ad valorem court-fee on the value of the whole property claimed by them. The plaintiffs did not comply with the requisition of the Court and their plaint was accordingly rejected. Dissatisfied with this order the plaintiffs have appealed.

Two questions fall for determination in this case : (a) Whether the plaintiffs were in possession of any part of the property in suit at the time of the presentation of the plaint and (b) if so, what is the proper court-fee chargeable on the plaint. We take up question (a) first. It is in evidence that several shops forming part of the property in suit are in possession of the plaintiffs through the tenants occupying them. Several rent-deeds have been placed on the record which have been duly proved by the executants thereof. For example, Ghulam Muhammad son of Muhammad Ramzan (P. W. 3) admits having executed the rent deed Ex. P. 7 in favour of the plaintiffs. Similarly Ghulam Muhammad son of Asal Wain (P. W. 4) proves the rent deed Ex. P. 1, Bawa Mal (P. W. 5) the rent deed Ex. P. 8 and Puran Chand (P. W. 7) the rent deed Ex. P. 10. Gobind Ram (P. W. 6) deposes to having taken two shops and the first floor on lease from the plaintiffs. Narain Singh (P. W. 1) is the scribe of some of these rent deeds and formally proves their execution by the respective executants. There is thus ample testimony to establish that some of the tenants occupying some items of the property in suit have attorned in the plaintiff's favour. The only objection taken by the respondents on these deeds is that they have been collusively executed in favour of the plaintiffs by these witnesses who have been given most favourable terms therefor and as they are fictitious, no value should be attached to them nor should any conclusion of possession be derived therefrom. We have however not been referred to any authority on the basis of which it can be said that possession obtained by force, fraud or collusion is not a valid possession in the eye of the law for the purposes of the Court-fees Act. Possession may be actual or constructive and there can be no doubt that possession through tenants is constructive possession recognized by law. It may be that at the time when the previous suit was instituted by the plaintiffs this possession had not come into existence but that circumstance does not militate against a different finding in this case in any manner. The only conclusion possible from the evidence adduced by the plaintiffs is that they are constructively in possession of a part of the property in suit.

The answer to the second question is fraught with difficulties. The trend of authority has not been uniform on this matter and although an effort was made to set all doubts at rest in a Full Bench judgment reported in 15 Lah 531,¹ the present case unfortunately does not fall within the terms of the rule enunciated there. Neither the property involved in this case is joint family property nor are the plaintiffs the members of any such family. On their own allegations, they claim through a separated member and seek to obtain possession of the property that had fallen to his share long ago. They further claim to be the devisees of the property on the strength of a will said to have been executed in their favour by the separated member in 1931. This being so, there is no jointness of title between them and the defendants and consequently they cannot claim the benefit of the rule laid down in the Full Bench judgment.

1. Asa Ram v. Jagannath, (1934) 21 A I R Lah 568=150 I O 994 = 15 Lah 531 = 36 P L R 48 (F B).

Counsel for the appellants further draws our attention to a Division Bench authority of this Court reported in 31 P L R 315² but in our view that case also does not help him as it proceeds on different premises. There the plaintiff alleged that he was in joint possession of the property in suit and all that he claimed was separate possession thereof. Both the learned Judges who delivered separate judgments in the case emphasized that aspect of the case and on that basis decided that Art. 17 (vi) of Schedule 2, Court-fees Act, applied. In the present case, the state of affairs is quite different. The plaintiffs, no doubt, have been found to be in possession of some items of the property in suit but their possession on their own showing is not joint but exclusive, and their title too is not joint with the defendants. Evidently therefore to their case the reasoning used in that judgment does not apply.

In our view if a person is out of possession of property to which he considers he is entitled on the strength of any right, title or interest that he claims in relation thereto and seeks to obtain possession thereof from the person who is keeping it back from him, there being no jointness of possession or title between the two, his suit is one for possession, bare and simple, to which the provisions of S. 7 (v), Court-fees Act, apply and no occasion arises to invoke Art. 17 (vi) of Sch. 2, Court-fees Act, in his favour.

We accordingly uphold the judgment of the Subordinate Judge though on a different ground and dismiss this appeal. In the peculiar circumstances of the case however we make no order as to the costs of this appeal.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

2. Nikka v. Fazal Dad Khan, (1930) 17 A I R Lah 839=123 I C 525=31 P L R 315.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 277

DALIP SINGH AND SKEMP JJ.

Goenka Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills Ltd., Delhi — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

Messrs. Duncan Stratton and Co. — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 1769 of 1935, Decided on 13th July 1937.

(a) Limitation Act (1908), Art. 115 — Company A wishing to erect weaving shed, asking firm B to send specification for same — Specifications sent containing three estimates of different machinery covered by single letter giving total price of all machinery — Letter also stating that one-third of total price be paid with order — Order placed and machinery delivered — Some machinery found to be of different make — Suit for breach of contract against firm B — Almost all machinery including one complained of delivered more than three years before suit but part of engine delivered within three years — Art. 115 held applied and suit was within time as order was single whole.

Certain company A informed the firm B that they wished to erect a weaving shed and asked them to send a complete specification for the same. Specifications containing three estimates for different machines were covered by a single letter which gave a total price of all the machinery and stated that one-third of such total price should be paid in advance with the order. The order was placed and delivery taken, but it was found that some machinery was not of the same make as ordered. A suit was brought by company A against firm B for damages for breach of contract. Almost all the machinery including the subject matter of the suit was delivered more than three years before the date of the suit but a part of an engine was delivered within three years. The trial Court dismissed the suit as time-barred holding that the order was an order for separate pieces of machinery and time ran from delivery of each machine :

Held Art. 115, applied. The clause about payment conclusively showed that the order was regarded as a single whole and the time began to run from the date of the last delivery. The suit therefore was within time. [P 279 C 2 ; 280 C 1]

(b) Principal and Agent — Relationship — Suit for accounts — Firm A ordering certain machinery from firm B according to its specifications — Firm B supplying some machinery with prices fixed but rest subject to fluctuations of prices and its commission on actual prices — Firm A selling all machinery to company G with all rights under contract with firm B — Firm B informed accordingly — Subsequent changes in constitution of firm B held did not affect its liability to G.

The firm is an entity and in the absence of any notice to those with whom it had dealings, if the various partners and proprietors assume the liabilities as well as the rights of the current firm, the existing proprietor of the firm must be regarded as the agent of those with whom the firm had dealings in the same way as his predecessors.

[P 281 C 2]

A, a firm ordered certain machinery from the firm B according to the specifications and estimates submitted by firm B. According to the invoices, the firm was to supply certain machinery from their own stock with the prices fixed but the prices of the rest of the machinery were made subject to fluctuations in them and the firm B was to charge five percent as their commission upon actual prices. For certain other purposes such as insuring, shipping and clearing goods the firm B acted as agents of firm A. During the transaction the firm A sold all the machinery to company G and informed the firm B to credit all advances made by firm A to the name of company G who also confirmed this and asked the firm B to correspond and to draw upon them in future. There were also changes in the firm B. S who was sole proprietor of the firm when order was placed took some other people into partnership but these partners gradually retired. Ultimately S also retired and W became the sole proprietor. The company G instituted a suit against the firm B for rendering accounts on the ground that the firm B as their agents had charged far in excess of the price actually paid to the suppliers. It was pleaded on behalf of firm B that it was acting as principal and not as an agent and even if it was an agent the existing sole proprietor W was not liable to render accounts and at any rate the firm B was not an agent of company G as the relationship of principal and agent existed between the firm A and S the then sole proprietor :

Held that the firm B acted as an agent with regard to the machinery the prices of which were made subject to the fluctuations and acted as principal with respect to the machinery the prices of which were fixed. [P 281 C 1]

Held further that the change in the firm B did not affect this relationship in the absence of notice to those dealing with it as the firm is an entity. The existing proprietor was therefore liable to render accounts. [P 281 C 2]

Held also that the firm B was also an agent of the company G as the firm A had not only transferred the machinery bought from firm B to company G but also the entire rights under the contract. The firm B therefore was liable to render accounts to firm G for the items for which they acted as agents. [P 282 C 1]

M. C. Mahajan, J. N. Aggarwal and R. C. Soni — for Appellants.

Achbru Ram, Bhagwat Dayal, Keshab Chandra and Vishnu Datta — for Respondents.

Skemp J.—This is an appeal against a judgment and decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge of Delhi dismissing a suit for damages and accounts. The plaintiff is styled "the Goenka Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills, Ltd., Delhi, through their Managing Agents Messrs. Paras Ram Harnand Rai," and the defendant is a firm trading as Messrs. Duncan Stratton & Company. In 1919 Messrs. Paras Ram Harnand Rai wished to start a weaving shed in Delhi and early in 1920 they ordered from the defendant firm an engine and machinery of considerable value. The defendants' detailed specifications and estimates were submitted and the plaintiffs' order given in January 1920. Dealings went on till 1923. It was the time of the post-war boom, which did not last long, for cotton goods and of a soaring and falling exchange. In February 1920 when the plaintiffs made their first big remittance to England, the rupee was at 2s. 7½d., but on 21st May 1921 it was 1s. 2.13/16d. During the dealings, Messrs. Paras Ram Harnand Rai informed the defendant firm that the machinery bought by them had been sold to the Goenka Cotton Mills and authorized the defendant firm to place all sums advanced to the credit of the Mills.

There were also changes in the constitution of the defendant firm. Until 5th February 1920 Mr. F. B. Stratton was the sole proprietor. On that date he took into partnership Richard Forshaw, John Cardiff Watson, Edmund Mills Harwood and Frank Harwood, but the deed provided that Mr. Stratton was to have absolute control. On 1st March 1920 Mr. Forshaw withdrew and on 2nd September 1922 a further agreement was executed showing that Mr. Stratton had withdrawn from 31st March 1921. Mr. David Watson became a partner on 1st April 1923 and Mr. E. M. Harwood died on 11th November 1923, so that, from that date, Mr. J. C. Watson, Mr. Frank Harwood and Mr. David Watson were partners. A deed of dissolution was executed on 16th March 1926 whereby Mr. J. C. Watson and Mr. Frank Harwood retired, Mr. David Watson remaining the sole proprietor. Mr. Frank Harwood is however the firm's representative in England.

The plaint was lodged on 9th October 1924 and an amended plaint on 21st December 1925. The original claim was for Rs. 25,000 damages, and the plaintiffs prayed for a decree for that amount together with a decree for the return of one machine or refund of its price. In the amended plaint, the plaintiffs set forth that they had ordered machinery in accordance with the detailed estimates given by the defendants in January 1920, that the machinery reached India in the beginning of 1921 and took about six months to be brought to Delhi, opened and fitted. Some parts of the machinery were broken but the defendants failed to obtain insurance for the greater part of it. The defendants had supplied two machines, water mangle and starch mangle, under different names in order to increase their bill and the plaintiffs sought that one might be returned or that they might receive compensation. The plaintiffs had ordered an engine by Newton, Bean and Mitchell but the engine was supplied by another maker, Pollit and Wigzell, of different horse-power and different speciations. The defendants, who acted for the plaintiffs merely on a commission basis, had charged far in excess of the price actually paid to the suppliers. They sought a decree for damages and also for accounts and a decree for the return of one of the mangles.

The defendants pleaded that the Delhi Courts had no jurisdiction, that the suit was barred by time, that as early as 1920 the plaintiffs knew that they were getting a Pollit and Wigzell engine and that they had accepted it, that both a water mangle and a starch mangle were necessary, that the plaintiffs were responsible for the loss about insurance because they had not lodged their claim promptly and that they, defendants, were not the agents of the plaintiffs but acting as principals. On 7th February 1925 the Senior Subordinate Judge, Delhi, framed the following issues :

1. Has a Delhi Court no jurisdiction? 2. Is the suit within time? 3. Has there been any change in the constitution of the defendant firm? If so, how does it affect the case? 4. Are plaintiffs estopped from bringing the claim and to what extent? 5. Were any parts of the machinery broken; and are the defendants liable on that account? If so, to what extent? 6. Is water mangle and starch mangle one and the same thing and are the plaintiffs entitled to return one of the machines or to receive from the defendants compensation regarding the duplication? If so, in what amount? 7. Did the plaintiffs order the Pollit and Wigzell engine which was supplied? 8. If not, are the plaintiffs entitled to any damages on account of the said engine being different, defective or less efficient or otherwise? If so, to what extent? 9. Are plaintiffs entitled to receive any compensation on account of the difference in the said and other machinery as alleged in para. 7 of the plaint? If so, to how much? 10. Have the plaintiffs suffered any actual loss on account of the defendants' breach of contract and warranty if any? If so, how much? 11. To what relief are the plaintiffs entitled? 12. What is the relationship between the parties and, are defendants bound to render accounts to the plaintiffs?

On 18th March 1926 the defendants lodged a petition for revision of the order permitting amendment of the plaint, which was dismissed by a Division Bench of this Court on 10th May 1927. Commissions then issued for examination of witnesses in Bombay and in England. There were considerable difficulties about the examinations and notably, the same documents were required for examination of the witnesses in Bombay and in England. Hence the commissions for the witnesses in England were not sent until after the Bombay witnesses were finished in 1929. Commissions were executed in England between 1930 and 1933. The plaintiffs did not even know English; they did not know the procedure; they were uncertain exactly which witnesses they wished to examine and all these circumstances delayed matters. After the Commissions were executed, evidence was taken in Delhi between August 1933 and January 1935. Arguments were heard in March and April and judgment pronounced on 30th May 1935 by the last of the various Subordinate Judges who had handled the case. We have spent 11 days in hearing arguments and unfortunately the case will not be finally disposed of now. This is a bad history even for a Delhi case.

The Judge who decided the case, L. Siri Ram Puri, held that the Delhi Court had jurisdiction, that the suit was within time for accounts but barred by time for damages or for the return of a mangle, that the changes in the constitution of the defendants' firm were of no effect, that there was no question of estoppel except with reference to insurance, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to return a mangle or receive compensation, that the plaintiffs had accepted, paid for and worked a Pollit and Wigzell engine for over two years and must be taken to have ordered it, that the defendants were not the agents of the plaintiffs and the plaintiffs were not entitled to accounts. On the minor issues he held in favour of the defendants and he dismissed the suit with costs. The first point argued was limitation. Admittedly the Article applicable is 115 of the Limitation Act and the period three years from the date of the breach. The Senior Subordinate Judge held that the plaintiffs' order was an order for separate pieces of machinery and time would run with regard to each machine as and when it was delivered. Nearly all the machinery was delivered in Bombay more than three years before the institution of the suit, and if it were held that time ran from delivery at Delhi, there was no evidence on that point. The suit regarding the engine and the mangle was also barred by time; only the claim for accounts was within time.

Mr. Mehr Chand Mahajan for the appellants argued that the suit was within time because the order for the machinery was single and indivisible and because there was also unity of object. The dealings began by the plaintiffs, on 2nd December 1919, (V. 3) informing the defendants that they wished to erect a weaving shed for three hundred looms and asking them to send a complete specification for the same. The replies are the specifications of 12th and 13th January 1920, printed at pp. 4 to 15 of Vol. V. and covered by a single letter of 13th January 1920 (V. 15, 16). The first estimate is for an engine, Lancashire boiler, fire service pumps, humidifier pump and articles for the mechanic's shop. The second estimate was for saturating machine, kiers, chemicking machine, water mangle and starch mangle. The third estimate was for a calendar and the baling press. The covering letter gave the total price of these as £18,026-16-6 and laid down that the plaintiffs should "pay one-third in advance with the order, and will hand us within the next ten days a sterling demand draft for £6000." The clause about payment seems to me to show conclusively that the order was regarded as a single whole and that time would run only from the date of the last delivery. Admittedly, part of the engine was delivered within three years of the suit and the suit is therefore within time.

I will consider next the twelfth issue, the main issue in the case. It was argued before us for the appellants that the defendant firm was the plaintiffs' agent, for the respondents, that the parties were principals, on the admitted basis that if the defendant firm was plaintiffs' agent, it would have to render accounts, but it is worth bearing in mind the exact wording of the issue. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge began his discussion by saying that even in the amended plaint it was not alleged that the relationship between the parties was that of principal and agent. In para. 8 (a) of the amended plaint it is set forth :

The defendants who acted for the plaintiffs merely on commission basis, charged the plaintiffs for the machinery far in excess of the price actually paid to the suppliers. The plaintiffs further understand that defendants have overcharged the plaintiffs in other respects also. The defendants are responsible to render to the plaintiffs full and true accounts of the dealings relating to the purchase of the machinery in suit and to pay back to the plaintiffs all amounts charged in excess of the actual payments or disbursements as also all amounts received back by the defendants from the suppliers and not accounted for to the plaintiffs together with interest on sums found due.

This can only mean that the defendant firm were acting as agents of the plaintiffs. For the respondents, it is admitted that they were acting as the plaintiffs' agents for certain purposes, such as for insuring, shipping and clearing goods. In the first instance the defendants firm submitted three invoices, the first being for the engine, boiler, fire service pump, humidifier pump, a lathe and a drilling machine. There was a note that

The prices of the Boilers, Economizers and Donkey Pump are basis prices only, and subject to advance if cost of machinery has to be advanced from the time the order is booked up to time of completion and shipment, should there be any increase in cost of raw material and wages. The rest of the items which form portion of our stock lines, and which we have already ordered from home, are fixed prices.

The rest of the items include the fire service pump, humidifier pump, the lathe and the drilling machine, the two latter not now being in dispute. It was further noted that the fire service pump was in stock at Bombay, and the drilling machine in stock. It was also noted that :

Freight and insurance charges to Bombay are not included in above quotations, and will be charged extra at actual costs. Please note that the above prices have been calculated without any commission or profit for ourselves, so on to all above prices will have to be added 5 per cent. for our own commission. The final cost will therefore be £6692 as shown above, plus £334-12-0 for our commission, total £7026-12 0 basis price F. O. R. Steamer English Port.

The second estimate was for the mangles and some other machines not now in dispute. It contained a clause that the prices in the estimate were only current basis prices and subject to advance similar to that just quoted but in this estimate there was nothing at fixed prices. The third estimate was for a cloth finishing calendar and baling press of which the latter is now in dispute. It also contained a note that the quotations were only current basis quotations subject to increase. The first estimate is dated 12th January 1920, the other two dated 13th January. On the latter date there is a letter (V. 15) in which the defendants apparently set down the conclusions come to in "our interview with you this morning in company with Mr. K. A. Desai." In reference to the engine, boiler, pumps and mechanics shop tools, and also in reference to the calendar and bale pressing plant, i. e. the items of the first two invoices, in place of 5 per cent. commission the defendants agreed to accept only 2½ per cent. and in reference to the third estimate for bleaching and finishing machinery it was understood that the defendants' basis quotations included commission. Everything ordered in the three estimates was then summarised and it was noted :

It is agreed that with the exception of the fire service pump, humidifier pump, lathe and drilling machine covered by our estimate of yesterday's date, the prices of which are to be considered fixed, the prices of all the other machinery are current basis prices, subject to fluctuation and to increase according to advances

It was noted that the fire service pump, humidifier pump, lathe and drilling machine would be from stock. It was also noted :

We shall as usual arrange for shipment of the machinery to Bombay, covering all freight and insurance charges, which will be paid extra by you according to actual costs.)

Now, in my judgment, in reference to the articles which the defendant firm contracted to supply at fixed prices, they were principals. At any rate, in view of this contract they are not liable to render accounts. For the other machinery supplied, however, the defendants were acting as the plaintiffs' agents. There is no evidence as to what is meant by "basis prices." It must be remembered that Mr. Stratton is dead and that this Mr. Frank Harwood, although at the time he was an assistant in the firm, was not present at any of the original negotiations, (III, 50; see also III, 54, answer 53). Desai cannot be found: the plaintiffs probably did not understand. But it clearly meant that the defendants should pay the price which might vary according to variations in the cost of manufacture in England, and as the price was not fixed but depended on what the defendants had to pay to other people, the conclusion is inevitable that the defendants were acting as the plaintiffs' agents in making these payments.

The defendant firm undertook exchange operations on behalf of the plaintiffs. A letter from the defendants dated 6th September 1921, shows that as the best means of making remittances to England at a low and dropping exchange they had decided to place the plaintiffs' money with the Mercantile Bank and had arranged an overdraft in London against the floating account in Bombay so that whenever the exchange rose, a remittance could be made forthwith. It is not possible to explain this transaction on the supposition that the defendants were principals. If they were principals, as in the case of the pumps, they were only concerned with receiving payment for the goods which they had sold and not with making the plaintiffs' financial arrangements for payment to other parties.

Mr. Aohbru Ram for the respondents contended that the changes in the defendant firm protected them from liability. It is indeed a striking fact that at the time the contract was entered into, Mr. F. B. Stratton was the sole proprietor of the firm ; now Mr. Stratton is dead, and the sole proprietor is Mr. D. Watson who had nothing to do with the firm till 1st April 1923 ; but the firm is an entity and in the absence of any notice to those with whom it had dealings, the various partners and proprietors assumed the liabilities as well as the rights of the current firm. Hence, in my opinion, the present proprietor of the firm must be regarded as the agent of the plaintiffs in the same way as his predecessors. It was finally urged that at any rate the defendant firm were not the agents of the Goenka Cotton Mills. On 19th December 1920 Pars Ram Harnand Rai wrote to the defendants :

We beg to inform you that the machinery bought by us has been sold to Messrs the Goenka Cotton Spinning and Weaving Mills Co., Ltd., and Mr. Desai will explain to you the same and you will please do all what he tells you to do on our behalf.

The defendants wanted further authority and on 24th January 1921 the plaintiffs wrote :

Since we have sold all our machinery bought through you to the Goenka Spinning and Weaving Mills Co. Ltd., Delhi, we hereby authorize you to place all the sums advanced by us hitherto to the credit of the said Mills.

On the same date a letter was written on behalf of the Mills confirming this and asking the defendants " to correspond and draw upon us in future ". The copy of this letter on the record is not signed. The plaintiff firm consists of three brothers : Seth Sat Narain, Ganga Dhar and Durga Parshad. One of the partners Seth Ganga Dhar giving evidence said : " We started the Goenka Cotton Mills with an authorized capital of Rs. 20 lakhs ", of which about ten lakhs was subscribed, Rupees 9,25,000 by the managing agents. Mr. Desai also purchased shares of the value of Rs. 10,000, but never paid for the shares which were transferred to Pars Ram Harnand Rai. The company failed to materialize, but it appears that the plaintiffs wished to add to their other profits those of company promoting and as part of those profits asked the defendants to increase their invoices on the whole of machinery ordered by 15 per cent.

Mr. Achhru Ram argues that the relationship of principal and agent existed only between Messrs. Pars Ram Harnand Rai and Mr. F. B. Stratton, not between the Goenka Cotton Mills and Mr. Watson. I have already held that Mr. Watson was responsible for all the liabilities of the firm Duncan Stratton and Co. The answer to the other point depends on whether Pars Ram Harnand Rai transferred to the Goenka Cotton Mills only the machinery which they had bought or their entire rights under the contract. I would answer this in the latter sense because Pars Ram Harnand Rai asked the defendant firm to place sums hitherto advanced to the credit of the Mills. But it is not really necessary to go into this because this point was not specifically pleaded by the defendants or specifically put in issue. I would therefore hold that the defendant firm are liable to render accounts to the plaintiffs and will in the remainder of this judgment indicate as far as possible to what extent. (After discussing the evidence regarding the extent of liability to render accounts with respect to different items his Lordship proceeded further.) The result of this discussion is that the defendants will have to pay to the plaintiffs £300, the secret commission paid to Desai, and ancillary charges, £6 the difference in price between the two mangles and £67.18.3, freight and insurance charges for the fire service pump apparently not actually incurred. They have to account to the plaintiffs for the price of the boiler and the baling press; and for the rupee and sterling overdraft account. The final order will therefore be that the appeal is accepted and the plaintiffs given a decree for the items specified plus anything which may be found due on the other items of account. Unless the three last items of account can be settled simply, I would earnestly advise the parties to compromise, as it is possible that the litigation on these points may cost more than the total sum ultimately found due. If the defendants can trace accounts from Alex. Young and Co., and from the sterling overdraft account of the Mercantile Bank in London, it might settle the matter. It is possible that Alex. Young's accounts may not be forthcoming. It is very striking how witness after witness has stated that books have been destroyed or accounts cannot be traced; this is true even of the clerk who gave evidence on behalf of the Mercantile Bank, Bombay. The defendants have deposed that they have put on the record everything in their possession relating to the transactions in question; but it was part of the appellants' case that they had deliberately destroyed their books. This I do not believe; but Mr. Frank Harwood admitted that a number of books and papers had been destroyed on two occasions when dead rats were found in the Record Room (III, 88); and Mr. Watson said that a number of books were destroyed under his instructions in 1926, "when we installed quite a new system by Boneo, when I took over the firm", (III, 32). The suit for accounts had been lodged in 1925 and whatever the reason the defendant firm are responsible for the unfortunate results of the destruction of account books.

I would therefore accept this appeal and grant the plaintiffs a preliminary decree for accounts to be rendered by the defendant firm in accordance with the foregoing. In view of the result, plaintiffs having failed on several issues, the defendant firm is to pay half the plaintiffs' costs. The case is now remitted to the Court of the Senior Sub-Judge, Delhi, to take an account of the amounts due on (a) the secret commission paid to Desai, and ancillary charges thereon, (b) the boiler, (c) the baling press, (d) the rupee and sterling account. The amounts due on the difference between the two mangles, and on insurance of the Fire Service Pump have been definitely ascertained above.

Dalip Singh J. — I agree generally.

S.C./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 282

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Secretary of State and another — Defendants — Appellants.
v.

B. A. Malak, Plaintiff and another, Defendant — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 211 of 1936, Decided on 8th October 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/- 11th February 1936.

(a) Punjab Municipal Works Rules (1925), R. 11 — "Professional standing" prior to obtaining degree from University is possible.

The words "professional standing" in R. 11 are too vague to be properly defined and the mere fact that a person obtains his degree from a University in a certain year does not necessarily exclude the possibility of having a professional standing prior to that period. [P 285 C 1]

(b) Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 41—Word "unfit"—Meaning.

The word "unfit" in S. 41 does not refer to the absence of professional qualifications. [P 285 C 2]

(c) Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 41—Executive Officer or President of Committee cannot arrogate powers to remove municipal employee to themselves.

There is no provision in the Punjab Municipal Act or in the Executive Officers Act nor in any rule or bye-law made under these enactments which can authorize the Executive Officer or the President of the Municipal Committee to arrogate to themselves the powers of removing a municipal employee. [P 285 C 2; P 286 C 1]

(d) Punjab Municipal Account Code—Person holding substantive appointment is entitled to provident fund even though appointed on probation.

Under the Punjab Municipal Account Code, every servant who holds a substantive appointment is entitled to the benefit of the provident fund, and every person who holds a substantive appointment comes within the letter of that rule even though he is appointed on probation.

[P 286 C 1]

J. N. Aggarwal and S. C. Chatterji —
for Appellants.

M. C. Mahajan, M. A. Majid and Darbari Lal — for Respondent (Plaintiff).

Din Mohammad J. — This appeal has arisen out of a suit instituted by Mr. B. A. Malak against the Municipal Committee, Lahore, and the then Executive Officer for recovery of Rs. 5655.4.0 and for the issue of an injunction against the Executive Officer prohibiting him from interfering with the plaintiff in the performance of his duties.

The plaintiff alleged that by resolution No. 150, dated 23rd May 1933, the Municipal Committee, Lahore, appointed him to the post of Municipal Engineer (Buildings and Roads) on Rs. 300 per mensem and the usual conveyance allowance, if he actually maintained a car, and that in pursuance of that resolution, he took over charge on 26th May 1933. His appointment was on six months' probation but on the expiry of that period, the Municipal Committee did not dispense with his services. On 17th January 1934, he was all of a sudden required by Mr. Richards, Municipal Engineer, Water Works, to relinquish charge of his office. Mr. Richards however was not in a position to inform him of the circumstances in which his services were dispensed with and he consequently continued to discharge his official duties. On 18th January 1934, the Executive Officer personally handed him a letter issued by himself stating that his services had been terminated under orders from the Government. He asked for a copy of the orders of the Government relied on by the Executive Officer but this was refused. On 26th January, when he went to attend his office he found the door of his room locked. On 30th January 1934, he surrendered the charge under protest.

The position taken up by the plaintiff was that neither had the Government dispensed with his services nor was it authorized to do so and that the only authority competent to dismiss him was the Municipal Committee which had not passed any resolution to that effect till then. On these grounds he claimed his full salary from the date of his appointment up to the time of the institution of the suit. In addition, he claimed his provident fund to which, he alleged, he was entitled under the rules; and further stated that if it was found that the order of his dismissal was not ultra vires, he was entitled to one month's salary in lieu of one month's notice which is necessary to be issued to every municipal employee whose services are dispensed with.

Both the defendants submitted separate written statements but they were practically to the same effect. Various pleas were raised by the defendants. It was contended that the plaintiff did not possess the necessary qualifications as required by R. 11 of the Municipal Works Rules and could not be employed without the approval of the Local Government, presumably under S. 38, sub.s. (2), Municipal Act. It was further urged that the plaintiff was removed under the directions of the Secretary, Transferred Department, which directions the Local Government was competent to issue under S. 41, Municipal Act. The plaintiff's right to recover the provident fund was denied as well as his right to recover one month's salary in lieu of one month's notice. Both the defendants further made an attempt to justify the withholding of the plaintiff's salary from the date of his appointment up to the time of his removal and even claimed a set off.

On the pleadings of the parties the following issues among others were struck :

1. Whether the appointment of the plaintiff as an Engineer of defendant 1 was made subject to the approval of the Local Government? O. P. on defendants.

2. If not, whether the appointment of the plaintiff as Municipal Engineer by defendant 1 was not valid? O. P. on defendants.

3. Whether the services of the plaintiff have been dispensed with validly under the provisions of the Municipal Act and Rules thereunder? O. P. on defendants.

4. Whether the plaintiff is entitled to any contribution to the provident fund for the period during which he worked as Municipal Engineer of defendant 1?

The Subordinate Judge disposed of issues 1, 2 and 3 together and came to the conclusion that the plaintiff's appointment did not require, and was not made subject to, the approval of the Local Government, that his appointment was valid and that his services had not been validly dispensed with under the provisions of the Municipal Act. He also found that the plaintiff was entitled to the provident fund claimed by him. On these findings he decreed the plaintiff's claim in full. Hence this appeal.

Counsel for the appellant has very frankly conceded that at the time when the appointment of the plaintiff was made, S. 38, Municipal Act, as amended by the Amendment Act of 1933, was not in force and that consequently the approval of the Local Government was not necessary to the plaintiff's appointment. He has, however, strenuously contended that the Municipal Committee was not empowered under the rules to appoint the plaintiff without the previous sanction of the Local Government inasmuch as his professional standing did not extend to a period of ten years and he thus lacked the requisite qualifications. In support of this contention he has relied on R. 11 of the Municipal Works Rules, the material portion of which reads as follows:

No person shall be appointed by a Committee as its Municipal Engineer if he does not possess at least the following technical qualifications:

(a) In the case of a first class Committee such qualifications as are prescribed by the Local Government for the recruitment of Officers to the Provincial Engineering Service and in addition ten years' professional standing.

(b) Provided that a first class Committee with the previous sanction of the Local Government may, subject to such condition as may be prescribed, appoint an Engineer who does not possess these qualifications.

In support of the plea that the plaintiff did not possess professional standing for the period prescribed by the rules, reliance is placed on the opinion expressed by the Chief Engineer as stated in the letter of the Secretary, Transferred Department, dated 4th January 1934, to the address of the Commissioner. Beyond this there is nothing definite on the record in support of this statement. In view of the fact that the appointment of the plaintiff did not require the approval of the Local Government, the onus lay upon the defendants to establish that his appointment was invalid and we have no hesitation in saying that they have failed to discharge the burden that lay on them. It was incumbent on the defendants to produce the Chief Engineer or the Secretary, Transferred Department, who had endorsed the opinion of the Chief Engineer to throw light on the matter and to state definitely as to how the Government had come to the conclusion that the professional standing of the plaintiff did not extend to the period prescribed in the rules, especially when the plaintiff had claimed that experience in the application originally submitted by him and the Municipal Committee by majority had decided that he did possess that standing.

At the trial, the plaintiff offered himself as a witness and stated on oath that besides possessing the B. Sc. (Honours) degree of the Glasgow University, he had worked as an Assistant Civil Engineer to one Mr. Wilson, District Engineer to the Borough of Motherwell in Scotland, during the years 1921 to 1923. He spent about four years in the University itself and after receiving his degree in 1927 he returned to India where he was employed by the Local Government in the Cadre of the Provincial Engineering Service. He spent three and a half years there and was then retrenched. He later continued to perform his professional duties privately. According to his calculation therefore, his contact with Engineering work extended to more than ten years. He further produced Mian Nasir Din, Municipal Commissioner, who was a member of the Public Works Sub-Committee responsible for recommending the plaintiff for employment as Municipal Engineer, and he stated that from the papers submitted by the plaintiff along with his application it was clearly established that his professional standing did extend to a period of ten years. This question was on objection raised by certain members of the Municipal Committee discussed at the time of the plaintiff's appointment too and by majority it was resolved that the plaintiff was fully qualified as required by the rules. It is significant to remark that the then President of the Municipal Committee, who was examined as a witness for the defendants, unequivocally stated that he "considered that according to the rules then prevailing the plaintiff had due qualifications" and that no approval of the Local Government was necessary for his appointment. It is true that the testimonials on which the plaintiff relies have not been placed on the record but for this the plaintiff is not to blame. He had submitted his testimonials in original to the Local Government when the question of his appointment was under consideration and there is nothing on the record to show that these testimonials were ever returned to him. He made an application to the Court to send for those testimonials from the Local Government but the testimonials could not be procured.

In the face of the positive evidence led by the plaintiff, and in the absence of any evidence led by the defendants to discharge the onus that lay heavily on them, the only conclusion possible is that the plaintiff was in possession of the requisite qualifications at the time when his appointment was made and that in these circumstances no previous sanction of the Local Government was necessary to validate his appointment. We may also remark in this connexion that the words 'professional standing' are too vague to be properly defined and that the mere fact that a person obtains his degree from a University in a certain year does not necessarily exclude the possibility of his having a professional standing prior to that period. To give a concrete instance, a person who has worked as Sub-Assistant Surgeon in the Medical Department or as Overseer in the Engineering Department cannot be said to have no professional standing during the period that he has so worked if later in order to gain superior qualifications he obtains a higher degree from a recognized University.

It now remains to be considered whether the removal of the plaintiff from his appointment was in consonance with law. As stated above, the defendants relied on S. 41, Municipal Act, but a mere perusal of that Section shows that it has no application to the facts of the present case. It is true that the Section contemplates the removal of a person who in the opinion of the Local Government is unfit for employment, but in our opinion the word 'unfit' there does not refer to the absence of professional qualifications. We are supported in our conclusion by the rules made by the Local Government itself under S. 240, Municipal Act, and published in the Punjab Government Gazette, dated 23rd September 1932 (see Notification No. 30256 dated 16th September 1932). R. 7 which was added to the old rules then in existence clearly lays down that if the Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner proposes to remove a municipal employee under S. 41, he will have to observe the procedure laid down in R. 3. That rule requires the framing of a definite charge against the employee so intended to be removed and also the holding of a regular enquiry into the matter. From whatever point of view therefore the matter is looked at, it cannot be gainsaid that the procedure adopted in the removal of the plaintiff was altogether illegal. In the first instance, the Local Government had no authority to remove him, and, secondly, if the Government did intend to take action under S. 41, it was bound to observe the rules promulgated by itself under S. 240.

What happened on receipt of the letter from the Secretary, Transferred Department, cannot be justified on any grounds. It is stated that a copy of the letter addressed to the Commissioner was sent direct to the Municipal Committee and immediately on its receipt executive officer wrote to the President to order the removal of the plaintiff and, although the President remarked that the papers should be placed before the general meeting, no such action appears to have been taken and the plaintiff was forcibly removed from his office without any resolution by the committee to that effect. It cannot be seriously contended that either the executive officer or the President of the Municipal Committee constituted the committee or could exercise the powers which the committee alone could do. All that has been contended before us is that the executive officer could order the removal of the plaintiff from his office under the directions of the Local Government, but we have been referred neither to any provision of the Municipal Act or the Executive Officers' Act on the point nor to any rule or by-law made under those enactments which could authorize the executive officer or the President of the Municipal pal Committee to arrogate these powers to themselves. Had either of these officials conducted himself in a constitutional way, all this trouble would not have arisen. Instead of taking a hasty step in the matter, they could have coolly deliberated on the action open to them under the law and secured a resolution from the Municipal Committee dispensing with or terminating the services of the plaintiff in a manner which was permissible under the law. Instead of having recourse to legal action, these two officers appear to have taken the law into their own hands and issued orders which they had no authority to do. We conclude therefore that the dismissal of the plaintiff in the circumstances in which he was dismissed was opposed to all canons of law and justice and that as he was forcibly removed from discharging his functions and actually locked out of the room, he is entitled to his full salary for the period during which he was not allowed to hold his office and to perform his duties.

The only other question that falls for determination is whether the plaintiff is entitled to recover his provident fund under the rules. The defendants contend that as the plaintiff had been appointed on probation, he was not entitled to that benefit. Here again they are wrong. Under the Municipal Account Code, every servant who holds a substantive appointment is entitled to the benefit of the provident fund, and as explained by the Assistant Examiner, Local Audit Department, Punjab, at the trial, every person who holds a substantive appointment comes within the letter of that rule even though he is appointed on probation. In view of the findings arrived at above, the question whether the plaintiff was entitled to one month's salary in lieu of one month's notice does not arise. On all the grounds stated above we uphold the judgment of the Subordinate Judge and dismiss this appeal with costs. We may add that the prayer for injunction which was granted by him has become ineffectual inasmuch as the plaintiff was reinstated after the issue of the injunction and is now said to have been removed once more by the Administrator.

D.S./R.K.

*Appeal dismissed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 286

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mian Nizam Din — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

Lala Ram Sukh Das, Plaintiff and another, Defendant — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 29 of 1937, Decided on 1st November 1937, from preliminary decree of Sub.Judge, First Class, Lahore, D/. 7th November 1936.

(a) Mortgage—Prior mortgagee—Rights of—Prior mortgagee purchasing property mortgaged to him—He must be deemed to keep mortgage alive for his benefit as against subsequent mortgagee in absence of evidence to contrary.

It should always be presumed that in India, a purchaser of previous mortgagee rights intends to keep the mortgage alive for his benefit. Though the Transfer of Property Act is not in force in the Punjab, the general principles to be applied are those embodied in the Amended Act of 1929 which must be held to be more in accordance with the principles of justice, equity and good conscience. [P 287 C 2]

S, who owned four houses mortgaged two of them to K and although the mortgage was one with possession, S, instead of delivering the mortgaged property to K executed a lease thereof in his favour. Afterwards S mortgaged all the four houses to R. Later on K's grandson Z brought a suit against S for recovery of rent and in execution of the simple money decree obtained therein he had the judgment-debtor's property sold and himself purchased the equity of redemption in the houses. Z then sold the two houses to N. R brought a suit against S and N for recovery of his mortgage money, by sale of the property mortgaged to him by S. N claimed priority over R's mortgage in respect of the two houses purchased by him from K :

Held that the principles contained in S. 101, T. P. Act applied. That having purchased the rights of Z, N stepped into his shoes and was in relation to the property purchased by him, clothed with all the privileges which his vendor K possessed. N was therefore entitled to subrogate and claim priority over R in respect of his own transaction and that N by reason of his holding the position of defendant in the suit could claim to retain possession of the mortgaged property until all his claims were satisfied although he might have lost his right by lapse of time : 10 Cal 1035 (PC); A I R 1932 Lah 56 and A I R 1933 Lah 151 Rel on; A I R 1927 Mad 631 and 39 Cal 527 (PC), Disting. [P 288 C 1, 2]

(b) Limitation—Defence of.

Even if a claim based on certain facts is barred by efflux of time, a defence based on those facts is not so barred. [P 288 C 1]

Mohammad Nazir and Sultan Ali—
for Appellant.

Barkat Ali — for Respondent
(Plaintiff)

Din Mohammad J.—This appeal has arisen out of a suit instituted by Ram Sukh Das against Muhammad Said and Nizam-ud-Din for recovery of Rs. 7000 with costs and future interest by sale of the property mortgaged to him by Muhammad Said. The chief contesting defendant in the case was Nizam-ud-Din who had purchased a part of the mortgaged property from the previous mortgagee-vendee and who on that account claimed priority over the plaintiff's mortgage.

The material facts are these. Muhammad Said owned four houses bearing Nos. 2005, 2007, 2414 and 2415. On 5th May 1913, he mortgaged houses Nos. 2414 and 2415 to Karim Bakhsh for Rs. 2500. Though this mortgage was with possession, the mortgagor instead of delivering possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee had himself executed a lease thereof in his favour. Some time afterwards, Muhammad Said mortgaged all the four houses to Ram Sukh Das for Rs. 7000. In 1927 Zahur-ud-Din, a grandson of Karim Bakhsh, instituted a suit against Muhammad Said for recovery of rent that had fallen due and in execution of the simple money decree obtained therein he had the judgment debtor's property sold and himself purchased the equity of redemption in the houses in dispute. On 8th February 1929, Zahur-ud-Din sold a part of the two houses to Nizam-ud-Din who soon afterwards rebuilt the property acquired by him. On 8th August 1931, the remaining portion of the two houses was also sold by Zahur-ud-Din to Nizam-ud-Din and in 1933 he carried out extensive repairs in the newly acquired portion too. In October 1934 the present suit was instituted. Nizam-ud-Din resisted the suit on various grounds. The Subordinate Judge, while disposing of the issues arising in the case, held that the plaintiff's mortgage deed included the two houses in dispute, that on those two houses a prior mortgage did exist in favour of Karim Bakhsh, that Zahur-ud-Din, a representative-in-interest of Karim Bakhsh could alone take benefit of that mortgage and not Nizam-ud-Din who in his assignment had not expressly kept the mortgage alive for his benefit, that Nizam-ud-Din had spent Rs. 1044.4.0 in rebuilding a part of the property in dispute in 1929 and had purchased bricks of the value of Rs. 425 in 1933 for repairing the remaining portion of the property in question and that the only priority that Nizam-ud-Din could claim was in respect of these sums which aggregated Rs. 1469.4.0. He accordingly made a decree in favour of Ram Sukh Das in terms of the relief prayed for with the reservation mentioned above. Nizam-ud-Din has appealed. We have heard counsel for the parties and have come to the conclusion that this appeal must succeed. The Subordinate Judge has misdirected himself in law and his decision, therefore, cannot be maintained. S. 101, T. P. Act, as introduced in 1929, is clear on the point and needs no further comment. It reads as follows :

Any mortgagee of, or person having a charge upon, immovable property, or any transferee from such mortgagee or charge-holder, may purchase or otherwise acquire the rights in the property of the mortgagor or owner, as the case may be, without thereby causing the mortgage or charge to be merged as between himself and any subsequent mortgagee of, or person having a subsequent charge upon, the same property and no such subsequent mortgagee or charge-holders shall be entitled to foreclose or sell such property without redeeming the prior mortgage or charge, or otherwise than subject thereto.

There can be no doubt therefore that Nizam-ud-Din was entitled to subrogate and could in the present suit claim priority over the plaintiff in respect of his own transaction. Though the Transfer of Property Act is not in force in the Punjab, the general principles to be applied are those embodied in the Amended Act of 1929 which must be held to be more in accordance with the principles of justice, equity and good conscience : see A I R 1933 Lah 151.¹ Further, as laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 10 Cal 1035,² in the absence of evidence to the contrary, it should always be presumed that in India where the question to ask is, in the interests of justice, equity and good conscience, what was the intention of the party paying off the charge, a purchaser of the previous mortgage right intended to keep the mortgage alive for his own benefit. In 135 I C 201,³ a learned Judge of this Court observed that where a mortgagee purchased the property in execution sale without taking care to see that his mortgage was mentioned in the proclamation

1. Muhammad Abdullah v. Mohammad Yasin, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 151 = 141 I C 377 = 34 P L R 245.

2. Gokal Dass Gopal Das v. Puran Mal Prem-sukh Das, (1934) 10 Cal 1035 = 11 I A 126 = 4 Sar 543 (P O).

3. Gurdit Singh v. Hakumat Rai, (1932) 19 A I R Lah 56 = 135 I C 201 = 32 P L R 759.

of sale and in the sale certificate, this fact alone was not sufficient to show that he had given up the charge. In the present case, the charge was mentioned in the deed in favour of Zahur-ud-din and if Zahur-ud-din is entitled in law to subrogate, we see no valid reason to deprive his assignee, Nizam-ud-din, of that legal right. By purchasing the rights of Zahur-ud-din, he veritably stepped into his shoes and was in relation to the property purchased by him clothed with all the privileges that his vendor possessed.

Counsel for the respondent has frankly conceded that if the principles embodied in S. 101 Transfer of Property Act, were held applicable, he had no case on the merits. He however contended that Nizam-ud-din had lost his right on account of lapse of time and relied on 50 Mad 626⁴ in this connection. It is not necessary to discuss that judgment at length in this case as in our view it is clearly distinguishable. As stated by Wallace J. at page 632 of the report, the mortgagee there had succeeded to the original mortgage rights not as a usufructuary mortgagee but as a simple mortgagee. Here the mortgage in favour of Karim Bakhsh was with possession and the appellant who had succeeded to those rights was also in possession of the property at the time of the institution of the suit and still holds possession thereof. Moreover, in the judgment of their Lordships of the Privy Council reported in 39 Cal 527⁵ on which 50 Mad 626⁴ was based, the person claiming priority was a plaintiff and not a defendant in the suit, while the present mortgagee holds the position of a defendant and as such can claim to retain possession of the mortgaged property until all his claims are satisfied. It is well known that even if a claim based on certain facts be barred by the efflux of time, a defence based on those facts is not so barred.

On these grounds, we hold that Nizam-ud-din was entitled in law to urge that the plaintiff could not ignore the rights acquired by him in respect of the previous mortgage and he was therefore justified in claiming priority over the plaintiff in regard to the mortgage money falling due on the previous mortgage. This amount is conceded to be not less than Rs. 4500, i. e. the amount claimed by Nizam-ud-din in this appeal.

In this view of the case we need not discuss the question of improvements as Nizam-ud-din has sought the enhancement of the sum for which priority is to be directed by Rs. 4500 only and has paid court-fee on that amount alone. We accordingly allow this appeal and modify the decree of the Subordinate Judge to this extent, that Nizam-ud-din will first be entitled to recover from the sale proceeds of houses Nos. 2414 and 2415, if sold, a sum of Rs. 4500 in addition to Rs. 1469-4-0 already allowed to him under the decree of the trial Court. The plaintiff-respondent will recover his costs of the original suit from Muhammad Said alone and in the appeal before us Nizam-ud-din will get his costs on Rs. 4500 from Ram Sukh Das. The cross-objections put in by Ram Sukh Das relate to the costs of improvements but have not been pressed. We dismiss them but make no order as to costs.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 288

YOUNG C. J AND MONROE J.

Mehnga Allah Bakhsh
Convict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 1108 of 1937.
Decided on 3rd November 1937, from order of Addl. Sess. Judge, Amritsar, D/- 10th September 1937.

Criminal Trial — Duty of trial Court — Trial Judge must be strictly accurate in making comments on evidence given before him.

Judges sitting in appeal are inclined to attach great weight to the views of the trial Judge on the manner in which evidence has been given before them. It is therefore essential that a trial Judge should endeavour to be strictly accurate in making any comment on the evidence given before him.
[P 289 O 1]

Fayaz Hassan Shah — *for Appellant.*R. C. Soni for Advocate-General —
for the Crown.

Young C. J. — Mehnga was charged with five other persons with the murder of Bhola : the five others were acquitted.

4. M. Kotappa v. P. Raghavayya, (1927) 14 A I R Mad 631=102 I O 316=50 Mad 626=52 M L J 582.

5. Mohamed Ibrahim Hossein Khan v. Ambika Pershad, (1912) 39 Cal 527=89 I A 68=14 I O 496=16 O W N 505=15 O L J 411 (P O).

Mehnga was convicted and sentenced to death. There are many unsatisfactory features about this case. The murder took place between 8 and 9 A. M. on 22nd June 1937: the first information report was not made till 4.30 P. M. at a distance of only five miles. The learned Sessions Judge and the assessors disbelieved the witnesses for the prosecution about the other five accused, who were acquitted and after inspecting the scene of the murder, the Sessions Judge arrived at the conclusion that the two principal eyewitnesses could not, from the position in which they placed themselves, have seen what they said that they saw. In addition there are many discrepancies in the evidence of these witnesses.

There was time and opportunity to concoct a case; the evidence is not sufficiently satisfactory to inspire confidence and bears many indications of untruth; it is possible that there was no witness present at the murder, because there was a ceremony in the neighbourhood on the morning of the murder which was attended by many of the villagers, and indeed the appellant claimed that he was present there, when news of the murder was brought. The assessors who gave their reasons, seem to have taken the correct view of the case: one of them said "I do not think Mehnga is proved to be the murderer because the prosecution witnesses are discrepant. He may well in fact be the murderer." We agree with this view, allow the appeal and set aside the conviction.

We have difficulty in understanding how the learned Sessions Judge came to write the note at the end of the evidence of Dhuman. He noted that the witness impressed him most favourably. "He gave his evidence throughout in an absolutely convincing and straightforward manner." This follows a record of the cross-examination in which the witness repeatedly contradicted or denied his statements to the police and in the committing Magistrate's Court. The Judge's view is in conflict with the record of the witness's evidence and fortunately so, for Judges in appeal are, in our opinion rightly, inclined to attach great weight to the views of trial Judges on the manner in which evidence has been given before them. It is therefore essential that a trial Judge should endeavour in making such comments to be strictly accurate.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

1938 L/37 & 38

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 289

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Central Bank of India Ltd., Lahore — Decree-holder — Appellant.

v.

*Attar Chand and others —Judgment debtors — Respondents.*Exn. First Appeal No. 312 of 1936, Decided on 3rd January 1938.

 Civil P. C. (1908), O. 34, R. 5 (3) — Decree for sale under O 34, R 5 (3) — Sale proceeds should be applied first in discharge of amount found due in preliminary decree and not towards costs or interest—Principle of S 60, Contract Act, cannot be applied.

There is no doubt that a creditor to whom principal and interest are due, is entitled to appropriate against the interest any sum the debtor pays without stipulating that it is to be appropriated against the principal. But there is no reason why this principle should be imported into the execution of decrees which are provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure. In cases in which a decree has been passed in the usual form, prescribed under R. 5 of O 34 costs and interest cannot have priority over the actual mortgage debt declared to be due in the preliminary decree and the rule laid down in O. 34, Rr 10 and 13, relating to properties which are subject to prior mortgages cannot be inferentially applied to cases in which the property sold is not subject to any mortgage other than the one for the realization of which the property of the judgment-debtor was ordered to be sold: A I R 1931 Rang 153, Approved; A I R 1928 Lah 901, Dissented. [P 290 C 2; P 291 C 1, 2]

Tirath Ram — for Appellant.

Ram Chand Manchanda —

for Respondents.

Jhanda Singh —

*for Respondent (Mt. Samitran).Order of Reference.

Tek Chand J.—On 6th February 1926, the appellant Bank instituted a suit against the respondents for recovery of Rupees 12,123.13.10, alleged to be due on foot of an equitable mortgage effected by the defendants in its favour. On 5th August 1927, a preliminary decree was passed declaring that the amount due to the plaintiff on account of principal, interest and costs calculated upto 1st February 1926 was Rupees 12,128.13.10 and that such amount shall carry interest at Rs. 10 per cent per annum until realization. The decree further directed that if the defendants paid into Court the amount declared to be due on or before 31st August 1927, the plaintiff Bank shall deliver up to the defendants the title deeds etc., and retransfer the property to the defendants free from all incumbrances, but that

If such payment was not made on or before the said day of 31st August 1927 the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale), be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is declared due to the plaintiff as aforesaid, together with subsequent interest and subsequent costs, and that the balance, if any, be paid to the defendant.

Nothing having been paid within the time fixed, a final decree was passed on 31st August 1927. The defendants came in appeal to this Court, but the appeal was dismissed on 31st October 1934. In execution the mortgaged properties were sold in various lots. The first sale was on 25th April 1929, when a sum of Rs. 3089 was realized after defraying the expenses of the sale, and paid to the decree-holder. The second lot was sold on 22nd November 1935, when a sum of Rs. 3633 was paid to the decree-holder. A third set of the mortgaged properties was sold subsequently and the sale proceeds amounting to Rs. 21,700 were deposited in Court. A dispute then arose between the parties as to the amount which was then outstanding against the judgment-debtors. The decree-holder contended that the payments of Rs. 3089 and Rs. 3633, made on 26th April 1929 and 22nd November 1935 respectively, should first be appropriated towards the payment of costs and interest on the sum of Rs. 12,128-13-10 which had been declared to be due in the preliminary decree and which carried interest at 10 per cent. per annum from 1st February 1926. The judgment-debtors, on the other hand, maintained that the aforesaid payments should be appropriated towards the payment of the sum declared due in the preliminary decree viz. Rs. 12,128-13-10. They urged, therefore, that the proper way of calculating the amount would be that the principal and interest due up to 11th July 1936 be made up, and then all the repayments with interest thereon at Rs. 10 per cent. per annum be added up and the total of the latter be deducted from the former. The difference between the two modes of calculation comes to Rs. 2458.12.0. The executing Court has accepted the judgment-debtors' contention and has ordered that out of the sale proceeds of the third lot of properties, Rs. 17,754-9-0 be paid to the decree-holder in full satisfaction of the decretal amount.

The decree-holder Bank has appealed and on its behalf it has been contended that the mode of calculation followed by the lower Court is erroneous and that it is entitled to a sum of Rs. 2458.12.0 over and above the amount which has been ordered to be paid to it by the lower Court. In support of this contention Mr. Tirath Ram has relied upon R. 13 of O. 34, Civil P. C. That rule, however, relates to cases in which the property is subject to a prior charge, and has been sold with the consent of the prior mortgagee, free from his incumbrance, as provided in R. 10. R. 13 therefore is clearly inapplicable. The Code appears to be silent on the particular point, which arises for decision in this case. The learned Judge of the Court below has followed a Division Bench ruling of the Rangoon High Court in A I R 1931 Rang 153=9 Rang 186.¹ In that case, after an elaborate discussion of the caselaw on the subject, the learned Judges, disagreeing with the decision of the Madras High Court in 25 M L J 552=21 I C 691,² held that in cases in which a decree has been passed in the usual form, prescribed under R. 5 of O. 34, Civil P. C., costs cannot have priority over the actual mortgage debts declared to be due in the preliminary decree and that the rule laid down in O. 34, Rr. 10 and 13, Civil P. C., relating to properties which are subject to prior mortgages cannot be inferentially applied to cases in which the property sold is not subject to any mortgage other than the one for the realization of which the property of the judgment-debtor was ordered to be sold.

The only case of this Court which has a bearing on the point and which has been cited before me is a Single Bench judgment of Bhide J. in A I R 1928 Lah 901³ in which the facts were somewhat similar to those of the present case and the decision was given in favour of the decree-holder. The question was not discussed at any length but the learned Judge relied upon the decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council in 48 Cal 839⁴ which however was not a case of a mortgage decree but in which the question raised was whether a creditor, to whom the principal and interest were due was

1. Maung Po Mya v. M. A. S. Chettyar Firm, (1931) 18 A I R Rang 153=133 I C 225=9 Rang 186.

2. Sabapathi Pillai v. Chokalinga Pillai, (1913) 25 M L J 552=21 I C 691.

3. Ram Chand v. Bank of Upper India Ltd. Simla, (1928) 15 A I R Lah 901=109 I C 592.

4. Nemichand v. Radha Kishan, (1922) 9 A I R P O 26=63 I C 904=48 Cal 899 (P C).

entitled to appropriate against interest any sum which the debtor had paid to him. That case, as also the earlier Privy Council decision referred to therein, 44 Mad 570⁵ at p. 573, were decided on S. 60, Contract Act. It is contended that the principle of S. 60 cannot be extended to mortgage decrees passed under O. 34, Civil P. C. This argument does not appear to be without force and, as at present advised, I am inclined to the view taken by the learned Judges of the Rangoon High Court. In view of this conflict of opinion and having regard to the general importance of the question, I think the case should be decided by a larger Bench. Accordingly, I refer it to a Division Bench. An early date will be fixed.

Judgment.—The facts have been fully stated by Tek Chand J. in his referring order and need not be repeated. Besides 25 M L J 552³ and A I R 1928 Lah 901,³ there are two other cases which seem to take a somewhat similar view, namely 71 I C 937⁶ and 41 I C 348.⁷ We are however in agreement with Tek Chand J. that the decision in 9 Rang 186¹ is to be preferred. There is no doubt that a creditor, to whom principal and interest are due, is entitled to appropriate against the interest any sum the debtor pays without stipulating that it is to be appropriated against the principal. But there is no reason why this principle should be imported into the execution of decrees which are provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure. It was not contended before us that O. 34, R. 13, Civil P. C., applied but it was argued on the general principle that all payments should be applied first towards interest. By O. 34, R. 5 (3), where payment in accordance with sub-r. (1) has not been made, the Court shall, on application made by the plaintiff in this behalf, pass a final decree directing that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale be dealt with in the manner provided in sub-r. (1) of R. 4. Sub-r. (1) of R. 4 is to the effect that in a suit for sale the Court shall pass a preliminary decree and that the plaintiff shall be entitled to apply for a final decree and that in default of the defendant paying, the plaintiff shall be entitled to apply for a final decree directing that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and the proceeds of the sale be paid into Court and applied in payment of what has been found or declared under or by the preliminary decree due to the plaintiff, together with such amount as may have been adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest, and the balance, if any, be paid to the defendant or other persons entitled to receive the same. Lastly, by S. 73 (1) (c) it is enacted that where any immovable property is sold in execution of a decree ordering its sale for the discharge of an incumbrance thereon, the proceeds of sale shall be applied, first, in defraying the expenses of the sale, secondly in discharging the amount due under the decree, thirdly, in discharging the interest and principal moneys due on subsequent incumbrances, if any, and, fourthly, rateably amongst other decree-holders.

There is thus no express provision for the payment of interest or costs to be made first. In the preliminary decree, the sum found due is expressed and by the Code the sale proceeds have to be applied in payment of what is declared due to the plaintiff in the preliminary decree together with subsequent interest and subsequent costs. The sum therefore found due should be first discharged and interest and costs should be subsequently discharged. This is what has been done in the present case and it seems to us the fairest method of discharging the decree. The judgment-debtor is, as a result of the decree, having his property compulsorily sold and there is no reason why the decree-holder should be unduly favoured by being allowed to apply the sale proceeds first towards interest. The sum found due as laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure in the preliminary decree is the amount which has first to be discharged. There is no force in this appeal which we dismiss with costs.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

5. Venkatadri Appa Row v. Partha Sarathy Appa Row, (1922) 9 A I R P O 288=61 I O 81=48 I A 150=44 Mad 570 (P O).

6. Barolay v. Mt. Dhande, (1928) 10 A I R Pat 822=71 I O 937=4 P L T 112.

7. Blawanath Bhattacharjee v. Someswar Sarma, (1918) 5 A I R Cal 605=41 I O 848=21 O W N 1055.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 292

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Surat Singh Buta SinghConvict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 1334 of 1936, Decided on 3rd March 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Multan, D/- 24th November 1936.

Criminal Trial — Confession — Confessing accused must be sent to judicial lock-up after confession and not to police custody— In case accused is sent to police custody, Court must look into surrounding circumstances to satisfy itself that confessions are voluntary.

The confessing accused must invariably be sent to the judicial lock-up as soon as possible after confession and on no account be returned to police custody. If the police thereafter wish the accused for any particular purpose, the police must put in an application stating the purpose for which the accused are required. If the accused are handed back to the police, the Court must look very carefully at the confessions and the surrounding circumstances in order to satisfy itself that the confessions are in fact voluntary. [P 293 O 1, 2]

B. R. Puri — *for Appellant.*D. R. Sawhney, Public Prosecutor —
for Respondent.

Young C. J.—Surat Singh, Vir Singh and Sohan Singh were charged under S. 302, I. P. C., with the murder of Ismail. The learned Sessions Judge of Multan acquitted Sohan Singh, convicted Surat Singh and Vir Singh and condemned them to death. In this case, the history of this crime is taken from the confessions of Surat Singh and Vir Singh. Both the accused in these confessions relate that they together with Sohan Singh agreed together to commit highway robbery. In pursuance of their scheme, they went to the pukka road between Boorewala and Joya. On the way to the road they enquired from Roshan, who has appeared as a prosecution witness, the way to the pukka road. They waited for some time when they got to the scene of operations and eventually Ismail came along on a bicycle; they stopped him and robbed him. After the robbery had taken place the three agreed that it would be safer to murder Ismail. Sohan Singh then killed Ismail with his kirpan. Vir Singh parted from Sohan Singh and Surat Singh and went off by himself; Sohan Singh and Surat Singh took the bicycle which had been used by the murdered man, walked three miles to Arifwala and then from Arifwala they went on a lorry to Montgomery staying the night in the serai Ghamaunda Singh. The name and description of Surat Singh was taken on the register of the Serai and, in the column of remarks, there was a note made that Sohan Singh and a bicycle were there too. The next morning Surat Singh and Vir Singh left the serai and went to chak Malianwala. There they had a meal at the shop of Mohan Singh who has appeared as a prosecution witness and who is the uncle of Sohan Singh.

The murder took place on 31st July 1935 and the body of the murdered man was discovered shortly afterwards. Investigation took place but the police failed to discover any clue to the murderers. The case was practically shelved until the month of March 1936, when a policeman at Amritsar, whose duty it was to check bicycles at Amritsar on behalf of the Criminal Investigation Agency, inspected a bicycle in the possession of one Mohammad Akbar. The police in the Multan District had at the time of the murder discovered that the bicycle Ismail was using was missing. They had also discovered the name and number of the bicycle. This had been circulated in the Police Gazette. When the constable at Amritsar therefore took the number and name of the bicycle in possession of Mohammad Akbar, it was found that this was the very bicycle which had been in the possession of the murdered man Ismail. An investigation traced the bicycle from Mohammad Akbar's possession to the possession of another Sohan Singh, a cousin of Surat Singh. From this point it was easy for the police to lay their hands upon Surat Singh. Through Surat Singh the names of Vir Singh and Sohan Singh were obtained. Eventually, Surat Singh and Vir Singh made confessions under S. 164, Criminal P. C., to the Additional District Magistrate of Multan.

Sohan Singh was discharged by the learned Sessions Judge mainly on the ground that the evidence against him was unsupported by a confession by himself and was insufficient in itself. The evidence against Surat Singh and Vir Singh is their confessions and, in addition, evidence which corroborates those confessions. The confessions themselves, if believed, would be enough upon which to base conviction. With regard to the confessions counsel has argued that the two confessing accused were returned to police custody by the District Magistrate after they had made their confessions. He therefore argues that they ought not to be treated as voluntary. We have pointed out on more than one occasion that this practice might easily, under certain circumstances, induce a Court to come to the conclusion that the confession was not voluntary. Circulars have been recently issued to all Magistrates that they must send the confessing accused to the judicial lock-up and not return them to police custody. In this case the Magistrate has not carried out the orders issued to him upon this matter. Disobedience to these orders in this case is not however as serious as it might otherwise be. The police put up to the Additional District Magistrate a petition asking that the accused should be examined under S. 164, Criminal P. C., and also that a Magistrate should be appointed to go round the spots connected with the murder with the accused as they were willing to point out these places.

The Additional District Magistrate apparently has misconstrued the orders issued to him: he has thought that if the police wished the accused for any purpose after the confessions had been made he could immediately hand the accused over to the police. The meaning and spirit of the orders issued to the Magistrates however are clear; the confessing accused must invariably be sent to the judicial lock-up as soon as possible after confession and on no account be returned to police custody. If the police thereafter wish the accused for any particular purpose the instructions lay down clearly that the police must put in an application stating the purpose for which the accused are required and for that purpose they may be handed over to the police: there certainly ought to be an interval between the taking of the confession and the handing over of the accused to the police for any subsequent purpose. Further in a case such as this where the Magistrate was required to take the accused round the district in order that they might point out certain spots to the police, the accused ought to be handed over in the presence of the Magistrate who should be in charge throughout, and the accused should be returned to the judicial lock-up by the Magistrate.

The fact that the accused in this case were handed back to the police makes us therefore look very carefully at the confessions and the surrounding circumstances in order to satisfy ourselves that the confessions were in fact voluntary. On a careful consideration of the arguments of counsel and upon the fact that in the Court of the committing Magistrate neither of the accused made the slightest suggestion against the police and in fact merely denied having made a confession at all, we see no reason to believe that the confessions were forced or induced. We are satisfied that the confessions in this case are true: the very nature of the confessions completely proves that the confessions could not have been put into the mouths of the confessing accused by the police. (After discussing the evidence his Lordship proceeded.) We are satisfied therefore that the learned Judge was right in convicting Surat Singh and Vir Singh. The murder was deliberate and there is no extenuating circumstance. We therefore confirm the sentence of death in both cases.

We would like to record our appreciation of the way in which this case has been investigated by the police: the manner in which a careful record of the bicycle was kept and the way in which it was used by the Amritsar Police: the way in which the bicycle was traced and the culprits discovered reflects credit on the Investigation Department. The case too has been left without any attempt to strengthen it by improper evidence.

V.B.B./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 293

SPECIAL BENCH

ADDISON, MONROE AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mr. George Ernest Moody — Petitioner.
v.

Mrs. Vera Alice Moody — Respondent and others — Co-respondents.

Matrimonial Reference No. 9 of 1937, Decided on 17th December 1937, for confirmation of decree of Dist. Judge, Ambala, D/. 20th April 1937.

Divorce Act (1869), Ss 2, 17—Person aged 42, in service of railway in this country from 1922. Statement that he would continue to reside here is not proof of domicile.

The mere statement of the petitioner, who is 42 years old, and is in this country, because he is in the service of the Railway from 1922, that he intends to continue to reside here is not proof of his domicile in India. [P 294 C 1]

Lakshmi Narain Verma and Fakir Chand Mital — for Petitioner.

Order. — We are not satisfied that the petitioner is domiciled in India, to which he came on service in 1922. He is still only 42 years old and his mere statement that he intends to continue to reside here is not enough, especially as he is here because he is in the service of the Railway. For this reason, we refuse to confirm the decree of the District Judge. The petitioner can still claim relief but under the Indian and Colonial Divorce Act. There will be no order as to costs throughout.

V.B.B./R.K. Petition dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 294

TEK CHAND J.

Mt. Fatima — Petitioner.

v.

Nura and others — Respondents.

Civil Revision Petn. No. 347 of 1937, Decided on 28th October 1937, from order of Sub.Judge, First Class, Jhang, D/- 22nd January 1937.

Civil P. C. (1908), O. 23, R. 1 (2) (b) — 'Other sufficient grounds,' meaning of.

'Other sufficient grounds' in Cl. (2) (b) of R. 1 of O. 23 must be ejusdem generis with the ground mentioned in Cl. (2) (a). [P 294 C 2]

Where there was neither any formal defect in the plaint nor any other sufficient cause shown and the suit had reached its final stages :

Held that that was not the time at which the suit should be allowed to be withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit. [P 294 C 2]

Dr. Nand Lal — for Petitioner.

J. L. Kapur — for Respondents.

Order. — This is a petition for revision of an order under O. 23, R. 1, Civil P. C., passed by the Subordinate Judge, First Class, Jhang, permitting the plaintiffs to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit.

The suit was instituted on 19th February 1936. Issues were framed and the parties produced oral and documentary evidence, and closed their respective cases. On 26th November 1936 arguments were heard in part, but could not be completed for want of time, and the case was adjourned for the next day. On 27th, arguments were not completed and the case was again adjourned to 5th December. On that date, the plaintiffs asked for permission to amend the plaint. This was opposed by the defendants. The Court ordered that before deciding as to whether the amendment should or should not be allowed, the plaintiffs should file a copy of the proposed amended plaint. This was done and the defendants, on 6th January 1937, filed a written reply objecting to the amendment at that stage. The case was adjourned to 22nd January for arguments on this point. On that date the plaintiffs applied for permission to withdraw the suit under O. 23, R. 1, alleging that there was a 'formal defect' in the plaint. The Court has granted this application and has allowed the suit to be withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit.

The order of the lower Court is clearly wrong and must be set aside. Under R. 1 (2) of O. 23, a suit can be allowed to be withdrawn with permission to institute a fresh suit if (a) it must fail by reason of some 'formal defect', or (b) that there are other sufficient grounds for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the same subject-matter or a part thereof. Counsel for the respondents has not been able to show that there was any 'formal defect.' It has been ruled in this Court that "other sufficient grounds" in Cl. (2) (b) of R. 1 must be ejusdem generis with the ground mentioned in (2) (a). In this case neither any "formal defect" in the plaint has been disclosed nor any "other sufficient cause" shown. The suit had reached its final stages, and this was not the time at which it should have been allowed to be withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit. The order of the lower Court is therefore illegal and cannot be maintained.

I accept the petition for revision, set aside the order of the Court below and remand the case to it for disposal in accordance with law from the stage at which it was when the application for withdrawal was made on 22nd January 1937. No order on the plaintiffs' application for amendment of the plaint appears to have been passed. The Court should consider that application now and pass such orders on it as it thinks fit. Parties to bear their own costs in this Court.

S.O./R.K.

Case remanded.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 295

TEK CHAND J.

Jowand Singh — Plaintiff —
Petitioner.

v.

Ala Singh — Defendant —
Respondent.

Civil Revn. Petn. No. 500 of 1937,
Decided on 28th October 1937, from order of Sub. Judge, First Class, Amritsar, D/- 2nd
March 1937.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 47, R. 3 — Copy of order sought to be reviewed is not necessary — Nor application need be accompanied by affidavit.

Under O. 47, R. 3 it is not necessary, nor is it the practice of the Courts in the Punjab, to require a petitioner for review to file a copy of the order sought to be reviewed, as the application is made in the same Court and the previous order is on its own records. Nor does the law require that an application for review should invariably be accompanied by an affidavit. [P 295 C 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 9, R. 9 — Breakdown of lorry on way is sufficient reason for non-appearance.

Where on the date of hearing the plaintiff was delayed by about half an hour by reason of the breakdown of the lorry on the way:

Held it was sufficient reason for his non-appearance within the meaning of O. 9, R. 9. [P 295 C 2]

C. L. Aggarwal — for Petitioner.

T. D. Khanna — for Respondent.

Order. — The plaintiff instituted a suit against the defendant for recovery of a certain sum alleged to be due on a promissory note. In this suit, 24th July 1936 was fixed for filing a list of witnesses.
When the case was called on that date, the plaintiff was absent and the suit was dismissed in default. Within a few minutes of the order of dismissal, the plaintiff appeared and filed an application for restoration stating that he was outside the Court room preparing the list of witnesses and praying that the suit be restored. The Court allowed the application and restored the suit on payment of Rs. 10 as costs, which were ordered to be paid before the next date of hearing. On that date, the plaintiff's pleader was present in Court when the case was called but the plaintiff was absent. As the costs had not been paid, the learned Judge dismissed the application for restoration. The plaintiff appeared at 10.30 and filed an application purporting to be under O. 47, R. 1 and

O. 9, R. 19, Civil P. C., for setting aside the order. He stated that he was coming in a lorry from Batala to Amritsar, that there was a breakdown on the way, and for this reason he was delayed by about half an hour. He further stated that he had brought Rs. 10 as costs of the opposite party, which he offered to pay.

The learned Judge has dismissed the application on highly technical grounds.
He has held that an application under
O. 47, R. 1, did not lie as no copy of the order sought to be reviewed had been filed with the application, nor was the application accompanied by an affidavit. He has further held that O. 9, R. 19, had been cited wrongly and therefore he could take no notice of the prayer under that Rule.
The learned Judge has apparently misunderstood O. 47, R. 3, which is to the effect that the provisions as to the "form of preferring appeals" shall apply mutatis mutandis to applications for review. Under this rule it is not necessary, nor is it the practice of the Courts in this province, to require a petitioner for review to file a copy of the order sought to be reviewed, as the application is made in the same Court and the previous order is on its own records. Nor does the law require that an application for review should invariably be accompanied by an affidavit. O. 9,
R. 19, as mentioned at the top of the heading of the application, was obviously a mistake for O. 9, R. 9. The learned Judge should not have been so meticulous in dismissing the application because of this clerical error. I hold that on the facts disclosed on the record there was sufficient cause for the non-appearance of the petitioner on 14th December 1936.

I accept the petition for revision, set aside the orders of the Court below and direct that the suit be restored at its original number on payment of Rs. 10 by the plaintiff to the defendant, and disposed of in accordance with law. Costs shall abide the event.

Both counsel have been directed to cause their respective clients to appear before the trial Court on 22nd November 1937, when a date for further proceedings in the case will be fixed.

D.S./R.K.

Petition accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 296

SPECIAL BENCH

COLDSTREAM, MONROE AND

ABDUL RASHID JJ.

Inder Singh — Defendant—Appellant.
v.Bhana and others — Plaintiffs —
Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 82 of 1937, Decided on 22nd November 1937, from the order of Din Mohammad J., D/. 26th
April 1937.

(a) Practice—Relief—Plaintiff should state all facts constituting cause of action—On failure to establish them, suit should be dismissed—It should not be decreed on proof of different set of facts which defendant had no opportunity to controvert.

It is incumbent on the plaintiff to state precisely in the plaint all the facts that constitute his cause of action. If he fails to establish the facts that constitute his cause of action his suit must fail on that ground alone. On his failure to establish the facts which form the basis of his suit, he cannot contend that he is entitled to a decree all the same on proof of a different set of facts which the defendant had no opportunity to controvert, and which did not form the subject matter of any issue in the trial Court.

[P 299 C 1]

The plaintiffs came to Court for a perpetual injunction to the effect that the defendant had no right to build on the land in dispute on the sole ground that the land in dispute had been reserved for public purposes, and that by taking possession of this land the defendant was depriving them of the use of land on the occasions of marriages and deaths. This fact was denied by the defendant, and it was stated that another piece of land had been reserved for common purposes for use on the occasions of marriages and deaths. The defendant produced evidence to show that another piece of land had been reserved for use for public purposes. The land was found to be part of shamilat abadi and the plaintiffs were granted the injunction :

Held that if the plaintiffs had stated in the plaint that they were entitled to a permanent injunction on the ground that they were proprietors in the village and that none of the proprietors could do anything which altered the condition of the joint property without the consent of all the cosharers it would have been open to the defendant to plead that there was a custom in the village allowing a proprietor to make exclusive use of a part of the shamilat abadi land so long as the area of land appropriated by him did not exceed the area that would fall to his share on partition. As the only ground of attack urged by the plaintiffs was the reservation of the land in dispute for public purposes the defendant was never called upon to plead custom in his favour. In view of the pleadings of the parties no question of special damage arose in the peculiar circumstances of the case and the plaintiffs' suit for injunction should be dismissed.

[P 299 C 2]

(b) Custom (Punjab)—Shamilat land—One cosharer erecting building—Other cosharers can restrain him by injunction from so doing even without proof of special damage to them (Obiter).

Per Din Mohammad J. — No individual proprietor can appropriate to himself a portion of the common land without the consent of all other cosharers and use it in such a way as to affect the rights of all the cosharers at the time of partition.
Where therefore a cosharer begins building on a part of common land (shamilat abadi) the other cosharers can restrain him from so doing without proving any special damage to them and relief of injunction can be granted in such a case : C A
No 2788 of 1917, Foll.; A I R 1920 Lah 34,
A I R 1921 Lah 157, A I R 1925 Lah 287 and 38 P L R 679, Rel. on ; A I R 1925 Lah 518,
A I R 1915 Lah 310; A I R 1924 Lah 293 and
A I R 1934 Lah 278, Disting. [P 297 C 1, 2]

Shamair Chand and Gullu Ram —

*for Appellant.*D. N. Aggarwal — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — The facts bearing upon the question of law involved in this case may shortly be stated. The plaintiffs are some of the proprietors of the village Dhamian Bedi and the defendant also is a proprietor like them. The defendant began to build on a vacant site contiguous to his house and the plaintiffs instituted the suit out of which the present appeal has arisen, for a perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from encroaching upon the land in any manner and in the alternative for ejectment in case he puts up any structure on the site in suit. The defendant resisted the suit on various grounds. The trial Court however passed a decree in favour of the plaintiffs for joint possession of the site in suit. On appeal, the Senior Subordinate Judge affirmed the decree passed by the trial Court. Dissatisfied with the decree granted to them, the plaintiffs have appealed. The main issue that falls for determination in this case is, to what relief are the plaintiffs entitled if the site in suit forms part of the common land, even though not reserved for the use of general public.
Both the Courts below have found that the land in suit is a part of the shamilat abadi but not reserved for any common purposes of the village. On behalf of the plaintiffs it is contended that on the finding arrived at by the Courts below they were entitled to a decree for injunction while on behalf of the defendant it is urged that the decree granted by the Courts below was, in the circumstances of the case, the only relief to which the plaintiffs were legally entitled.

Numerous authorities dealing with the subject have been cited at the Bar on both sides, disclosing unfortunately an apparent divergence of views. Some of these decisions seem to lay down that a co-sharer encroaching upon a part of the common land cannot be disturbed in his exclusive possession unless special damage is proved by the other co-sharers. Others lay down that in such cases it is not necessary to prove special damage and that a co-sharer, even without proof of such damage, can be restrained from so altering the nature of the property as would be prejudicial to the interests of the other co-sharers. In fact, the conflict is so pronounced that the present commentator of Rattigan's Digest of Customary Law has expressed a hope that the matter would soon be referred to a Full Bench for final disposal of this complicated question (Rattigan's Digest of Customary Law, 1929 edition, page 503). I am personally inclined to agree in general with the principle laid down in para. 225 of Rattigan's Digest that

In the absence of custom none of the proprietors can do anything which alters the condition of the joint property without the consent of all the co-sharers.

This view appeals to me to be most equitable and just. What belongs to all must not be interfered with without the consent of all. To hold otherwise would amount to putting a premium on high-handedness and force. If once a permanent encroachment is allowed to be made by one co-sharer on a piece of common land, the other co-sharers lose it for good and it is no consolation to them to be told that they can throw it in the hotchpot at the time of partition, as partition of abadi rarely takes place. In Civil Appeal No. 2788 of 1917, the plaintiffs who were some of the proprietors of a village, sued for a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from sinking a well in a part of the village common land. It was clear that the well had not been sunk when the suit was instituted. During the pendency of the suit however the well was sunk and the suit of the plaintiffs was dismissed on the ground that no special damage had been proved. Scott-Smith J. who decided the case on 15th January 1919 observed :

If the plaintiffs are held not to be entitled to relief in the present case it does not appear to me that there is any case in which the proprietors could restrain one of their number from appropriating to himself a portion of the common land unless they could show material and substantial injury. The plaintiffs' suit was brought in accordance with the well established custom that no individual proprietor can appropriate to himself a portion of the common land and use it in such a way as to affect the rights of all the co-sharers at the time of partition. The case of a co-sharer who cultivates part of the common land clearly is not analogous. I therefore hold that the plaintiffs are entitled to the injunction asked for.

These observations were quoted with approval in 1 Lah 249.¹ That case went on appeal before a Letters Patent Bench and the judgment of the single Judge was confirmed : 2 Lah 73.² In another case reported in 6 L L J 548,³ 1 Lah 249¹ was followed. In a recent case reported in (1936) 38 P L R 679,⁴ Bhide J. again relied on that judgment and decided the case in accordance with the principles of law enunciated there. Counsel for the respondent has referred me to A I R 1925 Lah 518,⁵ 160 P W R 1915,⁶ A I R 1924 Lah 293⁷ and A I R 1934 Lah 278.⁸ Nothing however that is laid down there induces me to change my opinion. These decisions mostly proceed on their own facts and in none of them has Civil Appeal No. 2788 of 1917 been dissented from. I do not consider therefore that I shall be showing any disrespect to any of the learned Judges of this Court if I choose to follow Civil Appeal No. 2788 of 1917 and hold that the plaintiffs were entitled to the injunction prayed for.

I accordingly allow this appeal, set aside the judgments of the Courts below and grant the plaintiffs a permanent injunction restraining the defendant from building any structure on the site in suit. As no structure has been put up so far, no occasion arises for the grant of the alternative relief asked for in this case. In view however of the divergent nature of the

1. Manji v. Ghulam Muhammad, A I R 1920 Lah 34=57 I C 207=1 Lah 249=172 P L R 1920.
2. Manji v. Ghulam Muhammad, A I R 1921 Lah 167=61 I C 415=2 Lah 73=68 P L R 1921.
3. Bishna v. Sapuran Singh, A I R 1925 Lah 287=84 I C 917=6 L L J 548.
4. Mangat Ram v. Ghulam Husain, (1936) 38 P L R 679=163 I C 148.
5. Saad Ullah v. Ibrahim, A I R 1925 Lah 518=85 I C 553.
6. Nihal Singh v. Mal Singh, A I R 1915 Lah 810=31 I C 862=160 P W R 1915.
7. Muhammad Amin v. Karam Dad, A I R 1924 Lah 293=69 I C 671.
8. Ram Singh v. Radha Singh, A I R 1934 Lah 278=150 I C 99=15 Lah 708=86 P L R 202.

authorities I certify that the case is a fit one for appeal under Cl. (10) of Letters Patent (Lahore). There will be no order as to costs.

Judgment of Letters Patent Appeal

Abdul Rashid J. — This appeal has arisen out of a suit instituted by six proprietors of village Dhamian in the Hoshiarpur district against Indar Singh another proprietor of the same village. It was stated in the plaint that the land in dispute measuring about 5 marlas belongs to the proprietary body of the village, that it has been reserved since time immemorial for general public use on the occasions of marriages and deaths, that the defendant had taken possession of this land a week before the institution of the present suit by placing stacks of bricks and wooden beams thereon, that he intends to build a room and that as the land has been reserved for public purposes the defendant is not entitled to take exclusive possession of it. It was prayed by the plaintiffs that a decree for a perpetual injunction to the effect that the defendant has no right to build on the land in dispute may be passed in their favour. It was pleaded by the defendant, inter alia, that the land in dispute had been in his possession and that of his ancestors for a very long time and had not been reserved for general public use. It was further stated in the written statement that another piece of shamilat abadi land had been reserved for public use on the occasions of marriages and deaths, and that the other proprietors had never made any use of the land in question. An objection was also raised to the effect that the plaintiffs were not competent to institute the present suit without making all the other proprietors of the village parties to the suit. On these pleadings the trial Court framed the following issues :

(1) Whether Sundar Singh and Kishan Singh, the brothers of the defendant, are necessary parties to the suit? (2) Whether the site in dispute is common land and is reserved for the use of the general public? (3) To what relief are the plaintiffs entitled.

The first Issue was not pressed. On Issue 2 it was held by the trial Court that the land in dispute was shamilat abadi and had not been reserved for the common purposes of the village. According to the trial Court, the land in dispute had been occupied by the house of a non-proprietor and had been taken possession of by the defendant thirteen years before the institution of the suit, when the non-proprietor had left the village. A decree for joint possession of the site in suit was passed in favour of the plaintiffs, but no injunction was granted to them. It was observed in the judgment that there was no evidence on the record that by the defendant's occupation of this site the plaintiffs' right would be prejudiced. The plaintiffs were not satisfied with a decree for joint possession only and preferred an appeal in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge praying that a decree for an injunction may be passed in their favour.

The defendant filed cross-objections challenging the decree for joint possession granted to the plaintiffs. After a consideration of the entire evidence, the learned Senior Subordinate Judge held that the land in dispute was a part of the shamilat abadi, that it had not been reserved for the common purposes of the village, that it was once occupied by Kahna and Jiwan Singh, non-proprietors, who left about thirteen years ago and that the defendant whose house is contiguous to it, had taken possession of it five years prior to the institution of the suit by building his khurlis etc. After giving his findings of fact, the learned Senior Subordinate Judge observed that the principal question for determination was, what should be the form of the decree which ought to be passed in such cases. After a review of various rulings of this Court the learned Senior Subordinate Judge held that as the rights of the plaintiffs had not been prejudiced by the defendant taking possession of a small piece of shamilat abadi land, the only remedy to which the plaintiffs were entitled was a decree for joint possession. The appeal and the cross-objections were accordingly dismissed. Against this decision the plaintiffs preferred a second appeal to this Court which was heard by a learned single Judge. The learned Judge was of the opinion that as the land in dispute was part of the shamilat abadi it belonged to all the proprietors, and that "what belonged to all must not be interfered with without the consent of all." He held that it was not incumbent on the plaintiffs to prove special damage for the purposes of obtaining a decree for permanent injunction restraining the defendant from building any structure on the site in suit. He accepted the appeal of the plaintiffs and granted them a permanent injunction, leaving the parties to bear their own costs. In view, however, of the divergent nature of the authorities, he certified that the case was a fit one for appeal under clause 10 of the Letters Patent. The defendant has accordingly preferred a Letters Patent appeal. The relevant portions of the plaint and the written statement have been reproduced in an earlier part of the judgment. It is clear from the plaint that the plaintiffs based their claim on the fact that the land in dispute had been reserved by the proprietors for public purposes and that the defendant by taking exclusive possession of this land had deprived all the proprietors of the use of this land on the occasions of marriages and deaths. The plaintiffs are some members of the proprietary body: the other proprietors of the village were not joined as plaintiffs or defendants in this suit. It was not stated in the plaint that even if the land be held not to have been reserved for public purposes, the plaintiffs were entitled to a permanent injunction merely because the land formed part of the shamilat abadi. In my opinion, it is incumbent on the plaintiff to state precisely in the plaint all the facts that constitute his cause of action. If he fails to establish the facts that constitute his cause of action, his suit must fail on that ground alone. On his failure to establish the facts which form the basis of his suit, he cannot contend that he is entitled to a decree all the same on proof of a different set of facts which the defendant had no opportunity to controvert, and which did not form the subject-matter of any issue in the trial Court. In the present case the plaintiffs came to Court on the sole ground that the land in dispute had been reserved for public purposes, and that by taking possession of this land the defendant was depriving them of the use of land on the occasions of marriages and deaths. This fact was denied by the defendant, and it was stated that another piece of land had been reserved for common purposes for use on the occasions of marriages and deaths. As a result of these pleadings Issue 2 was framed in the following words: "Whether the site in dispute is a common land and is reserved for the use of the general public?" The defendant produced evidence to show that another piece of land had been reserved for use for public purposes. On this finding, alone the plaintiffs' suit for permanent injunction was liable to dismissal and the only decree that they were entitled to was a decree for joint possession.

If the plaintiffs had stated in the plaint that they were entitled to a permanent injunction on the ground that they were proprietors in the village and that none of the proprietors could do anything which altered the condition of the joint property without the consent of all the co-sharers it would have been open to the defendant to plead that there was a custom in the village allowing a proprietor to make exclusive use of a part of the shamilat abadi land so long as the area of land appropriated by him did not exceed the area that would fall to his share on partition. Reference may be made in this connection to Para. 225 of Rattigan's Digest of Customary Law, which lays down that in the absence of custom none of the proprietors can do anything which alters the condition of the joint property without the consent of all the co-sharers.

As the only ground of attack urged by the plaintiffs was the reservation of the land in dispute for public purposes, the defendant was never called upon to plead custom in his favour. In my opinion, in view of the pleadings of the parties no question of special damage arises in the peculiar circumstances of the present case and the plaintiffs' suit for injunction, was therefore, rightly dismissed by the trial Court. For the reasons given above I would accept this appeal, set aside the judgment and the decree of the learned single Judge of this Court and restore that of learned Senior Subordinate Judge. Having regard to all the circumstances of the case, I would leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

Coldstream J.—I agree.

Monroe J.—I agree.

K.S./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 299

FULL BENCH

YOUNG C. J., MONROE AND

DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Kishan Singh and others — Plaintiffs
— Appellants,

v.

Mt. Santi and others — Defendants —
Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1868 of 1935, Decided on 13th November 1937.

his petition before us is a belated one. We have gone through the evidence on the record and we do not think that any further enquiry or additional evidence is necessary. It has been established that Nawab, the husband, had an illicit connexion with Mt. Mehran, the widow of his brother, and that he turned his wife out of the house when she was pregnant after beating her. For a husband to live in open adultery in the same house with another woman is certainly cruelty. His wife was away for more than two years and he took no steps to secure her return, nor did he take any steps to defend the petition for divorce though he was served. After service in the proceedings, he could not fail to find out where the case was, if he had tried. We therefore confirm the decree of the District Judge dissolving the marriage of the petitioner with Nawab.

V.B.B./R.K.

Decree confirmed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 30

TEK CHAND J.

Nasir Din and others — Defendants — Petitioners.

v.

Abdul Rahim and others — Plaintiffs
— Respondents.

Civil Revns. Nos. 365 and 858 of 1937, Decided on 30th November 1937, from decree of Judge, Small Cause Court,
 Lahore, D/. 6th April 1937.

Co-sharers — Exclusive possession — One cosharer in exclusive possession of land owned in common by cosharers—Other cosharers are entitled to money compensation in respect of exclusive user.

Where one of the cosharers owning certain land in common, is in exclusive possession of the land, the other cosharers are entitled to money compensation in respect of the exclusive use of the land from the cosharer in possession :
18 Cal 10, Foll. [P 808 C 2]

Duni Chand Kapur — for Petitioners.

Shamair Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment.—This judgment will dispose of Civil Revision No. 365 of 1937 and Civil Revision No. 858 of 1937, both of which arise from the same decree. The facts are set out fully in the detailed judgment of the Court below, and it is not necessary to repeat them here. A certain property situate in Abkari Road, Anarkali, Lahore, was originally owned by one Ghulam Mohi-ud-Din, who died many years ago, leaving three sons, Nasir-ud-Din, Imam-ud-Din and Zahir-ud-Din, and two daughters, Mt. Nasiran and Mt. Habiban. The plaintiffs in the present suit are the descendants of Mt. Nasiran. Nasir-ud-Din is defendant 1. Defendants 2 to 7 are the descendants of Imam-ud-Din and Zahir-ud-Din. Mt. Habiban is defendant 8, and her son Abdul Khaliq is defendant 11. In a previous suit between the descendants of Ghulam Mohi-ud-Din, it was determined that Mt. Nasiran (plaintiff) had a one-sixth share, Mt. Habiban (defendant 8) a one-sixth share, and the three sons Nasir-ud-Din (defendant 1), and Imam-ud-Din and Zahir-ud-Din, (the predecessors-in-interest of defendants 2 to 7) had a 2/9ths share each. The plaintiffs have since sold their one-sixth share of the property to defendants 9 and 10 by a sale deed executed on 16th March 1936 and registered on 30th April 1936. The present suit was instituted by the plaintiffs, the descendants to Mt. Nasiran, for recovery of Rs. 414, being the share of the plaintiffs in the rent, alleged to have been realised by defendants 1 to 8 from the tenants of a portion of the joint property from 15th June 1933 to 29th April 1936, (when they sold their share to defendants 9 and 10) and also for compensation for the exclusive use of another portion of the property by defendant 8 and her son defendant 11.

The suit was resisted by defendants 1 to 8 and 11 on numerous grounds, which it is not necessary to set out here. The learned Judge, Small Cause Court, has passed a decree for Rs. 59.5.4 with proportionate costs against defendant 1 only ; and for Rs. 86.4.0 with proportionate costs against defendants 8 and 11. The suit has been dismissed against the other defendants. Defendants 1, 8 and 11 have come in revision, praying for the total dismissal of the suit against them, while the plaintiffs also have applied for revision of the decree, urging that the suit should have been decreed for the full sum claimed.

Most of the pleas raised by the defendants were repeated in the petition for revision preferred by defendants 1, 8 and 11, but at the time of arguments their learned counsel confined himself only to four points. He urged (1) that there was no evidence on the record to support the finding of the Court below that defendant 1 had realised any rent during the period in dispute, and that the plaintiffs' share therein amounted to Rs. 59.5.4; (2) that defendant 11 was not a party to the previous litigation and therefore he was not bound by the decision as to the plaintiffs' right to a one-sixth share in the property in dispute and that as against him the suit could not be tried by the Small Cause Court; (3) that in the plaint no prayer was made against defendant 11 and therefore the decree had been erroneously passed against him; and (4) that defendants 8 and 11 are not liable to pay any compensation for exclusive use of any portion of the joint property, as it has not been proved that there was an ouster of the plaintiffs from it.

After hearing counsel, I see no force in any of these contentions. The learned Judge, Small Cause Court, has examined the evidence with great care and has found that defendant 1 did realise rent from tenants to whom portions of the joint property had been let during the period in dispute, and that the plaintiffs' share therein amounted to Rs. 59.5.4. The decree for this sum against defendant 1 has therefore been rightly passed and must be maintained. It is no doubt true that defendant 11 was not a party to the previous suit between the descendants of Ghulam Mohi-ud-Din in which the respective shares of his sons and daughters in the joint property were determined; but his mother Mt. Habiban, defendant 8, was a party, and both she and her sister Mt. Nasiran, mother of the plaintiffs, were held to be entitled to a one-sixth share each. Abdul Khaliq, defendant 11, is the only son of Mt. Habiban and is living with her. He has no independent right to succeed to any portion of Ghulam Mohi-ud-Din's property, and it was conceded that he holds possession along with his mother Mt. Habiban. In these circumstances, there can be no doubt that he is bound by the decision in the previous suit, and cannot deny the plaintiffs' title to a share equal to that of his mother. No question of title really arises and I hold that the claim against him was cognizable by the Small Cause Court.

The plaint in the suit was drawn up loosely, but reading it as a whole, there can be no doubt that the plaintiffs made a claim against defendant 11 who was living with his mother defendant 8, and the learned Judge could pass a decree against him if on the facts he found that this defendant was liable to pay any sum to the plaintiffs. The finding of the learned Judge is that Abdul Khaliq has occupied a large portion of the ihata in which he has set up a laundry, and of this portion he was in exclusive possession during the period in dispute. The plaintiffs and their mother have been living in Delhi, and it has been proved that they have not lived in any part of the property in dispute during the period covered by the suit. In these circumstances, they are, on the principle laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the well-known case, 18 Cal 10,¹ clearly entitled to money compensation at a proper rate in respect of exclusive use by defendant 8 who, though one of the co-sharers, was in exclusive possession, along with her son defendant 11. It was not urged that the learned Judge has assessed the amount at an unduly high figure. Defendants 1, 8 and 11 therefore fail on all the grounds urged before me and their revision must be dismissed.

In the other revision, Civil Revision No. 858 of 1937, filed by the plaintiffs, the only prayer made was that the amount allowed was small and that it should be increased to the sum claimed in the plaint. The findings of the learned Judge on this point are based upon a detailed examination of the evidence and the learned counsel for the plaintiffs was unable to urge anything substantial, justifying interference on the revision side. This petition also fails and is dismissed. As neither party has been successful, I leave them to bear their own costs in this Court. The order as to costs in the lower Court shall stand.

R.M./R.K.

Order accordingly.

1. Watson v. Ram Chand Dutt, (1891) 18 Cal 10 = 17 I A 110 = 5 Sar 535 (P C).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 303

SKEMP J.

Ghulam Mohammad — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Miraj Din and others — Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 361 of 1937, Decided on 24th November 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Gujranwala, D/- 13th February 1937.

Evidence — Hearsay — Family bard's evidence is inadmissible to prove family relationship and is unreliable.

The evidence of a family bard to prove the relationship of one family with another family is inadmissible as it relates to events long before the deponent's birth and is therefore hearsay. Further even if it is admissible he is not a very reliable person. [P 304 C 1]

Shamair Chand — for Appellant.

D. N. Aggarawal — for Respondent 3.

Judgment. — This second appeal has arisen from a suit for pre-emption. Miraj Din son of Haku sold the land in dispute to Mohammad Din son of Nawab who subsequently sold it to Suba son of Jalal. The plaintiff sued for pre-emption and based his pre-emptive right on the ground that he was a cosharer in the patti. The Courts below found that Suba, son of Jalal the second vendee, was an agnate of the vendor, Miraj Din son of Haku. The sole point discussed before me is whether this finding is justified by evidence. The learned appellate Judge (Senior Subordinate Judge of Gujranwala) found that this relationship was proved by the pedigree table Ex. D.2. I have examined this pedigree table and it does not prove the relationship. The highest ancestor of Miraj Din's father Haku is one Mian Khan. The highest ancestor of Suba son of Jalal and Mohammad Din son of Nawab (who were first cousins) is one Rahmat. There is nothing to connect Rahmat with Mian Khan: in fact another family is shown in between. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge referred to Financial Commissioner's Standing Order No. 23 which is said to have been superseded. Counsel was unable to support this reference. Besides the pedigree table a family bard gave evidence. The Senior Subordinate Judge held:

The evidence of the family bard is not altogether valueless though if it stood alone probably the case for the second vendee could not be built conclusively upon the same.

In my opinion the evidence is prima facie inadmissible. It relates to events long before the defendant's birth and is therefore hearsay; and if S. 32 (5), Evidence Act applies, which was not considered, the witness said "I have not brought the pedigree table". In other words he had not brought the best evidence available. Even if the evidence is admissible the family bard is not a very reliable person as the Senior Subordinate Judge recognizes.

In my opinion the learned Senior Subordinate Judge's finding of fact is vitiated by an entire misapprehension of the pedigree table Ex. D.2; in other words it is a finding not based on any legal evidence. No other point was argued before me and I think I must accept this appeal. The land was sold for Rs. 250. The plaintiff came into Court seeking pre-emption on payment of Rs. 50 or whatever amount the Court might find due. The trial Court found that it had been proved beyond doubt that Mohammad Din actually paid Rs. 250 to Miraj Din and that the price contained in the sale deed was bona fide. The Appellate Court gave no finding on this point. Technically, I ought to remand the case to the Appellate Court for a finding on this issue but Mr. Shamair Chand for the appellant has admitted before me that the decree ought to be made on payment of Rs. 250.

The question now arises as to costs. I think the defendant is entitled to costs in the first Court, and the successful plaintiff is entitled to costs before the Senior Subordinate Judge and in this Court and I order accordingly. My final order is that the plaintiff be granted a decree for possession by pre-emption of the land in suit on payment of Rs. 250 which sum is to be paid into the trial Court on or before 1st February 1938. The plaintiff is to pay the defendant's costs in the trial Court and the defendant is to pay the plaintiff-appellant's costs in the Appellate Court and in this Court.

V.B.B./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 304

SKEMP J.

Shahab-ud-Din — Plaintiff —

Appellant.

v.

Kalendar and another — Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 373 of 1937, Decided on 7th July 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/- 22nd December 1936.

Transfer of Property Act (1908), S. 54 — Property in possession of tenants — Sale deed requires registration.

Sale deed of immovable property although for Rs. 99 will require registration if it is in possession of tenants as what is sold is only an intangible thing: A I R 1916 Bom 229, Rel. on

[P 305 C 1]

L. M. Datta — for Appellant.

Mohammad Amin — for Respondents.

Judgment. — The plaintiff sued for possession of a site on the allegation that he was owner of the site by virtue of a sale deed in his favour executed in the year 1928 by one Shujayat Ali. The plaintiff recited that the defendants had a kutoha structure on the site, that they had refused to remove it and hence the plaintiff sued for possession. The trial Judge dismissed the suit and the learned District Judge dismissed the appeal. The property in suit is situate within the Delhi Province where the Transfer of Property Act is in force; and the District Judge held that by virtue of S. 54, T. P. Act, the deed of sale required registration. The deed of sale was for Rs. 99 and was un-registered. But the District Judge said, it is not disputed that before this sale the site was in possession of the defendants and the sale-deed mentions that the defendants were in occupation of it as tenants under Shujayat Ali.

Therefore, he said, it was clear that delivery of possession could not be given to the plaintiff by his vendor.

Mr. L. M. Datta for the appellant has argued that possession means "symbolical possession" or "asking the tenants to attorn to the purchaser", and he cites a witness, not mentioned by the District Judge, who says that the vendor told Qalandar Ali, one of the defendants, to pay rent in future to the plaintiff and Qalandar Ali agreed to this.

Section 54, T. P. Act, says that a transfer by way of sale "in the case of tangible immovable property of the value of Rs 100 and upwards or in the case of a reversion or other intangible thing, can be made only by a registered instrument." As tenants were in possession, all that Shujayat Ali could actually transfer was a right to possession or a right to receive rent and this, in my opinion, is included in the expression 'intangible thing'. The judgments in 40 Bom 313¹ support this conclusion. I therefore think that the District Judge was right in holding that the plaintiff had failed to prove that he was the owner. It is unnecessary to go further into the grounds of appeal and I dismiss this second appeal with costs.

B.D./R.K. Appeal dismissed.

1. Bhaskar Gopal v. Padman Hira, (1916) 8 A I R Bom 223=83 I O 267=40 Bom 313=18 Bom L R 8.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 305

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.
Mohammad Malik — Defendant —
Appellant.

v.

Ali Mohammad and others, Plaintiffs and others, Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 324 of 1937, Decided on 7th December 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Gujranwala, D/- 7th January 1937.

Custom (Punjab)—Representative suit by M on behalf of reversioners to set aside alienation by father allowed to be dismissed as ground not strong — Purchase by M of suit property for valuable consideration — Other reversioners can claim no share in it—S. 90, Trusts Act does not apply.

Where M, after realizing the weakness of his position in a declaratory suit brought by him in a representative capacity on behalf of the reversioners to set aside an alienation by the father, allows the suit to be dismissed and after the dismissal of the suit acquires the property for himself for valuable consideration, it does not in any circumstances amount to a declaratory decree which would enure for the benefit of the other reversioners. The fact that M makes a profit by selling it subsequently does not alter his position in any manner. Nor is the case of M covered by S. 90, Trusts Act: A I R 1932 Bom 240, Disting. [P 306 C 2]

Shamair Chand — for Appellant.

Narotam Singh and D. N. Aggarwal
— for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J.—This appeal has arisen out of a suit instituted by Ali Mohammad, Ghulam Qadir and Rehmat, sons of Taleh Mand, against their brother Mohammad Malik and five others, for possession of certain land alleged to have been sold by their father in 1914 and acquired by Mohammad Malik in 1934. It was alleged in the plaint that in 1933 Mohammad Malik brought the usual declaratory suit contesting the alienation by their father and that that suit had been instituted with the consent of the plaintiffs and on an express understanding with them that they would be entitled to the benefit of the litigation. It was further averred that in any case Mohammad Malik had brought his suit in a representative capacity and that to any advantage that accrued to him all the plaintiffs were equally entitled. This suit was resisted by Mohammad Malik on various grounds. He contended, inter alia, that the suit did not result in a decree but was dismissed, that on the day the order of dismissal was made the land in suit was purchased by him from the previous vendees for Rupees 3000 and that in these circumstances the plaintiffs had no right to bring the suit. He further traversed the allegation made in the plaint that he had entered into any sort of agreement with the plaintiffs prior to the institution of the suit.

On the pleadings of the parties, necessary issues were framed and although the Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that the plaintiffs had failed to establish the oral agreement alleged by them, he decreed the claim holding that all the plaintiffs were entitled to succeed to the land in suit inasmuch as Mohammad Malik had instituted the suit in a representative capacity and that at any rate S. 90 Trusts Act, favoured the plaintiffs. Dissatisfied with this decision, Mohammad Malik presented an appeal to the District Judge, who endorsed the opinion of the Subordinate Judge as regards the inability of the plaintiffs to prove the alleged agreement and further held that inasmuch as no decree had been obtained in the previous suit instituted by Mohammad Malik, S. 8, Punjab Limitation (Custom) Act (1 of 1920) did not apply. Agreeing, however with the Subordinate Judge that the case was covered by S. 90, Trusts Act, he dismissed the appeal with costs. It is from this decision that the present appeal has been preferred.

After hearing counsel on both sides, we have come to the conclusion that this appeal must succeed. It is evident that Mohammad Malik's suit was dismissed and the case therefore does not come within the purview of S. 8 of Act 1 of 1920. No decree having been obtained in the case, nothing could enure for the benefit of the other reversioners. We are not impressed by the arguments advanced on behalf of the respondents that the dismissal of the suit was tantamount to a decree in so far as the dismissal had been made in terms of the compromise arrived at between Mohammad Malik and the then vendees and those terms provided for a sale in favour of Mohammad Malik by virtue of the relationship that he bore to Talehmand. It is admitted that the original sale had taken place for Rs. 2600 and it is not disputed that Mohammad Malik paid Rs. 400 over and above this sum for purchasing the land. This means that his plea that the sale had been effected without consideration and without necessity had failed and a failure of this plea would even otherwise have entailed a dismissal of the suit, in which case a suit like the present would have been out of the question. If therefore Mohammad Malik after realizing the weakness of his position, allowed the suit to be dismissed and after the dismissal of the suit acquired the property for himself, it would not, in any circumstances, amount to a declaratory decree which would enure for the benefit of the other reversioners. No doubt he sold half of the land in suit and out of the sale proceeds, besides paying off the original vendees, he saved Rs. 1000 for himself, but that does not alter the position in any manner.

We are also not convinced that S. 90, Trusts Act has any application in this case. Mohammad Malik was neither a tenant for life nor a co-owner, nor a mortgagee, nor a qualified owner of the property and he does not therefore come within the letter of the law. Counsel for the respondents contends that Mohammad Malik can be treated as a quasitrustee and relies on A I R 1932 Bom 240¹ in this respect, but that case is distinguishable on facts and does not help the respondents in any manner. We accordingly accept the appeal and dismiss the suit of the plaintiffs with costs throughout.

V.B.B./R.K.

Suit dismissed.

1. Bahani v. Dulba, (1932) 19 A I R Bom 240 = 137 I C 355 = 34 Bom L R 357.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 306

TEK CHAND J.

Gopi Nath, owner of Firm Chhedi Lal.
Gopi Nath — Defendant — Petitioner.

v.

Kashi Ram — Plaintiff — Respondent.

Civil Revn. No. 609 of 1937, Decided on 11th November 1937, from decree of Senior Sub.Judge, Ferozepore, D/- 15th May 1937.

Legal Practitioner — Fee — Suit for munshiana — Client agreeing to pay munshiana over and above pleader's fees — Pleader is entitled to sue for munshiana.

Where it is one of the terms of the engagement of a pleader, that he would be paid a particular sum as his fees and also a certain sum as his munshi's remuneration, the pleader is entitled to sue the client for the munshiana. [P 307 C 1]

Shamair Chand — for Petitioner.

M. L. Puri — for Respondent.

Order. — On the findings of fact concurrently recorded by the Courts below there is no ground for interference on the revision side. It has been found that the defendant had engaged the plaintiff on a daily fee of Rs. 70 for himself plus Rs. 7 as munshiana. It has also been found that the plaintiff worked for the defendant at Meerut on the five days in question. In these circumstances there is no doubt that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for the amount claimed.

The only question that was argued before me in a faint-hearted manner by Mr. Shamair Chand was that the pleader could not sue for the munshiana. But it was one of the terms of the engagement of the plaintiff that he would be paid Rs. 70 for himself and Rs. 7 as his munshi's remuneration. The plaintiff therefore, was clearly entitled to sue for the munshiana. The petition for revision fails and is dismissed with costs.

R.M./R.K. Petition dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 307

TEK CHAND J.

Sayad Mahbub Hussain Shah and others — Judgment-debtors — Appellants.

v.

Punjab National Bank Ltd., Lahore, and others — Decree-holders — Respondents.

Exn. First Appeals Nos. 125, 126 and 241 of 1937, Decided on 17th November 1937, from order of Senior Sub.Judge, Lyallpur, D/. 10th March 1937.

Execution—Rateable distribution—Prayer refused—Order is not appealable.

Where a decree-holder in his application for execution prays only for rateable distribution and the application is rejected, the order of rejection comes under S. 73, Civil P. C., and no appeal lies against it. [P 808 C 1]

Ram Lal Anand I — for Appellants.

Ashru Ram — for Respondents Nos. 1 and 3.

Judgment.—This judgment will dispose of Execution First Appeals Nos. 125, 126 and 241 of 1937, which arise from an order of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Lyallpur, dated 10th March 1937. The relevant facts are that the Punjab National Bank Limited obtained a money decree against the sons and grandsons of the late Sir Mehdi Shah, and in execution of the decree, they attached certain agricultural land which was the self-acquired property of the deceased, and applied for its temporary alienation for a period not exceeding 20 years. A number of other persons, who held decrees against Sir Mehdi Shah or his sons, applied for rateable distribution. One of these persons is a Co-operative Society called the Anjuman Imdad Qarza of Chak No. 353 and it claimed rateable distribution with the Punjab National Bank on the basis of two awards for Rs. 6612.11.9 and Rupees 5726.9.0 respectively given by an arbitrator on 7th March 1929 in its favour against Altaf Hussain, son of Sir Mehdi Shah as principal and Sir Mehdi Shah as surety, which were executable as decrees under the Co-operative Societies' Act. In the course of the proceedings, it transpired that Sir Mehdi Shah had died in October 1927, about 18 months before the awards. It was accordingly objected that the awards were nullities so far as the deceased was concerned, and they could not be executed against his estate. Before this objection was decided, the Anjuman managed to obtain from the arbitrator two other awards on 21st May 1935 for the same amounts against Altaf Hussain as principal and the estate of Sir Mehdi Shah in the hands of his grandsons respondents 2 to 8, one of whom (Mahbub Hussain) is a major and the other six are minors. The arbitrator, before delivering these awards, did not hold any formal proceedings; he did not even give any notice to the grandsons of Sir Mehdi Shah, nor did he appoint any guardian ad litem to represent the minors. All that he appears to have done was to prepare copies of the former awards, substituting for Sir Mehdi Shah the names of his grandsons. Four days later, i. e. on 25th May 1935, these awards were filed in the execution Court and the prayer for rateable distribution repeated.

The respondents objected that these (so-called) subsequent awards had been obtained behind their back and without any notice to them and therefore they could not be executed in the Civil Court. The learned Judge upheld the objection and dismissed the Anjuman's application for rateable distribution. He then proceeded to consider the claims of the other decree-holders and held that the Punjab National Bank, Mt. Jiwan Bai, and firm Tulsei Das. Devi Ditta Mal were entitled to rateable distribution, and directed that the proceeds of the temporary alienation be divided among them.

Against this order, three appeals have been preferred in this Court, Execution First Appeals 125 and 126 of 1937 by the Anjuman Imdad Qarza of Chak No. 353 against the surviving son and grandsons of Sir Mehdi Shah and Execution First Appeal No. 241 of 1937 by the grandsons of Sir Mehdi Shah against the Punjab National Bank, Mt. Jiwan Bai and Firm Tulsī Das. Devī Dittā Mal. A preliminary objection is taken by counsel for the respondents that Appeals Nos. 125 and 126 are incompetent as the order of the Court below refusing rateable distribution to the Anjuman was passed under S. 73, Civil P. C., and is not appealable. In my opinion, this objection is well founded and must prevail. As already stated, the only prayer in the Anjuman's application for execution was for rateable distribution. An order refusing this prayer is one under S. 73, sub.s. (2) of that section gives the aggrieved party a right to bring a regular suit. No appeal is allowed from such order.

The order does not really fall under S. 47, as urged by counsel. I may say, however, that even if an appeal lay, the order of the Court below is correct. It is admitted by Mr. Abdul Majid on behalf of the appellants that the awards of 7th March 1929 were nullities so far as Sir Mehdi Shah was concerned, he having died long before the arbitration proceedings started. As regards the second set of awards, they were obtained against the seven grandsons of Sir Mehdi Shah, six of whom were minors. No guardian appears to have been formally appointed and the only adult grandson was not personally served. Further, as pointed out by counsel for respondents, it has not been shown on the record that Sir Mehdi Shah was a member of the Anjuman, and that any award could be validly made against him or, after his death, his legal representatives. I dismiss Appeals Nos. 125 and 126 with costs.

Appeal No. 241 is by the grandsons of Sir Mehdi Shah and the only prayer made by their counsel is that it be made clear that the decree of the Punjab National Bank, Mt. Jiwan Bai and Firm Tulsī Das. Devī Dittā Mal, who had been allowed rateable distribution, are executable against the "self-acquired property" of Sir Mehdi Shah only. It is admitted that the property which has been attached and of which temporary alienation was ordered in this case, had been acquired by Sir Mehdi Shah himself. It is urged, however, that in its order the Court has not said that this is so and, he says, that his clients apprehend that the order of the lower Court may not be used in future proceedings as having directed that property, which Sir Mehdi Shah might have inherited from his father or other male ancestor, was also liable for these decrees. Mr. Achhru Ram for the decree-holder has no objection to it being stated that the decrees are not executable against the ancestral property (if any) of Sir Mehdi Shah. No other point was urged before me. This appeal is dismissed, parties being left to bear their own costs.

B.D./R.K.

Appeals dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 308

DALIP SINGH J.

Ramesh Chandra Joshi and others —
Petitioners.

v.

Murli Manohar Joshi and another —
Respondents.

Civil Revn. No. 1006 of 1937 Decided on 10th January 1938, from order of Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/. 29th October 1937.

Guardians and Wards Act (1890), S. 29—
There is no distinction between powers of permanent and temporary guardians appointed under the Act.

Temporary as well as permanent guardians and their powers are defined in S. 29. There is no distinction between the powers conferred on a permanent guardian by the Act and the powers of a temporary guardian. Both are appointed and declared by the Court. S. 29 refers to the powers of guardians appointed and declared by the Court.
[P 308 C 2; P 309 C 1]

Dina Nath Bhasin and Anand Mohan—
for Petitioners.

J. N. Aggarwal — for Respondents.

Judgment.—The counsel for the petitioners in this case contends only that the order of the trial Court directing the sale of the property by the temporary guardian is ultra vires because the temporary guardian has no power to sell land even under the direction of the Court. The contention is based, so far as I can see, on the absence of any specific permission in the Guardians and Wards Act as to the powers conferred on a temporary guardian, but it appears to me that temporary as well as permanent guardians and their powers are defined in S. 29 and I see no reason for drawing a distinction between the powers conferred on a permanent guardian by the Act and the powers of a temporary guardian: both are appointed and declared by the Court and S. 29 refers to the powers of guardians appointed and declared by the Court.

On the merits the learned Counsel wishes to contend that certain other property should be sold rather than this property. No such point was urged in the Court below and I do not see how it can be taken up now. I therefore dismiss the petition for revision with costs.

R.M./R.K.

Petition dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 309

BHIDE J.

Sher Mohammad — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Mt. Jawahar Khatun and another, Defendant and another, Pro forma Defendant—Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 40 of 1937, Decided on 12th November 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Shahpur at Mianwalli, D/. 14th November 1936.

(a) Custom (Punjab) — Succession — Awans of Khushab tahsil—Non-ancestral property—Daughters preferred to collaterals.

According to the custom governing awans of the Khushab tahsil in Shahpur District collaterals are not entitled to succeed to non-ancestral property in preference to a daughter. [P 309 C 2 ; P 310 C 1, 2]

(b) Custom (Punjab) — Riway-i-am — Presumption is rebuttable — Judicial finding arrived at after elaborate enquiry has equal value with entry in Riway-i-am.

Although an initial presumption of correctness attaches to an entry in the Riway-i-am, the presumption is a rebuttable one and that presumption can be held to be rebutted by a finding arrived at after an exhaustive enquiry : A I R 1932 Lah 157, Ref. [P 310 C 2]

And a finding arrived at by the Court after a thorough inquiry should not be placed on an inferior footing than the entry in the Riway-i-am. [P 310 C 2 ; P 311 C 1]

(c) Custom—Proof of—Custom repeatedly ascertained and acted upon judicially — Judgment is evidence of custom.

A judgment on a question of custom is relevant not merely as an instance under S. 13, Evidence Act but also under S. 42 of the Act as evidence of the custom. When a custom is repeatedly ascertained and acted upon judicially, the production of such judicial decisions is sufficient to prove the custom : A I R 1918 P C 81, Ref. [P 311 C 1]

Khurehaid Zaman — for Appellant.

Aohhru Ram and Inder Dev Dua — for Respondents 1 and 2.

Judgment. — The sole point for decision in this second appeal is, whether according to the custom governing Awans of the Khushab tehsil in Shahpur district collaterals are entitled to succeed to non-ancestral property in preference to a daughter. The learned Additional District Judge has held that the presumption in favour of the collaterals arising from the entry in the riway-i-am was rebutted by the evidence on the record and has held that the collaterals are not entitled to succeed to non-ancestral property in the presence of a daughter. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred by the plaintiff. The learned counsel for the appellant has urged that the entry in the riway-i-am raises a strong presumption in favour of the plaintiff and that the instances relied on by the learned District Judge are not sufficient to rebut that presumption.

It may be stated at the outset that the oral evidence produced by the parties was not relied on before me. So far as judicial instances are concerned, five were relied on by the respondents while three were relied on by the plaintiff-appellant. Out of the three instances relied on by the plaintiff-appellant, one was a decision by the Additional District Judge of Shahpur which came up on appeal to this Court and was set aside : vide A I R 1937 Lah 641.¹ We are thus left with only two instances in favour of the appellant, namely *A I R 1936 Lah 205*² and A I R 1925 Lah 482.³ In the latter ruling, there was apparently no evidence produced to rebut the entry in the riway-i-am and the decision was based practically on that entry alone. In the other ruling A I R 1936 Lah 205,² which does not relate to the tribe of the parties, the ruling on which main reliance has been placed before me on behalf of the respondents, viz., *13 Lah 276*⁴ in which an elaborate enquiry was made on the very question of custom which is involved in the present case, was not considered.

On behalf of the respondents the following rulings were relied on in the Courts

1. Mt. Rajan v. Mt. Bano, (1937) 21 A I R Lah 641=172 I C 963=89 P L R 276.
2. Mt. Begum Bibi v. Raja, (1936) 23 A I R Lah 205=161 I C 647=17 Lah 477=88 P L R 966.
3. Jawaya Shah v. Mt. Fatima, (1925) 12 A I R Lah 482=89 I C 656=6 Lah 356=26 P L R 590.
4. Khan Beg v. Fateh Khatun, (1932) 19 A I R Lah 157=135 I C 769=13 Lah 276=32 P L R 890.

below, namely 1 Lah 284,⁵ 13 Lah 276,⁴ A I R 1934 Lah 404⁶ and A I R 1936 Lah 809.⁷ In addition, the learned counsel for the respondents also cited two other recent rulings reported in A I R 1937 Lah 640⁸ and A I R 1937 Lah 641.¹ As regards these rulings, the learned counsel for the appellant contended that these rulings cannot now be taken to lay down good law in view of the principles laid down by a Full Bench of this Court in a recent decision reported in A I R 1937 Lah 451.⁹ It was pointed out that in 1 Lah 284⁵ the decision was influenced largely by a consideration of the general custom in the province and that in 13 Lah 276⁴ it was remarked that when the riwaj-i-am affects adversely the rights of females who had no opportunity whatever of appearing before the revenue authorities, the presumption is weak and a few instances might suffice to rebut it. It was urged that according to the Full Bench ruling, there is no justification for holding the presumption to be weak even when the riwaj-i-am entry affects adversely the rights of females. As regards the other decisions relied on, it is pointed out that they are based mainly on 13 Lah 276.⁴

The main question which therefore requires consideration in this case is whether the decision in 13 Lah 276⁴ should be held to prove a custom contrary to that laid down in the riwaj-i-am. In that case, an exhaustive enquiry was made after a remand into the question of custom which arises for decision in the present case. The parties to that case were also Awans of Tehsil Khushab in the Shahpur district. Voluminous, oral and documentary evidence was produced and after considering the same it was held that the daughter was entitled to succeed to self-acquired property in preference to collaterals. It is true that it is remarked in the judgment that the presumption raised by the riwaj-i-am entry is weak when the entry affects the rights of females adversely; but the decision is mainly based on a consideration of the oral and documentary evidence and not on that remark. It was rightly pointed out by the learned counsel for the respondents that several of instances in favour of the daughter prior to the compilation of the riwaj-i-am were taken into consideration in arriving at the decision in that case, while no such instances were produced on behalf of the collaterals. In the circumstances, the decision in that case appears to me to be of great importance and sufficient to rebut the presumption arising from the riwaj-i-am entry.

It was urged that the judicial decision counts only as an instance, but a judgment on a point of custom is also relevant under S. 42, Evidence Act. Besides, the value of the decision depends upon the nature of the enquiry and the evidence produced. It may happen at times that the riwaj-i-am is held to be conclusive merely because no evidence has been produced to rebut it; as for instance was the case in A I R 1925 Lah 482.³ On the other hand, there was a very elaborate enquiry made in the case reported as 13 Lah 276.⁴ The two decisions therefore cannot obviously be placed on the same footing. Although an initial presumption of correctness attaches to an entry in the riwaj-i-am, the presumption is a rebuttable one and I do not see any good reason why that presumption should not be held to be rebutted by a finding arrived at after an exhaustive enquiry, as it was in 13 Lah 276.⁴ It is indeed difficult to see how the presumption attaching to the entry in the riwaj-i-am could be rebutted in any other way.

It was urged that the instances relied on are recent ones and cannot prove a custom contrary to what is stated in the riwaj-i-am as custom must be immemorial, as laid down in A I R 1937 Lah 451.⁹ But there is no question here of proving a new custom coming into existence after the compilation of the riwaj-i-am. The question is whether the entry in the riwaj-i-am itself records the custom correctly. In view of the evidence adduced in 13 Lah 276,⁴ which evidence included instances prior to the riwaj-i-am and, as opposed to which, no well ascertained instances to the contrary were proved, I think, the presumption attaching to the riwaj-i-am may be taken to be sufficiently rebutted. I see no good reason why a finding arrived at by the Court after a thorough inquiry such as was held in 13 Lah 276⁴ should be

5. Ghulam Muhammad v. Mt. Gauhar Bibi, (1920) 7 A I R Lah 9=54 I O 419=1 Lah 284.

6. Bhug Bhan v. Muhammad, (1934) 11 A I R Lah 404=150 I O 786=15 Lah 78=86 P L R 449.

7. Ahmad v. Muhammad, (1936) 23 A I R Lah 809=167 I O 195.

8. Alam Sher v. Mt. Satbharal, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 640=172 I O 966=89 P L R 252.

9. Bahadur v. Mt. Nihal Kaur, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 451=169 I O 909=39 P L R 849=1 L R (1937) Lah 594 (F B).

placed on an inferior footing than the entry in the riwaj-i-am. It was urged in the end that no evidence of the kind that was produced in 13 Lah 276⁴ has been produced in this case. But I do not think this was necessary. As pointed out above a judgment on a question of custom is relevant, not merely as an instance under S. 13 but also under S. 42, Evidence Act, as evidence of the custom. When a custom is repeatedly ascertained and acted upon judicially, the production of such judicial decisions is sufficient to prove the custom: cf. 41 Mad 778¹⁰ at p. 785. After carefully considering the matter, I see no good reason to differ from the finding of the learned Additional District Judge and dismiss this appeal with costs.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

10. Gangadhara Rama Rao v. Rajah of Pittapur, (1918) 5 A I R P C 81=47 I O 354=45 I A 148=41 Mad 778 (P O).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 311

DALIP SINGH J.

Sis Ram — Plaintiff — Petitioner.

v.

*Sohan Lal and others — Defendants—
Respondents.*

Civil Revn. No. 373 of 1937, Decided on 16th November 1937, from order of Senior Sub-Judge, Delhi, D/- 9th December 1936.

(a) Pre-emption — Suit for — Market value of property different from that alleged in plaint—Court must call plaintiff to pay proper court-fee before trial of suit — It is improper for Court to decide question of court-fees at end of suit and incorporate order in decree — Plaintiff, being misled by wrong procedure of Court, filing appeal on same court fees—Appellate Court should exercise its discretion in favour of extending time.

Where in a suit for pre-emption, the Court finds that the market value of the property is different from that alleged in the plaint, it should at once call upon the plaintiff to make up the proper court-fee as determined, before the trial of the suit takes place. It is improper for the Court to hold up the decision on the question of court-fees until the end of the suit and to incorporate it in the decree: A I R 1935 Lah 75, Rel. on.

[P 312 C 1]

Where the plaintiff having been misled by the wrong procedure adopted by the trial Court files the appeal with the same court-fees with which he had stamped his plaint, the Appellate Court should exercise its discretion in his favour and extend time to allow him to make up the deficiency.

[P 312 C 1]

(b) Pre-emption—Forum of appeal—Forum of appeal depends upon finding as to market value of property involved.

Once a Court determines the market value of the property involved in a pre-emption suit, the forum of appeal depends upon that finding, especially in a case where the plaintiff does not challenge the finding on the market value in the grounds of appeal at all. [P 312 C 1]

Chiranjiva Lal — for Petitioner.Mohammad Din Jan — for Respondents.

Order.—This revision and this appeal (No. 514 of 1937) can be disposed of in one judgment. The plaintiff brought a suit for pre-emption of certain amlas. In one case he alleged various grounds of pre-emption and stated that the values put in the sale deeds of Rs. 300 and Rs. 99 respectively were fictitious and the real values were Rs. 25 and Rs. 5. He therefore sued to pre-empt these amlas on payment of Rs. 30 only. In the other case he sued to pre-empt one amla on various grounds alleging that though the sale price shown was Rs. 99 the actual value was only Rs. 15 and therefore he claimed pre-emption on payment of Rs. 15. The trial Court framed various issues referring to right of pre-emption and framed a special issue as to the value of the suits for purposes of court-fee, as objection had been taken that the value was not correct. It came to the conclusion on a trial of the issues regarding the right of pre-emption that the suits should be dismissed with costs. As regards the question of court-fee, it held that the market value of the property was best judged by the price actually paid, that the price entered in the sale deeds was actually paid and therefore the plaintiff was bound to pay a court-fee in addition to what he had already paid on the sums of Rs. 399 and Rs. 99 respectively. These orders were incorporated in the decree. The plaintiff went on appeal to the learned Senior Subordinate Judge who held in one case that the market value of the suit having been found to be Rs. 399, the proper forum of appeal was the learned District Judge and therefore returned the appeal for presentation to the learned District Judge. In the other case he held that the value of the appeal for purposes of court-fee and jurisdiction alike was Rs. 99 according to the finding of the trial Court and as the plaintiff had not stamped his appeal for Rs. 99 but for Rs. 15 as originally claimed by him, therefore the appeal was not properly stamped. He refused to extend time for payment of additional court-fee and dismissed the appeal. From the first decision a revision has been taken and from the second decision an appeal has been taken to this Court.

It seems to me quite clear that once a Court had found that the market value of the property was different to that alleged in the plaint, the plaintiff should have at once been called upon to make up the proper court-fee as determined, before the trial of the suit should have taken place at all. It was obviously improper for the Court to hold up the decision on the question of court-fee until the end of the suit and incorporate the order passed in the decree which was perfectly useless (*see A I R 1935 Lah 75*¹). At the same time it seems to me that once a Court had determined the market value, the forum of appeal depended on that finding, especially in a case where the plaintiff did not challenge the finding on the market value in the grounds of appeal at all. This being so, the learned Senior Subordinate Judge was right in returning the appeal in the Rs. 399 suit, for presentation to the learned District Judge. I therefore uphold his order and dismiss the revision petition.

In the other case it appears to me that the plaintiff was misled by the wrong procedure adopted by the trial Court. It was for that reason probably that he filed his appeal with the same court fee as he had stamped his plaint. In the circumstances, I think the Court should have exercised its discretion in his favour and extended time to allow him to make up the deficiency.

I therefore accept the appeal and extend the time for the plaintiff to make up the proper court-fee before the Appellate Court. The plaintiff will appear before the learned Senior Subordinate Judge on 26th November and obtain a date within which he will pay the requisite court-fee and if he does so and pays the requisite court-fee, the learned Senior Subordinate Judge will proceed to dispose of the appeal on the merits. No order as to costs in either case.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

1. Walaito Ram v. Gopi Ram, (1935) 22 A I R Lah 75=162 I O 799.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 312

DALIP SINGH AND BHIDE JJ.

Sher Mohammad and others —Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

Zulfaqar — Defendant — Respondent.

First Appeal No. 446 of 1936, Decided on 10th December 1937, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Jhang, D/- 7th August 1936.

(a) Custom (Punjab)—Riwaj-i-am — Unsupported by instances—Effect.

Though a riwaj-i-am is unsupported by instances, its effect is to shift the onus on to a party who alleges a custom contrary to that entered therein, to prove the custom alleged by him. [P 312 C 2]

(b) Custom (Punjab)—Succession—Ancestral property—Sials of Jhang District—Father can by will favour one of his sons.

By the custom among the Sials of Jhang a proprietor of ancestral property can by will favour one of his sons as against others. And the custom in this respect is correctly recorded in riwaj-i-am of 1907 and not correctly recorded in that of 1929: A I R 1927 Lah 340, Rel. on. [P 312 C 2; P 313 C 1]

Shuja-ud-Din and Ganesh Datt —

for Appellants.

M. L. Puri and S. L. Puri —

for Respondent.

Dalip Singh J. — The plaintiffs in this case sued for a declaration to the effect that the sale executed by their father in favour of his remaining son, the defendant, was void as against the plaintiffs' right of inheritance. The property is admittedly ancestral property and the sole question in the present appeal before us is whether by the custom among the Sials of Jhang a proprietor can by will favour one of his sons as against the others. The relevant riwaj-i-am in the Answers to Questions 110 and 112 was conceded by the trial Court to support the plaintiffs' case. The trial Court held quite rightly that, though this riwaj-i-am was unsupported by instances, its effect, under the ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council, was to shift the onus on to the defendant to prove the custom alleged by him. In this particular case the defendant produced the earlier riwaj-i-am of 1907 in which it was stated that a proprietor could make an unequal distribution of his property in favour of his heirs including his sons. This earlier riwaj-i-am was supported by four instances. The only instance cited in the present riwaj-i-am from the tribe of the parties, namely the Sials, would also tend to support the defendant's case. One of the plaintiffs' witnesses, P. W. 8, also mentions another instance, namely that of Raja Sultan who was the maternal uncle of the plaintiffs and gifted his ancestral property in the name of one son to the exclusion of the others. The trial Court has referred to other oral instances cited by the witnesses for the parties, but, on examining the instances, it does not appear that they are really in support of the defendant's case. It is nobody's case that the custom has changed from 1907 to 1929. The sole question before this Court is whether the trial Court was right in concluding that the custom of the Sials of Jhang was correctly recorded in the riwaj-i-am of 1907 and was not correctly recorded in the riwaj-i-am of 1929.

In my opinion the trial Court was correct on the ground that the earlier riwaj-i-am is supported by six instances at least and no instance supporting the present riwaj-i-am has been cited by the plaintiffs at all. There is also one judicial case reported in 101 I C 852¹ supporting the defendant's case. In the circumstances therefore I consider that there is no force in this appeal which is dismissed with costs.

Bhude J.—I agree.

K S / R K. Appeal dismissed.

1. Ahmad v Pahlwan, (1927) 14 A I R Lah 340 = 101 I C 852.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 313

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mt. Nazir Begam — Appellant.

v.

Ghulam Qadir Khan and others —

Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 108 of 1917, Decided on 6th December 1937, against judgment of Coldstream J., D/. 7th July 1937, reported in A I R 1938 Lah 84.

(a) Guardians and Wards Act (1890), S. 12—Applicability of S. 12 is not barred till minor is actually made over.

So long as the custody of a minor is not actually made over to the guardian, the proceedings do not terminate and the applicability of S. 12 is not barred though the certificate of guardianship may have been issued: A I R 1929 Lah 487, Dissent.; 13 P R 1897 and A I R 1915 All 199, Rel. on. [P 315 C 1, 2]

(b) Guardians and Wards Act (1890), Ss. 4 (5) (b) (ii), 12 (1), 25—Appellant appointed guardian of person of her minor daughter on her husband's death—Application for her custody to Court at M, where minor ordinarily residing with her paternal family—At time of application minor found to be made over to female relative of respondents residing in state—Minor's residence in state held temporary and incidental—Court at M held had jurisdiction to entertain application for custody: A I R 1938 Lah 84, Reversed.

To place a restricted meaning on the words "for the time being ordinarily resides" in S. 4 (5) (b) (ii) so as to interpret them to mean where the minor actually is at the time of the application, would be tantamount to rendering nugatory all the provisions of the Guardians and Wards Act and to making the law helpless against the machination of the recalcitrant persons who do not propose to part with the minor in favour of the appointed guardian. This is especially so in the Punjab where the British Indian States are so closely situated that any person would be able to flout the authority of the highest tribunal of the land by merely walking with the minor into a neighbouring state. Further if a minor is not present at the time of the order appointing the guardian and not physically handed over to the guardian at the time of his appointment, there would be no provision of law to enable the Court to do so afterwards. [P 316 C 2; P 317 C 1]

The appellant, after being appointed guardian of the person of her minor daughter on death of her husband applied under Ss. 12 (1) and 25 for her custody to the Court at M where the minor ordinarily resided with her paternal family. After the death of her father, the minor was made over to the custody of a female relative residing in a state with the consent and connivance of the respondents. It was argued for the respondents that the minor was residing for the time being in the state and so the Court at M had no jurisdiction to entertain the application:

Held that the custody of the child was with the respondents; the minor was still under the control of the respondents who could recall her at any time they liked. The minor's residence in the state was incidental and temporary only and the permanent residence was at M wherefrom she was removed by the respondents with the reprehensible object of evading the law and nullifying the orders of the British Courts. The Court M, therefore, had jurisdiction to entertain the application: A I R 1938 Lah 84, Reversed; Case law referred. [P 316 C 1; P 317 C 1, 2]

Muhammad Amin — for Appellant.

Mehr Chand Mahajan —

for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J.—The appellant, Mt. Nazir Begam, was married to one Khan Abdul Karim Khan of Multan. She had a daughter from him of the name of Mt. Fahmida Khanam. By another wife Khan Abdul Karim Khan had five sons. Some time ago he died and at the time of his death Mt. Fahmida Khanam was about three years of age. On 14th May 1935, Mt. Nazir Begam made an application to the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Multan, for appointment as guardian of her minor daughter mentioning all the five sons of the deceased as well as some others as the persons related to the minor and thus interested in her. The five sons of the deceased resisted the application on various grounds. It was contended inter alia that the minor had, in accordance with the decision of all the members of the family, been made over to one Mt. Mehan Bibi, a female relative of the deceased, and was in her custody and inasmuch as Mt. Mehan Bibi was residing in Bahawalpur the Multan Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the application under S. 9, Guardians and Wards Act. Thereupon Mt. Mehan Bibi was also brought on the record and she too joined in the contest. The Subordinate Judge on the plea of jurisdiction as well as on the other pleas raised in the case found in favour of the contesting respondents and dismissed the application. On appeal to this Court, Skemp J., came to the conclusion that Mt. Mehan Bibi was merely a nominee of the contesting respondents and as she had taken the minor to Bahawalpur only with their permission, the minor could be taken to be residing ordinarily in Multan and that consequently the jurisdiction of the Multan Court was not ousted. Holding that it was for the welfare of the minor that she should be made over to her mother, he allowed the appeal and appointed Mt. Nazir Begam guardian of the person of the minor. Thereupon Ghulam Qadir Khan, one of the contesting respondents, appealed to this Court against the decision of Skemp J. but his appeal was dismissed in limine on 1st March 1937. In the meantime on 2nd February 1937 Mt. Nazir Begam made an application to the Court of the Subordinate Judge at Multan under S. 12, sub.s. (1) and S. 25, Guardians and Wards Act, asking for the custody of the child. In that application three out of the five sons of Khan Abdul Karim Khan only were impleaded presumably because they were the only major sons of the deceased. On 4th February 1937, Mt. Nazir Begam was also granted a guardianship certificate under the order of the Subordinate Judge.

The respondents once more resisted the application on the ground that the Court at Multan had no jurisdiction as the minor had throughout been residing in Bahawalpur and had never returned to Multan. This plea found favour with the Court below and Mt. Nazir Begam's application was dismissed. She presented an appeal to this Court which came on for hearing before Coldstream J. The learned Judge also agreed with the Subordinate Judge in holding that the Multan Court had no jurisdiction and dismissed the appeal. Hence this Letters Patent appeal. The only question that falls for determination in this case is whether in view of the definition of the words "the Court" given in sub.s. 5 (b) (ii) of S. 4, Guardians and Wards Act, the Court at Multan had jurisdiction to make an order contemplated by Ss. 12 (1) and 25, Guardians and Wards Act, assuming that the minor was at that time actually leaving in Bahawalpur. The material portion of S. 12 (1) is as follows :

The Court may direct that the person, if any, having the custody of the minor, shall produce him

The marginal note to this section is as follows :

Power to make interlocutory order for production of minor and interim protection of person and property.

The relevant portion of S. 25, sub.s. (1) runs as follows :

If a ward leaves or is removed from the custody of a guardian of his person, the Court, if it is of opinion that it will be for the welfare of the ward . . . may make an order for his return, and, for the purpose of enforcing the order, may cause the ward to be arrested and to be delivered into the custody of the guardian.

Section 4 (5) (b) (ii) defines "the Court" in the following terms :

Where a guardian has been appointed or declared in pursuance of any such application: (i) the Court which . . . appointed or declared the guardian . . . ; or (ii) in any matter relating to the person of the ward, the District Court having jurisdiction in the place where the ward for the time being ordinarily resides.

It is urged on behalf the respondents that reading all these provisions of law together the only conclusion that follows is that after the order of appointment is made, the only Court which can entertain any application in any matter relating to the person of the ward is the Court where the minor actually is at the time and that no other Court can issue any order in that respect. It is further urged that S. 12 comes into play only when the proceedings are pending and that it has no application after the final order appointing a guardian has been made. In support of the first proposition, reliance is placed on A I R 1929 Rang 129¹ and 38 Mad 807² and in sup-

1. Maung Ba Thein v. Ma Than Kin, (1929) 16 A I R Rang 129=118 I O 415.

2. Annie Besant v. Narayaniah, (1914) 1 A I R P O 41=24 I O 290=41 I A 314=38 Mad 807 (P O).

port of the second proposition reference is made to 119 I C 423.³ In A I R 1929 Rang 129,¹ in a case in which a minor had been living with her mother at M or S and the application under S. 25, Guardians and Wards Act had been made by the father at H, a single Judge of the Rangoon High Court held that the District Court of H had no jurisdiction to make any order under S. 25 in view of the definition of the words "the Court" given in S. 4 (5) (b) (ii). The minor in that case had been living with her mother for about seven years at S or M and had never come to H to reside with her father during that period. This case therefore is distinguishable on facts. In 38 Mad 807² a regular suit was being tried by the High Court, Madras, on its Original Side for the custody of the minors who had long before the institution of the suit been taken to England by the defendant. Their Lordships of the Privy Council held that the suit was not maintainable and in connexion with the jurisdiction of the Court observed as follows:

The District Court in which the suit was instituted had no jurisdiction over the infants except such jurisdiction as was conferred by the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890. By S. 9 of that Act the jurisdiction of the Court is confined to infants ordinarily resident in the District. It is in their Lordships' opinion impossible to hold that infants who had months previously left India with a view to being educated in England and going to the University of Oxford were ordinarily resident in the District of Chingleput.

That judgment does not help the respondents inasmuch as in this case it has once been found with reference to S. 9 of the Act by a learned Judge of this Court that the minor in spite of her sojourn in Bahawalpur ordinarily resided in Multan for the purposes of S. 9, Guardians and Wards Act. That judgment is binding on this Court so far as it goes and we cannot go behind it in any manner. Moreover, in the case before their Lordships of the Privy Council the minors were of an age when they could exercise a volition of their own, while in the case before us the minor is less than four years of age and cannot be said to reside anywhere of her own accord. In 119 I C 423³ it was held by Dalip Singh J., that S. 12 did not apply after the appointment had been made inasmuch as it only contemplates interlocutory orders but with all respect we are inclined to hold that so long as the custody of a minor is not actually made over to the guardian the proceedings do not terminate and the applicability of S. 12 is not barred. A similar view of S. 12 was taken by a Division Bench of the Chief Court, Punjab, composed of Stogdon and Reid JJ. in a case reported as 13 P R 1897.⁴ Reid J. who delivered the judgment observed :

It cannot be the intention of the Legislature that the Court should have no power to make the minor over to the guardian appointed by it, and there is no reason why the provisions of S. 12 (1) should not be applicable after, as well as before, a guardian is appointed.

A Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court consisting of Chamier and Pig-gott JJ. in a case reported in 37 All 515⁵ put a similar construction on S. 12. The learned Judges remarked :

We are satisfied that the minor became a ward of the Court from the date of the order appointing Mt. U. K. to be her guardian and on general principles the District Judge became thereby empowered to enforce, for the benefit of the minor, all the provisions contained in the Guardians and Wards Act.

On the whole if the matter is to be dealt with as a technical question with reference strictly to the wording of Act 8 of 1890, the preferable view seems to us to be that the Court below could have taken action, and was bound to take action, under S. 12 of the Act. In view of the provisions of S. 24 of the Act to which we have already referred, the appointment of Mt. U. K. to the guardianship of the person of this minor ward, could not be regarded as complete until she had obtained effective possession of the person of the ward, so as to enable her to discharge the duties laid upon her by that section. It is quite true that S. 12 of the Act provides for the temporary custody of a minor in the interim between application being made to the Court and the final conclusion of the necessary proceedings for the appointment of a guardian of the person of the minor ; but as we have already pointed out those proceedings are really not complete until the guardian of the ward has obtained the custody of the minor. We think, therefore, that it was still open to the Court below to take action under S. 12 of the Act.

On the question of residence we are disposed to hold that the minor for purposes of the application made to the Subordinate Judge at Multan should be taken to have been residing for the time being in Multan. It is not denied that the paternal family house of the minor is in Multan and it is also not disputed that it was with the consent or connivance of the respondents that she was made over to Mt. Mehan Bibi after the death of the minor's father. In fact it was found by Skemp J. that

4. Dewan Chand v. Ghulam Hossain, (1897) 13 P R 1897.

5. Utma Kuar v. Bhagwanta Kuar, (1915) 2 A I R All 199=29 I C 416=37 All 515=13 A L J 742.

3. Indar Singh v. Kartar Kaur, (1929) 16 A I R Lah 487=119 I C 423.

Mt. Mehan Bibi was only a nominee of the respondents. It follows therefore that the custody of the minor was with the respondents; and although for their own convenience or to serve their own purpose they had made her over to a female relative of theirs who resides in Bahawalpur, the minor is still under the control of the respondents and can be recalled at any time they like. As long ago as 1889, it was held by a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court composed of Straight and Mahmood JJ. in 12 All 213⁶ that when a minor had been removed by the respondents from Allahabad to Lahore, the jurisdiction of the Allahabad Court had not been ousted. Straight J. in the course of his judgment observed, and very rightly too, if we may say so, with all respect:

I do not think that the fact that at the time of the trial in the Judge's Court the minor was out of the jurisdiction is of any material importance if upon the facts stated in the petition it appeared that the defendants were responsible for his removal. As I pointed out at the hearing, to place so narrow a construction upon the statute would render it practically inoperative and enable persons bent upon defeating it by successive removals of the person of a minor from one place to another to deprive any Court of jurisdiction. Apart from the terms of S. 17, Civil P. O., if the exigencies of the case required it I should have no hesitation in holding that the minor having been in the custody and guardianship of a person within the jurisdiction of the Judge of Allahabad, that officer under Act 9 of 1851 had full power to entertain and deal with the application of the appellant.

Similarly in a case reported in 17 W R 275⁷ Loch J. as a member of a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court held that the word 'residence' used in S. 5, Act 40 of 1858, is not the place where the minor may be dwelling at or about the time when the application for a certificate under the Act is made, but the paternal family house or the family residence of the minor in which every member of the family has an interest and in which they usually reside.

The other member of the Bench, Ainslie J. was of the opinion that though ordinarily that might be taken to be the meaning of the word, yet circumstances might arise in which it might be taken to mean otherwise. "Residence," as remarked in several English judgments which have been followed by the High Courts in India on several occasions, is an elastic word, of which an exhaustive definition cannot be given; it is differently construed according to the purpose for which enquiry is made into the meaning of the term; the sense in which it should be used is controlled by reference to the object. (See 48 Cal 577⁸ at p. 586.)

To place a restricted meaning in cases like the present on the words "for the time being ordinarily resides" so as to interpret them to mean where the minor actually is at the time of the application, would be tantamount to rendering nugatory all the provisions of the Guardians and Wards Act and to making the law helpless against the machination of recalcitrant persons who do not propose to part with the minor in favour of the appointed guardian. This is especially so in the Punjab where the British Indian States are so closely situated that any person would be able to flout the authority of the highest Tribunal of the land by merely walking with the minor into a neighbouring state. Any interpretation that leads to these results should therefore be tried to be avoided. As remarked in Maxwell on the Interpretation of Statutes at p. 198:

Where the language of a Statute, in its ordinary meaning and grammatical construction, leads to a manifest contradiction of the apparent purpose of the enactment, or to some inconvenience or absurdity, hardship or injustice, presumably not intended, a construction may be put upon it which modifies the meaning of the words and even the structure of the sentence.

Where the main object and intention of a statute are clear, it must not be reduced to a nullity by the draftsman's unskillfulness or ignorance of the law, except in a case of necessity, or the absolute intractability of the language used. The rules of grammar yield readily in such cases to those of commonsense.

The interpretation that we propose to place on the words of S. 4 (5) (b) (ii) is the only interpretation that can save this piece of legislation from palpable absurdity. The Statute was intended to protect minors from those persons who could not properly safeguard their interests and if they are permitted to avoid the orders passed by a competent Court by conveniently removing the minor out of the jurisdiction of the Court, the Statute would remain a dead letter and it could never have been the intention of the Legislature that this should be so. Orders of Courts of law must be enforced and if they can be enforced reasonably against persons who reside within the jurisdiction of the Courts, they should be so enforced

6. Sarat Chandra v. Forman, (1889) 12 All 218=1890 A W N 80.

7. Sheikh Mahomed Hossein v. Akbar Hossein, (1872) 17 W R 275.

8. Anilabala Chowdhurani v. Dharendra Nath, (1921) 8 A I R Cal 809=65 I O 57=48 Cal 577=25 C W N 178.

and the offenders should not be allowed to escape merely on the ground of an unreasonable technicality. Apart from this construction being equitable it is supported by authority. In 53 P L R 1902⁹ a minor born at Khan Koda where her mother was living then was brought by her to Delhi. After a few weeks the mother died and a relative of the minor with whom she was then residing applied to the Court at Delhi for appointment as guardian of the minor. Robertson J. remarked that treating the matter from an ordinary commonsense point of view, it must be held that the minor ordinarily resided in Khan Koda and that her presence in the petitioner's house was incidental and temporary only. We can similarly treat the minor's residence in Bahawalpur incidental and temporary and find that her permanent residence is at the house wherefrom she was removed by the respondents with the reprehensible object of evading the law and nullifying the orders of the Courts in British India.

There is another way of looking at the matter. A minor who is not delivered to the guardian after he has been appointed by a competent Court, can be treated as having left or been removed from the custody of the guardian under S. 25 (1), Guardians and Wards Act. As remarked by a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court in 49 All 773¹⁰ at p. 777:

The judicial interpretation has taken a merciful view of the matter so as to prevent the Courts being rendered powerless and has treated the custody mentioned in S. 25 as constructive custody.

We are in respectful agreement with the view expressed by the Allahabad High Court and consider that that is the only reasonable construction that can be put upon S. 25; otherwise there would be a lacuna in the Act which would tend to render useless and ineffective all the provisions of the Guardians and Wards Act relating to the person of the minor. If a minor is not present at the time of the order appointing the guardian and not physically handed over to the guardian at the time of his appointment, there would be no provision of law to enable the Court to do so afterwards.

We, therefore, hold that the Court at Multan had jurisdiction to entertain the application made to it under S. 12 (1) and S. 25, Guardians and Wards Act and should have called upon the respondents to produce the minor before it so that she could be made over to her mother who had been appointed guardian by this Court. S. 45 (1) (a), Guardians and Wards Act, provides ample means for enforcing an order under S. 12 and if the respondents refuse to produce the minor in Court in compliance with its order, they can even be sent to the civil jail and detained there so long as they do not obey the order of the Court; a disregard of an order under S. 25 also entails the same consequences.

We accordingly allow the appeal and direct the Subordinate Judge at Multan to make an order calling upon the respondents to produce the minor in Court in order to deliver her to the appellant, to fix a convenient date for that purpose and to visit the respondents after due inquiry with all the penalties provided by law if they fail to comply with his order. The appellant will get her costs from the respondents in all the Courts.

V.B.B./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 317

TEK CHAND J.

Asa Singh — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Hira Singh and others — Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1202 of 1936, Decided on 12th November 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Amritsar, D/. 19th June 1936.

Limitation Act (1908), S. 12 — Appeal — Limitation expiring when Court closed — Application for copies made on re-opening day — Time requisite for copies can be deducted.

Where the period prescribed for the presentation of appeal expires on a day on which the Court is closed and the appellant has not obtained copies of the decree and the judgment before the closing of the Court and applies for such copies on the date of the re-opening of the Court while his right of appeal still subsists he is entitled to the benefit of the time requisite for obtaining the copies, and if his appeal be presented before the expiry of that time, it is not barred by limitation: A I R 1930 Lah 216; A I R 1926 Lah 111; A I R 1926 Lah 121 and A I R 1928 Lah 655, Ref. [P 318 C 1]

Jawahar Singh Dhillon — for Appellant.

Judgment. — This is a second appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Amritsar, dismissing as time-barred an appeal presented by the present appellant in his Court against the decree of a Sub.

9. Mubarak Shah Khan v. Mt. Wagehulnisa, (1902) 53 P L R 1902.

10. Ulfat Bibi v. Bafati, (1927) 14 A I R All 581 = 102 I C 103 = 49 All 773 = 25 A L J 585.

ordinate Judge. The judgment and decree of the trial Court are dated 30th April 1936. The appeal was presented in the District Court on 4th June 1936, that is on the 35th day from the date of the decree. The period of limitation prescribed for such appeals is 30 days. This expired on 30th May 1936, which being the last Saturday was a holiday. The 31st May was a Sunday. On the day of re-opening, i. e. 1st June, the appellant made an application for copies of the judgment and decree. These copies were delivered to him on the 2nd. The 3rd June again was a holiday on account of the King's Birthday. The appeal was presented on 4th. The learned District Judge has held the appeal to be time-barred as the application for copies was put in "after expiry of the period of limitation," and therefore the time spent in obtaining these copies could not be allowed under S. 12.

This view of the learned Judge is clearly erroneous. It is settled law that where the period prescribed for the presentation of an appeal expires on a day on which the Court is closed and the appellant has not obtained copies of the decree and the judgment before the closing of the Court and applies for such copies on the date of the re-opening of the Court while his right of appeal still subsists, he is entitled to the benefit of time requisite for obtaining the copies, and if his appeal be presented before the expiry of that time, it is not barred by limitation: See 11 Lah 111;¹ 89 I C 437;² 89 I C 956³ and 112 I C 670.⁴ The learned Judge appears to have overlooked the provisions of S. 4, Lim. Act, which lays down that where the period of limitation prescribed for a suit or appeal expires on a day when the Court is closed, the suit or appeal may be instituted or preferred on the day that the Court re-opens. In this case therefore the appeal could have been filed on 1st June 1936 and on that day the appellant applied for copies of the judgment and decree of the Court below. The application was made when the right to appeal subsisted; therefore the appellant is entitled to deduct two days as "time requisite" for obtaining the copies. These two days expired on 3rd June which was a holiday. The appeal presented on the 4th was therefore within time.

I accept the appeal, set aside the judgment and decree of the learned District Judge and holding that the appeal presented by the appellant in his Court was within time, direct him to dispose of it on the merits in accordance with law. Court-fee on this appeal will be refunded, other costs will be costs in the cause. Counsel for the appellant has been directed to cause his client to appear before the District Judge, Amritsar on 20th December 1937 when a date for further proceedings in the appeal will be fixed.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 318

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.
Dasondhi Khan and others—Plaintiffs
—Appellants.

v.

Jan Mohammad and others—Defendants—Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 139 of 1937, Decided on 10th November 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Lyallpur at Sheikhpura, D/- 9th December 1936.

(a) Limitation Act (1908), Art. 120—Partition proceedings of shamilat land — Mode of partition sanctioned in accordance with areas of khewat holdings — Final order of partition made after several years — Suit by plaintiff in possession for declaration that partition should have been according to revenue assessed on holding—Final order for partition held gave plaintiff fresh cause of action—Suit within six years from that date held in time.

Proceedings for partition of shamilat land of certain village started in 1922. In that year a mutation was entered to the effect that the partition should be in accordance with the land revenue but this mutation was rejected by the revenue authorities in 1923. Thereafter the mode of partition was sanctioned in accordance with areas of khewat holdings but the proceedings then dragged on and the final order for partition was made in 1932. The revenue officer did not refer either party under S. 117, Punjab Land Revenue Act, to the Civil Courts for the decision of the question of title. The plaintiff who had all along been in possession brought a suit within six years of the final order for declaration that the partition should have been made according to the revenue assessed on the holdings :

Held that the final order for partition of 1932 threatened the possession of the plaintiff and thus gave him a fresh cause of action. The suit

1. Mt. Attril v. Ram Kishan, (1930) 17 A I R Lah 216=120 I C 169=11 Lah 111=31 P L R 356.

2. Naman v. Gurditta, (1926) 13 A I R Lah 121=89 I C 437.

3. Megh Baran Singh v. Rama Das, (1926) 13 A I R All 111=89 I C 956.

4. Ram Chand v. Ram Rattan, (1928) 15 A I R Lah 655=112 I C 670.

brought within six years of that date was within time: A I R 1933 Lah 53 and 122 P L R 1910, Rel. on. [P 319 C 2]

(b) Words and Phrases — "Hasab rasad khewat" — Phrase when used in revenue records in reference to partition of shamilat area means "according to revenue assessed."

The phrase "hasab rasad khewat" when used in a revenue record in reference to a partition of the shamilat area, and when revenue was not fluctuating but fixed, means "according to the revenue assessed on the holding" and not "according to the area of the khewat holding": A I R 1935 Lah 446, Rel. on. [P 319 C 2; P 320 C 1]

Mohammad Amin Khan —

for Appellants.

Diwan Mehr Chand—for Respondents.

Addison J.— The shamilat land of village Goil has been partitioned by the revenue authorities in accordance with the areas of khewat holdings. The plaintiffs sued for a declaration that the partition should have been made according to the revenue assessed on the holdings at the settlement of 1911-12. The trial Court held that partition should be according to areas and not according to land revenue and also that the suit was barred by time. On appeal the District Judge held that the shamilat land should be divided in accordance with the land revenue which was being paid by the co-sharers at the time of the last settlement of 1911-12, but as he agreed with the trial Court that the suit was barred by time, he dismissed the appeal. Against this decision the plaintiffs have preferred this second appeal while the defendants have put in cross-objections with respect to the decision of the District Judge on the first point.

Proceedings for partition started as early as 1922. In that year a mutation was entered to the effect that the partition should be in accordance with the land revenue but this mutation was rejected by the revenue authorities on 27th May 1923. Thereafter the mode of partition was sanctioned in accordance with areas on 21st September 1923 but the proceedings then dragged on and the final partition order was not made till 26th July 1932. It has not been shown that after this order, which is a final one so far as the revenue authorities are concerned, possession has been given to the various parties in accordance with the order. It may be pointed out that this is not a case where the Revenue Officer referred either party under the provisions of S. 117, Land Revenue Act to the Civil Courts for the decision of this question of title. If he had done so, it would probably be correct that this suit would be barred.

The case for the defendants is that the contention of the plaintiff was rejected by the revenue authorities on 27th May 1923 when the first mutation was rejected and also on 21st December 1923 when the mode of partition was sanctioned by the revenue authorities in accordance with areas held. The Article applicable is 120 of Soh. 1, Lim. Act, which gives six years to sue from the date when the right to sue accrues; if six years are counted from 21st September 1923, the suit is time-barred.

On the other hand, the argument on behalf of the plaintiff appellants is that they remained all along in possession and that it was not necessary for them to sue till their possession was threatened or disturbed. Apparently their possession has not even yet been disturbed but it was certainly threatened when the final order of partition was made on 26th July 1932. The suit is well within time if that date be taken and in fact it would seem that they could have waited even longer till their possession was actually disturbed; in any case the immediate threat to their possession afforded by the final order of 26th July 1932 gave them a cause of action. This contention of the plaintiffs must prevail. It was held in A I R 1933 Lah 53¹ that the plaintiff need not bring his declaratory suit from the time of the first denial of his title, especially where the plaintiff is in possession of the property. . . . A fresh cause of action accrues to the plaintiff when he has his possession of the property disturbed.

Again a Division Bench of the Punjab Chief Court held in 122 P L R 1910² that a suit for a declaration of his title to immovable property by a person in possession as proprietor is not barred if brought within six years from the time when the defendant attempts to oust him from the lands, although a right to sue the defendant, who had been recorded as owner of the Settlement Record, had already accrued and become barred.

The case before us is even more simple than this case and obviously the suit was not barred by limitation.

As regards the other question involved in the appeal, namely, the interpretation of the words 'hasab rasad khewat,' we would refer to A I R 1935 Lah 446,³

1. Shankar Das v. Mt. Dhan Devi, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 53=145 I C 241.

2. Khem Singh v. Kesar Singh, (1910) 122 P L R 1910=7 I C 528.

3. Sunder v. Inder Singh, (1935) 22 A I R Lah 446=159 I C 366.

a decision of a Division Bench of this Court, where the subject was discussed at length. It was held that the phrase 'hasab rasad khewat,' when used in a revenue record in reference to a partition of the shamilat area, always meant 'according to the revenue assessed on the holding' and not 'according to the area of the khewat holding' but that this rule was subject to an exception in favour of villages of a peculiar type, where it would be unfair and inequitable to interpret it differently, as for example in riverain villages where the land revenue was fluctuating and the areas held by the various proprietors might or might not be under the river. This is not a riverain village, but it is true that the revenue has been fluctuating since after the Settlement of 1911-12. Up to the Settlement of 1911-12 the land revenue was fixed. It would obviously be unfair to interpret the phrase 'hasab rasad khewat' as meaning 'according to the revenue assessed on the holdings, at the present day; but that argument does not apply to the Settlement Record of 1911-12 when the land revenue was fixed. The entry as regards the shamilat land in the village at that Settlement was 'hasab rasad khewat'. It is true that after this Settlement when the revenue became fluctuating the same term was retained and the shamilat continued to be shown as held 'hasab rasad khewat', but in our judgment it should be held that in the circumstances what was meant was that the shamilat should be partitioned according to the revenue assessed on the holdings in the Settlement of 1911-12 as was held by the District Judge. There is no reason in this case to depart from the proper meaning of the phrase which is 'according to the revenue assessed on the holdings.'

We therefore accept the appeal, set aside the decrees of the Courts below and decree the plaintiffs' suit to the effect that the shamilat of village Goil should be partitioned according to the revenue assessed at the Settlement of 1911-12. The other portion of the relief claimed in the plaint was negatived by the Courts below and the finding was not attacked before us. In the circumstances of this case, we direct that the parties should bear their own costs throughout. The cross objections are dismissed but without costs.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 320

COLDSTREAM J.

Kartara and others
Accused — Petitioners.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Revn. No. 1066 of 1937, Decided on 21st October 1937, reported by Sess. Judge, Ludhiana, D/. 20th July 1937.

Opium Act (1878), S. 9 — Joint criminal possession is possible and depends upon evidence of each case — Opium found in house occupied by three brothers living jointly — Eldest brother alone held should be convicted.

There may be a joint criminal possession of an excisable article by several persons. Each case must be decided on the evidence; A I R 1932 All 441 and A I R 1933 Lah 148, Rel. on.

[P 321 C 1]

Certain quantity of opium was discovered in a house occupied by three brothers living jointly:

Held that in the circumstances of the case the eldest brother alone should be convicted.

[P 321 C 1]

V. N. Sethi for Advocate-General —

for the Crown.

Report. — The case against the petitioners was that on the search of their house, 13 tolas of opium were recovered from a wooden almirah standing along the southern wall of the house. The three petitioners are real brothers, and they jointly live in that house. Kartar Singh is the eldest brother. Under the circumstances, only Kartar Singh could have been convicted, as it is he who can be called the house master. The convictions of Sardara and Bhajna cannot therefore be upheld. On the other hand, if it be assumed that all the three brothers, who are grown-up young men, are jointly the house-masters, the joint recovery against them could not be used against any of them. I would consequently recommend the case to the High Court for setting aside the conviction of Sardara and Bhajna and for the setting aside of the conviction of Kartara as well, if found necessary. The fine has been paid.

Order of the High Court

Having regard to the circumstances of this particular case, I accept the recommendation of the learned Sessions Judge, set aside the conviction of Sardara and Bhajna and acquit them. I do not interfere as regards Kartara. Fines if paid by Sardara and Bhajna to be refunded. The referring note of the learned Sessions Judge appears to indicate that he is under the impression that there can in no case be joint criminal possession where an excisable article or article the possession of which is an offence is recovered from a house or place jointly possessed by several persons. If this is his view I point out that it is not correct. Each case must be decided on the evidence and it is obvious that as a fact several persons may be in joint criminal possession of an article. For instance, if an illicit still or a quantity of Iahan, the smell of which cannot be disguised, is found in a room it is obvious that all the persons occupying that room must be presumed to know of its presence. On the other hand, if a small article is discovered hidden in the thatch of a roof, there might be no such presumption. In 54 All 411¹ it was held by the Allahabad Court that where an unlicensed gun had been found in the house of a joint Hindu family there would be a presumption that the gun was in possession and control of all the adult members of the family and it would be for those persons to show that they were not in possession of the gun. That there may be joint criminal possession was pointed out by a Division Bench of this Court in A I R 1933 Lah 148,² a case in which two men found driving stolen animals were both presumed to have been in possession of them.

D.S./R.K.

Order accordingly.

1. Emperor v. Sukhdas, (1932) 19 A I R All 441 = 1932 Cr C 561 = 139 I C 153 = 33 Cr L J 719 = 54 All 411 = 1932 A L J 570.
2. Emperor v. Diwan Singh, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 148 = 1933 Cr C 270 = 143 I C 463 = 34 Cr L J 604 = 34 P L R 576.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 321

TEK CHAND J.

Ram Narain Kaul — Plaintiff —
Petitioner.

v.

Mt. Bishan Rani and others —
Defendants — Respondents.

Civil Revision Petn. No. 565 of 1937, Decided on 16th November 1937, from order of the Senior Sub-Judge, Delhi, D/- 21st June 1937.

(a) Hindu Law — Partition — Court-fee —
Parties in joint possession of joint properties — Court-fee, held, should be Rs. 10 only and not ad valorem.

Where the suit was one for partition of properties, alleged to belong to a joint Hindu family, of which the parties were stated to be members and it was stated that the properties in dispute were in joint possession of the parties :
1938 L/41 & 42

Held that the court-fee payable on such a plaint was Rs. 10 only and not ad valorem on the share of the plaintiff in the properties in question : A I R 1934 Lah 563 (F B), Rel. on. [P 322 C 1]

(b) Partition — Decree for — Stamp paper necessary.

A decree for partition is an instrument of partition and as such has to be engrossed on stamp-paper. [P 322 C 2]

Indar Dev and R. C. Soni —

for Petitioner.

Bishan Narain and Shiv Narain —

for Respondents.

Order.—This is a petition for revision of the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Delhi, dated 21st June 1937, passed in a suit which has been pending since 2nd January 1924. The parties to this litigation are related to each other as brothers or their descendants. One of the brothers, Raj Narain Kaul, instituted the suit on 2nd January 1924 alleging that he and the defendants jointly owned and possessed the properties in dispute and that he wanted his share to be separated. He accordingly brought a suit for partition. A prayer for accounts was also made but was subsequently withdrawn. The plaint, in so far as it related to the prayer for partition, was valued for purposes of jurisdiction at Rs. 5100 on which a court-fee of Rs. 10 only was paid. Soon after the institution of the suit, the Subordinate Judge held that the proper court-fee payable was on Rupees 5100. Accordingly the plaintiff was directed to make good the deficiency, which he did within the time fixed by the Court. The suit proceeded and on 24th December 1925 a preliminary decree was passed. On appeal the matter was compromised and in accordance with the compromise the preliminary decree passed by the lower Court was modified and the case sent back to the trial Court for taking proceedings for passing a final decree. The Subordinate Judge appointed a local Commissioner to suggest the mode of partition. The local Commissioner made a lengthy enquiry and submitted his suggestions for partition. These were accepted, with certain modifications, by Sayed Nasir Ali Shah, Senior Subordinate Judge on 28th June 1935, and he directed that a decree be prepared accordingly. Nothing further appears to have been done till 20th March 1937, when the plaintiff presented an application under O. 20, R. 18 and S. 151, Civil P. C., praying that the decree be drawn up in accordance with the operative portion of the local Commissioner's report as modified by the order of the Court dated 28th June 1935. He also stated that as in the final decree the shares of the parties have to be specified and it is to be an instrument of title between the parties and as such required to be stamped under Art. 45, Stamp Act, he attached with the application a non-judicial stamp of the value of Rs. 300. Subsequently, on 21st June 1937 the plaintiff filed another non-judicial stamp of the value of Rs. 15 to make up the deficiency in the stamp duty. The defendant-judgment-debtor objected that the decree could not be prepared until the plaintiff had first paid ad valorem court-fee on Rs. 19,943, which was the value of his share as fixed by Syed Nasir Ali Shah in his order of 28th June 1935. The learned Senior Subordinate Judge, Mr. Shaukat Husain, has upheld this objection and has held that the proper court-fee payable on the plaint was Rs. 1162 and as the plaintiff had already paid (in 1935) court-fee of the value of Rs. 438-12-0 he must make good the deficiency to the extent of Rs. 724-8-0 and that until this was done no decree-sheet could be prepared.

After hearing counsel and examining the record, I have no doubt that this order is erroneous and must be set aside. The suit was one for partition of properties, alleged to belong to a joint family, of which the plaintiff and the defendants were stated to be members. In the plaint, it was stated that the properties in dispute were in joint possession of the parties. It has now been held authoritatively by a Full Bench of this Court that the court-fee payable on such a plaint is Rs. 10 only and not ad valorem on the share of the plaintiff in the properties in question: see 15 Lah 531.¹ It is no doubt true that before the Full Bench decision was given in 1934, there was a conflict of rulings on this point, and it appears that following some of the earlier rulings, the Subordinate Judge, who was dealing with this case in 1925, had ordered that ad valorem court-fee be paid on Rs. 5100, at which the claim had been valued by the plaintiff himself for purposes of jurisdiction, and in accordance with that order the plaintiff had paid a court-fee of Rs. 438-12-0. This view of the law however has since been declared to be erroneous and the proper court-fee payable on such suits has been held to be Rs. 10 only. In these circumstances the plaintiff, who has already paid much more than he was legally required to do, could not be ordered to pay ad valorem court-fee on the value of his share which has since been determined to be over Rs. 19,000. The order of the learned Judge is clearly erroneous and cannot be maintained.

I therefore accept the petition for revision, set aside the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge dated 21st June 1937, and direct him to prepare a decree in accordance with the order of his predecessor, Syed Nasir Ali Shah, dated 28th June 1935. A decree for partition is an instrument of partition (S. 2 (15), Stamp Act) and as such has to be engrossed on stamp-paper. The plaintiff has already filed in Court stamp of the value of Rs. 315. The Senior Subordinate Judge will see if this is sufficient according to Art. 45, Stamp Act. Parties shall bear their own costs of this revision petition. Both counsel have been directed to cause their clients to appear before the Senior Subordinate Judge, Delhi, on 20th December 1937, when a date for further proceedings will be fixed.

B.D./R.K.

*Order accordingly.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 322

BHIDE J.

Badri Pershad and another—Plaintiffs—Appellants.

v.

Banwari Lal, Owner and Proprietor of firm Ram Sukh Dass-Banwari Lal—Defendants—Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 581 of 1937, Decided on 25th October 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Hissar, D/- 6th April 1937.

Punjab Regulation of Accounts Act (1 of 1930), S. 2 (9)—Money-lender is not trader.

A money-lender does not fall within the definition of a "trader" as given in Act 1 of 1930.

[P 322 C 2 ; P 323 C 1]

Shamair Chand—for Appellants.

J. R. Agnihotri for Pt. Nanak Chand and Pt. Prem Chand—for Respondents.

Judgment.—The only point for consideration in this second appeal is whether a "money-lender" can be said to fall within the definition of a "trader" as given in Act 1 of 1930. The appellants' contention was that he does, but on looking at the definition, it seems to my mind clear that he does not. No authority in point is cited. I consider the lower Court's decision on this point to be correct.

1. Asa Ram v. Jagan Nath, (1934) 21 A I R Lah 563=150 I C 994=15 Lah 531=36 P L R 48 (F B).

As regards cross-objections, the points raised are questions of fact which cannot be agitated in the second appeal. I dismiss the appeal and cross-objections with costs.

V.B.B./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 323

BLACKER J.

Umrao Singh and another
Accused — Petitioners.

v.

Kanwar Lal — Respondent.

Criminal Revn. Case No. 1443 of 1937, Decided on 20th December 1937, from order of Addl. Dist. Magistrate, Delhi, D/- 30th September 1937.

Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 133 — Magistrate ordering party to remove obstruction or appear before him to have order set aside or modified — Party appearing before him — Magistrate must decide case himself — He cannot send it to other Magistrate for disposal.

Where a Magistrate orders under S. 133 a person causing obstruction or nuisance either to remove the nuisance or to appear before him, and to move to have the order set aside or modified, and the parties so appear before him, it is incumbent on him to proceed with the case himself and he has no power to send it at that stage for disposal to another Magistrate. [P 324 C 1]

Bishan Narain — for Petitioners.

Shamair Chand — for Respondent.

Facts. — Kanwar Lal, Jat of Shahpur, made an application under S. 133, Criminal P. C. His allegation was that Umrao Singh and Bhuru Mal, respondents, had made a platform in the village encroaching on the public way. He therefore asked for the removal of the platform. The application was presented to the Resident Magistrate, New Delhi, being the ilaqa Magistrate. He dealt with the application and after recording some evidence ordered the respondent to remove the platform by 27th October 1936 or to appear before him and show cause why the platform should not be removed. Acting in accordance with these instructions, the two respondents appeared before the Court and put in their objections. The Resident Magistrate did not hear the objections but ordered that the case be forwarded for final disposal to the Tahsildar, Delhi, who exercises the powers of a Magistrate of the second class. The Tahsildar then heard the case, recorded evidence and passed final orders on 11th June 1937. His finding was that the platform was an old one and that it would serve the purpose if the width of the platform be decreased by two feet. He ordered accordingly. Against that order an appeal was filed to me. I accepted the appeal and held that the Tahsildar had acted without jurisdiction and that his function was to hold an enquiry and make a report to the ilaqa Magistrate. I accordingly directed him to send the papers back to the Resident Magistrate with his report. He did so. But when the papers went before the Resident Magistrate the respondents challenged his jurisdiction to proceed further in these proceedings. The Resident Magistrate has therefore forwarded the papers to me and pointed out that the Tahsildar disposed of the case according to the directions that were given to him by his predecessor.

It was not originally brought to my notice that the case had been sent for final disposal to the Tahsildar and hence my order of 6th August was passed under a misapprehension. But even if it was, the order was wrong for the reason that the Tahsildar's order purported to be one passed under S. 133, Criminal P. C., and, as such no appeal lay. The only course open was a revision. Under the Code of 1861, an order under this section could direct a person against whom an order was issued to appear only before the Magistrate who issued the order. But under the present Code the order may direct such person to appear before the Magistrate who issues the order or any other Magistrate of the 1st or 2nd class, except where the parties demand a jury under S. 135, in which case the matter can be disposed of only by the Magistrate issuing the conditional order and not by any other Magistrate. In this case actually there was no definite order passed by the ilaqa Magistrate. His order only amounts to the fact that the parties should either demolish the chabutra by a certain date or appear and show cause against the demolition. They did appear but apart from their objections being received no further orders were passed that actual demolition should take place and, unless such an order was given, it was impossible for the respondents "to move to have the order set aside or modified". There was no existing order and in these circumstances the Tahsildar acted irregularly. I therefore recommend that my order of 6th August 1937 as well as the order of the Tahsildar of 11th June 1937 be set aside and the file returned to the Resident Magistrate to dispose of the case according to law.

Order. — Section 133, Criminal P. C. empowers a competent Magistrate on receiving information of an unlawful obstruction or nuisance to order the person causing such obstruction or nuisance to appear before himself or some other Magistrate of the 1st or 2nd class and move to have the order set aside or modified. In this case the learned first class Magistrate after hearing some evidence ordered the respondents to appear before him. On their appearance before him, he did not hear the case but sent it for final disposal to the Tahsildar of Delhi. This procedure appears to me to be illegal. According to the section, the original order to the respondents should have been to appear before himself or the second class Magistrate. After the order to appear before himself was given, he should have proceeded with the case, and as far as I can see from the Code he had no power at that stage to send it for disposal to another Magistrate. I therefore accept the recommendation of the learned Additional District Magistrate, Delhi, set aside his own order of 6th August and also the order of the Tahsildar dated 11th June 1937 and direct that the papers be returned to the 1st class Resident Magistrate to dispose of them according to law.

R.M./R.K.

*Order accordingly.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 324

BHIDE J.

Shah Niwaz and another — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

Ghulam Shah and others — Defendants
— Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 403 of 1937, Decided on 25th October 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Attock at Campbellpur, D/- 5th January 1937.

Adverse Possession—Waste land—Construction of temporary chhappar surrounded by ordinary enclosure of bushes on land lying waste does not amount to adverse possession.

Mere construction of a temporary chhappar surrounded by an ordinary enclosure of bushes, on land lying waste is not sufficient in law to establish adverse possession: 16 Bom 338, Foll.; A I R 1934 Lah 684; A I R 1927 Lah 416; A I R 1929 Lah 34 and A I R 1929 Lah 526, Disting. [P 324 O 2]

M. L. Puri — *for Appellants.*M. C. Mahajan and Qabul Chand —
for Respondents.

Judgment. — The plaintiff sued in this case for possession of six marlas of land forming part of a large khasra No. 1188. The trial Court dismissed the suit and the decision was confirmed on appeal by the learned District Judge. From this decision plaintiff has preferred a second appeal. The learned District Judge found that the plaintiff was the owner of the land in suit but held that the defendants had acquired title by adverse possession over 12 years.

The learned counsel for the plaintiff has challenged this finding on the ground that the defendant had only constructed some temporary chhappars on the land which was lying waste and that such structures are not sufficient in law to establish adverse possession. In support of this contention he relied on 16 Bom 338.¹ The learned counsel for the respondent did not dispute the correctness of the principle laid down in the latter ruling but he contended that in the present case the chhappars had been surrounded by an enclosure and in the circumstances adverse possession was rightly held to be established. In support of this contention he relied on A I R 1934 Lah 684,² 102 I C 9,³ *A I R 1929 Lah 34*⁴ and A I R 1929 Lah 526.⁵ But in two of these cases, the enclosure was of a permanent character in the shape of a wall. In the other two cases the nature of the enclosure is not clear from the reports. In the present case the enclosure was an ordinary one consisting of bushes: one of the chhappars was inside the enclosure while the other was outside the enclosure: one of the enclosures was used by the defendant himself while the other enclosure was used for keeping his sheep.

In my opinion, in the circumstances of the case there was no evidence showing that the defendant intended to appropriate the land permanently to his own use. The land in dispute is close to the field of the defendants and is in the midst of a large

1. Framji Cursetji v. Goculdas Madhowaji, (1892) 16 Bom 338.

2. Mt. Aisha Bibi v. Allah Baksh, (1934) 21 A I R Lah 684=154 I C 919=37 P L R 351.

3. Kunj Lal v. Ramji Lal, (1927) 14 A I R Lah 416=102 I C 9=28 P L R 217.

4. Nand Lal v. Lahri, (1929) 16 A I R Lah 34=111 I C 533.

5. Devi Ditta Ram v. Waryam, (1929) 16 A I R Lah 526=117 I C 81.

khasra number which was lying waste. I therefore hold that the case comes within the rule laid down in 16 Bom 338.¹ I accordingly accept the appeal and grant the plaintiff a decree for the land in dispute. In view of all the circumstances I leave the parties to bear their own costs throughout.

R.M./R.K.

*Appeal allowed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 325

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Rameshwar Das—Creditor—Appellant.
v.Official Receiver, Delhi, and another,
Debtors and others — Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 60 of 1937,
Decided on 16th December 1937, from Judgment of Din Mohammad J., D/- 5th
March 1937.

(a) Lahore High Court Rules and Orders — Vol. 5, Chap. 1-A, R. 4 — Judges sitting in Letters Patent appeal have no jurisdiction to grant extension under R. 4 in case of appeal barred by limitation.

Extension of time in case of a Letters Patent appeal filed after the period of limitation under R. 4 of Chap. 1-A, Vol. 5 of the Rules and Orders of the Lahore High Court, can only be granted by Bench admitting the appeal. Judges sitting in Letters Patent appeal are not the "the admitting Bench" within the meaning of R. 4 and they have no jurisdiction to grant an extension in an appeal before them fixed for hearing: L. P. A.
Nos. 99 of 1936 and 137 of 1936, Foll. [P 325 C 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 20—Appeal against respondent barred by time — He is not "person interested in result of appeal" — His name cannot be added under O. 41, R. 20.

Where an appeal against a respondent has become barred by time he ceases to be "a person who is interested in the result of the appeal" within the meaning of O. 41, R. 20 and his name cannot be subsequently added as a respondent under O. 41, R. 20: A I R 1927 P C 252, Rel. on. [P 326 C 1]

(c) Appeal — Memorandum of appeal — No memorandum of appeal, whether in Letters Patent or in any other appeal is complete unless it mentions names of all parties against whom relief is sought.

No memorandum of appeal, whether in a Letters Patent appeal or in any other appeal can be considered to be complete unless it mentions the names of all the parties against whom relief is sought. There is no reason for distinction in this respect between a Letters Patent appeal or any other appeal. [P 326 C 1]

J. L. Kapur and M. C. Sud — *for Appellant.*J. N. Aggarwal — *for Respondent No. 2.*Bhagwat Dayal — for Respondent No. 1

*(Official Receiver).*Mela Ram — for Respondents Nos. 8, *10 and 11.*Shamair Chand — for Respondent No. 43
(Bhondu Mal).

Young C. J. — This is an appeal filed under Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent against the decision of a single Judge of this Court.
The facts shortly are that Lala Ganga Sahai, an insolvent, filed a proposal for composition in satisfaction of his debts.
After notice to the creditors who did not agree to the suggested composition, the learned District Judge decided that the composition was good and he annulled the insolvency. Against this an appeal was filed in this Court against the order of the learned District Judge. The learned Single Judge of this Court dismissed that appeal and against that decision this appeal is filed.
A preliminary objection was taken by counsel for the respondents that the name of Lala Ganga Sahai, the insolvent, had been omitted from the memorandum of appeal to the Letters Patent Bench, and that the period of limitation had run against the appellants for lodging an appeal against him. Counsel for the appellant first contended that under R. 4 of Ch. 1-A, Vol. 5, of the Rules and Orders of this Court we can extend the time. The Rule runs as follows :

No memorandum of appeal preferred under
Cl. 10 of the Letters Patent shall be entertained if presented after the expiration of thirty days from the date of the judgment appealed from, unless the admitting Bench in its discretion, for good cause shown, grants further time for the presentation.

The answer to that point is clear. Such an extension can only be granted by the Bench admitting the appeal, and according to the decisions of this Court in Letters Patent Appeals Nos. 99 of 1936 and 137 of 1936 it is clear that we are not "the admitting Bench" within the meaning of R. 4 and have no jurisdiction to grant an extension.

The second alternative point was that the application was under O. 41, R. 20,
Civil P. C., which reads as follows :

Where it appears to the Court at the hearing that any person who was a party to the suit in the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, but who has not been made a party to the appeal, is interested in the result of the appeal, the Court may adjourn the hearing to a future day to be fixed by the Court and direct that such person be made a respondent.

Counsel therefore contends that he is entitled to have the name of Lala Ganga Sahai now added as a respondent. This point has been, in our opinion, conclusively dealt with by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 6 Rang 29.¹ Their Lordships said as follows:

That rule empowers the Court to make such party a respondent when it appears to the Court that "he is interested in the result of the appeal". Giving these words their natural meaning — and they cannot be disregarded — it seems impossible to say that in this case the defendants against whom these suits have been dismissed, and as against whom the right of appeal has become barred, are interested in the result of the appeal filed by the plaintiff against the other defendants.

Giving effect to the wordings of their Lordships, it is clear that the appeal as against Lala Ganga Sahai has become time-barred: he therefore is not interested in the result of the appeal and therefore O. 41, R. 20, Civil P. C., is inapplicable, and his name cannot now be added as a respondent.

Counsel lastly contended that the ordinary rules of law do not apply to Letters Patent appeals for which the law is self-contained: that the appeal in a Letters Patent appeal is an appeal in the High Court itself—a domestic affair—and that when an appeal was filed before a single Judge of this Court and the name of Lala Ganga Sahai was in that memorandum of appeal, it was unnecessary thereafter in a Letters Patent appeal to set out the names of the respondents again in a new memorandum of appeal, and that therefore there is before the Court a proper memorandum of appeal in which Lala Ganga Sahai must be treated as a respondent. We cannot accept this argument. In AIR 1925 Lah 392² it was decided that a Letters Patent appeal cannot be proceeded with if the necessary parties to the appeal are not impleaded. It is argued that in this case the point taken now was not taken or discussed. Be that as it may, we are of opinion that no memorandum of appeal, whether in a Letters Patent appeal or any other appeal can be considered to be complete unless it mentions the names of the parties against whom relief is sought. There is no real reason, in our opinion, for making any distinction between a Letters Patent appeal and any other appeal. We therefore must come to the conclusion that the name of the party who is most vitally interested having been omitted from the memorandum of appeal, and it being impossible for us to give any relief in this appeal without affecting the accrued rights of Lala Ganga Sahai, this appeal must be dismissed with costs.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 326

DALIP SINGH J.

Messrs. Uttar Chand Kapur and Sons — Judgment-debtors — Appellants.

v.

Messrs. Sayad Hamid Ali and Syed Imtiaz Ali, Proprietors of Firm known as S. Mumtaz Ali and Sons — Decree-holders — Respondents.

Exn. First Appeal No. 197 of 1937, Decided on 28th October 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Lahore, D/- 20th February 1937.

* (a) Execution — Step-in-aid—Application for execution is not necessary.

There can be a step-in-aid of execution without any application for execution having ever been made at all: 17 Cal 53, held no longer good law. [P 327 C 2]

* (b) Court-fees Act (1870), S. 11—Court-fee ordered to be paid by decree not paid—Decree although not executable, yet application for execution is maintainable.

The mere fact that court-fee had not been paid on a decree granted does not prevent the decree-holder from making an application for execution and all that S. 11 provides is that the decree should not be executed: 34 Bom 189 and A I R 1930 Nag 241, Rel. on. [P 327 C 2]

Bishan Nath — for Appellants.

Ghulam Mohy-ud-din —

for Respondents.

Judgment.—In this case the firm known as S. Mumtaz Ali and Sons, Publishers, sued the firm known as Messrs. Uttar Chand Kapur and Sons claiming an injunction against the defendant firm for infringing copyright; secondly, for an account of the profits derived by sale of books in which the copyright had been infringed, and thirdly for damages. The Court granted the plaintiff a decree for an injunction restraining the defendant from infringing copyright in certain portions of the book. On the second relief a decree for "damages" amounting to Rs. 259-12-10 was granted subject to the plaintiff's making up the necessary court-fee, namely on the difference between Rs. 250 and Rupees 259-12-10. It also ordered the defendant

1. Chockaligam Chetty v. Seethai Ache, (1927) 14 A I R P C 252=107 I C 237=55 I A 7=6 Rang 29 (P C).

2. Ohajju Ram v. Singh Ram, (1925) 12 A I R Lah 392=89 I C 298=26 P L R 150.

to extract from such copies of the books as it had in its possession those portions which infringed the copyright and hand them over to the plaintiff. No decree was given for damages as such. This decree was passed on 29th March 1933.

On 11th April 1933, the defendant firm applied to the Court that it had extracted the offending portions from the books in its possession and asked for leave to deposit the same in Court for handing over to the decree-holder. On 16th June 1933, the decree-holder applied that the defendant should make a proper list of the number of books from which it had extracted the offending portions so that the decree-holder might check the same and give a proper receipt. The final order on this application was dated 12th October 1933. On 23rd September 1936 the decree-holder firm applied for execution of the money decree that it had obtained and two questions arose for decision before the executing Court; one was that the decree-holder had not made up the deficiency in court-fee and the connected question as to whether he should be allowed to do so now. The second question, which is raised in the present appeal, was whether the present application for execution was barred by reason of having been made more than three years after the passing of the decree. On the question of the court-fee, the Court allowed the decree-holder to make up the deficiency holding that the decree-holder had been misled by the use of the word "damages" and that this was a proper case for extending time and allowing the decree-holder to make up the deficiency in court-fee. This point has not been argued before me. On the question of limitation, the Court held that a step-in-aid of execution of the decree had been taken on 16th June 1933 and the final order thereon was not passed till 12th October 1933 and therefore under Art. 182 (5), Limitation Act, the present execution application was within time.

The judgment-debtor has come in appeal and his counsel has contended firstly that there can be no step-in-aid of execution without at least one application to execute having been previously made. For this proposition he cites 17 Cal 53.¹ That ruling however only lays down that there cannot be a step-in-aid of execution unless there is an application for execution already pending. This proposition has been overruled in all the High Courts, so far as I am aware, and is no longer good law. The ruling does not uphold the contention urged namely that there cannot be a step-in-aid of execution without any application for execution having ever been made at all. I see no force in this contention.

The next contention urged was that as court-fee had not been paid, there was really no decree for Rs. 259-12-10 until the court-fee was paid and that therefore any step-in-aid of execution of the executable portion of the decree could not be a step-in-aid of execution of that portion of the decree which was not executable at the time when the step-in-aid in question was taken and consequently could not aid in extending limitation for that portion of the decree. This contention however assumes two propositions, namely that until the court-fee was paid, there could be no application for execution of the decree or that there could be no step-in-aid of execution of that decree. The learned counsel for the respondent has cited 34 Bom 189,² where it is laid down that the mere fact that court-fee had not been paid on a decree granted did not prevent the decree-holder from making an application for execution and that all that S. 11, Court-fees Act, provided was that the decree should not be executed. This ruling was followed in 122 I C 438³ and appears to me to lay down the law correctly. While it is correct enough that the decree for Rs. 259-12-10 could not be executed on the date in question namely 16th June 1933, yet the decree was one and an application for execution could have been made not only of the executable portion of the decree but also of the non-executable portion of the decree. I am unable to hold therefore that a step-in-aid of execution could not have been taken or to limit the step-in-aid of execution to that portion of the decree which was executable on that date. I would therefore hold that the learned District Judge was correct in holding that the present application for execution was not barred by limitation and I would dismiss the appeal with costs.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

2. Nathubhai Kusandas v. Pranjivan Lalchand, (1910) 34 Bom 189=5 I C 601=12 Bom L R 13.

3. Bhuribi v. Rahmatbi, (1930) 17 A I R Nag 241=122 I C 438.

1. Paroosh Ram Das v. Kali Paddo Banerjee, (1890) 17 Cal 53.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 328

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Shankar Das and others — Plaintiffs —
Appellants.

v.

Official Receiver and others —
Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeals Nos. 172 and 622 of 1930, Decided on 22nd October 1937, from decree of the Senior Sub-Judge, Lahore, D/- 21st October 1929.

(a) Hindu Law—Joint family—Income received by coparcener after date of disruption but for period prior to it—Income becomes accretion to joint property—Coparcener is liable to account for it.

If the income received by a coparcener after the date of disruption relates to a period prior to that date, it would be treated as an accumulation for accretion to the joint family property and he would be liable to account for it: A I R 1916 Cal 500, Rel. on. [P 330 C 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 40, Rr. 1, 4—Non- rendition of accounts by third party during Receiver's administration is not appealable.

Neither Rule 1 nor R. 4 of O. 40 has any application to accounts from a third party relating to the period of a receiver's administration and the non- rendition of accounts by third party during that period is not appealable under any of these provisions of law. [P 330 C 2]

(c) Partnership—Suit for accounts and dissolution—Interest should be from date of final decree and not from date of plaint.

A decree in a suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts should provide for payment of interest upon the amount due only from the date of the final decree by which the amount (if any) is found due and not from the date of the plaint: A I R 1930 P C 185, Foll. [P 330 C 2]

J. N. Aggarwal and Barkat Ali — for Appellants.

Mehr Chand Mahajan, Vishnu Datta and Durga Das Jain for Radha Kishan — for Respondents.

Din Mohammad J. — This judgment will dispose of Civil Appeals Nos. 172 and 622 of 1930. The suit out of which these appeals have arisen was instituted as far back as 1916. It was for partition of joint family property and rendition of accounts. The dispute related to the property of the late Rai Bahadur Buta Mal who died on 16th June 1914 and all his sons and grandsons were involved in it, in addition to his widow. On 21st January 1924, a preliminary decree was made. Five appeals were presented against it, which were disposed of by a Division Bench of this Court on 12th January 1928. The learned Judges issued certain directions for partition of the property and rendition of accounts in consequence of which a commissioner was appointed who submitted his report to the trial Court in January 1929. Multifarious objections to the report were raised by the various parties concerned in the litigation, and they were finally disposed of by the trial Court on 4th November 1929, on which date a final decree was passed. The present appeals are by Rai Sahib Shankar Das and Bihari Lal, respectively against that decree.

It may be remarked that by the preliminary decree the property in suit was directed to be partitioned among five persons, viz. the four sons of Rai Bahadur Buta Mal and his widow; and the date of disruption was to be taken as 31st October 1915. Some of these persons were already in possession of some items of the property in suit and instructions were accordingly issued to take accounts from them and to apportion the share of each claimant accordingly. The commissioner went thoroughly into the matter and made a detailed report as to the mode to be adopted in adjusting the shares. The Senior Subordinate Judge interfered only in a few particulars but in the main agreed with that report. His conclusions, which are material for the purposes of the present appeals, were as under :

(1) Rai Sahib Shankar Das had from 1913 to 1918 realized Rs. 18,125 from the lands at Lyallpur, out of which he had paid Rs. 1800 only to Bihari Lal and he was consequently bound to account for the balance and was further liable to pay interest on that amount at the rate of six per cent. per annum. This sum amounted in all to Rs. 23,325, i. e. Rs. 16,325 principal and Rs. 7000 interest. (2) Bihari Lal could not be called upon to render accounts at that stage for the period of eight months during which he did not surrender possession of the property in his possession, inasmuch as the matter in issue had already been decided by competent authorities. (3) The income from agricultural lands should be assessed at Rs. 5125 per harvest and the income from urban property should be calculated at the rate of Rs. 1257 per mensem. No rebate should be allowed to Bihari Lal on account of the alleged damage to the cotton crop of 1917-18. (4) The income earned from the factory should be calculated at Rs. 6000 per season. (5) Bihari Lal should be allowed to deduct Rs. 18,750 paid by him as income-tax in 1920. Similarly he should be allowed to deduct Rs. 30,000 proved to have been paid to the various creditors of the joint family. (6) Rs. 300 per mensem only should be allowed to Bihari Lal for household expenses and not Rs. 500 as suggested by the Commissioner. (7) In the absence of any definite proof as to which of the cosharers had received income from the urban property situated at Amritsar, no co-sharer could be burdened with that amount. (8) The allowance paid to Mrs. Buta Mal could not be reduced. (9) Bihari Lal should pay four per cent. interest on the sums payable by him to the various cosharers. (10) Rai Sahib Shankar Das would get his costs of the proceedings subsequent to the preliminary decree from Bihari Lal alone.

It may also be observed that a receiver of the property was appointed in January 1919 and several persons have held that office since. Further, Bihari Lal was adjudicated an insolvent on 21st March 1933 and is now represented by the Official Receiver. Mrs. Buta Mal died on 23rd March 1933 and is represented on the record by her sons or their descendants. On 1st October 1935, Rai Sahib Shankar Das died and his sons and grandsons who were already on the record represent his interest. Lala Mul Chand also died and is now represented by his sons and grandsons. For the sake of convenience, we will take up the two appeals separately. The objections taken by Rai Sahib Shankar Das and argued on his behalf before us may be summarized as follows :

(1) Mrs. Buta Mal having died in the meantime, the share allotted to her should be thrown into the hotchpot and the property should now be divided equally among the four sons of Rai Bahadur Buta Mal, inasmuch as a widow is not entitled to a definite share before actual partition takes place by metes and bounds and that has not been done so far. (2) Rai Sahib Shankar Das could not be called upon to account for the period prior to 1st November 1915 which date was fixed by this Court as the starting point for accounting. At any rate, no interest should be charged on the sums retained by Rai Sahib Shankar Das in this account. (3) Bihari Lal should have further been called upon to account for the period ranging from January 1919 to August 1919 on which date he surrendered possession to the receiver. (4) The estimate arrived at by the Senior Subordinate Judge in relation to the income of the family derived from agricultural lands is very low and so is the estimate in relation to the income of urban property. (5) The income in regard to the factory controlled by Bihari Lal has been under-estimated. Moreover, as the possession of the factory was not delivered by Bihari Lal until 1927 he should have been called upon to account for the income derived from the factory during the years 1920 to 1927 less the income for the years 1925 and 1926 when the factory had been leased to him under the orders of the Court and the lease money was recovered from him in due course of law. (6) Bihari Lal should not have been allowed a rebate of Rs. 18,750 which he had paid as income-tax in 1920. (7) It was wrong on the part of the Senior Subordinate Judge to have allowed Bihari Lal a deduction of Rs. 30,000 alleged to have been paid to the various creditors of the joint family. (8) Although the Senior Subordinate Judge reduced the sum claimed by Bihari Lal on account of household expenses from Rs. 6000 to Rs. 3600 a year, he made a mistake in not giving effect to this reduction in his final calculations. (9) The income derived from the urban property situated at Amritsar should have been debited to Bihari Lal. (10) Mrs. Buta Mal was wrongly paid one-fifth of the income prior to actual partition by metes and bounds and the sum so paid to her should have been deducted from her share and divided among the brothers equally. (11) The rate of interest charged on amounts outstanding in the hands of Bihari Lal is low. (12) The heirs of Mul Chand were liable to pay interest on all amounts received by Mul Chand on behalf of the joint family and retained by him. (13) The share of Rai Sahib Shankar Das has been wrongly calculated inasmuch as certain items which were recoverable from the various co-sharers have not been brought into account. (14) The burden of costs allowed to Rai Sahib Shankar Das should have been thrown on all the co-sharers and not on Bihari Lal alone.

We propose to take up the contentions raised by the appellants' counsel in the order in which they have been stated above. We will, however, deal with each item under discussion very briefly as both the commissioner and the Senior Subordinate Judge have entered into minute details and dealt with every item at great length :

1. In support of the contention that Mrs. Buta Mal's share should now be divided equally among her four sons as she has died before the actual partition could be effected, counsel for the appellants has relied on Para. 332 of Mulla's Hindu Law (1936 Edition) and 42 Bom 535,¹ his argument being that the death of a female pending a suit for partition disentitles her to a share in the joint family property. The rule enunciated by Mulla in Para. 332 is that if a female dies before the final decree, though after the preliminary decree, her share remains an integral part of the estate available for partition among the male members of the family. To a similar effect is 42 Bom 535,¹ where a widow had died before the passing of a final decree. It is obvious therefore that the authorities relied on by the appellants' counsel are distinguishable inasmuch as in the present case Mrs. Buta Mal did not die before the final decree but after and at a time when partition by metes and bounds had actually started. This contention therefore has no force.

2. It is true that while disposing of the appeals against the preliminary decree, this Court fixed 31st October 1915 as the date of disruption and made the various co-sharers liable to account for the subsequent period during which they were holding possession of the joint family property; but in the first instance there is nothing on the record to show that Rai Sahib Shankar Das had not received the income relating to the lands at Lyallpur after 31st October 1915 and secondly he is estopped now from contending that he should not have been burdened with the income received for the period prior to 31st October 1915. It is on the record that he had admitted his liability to the extent of the whole amount and further, although he was taking a very active interest in the proceedings before the commissioner and had further submitted about two dozen objections on the report made by the commissioner, he nowhere challenged the liability imposed on him by the Commissioner for the full period of five years from 1913 to 1918. He has not contested his liability even in the memorandum of appeal submitted to this Court. Not having raised any objection at the proper time, he cannot now be allowed to reagitate the matter especially as we have remarked above, there is no material on the record to show that he had received this income prior to the date of disruption and not after. Counsel for Bihari Lal has rightly contended that if the income received by Rai Sahib Shankar Das after 31st October 1915 related to a period prior to that date, it would be treated as an accumulation or accretion to the joint family property and that Rai Sahib Shankar Das would be liable to account for it: see 43 Cal 459.² We overrule this objection too accordingly.

Similarly the objection that no interest could be charged on the amount retained by Rai Sahib Shankar Das on this account has no force. This was a liquidated sum in his hand and he cannot escape liability for interest on any ground. His plea that no interest should be charged from him inasmuch as none has been charged from Bihari Lal on the factory income for which he has been made liable, cannot hold good, because the two cases stand clearly apart. While Rai Sahib Shankar Das had realised in cash the sums retained by him, Bihari Lal's liability is only notional. Besides, the factory was run on partnership basis so to say, and the principle laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 58 Cal 208³ that the decree in a suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts should provide for payment of interest upon the amount due only from the date of the final decree by which the amount (if any) is found due and not from the date of the plaint goes a long way to justify Bihari Lal's immunity. We decline to interfere therefore with the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge in this respect. (Their Lordships after dealing with the evidence on further points continued.) Counsel for the appellants contends that he is at liberty to reagitate these matters under O. 40, Rr. 1 and 4 read with S. 105, Civil P. C.; but we are not disposed to agree with him. Neither R. 1 nor R. 4 of O. 40 has any application to accounts from a third party relating to the period of a receiver's administration and it cannot be argued therefore that the non-rendition of accounts by Bihari Lal during that period was appealable under any of these provisions of law. This being so, S. 105 is ruled out of consideration. We consequently hold that Bihari Lal cannot be called upon at this late stage

2. Pormeshwar Dubey v. Gobind Dubey, (1916) 3 A I R Cal 500=33 I C 190=43 Cal 459=20 C W N 25.

3. Suleman v. Abdul Latif, (1930) 17 A I R P C 185=124 I C 891=57 I A 245=24 S L R 328=58 Cal 208 (P C).

1. Raoji Bhikaji v. Anant Laxman, (1918) 5 AIR Bom 175=46 I C 750=42 Bom 535=20 Bom L R 671.

to render accounts for those periods for which a receiver had been appointed and in connexion with which the decisions of competent Courts had been obtained at the proper time. (Their Lordships after deciding further points against the appellant continued.) The net result is that we uphold the judgment of the Senior Subordinate Judge and dismiss this appeal.

We now take up the appeal of Bihari Lal. It is not necessary to deal with all the contentions raised by counsel for Bihari Lal in this appeal inasmuch as they have already been directly or indirectly dealt with while disposing of the appeal of Rai Sahib Shankar Das. (After considering the points raised by appellant, Bihari Lal, their Lordships proceeded.) We accordingly dismiss this appeal too. In the peculiar circumstances of the case, we leave the parties to bear their own costs before us.

B.D./R.K.

*Appeals dismissed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 331

DALIP SINGH J.

Abdul Sattar and others — Plaintiffs
— Appellants.

v.

Fazal-ul-Rahman and others —
Defendants — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 628 of 1937, Decided on 22nd November 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/- 18th January 1937.

(a) Appeal — Appeal lies from amended decree.

An appeal lies from an amended decree though not from the order amending the decree.

[P 332 C 1]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 152—M selling portion of property to Z reserving certain portion to himself — Suit by Z for portion of property left after excluding M's portion — Z asserting that area to be partitioned was 100 square yards and that defendants were in wrongful possession of it — Defendants not denying this assertion — Preliminary decree giving Z 50 square yards passed — Final order confirming preliminary decree made—Appeal against final order dismissed — Application by defendants for amendment of preliminary decree on ground that Z was wrongly given 50 square yards—Amendment held could not be made at that late stage.

M sold a portion of the property to Z reserving to himself certain portion. Z brought a suit against the heirs of M for portion of the property left after excluding the portion reserved by M to himself. In that suit Z made an assertion that the property left after excluding the portion reserved by M to himself amounted to some 100 square yards and that the defendants were in wrongful possession of that area. The defendants did not deny that the area amounted to 100 square yards. A preliminary decree was passed giving 50 square yards to Z. A final order confirming the preliminary decree was made but even then the defendants did not object that the preliminary decree was wrong in form. After their appeal against the final order had been dismissed, they applied for amendment of the preliminary decree on the ground that Z was wrongly given 50 square yards:

Held that there was no accidental slip or error or omission on the part of the Courts concerned; nor was there an accidental error or omission in the plaint which intended one thing and owing to an accidental slip stated another which led to the incorporation of the mistake in the decree. It was too late for the defendants to apply for amendment of the decree as they ought to have moved in this matter at the time of the passing of preliminary decree.

[P 332 C 2; P 333 C 1]

Shamair Chand — *for Appellants.*Bishen Narain — for Respondents.

Judgment.—The facts of this case are as follows: One Ramji Das owned certain property. This property was sold to Abdul Shakur on 7th January 1908. On 24th March 1920, Abdul Shakur sold the property to Mohammad Ishaq. On 1st April 1920, Mohammad Ishaq sold a portion of the property to Zahir-ud-Din reserving to himself a certain portion of the property. Zahir-ud-Din brought a partition suit against Mohammad Ishaq's heirs on the basis of his title deed. Zahir-ud-Din died and the present appellants are his legal representatives. On 11th February 1933 a preliminary decree was passed holding that Zahir-ud-Din was entitled to 50 square yards out of the property in dispute on partition and it was further ordered that the defendants be ejected from the amla on the land which fell within 50 square yards and Rs. 65-4-0 was fixed as damages against the defendants for contumaciously holding on to the property. The appeal from this decree was dismissed by the learned District Judge on 25th January 1934 except as to the damages and ejection from the amla which was accepted. The decree consequently became a decree declaring Zahir-ud-Din entitled to 50 square yards of land and to partition of the property on that basis. A Commissioner was appointed and a final decree for possession by partition was drawn up on 26th April 1934, and plot "A" shown in the plan attached as pink, an area shown as 50 square yards was given to Zahir-ud-Din. On 8th April 1935 an appeal to the learned District Judge was dismissed on the ground that the area was in accordance with the decree and the defendants had shown no reason to upset the partition proposed.

On appeal to this Court on 6th November 1935 the Court ordered that certain objections put in which had not been allowed to be heard by the trial Court should be heard. On 10th March 1936 the appeal was dismissed by this Court and there it appears for the first time the point now arising was raised but was not decided. The judgment-debtor then applied to the District Judge for amendment of the preliminary decree and consequential amendment of the final decree on 2nd May 1936. The learned District Judge has passed an order amending the decree holding that according to the plaint all that was claimed was the share in the property excluding the share which had been reserved by Mohammad Ishaq for himself in the sale to Zahir-ud-Din on 1st April 1920. This area amounted not to 50 square yards but to 38 square yards 7 square feet, and the learned District Judge appears to have amended the preliminary decree. It is not very clear whether he also amended the final decree but in the view of the case that I take the point is not of any importance now. A preliminary objection has been raised that no appeal lies from the order of the learned District Judge amending the decree. The point however was noticed by the office and the learned counsel for the appellant pointed out that he was appealing not from the order but from the amended decree. I see no reason why an appeal should not lie from the amended decree though not from the order amending the decree and I therefore overrule the preliminary objection.

On the merits the real point is whether it is now open to the learned District Judge to order amendment of the preliminary decree and consequential amendment of the final decree. The difficulty has arisen from the fact that Zahir-ud-Din undoubtedly applied for possession by partition of the share of the property left after excluding the area that had been reserved by Mohammad Ishaq. At that time it seems the parties were under the impression that, excluding the property reserved by Mohammad Ishaq which amounted to 49 square yards, the rest of the property amounted to 100 square yards and Zahir-ud-Din's half share therefore came to 50 square yards. In paras. 5 and 9 of the plaint, Zahir-ud-Din had asserted that the defendants were wrongfully in possession of property amounting to 100 square yards. This allegation as to the area of which the defendants were in possession was not expressly denied. It was merely stated that the defendants had no knowledge and the present objector merely made a vague statement that he did not admit paras. 1 to 13 of the plaint. It is obvious that he must have known or should have known the area of which admittedly he himself was in possession, whether that possession was rightful or wrongful. However, be that as it may, on these facts, the Court could have passed no doubt a decree giving Zahir-ud-Din a half share in the remainder of the property excluding the 49 square yards reserved by Mohammad Ishaq. The Court however evidently accepting the statement of Zahir-ud-Din, not expressly denied by the defendants, that the remainder of the property was 100 square yards in area, passed a decree in the form of giving Zahir-ud-Din 50 square yards of the property. It was now open to defendants either to apply to the Court to amend the form of the decree or to raise the matter in the appeal which they took before the learned District Judge. They adopted neither of these courses and the learned counsel for the respondents concedes that the reason for this was that nobody doubted at the time that the area was 100 square yards. That appeal was dismissed and no further action was taken by the defendants.

In the final decree where 50 square yards had been duly allotted by the Commissioner to Zahir-ud-Din certain objections were taken but this objection that the preliminary decree was wrong in form was not taken even then and the parties fought on other grounds. The final decree affirmed the preliminary decree. The appeals from that final decree have been duly dismissed up to this Court. In this Court's judgment it was pointed out that the remedy, if any, of the debtors of the judgment-debtors was to apply to amend the preliminary decree but the Court did not hold and expressly refrained from expressing any opinion as to whether that remedy was or was not open to them in the circumstances of the present case. It appears to me after considering the matter that the remedy was no longer open to the judgment-debtors. There was no accidental slip or error or omission on the part of the Courts concerned : nor was there an accidental error or omission or slip in the plaint which intended one thing and owing to an accidental slip stated another which led to the incorporation of the mistake in the decree. Such cases no doubt have been held in some rulings to fall within the purview of Ss. 151 and 152, Civil P. C. In this case however the facts must have been or should have been within the knowledge of the defendants, the judgment-debtors. There was a positive assertion made which was not expressly denied. It is unfortunate that the form of the decree embodied this mistake but it appears that this was due to mistake as to the area under which both the parties were labouring at the time. Steps have been taken to incorporate the preliminary decree in a final decree. It would be altogether too much to hold that all those steps and the expenses connected therewith should be held to be void and of no effect because now the judgment-debtors have discovered that there was a mistake in the area given to the plaintiff in the preliminary decree. That point, as stated already, must have been or should have been known to them at the time of the preliminary decree and the remedy was obviously open to them at that time. It seems to me that it is now too late to disturb the preliminary decree on the ground that the defendants have for the first time discovered this mistake.

I would therefore accept the appeal, set aside the order of the learned District Judge and restore the original preliminary decree and consequently also the final decree. I leave the parties to bear their own costs of this application to amend throughout.

D.S./R.K.

*Appeal accepted.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 333

BHIDE J.

Mt. Chandravati — Defendant —
Appellant.

v.

Pandit Janti Parshad and another —
Plaintiffs — Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 304 of 1937, Decided on 19th November 1937, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/- 25th February 1937.

Contract Act (1872), S. 16—Undue influence—Proof—Merely raising atmosphere of suspicion is not sufficient—There must be clear and definite evidence of case propounded.

To establish a case of undue influence it is not sufficient to raise an atmosphere of suspicion but there must be clear and definite evidence of the case propounded. [P 334 C 2]

The plaintiffs sought to set aside an assignment of an insurance policy by their deceased father in favour of the defendant. It was found that the defendant, although engaged originally as a servant was practically treated as a mistress and was kept in his house by the plaintiffs' father for about three or four years before his death. The policy assigned to the defendant was worth only Rs. 2000 while the plaintiffs' father had left to them other policies worth Rs. 4000 and also other immovable property and cash :

Held that under the circumstances the assignment of the policy in favour of the defendant could not be considered to be a transaction of "unconscionable nature" sufficient to raise a presumption of exercise of undue influence and in absence of other evidence sufficient enough to prove their case the plaintiffs could not succeed : A I R 1934 P C 130, Rel. on; A I R 1937 P C 50, Disting. [P 334 C 1]

Vishnu Datta — for Appellant.

Inder Dev Dua for Tasadduq Hussain—
for Respondents.

Judgment.—The plaintiffs in this case sued for a declaration to the effect that the assignment of an insurance policy by their deceased father in favour of the defendant, Mt. Chandrawati, was void and for the issue of a permanent injunction restraining the defendant from receiving the amount payable on the policy. The trial Court dismissed the suit, but on appeal the learned Additional District Judge of Delhi has decreed it. From this decision, the present appeal has been preferred by the defendant, Mt. Chandrawati. The plaintiffs' case was that the assignment of the policy had been made by their father under undue influence. It was alleged that the appellant had been engaged at first as a servant to look after the minor children of the father of the plaintiffs but had subsequently acquired great influence over him and had succeeded in obtaining the assignment of a policy for Rs. 2000 in her favour. The learned Additional District Judge has found that it was proved that the assignment had been made by the deceased father of the plaintiffs under undue influence. This finding is one of fact. But the learned counsel for the appellant has argued that the learned Additional District Judge has omitted to consider the fact that the evidence led by the plaintiffs was different from the allegations made in the plaint itself and that he had also not taken into consideration the material points which ought to have been considered in a case of this kind where undue influence is alleged, according to the principles laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 15 Cal 634.¹ It was also contended that there was no evidence on the record to show that the assignment was in fact the result of the exercise of any undue influence by the appellant, and it is not sufficient to show that there were some suspicious circumstances: 9 Luck 178.²

As regards the first point, it appears from the plaint that it was alleged that the appellant had some relations in the police department and that it was due to their threats of criminal prosecution that the assignment had been made. There is no evidence, worth the name on the record to substantiate this allegation. The evidence produced by the plaintiffs was to the effect that the appellant sometimes pretended that she was possessed by the spirit of the deceased wife of the plaintiffs' father and sometimes by Guru Bhagwan and induced the plaintiffs' father to act according to her wishes, and to turn out the plaintiffs. These facts were however nowhere alleged in the plaint as they should have been according to the provisions of O. 6, R. 4, Civil P. C. There is also no evidence on the record to show that the appellant ever asked the plaintiffs' father to make an assignment of a policy in her favour.

There is no doubt that the appellant, although she was engaged originally as a servant, was practically treated as a mistress and was kept by the plaintiffs' father in his house for about three or four years at any rate before his death. In the circumstances it was not unnatural for him to make some provision for her. The policy which was assigned by the plaintiffs' father in favour of the appellant was worth only Rs. 2000. It was admitted that the plaintiffs' father had left to them other policies worth Rs. 4000 and also immovable property and cash. In the circumstances the assignment of a policy in favour of the appellant cannot, I think, be considered to be a transaction of 'unconscionable' nature, sufficient to raise a presumption of the exercise of undue influence.

The learned counsel for the respondents urged that the onus had been shifted to the appellant by the evidence led by the plaintiffs and that it was for her to prove that the assignment had not been secured by her by the exercise of undue influence. Reliance was placed in support of this argument on A I R 1937 P C 50,³ but the facts of that case appear to be very different. In the present case, I think, it cannot be said that the appellant, who was engaged first as a servant, stood in 'a position of active confidence' within the meaning of S. 111, Evidence Act. It was held by their Lordships of the Privy Council in 9 Luck 178² that to establish a case of undue influence, it is not sufficient to raise an atmosphere of suspicion, but that there must be clear and definite evidence of the case propounded. In the present instance, the evidence adduced differed from the case propounded in the plaint and even that evidence was hardly sufficient to raise more than a suspicion about the transaction attacked. I accordingly hold that the evidence produced by the plaintiffs was not sufficient to establish that the assignment of the policy had been procured by the exercise of undue influence. On this finding, it is not necessary to consider the other points raised by the learned counsel for the appellant. I accept the appeal and setting aside the decree of the learned Additional District Judge restore that of the trial Court with costs throughout.

R.M./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

3. Palanivelu Mudaliar v. Neelavathi Ammal, (1937) 24 A I R P C 50=167 I C 5 (P C).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 334

MONROE J.

Mohd. Din and others — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

Sant Ram — Defendant — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 1012 of 1937, Decided on 3rd January 1938, from decree of Dist. Judge, Sialkot, D/- 23rd April 1937.

Malicious Prosecution—Wrongful attachment — Damages— Suit for — Suit for recovery of damages for wrongful attachment of property — Plaintiff is not entitled to costs incurred by him as objector or to damages for personal worry — Claim for damages for personal worry is too vague except if considered to be based on slander of title — In that case plaintiff must prove actual damage — If no actual damages are proved, plaintiff is entitled only to nominal damages.

In a suit for recovery of damages for wrongful attachment of property, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover the costs incurred by him as objector in the execution proceedings or damages

1. Mahomed Buksh Khan v. Hossain Bibi, (1888) 15 Cal 684=15 I A 81=5 Sar 175 (P C).

2. Someshwar Dutt v. Tirbhawan Dutt, (1934) 21 A I R P C 180=149 I C 480=61 I A 224=9 Luck 178 (P C).

for personal worry. The Judge hearing the objection having power to grant costs to the successful objector, must be deemed to have exercised a judicial discretion in the matter of costs, and his judgment finally determines the costs to which the objector is entitled. The claim for damages under the head of personal worry is of a very vague character and is not maintainable except if considered to be based on slander of title. An infringement of the plaintiff's right namely of the absolute right to the property attached, having taken place, he has a cause of action. If however such an action is held to lie, the injury for which compensation is to be given must be one which has caused actual damage—slander of title not being actionable per se—and if the plaintiff is unable to prove that he has suffered actual damage apart from the costs incurred by him in establishing his right, he is only entitled to nominal damages: 2 Lord Raymound 938, Rel. on. [P 335 C 1, 2; P 336 C 1]

Shamair Chand — for Appellant.

Amar Nath Mehta — for Respondent.

Judgment.—Three second appeals arise from three suits in which the plaintiffs sought to recover damages for the wrongful attachment of their property. Sant Ram was a creditor of Ahmad Din and after the death of Ahmad Din sued the plaintiffs as his personal representatives; he obtained a decree, and caused certain property to be attached as property of Ahmad Din; on objections by the plaintiffs the property was released from attachment. The attachment was held to be wrongful and the learned trial Judge granted a decree in each case and awarded damages as follows: (a) to Muhammad Din Rs. 40 on account of loss in business through attending the Court and Rs. 60 as damages for loss of "reputation, mental worries etc.", (b) to Ghulam Mudammad Rs. 10 for loss of business in attending Court and Rs. 50 for mental worry and loss of reputation; (c) to Rehm Din, Ismail and Hakam Rs. 25 for loss of business and Rs. 75 "for mental worry, loss in reputation, etc".

On appeal the learned District Judge held (i) that the costs of the legal proceedings could not be recovered in a separate action for damages, (ii) that damages could not be recovered for personal worry; and he further held that no decree could be made in the suit in favour of the plaintiffs, which I take to mean that in the absence of proof of loss, arising from the wrongful seizure, no action lay.

Before me, Mr. Shamair Chand for the appellants was unable to support either claim to damages by the citation of an authority. In my opinion, the view of the learned District Judge on both points is correct in principle. The Judge who heard the objection and allowed it had power to award costs to the successful objector; in awarding or withholding costs he exercised a judicial discretion and his judgment determined finally the amount of costs to which the objector was entitled. The claim for damages under the second head is of a very vague character. Every one who is forced to take legal proceedings to establish his rights is subjected to personal worry, but this is not a ground for awarding compensation. This claim does not seem to me to be maintainable in any respect, but if it were to be considered at all, the cause of action would be slander of title; the learned trial Judge specified the ground for awarding damages as "mental worry and loss of reputation"; and I understand him to mean that, by casting a doubt on the appellants' title, the respondent had made himself responsible for damages arising as the natural cause of the appellants' false statement, if such an action lies in the circumstances of this case, the injury for which compensation is given must be one which had caused actual damage—slander of title is not actionable per se. In the present case, the appellants have not shown that they have suffered actual damage, apart from the costs incurred by them in establishing their right.

There has however been an infringement of the rights of the appellants, that is of their absolute right to the property attached; they have causes of action; this right is now well established, having been recognized on at least two occasions by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, when judgments awarding substantial damages were upheld; in these cases the question of nominal damages did not arise and was not discussed. No authority on this question has been cited to me and I have been unable to find any. The ground on which damages were awarded in the cases which I have mentioned was that an absolute right in property had been infringed. The principle which applies was stated by Holt C. J. in 2 *Ld Raym 938*¹ at p. 955 (quoted by Sir Fredrick Pollock, Law of Torts) as follows:

A damage is not merely pecuniary, but an injury imports a damage, when a man is thereby hindered of his right So a man shall have an action against another for riding over his ground, though it do him no damage, for it is an invasion of his property, and the other has no right to come there.

1. Ashby v. White, 2 Ld Raym 938=92 E R 126=14 How St. Tr. 695=1 Sm LC (11th Ed.) 240.

I hold therefore that the appellants are entitled to nominal damages and I allow the appeal and grant a decree for one rupee in each case. I do not think that, in the circumstances costs ought to be awarded to the appellants. They had already established their rights before these proceedings were instituted. They suffered no actual damage (for which they could recover) but only an injury, importing damage; the only result of these proceedings, the rights of the appellants having been already established, was to harass and cause expense to the respondents. The parties will bear their own costs throughout. As this question of nominal damages seemed to me to be one of first impression, I suggested that it might be referred to a Division Bench, but both counsel preferred that I should decide the case the amount involved not justifying further expense.

R.M./R.K.

Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 336

TEK CHAND J.

Brij Kumar — Petitioner.

v.

Naurangi Lal, Decree-holder and another, Judgment-debtor—Respondents.

Civil Revn. No. 263 of 1937, Decided on 16th November 1937, from order of Judge, Small Cause Court, Delhi, D/- 13th March 1937.

Civil P. C. (1908), S. 60 — “Debt” means perfected and absolute debt.

A debt is an obligation to pay a liquidated (or specified) sum of money. The word “debt” in S. 60 therefore means an actually existing debt, that is, a perfected and absolute debt. A sum of money which might, or might not, become due, or the payment of which depends upon contingencies which may or may not happen is not a debt.

[P 336 C 2; P 337 C 1]

Shamair Chand—for Petitioner.

Order.—Naurangi Lal respondent had a decree against Mohammad Bakhsh, who is a building contractor in Delhi. The amount outstanding on this decree in May 1936 was Rs. 143-15-0. At that time Mohammad Bakhsh had taken out a contract for construction of a house belonging to Brij Kumar, petitioner. On 26th May 1936, Naurangi Lal applied to the executing Court stating about Rs. 200 was due by Brij Kumar to Mohammad Bakhsh for the contract work done by the latter for him, and that a prohibitory order be issued to Brij Kumar not to pay this amount to him. This order was duly served on Brij Kumar. Subsequently, on 31st August 1936, Brij Kumar was directed to deposit Rs. 143-15-0 in Court out of the amount which was stated to be due by him to Mohammad Bakhsh. Brij Kumar did not comply with this order, and he was summoned to appear in Court with his account-books. In accordance with this order he appeared and filed a written statement stating that no “debt” was due by him to Mohammad Bakhsh. He admitted that Mohammad Bakhsh had done work for him worth Rs. 6671 according to rates fixed, out of which he had been paid Rs. 6400 in all till 24th May 1936. He however alleged that the construction of the building was inspected and several defects were discovered, for which Brij Kumar claimed a deduction from Mohammad Bakhsh. The matter was settled on 3rd June 1936 when Mohammad Bakhsh agreed to forgo Rs. 271 as compensation for the defective work done by him. Accordingly he executed a receipt accepting the sum of Rs. 6400 which he had received in account up to 24th May 1936 in full and final satisfaction of his bill and stated that nothing more was due. Brij Kumar made a statement on oath in Court supporting the allegations in the written statement and produced the receipt above-mentioned. The learned Judge of the Small Cause Court however passed an order holding that Brij Kumar was liable to pay Rs. 143-15-0 to Naurangi Lal, on the ground that he had appropriated this amount, subsequent to the service of the prohibitory order on him, out of the amount which was due by him to Mohammad Bakhsh.

Brij Kumar has come in revision and it is urged on his behalf that the order of the lower Court is erroneous as no “debt” was due by him to Mohammad Bakhsh at the time when the prohibitory order was issued. After examining the record, I am of opinion that this contention is well founded and must succeed. It is clear that the account between Mohammad Bakhsh and Brij Kumar had not been made up on 26th May 1936, when the prohibitory order was issued and served. Under S. 60, Civil P. C., a “debt” is liable to attachment and sale. But, as pointed out by Mulla at page 220 of his Commentary on the Code of Civil Procedure :

A debt is an obligation to pay a liquidated (or specified) sum of money. Money that has not yet become due does not constitute a "debt", for there is no obligation to pay that which has not yet become due. The word "debt" in this section means an actually existing debt, that is, a perfected and absolute debt. * * * A sum of money which might, or might not, become due, or the payment of which depends upon contingencies which may or may not happen, is not a debt.

In this case, the accounts between Brij Kumar and Muhammad Bakhsh had not been made up finally on 26th May 1936, and it could not be said that there was a "debt" due by the former to the latter, which could have been attached. Brij Kumar was therefore held liable erroneously to pay Rs. 143-15-0 to Naurangi Lal, respondent. I accept the petition for revision and set aside the order of the lower Court. As the respondent has not appeared to oppose this petition, there will be no order as to costs.

D.S./R.K.

Petition accepted.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 337

BLACKER J.

Tara Singh — Accused — Petitioner.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Revn. No. 1276 of 1937, Decided on 30th November 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Jhelum, D/. 31st August 1937.

 Criminal Trial — Transfer application — Security bond demanded — Transfer application actually made but not properly prosecuted and dismissed — Security bond cannot be forfeited for want of prosecution of transfer application.

A person asked a Magistrate to stay the proceedings before him in order to enable him to file a transfer application. He was asked to execute security bonds, which he did. The transfer application was also made but on being asked for depositing cash money in order to issue notice to District Magistrate, the applicant failed and his transfer application without being further prosecuted was dismissed. The person appeared before the Magistrate before whom the proceedings were stayed and the Magistrate finding that the transfer application was not properly prosecuted forfeited the bond :

Held that if the intention of the law was that bonds should be furnished with the undertaking that not only application should be filed but also that final orders should be obtained thereon, this should be more clearly expressed in the section itself and should also be clearly set out in the terms of the bonds themselves. And as such order forfeiting the bond was illegal.

[P 338 C 1]

Nand Lal Slooja — for Petitioner.

M. Monir, Asst. Advocate-General —

for the Crown.

Facts.—This order will deal with two connected revision applications. The facts are that Tara Singh, petitioner, was concerned in two cross cases which were pending in the Court of the District Magistrate at Gujrat, being the complainant in one of the cases and the accused in the other. On 4th December 1936 he filed applications in both the cases for the staying of proceedings under S. 526, Cl. 8, Criminal P. C., as he intended to apply to the High Court for the transfer of both the cases to another Court. The learned District Magistrate ordered him to execute bonds in each of the cases in a sum of Rs. 200 as provided by the recent amendment to S. 526, Criminal P. C., and then adjourned the two cases in order to enable Tara Singh to file an application in the High Court and obtain orders thereon. Applications were in fact filed by Tara Singh in the High Court for the transfer of the two cases, and on 7th January 1937 he was ordered by the High Court to deposit a sum of Rs. 50 before notice could be issued to the District Magistrate, one deposit being held to be sufficient for both cases. Tara Singh, however, failed to make the required deposit and his transfer applications were dismissed by the High Court on 5th February 1937, Tara Singh himself having appeared in the meantime in the Court of the District Magistrate on 18th January and asked the Court to proceed with the trial of the cases. On receipt of the order of the High Court notice was issued to Tara Singh to show cause why his bonds should not be forfeited in both the cases, as he had failed to prosecute his transfer applications and finally the learned District Magistrate ordered that the bonds should be forfeited in each case.

The proceedings are forwarded for revision on the following grounds : On behalf of the petitioner it is contended that the amended sub-s. 8 only lays down that if required the person should execute a bond in a sum of not more than Rs. 200 that he will make such an application within a reasonable time fixed by the Court, and it is pointed out that in the bonds themselves all that the petitioner undertook to do was to file an application in the High Court for the transfer of the cases, and it is thus argued that by filing the applications the petitioner carried out the terms of the bond and that he was not bound by the law as it stands to prosecute these applications. On the other side, however, it is argued that although the section does not state this explicitly, its intention is clear that an application must not only be filed but must be pursued, as is shown by the closing words of sub.s. 8 which are: the Court shall adjourn the case or postpone the appeal for such a period as will afford a reasonable time for the application to be made and an order to be obtained thereon.

There is no doubt that the intention of the recently added provisions regarding the furnishing of security bonds is to prevent persons from obtaining adjournments in cases on the pretext of filing transfer applications where there is no real intention of making such applications, and it is equally clear that this intention is frustrated if an adjournment is obtained by a person who actually files an application in the High Court but fails to prosecute it. At the same time, in the present case it cannot be denied that the petitioner did carry out the letter of the terms of his bonds by filing applications in the High Court, and his excuse for failing to prosecute the applications there is that he could not raise the fifty rupees which he was ordered to deposit before notice could be issued to the District Magistrate. This, it is argued, shows that he did at least obtain some sort of an order on his applications, and, if he was unable or unwilling to carry out this order, he at least did more than merely file applications and abandon them to their fate altogether.

On the whole I am of the opinion that if the intention of the law was that bonds should be furnished with the undertaking that not only applications should be filed but also that final orders should be obtained thereon, this should be more clearly expressed in the section itself and should also be clearly set out in the terms of the bonds themselves, and I thus consider that the orders of the lower Court ordering the forfeiture of the petitioner's two bonds are incorrect. I accordingly forward the cases to the High Court with the recommendation that the orders in question be set aside.

Order.—I concur in the reasons given by the learned Sessions Judge for holding that there has been no forfeiture of the bonds in this case, and actually the Assistant to the Advocate-General who appears for the Crown is also of the same view. I accordingly accept the reference and the petition and set aside the order of the learned District Magistrate.

B.D./R.K.

Reference accepted.

 A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 338

DALIP SINGH J.

Firm Attar Singh-Sant Singh — Defendant — Appellant.
v.

Municipal Committee, Amritsar —
Plaintiff — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 1043 of 1937, Decided on 11th January 1938, from decree of Addl. Dist. Judge, Amritsar, D/- 14th June 1937.

 Limitation Act (1908), Arts. 52 and 96—
Supplier of electric current, owing to defective meter, issuing instructions to his employee to double the reading of meter before sending bill to person supplied with electricity—Employee by mistake sending bill only for single reading—On discovery of mistake suit by supplier for balance of bill not charged owing to mistake of employee—Case held governed not by Art. 96 but by Art. 52.

A municipal committee supplied electric current to the defendant. The voltage of the current supplied was 440 volts but the meter was one that reported only 220 volts. In order therefore to get a correct reading of the current supplied the reading indicated by the meter should have been doubled and the committee issued instructions to their employees to double the reading of the meter by their Inspector before sending in the bill to the defendant. By some mistake or negligence on the part of the employees of the committee actual bills sent were only for the single reading without doubling the "reading". When the mistake was discovered the committee sued for the balance of the bill not charged for or paid by the defendant:

Held that the mistake was not the mistake of the parties in contractual relation or any money paid or property handed over because of a mistake but was due to the mistake of the employees in not following the instructions of the committee, if such existed about doubling the reading of the meter. This sort of mistake was not covered by Art. 96 at all. The case was therefore covered by Art. 52 and Art. 96 had no application.

[P 339 C 1, 2]

Dina Nath Bhasin — for Appellant.

D. R. Sawhney — for Respondent.

Judgment. — The facts of this case are that the plaintiff, the Municipal Committee, Amritsar, supplied electric current to the defendant. The voltage of the current supplied was 440 volts but the meter was one that reported only 220 volts. In order therefore to get a correct reading of the current supplied the reading indicated by the meter should have been doubled and according to the learned counsel for the respondent the plaintiff issued instructions to their employees to double the reading of the meter by their Inspector before sending in the bill to the defendant. By some mistake or negligence on the part of the employees of the plaintiff actual bills sent were only for the single reading without doubling the reading. When the mistake was discovered the plaintiff committee sued for the balance of Rs. 1757.15.3 not charged for or paid by the defendant. The defendant took various pleas which do not now concern us, but the main plea was that the suit was barred by limitation beyond three years from the date that the suit was brought because the Article applicable was Art. 52 and Art. 96 which the plaintiff sought to apply had no application to the facts of the case. The learned trial Court held that Art. 52 did apply and Art. 96, Lim. Act, did not apply and on that finding he decreed the plaintiff's suit for Rs. 340 only leaving the parties to bear their own costs. On appeal the learned District Judge held that Art. 96 applied and not Art. 52 and therefore decreed the entire claim of the plaintiffs with costs throughout.

The defendant has come in second appeal and the only question arising is whether Art. 52 or Art. 96 applied to the facts of this case. No ruling directly in point has been cited but the ruling coming nearest to the facts is A I R 1933 Sind 32¹ where it was held that Art. 52 applied and not Art. 96. The following other rulings were cited by the learned counsel for the appellant, 48 Mad 925² and A I R 1927 Cal 117.³ These rulings however were cited as showing that the learned District Judge has erred in relying on them. They do not appear to me to have any bearing on the present case. The learned counsel for the respondent cited 4 Pat 448,⁴ 14 M L J 443⁵ and 87 I C 1017⁶ and Mitra's Limitation and Prescription, pp. 1346 and 1347. The rulings do not throw any light on the question and the commentary also does not afford any great help.

The scope of Art. 96 has never been very clearly defined but I am quite clear that it

1. Narumal Hirachand v. Nanumal Benarsidas, (1938) 20 A I R Sind 32=142 I C 470=27 S L R 81.

2. Ramiah & Co., v. Sadasiva Mudaliar & Bros., (1925) 12 A I R Mad 1255=91 I C 151=48 Mad 925=49 M L J 229.

3. Panna Lal Ghose v. Adjai Coal Co. Ltd., (1927) 14 A I R Cal 117=101 I C 62=31 C W N 82.

4. Tofa Lal Das v. Moinuddin Mirza, (1925) 12 A I R Pat 765=98 I C 129=4 Pat 448=7 P L T 431.

5. Madras Consolidated Sugar & Spirit Factories Ltd. v. William Sissmore Shaw, (1904) 14 M L J 448.

6. Ganesh Prasad v. Jot Singh, (1925) 12 A I R Oudh 719=87 I C 1017.

cannot apply to a case like the present where the mistake was not the mistake of the parties in contractual relation or any money paid or property handed over because of a mistake but was due to the mistake of the employees in not following the instructions of the plaintiff, if such existed, about doubling the reading of the meter. This sort of mistake does not seem to me to be covered by Art. 96 at all. Were this so, it will be open for the plaintiff to sue for the price of goods sold on the ground that he had instructed his clerk to send a demand and by mistake the clerk had credited a sum received to the wrong payee and therefore he was entitled to sue for the price of goods sold the right person on discovery of the mistake. In A I R 1933 Sind 32¹ however a similar pleading was not allowed to prevail. I would therefore hold that the case is covered by Art. 52, that Art. 96 has no application and I would accept the appeal and restore the decree of the trial Court for Rs. 340 only. In the circumstances, the parties will bear their own costs throughout.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 339

YOUNG C. J. AND MONROE J.

Mt. Kushalia, w/o Anant Ram
Convict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 706 of 1937, Decided on 25th October 1937, from order of Sess. Judge, Lahore, D/- 31st May 1937.

(a) Criminal Trial — Approver — Corroborative statement of accused himself is most powerful form of corroboration, provided it definitely commits him to be present at murder.

The statement of an accused himself is the most powerful form of corroboration of an approver that one can have, provided such statement definitely commits the accused to be present at the time of the murder. [P 340 C 2]

(b) Criminal Trial — Approver — Corroboration — Corroborative evidence need not be evidence connecting accused with every detail of crime — It is sufficient if it tends to connect accused with crime.

Corroborative evidence tending to connect the accused with the crime described by an approver does not need to be evidence connecting the accused in every detail with the particular crime. Evidence is only required which tends to connect the accused with the crime. [P 341 C 1]

(c) Criminal Trial — Revision — Interference against acquittal.

The High Court has no power to interfere in revision against an acquittal. [P 341 C 2]

B. R. Puri and Nazar Mohammad —
for Appellant.

Ralli for Advocate-General —
for the Crown.

Young C. J.—Mt. Kushalia was charged along with her lover Hans Raj with the murder of Kushalia's husband Anant Ram. The learned Sessions Judge of Lahore acquitted Hans Raj but convicted Kushalia and sentenced her to death. It is alleged that on the night of 7th December 1936, Anant Ram was murdered by Hans Raj, one Khera, who has been admitted as an approver, and Kushalia. It appears that the relations between Kushalia and Anant Ram had been strained. On 5th December 1936, the husband had published a notice in a Lahore vernacular paper declaring that he would have nothing to do with his wife any more. He had received information about her relations with Hans Raj. There is also evidence that the woman was of an immoral nature. Anant Ram had also given Hans Raj cause of enmity by turning him out of a shop of which he was his tenant. The woman Mt. Kushalia got her husband shortly before he disappeared, or, as the prosecution says, was murdered, to make a will of his property in her favour. Shortly after that Anant Ram certainly disappeared from Lahore and has not been seen by anyone for nearly a year now.

The nephew of the deceased man reported his absence to the police and inquiries were made. Certain parts of a human body were discovered in a nallah in Lahore but we cannot say that these remains had anything to do with Anant Ram. They have not been identified and the prosecution does not maintain that those portions found in the nallah have been identified as the remains of Anant Ram. Suspicion however was clearly directed against Hans Raj and Kushalia. They were both arrested and Mt. Kushalia took a Magistrate to her house and pointed out a place in the floor. That place was dug up and pieces of human flesh and bones and hair were found in a pit which was there discovered. A bottle containing some kerosene oil was also discovered at the woman's instance. In addition to the evidence of the approver and certain evidence corroborating his evidence tending to connect Kushalia with the crime, there was the evidence of various persons as to her illicit intimacy with Hans Raj and her immoral character. The will is admitted by counsel who appears for the defence and there can be no doubt that a motive has been established in this case as powerful a motive as ever exists in a murder case. The woman got rid of her husband in order that she might enjoy her lover and her husband's property with him.

The main evidence however is that of the approver and the question will arise whether his evidence is corroborated in a manner which tends to connect the accused with the crime. We have been carefully taken through the approver's evidence by counsel appearing for the appellant and we think on the whole that it is a statement of the truth. The approver was a man who had relationship with Hans Raj and was indebted to him for advances of money. As things are in this Province, this was quite enough reason for him to assist in the murder of the husband of Hans Raj's mistress. The approver describes how the woman persuaded Hans Raj to take part in the murder of her husband and how he, the approver, assisted in the murder. He says that they came into the house of the deceased when the woman said he was asleep or unconscious from having taken opium and that Hans Raj proceeded to strangle the deceased while the approver held his arms. After Anant Ram had died, a pit was dug in the floor and the body was there buried. The next day Kushalia and Hans Raj went to a village where the appellant's husband had property and endeavoured to collect it. In this they failed. On their return to the house the body was emitting a foul odour and the pit was dug up and Hans Raj burnt the body in the pit, the woman being present at the time. The approver received six or seven rupees as a reward and certain of the clothing of the deceased and then left. We are satisfied that the approver is detailing a story which is not invented but that he was certainly a participator in this crime.

The only point remaining is whether there is sufficient corroboration of the approver's statement tending to connect Kushalia with the crime. In the first place there is her own statement made before a Magistrate. This is the most powerful form of corroboration of an approver that one could have, provided that the statement, as in this case, definitely commits the accused to have been present at the murder of the deceased. It is quite true that the woman in her statement seeks to minimize her part in the murder of her husband. She however in her statement admits being present when Hans Raj and Khera murdered her husband. She also admits that she put sand in her husband's mouth while he was being strangled. She admits that, on her return from the village to which she had gone on the day following the murder to collect her husband's property, she took part in the burning of the corpse and eventually burnt the remains still smelling. She admits taking part in again digging up the remains, such as they were and throwing them into a nallah close to the house.

It has been frequently pointed out by this Court that corroborative evidence tending to connect the accused with the crime described by an approver does not need to be evidence connecting the accused in every detail with the particular crime. Evidence is only required which tends to connect the accused with the crime. In this case such evidence is ample. It cannot be disputed for a minute that the woman's statement certainly connects her with the crime described by the approver. In addition to her own statement, there is also the fact that she endeavoured shortly after the murder to collect her husband's property and that she pointed out the place in her own house from which the human remains were discovered. There is also evidence that when arrested by the police, she produced a document purporting to come from her husband in Cawnpore and giving reasons for his absence. The learned Judge finds that this document is a false one and we agree with him; and it is quite clear from her own statement that she at any rate knew that her husband was dead and so it is perfectly obvious that the document she produced could not possibly have come from her husband. The fact that the woman gave a false reason for her husband's absence is another strong piece of circumstantial evidence against her.

There is therefore in this case as against this woman the evidence of the approver, the evidence of her own statement, the evidence that she gave a false reason for her husband's absence and produced a letter fabricated for this purpose and that shortly after the murder she endeavoured to collect her husband's property. It must also not be forgotten that she persuaded her husband shortly before his death to make a will in her favour.

While it is true that the body of Anant Ram has not been found or identified, there can be no doubt from the medical evidence that the remains of a human being were burnt and buried in the house in which Kushalia lived. We have her own statement that those remains belonged to her husband Anant Ram. We have therefore no doubt that Anant Ram — although his body has not been recovered — was murdered on the night of 7th December 1936.

We therefore are satisfied that Kushalia has been properly convicted in this case. With regard to sentence, we see no reason to interfere. The woman is not a young woman and according to the evidence has taken a leading and decisive part in the murder of her husband. We therefore confirm the sentence of death. In this case there is also an application filed in revision against the acquittal of Hans Raj. We have no power to interfere in this matter in revision and the application is dismissed.

R.M./R.K. Order accordingly.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 341

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Rao Girdhari Lal — Defendant —
Appellant.

v.

Societe Belge de Banque S. A. — Plaintiff — Respondent.

First Appeal No. 89 of 1937, Decided on 1st November 1937, from decree of Sub-Judge, First Class, Delhi, D/- 22nd December 1936.

(a) Company — Chairman receiving money on behalf of company — Money actually spent on matters connected with company — Chairman is not personally liable for money so received.

Where certain sums are received by the chairman on behalf of a company and in the capacity of the chairman of the company and the sums are actually expended on matters connected with the company, the chairman cannot be made personally liable for the sums so received. [P 344 C 1]

(b) Contract — Counter offer amounts to rejection of offer.

Where an offer containing certain conditions has been made to a party and that party by adding to the conditions makes a counter offer, the counter offer amounts to rejection of the offer made to him: A I R 1926 Lah 645 and 52 R R 144, Rel. on. [P 344 C 1]

J. N. Aggarwal and Shamsheer Bahadur
— for Appellant.

Amin Chand Mehta and Manohar Lal Sachdeva — for Respondent.

Din Mohammad J. — The suit out of which this appeal has arisen was instituted by Societe Belge de Banque S. A. of 61, Avenue, Louise, Bruxelles, Belgium, (hereinafter called the Society) through its constituted attorney Robert Palante against Rao Girdhari Lal Chaudhary of New Delhi. It was for recovery of Rupees 23,465-6-9. The Society alleged that a company incorporated under the Companies Act in the name of Delhi Sugar Mills Limited (hereinafter called the Company) approached it for a loan of Rupees 25,000 in the month of December 1933 but as the financial position of the Company was not sound, the Society was unwilling to accede to its request. On this, the defendant who was chairman of the Company offered to transfer by way of security 250 fully paid shares standing in his name in the registers of the Company. This offer however was subject to certain conditions, some of which were set forth in the plaint. On the same day, the Society paid Rs. 4000 to the Company at the request of the defendant. In January 1934, the Society called upon the defendant to execute the deed of transfer referred to above, but the defendant evaded it on some pretext or another. On 11th February 1934, the Society further spent Rs. 17,908-4-9 in connexion with the securing of the lease of a site for the Company's factory and again on 20th February 1934, a further sum of Rs. 2618-12-0 was spent in the interests of the Company. These sums were also expended at the request of the defendant as also a sum of Rs. 187-8-0 which was spent on purchasing the requisite stamp for the deed of transfer mentioned above. The Society later learnt that on the day when the defendant offered the security referred to above, he did not hold 250 fully paid shares of the Company and as the defendant had made default and the mortgage deed mentioned above had not been executed, the Society obtained a refund of Rs. 2454-12-0 on the stamps purchased for the purpose. After giving credit for the sum thus obtained, the Society claimed Rs. 22,259-12-9 as principal and Rupees 1205-12-0 as interest, aggregating Rupees 23,465-6-9 in all.

The defendant while admitting that he was chairman of the Company denied the allegations as set forth in the plaint and offered his own version of what had happened. He stated that the Society was itself anxious to secure a mortgage from the Company and that as a result of certain negotiations that took place between the attorney of the Society and himself, the letter of 27th December came into existence incorporating certain conditions on which a loan of Rs. 25,000 was to be advanced by the Society but as the proposals made therein were subject to the consent of Messrs. J. J. Gillains, which consent was never obtained, the negotiations did not culminate in the shape of a completed contract. The defendant further repudiated all responsibility for not transferring the shares as arranged and threw the whole blame on Palante, who was then a representative of Messrs. J. J. Gillains and who was said to have scored out his signatures on the share script. It was further denied that the sums expended by the Company were expended at the defendant's request. In addition, it was pleaded that although the defendant was not bound in law to transfer his shares on account of the non-fulfilment of the conditions on which the transfer was to be carried out, and although the transfer had been made impossible by the conduct of Palante, he was willing to abide by his undertaking if and when all the conditions were satisfied and he was placed in a position to carry out his proposals. As regards the plea that the defendant did not own fully paid shares, it was observed that he had acquired five hundred fully paid shares within a short time of the drafting of the letter referred to above. Put in a nutshell, the position taken up by the defendant was that as the Society had advanced money to the Company before his offer was duly accepted and that as his offer never assumed the dignity of contract in the eye of the law, no cause of action arose as against him.

The Society put in a replication traversing all the pleas of the defendant and reiterating its original position as adumbrated in the plaint. On the pleadings of the parties, the Subordinate Judge struck the following issues :

1. Was there a concluded agreement between the parties in terms of the defendant's offer contained in his letter dated 27th December 1933?
2. Is the defendant estopped by reason of his receipt dated 11th February 1934, from pleading that there was no concluded contract?
3. Did defendant request the plaintiff Company to advance to the Delhi Sugar Mills the following sums, namely: (a) Rs. 4000 on 27th December 1933, (b) Rs. 17,908-4-9 on 11th February 1934, (c) Rs. 2618-12-0 on 20th February 1934, (d) Rupees 187-8-0?
4. Did the plaintiff Company request the defendant to transfer 250 shares to them? 5. Did Mr. Palante, a Director of the Delhi Sugar Mills, as representative of J. J. Gillains, prevent the transfer by the defendant of 250 shares? 6. How many shares did the defendant hold in the Delhi Sugar Mills on 27th December 1933? 7. Has defendant received the sum of Rs. 21,440-12-9 from the Delhi Sugar Mills for payment to the plaintiff Company? 8. If so, whether defendant is not liable to pay the amount to the plaintiff? 9. To what relief is the plaintiff entitled?

The Society examined Delait, its own attorney, who besides other things stated that the Society had confirmed all arrangements mentioned in the letter of 27th December. In addition, Ram Kishen Das Khanna, a clerk of the National Bank of India Ltd., produced the two cheques of Rs. 4000 and Rs. 17,908-4-9 respectively which had been drawn on the Bank by Palante on behalf of the Society and Vaid Nath Ayer, Official Liquidator of the Company, placed on the record a cash book incorporating the defendant's account with the company which showed a credit of these two sums in the defendant's account on 28th December 1933 and 11th February 1934, respectively. No other evidence was led in the case.

The Subordinate Judge came to the conclusion that the acceptance of the defendant's offer by the Society not being absolute and unqualified inasmuch as its letter accepting the defendant's proposals added a new condition which was never accepted by the defendant, there was no completed contract between the parties. He further found that the letter dated 11th February 1934 did not constitute estoppel and that the moneys advanced by the Society were not advanced at the defendant's request. He however held that the Society had made several requests to the defendant for transferring his shares in its favour, that Palante was not responsible for the non-performance of this part of the proposals and that the defendant did not hold 250 fully paid shares on 27th December 1933. On issue 7 he decided that the company's accounts had not been legally proved but on the general issue as framed as No. 9 he held that the defendant was bound in equity to reimburse the Society the sums he had actually received and accordingly passed a decree for Rs. 22,542-12-9 and proportionate costs against the defendant. From this decision the present appeal has been preferred.

It may be remarked at the outset that the appeal has been argued on the judgment as it stands. In other words, neither party has challenged those findings of the Court below which were against it; on the other hand, both parties have assumed the correctness of those findings while presenting their case to us. On behalf of the appellant it has been contended that having arrived at the conclusion that there was no completed contract between the parties, that the money was not advanced to the company at the defendant's request and that the defendant had not received the sum of Rs. 21,440-12-9 from the company, the Subordinate Judge could not make a decree against the defendant 'independent of contract' and merely on the ground of 'equity' as stated by him. Counsel for the respondent on the other hand has tried to support the decree of the trial Court mainly on the ground that for the sums advanced by the Society, the defendant had given receipts over his own signatures and having done so, he could not escape liability for the amounts thus received.

The question that falls for determination therefore is very simple. Could the defendant be called upon to repay the Society the amounts he received from the Society on behalf of the company in his capacity as chairman of the company, especially when it is admitted by the society itself that those amounts were advanced to the company or actually expended on matters connected with the company? To us it appears that to this question the answer cannot but be in the negative. In the letter Ex. P-6 which the defendant addressed to the attorney of the Society asking for an advance of Rs. 4000 to the company, no reference was made to the contract of guarantee now relied upon by the society nor had that contract been confirmed till then by the Society. Similarly in the receipt, Ex. P-7, all that was stated by the defendant was that the amount of Rs. 17,440-12-9 only was to be paid to the Delhi Cloth and General Mills Co. Ltd., in terms of the deed of transfer, dated 11th February 1934. No attempt has been made on the record to explain what the significance of these words is, what deed of transfer is referred to here and why this money was to be paid to the Delhi Cloth and General Mills Co. Ltd. All that has been said in this connection in para. 7 of the plaint is that various sums of money aggregating Rs. 17,908-4-9 were expended on 'securing of the lease of the factory site'. It is obvious that the defendant had not pledged his own security in receiving either of those sums. The defendant was admittedly chairman of the company and all sums paid to the company were to be received by him as such. No significance attaches therefore to these receipts and the defendant cannot be held personally liable for the amounts thus received.

Moreover, the Society by inserting condition No. 8 in reply to the offer of the defendant which contained only 7 conditions had definitely made a counter-offer which amounted to a rejection of the defendant's offer: see A I R 1926 Lah 645¹ and 52 R R 144.² Unless therefore it was proved that that condition was accepted by the defendant or that the events envisaged in that paragraph had materialized before payments were made, it cannot be said that the moneys advanced by the Society were being advanced on the basis of the contract of guarantee into which the defendant had entered with the Society. For the sums advanced to the company, the Society would in all justification have obtained a decree against the company but not having impleaded the company as a defendant in this action, their suit brought against the present defendant alone must fail, as he could be made liable only on the alleged contract of guarantee and that contract the Society has hopelessly failed to establish. On these grounds we allow the appeal, set aside the decree of the Court below and dismiss the plaintiff's suit with costs throughout.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal allowed.

1. Nihal Chand v. Amar Nath, (1926) 13 A I R Lah 645=98 I C 272.

2. Hyde v. Wrench, (1840) 52 R R 144=3 Beav 334=4 Jur 1106=49 E R 132.

* A. I. R 1938 Lahore 344

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Jai Ram — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Mt. Shiv Devi — Defendant —

Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 635 of 1937, Decided on 14 December 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Attock at Campbellpur, D/- 2nd February 1937.

* Maintenance—Decree for—Widow starting earning after decree—Decree cannot be reduced.

After a decree has been passed in favour of a widow for maintenance, the amount so decreed cannot be reduced if the widow happens to make her own living by personal exertions, because her income by personal exertions cannot be taken as her 'means': A I R 1934 Pat 99, Rel. on.

[P 344 C 2; P 345 C 1]

M. L. Puri — for Appellant.

Bishen Nath — for Respondent.

Din Mohammad J.—The sole question involved in this appeal is whether after a decree has been passed in favour of a widow for maintenance, the amount so decreed can be reduced if the widow happens to make her own living by personal exertions. Counsel for the appellant has referred us to certain authorities which lay down that the amount of maintenance may even after the passing of the decree be increased or decreased whenever there is such change of circumstances as would justify a change in the rate. For instance, if the income of the estate has materially increased it may be enhanced and if the income of the estate has diminished it may be reduced. But these authorities are not applicable to the present case. Nor are those authorities in point which lay down that in calculating the amount of maintenance the widow's stridhan should be taken into account, unless it is of an unproductive character such as clothes and jewels, inasmuch as no such property is involved in the present case. Here the main reason for the father-in-law's suit for the reduction of maintenance is that the widow is employed as a mistress in a Municipal Girls' School and that she is earning more than Rs. 50 a month. In our view, this cannot be treated as permanent income of the widow so as to justify any interference with the previous decree obtained by her. In fact, counsel for the respondent has produced a certified copy of the proceedings of the Municipal Committee showing that the widow was only recently served with a notice to relinquish her appointment in view of the financial stringency of the Municipal Committee and that faced with this situation she had consented to work on a reduced salary. It cannot be denied that this income is liable to be stopped at any time when her employers choose to do so and it is obvious that she cannot be forced to work for her own living if she does not wish to do so. Such income therefore cannot and should not be taken into account. In 12 Pat 869¹ at p. 875, the learned Judge who delivered the judgment has observed :

1. Saraswati Kuer v. Sheoratan Kuer, (1934) 21 A I R Pat 99=149 I C 738=12 Pat 869=15 P L T 372.

There is no doubt that under the general Hindu law a widow claiming maintenance claims it on the basis of her position in life and the position of the estate, having regard also to her means. But, in my judgment, a voluntary payment of a sum of Rs. 250 (by her brother) quite clearly cannot be taken into consideration in fixing the amount which she is entitled to from her husband's estate. A sum which is paid voluntarily cannot strictly be described as her 'means', by which term I apprehend is meant the sum to which she is either legally entitled or can lay claim to or the income of her stridhan estate.

We entirely agree with the interpretation put on the word 'means' in this judgment and conclude on that basis that the widow's present earnings cannot be utilized for reducing the maintenance allowed to her. Before concluding we may remark that the father-in-law had in a way misappropriated Rs. 1200, which was the separate property of the widow's husband, and the maintenance was fixed for the widow mainly on account of her having been deprived of this sum. The father-in-law has all along been in possession of this amount and has been using it for his own purposes and now that he is said to have lost it, he cannot be allowed to urge that the maintenance should be reduced as the estate has diminished in value. Counsel for the widow was prepared to forego her claim for maintenance for ever if the father-in-law was prepared to disgorge the sum so misappropriated by him, but counsel for the father-in-law refused to accept this proposal. Taking all the circumstances of the case into consideration, we uphold the decision of the District Judge and dismiss this appeal with costs.

B.D./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 345

ADDISON J.

Chanan Singh and others Accused — Petitioners.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Revn. No. 1011 of 1937, Decided on 12th November 1937, reported by Sess. Judge, Gurdaspur, D/- 10th July 1937.

Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 107 and 145 — Complaint under Ss. 107/145 — Magistrate omitting to draw up original order under S. 145 (1) and to affix its copy at the spot under

S. 145 (3)—All proceedings are vitiated—Final order is liable to be set aside.

Omission by a Magistrate in a complaint under Ss. 107/145, to draw up the necessary original order under S. 145 (1) and to affix its copy at the spot under S. 145 (3) vitiates all the proceedings and the final order passed therein is liable to be set aside : A I R 1915 Lah 232 ; A I R 1916 Lah 378 ; A I R 1925 Lah 368 ; A I R 1930 Lah 895 and A I R 1924 Lah 91, Rel. on. [P 346 C 2]

R. P. Khosla — for Petitioners.

Bashir Ahmad for Dr. Mohammad Alam — for Respondent (Complainant).

Facts.—The respondents to this petition, Ibrahim and another, brought a complaint in the Court of Malak Ata Mohammad, Magistrate, First Class, Gurdaspur, under Ss. 107/145, Criminal P. C., against the eight petitioners who are Sikhs. The parties both reside in village Kotli Surat-mali. According to the complaint the petitioners were in imminent danger of being victims of a breach of the peace at the hands of the other party who were preventing them from using khasra No. 2283 as a burial ground although it had always been used as such by them. The Magistrate took some preliminary evidence and then without recording any separate formal order under S. 145 (1), Criminal P. C., issued a notice to the opposite party mentioning that he had been moved under Ss. 107/145, Criminal P. C. and directing them to appear and show cause why they should not be called to execute bonds. It appears that no copy of any order was placed near field No. 2283. Four of these eight persons did appear and filed a written statement while it was reported the other four had refused service. The written statement is headed "written statement under S. 107, Criminal P. C." S. 145, Criminal P. C. is not mentioned. In the contents of the written statement they set out that they were in 'danger from the original petitioners and a reference is made to the field of which they say they always had possession. The Magistrate framed two issues : (1) Have the petitioners held possession of the disputed place within two months before filing the present petition ? Onus on the petitioners. (2) Is there any danger of the breach of the peace ? Onus on both sides. Evidence was led and the Magistrate recorded an order that the field was a graveyard and must remain in undisturbed possession of the petitioners before him, the other party being referred to the Civil Court for remedy. No order was passed directing the parties to execute bonds.

The proceedings are forwarded for revision on the following grounds:—Counsel has appeared for the original respondents and argued that the learned Magistrate had no jurisdiction in this case because he failed to record an order in writing under S. 145 (1), Criminal P. C., stating the ground on which he was satisfied the danger of breach of the peace existed concerning field No. 2283, and the learned Public Prosecutor has drawn my attention to a further irregularity in that the provision of S. 145 (3), Criminal P. C., about placing at least one copy in a conspicuous place near the subject of dispute has not been complied with. Various rulings were cited. According to 169 P L R 1915,¹ 22 P R 1916,² A I R 1925 Lah 368³ and A I R 1930 Lah 895,⁴ the view of the Lahore High Court appears to involve the conclusion that the Magistrate's final order in this case must be set aside as without jurisdiction from the start. In A I R 1924 Lah 91,⁵ the same initial error was held to vitiate proceedings unless a subsequent order substantially remedied it, as had apparently occurred in 15 P W R 1914 Cr⁶ cited by the counsel for the respondents before me. The only possible order on the record of this case which might be supposed to remedy the defect would be the frame of issues struck by the learned Magistrate coupled with the mention of S. 145, Criminal P. C., along with S. 107, Criminal P. C., in the notice issued and the fact that in the written statement the four respondents who contested in the lower Court did refer to possession of the field which is the cause of trouble. Evidence was in fact led in extenso by both parties about the field.

The learned counsel for the present respondents also quoted A I R 1932 All 446,⁷

1. Mt. Budhan v. Ram Rakha Mal, (1915) 2 A I R Lah 232=30 I C 452=16 Cr L J 628=169 P L R 1915.
2. Tara Chand v. Bihari Lal, (1916) 3 A I R Lah 378=36 I C 868=18 Cr L J 36=22 P R 1916.
3. Sher Khan v. Fazal Illahi, (1925) 12 A I R Lah 368=88 I C 601=26 Cr L J 1177=26 P L R 187.
4. Emperor v. Sis Ram, (1930) 17 A I R Lah 895=1930 Cr C 991=128 I C 313=32 Cr L J 139.
5. Hakam v. Ralia Ram, (1924) 11 A I R Lah 91=74 I C 79=24 Cr L J 751=4 Lah 66.
6. Mohammad Sharif v. Dhanpat Rai, (1914) 1 A I R Lah 295=23 I C 487=68 P L R 1914=15 P W R 1914 Cr=15 Cr L J 279.
7. Madan Mohan Lal v. Mt. Sheoraj Kunwar, (1932) 19 A I R All 446=1932 Cr C 558=141 I C 131=34 Cr L J 156=1932 A L J 503.

A I R 1933 All 264⁸ (a judgment by a Full Bench, one member of which was the present Hon'ble Chief Justice of the Lahore High Court) and the remarks in the commentary of Mr. Chitaley's Criminal Procedure Code, Vol. 1, p. 676. He argues that since both parties in this case led evidence about the field, it must be held that in spite of the lack of the initial order of the Magistrate there would be no case for setting aside the order on revision. I would especially point out that as in this case the respondents in the lower Court were unsuccessful, it is arguable that other persons on their side might also have appeared to contest the original petitioners' claim but for the omission of the Magistrate to affix the necessary notice which, I take it, is meant as general notice to the public at the spot. I accordingly forward the records of this case to the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court with a recommendation that if it be held that in this case the Magistrate's omission to draw up the necessary original order under S. 145 (1), Criminal P. C., and affix its copy at the spot under S. 145 (3), Criminal P. C., vitiates all the proceedings, the final order passed may be set aside.

Order.—For reasons given in the referring order, I accept the petition, set aside the orders of the Magistrate, First Class, and direct that the matter be proceeded with ab initio according to law by another Magistrate, First Class, to be nominated by the District Magistrate.

R.M/R.K.

Petition accepted.

8. Kapoor Chand v. Suraj Prasad, (1933) 20 A I R All 264=1933 Cr C 434=142 I C 537=34 Cr L J 414=55 All 301 (F B).

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 346

BLACKER J.

Pran Nath, Pleader, Ruper Accused — Petitioner.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Misc. No. 234 of 1937, Decided on 6th December 1937, for transfer of case from Dist. Magistrate, Ambala.

Criminal Trial—Transfer of case—Magistrate trying case shown to have had private interview with one of the parties and heard his version of case—That is sufficient ground for transfer of case to another Magistrate.

Where it is clear that the Magistrate trying a case has had an interview with one of the parties to the litigation privately and out of Court and has heard from that party his version of the facts, this fact is sufficient to disqualify the Magistrate from subsequently trying the case in his magisterial capacity, even though there may be no reasons for ascribing any prejudice or undue interest in the case to him. [P 347 C 1, 2]

Sham Lal — for Petitioner.

Hem Raj Mahajan for Advocate-General
— for the Crown.

Order.—The petitioner Mr. Pran Nath, pleader, Rupar, applies for the transfer of certain criminal litigation, in which he is a party, from the Court of the learned District Magistrate, Ambala. There are three main allegations in his petition: One is that the learned District Magistrate has dealt executively with the case by calling for a report of the facts from the Sub-divisional Officer. The second is that according to the affidavit of a gentleman of the name of Mr. Ganga Ram Sharma, the learned District Magistrate told Mr. Sharma that the opposite party in this litigation, Mr. N. Sen, a member of the Indian Civil Service, and an Assistant Commissioner in the District had told him that the petitioner had openly and badly abused him. According to Mr. Sharma, the learned District Magistrate was greatly impressed by Mr. Sen's version. The third ground is that in the cross-case against Mr. Sen, the learned District Magistrate has already passed an order adverse to the petitioner.

There is no substance in the third ground as obviously the learned District Magistrate has to decide these matters one way or the other and no prejudice can be inferred from this fact itself. With regard to the first ground, the learned District Magistrate has given an adequate explanation. I think that until this explanation was on the record, the petitioner had a reasonable apprehension on this ground, but now that the learned District Magistrate's report is before him, he should not have any such further apprehension. The second ground however appears to me to be more serious. There are no reasons for ascribing any prejudice or undue interest in this case to the learned District Magistrate; but the mere fact that he is unable to deny that he has had an interview with the opposite party in this litigation privately and out of Court and has heard from that party his version of the facts, is sufficient to disqualify him from subsequently trying the case in his magisterial capacity. I therefore accept this petition and direct that the case be transferred to the Court of the learned District Magistrate at Ludhiana, which is conveniently situated in relation to Rupar where the incidents are alleged to have taken place.

R.M./R.K.

Petition accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 347

TEK CHAND J.

Jawahir Singh — Plaintiff —

Petitioner.

v.

Ghulam Hassan and another —

Defendants — Respondents.

Civil Revn. No. 614 of 1937, Decided on 30th November 1937, from Senior Sub-Judge, Rawalpindi, D/- 29th April 1937.

Limitation Act (1908), S. 20—Debtor paying sum of money towards payment of amount due in bond and making endorsement to that effect on his handwriting on back—Payment not made towards interest as such nor appropriated by creditor towards interest — Such payment is sufficient to give fresh start for limitation.

Where a debtor pays a sum of money towards payment of the amount due from him on a bond and makes an endorsement to that effect in his own handwriting on the back of the bond and the payment is not made towards interest as such nor is it appropriated by the creditor towards interest, such payment gives the creditor a fresh period of three years from the date of payment within which to sue for the debt. Under the latter part of S. 20, it is not necessary that the writing should specify that the amount was paid in part payment of the principal as such: A I R 1937 Sind 95; A I R 1933 Lah 341 and A I R 1935 Mad 101, Foll.; A I R 1935 All 946 and A I R 1915 Lah 275, Disting.

[P 348 C 2]

Nihal Singh — for Petitioner.

Gulzari Lal Sehgal — for Respondents.

Order.—The plaintiff brought a suit for recovery of Rs. 270 on the basis of a bond dated 4th August 1930, which had been executed by defendant 1 in favour of defendant 2 and which the latter has subsequently assigned to the plaintiff. The suit was instituted on 1st August 1936, and in order to bring it within limitation, it was stated in the plaint that on 3rd August 1933 the defendant had paid Rs. 3 and had made an endorsement to that effect in his own hand on the back of the bond and had got it attested by a witness. Defendant 1 admitted the execution of the bond, but urged that it was without consideration. He denied that the endorsement was in his hand and further pleaded that the suit was barred by limitation. He also averred that the plaintiff was a money-lender and as he had not complied with the provisions of the Regulation of Accounts Act, he was not entitled to interest and costs. The trial Judge found for the plaintiff on all these points and decreed the suit against defendant 1. On appeal before the Senior Subordinate Judge, the only point argued on behalf of defendant 1 was that of limitation. The learned Judge agreed with the trial Court that the writing on the back of the promissory note evidencing the payment of Rs. 3 on 3rd August 1933, was in the handwriting of defendant 1, but he held that this was not sufficient to save limitation under S. 20, Lim. Act. On this finding he accepted the appeal of defendant 1 and dismissed the plaintiff's suit.

In support of his conclusion the learned Judge relied upon a Full Bench ruling of the Allahabad High Court reported in A I R 1935 All 946=58 All 261¹ and a decision of the Punjab Chief Court in A I R 1915 Lah 275.² It is clear that neither of these rulings has any application to this case. In the Allahabad case, it was held by majority, that where money is paid by a debtor without specifying whether the payment is towards interest or towards principal, leaving it to the option of the creditor to appropriate it as he likes, and the creditor appropriates it wholly towards interest, there is neither a payment of interest as such, nor a part payment of principal within the meaning of S. 20, Lim. Act, and therefore time is not extended. In that case the creditor had, soon after the payment, actually appropriated in his books the amount as having been paid towards interest. He could not therefore be allowed to urge subsequently that the payment had been made in part payment of the principal so as to save limitation. In the case before us, no appropriation towards interest had been made by the plaintiff. The ruling is therefore inapplicable. The facts of the Lahore case², and the point decided in it, were also different. There, the debtors owed the plaintiff a certain sum of money on a mortgage and they also had other dealings with him. In his books the plaintiff had a general account of the defendants, in which items due on the mortgage and also those relating to the other transactions were entered. It appears that the defendants had made certain payments in reduction of the general balance of account against them, but without intimating that any of such payments was to be appropriated in satisfaction of the interest due on the mortgage debt. It was held that such payments could not be treated as having been made in payment of interest as such so as to save the bar of limitation for recovery of the mortgage debt. This decision (if I may say so with respect) was correctly decided according to the law then in force. The payment not having been made towards interest as such it did not fall within the first part of S. 20. The second part of the section as it stood before its amendment in 1927, was also inapplicable, as the fact of the payment did not appear in the handwriting of the person making the same, and therefore it could not be treated as part payment of the principal, such as could have saved limitation. This case also is therefore of no assistance for the decision of the question before us.

In the present case, the acknowledgment of the payment of Rs. 3 has been proved to be in the handwriting of the defendant. It was not made towards interest as such, nor was it appropriated by the plaintiff towards interest. The payment was obviously made towards the principal, and under the latter part of S. 20, it is not necessary that the writing should specify that the amount was paid in part payment of the principal as such : see A I R 1937 Sind 95;³ cf. 14 Lah 580⁴ and 58 Mad 418⁵ at p. 526. Therefore, the plaintiff had a fresh period of three years from 3rd August 1933 within which to sue. I hold accordingly that the suit was instituted within limitation. All other points had been decided against the defendant in the trial Court; they were not raised before the Appellate Court, nor were they referred before me by counsel for the respondent. I accept the petition for revision, set aside the judgment of the Senior Subordinate Judge and restore that of the Court of first instance with costs throughout.

R.M./R.K.

Petition allowed.

1. Udeypal Singh v. Lakshmi Chand, (1935) 22 A I R All 946=159 I C 387=1935 A L J 1029=58 All 261 (F B).

2. Muin-ud-din v. Mahomed Ahmad, (1915) 2 A I R Lah 275=31 I C 782=68 P L R 1916.

3. Hari Ram Dowlat Ram v. Ram Singh Gopal Singh, (1937) 24 A I R Sind 95=168 I C 820=31 S L R 68.

4. Jagtu Mal-Sada Sukh Rai v. Charanji Lal-Fakir Chand, (1933) 20 A I R Lah 341=141 I C 611=14 Lah 580=34 P L R 514.

5. Lakshmi Naidu v. Gunnamma, (1935) 22 A I R Mad 101=154 I C 1053=58 Mad 418=68 M L J 470.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 349

MONROE J.

Ram Lal — Appellant.

v.

Chanan Dass and another —

Respondents.

First Appeal No. 160 of 1937, Decided on 7th December 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Shahpur at Sargodha, D/- 29th June 1937.

* (a) Succession Act (1925), S. 228—S. 228 dispenses with production of original will — But Court should consider validity of will if it is questioned.

The real object of S. 228 is to dispense with the production of the original will owing to its having been deposited in some other Court. The section is merely an enabling section and if the Court considers that there is a question to be decided relating to the validity of the will, such as the power of the testator to make a will, etc., the Court is bound to try that question before enabling the executor to act under the will.

[P 350 C 1]

(b) Succession Act (1925), Ss. 228 and 276 — Will deposited in foreign Court—Application for probate with copy of will — Letters of administration held could be granted or at least petition should be allowed to be amended.

When an application for probate has been made under S. 276 of a will of which a copy has been obtained, the true one being deposited in a foreign Court, and from the petition it is found that the application should have been for letters of administration under S. 228:

Held that the Court could grant letters of administration with a copy of the copy of the will annexed or at least could allow the petition to be amended: A I R 1917 Pat 209, Disting.

[P 350 C 1]

M. C. Sud — *for Appellant.*Inder Dev — for Respondents.

Judgment.—An application was brought in the Court of the District Judge, Shahpur at Sargodha, by Ram Lal for probate of the will of Guranditta Mal Sapra, his father, under S. 276, Succession Act. The prayer in the petition was that "the probate of the will (copy annexed) be granted to him". The testator died on 8th June 1934. These proceedings were instituted early in 1935 and as yet there has been no final decision of the matter. The case has now come before me on appeal from the order of the District Judge, Shahpur at Sargodha, who decided that the applicant must apply for letters of administration under S. 228, Succession Act, if so advised. The ground of the learned Judge's judgment was based on the barest technicality; but in order to understand the position it is necessary first to set out some facts relating to the case.

The testator died at Nairobi on 8th June 1934, leaving property, it is alleged, both there and in India. He made a will written in Urdu, which, on the face of it, was duly executed and when he died, an application for probate of this will was made in the Supreme Court of Kenya, and probate of the will was duly granted on 18th September 1934 to "Ram Lal Guranditta Mal of Nairobi the executor in the said will named". The evidence of the will and probate offered is the original probate of the will issued at Nairobi, the original will itself being retained in the Probate Registry there. The grant contains first a copy of the Urdu will and then a translation into English and is beyond question a document regularly issued by a Court of competent jurisdiction. Under the Succession Act, whether for probate or letters of administration with the will annexed, the normal course is that the original will should be lodged with the application, but S. 228 empowers the Court, when a will has been proved and deposited in a Court of competent jurisdiction situated beyond the limits of the Province, and a properly authenticated copy of the will is produced, to grant letters of administration with a copy of such copy annexed. It will be observed that this section gives power to grant letters of administration, but the difference in such a case between probate and letters of administration is little more than technical. The learned District Judge had before him two issues:

(a) Whether the Court at Nairobi had jurisdiction to grant probate for the property situate in British India; and (b) whether the objectors had notice and if not, what is the legal effect of this?

But in his judgment he points out that in addition to these two issues before him the arguments raised certain other points. These being:

(c) If the Nairobi Court had no jurisdiction to grant probate for the property in British India, could it grant probate of the will on the ground that the deceased was domiciled there at the time of his death and some at least of the property was situated within the jurisdiction of that Court?

(d) If so, what is the effect of the grant of that probate in the present case?

As to (a) he points out that the applicant never contended that the Court at Nairobi had jurisdiction to grant probate for property situated in British India and that the real question was that put by him at (c). He held that it was within the jurisdiction of the Nairobi Court, as it obviously was, to grant probate of a will dealing with property situated within its jurisdiction. On the final point at (d), as to the effect of the grant of probate on this case, he seemed to take the view that it was conclusive as between the parties and that whether notice was issued or not, the law of Kenya having been complied with, not only was the probate good in Nairobi but that all questions concerning the execution of the will and the like were finally determined. In my opinion, this is not the effect of S. 228, Succession Act. The real object of that section is to dispense with the production of the original will owing to its having been deposited in some other Court. It is well known that a Court of probate acting under the English practice retains for ever every original will of which probate has been granted by it. The section is merely an enabling section and if the Court in this country considers that there is a question to be decided relating to the validity of the will, I think that the Court is bound to try that question before enabling the executor to act under the will in this country.

The respondent in this case through his counsel insists that he wishes to attack this will on the ground that it has not been duly executed and also on the ground that the testator was not of sound mind when he executed it. He is entitled, in my opinion, to have this question tried before effect is given to the will in this country and though there is no indication on the record that there is any good ground for such allegations, it may be that the respondent could say that he has not yet had an opportunity of showing whether there was any substance in them. In the arguments before me it was suggested that the form of the application in this case was fatal and that the learned District Judge was right in rejecting the application on a technical ground. I do not agree with this view and I would be prepared to hold, if necessary, that as the application stands, the facts being all set out clearly in the petition, letters of administration under S. 228 could be granted to the petitioner; but in any event I am prepared to allow the amendment of the petition and I think it ought to be amended so as to alter the prayer to a prayer for letters of administration with a copy of the copy of the will contained in the grant of probate issued by the Supreme Court at Nairobi on 18th September 1934 annexed.

I may say that it was contended before me that there was no power to make such an amendment but the one case cited, 41 I C 279,¹ has no application to the circumstances of the present case. As I have said, the respondent must be allowed to substantiate his objections to the will, if he can do so, and accordingly I set aside the order of the learned Judge, dismissing the petition, and I direct the learned Judge to frame issues for the trial of questions relating to the validity of the will in accordance with the provisions of the Succession Act and to try the case on the merits and accordingly to give judgment either granting or refusing to grant letters of administration with a copy of the copy of the will on the record annexed, as the facts before him may justify. The costs of the proceedings up to the present will be costs in the cause.

B.D./R.K.

Order accordingly.

1. Behari Lal v. Ganga Dai, (1917) 4 A I R Pat 209=41 I C 279.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 350

TEK CHAND J.

Mt. Chawli and another — Defendants
— Appellants.

v.

Kidar Nath — Plaintiff — Respondent.

Second Appeal No. 834 of 1937, Decided on 16th December 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Delhi, D/- 3rd March 1937.

Civil P. C. (1908), O. 43, Rr. 1, 2 and O. 41, R. 1—Consolidated order recording compromise and granting decree in its terms—Appeal from such order filed with copy of order containing prayer that the order recording compromise and decree based thereon be set aside—Appeal held one under O. 43, R. 1 (m)—Copy of order is sufficient to satisfy O. 41, R. 1 read with O. 43, R. 2.

Where an appeal from the consolidated order recording the compromise and granting a decree in terms thereof was filed with a copy of such order and the appeal contained the prayer that the order recording the compromise and the decree based thereon be set aside and the case be remanded for trial on merits :

Held that the appeal was one under O. 43, R. 1 (m) and the further prayer that the decree passed in terms of the compromise be set aside was merely consequential : [P 351 C 1]

Held further that the copy of the consolidated order satisfied the requirements of O. 41, R. 1 read with O. 43, R. 2. [P 351 C 1]

Bishan Narain — for Appellants.

Shamair Chand — for Respondent.

Judgment.—This is an appeal from the judgment and decree of the District Judge, Delhi, dismissing the defendants-appellants' appeal to his Court, on the ground that it was incompetent in the form in which it had been brought. The decision is based on entirely untenable grounds and cannot be sustained. The trial Judge had recorded a compromise between the parties and had passed a decree in accordance therewith. In appeal the prayer was clearly stated to be that the order recording the alleged compromise and the decree based thereon be set aside and the case remanded for trial on the merits.

The provision of law, under which the appeal was preferred, was not stated but having regard to the "claim in appeal" as stated above, there can be no doubt that the appeal was one under O. 43, R. 1 (m), which allows an appeal from an order under R. 3 of O. 23, recording or refusing to record a compromise. The further prayer, that the decree passed in terms of the compromise be set aside, was merely consequential.

The principal reason given by the learned Judge for holding that the appeal, if it was from the order recording the compromise, was incompetent is that no copy of that order had been attached to the memorandum of appeal. This observation appears to have been made on a misapprehension. It is clear from the trial Court's order that there was only one consolidated order passed by it recording the compromise and granting the plaintiff a decree in terms thereof. A copy of this order had actually been filed by the appellants with the memorandum of appeal, and the requirements of O. 41, R. 1 read with O. 43, R. 2, had been fully complied with. The second reason for holding the appeal to be incompetent is that a court-fee of Rs. 10 had been paid on it, instead of a court-fee of Re. 1. This however appears to have been done by the appellants ex majore cautella. As already stated, the order of 14th October was a composite order, recording the compromise and passing a decree in its terms, and it seems that the appellants, in order to avoid all possible objection, had paid court-fee in excess of what was legally necessary. Obviously, this excess payment could not be made a ground for dismissal of the appeal. Mr. Shamair Chand, the learned counsel for the respondent, frankly conceded that he could not support the decision of the learned Judge on the grounds on which it is based. I hold that the appeal before the learned District Judge had been properly instituted and it should have been decided on the merits.

On this finding two courses were open to me—either to remand the case to the learned District Judge for decision of the only point arising in the appeal, whether a lawful compromise had been arrived at, or to transfer the appeal to this Court and decide the question myself. I considered that it would shorten the proceedings and tend to a speedy disposal of the case, if I adopted the latter course. Accordingly I have heard both counsel on the merits and have examined the record. I have no doubt that it is not possible to hold that a lawful compromise had been arrived at freely between the parties on 14th October 1937. The defendant Khacheru Mal is no doubt recorded as having agreed to the compromise, but he forthwith resiled from it and declined to sign the statement which he was recorded to have made. It seems quite clear that an effort was made to make him consent to the proposed compromise, but he does not appear to have been agreeable. Obviously, it is not possible to bind him to the alleged compromise in these circumstances. I accept the appeal, set aside the judgment of the Courts below and remit the case, through the District Judge, to the Court of first instance for trial of the suit on the merits. As the Subordinate Judge, who decided the case is no longer in Delhi, the learned District Judge will assign the case to another Subordinate Judge of competent jurisdiction. Court-fee on this appeal shall be refunded; other costs shall be costs in the cause.

V.B.B./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 351

BHIDE J.

Mt. Jan — Plaintiff — Appellant.

v.

Mt. Fajjan and another—Defendants—
Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 491 of 1937, Decided on 3rd November 1937, from decree of Dist. Judge, Rawalpindi, D/- 17th March 1937.

Power of attorney—Construction—Power of attorney executed by A in favour of B entrusting management of A's property with B—Power of sale also mentioned—Power of sale held must be exercised only if it was necessary for purpose of management.

One of the rules of construction of a power of attorney is that where authority is given to do particular acts, followed by general words, the general words are restricted to what is necessary for the proper performance of the particular acts.

[P 352 C 2]

A executed a power of attorney in favour of B whereby B was entrusted with the management of A's property as A was married and could not look after her estate. Power to mortgage and sell the property was also mentioned in the deed. B sold the property although there was no necessity of the sale for the purpose of management of the property :

Held that B was only authorised to sell the property when it was necessary for the purpose of the management of the property. As there was no necessity for the sale, the sale could not be upheld.

[P 353 C 1]

J. N. Aggarwal, Shamair Chand and Yashpal Gandhi — for Appellant.

Achhru Ram — for Respondents.

Judgment.—The material facts of the case giving rise to this second appeal may be briefly stated as follows : Mt. Jan, a young girl, on being married, executed a power-of-attorney in favour of her step-mother Mt. Fajjan on 6th April 1929. By this document Mt. Fajjan was authorized to manage the land of Mt. Jan, to realize rents and also to sell and mortgage the property. The relations between the two ladies apparently became strained later on and on 25th May 1934 Mt. Jan executed another document revoking the power-of-attorney and got it registered. A notice of the revocation was sent by registered post to Mt. Fajjan on 16th June 1934 but the notice was not accepted by Mt. Fajjan and was returned to Mt. Jan. Mt. Jan also sent an application to the Tehsildar on 18th June 1934 informing him of the revocation of the power-of-attorney. The revocation was also notified by beat of drum in the village. In spite of these facts, Mt. Fajjan sold the whole of the property belonging to Mt. Jan to Abdul Aziz, defendant 2, her nephew, on 8th November 1934. Thereupon Mt. Jan instituted the present suit for a declaration that the sale should not affect her rights. The defendants resisted the suit pleading that Mt. Fajjan had authority to sell the property, that the power-of-attorney had never been revoked and that the revocation had at any rate never been brought to the notice of Mt. Fajjan or the vendee Abdul Aziz. The trial Court found the issues in favour of the plaintiff and decreed the suit.

On appeal by the defendant Abdul Aziz, two main contentions were raised before the learned District Judge on behalf of Mt. Jan, viz. (1) that the sale was made after cancellation of the power-of-attorney of which cancellation both the defendants had knowledge, and (2) that the power-of-attorney conferred no right to sell the property. The learned Judge held on the first point that the revocation was not proved to have been brought to the notice of either of the defendants. On the second point he was of opinion that in view of the provisions of S. 237, Contract Act the plaintiff was bound by the acts of Mt. Fajjan, which fell within the scope of her authority. It seems to me that the second point is really the most important one in the case. The learned counsel for the appellant has contended that the power-of-attorney was really given to Mt. Fajjan for management of the property of the plaintiff as she was married and was not in a position to look after the land. The power to sell and mortgage was no doubt mentioned in the document but it was purely incidental to the power of management and was not meant to be exercised except when it was necessary for that purpose. Counsel relied in this respect on the law as laid down in Article 34 in Bowstead on Agency, Edition 8, which runs as follows :

Powers-of-attorney must be strictly pursued, and are construed as giving only such authority as they confer expressly or by necessary implication. The following are the most important rules of construction : (1) The operative part of the deed is controlled by the recitals. (2) Where authority is given to do particular acts, followed by general words, the general words are restricted to what is necessary for the proper performance of the particular acts.

Bearing in mind the above principles, the recitals in the power-of-attorney leave, I think, no doubt that the main object of the plaintiff was to entrust the management of the land to Mt. Fajjan, as she was married and was no longer in a position to manage it. It was obviously not the intention then to sell the property. If this had been so, the land would have been sold soon after the power-of-attorney had been executed. Mt. Fajjan has not given any explanation as to why the land was sold in the year 1934, some five years after the execution of the power-of-attorney. It is not suggested that there was any difficulty in connexion with the management of the property, which necessitated the sale. The sale cannot therefore be defended unless it be held that the power-of-attorney gave unqualified authority to Mt. Fajjan to sell the property whenever she liked. After carefully considering the recitals in the document and the circumstances in which the document was executed, I feel no doubt that there was no intention to give Mt. Fajjan any general power to sell the land. In this aspect of the question the respondents cannot get any assistance from the provisions of S. 237, Contract Act. The sale deed makes reference to the power of attorney, the contents of which must be presumed to have been known to the vendee Abdul Aziz. For the reasons stated above, it seems to me that the recitals in the document taken as a whole show clearly that Mt. Fajjan was only authorized to sell the property when it was necessary for the purpose of the management, (for example, it might have been necessary to sell part of the property if the land was encumbered and the debt could not be discharged otherwise). The vendee however did not trouble to ascertain why the sale of the land was necessary and consequently he cannot be protected.

The evidence on the record shows that Abdul Aziz was living with Mt. Fajjan for many years and the sale appears to have been collusive; but even apart from that question it seems to me that the sale cannot be upheld because it was not within the real scope of the authority given to Mt. Fajjan by the power of attorney. On the above finding it is not necessary to discuss any other issues. I accept the appeal and setting aside the decree of the learned District Judge, restore that of the trial Court with costs throughout.

D.S./R.K.

*Appeal accepted.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 353

TEK CHAND J.

Phaggu Shah — Decree-holder —
Appellant.

v.

Khair Din — Judgment-debtor —
Respondent.

Exn. Second Appeal No. 54 of 1937, Decided on 1st April 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Sialkot, D/- 20th October 1936.

(a) Punjab Alienation of Land Act (13 of 1900), S. 2 (3) — Scope — Land assessed to revenue is not necessarily 'land'.

The fact that the land is still assessed to revenue will not necessarily prove that it is 'land' as defined in S. 2 (3) : 60 I C 580 and A I R 1929 Lah 164, Rel. on. [P 353 C 2; P 354 C 1]

(b) Punjab Alienation of Land Act (13 of 1900), S. 2 (3) — Onus of proving property in dispute to be 'land' under S. 2 (3) is on judgment-debtor.

The onus of proving that the property in dispute is 'land' as defined in S. 2 (3) and therefore exempt from attachment and sale is on the judgment-debtor and not on the decree-holder.

[P 354 C 1]

Shamair Chand — for Appellant.

Malik Mohammad Amin — for Respdt.

Judgment. — This case has not been properly tried. There are several lacunæ in the evidence and it is not possible to come to a satisfactory conclusion on the point involved on the scanty materials on the record. The relevant facts are as follows: In execution of a money decree obtained by the appellant against the respondent, a plot of land, 13 marlas in area, bearing khasra No. 2808/1068/1069, situate at Mianapura, a suburb of Sialkot, and belonging to the judgment-debtor, was attached. The judgment-debtor objected that the plot was not liable to attachment, as he was a member of an agricultural tribe and the property attached was 'land' within the meaning of 2 (3), Punjab Alienation of Land Act. This was denied by the decree-holder who stated that the attached property had been included within the municipal limits of Sialkot and that it was a building site, surrounded on three sides by buildings, and on the fourth by the railway line, and that it was not being used, nor had it been left for agricultural purposes or purposes subservient to agriculture. The Subordinate Judge placed on the decree-holder the onus of proving that the property was not 'land' as defined in the Act. The only evidence produced in the case was that of the decree-holder's Mukhtar on the one side, and of the judgment-debtor himself on the other. The judgment-debtor admitted that for 15 or 16 years the land had not been cultivated. He also stated, that he does not own any other agricultural land. He said nothing as to the nature of the adjoining properties. In the application for execution and the warrant of attachment it had been stated that the land was under mortgage for Rupees 3000. No question appears to have been put to the judgment-debtor on this point; nor is it clear from the record, whether the statement in the decree-holder's application that the area in question had been included in the municipal limits of Sialkot is correct.

The learned Judges of the lower Courts, in upholding the judgment of the trial Court, have been largely impressed by the fact that the land was still assessed to revenue. This circumstance however will not necessarily prove that it was "land" as defined in S. 2, Punjab Alienation of Land Act (see 60 I C 580¹ and A I R 1929 Lah 164²). The learned Judges have also assumed that the land was uncultivated for eight harvests only. They appear to have overlooked the judgment-debtor's admission that it had remained uncultivated for 15 or 16 years. It was accordingly argued by the appellant's counsel, on the principle laid down in 78 I C 443,³ that the attached property was not exempt from attachment. There is considerable force in this contention. It seems to me however that it is necessary to make further enquiry on the point indicated above.

In my opinion the onus was wrongly placed on the decree-holder. It was on the judgment-debtor to prove that the property was "land" as defined in the Act and therefore exempt from attachment and sale. He must be given an opportunity to discharge this onus. I accordingly remand the case under O. 41, Rr. 25 and 27, to the Junior Subordinate Judge, Sialkot, to enable the judgment-debtor to produce further evidence on the point. The decree-holder will be allowed to lead evidence in rebuttal. The return shall be made within two months. Both counsel have been directed to cause their respective clients to appear before the Junior Subordinate Judge, Sialkot, on 19th of April 1937.

W.D./A.L.

Case remanded.

1. Muhammad Said v. Shaw Nawaz, (1921) 60 I C 580.
2. Uttam Chand v. Khodaya, A I R 1929 Lah 164=115 I C 417=30 P L R 516.
3. Gopi Mal v. Muhammad Yasin, A I R 1924 Lah 657=78 I C 443.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 354

TEK CHAND J.

Maghi Mal — Petitioner.

v.

Mohammad Ali and others —

Respondents.

Civil Revn. No. 490 of 1937, Decided on 8th November 1937, from order of Additional District Judge, Ferozepore, D/- 10th March 1937.

Punjab Alienation of Land Act (13 of 1900), S. 2 (3) — "Land" — Scope of definition.

Plot of land originally belonging to a non-agri-records till recently as banjar, and which is situated in municipal limits in a new abadi is not 'land' as defined in the Alienation of Land Act : A I R 1924 Lah 657 and A I R 1938 Lah 353, Rel. on.

[P 354 C 2]

Shamair Chand — *for Petitioner.*R. P. Khosla — for Respondents.

Order. — One Imam Din, a Jat, was adjudicated insolvent in 1935 and his property vested in the Official Receiver. A part of this property consisted of a plot of land one kanal in area, situate within the municipal limits of the town of Zira. The Official Receiver has now sold this plot. The sons of Imam Din (who died in the meantime) objected that the plot in question is 'land' as defined in the Punjab Alienation of Land Act and therefore the Receiver had no power to sell it. The objection was allowed by the Insolvency Judge and the sale annulled. This order was upheld on appeal by the District Judge. The petitioner, who is a creditor of Imam Din, feeling himself aggrieved by this order, has presented a petition for revision under S. 75, Provincial Insolvency Act. He urges that the order of the Courts below is not in accordance with law as on the facts found by them the plot in question has been wrongly held to be 'land' as defined in the Punjab Alienation of Land Act.

The facts found are that this land originally belonged to one Choghatta, a Jhiwar (non-agriculturist), from whom Imam Din purchased it for Rs. 200. The revenue entries in the jamabandi for 1924-25 to 1933-34 describe the land as banjar kadim. This means that the land was not cultivated from 1921-22. The Girdawaris of 1935 and Rabi 1936 also show the land to be banjar. In the Kharif of 1936, it was described as sown with bajra. This was however after the order of adjudication had been passed, when the property had vested in the Receiver. The evidence on the record also establishes that the site is within the municipal limits and is in the midst of the new abadi. Houses have been built to the west and to the south and there are houses under construction to the east. To the north is a thoroughfare. On these facts there can be no doubt that the plot in question is not 'land' as defined in the Act : see 78 I C 443¹ and S. A. No. 54 of 1937.² The learned counsel for

1. Gopimal v. Muhammad Yasin, (1924) 11 A I R Lah 657=78 I C 443.
2. Phaggushah v. Khair Din, (1938) 25 A I R Lah 353.

the respondent emphasizes the fact that bajra had been sown in Kharif 1936. There is no doubt that this had been done merely with a view to defeat the sale in question. The plot in question is urban immovable property and the Receiver was entitled to sell it. I accept the petition for revision and set aside the orders of the Courts below annulling the sale. The objections filed by the sons of the insolvent are dismissed. The petitioner will have his costs from the respondents in all Courts.

R.M./R.K.

*Petition allowed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 355

YOUNG C. J. AND ABDUL RASHID J.

Aziz Ahmad Jan MohammadConvict — Appellant.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Appeal No. 1120 of 1937, Decided on 3rd January 1938, from order of Sessions Judge, Gurdaspur, D/- 31st August 1937.

Criminal Trial—Murder—Sentence—Accused fatally stabbing deceased as result of deceased making and publishing denunciations against leader of his community in a poster—Accused having knowledge of poster for at least two days before offence—Held there was no grave and sudden provocation and sentence of death passed was proper.

In considering whether the sentence of death imposed upon an accused committing a murder out of religious zeal is proper or not, it would be dangerous in this country for the High Court to give cause for belief that death should not as a rule result from murders even when they are committed for attacks on leaders of religious communities or under their influence unless they are committed in circumstances which do amount to grave and sudden provocation. [P 357 C 2]

Conditions being as they are in India, it is most dangerous for leaders of religious communities to attack publicly their religious opponents from the pulpit and in particular to use such language by which some one may be easily influenced to commit murder. There are always fanatics in this country who believe that they are the instruments of God in carrying out such punishments. [P 357 C 2]

The accused fatally stabbed the deceased in the chest as a result of the deceased making and publishing certain denunciations against the leader of his (accused's) community in a poster. The accused had knowledge of the poster for at least two days before he committed the offence :

Held that there was no grave and sudden provocation and the accused was guilty under S. 302, I. P. C. Although it was difficult to entirely dissociate the death of the deceased from denunciations made by him and from the speeches made by the head of the community to which the accused belonged, there was clearly premeditation on the part of the accused to commit the murder. The sentence of death passed under the circumstances of the case was proper. [P 357 C 1]

Bashir Ahmad — for Appellant.

Diwan Ramlal, Advocate-General and R. C. Soni for Advocate-General —
for the Crown.

Young C. J. — Aziz Ahmad has been convicted by the learned Sessions Judge of Gurdaspur for the murder of Fakhar-ud-Din and for wounding Abdul Aziz. The learned Sessions Judge sentenced Aziz Ahmad to death on the charge under S. 302 and to one year's rigorous imprisonment under S. 324, I. P. C. Aziz Ahmad appeals to this Court. Fakhar-ud-Din was a follower till recently of the Khalifa of the Qadian Ahmadis. Both the deceased and one Misri Abdul Rehman, who also had been a follower of the Khalifa Sahib, had been turned out, or had retired, from the orthodox Ahmadis on disagreement with the Khalifa. They formed a separate Anjuman the main object of which appears to have been to oppose the Khalifa Sahib. They lived in Qadian, and as Qadian is mostly inhabited by orthodox Ahmadis, this naturally led to trouble with the orthodox community. According to the evidence the members of the opposition Anjuman were boycotted and their houses picketted. They were clearly in a very unpleasant position. The deceased had made several reports at the police station concerning the actions of the orthodox Ahmadis against him. On 23rd July 1937 the Khalifa himself addressed a meeting at the mosque and made a long personal attack on Misri Abdul Rehman and his followers. This speech was published in the "Alfazel" which is the orthodox Ahmadi newspaper, on 1st August 1937. The "Alfazel" report is exhibited on the record as Ex. P. T. In this speech the Khalifa Sahib protested against the attacks of the rival Anjuman and in particular against the attacks on his character. He made a counter attack upon his opponents. Inter alia he said :

But if they persist in raising filthy objections—as they are doing — and making ignoble attacks—as it is rumoured that they and their associates are contemplating—and do not repent I assert that even modesty will take leave of their families not to talk of the Ahmadi faith. I say in clearer words that you should not consider it inconceivable if as a result of the base and immodest attacks that they are making, their families become a centre of immorality.

It is alleged by some witnesses for the Crown that he used the word "brothel" in his original speech. The Khalifa Sahib also said :

Hence, whoever opposes the Caliphs these days, strikes an axe on the practical life of Islam and the belief of the world. God Almighty therefore destroys his faith by way of punishment for his sin. But in former times opposition used to cause only political loss to Islam. Therefore the opposers used to get some corporal punishment. They never used to get such heavy spiritual punishment.

Further he said :

God Almighty has, by his action, shown a marked difference between the past and the present. Hence whoever turns against the Caliphate to-day deserves a far heavier punishment than his predecessors. If anybody persists in opposing the Caliphate and does not repent, it is certain that he will completely lose his faith and tomorrow, if not to-day, will start making attacks on Hazrat Masih Maud (peace be on him). Then it is quite possible that he may, as a result of this punishment, lose his good manners and modesty and bashfulness may say good-bye to him for ever. Hence, punishment varies with the circumstances of the time. The circumstances of the past were quite different from those of the present. Those who oppose the Caliphate now will certainly get such punishments as will be exemplary in the extreme and their faith will doubtless be affected according to the degree of their opposition and enmity.

That the Khalifa Sahib made these statements is not contested by counsel in this Court. As an answer to this speech, and in particular as a protest against the statement of the Khalifa that "their families become a centre of immorality", Fakhar-ud-Din exhibited a poster (Ex. P W 3/1) near his house in the Qadian Bazar on 5th August. The last portion of the poster reads as follows :

For this very reason we are demanding an enquiry by an open commission from the community, so that all the facts, evidence and secrets may be placed before it for decision as to whose family is the resort of immorality, or in other words is what was uttered by the Khalifa.

This poster is signed by Fakhar-ud-Din as Secretary, Majlis Ahmadia. There was another meeting of the orthodox Ahmadis on 6th August at the mosque in the morning and also another in the evening. At these meetings, according to the evidence of Sub-Inspector Lala Karam Chand, more speeches were made against the deceased. On that day Fakhar-ud-Din made the following complaint at the police station :

Exhibit P. H.

The Majlis-i-Ahmadia, Qadian (India).

To

The Officer-in-Charge,
Police Post, Qadian.

Sir,

To-day, the Khalifa of Qadian has excited the Ahmadia community against the members of the orthodox Ahmadian Qadian by making a most inflammatory speech at the time of Jumma prayers. Great excitement prevails amongst the Ahmadia public as a result of that and a proclamation is being made now for holding a meeting at night also. As this is likely to cause further excitement, the following members of the Majlis-i-Ahmadia apprehend danger to their lives and property. It is, therefore, requested that speedy arrangements be made for their safety.

Sd./- Fakhar-ud-Din,

Multani, Secretary Majlis-i-Ahmadia.

1. Sheikh Abdul Rehman Misri with his family near Bheni Bangar.
2. Fakhar-ud-Din, Multani with his family Mohalla Bab-ul-Anwar.
3. Qureshi Mohammad Sadiq Sahib, Sheikh with family Mohalla Darul Barkat near the mosque.
4. Hakim Abdul Aziz, Mohalla Bab-ul-Anwar.
5. Abdul Rab Khan Sahib in the Bungalow of Sir Mohammad Zafar-Ullah.

On 7th August Fakhar-ud-Din was murdered by the appellant while he was on his way to the police station, accompanied by Hakim Abdul Aziz and Bashir Ahmad, in order to ask for protection for himself and his associates. They had heard a rumour that there was a conspiracy to take their lives. Whether the rumour was founded on fact or not, while on the way to the police station the appellant came up in front of Fakhar-ud-Din and suddenly, without any warning, stabbed him with a knife in the chest. He also wounded Hakim Abdul Aziz on the shoulder and on the cheek with the knife. Fakhar-ud-Din was taken to the police chauki. He refused to go to the local Qadian hospital as it was an orthodox Ahmadia institution. The appellant was arrested at once. Fakhar-ud-Din was taken in a lorry to Gurdaspur and eventually died there some days later. There is no doubt that the wound given to the deceased by the appellant was responsible for his death.

The evidence consists of several dying declarations made by the deceased and the evidence of Hakim Abdul Aziz, Bashir Ahmad, Dr. Gurbakhsh Singh, whose place of business was on the spot, and Maghar Singh. These witnesses clearly establish the case for the Crown as regards the attack on the deceased. The appellant himself admits in his statement in the Sessions Court that he stabbed the deceased. He says that he was provoked by the language of the poster, and that the day he attacked Fakhar-ud-Din was the first time he had seen him since the poster had been put up. He admits however that the poster had been put on the notice board some days before he attacked the deceased. The killing of Fakhar-ud-Din having been admitted by the appellant, it is for him to show that his case comes under any of the exceptions to S. 300, Penal Code. The sole point taken by counsel is that his action was caused by grave and sudden provocation. It is alleged that the putting up of the poster amounts to this. While the terms of the poster, though somewhat obscure, might be provocative to an orthodox Ahmadi if he thought that Fakhar-ud-Din was attacking the family of the Khalifa—which is not clear—we cannot agree that this amounts either to grave or sudden provocation. The appellant had had knowledge of the poster for at least two days. The provocation therefore cannot be said to be sudden. There can be no doubt that the appellant is guilty of an offence under S. 302, Penal Code, that is of murder.

With regard to the sentence of death imposed upon the appellant, we have in fairness to him, considered a point which was not taken for him by his counsel, who is himself an orthodox Ahmadi: that is that the speeches of the Khalifa might have influenced the appellant in committing the murder; that he might be said to be acting, as a result of these speeches, under the influence of the head of his community whom, the appellant says in his grounds of appeal, he loves more than his life, property, honour and every other worldly relation, and that therefore he ought not to be condemned to death, but that the alternative sentence of transportation for life would be appropriate. While we think we may in fairness to the accused infer that as a zealous Ahmadi he attended the meetings in the mosque on 23rd July and 6th August 1937, or that he read the "Alfazel" of 1st of August, and therefore that he was acquainted with the speeches of the Khalifa Sahib, we do not think after giving the matter most anxious consideration, that this is any ground for us to reduce the sentence. While it is difficult entirely to dissociate the death of Fakhar-ud-Din from the denunciations in the mosque, the appellant clearly had determined on the murder. There was therefore premeditation. He awaited his opportunity and found it when the deceased and his companions were walking in the street. The attack was made without the least opportunity for defence and according to the appellant's own statement, to teach the deceased a lesson. The appellant must at least have known that to stab the deceased in the chest was likely in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. We consider it would be dangerous in this country to give cause for belief that death would not as a rule result from murders, even when they are committed for attacks on leaders of religious communities, or under their influence unless they are committed in circumstances which do amount to grave and sudden provocation.

We feel it our duty to say that, conditions being as they are in India, it is most dangerous for leaders of religious communities to attack publicly their opponents from the pulpit, and, in particular, to use the language that has been used by the Khalifa Sahib with regard to Misri Abdul Rehman and his followers; someone may easily be influenced thereby to commit murder. This is not the first time in India that death has followed hard on the heels of similar denunciations. Even if we accept, as contended by counsel for the appellant, that the Khalifa Sahib referred to punishment in the spiritual sense, it must be remembered that some zealous followers of any religious leader have difficulty in distinguishing spiritual from corporal punishment. In any event there are always in this country fanatics who believe that they are the instruments of God in carrying out such punishments. We must confirm the sentence of death passed upon Aziz Ahmad and dismiss his appeal.

R.M./R.K.

Sentence confirmed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 357

ADDISON AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.

Hukam Chand — Defendant — Appellant.

v.

Ramji Das, Plaintiff and another, Defendant — Respondents.

Second Appeals Nos. 531 to 533 of 1937 and Civil Revision No. 375 of 1937, Decided on 25th November 1937, from decrees of Addl. District Judge, Ludhiana, D/- 2nd April 1937.

(a) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115—Error by lower Court in drawing certain presumptions and conclusions is no ground for revision.

Even where lower appellate Court has committed an error of law in drawing certain presumptions and in arriving at certain conclusions it would not afford any ground for revision.

[P 358 C 2]

* (b) Second Appeal — Erroneous finding of fact is no ground for second appeal. Question whether statutory presumption is rebutted by rest of evidence is question of fact.

There is no jurisdiction to entertain a second appeal on the ground of erroneous finding of fact, however gross the error may seem to be. The proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law, but the question whether a fact has been proved when evidence for and against has been properly admitted is necessarily a pure question of fact. The question whether a statutory presumption is rebutted by the rest of the evidence is a question of fact. [P 359 C 1]

(c) Second Appeal — Finding of fact — Question whether execution of document is genuine — Lower Court not impressed with mere presence of thumb-marks of executant but relying on other strong evidence in coming to conclusion that execution was genuine — His decision cannot be interfered with in second appeal.

It is true that a document is said to be executed only if it is proved to have been consciously signed or thumb-marked after the alleged executant had become aware of its contents and that the mere presence of a signature or a thumb-mark on a document may not in certain cases in itself amount to a proof of its execution. But where the Judge has not been impressed by the mere presence of the thumb-marks on the document in question, but there are certain other attending circumstances which have influenced his mind while formulating his conclusions that execution of document is genuine, his decision cannot be interfered with in second appeal: A I R 1928 All 16, Ref.; A I R 1931 Pat 219, Disting. [P 359 C 2; P 360 C 1]

Mehr Chand Mahajan, J. N. Aggarwal and Yashpal Gandhi — for Appellant.

Badri Das and J. L. Kapur — for Respondent (Plaintiff).

Din Mohammad J. — This judgment will dispose of Civil Appeals Nos. 531 to 533 of 1937 and Civil Revision No. 375 of 1937. They have arisen out of four suits instituted against the appellant Hukam Chand for recovery of various amounts advanced on four promissory notes alleged to have been executed on four different dates ranging from the 27th May 1929, to the 21st September 1930. All the promissory notes in suit are said to have been executed originally in favour of the respondent Sham Lal, but one of them was prior to the institution of the suits transferred by him to one Ramji Das who consequently figured as a plaintiff in one of the four suits and is the principal respondent in one of the three appeals before us. The defendant Hukam Chand resisted the suits on the grounds that he had not executed the promissory notes in suit, that the promissory notes were forged and fictitious, that Sham Lal had ample opportunity to secure his thumb impressions even if they were found to be genuine and that the defendant was in affluent circumstances and did not stand in need of raising any loan from the plaintiff whose financial credit was at a low ebb. The Subordinate Judge, who tried the suits, upheld the pleas raised by the defendant and dismissed all the four suits. On appeal the Additional District Judge reversed the decrees of the trial Court holding that both the execution of the promissory notes in suit and their consideration had been established.

So far as the petition for revision is concerned, it can be disposed of on the short ground that it cannot be entertained under S. 115, Civil P. C. There is neither any exercise of a jurisdiction which was not vested in the lower Appellate Court by law, nor any failure to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, nor does it appear to have acted in the exercise of its jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity. The main point urged against the judgment of the lower Appellate Court is that it committed an error of law in drawing certain presumptions and in arriving at certain conclusions. But even if this be so, it would not afford any ground for revision. This petition therefore stands dismissed. The rule for entertaining second appeals was enunciated as long ago as 1890 by their Lordships of the Privy Council in a case reported in 18 Cal 23.¹ It was held that under the Code no second appeal will lie, except on the grounds specified in S. 584 (which now corresponds to S. 100, Civil P. C., 1908). There is no jurisdiction to entertain a second appeal on the ground of erroneous finding of fact, however gross or inexcusable the error may seem to be. Where there is no error or defect in the procedure, the finding of the first Appellate Court upon a question of fact is final, if that Court had before it evidence proper for its consideration in support of the findings.

In 46 Cal 189,²

where it was found that an appeal to the High Court was not within any of the grounds in S. 584, but that nevertheless the High Court had entertained the appeal, reversed the decree of the District Judge on questions of fact, making suggestions of prejudice and unreasonable assumptions on his part for which there was no justification, and so revising the evidence with which it was not competent to deal, it was held that the High Court had exceeded its jurisdiction by exercising functions completely circumscribed by the provisions of a statute passed for the express purpose of securing some measure of finality in cases where the balance of evidence, verbal and documentary, arose for decision.

1. Durga Chowdharani v. Jewahir Singh, (1894) 18 Cal 23=17 I A 122=5 Sar 560 (P C).
2. Nafar Chandra Pal v. Shukur Sheikh, (1918) 5 A I R P C 92=51 I O 760=46 Cal 189=45 I A 183 (P C).

Their Lordships further observed :

Questions of law and fact are sometimes difficult to disentangle. The proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law ; so also is the question of admissibility of evidence, and the question of whether any evidence has been offered on one side or the other; but the question whether the fact has been proved when evidence for and against has been properly admitted is necessarily a pure question of fact.

Holding that the judgment of the High Court really amounted to no more than a finding that upon the documents and evidence placed before the District Judge the High Court would have come to a different conclusion and that this revision of evidence was excluded by the limited character of the appeal, its judgment was set aside.

In 11 Lah 199,³ S. 100, Civil P. C. was again the subject of discussion before their Lordships and they enunciated the following propositions, among others, for the guidance of the Courts ;

(1) There is no jurisdiction to entertain a second appeal on the ground of erroneous findings of fact, however gross the error may seem to be ;

(2) The proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law, but the question whether a fact has been proved when evidence for and against has been properly admitted is necessarily a pure question of fact.

In the course of their judgment it was further observed that "the question whether a statutory presumption is rebutted by the rest of the evidence is a question of fact". Applying these principles to the appeals before us, we are forced to the conclusion that these appeals are concluded by findings of fact which we have no jurisdiction to disturb. The Additional District Judge considered each and every item of evidence which had been placed on the record on either side and it was only after full discussion of those items that he came to his own conclusions as regards the execution of the promissory notes in question as well as the passing of consideration on those documents. Sitting as a Court of first appeal, we might have come to a different conclusion, but that alone, as stated above, would not justify any interference with these findings.

Counsel for the appellant has contended that a question of law arises in this case, inasmuch as the Additional District Judge has misdirected himself as to the true legal import of the 'execution' of a document and has wrongly held that execution is established as soon as the identity of a thumb-mark or a signature of the alleged executant on the document is proved. It is true that a document is said to be executed only if it is proved to have been consciously signed or thumb-marked after the alleged executant had become aware of its contents and that the mere presence of a signature or a thumb-mark on a document may not in certain cases in itself amount to a proof of its execution. But in the present case, the Additional District Judge has not been impressed by the mere presence of the thumb-marks on the documents in question; but there are certain other attending circumstances which appear to have influenced his mind while formulating his conclusions. Counsel for the appellant has referred to A I R 1931 Pat 219⁴ in support of his contention but, in our opinion, that judgment is distinguishable on facts. To this case, if at all, 50 All 145⁵ is applicable which was distinguished in the Patna ruling. The following observations of Ashworth J. are to the point :

On these findings the lower Appellate Court came to an extraordinary conclusion. It was that somehow or other the thumb-impression of Deosaran had been fraudulently obtained upon the document and that the defendant had failed to show that it was Deosaran's thumb-impression voluntarily impressed on the document. In order to give any meaning to this decision we have to suppose that the Subordinate Judge conceived the possibility either of a die having been made from some other thumb-impression of Deosaran and a forged impression by means of the die impressed on the document in question or that Deosaran's thumb impression had been obtained when he was asleep or drunk. . . . The presumption which the lower Appellate Court failed to make in this case was a presumption that when signature on a document is proved by a certain person, it is for that person to prove that it was affixed by him otherwise than voluntarily. According to Taylor on Evidence, Edn. 3, p. 145, 'Courts of law are in general bound to presume prima facie in favour of deeds which appear to have been duly executed'. 'Appear' must mean here 'which bear a proved signature'.

It cannot be said, in these circumstances that the finding of the Additional District Judge as regards the execution of the documents in question was in any way contrary to law. There are no doubt certain circumstances in the case which tend to create a suspicion in one's mind that the documents might not be genuine ; but on the other hand, there are equally strong circumstances which incline one's mind to the other side. This being so, it was open to the Additional District Judge to lean to one side rather than the other and this conduct on his part is not open to criticism on second appeal. We accordingly hold that these appeals are not entertainable. We dismiss them; but in the peculiar circumstances of the case, we leave the parties to bear their own costs before us both of the appeals and the revision.

3. Wali Muhammad v. Mohammad Baksh, (1930) 17 A I R P C 91=122 I C 316=57 I A 86=11 Lah 199 (P C).

4. Ram Lakhani Singh v. Gog Singh, (1931) 18 A I R Pat 219=134 I C 695=12 P L T 293.

5. Sita Ram v. Nanku, (1928) 15 A I R All 16=106 I C 250=50 All 145=25 A L J 893.

D.S./R.K.

*Appeals dismissed.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 360

DALIP SINGH J.

Nanak Chand — Plaintiff — Appellant.
v.

Gandu Ram and others — Defendants
— Respondents.

Second Appeal No. 1020 of 1937, Decided on 13th January 1938, from decree of Senior Sub-Judge, Gurdaspur, D/- 10th May 1937.

(a) Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 43—Certain share of person sold at Court sale though such person not entitled to any share at time of sale—Person subsequently becoming entitled to such share—Such person cannot be compelled to make good from such share title conveyed to vendee at Court sale.

Where certain share of a person is sold by a Court sale though in fact he was not entitled to any such share at the time of the sale but subsequent to the sale has become entitled to such share, such person in equity would not be compelled to make good from the share which he subsequently acquires the title conveyed to vendee at the Court sale because there can be no question of equities in the case of a Court sale. [P 361 C 1]

(b) Hindu Law—Joint family—Coparcener's share in coparcenary property is of fluctuating nature.

A coparcener's share in the coparcenary property, is not a fixed or certain thing; it is a fluctuating interest which on partition may or may not lead to a share falling to a particular coparcener. [P 361 C 1]

C. L. Aggarwal and Durga Das Jain —
for Appellant.

Shamair Chand — for Respondents.

Judgment. — Nanak Chand, plaintiff, obtained a money decree against one Puran Chand and in execution of this decree he brought the 1/6th share of Puran Chand in one shop and two houses to sale and purchased it himself in 1925. In 1929 he obtained joint possession along with the other co-sharers. In 1932 he conveyed 1/6th share in one house to Gandu Ram, one of the cosharers. On 21st July 1936 he brought the present suit for partition of the share acquired by him in one shop and one house. The remaining cosharers raised various pleas but important pleas for the purposes of this appeal were that the house had belonged to one Lal Ditta who had six sons of whom Puran Chand, judgment-debtor of Nanak Chand, was one, that Lal Ditta was still alive or, at any rate, was not dead at the time when the share of Puran Chand was sold, and therefore Puran Chand had no 1/6th share at that time and therefore Nanak Chand, plaintiff, had acquired nothing under the said sale and therefore had no title on which to base his suit for partition.

The trial Court held that the property was ancestral, that Lal Ditta and his six sons formed a joint Hindu coparcenary and Puran Chand had no 1/6th share and the share of such a coparcener could not be attached and sold and the other coparceners could have avoided even a voluntary sale by a coparcener of a specified share, that there was no proof that Lal Ditta was dead at the time of the suit and no proof that he was dead at the time of the sale in 1925, that the purchase by Gandu Ram might estop him but could not estop the others and therefore that Nanak Chand, plaintiff, had not proved any title on which to base the suit for partition and therefore it dismissed the case. On appeal the learned Senior Subordinate Judge held that Lal Ditta had last been heard of in 1921; the presumption was that in 1936 he was dead, but that there was no presumption as to the date of death and therefore it was not shown that he was dead at the time of the sale in 1925, that Puran Chand was not proved to be the owner of 1/6th share at the time of the sale and there was no proof of any disruption of the joint Hindu family at that time or at any subsequent time and that therefore the plaintiff had acquired nothing by the purchase and that no question arose of Puran Chand now making good the title then conveyed as it was not a voluntary sale and therefore dismissed the appeal but left the parties to bear their own costs in both Courts.

The plaintiff has come in second appeal and his learned counsel has contended that there was no presumption as to the date of death of Lal Ditta but the circumstances of the case show that he must have been dead in 1925. I am unable to follow this contention or the further contention that the onus of showing that Lal Ditta was alive in 1925 lay on the defendants. I am unable to hold that the circumstances raise any presumption as to the date of Lal Ditta's death. The plaintiff asserted that he had rightly purchased a 1/6th share in the property, namely the share of Puran Chand; it was for him to show that this assertion, which implies that Lal Ditta was dead, was true in fact and therefore the onus lay on him. The next contention of the learned counsel was that under the principles governing S. 18, Specific Relief Act and S. 43, T. P. Act, now that Puran Chand had a 1/6th share in the property, equity would compel him to make good from his share the title conveyed to the plaintiff by the Court sale in 1925. The proposition is not supported by any authority and it seems to me that there can be no question of any equities in the case of a Court sale and hence this contention is also unfounded.

The last contention was that Puran Chand, at any rate, had some right, title or interest in the property. If Lal Ditta were dead in 1925, then on partition the right, title or interest would have amounted to a 1/6th share in the property; if Lal Ditta were alive, the right, title or interest would have amounted on partition to 1/7 share of the property. But the learned counsel contends that though what was sold was a 1/6th share, it must be deemed to convey the right, title or interest of Puran Chand in the property at that time and now, when the suit is brought for partition, the right, title or interest of Puran Chand should fall to the plaintiff's share in partition. It is however difficult to hold that a sale of a 1/6th share should be deemed to be a sale of the right, title or interest. A coparcener's share in the coparcenary property is not a fixed, or certain thing; it is a fluctuating interest which on partition may or may not lead to a share falling to a particular coparcener. I therefore do not think on the whole that it is possible to deem the sale of 1/6th share to be a sale of the right, title or interest. On the whole therefore I consider that the opinion of the learned Senior Subordinate Judge was correct and the appeal must be dismissed with costs. I order accordingly.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

* A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 361

FULL BENCH

DALIP SINGH, MONROE AND DIN MOHAMMAD JJ.Jagat Ram — Defendant — Appellant.
v.Misar Kharaiti Ram and another,
Plaintiffs and others, Defendants —
Respondents.

Letters Patent Appeal No. 29 of 1937, Decided on 17th December 1937, against Judgment of Bhide J., D/- 4th January 1937, reported in A I R 1937 Lah 392.

* (a) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 7, R. 11 and S. 149—Power under O. 7, R. 11 is discretionary and the wording of S. 149 does not stand in its way — (Per Din Mohammad and Goldstream JJ. in Order of Reference.)

It is not incumbent upon a Court of justice to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to make good the deficiency under O. 7, R. 11. O. 7, R. 11 is not an enabling provision and has nothing to do with the power of the Court to have the deficiency made up. It is on the other hand a disabling provision, enjoining the Court to reject a plaint if deficiency is not made good as ordered by the Court. The authority to issue the order lies in S. 149 and the penalty for default in R. 11 of O. 7. Whether the Court condones a mala fide mistake and grants time or it does not condone bona fide one and does not grant time, the wording of S. 149 does not stand in its way. The Court of Appeal may supervise the discretion but it cannot be denied that the discretion is there: A I R 1917 Lah 377, Dissent.; Case law discussed.

[P 364 C I, 2]

(b) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 149—Discretion under, should be exercised in favour of litigant except in cases of contumacy or positive mala fides (Per Full Bench).

The discretion conferred on the Court by S. 149 is normally expected to be exercised in favour of the litigant except in cases of contumacy or positive mala fides or reasons of a similar kind. The question of bona fides in this connexion should be construed in the sense that the word is used in the General Clauses Act and not as used in the Limitation Act.

[P 365 C 2]

Qabul Chand for J. L. Kapur and J. L. Kapur — for Appellant.

Achhru Ram and D. N. Aggarwal — for Respondents.

Order of Reference

Din Mohammad J. — This appeal has arisen in the following circumstances: The defendants had executed a mortgage bond in favour of the plaintiffs on 13th January 1923. On 14th January 1935, which was the last day of limitation, a plaint was drafted on behalf of the plaintiffs for instituting a suit against the defendants on the footing of this bond, and after being stamped with a one rupee stamp instead of stamp of the value of Rs. 210 which was the proper amount of court-fee chargeable on the plaint, it was presented at 4.15 P. M. to the Senior Subordinate Judge, Jullundur, to whom the functions of distributing plaints to various Courts working there had been delegated by the District Judge under S. 37 read with S. 34, Punjab Courts Act, and the rules and orders of the High Court, Vol. 1, Ch. I-B. The only visible action taken by the Senior Subordinate Judge on that day in relation to the plaint was to endorse the date and the time of the presentation of the plaint on its opening page over his own initials. On 16th January the full amount of court-fee was paid and on the same day an endorsement was stamped on the plaint by the Senior Subordinate Judge showing the institution of the suit on 16th January and making over the case to the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Second Class, for disposal. There the plaint was admitted and registered and summonses were issued to the defendants.

On the due date the defendants appeared and resisted the suit on the ground among others that the suit having been validly instituted only on 16th January when the full amount of court-fee was paid was barred by time. Thereupon a preliminary issue on the question of limitation was framed and tried. The plaintiffs stated that when they had gone to the treasury on 14th January at 2 P. M. to purchase the necessary stamps, they found the treasury closed and consequently, they were compelled to put in the plaint with a one rupee stamp only. They further averred that the Senior Subordinate Judge had verbally granted them time to make up the deficiency of the court-fee leviable on the plaint and on their complying with the order, the plaint came to have the same force and effect as if such fee had been paid in the first instance. Moreover, the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Second Class, having admitted and registered the plaint on 16th January should be deemed to have acquiesced in the order made by the Senior Subordinate Judge. The defendants, on the other hand, contended that in the first place, the Senior Subordinate Judge's verbal order, if any, was of no legal effect. Secondly, the Senior Subordinate Judge in the act of distributing plaints was not discharging the functions of a Court, but was merely performing a ministerial function. Thirdly, the order of the Subordinate Judge, Second Class admitting and registering the suit could not be treated as an order approving of and adopting the action taken by the Senior Subordinate Judge. The Senior Subordinate Judge was examined as a witness in the case and he stated that he was acting as a "distributing Court" when he sent the case to the Subordinate Judge, Second Class, for disposal and that on the day when the plaint was first presented to him, he had made an order granting the plaintiffs time to make up the deficiency of the court-fee.

The Subordinate Judge, Second Class, came to the conclusion that the Senior Subordinate Judge had no authority to make an order under S. 149, Civil P. C., that the plaintiffs' conduct was not bona fide, inasmuch as one of the plaintiffs being a pleader of long standing fully knew the amount of court-fee required and was intimately acquainted with the hours of working in the treasury, that no order was made by the Court taking seisin of the case, nor was the delay in paying the court-fee condoned by the Court in any other manner and that in these circumstances, the suit having been validly instituted on 16th January only, was barred by time. He accordingly dismissed the suit. The plaintiffs appealed to the District Judge, and he took a different view. In his opinion, the verbal order made by the Senior Subordinate Judge was good in law, and the Senior Subordinate Judge, although a "distributing officer" only, was competent to allow the plaintiffs time to make up the deficiency of court-fee. He allowed the appeal and held the suit to be within time.

Thereupon, the defendants preferred an appeal to this Court which came on for hearing before Bhide J. The learned Judge agreed with the defendants' contention in so far as to hold that the Senior Subordinate Judge was a mere ministerial officer and as such could not make a valid order granting time to the plaintiffs to make good the deficiency. He even remarked that this position was not seriously challenged by the plaintiffs' counsel. He further observed that the action of the plaintiffs in not paying proper court-fee in the first instance was not bona fide. But relying on R. 11 of O. 7, Civil P. C., he dismissed the appeal and maintained the order of the District Judge. In the course of his judgment he said :

* * * the worst that the trial Court could do was to ask the plaintiff to make up the court-fee on the very day on which the plaint was presented.

As it was, the deficiency in the court-fee had already been made up before the plaint reached the trial Court. In these circumstances, the mere fact that the deficiency had been made up on the requisition by the Senior Subordinate Judge who was not authorized to extend any time for the deficiency in the court-fee being made up does not appear to me to be material.

It is against this judgment that the present Letters Patent appeal has been preferred. The case rests on the true construction to be put on S. 3, Limitation Act; Ss. 6 and 28, Court-fees Act; and R. 1 of O. 4; S. 149 and R. 11 of O. 7, Civil P. C. S. 3, Limitation Act, provides that every suit instituted after the period of limitation prescribed therefor shall be dismissed. In the explanation appended to this section, it is stated that, in ordinary cases, a suit is instituted when the plaint is presented to the proper officer. S. 6, Court-fees Act, lays down that no document of any of the kinds specified as chargeable in the first or second schedule to the Act annexed (which include plaints) shall be filed, etc. in any Court of justice or shall be received or furnished by any public officer, unless in respect of such document a fee of an amount not less than that indicated by either of the said schedules be paid. S. 28, Court-fees Act, says that no document which ought to bear a stamp under the Act shall be of any validity, unless and until it is properly stamped, but at the same time adds that when any such document is through mistake or inadvertence received, etc. in any Court or office without being properly stamped, the presiding Judge or the head of the office, as the case may be, may, if he thinks fit, order that such document be stamped as he may direct and on such document being stamped accordingly, the same and every proceeding relative thereto shall be as valid as if it had been properly stamped in the first instance.

Coming now to the Civil Procedure Code, we find that R. 1 of O. 4 enacts that every suit shall be instituted by presenting a plaint to the Court or such officer as it appoints in this behalf. This is in consonance with the Explanation to S. 3, Lim. Act. S. 149 confers power on the Court to allow the person who has not paid the whole or any part of any fee prescribed for any document to pay the whole or part, as the case may be, of such court-fee and provides that upon such payment the document in respect of which such fee is payable shall have the same force and effect as if such fee had been paid in the first instance.

This is in harmony with S. 28, Court-fees Act, the only difference being that it is wider in its scope. O. 7 deals with plaints. It defines the procedure to be adopted in drafting, admitting or returning them, and in the course of those provisions, it deals with their rejection. R. 11 (c) lays down that the Court shall be bound to reject a plaint written upon paper insufficiently stamped, if the plaintiff on being required to supply the requisite stamp paper within a time to be fixed by the Court, fails to do so. This Rule however has been so interpreted by the various Courts in India as to be hardly reconcilable with S. 149, Civil P. C.

In 39 I C 766¹ a Division Bench of this Court, composed of Scott-Smith and Shadi Lal JJ., held that under R. 11 of O. 7, the Court is bound to grant time for affixing the proper court-fee and has no discretion in the matter. It was further observed that S. 149, Civil P. C. containing a general provision relating to all documents cannot control the rule laid down in R. 11 of O. 7, which deals specifically with plaints. A similar interpretation has been put on this Rule by a Division Bench of the Madras High Court in A I R 1927 Mad 1002;² by Wallace J. of the same Court in 95 I C 439;³ and by a Division Bench of the Calcutta High Court in 49 Cal 880.⁴ The remarks made by Chamier C. J. of the Patna High Court in 42 I C 675⁵ which have been quoted with approval in another Patna judgment reported in 70 I C 378⁶ also support that construction. The trend of the decision in 3 P R 1893⁷ and 29 All 749,⁸ too, lies in the same direction, although those decisions do not deal exactly with the same matter as is now before us. I respectfully agree with those decisions in so far as to hold that for the purposes of the Limitation Act, a plaint stamped under

1. Jiwan Das v. Khushali Ram, (1917) 4 A I R Lah 377=39 I C 766=27 P R 1917.
2. Subramania Iyer v. Rama Iyer, (1927) 14 A I R Mad 1002=105 I C 881=54 M L J 67.
3. Basavayya v. Venkatapayya, (1926) 13 A I R Mad 676=95 I C 439=51 M L J 90.
4. Radha Kanta Saha v. Debendra Narayan Saha, (1922) 9 A I R Cal 506=70 I C 101=49 Cal 880=27 C W N 566=38 C L J 74.
5. Ram Sahay Ram Pande v. Lakshmi Narain Singh, (1917) 4 A I R Pat 26=42 I C 675=3 Pat L J 74.
6. Deonath Sahai v. Radha Nath Prasad, (1922) 9 A I R Pat 56=70 I C 378=3 P L T 142.
7. Janda Khan v. Bahadur Ali, (1893) 3 P R 1893.
8. Hari Ram v. Akbar Hussain, (1907) 29 All 749=4 A L J 686=1907 A W N 252 (F R).

the order of the Court with proper court-fee after the expiry of limitation becomes valid from the day it was first presented. But, equally respectfully I beg to differ from them where they further lay down that under R. 11 of O. 7, it is incumbent upon a Court of justice to allow the plaintiff an opportunity to make good the deficiency. It is clear that S. 149, Civil P. C. was introduced for the first time in 1908, when the Code was amended, while S. 54 (to which R. 11 of O. 7 corresponds) existed in the old Code in the very shape in which it now exists. If a statutory duty had already been imposed on the Court by the terms of S. 54 to grant time to the plaintiff to make good the deficiency, it passes my comprehension why in derogation of that section, the matter was placed in the discretion of the Court by the terms of the new S. 149. The effort made in 39 I C 766¹ to get over this difficulty, if I may say so with respect, does not appear to me to be successful. With due deference to the learned Judges therefore who have interpreted R. 11 of O. 7 in the manner indicated above, I am disposed to think that that interpretation is wrong.

To me the various provisions of law which have been alluded to above appear to be quite plain and consistent. A suit can only be taken to have been instituted when a plaint is presented (O. 4, R. 1, Civil P. C. and Explanation to S. 3, Lim. Act). A plaint is valid only when proper court-fee is paid in respect thereof (S. 28, Court-fees Act). No plaint can be received, etc. unless it bears proper stamp (S. 6, Court-fees Act). Every suit instituted after the period of limitation is to be dismissed (S. 3, Lim. Act). The combined effect of these provisions is that unless a plaint bearing proper stamp is presented within time, the suit is barred by the statute of limitation and must be dismissed. But there are further provisions by way of exceptions which relax the rigour of this rule. Prior to 1908, S. 28 empowered the Court to have the deficiency made up in those cases where insufficiently stamped plaints were filed etc., through mistake or inadvertence. In 1908, a provision, wider in scope, was added in the form of S. 149, Civil P. C. In both cases the validation has a retrospective effect, but in both of them the exercise of the power is discretionary. Then comes R. 11 of O. 7, which provides the penalty for not complying with the order of the Court. It is not an enabling provision and has nothing to do with the power of the Court to have the deficiency made up. It is, on the other hand, a disabling provision, enjoining the Court to reject a plaint if deficiency is not made good as ordered by the Court. The authority to issue the order, in my view, lies in S. 149, Civil P. C., and the penalty for default in R. 11 of O. 7. Interpreted in this manner, every provision of law becomes intelligible and harmonious and our first effort should be to find harmony and concord in the various enactments and not disharmony and discord.

In addition to the authorities referred to above, counsel for the respondent has relied on 123 P R 1907,⁹ 74 P R 1903,¹⁰ A I R 1928 Lah 274,¹¹ (1936) 38 P L R 445,¹² 27 Bom 330,¹³ 32 Mad 305,¹⁴ 70 I C 378⁶ and 37 I C 507;¹⁵ but none of these authorities is in point, as in every one of them, the Court hearing the suit had granted time to make up the deficiency of court-fee and I have already remarked, that if this be so, no question arises as to the invalidity of the plaint. I may also observe that I am not impressed by those judgments which introduce the question of bona fide or mala fide mistakes. To me, that also is an unjustifiable attempt to introduce foreign matter into the plain provisions of law which do not admit of any such intrusion. Whether the conduct of the plaintiff is bona fide or mala fide, it does not matter. Whether the Court condones a mala fide mistake and grants time or it does not condone a bona fide one and does not grant time, the wording of S. 149, Civil P. C., does not stand in its way. The Court of Appeal may supervise the discretion but it cannot be denied that the discretion is there.

In the view of the law that I have taken, the only question that falls to be determined in the present case is whether the order granting time was made by a proper

9. Saif Ali Khan v. Fazil Mehdi Khan, (1907) 123 P R 1907=82 P W R 1907.

10. Tara Singh v. Muhammad, (1903) 74 P R 1903.

11. Muhammad Shafi Muhammad Ayub v. Delhi House of Multan, (1928) 15 A I R Lah 274=115 I C 757.

12. Hira Lal v. Mt. Fayazi Khanam, (1937) 24 A I R Lah 111=167 I C 291=(1936) 38 P L R 445.

13. Dhondi Ram v. Taba, (1903) 27 Bom 330=5 Bom L R 198.

14. Gavaranga Sahu v. Boto Krishna Patro, (1909) 32 Mad 305=1 I C 507=19 M L J 340 (F B).

15. Gaya Loan Office Ltd. v. Awadh Behari Lal, (1916) 3 A I R Pat 136=37 I C 507=1 Pat L J 420.

tribunal within the meaning of S. 149, Civil P. C. If it is held to be so, the suit is within time; if not, it is time-barred. It is common ground that the Senior Subordinate Judge was only a distributing officer or at the best a 'distributing Court' as he chooses to call himself. Whatever his designation, his functions were not that of a Court taking cognizance of the case. He was performing a duty which had been delegated to him by the District Court and that delegation was limited. It was confined merely to distributing work among various Subordinate Judges and he could not, therefore, arrogate to himself the functions of the Court trying the suit. This being so, he had no power to grant time to the plaintiffs to make good the deficiency and his ultra vires order can be of no avail to the plaintiffs to save limitation. In fact, this was practically conceded before Bhide J. On this ground, I would have allowed this appeal and dismissed the suit as time-barred but for the mass of authority against the view I am inclined to take of R. 11 of O. 7, Civil P. C. I consider therefore that it is a fit case to be referred to a larger Bench and I would order accordingly.

Coldstream J. — I agree throughout.

Opinion of Full Bench.

Dalip Singh J.—The facts of this Letters Patent appeal are set out at length in the order referring this case to a Full Bench for decision. The point on which the Division Bench referring the Letters Patent appeal felt some hesitation was whether it was correct to hold that under O. 7, R. 11, Civil P. C. in the case of a document insufficiently stamped the Court had no discretion to reject the document and was bound to give an opportunity to the person presenting the document to make up the court-fee. It is unnecessary on the facts of this case to enter into any discussion of the point which caused the reference, because the whole case was referred to the larger Bench for decision, and the appeal can be disposed of on another ground.

It appears to me that this case can be decided without going into the point of law which caused the reference because on the facts the discretion conferred on the Court by Section 149, Civil Procedure Code, should, in the circumstances, have been exercised in favour of the plaintiff. The only reason given by the trial Court for not exercising that discretion in favour of the plaintiff was that the mistake was not bona fide. The reason for holding that the mistake was not bona fide was that he was a practising lawyer of 17 or 18 years' standing and should have been expected to know the working hours of the Treasury. We have been informed at the Bar that the plaintiff practises in the tahsil of Nakodar in the Jullundur District and it is not clear why he should know the working hours of the Jullundur District Treasury at headquarters. As a matter of fact, I doubt if many practising lawyers know the working hours of the Treasury in any particular District because the work of obtaining stamps, etc., from the Treasury is generally left to the clerk of the counsel concerned; but be that as it may, it seems to me that the discretion conferred on the Court by S. 149, Civil P. C., is normally expected to be exercised in favour of the litigant except in cases of contumacy or positive mala fides or reasons of a similar kind. The question of bona fides in this connexion should be construed in the sense that the word is used in the General Clauses Act and not as used in the Limitation Act. A thing should be presumed to be done bona fide, if it is done honestly whether it is done negligently or not for the purposes of judging whether the discretion under S. 149 should or should not be exercised in favour of the litigant. On this point of view there is no proof and no suggestion has been made in this Court that there was any mala fides on the part of the plaintiff. The only thing that has been suggested is that he might have gone earlier in the day to the Jullundur Treasury or should have taken the precaution of depositing his money one day earlier and thus making certain of getting stamps on the last day of limitation. This can hardly be said to constitute mala fides sufficient to disentitle him from the exercise of the discretion in his favour.

It has been urged as a last resort that the discretion under S. 149 could not be exercised because at the time when the document came before the Court the court-fee had already been made up. The argument does not appeal to me at all, for the simple reason that once the plaint had been presented to the Officer of the Court, assuming that the learned Senior Subordinate Judge was acting in a ministerial capacity only and not judicially, the plaintiff had no longer any control over the document and could not legally proceed to stamp it at all. Assuming again that the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge allowing him to stamp this document was not a judicial order, it could not be said that the document had been validly stamped by the plaintiff at all. Therefore when the plaint came before the learned trial Court, in the eye of the law it remained a document insufficiently stamped and therefore the Court had the discretion under S. 149 of treating the stamp, which no doubt already existed as a fact on the document, as being put on in compliance with the order that it should have passed exercising the discretion in favour of the plaintiff. For these reasons therefore I would hold that there is no force in this appeal and the decision of the learned Judge in Single Bench should be upheld. The parties will be left to bear their own costs in the Letters Patent appeal.

Monroe J. — I agree.

Din Mohammad J. — I agree that the appeal should be dismissed.

V.B.B./R.K.

Appeal dismissed.

A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 366

SKEMP J.

Budhu—Accused—Petitioner.

v.

Emperor.

Criminal Revn. Petn. No. 1531 of 1937, Decided on 6th January 1938, from order of Senior Sub-Judge, Hoshiarpur, D/- 11th May 1937.

(a) Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 480—Conciliation Board constituted under the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act is "Court" and proceedings before it are judicial proceedings—Board can take action in respect of contempt of Court committed before it.

A Conciliation Board constituted under the Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act is a Court and the proceedings before it are judicial proceedings. Where such Board takes action against a party appearing before it for contempt of Court under S. 480, Criminal P. C., and fines him under S. 228, Penal Code, it acts within its jurisdiction.

[P 367 O 1]

(b) Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act (7 of 1934), S. 22—Board constituted under Act starting proceedings for contempt of Court against party appearing before it and fining him—Order of Board is open to revision.

Section 22, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, refers only to order passed in pursuance of the Act and does not alter or affect the Code of Criminal Procedure.

[P 367 O 2]

Where a Board constituted under the Act takes proceedings for contempt of Court against a person under S. 480, Criminal P. C., and fines him, its order is open to revision. S. 486, which allows an appeal from an order under S. 480, to the Court to which such decrees or orders are ordinarily appealable, does not apply to the case as ordinarily there is no appeal against order passed by the Board, but S. 439 enables the High Court to exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal and it has jurisdiction to deal with the matter in revision. [P 367 O 2]

J. R. Agnihotri—for Petitioner.

Order.—This is a petition for revision against an order of the Conciliation Board, Garhshankar fining the petitioner Rs. 50 for contempt of Court. The Board dealt with the matter themselves in accordance with S. 480, Criminal P. C. The petitioner appealed to the Senior Sub-Judge at Hoshiarpur, who held quite correctly that in view of S. 22, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, no appeal lay. He has now come here in revision. Notice issued to the District Magistrate of Hoshiarpur who held that Crown representation was unnecessary, and I have not had the advantage of hearing the Crown. The District Magistrate could not have thought that the matter was clear beyond doubt and the inference is that he did not think that the point was of any importance. Mr. Agnihotri, who represents the petitioner, addressed to me a very interesting argument. His case is that the Conciliation Board is not a Court but rather resembles arbitrators and that in any case proceedings before the Board are not judicial proceedings.

On the first point he referred particularly to the commentary on Ss. 14 and 16, Punjab Relief of Indebtedness Act, in Khalifa Shuja-ud-Din and N. K. Iyer's Edition. At page 75, the learned authors express the opinion that it is nowhere provided that the Board is to be considered to be a Court and that the members of the Board can be said to be arbitrators. I do not agree with this opinion. The first reason advanced by Mr. Agnihotri for holding that a Conciliation Board is not a Court is its name; its name, the Board, has the honour of sharing with their Lordships of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, who frequently refer to themselves as a Board. S. 8 of the Act provides for the setting up, constitution and duties of Debt Conciliation Boards. S. 8(1)(a) provides that :

The Local Government may for the purpose of amicable settlement between debtors and their creditors establish Debt Conciliation Boards.

Section 8(1)(b) enables the Local Government to define the local limits of the Board's jurisdiction, and (c) to determine the pecuniary limits of the jurisdiction. Local and pecuniary limits of jurisdiction suggest a Court. S. 16 provides that any Board may exercise all such powers connected with the summoning and examining of parties and witnesses as are conferred on Civil Courts by the Code of Civil Procedure, and every proceeding before the Board shall be deemed a judicial proceeding.

It appears to me that this section settles the matter. The Board has the powers of a Civil Court with reference to the examination of the parties and witnesses and their proceedings are judicial proceedings. A body so empowered must be a Court.

Mr. Agnihotri and the learned authors of the commentary suggest that they are arbitrators; but this is not borne out by the provisions relating to arbitration in the Second Schedule to the Civil Procedure Code. Leaving aside arbitration without the intervention of the Court, where the parties choose their arbitrator, an arbitrator is appointed by the Court and the matter in difference is referred to the arbitrator by the Court (Paras. 2 and 3). By Para. 7, the Court shall issue processes to the parties and by Para. 7 (2), if any one is guilty of contempt, it is the Court which shall punish the guilty person. I am of opinion that a Conciliation Board is a Court.

The next point taken is that the proceedings were not judicial proceedings, and various authorities were referred to; but the matter seems to me to be concluded by the statute itself which says (S. 16): "Every proceeding before the Board shall be deemed a judicial proceeding." Therefore, I think that the Board was acting within jurisdiction in passing an order of fine under S. 228, Penal Code, and in adopting the procedure laid down in S. 480, Criminal P. C.

The next question is whether the High Court has jurisdiction to deal with the matter on revision in view of S. 22 of the Act, which says: "No appeal or application for revision shall lie against any order passed by the Board". I think however that this section refers only to orders passed in pursuance of the Act. In this connexion reference may be made to S. 21, which bars civil suits to question the validity or legality of any agreement made under the Act, and to S. 23, which empowers the Board to review its own order. The present proceeding was under the Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code. Here I may refer to Maxwell's Interpretation of Statutes, Edn. 7, p. 52:

It is in the interpretation of general words and phrases that the principle of strictly adapting the meaning to the particular subject matter with reference to which the words are used finds its most frequent application. However wide in the abstract, they are more or less elastic, and admit of restriction or expansion to suit the subject matter. While expressing truly enough all that the Legislature intended, they frequently express more, in their literal meaning and natural force; and it is necessary to give them the meaning which best suits the scope and object of the statute without extending to ground foreign to the intention. They are to be construed as particular if the intention be particular; that is, they must be understood as used with reference to the subject matter in the mind of the Legislature, and limited to it.

See also page 71:

One of these presumptions is that the Legislature does not intend to make any substantial alteration in the law beyond what it explicitly declares, either in express terms or by clear implication, or, in other words, beyond the immediate scope and object of the statute. In all general matters outside those limits the law remains undisturbed. It is in the last degree improbable that the Legislature would overthrow fundamental principles, infringe rights, or depart from the general system of law, without expressing its intention with irresistible clearness and to give any such effect to general words, simply because they have a meaning that would lead thereto when used in either their widest, their usual or their natural sense, would be to give them a meaning other than that which was actually intended. General words and phrases therefore however wide and comprehensive they may be in their literal sense, must usually be construed as being limited to the actual objects of the Act, and as not altering the law beyond them.

Therefore, I am of opinion that S. 22 of the Act does not alter the Code of Criminal Procedure. S. 486 of that Code allows an appeal from an order under S. 480 to the Court to which such decrees or orders are ordinarily appealable. As ordinarily there is no appeal, this section therefore has no application. There remains S. 439 which enables the High Court to exercise any of the powers conferred on a Court of Appeal.

In the present instance I think the sentence is excessive. The petitioner had purchased the debt in question (the amount is not shown) and the decree was in his name. This led to a misunderstanding about his name and the petitioner was rude to the Board. Subsequently he recovered his temper and the order of the Board shows that at the intervention of a friend he apologized. The Board however insisted on an apology in writing, which the petitioner would not give. Thereon they passed the order in question under S. 480. In my opinion, in view of the apology made at the time, the fine is excessive and I reduce it to one of Rs. 5. The balance, if paid, is to be refunded.

R.M./R.K.

*Order accordingly.A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 368

DALIP SINGH J.

Panna Lal Jain — Judgment-debtor —
Appellant.

v.

Jain Bank of India, Ltd., Lahore —
Decree-holder — Respondent.

Exn. First Appeal No. 115 of 1937, Decided on 29th October 1937, from order of Dist. Judge, Lahore, D/- 4th March 1937.

(a) Limitation Act (1908), Arts. 182 and 183 — District Judge by virtue of S. 164, Companies Act, does not for purpose of Art. 183 become High Court — Art. 182 and not Art. 183 applies to his order.

Though by reason of S. 164, Companies Act, the District Judge has the same jurisdiction and the same powers as the High Court, yet the District Judge by virtue of S. 164 does not become the High Court for purpose of Art. 183, Limitation Act. Hence to a payment order passed by the District Judge under powers conferred by S. 164, Art. 183 has no application and the only Article applicable is Art. 182. [P 368 C 2]

(b) Estoppel — Counsel's admission on point of law is not binding.

The fact that the counsel has waived the objection as to limitation does not estop his client from raising the same, as counsel's admissions on a point of law are not binding. [P 368 C 2]

N. C. Mehra — for Appellant.

F. C. Mital for Chiranjiva Lal Aggarwal (for Officiating Liquidator) — for Respondent.

Judgment. — In this case the Jain Bank of India Ltd. was directed to be wound up by an order of the High Court in 1928. Under S. 164, Companies Act, the subsequent proceedings were directed to take place in the Court of the District Judge, Lahore. In 1931 the list of contributories was settled and a payment order was passed against the present appellant as well as others. No execution of this payment order was taken out till the present application was made on 5th October 1936. On 5th December 1936, notice to show on the judgment-debtor but he did not appear. The Court proceeded to issue a warrant of attachment of his property and on 30th January 1937 the present appellant appeared and pleaded that the execution was time-barred, that he was not liable to pay and that he was unable to pay. The Court struck issues involving these three points. On the question of limitation, the learned counsel for the present appellant waived the objection regarding limitation. The other two issues were decided against the present appellant and the Court granted the Official Liquidator's prayer for attachment of the judgment-debtor's property.

The appellant has come to this Court and the only ground urged on his behalf, which has any force, is the question of limitation. On the face of it, as the payment order was made in 1931 and the execution application was not made till 1936, the plea of limitation was good. The learned counsel for the respondent however contends that Art. 183 of Lim. Act, applies because, by reason of S. 164, Companies Act, the District Judge has the same jurisdiction and the same powers as the High Court. It is quite clear however that the District Judge does not for this purpose by virtue of S. 164 become the High Court and therefore Art. 183, Lim. Act, has no application and the only Article applicable is Art. 182.

Next it was contended that the counsel having waived the objection, the present appellant was estopped from raising the objection. But there is obviously no estoppel and counsel's admissions on a point of law are not binding. Thirdly it was contended that as the appellant had not appeared on 5th December 1936 in accordance with the notice to show cause, the point of limitation must be held to have been decided against him by the rule of constructive res judicata. I do not think there is any force in this contention either. I therefore accept the appeal and hold that the application for execution is time-barred. No order as to costs.

D.S./R.K.

Appeal accepted.

* * A. I. R. 1938 Lahore 369

FULL BENCH

YOUNG C. J., BHIDE AND DIN

MOHAMMAD JJ.

Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj and others — Plaintiffs — Appellants.

v.

Shromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar — Defendants — Respondents.

First Appeal No. 244 of 1936, Decided on 26th January 1938, from decree of Dist. Judge, Lahore, D/- 25th May 1936.

* * (a) Limitation Act (1908), S. 3 — Suit relating to mosque is not exempt from operation of Act (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting).

Per Full Bench. — The personal law of the Mahomedans has been modified by the Punjab Laws Act and the Limitation Act. Every suit is subject to the Limitation Act, and the Act applies without distinction to suits concerning both sacred and secular property. And there being no provision in the Limitation Act exempting suits relating to "wakf" properties from its operation, a suit relating to a mosque must be held to be subject to the rules of limitation prescribed in the Limitation Act : Case law discussed. [P 376 C 2 ; P 377 C 1 ; P 380 C 1]

Per Din Mohammad J. — British Courts in India cannot ignore the provisions of the Mahomedan law altogether while dealing with a mosque and the special features which it possesses and the peculiar privileges which it enjoys are always to be determined under the Mahomedan law and under no other law, even though one of the parties to the suit before them may be a non-Muslim. Although S. 5, Punjab Laws Act, contemplates that Mahomedan law can be altered or abolished in certain respects, in regard to the privileged position that a mosque occupies under the Mahomedan law, it has neither expressly nor impliedly been altered or abolished by the Limitation Act, or for that matter, by any other enactment, and as such a suit relating to it is not governed by Limitation Act but by Mahomedan law simpliciter : Case law discussed. [P 411 C 1, 2]

* (b) Adverse Possession — Wakf property can be adversely possessed (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting).

Per Full Bench. — The title of a person claiming adverse possession over dedicated property rests not on Mahomedan or Hindu law but on the law of limitation and prescription as it prevails in British India and if personal law has been modified by the statute of limitation, the Courts in British India have no option but to give effect to that statute. Hence a mosque can be adversely possessed. It is difficult to see why the building of a mosque or its site cannot be looked upon as "property" merely because the "mosque" has been held to be capable of suing or being sued as a "juristic" person. A mosque is the house of God but is not the deity. A mosque as a building is clearly property : Case law discussed. [P 375 C 2 ; P 380 C 2 ; P 381 C 1 ; P 382 C 1 ; P 383 C 1]

Per Din Mohammad J. — Inasmuch as a mosque is placed extra commercium and is in its very nature incapable of being owned by human beings it cannot be considered "property" in the sense that it can be the object of a right of ownership. It is possible therefore to argue that a mosque is outside the mischief of the Limitation Act, even though that Act purports to deal with properties comprised in a Hindu or Mahomedan endowment in the circumstances mentioned in Arts 134-A, 134-B and 134-C. It can also be argued that a mosque as a juristic person is not property and is thus not touched by the Limitation Act : Case law discussed. [P 411 C 2]

* * (c) Mahomedan Law — Wakf — Adverse possession of mosque by non-Muslim — It loses its sacred character (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting).

Per Full Bench. — Where a mosque has been adversely possessed by non-Muslims, it loses its sacred character as a mosque and there is no duty cast on such persons to maintain its original sacred character or to maintain it as a building : Case law discussed. [P 377 C 1]

Per Din Mohammad J. — Even assuming that a mosque is covered by the provisions of the Limitation Act, it continues to retain its sacred character wherever it may be and in whatever condition it is placed so long as it retains its original shape and form and its sacred character is never lost by any act of desecration, however profane and sacrilegious it may be. The only act of hostility that the Courts in India can countenance in the case of a religious institution like a mosque is an act of direct physical interference with its building and anything short of it cannot be taken into account inasmuch as all through the period that a so-called adverse possessor does not throw such an open challenge as is indicated above, he continues to remain under a heavy burden of which he is never relieved. By taking possession of a religious institution and not using it for the purpose for which it is intended, he merely imposes upon himself the duties and obligations of a quasi manager or a custodian and any breach of those duties in the shape of not using the institution in the manner for which it is intended does not benefit him in any way nor does it extinguish the right of the beneficiaries of that institution just as a breach of duty on the part of a recognized custodian or manager would not entail these consequences. A beneficiary aggrieved by his act may seek relief against him if he so chooses to do, but his inaction does not prejudice the other beneficiaries : Case law discussed. [P 411 C 2 ; P 412 C 1]

(d) Limitation — Suit by juristic person is also subject to law of limitation (Per Full Bench).

"Juristic" persons like other plaintiffs are subject to the law of limitation, and enjoy no special privilege in this respect : 32 Cal 129 and 37 Cal 885, Rel. on. [P 385 C 1]

* * (e) Mahomedan Law — Wakf — Mosque adversely possessed by non-Muslims — All rights of Muslims are lost — Refusal to allow them to pray is not continuing wrong (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting).

Per Full Bench. — Where Sikhs have got adverse possession over a mosque all rights of Muhammadans in the mosque are extinguished and the Sikhs become the owners of the building and the "right to pray" in the mosque is also extinguished and hence in refusing that right to the Mahomedans the Sikhs cannot be held to be guilty of any wrong, much less a 'continuing' one. A I R 1917 Lah 160, Disting. [P 385 C 2; 386 C 1]

Per Din Mohammad J. — So long as the original shape and form of a mosque remain intact, the trespass by a wrong-doer is a continuing injury giving rise to a cause of action at every moment of the day that the trespass continues and this cause of action accrues not only to the mosque itself as a juristic person but also to its beneficiaries who in the very nature of the wakf are not confined to any place or period of time but are spread over all places and all ages. The rights and obligations attaching to a mosque are paramount to the estate and they cannot be lost merely by the efflux of time and such rights and obligations follow the property and adhere to it wherever it goes. Even if it be considered that the right of beneficiaries of a mosque to offer their prayers in it is an interest in immovable property, this right cannot be extinguished: Case law referred. [P 412 C 1]

(f) Religious Endowment — Juristic person. (Per Full Bench.)

The position of a juristic person is not that of a minor and it is doubtful whether a suit instituted by a next friend is properly instituted: 32 Cal 129 and A I R 1932 Mad 328, Rel. on.

[P 386 C 1]

* (g) Specific Relief Act (1872), S. 42— Mosque in possession of non-Muslims—Suit on behalf of Muslim community—Relief of possession of mosque open to it though not to individuals — Suit for mere declaration and injunction is not maintainable. (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting.)

Per Full Bench. — Where a suit is filed on behalf of the Mahomedan community which could have sued for possession of a mosque in possession of non-Muslims even though the individuals of that community cannot sue for such relief, but the relief asked for is only for a mere declaration and injunction, the suit is not maintainable: Case law referred. [P 386 C 1, 2]

Per Din Mohammad J. — A beneficiary in some cases may be entitled to recover endowed property for the benefit of the trustee; but it is not necessary for the beneficiaries of a mosque to bring a suit for possession of the mosque itself and they cannot be compelled so to do if they merely seek to establish their right to offer prayers in it. This right they can exercise irrespective of the fact that the mosque is in the custody of a non-Muslim, inasmuch as under the Mahomedan law a non-Muslim can be a custodian of a mosque. To deny the beneficiaries a relief by way of declaration in the circumstances of this case would be to limit the scope of the substantive part of S. 42 within a very narrow limit and to extend that of the Proviso beyond legitimate bounds. The Proviso to S. 42 comes into play only where the plaintiff being able to seek further relief than a mere declaration of title omits to do so and, the beneficiaries of a mosque are not able to sue for possession of the mosque within the meaning of the Proviso: Case law discussed. [P 416 C 1, 2]

* (h) Tort—Mosque in possession of Sikhs for long time — Demolition of building by Sikhs does not give cause of action to Muslims to sue. (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting.)

Per Full Bench. — Where a mosque has been in the possession of Sikhs for a long time and the Muslims have lost all their rights, the demolition of the mosque by the Sikhs does not constitute a tort so as to give a cause of action to the Muslims to sue: Case law referred. [P 387 C 2; P 388 C 1]

Per Din Mohammad J. — So long as the mosque retains its original shape and form, its sacred character is never lost by any act of desecration. The only act of hostility that can be countenanced is an act of direct physical interference with the building and anything short of it cannot be taken into account. Hence even if the Sikhs have been in possession of the mosque for a long time, the demolition of the building by them gives a valid cause of action for the Muslims to sue: Case law referred. [P 412 C 2]

 (i) Res Judicata — Suit tried and decided according to procedure then prevalent—Subsequent suit is barred even if procedure has been changed subsequently. (Per Full Bench.)

Where a suit is tried according to the procedure then in force and is taken up to the highest Court of Appeal, the mere fact that the procedure then in force was of a summary character is immaterial for the purposes of S. 11, Civil P. C., and a subsequent suit is barred by res judicata. [P 388 C 1, 2]

 (j) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11—Suit by mutawalli for possession of mosque dismissed on ground of adverse possession — Demolition of mosque — Subsequent suit for restoration of building and declaration of right to say prayers held barred by res judicata. (Per Full Bench, Din Mohammad J. Dissenting.)

A mutawalli filed a suit for possession of a mosque. The suit was dismissed on ground of adverse possession. The mosque was demolished and subsequently another suit was brought for the restoration of the building and declaration of right to say prayers: [P 388 C 2; P 389 C 1]

Held Per Full Bench. — That S. 11 applies not only to the final decision but also to issues. The real issue in the subsequent suit was also adverse possession and as such it was barred by res judicata even though there was no prayer for the relief of possession.

Per Din Mohammad J. — The subject-matter of the subsequent suit was not the same as it was in the previous litigation, as in the prior suit the plaintiff sought to recover possession of the property to which he laid claims as mutawalli, while the subsequent suit was by the mosque itself as well as the beneficiaries for the restoration of the mosque to its original shape and form, with the additional prayer that the beneficiaries may be allowed to sue it as a mosque. Hence the rule of res judicata did not operate. [P 418 C 2]

(k) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 5 — Petition under — O. 1, R. 8, Civil P. C. is not applicable (Per Full Bench.)

The Sikh Gurdwaras Act is an enactment of a special nature and is governed by its own procedure. Hence the procedure under O. 1, R. 8, Civil P. C., is not applicable to a petition under S. 5, Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act and a notification of the claim under S. 3 in the Gazette and also at head quarters of district is sufficient. [P 389 C 2; P 390 C 1]

(l) Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 8 — Bona fide litigation—Omission to follow procedure under O. 1, R. 8 is only technical irregularity (Per Full Bench.)

Where the previous litigation is bona fide, the omission to follow the procedure in O. 1, R. 8 is only a technical irregularity which causes no prejudice and the previous decision is binding: A I R 1933 P C 183, Rel. on. [P 390 C 2]

(m) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 30 (ii) — Claim in representative capacity — Finding of tribunal that Mahomedans in general have no right — S. 30 (ii) has no application (Per Full Bench).

Where in a representative suit by an Anjuman, the Tribunal held that the Mahomedans in general had no right left in the mosque, that finding must be held to be binding on all. In this aspect of the case, no question of assertion of a claim on behalf of any individual on the ground of want of knowledge, etc. within the purview of S. 30 (ii) arises. [P 390 C 2]

(n) Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 56 — Suit for injunction for restoring demolished building to its former condition — Relief can be granted and on failure to obey it, procedure under O. 21, R. 32 (5), Civil P. C. can be applied (Per Din Mohammad J.).

In a suit for an injunction for restoring a demolished building to its original condition, the defendant contended that it was impossible for the Court to grant this relief as it would be difficult to determine the original condition:

Held that a person who takes upon himself the responsibility of demolishing the building of a mosque cannot escape his liability to restore it to its original shape merely on the ground that it is physically impossible to re-construct it in the exact shape, form and condition in which the building stood when it was demolished. If the defendants refuse to obey the injunction issued, the Court can direct under O. 21, R. 32 (5), Civil P. C., even the plaintiffs, or any other person, to do the act required to be done so far as practicable, at the cost of the judgment-debtors, and the expenses incurred thereon can be recovered as if they were included in the decree. [P 417 C 1]

(o) Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11 — Decisions passed in executive capacity do not operate as res judicata (Per Din Mohammad J.).

Decisions which are contemplated to operate as res judicata under S. 11, are those which are given after a complete observance of the procedure laid down by the law and not those which are more or less orders passed in an executive capacity. To found the decision of a Civil Court entirely on the findings arrived at in a criminal judgment robs it of all its sanctity and binding force. [P 418 C 2]

(p) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 15 — S. 15 does not absolve tribunal from following procedure under O. 1, Rule 8, Civil P. C. (Per Din Mohammad J.).

The power conferred on the tribunal under S. 15, Sikh Gurdwaras Act is similar to the one conferred upon the Civil Courts by O. 1, Rule 10 (2), Civil P. C. and does not absolve it from the necessity of following the procedure as laid down in O. 1, R. 8 of the Code. [P 421 C 1]

(q) Mahomedan Law—Wakf—Right to use mosque is individual right—Suit by beneficiary to exercise right of devotion is not representative suit (Per Din Mohammad J.).

The right of a Muslim to use a mosque is an individual right and can be exercised whenever he chooses so to do, so long as the mosque exists, and a suit instituted by a beneficiary for the exercise of his right of devotion in a mosque, is a suit for the enforcement of an individual right and is not covered by the provisions of O. 1, R. 8, Civil P. C.: Case law referred. [P 421 C 2; P 422 C 1]

(r) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 5—Tribunal cannot declare property to be Sikh Gurdwara (Per Din Mohammad J.).

On hearing a petition under S. 5, the tribunal has no power to make a declaration that the property in suit belongs to a Sikh Gurdwara; all that it can do is to reject the claim as put forward in the petition: A I R 1935 Lah 279, Rel. on.

[P 422 C 2]

(s) Punjab Sikh Gurdwaras Act (8 of 1925), S. 32—Section does not cover suits instituted long after time when petition could be made has expired (Per Din Mohammad J.).

Section 32 is intended to apply only to those suits which were pending at the commencement of the Act or in which, though instituted after its commencement, the claim could be made under the sections mentioned therein within the time prescribed. It does not obviously cover such suits as are instituted long after the time during which the petitions could be made has expired: A I R 1934 Lah 390, Dissent.; A I R 1931 Lah 85 (F B), Expl. [P 424 C 1]

Dr. Mohammad Alam—for all Appellants except Nos. 1, 2, 6, 9, 12 and 17.

Barkat Ali—for all Appellants.

Ghulam Rasul Khan and Taj-ud-Din—for Appellants Nos. 1, 6, 9, 12 and 17.

M. Aslam Khan—for Appellant No. 2.

Coltman—for all Appellants (on 10th & 11th January 1938).

Badri Das, Charan Singh, Harnam Singh and Narindar Singh—for Respondents.

Young C. J.—This is an appeal from the Court of the learned District Judge of Lahore. The plaintiffs brought a suit in the lower Court praying for a declaration that a certain parcel of land known in this case as Shahid Ganj was and is the site of a wakf mosque, dedicated to God; that the mosque could not be used for any purpose which, according to Mahomedan law, was opposed to the purposes of a mosque, and that plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 18, and also all other followers of Islam, had a right to use the mosque for the purposes of worship without let or hindrance by any one. Consequential relief was claimed in the form of a mandatory injunction to the following effect, that the defendants: (a) Should not use plaintiff No. 1 (i. e. the mosque itself) for any purpose which may be contrary to its sanctity and use according to Mahomedan law; (b) Should not in any way interfere in the plaintiffs Nos. 2 to 18's rights of worship relating to the said mosque; and (c) Should re-construct the portion of the mosque which was demolished by them on the night between 7th and 8th July 1935, in the same shape and form as it was before demolition. In the alternative, the plaintiffs claimed damages for the demolition so that they might rebuild it in its former shape. It is to be noted that the plaintiffs did not sue for possession.

By their defence the defendants, that is the Shromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee and another, who are in possession of the site, denied that the building was a mosque, claimed that the suit was barred by (a) the principle of res judicata, (b) by the provisions of the Sikh Gurdwaras Act, (c) by decision of the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal, dated 20th January 1930, and that the suit was not within the time prescribed by the Limitation Act. The learned District Judge found that the building was in its origin wakf, that is originally dedicated for prayers in 1722, but that it had not been used as a mosque for prayers since 1762. He decided that the claim was not within limitation, and was barred by the decision of the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal and the provisions of the Sikh Gurdwaras Act, but not by the decisions of the Courts between 1850 and 1883. He held that the defendants had acquired a title by adverse possession and that plaintiff No. 1, that is the mosque itself, was a juristic person capable of suing through its next friend.

The facts which are proved, and accepted by the parties, are that in the year 1722 the mosque was erected, dedicated to God, and used as a mosque until the establishment of Sikh Rule in the year 1762; that from the year 1762 till the institution of the suit the building had not been used as a mosque or place of worship; that two actions had been brought by a descendant of the original Mutwalli of the mosque in 1854 and 1855, but both these actions had failed on the ground of limitation; that in 1925 the Sikh Gurdwaras Act was passed and the question was litigated under that Act as to whom this property belonged; the Anjuman Islamia of Lahore filed a petition on behalf of the Muslims under S. 5 of the Act praying that the mosque should be excluded from the consolidated list, and an issue was framed as to what right, title or interest the Anjuman had in the property claimed; the tribunal decided that the Anjuman had no right, title or interest in the property; that on the night of 7th July 1935 the Sikhs demolished the mosque.

From the date of their possession in 1762 the Sikhs have used this building as their own. In one of the domes they kept the Guru Granth Sahib until about the year 1883 when the dilapidation of the building made it dangerous for the Granth Sahib still to be kept there. The Sikhs have also for many years let the building on rent to tenants, and for the use of the tenants they placed a latrine upon the roof. These facts have not been challenged here in appeal. Mr. Badri Das on behalf of the respondents accepts the findings that the mosque as an institution is a juristic person, and also that the building was originally dedicated to sacred uses as a mosque. It is not contested by the appellants that the building has not been used as a mosque, that is for the purpose of prayers, since 1762. In fact the findings of fact by the lower Court throughout are not contested here. There has been continuous adverse possession by the Sikhs for no less than 173 years, and during that time there has been a complete denial to the Muslims of all their rights. The facts being as they are, it is obvious that no appellants ever were faced with a more difficult task than the appellants in this appeal. The fact that the plaintiffs did not sue for possession shows that they recognized the difficulties of their position. The main point argued in this Court concerns the Limitation Act, and the finding of the Court below that the suit was not brought within time. It has been somewhat difficult to follow the arguments of learned counsel appearing for the appellants, but the points appear to be these: (1) that Mahomedan law governs wakfs, and that Mahomedan law does not recognize any rule of limitation; (2) that a mosque as a juristic person, and because of its sanctity, has a perpetual existence and cannot be subject to adverse possession; (3) that property in a mosque vests in God and nothing divests God of His property except, perhaps, an Act of the Legislature; (4) that a mosque is not immovable property and, therefore, Art. 144, Lim. Act, does not apply; (5) that if the Limitation Act is held to apply, a new period of limitation commenced to run from the date of the demolition of the mosque on the ground that when property is dedicated to sacred uses, there is a duty cast on an owner of such property, whether his title is acquired by adverse possession or in any other manner, to maintain the sacred character of the land or building so dedicated, and to maintain the sacred building.

We have been referred to a mass of authority, little of which is of assistance in dealing with the points in issue. All these points can be dealt with together. In my opinion it is clear that if the Limitation Act applies to the suit, there is no force in any of them. The first point to be considered is the effect of the Punjab Laws Act (Act 4 of 1872) upon the personal law of the Muslims. S. 5 of the Act is very much in point. It is as follows :

5. In questions regarding succession, special property of females, betrothal, marriage, divorce, dower, adoption, guardianship, minority, bastardy, family relations, wills, legacies gifts, partitions, or any religious usage or institution, the rule of decision shall be :

(a) Any custom applicable to the parties concerned, which is not contrary to justice, equity, or good conscience, and has not been by this or any other enactment altered or abolished, and has not been declared to be void by any competent authority;

(b) The Mahomedan law in cases where the parties are Mahomedans, and the Hindu law, in cases where the parties are Hindus, except in so far as such law has been altered or abolished by legislative enactment, or is opposed to the provisions of this Act, or has been modified by any such custom as is above referred to.

It is clear therefore from this Act that Mahomedan law does not necessarily govern cases in which even Mahomedans only are interested. This Act allows for modification of Mahomedan law by legislative enactment and makes it clear that Mahomedan law only applies in cases where the parties are Mahomedans and there has been no legislative interference with the personal law. The next point to consider is the Limitation Act, 1908 (Act 9 of 1908). S. 3 is as follows:

3. Subject to the provisions contained in Ss. 4 to 25 (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal preferred, and application made after the period of limitation prescribed therefor by Sch. 1 shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been set up as a defence.

This section applies to every suit instituted. It provides no exception for suits concerning wakfs, religious institutions, or land and buildings dedicated to sacred uses. Art. 144, Limitation Act provides a period of 12 years within which an action for possession of immovable property must be brought, the time to run from the date when the possession of the defendant became adverse. Arts. 134-A, 134-B and 134-C, which prescribe the period of limitation in actions concerning Hindu, Mahomedan or Buddhist religious or charitable endowments show conclusively that the contention of the appellants that wakfs—or property dedicated to God—are outside the law of limitation is not maintainable. That the Act is concerned with the personal law of Mahomedans is shown by reference to Arts. 103, 104 and 125. The Limitation Act therefore beyond any argument, applies to this suit, and the original Mahomedan law has been accordingly modified by legislative enactment. It is not possible therefore for it to be argued now that Mahomedan law simpliciter can be applied by the Courts of British India. While dealing with the Limitation Act it is important to note S. 28 which reads as follows:

At the determination of the period hereby limited to any person for instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property shall be extinguished.

It has been frequently held, and now cannot be disputed, that the operation of S. 28 perfects a title to the property in favour of the person in adverse possession after the period prescribed for recovery of possession has run. 12 years' continuous possession by a wrong-doer not only bars the remedy and extinguishes the title of the rightful owner of land, but confers a good title upon the wrong-doer: see 3 Cal 224¹ and 3 All 435.²

It was conceded by counsel for the appellants that there is no direct authority in favour of his proposition that a suit concerning wakf property was not subject to the Limitation Act. Having regard to the quotations herein from the Act itself it is quite clear that there could be no such authority. The cases to which we have been referred, which were alleged by counsel indirectly to apply to this point, were cases in which only Muslims were involved, or the Limitation Act did not apply, or adverse possession had not been established. 35 Mad 681³ was strongly relied upon by the appellants. All that that case decided however was that, according to Mahomedan law, when a wakf was created all proprietary rights of men were extinguished in the property so dedicated. No question of adverse possession or limitation arose. This proposition of law however clearly applies

1. Gossain Dass Chunder v. Issur Chunder Nath. (1877) 3 Cal 224.

2. Jagram Bibi v. Ganeshi, (1881) 3 All 435.

3. Kuttayan v. Mammanna Rayuthan, (1912) 35 Mad 681=18 I C 195.

only as between Muslims themselves, and then only when no statutory modification of Mahomedan law exists. We have not been referred to any authority for the proposition that as between Muslims and non-Muslims dedicated property was inalienable or not subject to adverse possession. We have also been referred by counsel for the appellants to cases both civil and criminal concerning grave-yards. In none of these however was the question of limitation or adverse possession raised or decided. The Mahomedan law relating to wakfs was laid down, namely, that once land was dedicated to the purpose of a grave-yard it was inalienable. I deal later with the offence under S. 297, I. P. C.; it can have no bearing upon the civil aspect of this question. The principal authority on civil law relied upon by the appellants is that in 38 P L R 182.⁴ This was a decision of their Lordships of the Privy Council. This case however by no means covers the proposition argued by the appellants. In this case in the year 1928, Ballabh Das, according to the findings in the lower Courts, obtained by deed a transfer of the land in suit from one Mt. Musaheb Khanam, who was the descendant of the original manager of the qabristan or grave-yard. Their Lordships held that the land was a grave-yard and that the ancestor of the vendor was not the owner of the land but only the manager; that the land was a cemetery in the ordinary Mahomedan sense and was no longer the subject of private ownership. It followed that the vendor had no title to the land and that therefore Ballabh Das could not get a better title than his vendor had. It is to be noted in this case that the question of adverse possession did not arise, the land was alienated in 1928 and the suit brought well within time. This case is therefore no authority for the proposition that land dedicated to sacred uses is not alienable to strangers, or that adverse possession would not confer a good title upon a vendee who was in possession of the land for 12 years even after wrongful alienation to him by the manager. It would appear to be obvious that anything which admits of possession also admits of adverse possession. A mosque can clearly be "possessed". On the other hand the cases reported in A I R 1935

Oudh 425⁵ and A I R 1936 Oudh 207⁶ are authorities showing that suits concerning Muslim grave-yards are subject to limitation and adverse possession.

It is conceded by the respondents that a mosque as an institution (but not as a building consisting of stones, bricks and mortar) is a juristic person. According to Mahomedan law its sacred character is perpetual. Counsel for plaintiff 1, that is the mosque, could not refer us to any authority of the Indian Courts or of the Privy Council for his proposition that property dedicated to sacred uses retains its sacred character under all circumstances and for all time. He relied upon two decisions of the Courts in England reported in (1885) 16 Q B D 379⁷ and (1869) 4 Q B 407.⁸ Those cases decided that if land was dedicated to sacred uses, only an Act of Parliament could divest such land of its sacred character. In fact the position in England—as indicated by these authorities—would appear to be much the same as the position under Mahomedan law where that law has not been modified by statute. In these cases no question of limitation or adverse possession arose, and they do not decide that the sacred character of such property in England would prevent the title passing by adverse possession to a third party. In any event they recognize that an Act of Parliament may alter the character of such land. The Limitation Act in India is equivalent to an Act of Parliament, and it clearly deals with property dedicated to God.

It was impossible to follow or understand the argument that a mosque as a "juristic person" had a perpetual existence and was not "property", and therefore could not be subject to adverse possession. It appeared to be based on the false analogy of the position in law of a Hindu deity. It is true that "God" as a deity has a perpetual existence and cannot be subject to possession of any kind and there are many authorities to this effect; indeed no authorities

4. Ballabh Das v. Nur Mohammad, (1936) 23 A I R P C 83=160 I C 579=38 P L R 182 (P C).

5. Wahid Ali v. Mahboob Ali Khan, (1935) 22 A I R Oudh 425=156 I C 92=1935 O W N 815=11 Luck 297.

6. Ramzan v. Mahomed Ahmad Khan, (1936) 23 A I R Oudh 207=165 I C 104=1935 O W N 96.

7. Wright v. Ingle, (1885) 16 Q B D 379=55 L J M C 17=54 L T 511=34 W R 220=50 J P 436.

8. Reg v. Sir Travers Twiss, (1869) 4 Q B 407=38 L J Q B 228=10 B & S 298=20 L T 522=17 W R 765.

are needed for such an obvious proposition. On the other hand there are authorities to the effect that the wood or stone idol of a Hindu deity is property and therefore subject to adverse possession: see Gour's Hindu Code, S. 199, Para. 2072, 4 Mad 315⁹ and 51 All 621.¹⁰ In any event there is no analogy between a Hindu or—any other—deity and a mosque. A mosque is the house of God but is not the deity. A mosque as a building is also clearly "property" in every sense of the word even if it be the "property of God". There is a clear distinction between a mosque as an institution, or as a juristic person which can own property, and a mosque as a building; the mosque as a building may be owned by the institution (juristic person) or by anyone else who may acquire adverse possession over it. A mosque as a building has every attribute of "property", it is, for example, subject to trespass, and it has been held that a mosque is "immovable property" and that the juristic person—that is the institution—as owner of such immovable property has a right of pre-emption under S. 13, Punjab Pre-emption Act 1905. An eminent Muslim Judge (Shah Din J.) was a party to this view in 59 P R 1914;¹¹ and see also 153 P R 1884.¹² It was also argued that the mosque as a juristic person was divorced from the mosque building, and as a juristic person could not be subject to the Limitation Act whatever might happen to the mosque or to the Muslim worshippers. I cannot understand this argument. A "juristic person" cannot exist apart from property or right. All property in the mosque and all rights having been lost to the Muslims and to the juristic person by 12 years' adverse possession, the juristic person—a legal fiction—ceases also to exist. It owns nothing and represents nothing.

Another argument of a similar character which has been addressed to us is as follows: That if the Limitation Act does apply, and by virtue of S. 28 of that Act a title to the land in suit is acquired by the respondents, the mosque being sacred in character, it is the duty of the present proprietors not only to maintain that sacred character but the building itself; in fact that there is some form of onerous covenant running with such land which cannot be got rid of, and apparently that no matter if the owner of the land be atheist or infidel of any kind, this duty is paramount and must be carried out. This argument is based upon the case in 38 P L R 182⁴ already referred to, and in particular upon the use of the words "extra commercium" by their Lordships in that judgment, and perhaps also upon S. 297, I. P. C. It is said that such land is not governed by any human law and that the sacred character must therefore be maintained. As I have pointed out above, the decision of their Lordships in 38 P L R 182⁴ cannot possibly be used as an authority for this purpose. Dedicated property is "extra commercium" as regards Muslims themselves but not as regards Muslims and third parties, or if there is statutory modification of Mahomedan law. Indeed if there was anything in this point at all the appellants would not have had to go to the length of contending that the Limitation Act did not apply to this suit.

The criminal liability cast upon persons under S. 297, I. P. C. for deliberately destroying sacred edifices with the intention of offending religious sentiment cannot have any bearing upon the point under consideration. There may be complete ownership of property by adverse possession or otherwise, but for good cause the Legislature may enact that the owner, in the interest of the public, cannot do what he likes with his own. A cow may be owned and similarly it is an offence to slaughter a cow publicly; but it cannot therefore be said that there is, by reason of this salutary provision, a duty cast upon a Muslim owner of a cow to maintain its sacred character and therefore to keep it alive and not have it slaughtered at all. We have nothing to do in this appeal with the demolition of the mosque in relation to any possible liability under the Indian Penal Code. We have not been referred to any authority for this proposition, and I would be very slow, without authority, to lay down that a building once dedicated to God retains its sacred character for all time and under all circumstances, or that it was the duty of any owner of such property to maintain the original sacred character of the building. This proposition, if accepted, must apply to all forms of 9. Subbaraya v. Chellappa, (1882) 4 Mad 315.

10. Dasami Sahu v. Param Shameshwar, (1929) 16 A I R All 315=116 I O 433=51 All 621=1929 A L J 473.

11. Jindu Ram v. Hussain, (1914) 1 A I R Lah 444=24 I C 100=59 P R 1914=147 P L R 1914.

12. Shankar Das v. Said Ahmad, (1884) 153 P R 1884.

property dedicated to God. It would apply equally to a Hindu temple. We would then get the curious and dangerous position that where Muslims have taken possession of Hindu temples dedicated to God, demolished them, and erected mosques on the sacred sites, it would be the duty of the Muslims to maintain the sacred character of the land as understood by the Hindus. If this contention were correct, the position, if such a mosque eventually came into the possession of a third religious community, apparently might be that three forms of rites might have to be performed in the same building at the same time. One thing is clear that if the general proposition was established—greatly to the detriment of the maintenance of law and order—that there could be no adverse possession of land dedicated to God and the Limitation Act did not apply, there is no mosque in this country built on the site of a Hindu temple which could not now be recovered by the Hindus. There have been many decisions of their Lordships of the Privy Council which make it clear that the doctrine of adverse possession does apply to property dedicated to God : see 36 Bom 135,¹³ 27 Bom 363,¹⁴ 27 Bom 500,¹⁵ 23 Cal 536,¹⁶ 37 Cal 885,¹⁷ 51 All 621,¹⁰ 41 Mad 124¹⁸ and 23 Mad 271.¹⁹ The law as laid down by these authorities cannot now be disputed. There can be no distinction in law, in my opinion, between different forms of land dedicated to God ; for instance there is no distinction between a mosque and its site dedicated to God and land dedicated to God for the use of that mosque. The same would apply to Hindu temples and the land dedicated thereto.

On the last point that, assuming the Limitation Act applied, a new period of limitation commenced to run from the date of the demolition of the mosque, it was argued that although all rights may have

13. Huran Bibi v. Hinghan Bibi, (1912) 36 Bom 135=12 I C 926=13 Bom L R 1160.

14. Dattagiri v. Dattatraya. (1903) 27 Bom 363=4 Bom L R 743.

15. Saguon v. Kaji Hussein, (1903) 27 Bom 500=5 Bom L R 303.

16. Nilmoney Singh v. Jagabandhu Roy, (1896) 23 Cal 536.

